World Record

Psychology professors are studying the memory of Rajan S. Mahadevan, graduate student in physiological psychology. See Page 3.

Weather

Partly cloudy today, breezy and colder with the high 50 to 55. Cloudy and cold tonight with the low in the low to mid-30s. Cold Wednesday with a 20 percent chance of rain.

5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

...mixed feelings in the University community. See Page 5.

Tuesday
October 4, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 31

Kansas State
Collegian

Parrish resigns, tired of fighting odds

Staff/Brett Hacker

Stan Parrish will no longer be K-State's head football coach as of the end of this season. Parrish tendered his resignation Monday.

By Tom Morris
Sports Editor

Stan Parrish knew he had a challenge in front of him three years ago when he accepted the head football coaching job at K-State.

"I knew full well when I came here the odds were against me," Parrish said.

But after two consecutive losing seasons, and with the Wildcats off to an 0-4 start this year, Parrish decided to quit bucking the odds. He tendered his resignation Monday, effective at the end of this season.

Parrish said he made the decision on the behalf of his players and his coaches.

"This has been a very difficult situation, something neither the players nor the coaches should go through," Parrish said.

"The pressure and living week-to-week gets to be very difficult. Those young men, along with the coaches and their families, have to bear the burden of it, and I don't think they need that."

Athletic Director Steve Miller, who said Parrish's resignation was an independent and personal decision, said there were two reasons behind the decision.

"First, Stan Parrish is a man of unusually high integrity. He's never displayed anything but total class, and that's surely the case here.

"Second, he did it with the best interests of a total program in mind," Miller said. "He had his reasons, and they were good reasons, but I had to be convinced of that because I wanted him to stay."

After losing games in the fourth quarter to Tulane University and Louisiana Tech, Parrish was emotionally distraught and asked for a vote of confidence from his team at a meeting Sunday.

"In reality, we could easily be 2-2 right now but there's a fine line in athletics between success and failure," Parrish said.

Miller said the losses had a lot to do with Parrish's resignation.

"The first reason was that with the losses to Tulane and to Louisiana Tech, the team had lost its chance to change the whole environmental condition here," Miller said.

"Given the fact that those games went the other way, and the fact that he's seen what happened to other coaches and programs in similar situations — like what happened to Bob Valesente last year at KU — he felt it was best to put things into perspective and (resign) as quickly as possible."

And as with any sudden resignation, there are disadvantages.

"The major disadvantage is that this gives us a lame duck coach," Miller said. "But if everyone is schooled correctly, and is professional in their work habits, they'll do their job. A degree of professionalism will help you to carry your job on and out, and I believe Stan will perform admirably."

As for the rest of the season, Parrish said he would approach it "the only way I know how to coach. That's full speed. If I didn't think I could do it that way, I would have resigned immediately."

That raises a question. If the Wildcats were to turn the 1988 campaign around, would Parrish complete the two years left on his contract?

"Steve told me he reserved the right to renegotiate my contract, but that's a bridge we'll have to cross when we come to it," Parrish said.

■ See PARRISH, Page 8

Grant to aid Kansas rural areas

By Robert Short
Campus Editor
and
Michael Nichols
Government Editor

A grant of $100,000 for use in assisting rural community development projects has been made available to K-State and the University of Kansas by a federal agency.

The Economic Development Administration is sponsoring the grant to develop programs that will focus on economic planning in small communities, said Ken Murphy, press secretary for the office of 2nd District Congressman Jim Slattery.

Jan Flora, professor of sociology, said the grant would establish a joint center between K-State and KU to aid rural Kansas communities.

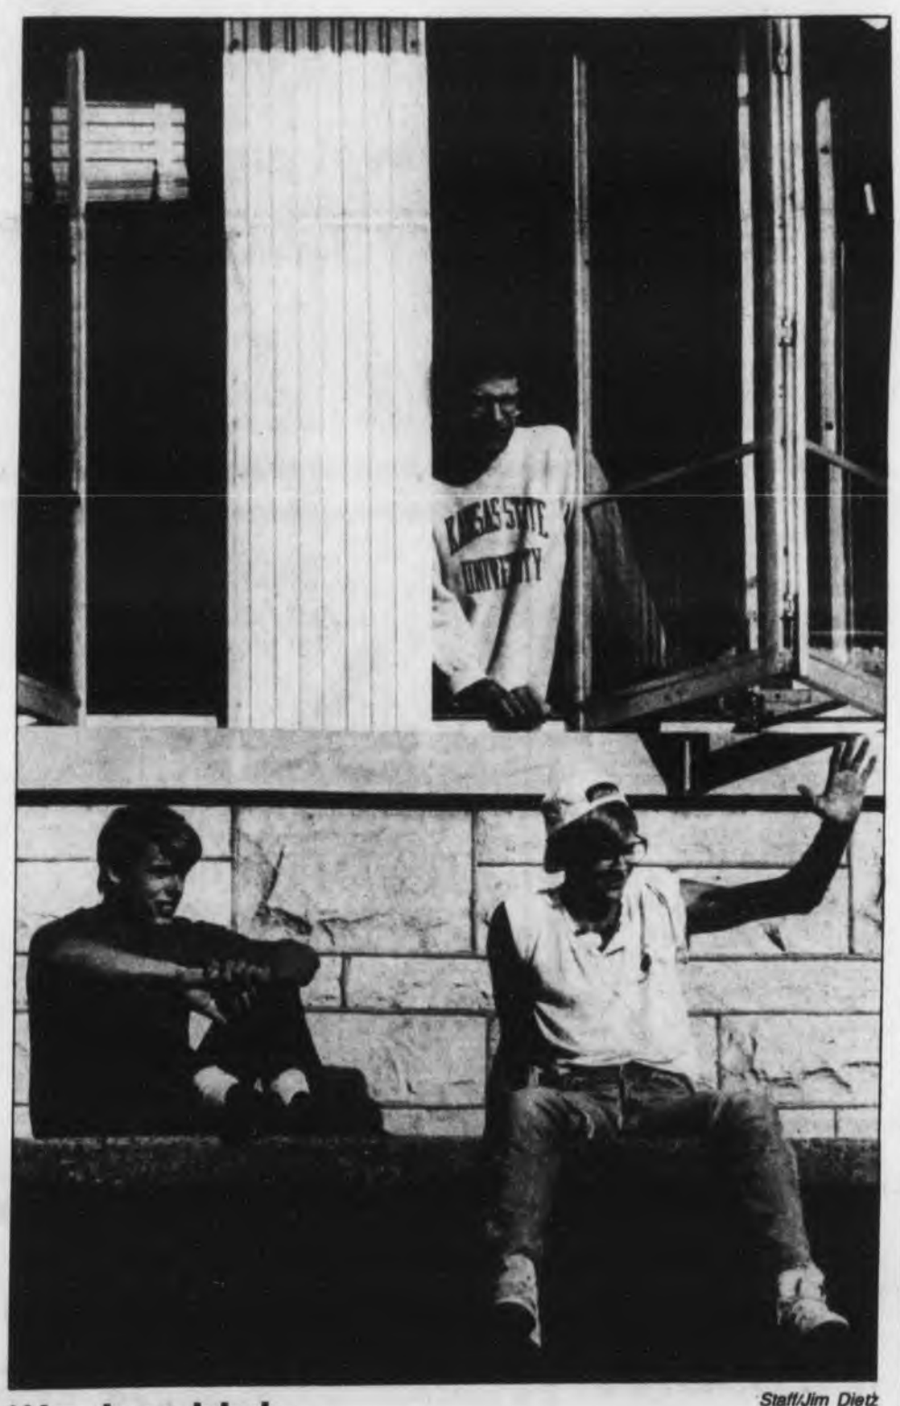
"It will be called the Kansas Center for Community Economic Development, and will be used to provide assistance to rural communities in terms of consulting and information on planning for rural development projects," he said.

Flora is the acting director of the Kansas Center for Rural Initiatives, a University-based office responsible for administering the grant money.

Receiving the grant at KU will be the Institute for Public Policy and Business Research, under the direction of Charles Krider, a KU professor.

"The purpose of the centers (at KU and K-State is) to improve Kansas' understanding of economic problems," Murphy said.

The announcement that the money would be available for the Kansas universities was made late Friday, he said. It is now just a matter of writing the checks, he said.



The $100,000 grant will be split evenly between the two universities, Murphy said.

"K-State will work with communities of less than 10,000 people, while the KU will work with communities of 10,000 to 50,000 people," Flora said.

Flora said other faculty members at K-State will be involved in this program.

"Technical assistance will be provided by faculty throughout the entire University, according to what sort of expertise is needed in the different communities," he said.

Murphy said Slattery and Orson Swindle, U.S. assistant secretary for economic development, had been working together since May to secure the grant.

Staff/Jim Dietz

Waving high

Kelly Klap waves to friends Monday afternoon while he and Craig Jost sit on the ledge outside Seaton Hall talking to Ty Butler. The trio, all seniors in landscape architecture, was taking a break from studio to enjoy the weather.

Impeachment considered

2 senators in question

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

For the first time in five years, a bill of impeachment against a student senator will be introduced at a Student Senate meeting.

In fact, two bills, one for each senator under consideration for impeachment, will be introduced Thursday during the Senate meeting.

The impeachment bills were approved unanimously Monday by both the Senate Executive Committee and the Senate Standing Operations Committee.

The Senate Executive Committee will serve as sponsor of the bills at the meeting, enabling the bills' introduction for consideration by Senate.

Nonfeasance in office is the reason cited on each bill for the impeachment of Jon McClure, graduate senator and graduate in agricultural economics, and Rattan Nath, graduate senator and graduate in physics.

Nonfeasance is the failure to perform the duties of office required of a senator. Both McClure and Nath are alleged to have committed nonfeasance due to excessive unexcused absences, according to the bills.

The Senate will consider the bills on first reading Thursday. Bills may only be passed by Senate after a second reading, which, for these bills, will take place Oct. 13.

Under the bylaws of the Student Governing Association constitution, any senator who has more than three unexcused absences will automatically be considered for impeachment.

The SGA constitution also states that a senator may be impeached by a two-thirds vote of Senate. If two-thirds of the total membership of Student Senate vote for impeachment, McClure and Nath will be tried before the Student Tribunal. If convicted of nonfeasance, both senators will be removed from office.

Human Ecology Senator Mary Jo Lampe, chairwoman of the operations committee and senior in business management and apparel and textile marketing, said the Senate has to stand by its rules.

"You've got to put your foot down, or else you won't be taken seriously," Lampe said.

She said McClure and Nath were told they were in danger of having too many absences.

"The people were warned that their records were getting perilously low," she said.

Student Senate Chairman Doug Folk, senior in electrical engineering, said the executive committee was required by the constitution to draft the impeachment bill.

"We have to," Folk said. "We have no choice, it's automatic. That doesn't mean impeachment is automatic."

Graduate Senator Joni Hays, graduate in student counseling and personnel services, had been working on a bill of impeachment against Nath and McClure similar to the ones passed by the committees Monday.

Hays worked on the bill with Education Senator Brenda Halinski, senior in elementary education.

Hays said they submitted the bill Monday to Folk.

Folk said during the executive committee meeting that drafting of the executive committee's bill began late last week. Since the executive committee's bill was the first submitted, it is the first to be considered by Senate.

When told her bill had been replaced by

■ See SENATE, Page 8

Grad check process may become computerized

By Joseph P. Kennedy
Collegian Reporter

The process of checking graduating seniors' credits through applications for graduation may become computerized in at least one K-State college.

Marjorie Cleland, assistant to the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, is in charge of processing all of the graduation checks for that college, which contains almost 5,000 students.

"We are in the process of planning a computerized graduation check. Marjorie is retiring, so her replacement is going to need time to get used to the system and to get it done faster," said William Feyerharm, associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Students usually request a graduation check during the student's junior year or after completing 85 hours. For a graduating senior, an application for graduation must be filed with the dean of the student's college within four weeks of the student's graduating semester.

■ See GRADUATE, Page 8

Indian hostage freed

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department, confirming the release Monday of an Indian hostage by kidnappers in Lebanon, said, "We are anxious to talk to him and learn if he has any information to share with us" about the nine Americans held in Lebanon.

Spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley said Mithileshwar Singh, who is a permanent resident of the United States, was in Syrian hands in Beirut and would be taken to Damascus early Tuesday morning.

"We join with Mr. Singh's relatives in rejoicing in his release and call for the urgent, unconditional release of all hostages in Lebanon," Oakley said.

The spokeswoman said she did not know how he was freed or his condition.

Oakley said Syria notified the U.S. embassy in Beirut and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, who is at the United Nations in New York, of Singh's release.

"He'll be transported tomorrow to Damascus, and at that point we will consult with him whether he wants to take advantage of the facilities at Wiesbaden," she said.

The United States maintains a hospital at the military base in West Germany.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said there would be no comment from the White House until Singh had been turned over to American authorities by Syria on Tuesday.

The release had been expected at 2 p.m. EDT, and then at 3 p.m. After two more hours of anxious waiting, Oakley made the announcement in

■ See HOSTAGE, Page 8

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Plane crashes in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — A twin-engine plane crashed and exploded while making an emergency landing near Rio de Janeiro, killing all eight people on board, the Rio Airport Authority said Monday.

The plane, belonging to the Armar Air Taxi company, was flying from the southeastern coastal resort town of Buzios to Rio on Sunday when the pilot asked to make an emergency landing at the navy air base in Sao Pedro da Aldeia, 90 miles east of Rio, the base said.

The plane crashed near the runway and burst into flames, killing the six passengers and two crew members, the airport authority said. The cause of the crash was not known.

Heavy rains flood streets, kill 8

NIMES, France — Heavy storms sent torrents of rainwater and mud into the streets and highways of this southern city Monday, killing eight people, cutting off road and rail traffic and disrupting phone links, authorities said.

Officials at the regional prefecture in Montpellier said all highways leading to the city of 130,000 were blocked and urged people not to try to drive there. The flood waters also stopped all trains to Nimes, 440 miles south of Paris, which is known for its large and well-preserved Roman arena.

In Paris, the Interior Ministry said eight people had died in the flooding and said Interior Minister Pierre Joxe went to visit the disaster scene.

Officials said six helicopters evacuated more than 100 people stranded by the high water. More than 6 inches of rain fell on Nimes in 36 hours.

Up to five feet of water covered downtown streets Monday, swamping cars and trucks before the levels began to subside in the afternoon.

Taxi drivers boycott Athens

ATHENS, Greece — The capital's 17,000 taxi drivers on Monday began a 15-day boycott of downtown Athens to protest a controversial set of anti-pollution measures that restrict cab circulation in the area.

Taxis are included in traffic restrictions banning half of Athens' 800,000 cars from a five-square-mile zone around the city center between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. on weekdays, according to odd and even license plate numbers.

"The government can't go on blaming us for Athens' pollution," said an Athens Taxi Drivers' Union spokesman. "This strike will prove that even when we don't circulate in the city center the area will be plagued by the nefos."

'Nefos,' which means cloud in Greek, is the Athenian term for the brown smog layer that forms over the city on windless days.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

Gunman wounds school girl

MASCOTTE, Fla. — A gunman in a camouflage outfit opened fire Monday at a third-grade gym class on a playground, seriously wounding a girl before fleeing, authorities said.

A helicopter and a plane joined dog teams and up to 50 officers from four police agencies combing four square miles of woods, lakes and orange groves around this rural central Florida community. Heavy rain later stopped the air search, but the ground search was to continue through the night if necessary.

Couple parachutes to wedding

PITTSBURGH — A Pittsburgh couple fell in love then fell into marriage, plunging 3,000 feet by parachute to their wedding site.

"Is this what I envisioned? No. I envisioned St. Mary's Church in Wabren, Ohio," said JoAnn Nardo, mother of the bride.

Sabrina Nardo, 31, of Pittsburgh, a graphic artist, and Edwin "Ebby" Boehm Jr., 33, chef and manager of a Pittsburgh restaurant, met while skydiving four years ago. They jumped from an airplane Sunday and landed in the park in downtown Pittsburgh, where they exchanged vows in an outdoor ceremony.

The bride wore a satin jumpsuit, which, with the crackle of Velcro retainers, converted into a gown. She replaced her beaded jump cap with a veil and put on makeup after landing.

"I was terrified there for a few seconds," Nardo said after wind deflected her landing from the park lawn to a paved walkway on the edge of the Monongahela River.

"It all worked out. Besides, I didn't want to get grass stains on my clothes," she said.

"The jump was terrific," Boehm said. "This marriage, it's only going to keep on getting better."

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Marijuana seized in state

ALMA — Tens of thousands of high-grade marijuana plants were seized by law enforcement officers in what officials described as the biggest illicit marijuana-farming operation discovered in the state.

In one field in Wabaunsee County alone, officers aboard a Kansas Bureau of Investigation airplane discovered Monday a 15-acre field brimming with 10,000 to 20,000 marijuana plants, said Wabaunsee County Undersheriff Mike Watson.

Ten officers from the sheriff's department and the KBI managed to level half the field using chainsaw-like implements and machetes before nightfall put a stop to the clearing operation.

"It was all high-grade," Watson said. "The plants averaged four to five feet tall. They were real bushy — all buds."

The seized plants, too numerous to store in the sheriff's department, were hauled away on dump trucks and were buried in a secret location, Watson said.

The location would not be disclosed for the time being because officials feared someone might try to recover the seized plants, Watson said. Officers will continue leveling the field today.

Watson said that if the harvested marijuana had been sold on the street by the pound, the value of the crop would have been $30 million.

Property values expected to rise

TOPEKA — The total assessed property valuation in a typical Kansas city will increase by about 46 percent as a result of the current statewide reappraisal effort, city officials were told Monday.

Ernie Mosher, executive director of the League of Kansas Municipalities, told city officials from across Kansas that large discount houses in suburban areas or on the edge of town will be the winners in the reappraisal.

"Downtown property is going to take a beating," he said.

Mosher was speaking at the annual league convention, which began Sunday and concluded Monday.

"The property tax makes local government possible in Kansas," he said.

The reappraisal and reclassification program is to be completed by Jan. 1, 1989, under new constitutional guidelines.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

TODAY

BLACK STUDENT UNION will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 206.

GERMAN CLUB will meet at 4 p.m. in Eisenhower 124.

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 204.

WOMEN OVER 50 Support Group will meet from noon to 1 p.m. in Union 202.

THETA XI LITTLE SISTERS will meet at 7:30 p.m. for Putt Putt Golf Night.

WOMEN IN COMMUNICATIONS will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 208.

RESEARCH AND SPONSORED Programs will have a seminar at 3:30 p.m. in Denison 224 for faculty members preparing their first proposal.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS Returning to School will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

SENIOR COMPOSITE pictures for all 1989 EECE graduates will be from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in Durland 274. Sign up on time sheet located on the Eta Kappa Nu bulletin board.

GERMAN TABLE will meet at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2. Anyone interested in German conversation is welcome.

ASTRONOMY CLUB will meet at 9 p.m. in Cardwell lobby. The topic is "Mars Mania."

SPURS SOPHOMORE HONORARY will meet at 9 p.m. in Union 213. Tonight's meeting is business.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA will meet at 7 p.m. in Willard 218.

KSUARH General Body will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Fairchild 208. Pictures will be taken at 7 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Weber 123.

FOOD SCIENCE CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Call 140.

K-STATE POLICE

Sunday

■ The owner of a dark gray Oldsmobile Omega parked in lot A-14 reported electrical problems with the vehicle. The vehicle will be moved Monday, according to campus police reports.

■ A subject reported the theft of a graphic equalizer from his vehicle while it was parked at 1001 Sunset Ave.

Monday

■ Two student parking permits were reported stolen off campus.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Annual Faculty Follies set

The annual Faculty Follies will be presented at 8 tonight in All Faiths Chapel.

Sponsored by Pi Kappa Lambda, the program serves as a scholarship benefit and will include about 16 performances from faculty in the Department of Music.

"The program is designed to run from the sublime to the ridiculous," said Jennifer Edwards, assistant instuctor of music. "Some pieces are funny and some are ridiculous, but all take skill."

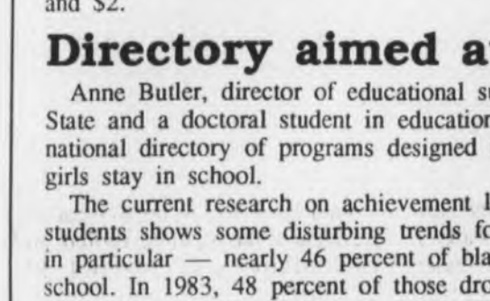
Tickets can be purchased in advance from any music instructor for $3 for adults and $1 for students, or at the door for $4 and $2.

Directory aimed at blacks

Anne Butler, director of educational support services at K-State and a doctoral student in education, is editor of the first national directory of programs designed to help young black girls stay in school.

The current research on achievement levels of public school students shows some disturbing trends for young black females in particular — nearly 46 percent of black females drop out of school. In 1983, 48 percent of those dropouts were unemployed.

The 64-page "Black Girls and Schooling" was funded through a grant from the U.S. Department of Education's Women's Education Equity Act.



The publication describes more than 50 programs nationwide and characterizes effective strategies to confront the educational problems and obstacles young black females face.

UNITED ARTISTS
$2.50 PER PERSON
SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 p.m.
UA SETH CHILDS 6
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD. 776-9886
HEARTBREAK HOTEL PG-13
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
COMING TO AMERICA R
Daily 7:15, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:15, 4:35
YOUNG GUNS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:45
DEAD RINGERS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:05, 4:30
COCKTAIL R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:35
BIG PG
Daily 7:25, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:30

The Station
T.N.T.
(TACOS 'N TEQUILA)
TUESDAY'S TRADITION LIVES ON!

since 1885 when this picture of aggieville was taken, the station's T.N.T. tuesday has been a manhattan tradition. well almost.
Those famous freshly prepared crisp flour shells with homemade salsa, fresh tomatoes, lettuce and mounds of cheese
• 99¢ TACOS 3 for $2.75
• 1/2 PRICE MARGARITAS
• $2.50 NEW ULTIMATE MARGARITAS
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

Golden Key Society
&
K-State Orchestra
presents
OPENING CONCERT
Adrian Bryttan, Conductor
David Littrell, Soloist
Thursday, October 6, 8 p.m.
Free Admission
McCain Auditorium
Reception for the Public

Baseball Playoffs

Check your local listings for game times
•Draft Beer
•Hot Dogs
•Peanuts
UNIVERSITY INN
17th & Anderson Ave. • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

BROTHERS
In Aggieville
TUESDAY

ALTERNATIVE MUSIC NIGHT
9 p.m.-2 a.m.
New Order • The Cure
Echo and the Bunnymen
Depeche Mode • Cummunards
Erasure • Caberet Voltaire
$2 WELLS
All night long
1120 Moro 537-9511

RENDEZVOUS WITH K-S-U
OPEN HOUSE
1989
Over 25,000 people Rendezvous with KSU each year at the All University Open House.
Be a part of next year's Open House Committees by volunteering for one of the following committees: Media, Courtyard Entertainment, Special Projects, and College Liaison.
Learn about K-State through involvement, communicate with the public and acquire leadership skills.
Apply Today! Job descriptions and applications available at 122 Anderson Hall or call 532-6237. Applications due October 5, 1988 at 5 p.m.

BUSHWACKERS
• THE • FUNDRINKERY
Discover the FUNdamentals of
Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9 p.m.
3rd Anniversary Show •featuring•
Skip Griparis
Thanks to everyone who has made Comedy Invasion a smashing success. Entering our 4th year we always try to bring you the best acts touring the country. We hope you have had as much fun as we have. Thanks again for your support.
Reservations recommended but not necessary
539-9727
539-4321
Grill Special
Steak & Shrimp
$3.95
5-9 p.m.

Tickets on sale for Rod Stewart

By The Collegian Staff

Tickets go on sale at 9 a.m. today at the Bramlage Coliseum ticket office for a concert by British rock musician Rod Stewart.

Ticket cost is $16. Stewart's concert is scheduled for 8 p.m., Oct. 28, in Bramlage.

Bramlage Director Charlie Thomas said Stewart will perform on a 40-by-60 stage which has an eight-foot proscenium thrust in the middle.

While not familiar with the lighting requirements for Stewart's performance, Thomas said Bramlage should be able to support the lighting equipment, which will hang above the stage.

"We have a roof limit of a little over 70,000 pounds, depending on how things are arranged," Thomas said. "(Bramlage can handle) just about anything on the road."

"Most of the show is just Rod," he said.

Thomas said tickets would be sold only at the Bramlage ticket office.

Negotiations to bring Stewart to Bramlage lasted about a month, Thomas said.

Stewart began his career as a teen-ager, and joined The Jeff Beck Group in his early 20s.

Student's memory researched

By Melissa Paul
Collegian Reporter

Pi doesn't equal 3.14.

Pi equals 3.14159265 ... plus thousands and thousands more decimal places. Rajan S. Mahadevan, graduate student in physiological psychology, can recite 40,000 digits for anyone willing to listen.

Mahadevan, who is from India, paced while reciting one thousand of these digits for a general psychology class in about three minutes Monday morning.

He then had five students write 10 digits each on the chalkboard. He studied them briefly and recited them to the class forward and backward.

In 1981, Mahadevan memorized pi to 31,811 places, breaking the Guiness Book of World Records memory record.

By working about 10 to 12 days, Mahadevan was able to memorize the digits. The hardest part of breaking the record, he said, was finding somebody to check his feat.

"That is a task that has few takers," he said.

His record stood until Haide Aki Tomajore of Japan broke it in 1987.

"I'd like to go on to 100,000 digits of pi," Mahadevan said. "But graduate school is demanding and more important."

Not only is Mahadevan performing research for his master's degree, but he is also the subject of research.

Charles Thompson, Jerry Frieman, and Thaddeus Cowan, professors of psychology, have requested a grant to study Mahadevan's memory.

Thompson said the study would focus on Mahadevan's ability to remember things besides numbers.

It would test his ability to impove his memory span for digits, to remember blocks of numbers over time and to remember everyday occurrences.

Memory span is tested by giving a subject one digit per second to find out how many the subject can recall correctly. The average person can remember six or seven.

Mahadevan can remember about 40 digits.

"I'd like to go on to 100,000 digits of pi."
—Rajan S. Mahadevan graduate student

When the memory-span portion of an intelligence test is removed, Thompson said Mahadevan's scores are about average. The study would try to determine if his extraordinary memory can be carried over into other areas besides numbers.

Mahadevan will receive a graduate research assistantship for participating in the study and to aid him in his own research.

His research consists of studying the hippocampus — a part of the brain related to memory — and the effects of alcohol on retrograde amnesia. Mahadevan said he hopes his studies will aid in understanding his own memory.

He said his memory has helped him in learning languages. Besides his knowledge of written and spoken English, Mahadevan knows three dialects of the Indian language, the basics of German, and is fluent in Japanese.

Mutsuo Yashima, graduate student in statistics and a native of Japan, said Mahadevan taught himself Japanese by memorizing phrases and was fluent in one year.

"I'd correct his pronunciation sometimes," he said.

Mahadevan said members of his family also have good memories. His father is good with words and quotes, his mother can memorize musical notes, and his brother remembers names, he said.

Space shuttle returns safely

U.S. back in space

By The Associated Press

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — The shuttle Discovery returned to a star-spangled welcome from more than 400,000 people Monday after a post-Challenger shakedown mission that NASA called "an absolutely stunning success."

"Discovery, welcome back," Mission Control told commander Frederick H. Hauck as he guided the ship to a picture-perfect landing after a four-day, 1.6-million mile mission. "A great ending to the new beginning" of the manned space program.

The national anthem was playing as the white ship, with its stubby Delta-shaped wings, leveled out and rolled to a smooth stop on the center line painted on the hard-packed sand of this desert air base. It was precisely on time, at 9:37 a.m. PDT.

The crowd cheered and waved small American flags for the successful completion of a mission that ended a 32-month period in which no manned ship bearing the American flag went into space.

"This is a banner day for all of us," said NASA administrator James C. Fletcher. "An absolutely stunning success," said shuttle chief Richard Truly.

But Truly balked at a question that implied that with the new success, the trauma of the Challenger explosion had been overcome.

"Even when we've flown a few flights, we are not going to forget the Challenger accident," he said. "For the people who work in the program, that's going to be on their minds for a long time."

Truly, a former astronaut, said from cursory inspection the ship appeared to have suffered little damage from the rigors of launching and returning through the atmosphere: a few tiles suffered thumb-sized nicks, he said.

"We saw no problems I'm aware of in any system," said Arnold Aldrich, who is director of the shuttle program.

For 55 minutes after landing, the crew was occupied with flipping switches and turning off systems while ground crews moved up giant vehicles to "safe" the vehicle and to remove any residual toxic gases.

Conference raises donation questions

By Richard Broadfoot
Staff Writer

Questions concerning the ethics of encouraging organ donation were posed during the two keynote addresses given Monday at the "Psychological Research on Organ Donation" conference in the Union Big 8 Room.

The addresses were presented by Jeffrey Prottas of the Bigel Institute for Health Policy at Brandeis University, Waltham, Massachusetts, and Roger Evans of the Battelle Health and Population Research Center, Seattle. The conference, which deals with the psychological issues surrounding organ donation, continues today.

Prottas' address, titled "Families of the Dead: Issues in Organ Donation," dealt with the problem of getting family members to allow doctors to remove organs from their dead relatives.

"A large degree of the public education about organ donation is aimed towards individuals regarding themselves. This is pointless, because the decision of whether to donate or not is made by the families, obviously not by the donors," Prottas said.

Evans' address, titled "Donor Organ Availability: A Mirage?," identified the number of potential donors against the estimated number of organs needed.

Evans said although there are currently shortages in the number of donors available, a better public education program about organ donation might help alleviate the shortage.

The conference has attracted scientists and professionals with interests in organ donation from the United States, Canada and Europe.

USSR's Politburo realigns power

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Politburo member Vitaly I. Vorotnikov was moved to the ceremonial job of president of the Russian republic Monday as the Kremlin capped the biggest leadership shake-up in Mikhail S. Gorbachev's 3½ years in power.

The major beneficiary of the realignment of power was Gorbachev himself. The Communist Party's general secretary was elected Soviet president by the Supreme Soviet parliament Saturday to replace Andrei A. Gromyko, 79, who retired.

At a Monday meeting, the legislature of the Russian republic, the largest of the 15 Soviet republics, elected Interior Minister Alexander V. Vlasov, who was named a candidate member of the ruling Politburo during a Central Committee meeting Friday, the republic's new premier to replace Vorotnikov.

Vladimir P. Orlov, the 67-year-old president of the republic, retired, and Vorotnikov was elected his successor.

Gorbachev, who attended the meeting of the Russian republic's parliament in the Kremlin, recommended the changes, and lauded Orlov and Vorotnikov in remarks later shown on state-run television.

Last week, Gorbachev pushed a major shake-up through the Communist Party's policy-making Central Committee. He retired two full and two candidate Politburo members, promoted four other people and streamlined the Central Committee's apparatus.

Vlasov, 56, who worked in Gorbachev's home area of southern Russia before becoming interior minister, in charge of the uniformed police, in 1986. It appeared unlikely that he would continue to keep his job as the nation's top policeman. But a replacement would have to be named by national authorities, and not by the republican parliament that met Monday.

Vorotnikov's replacement as the Russian premier had been rumored in Moscow, and there have been persistent reports that the 62-year-old leader was ill.

McCain auditorium

Mark Peskanov, Violin
Rita Sloan, Piano
Friday, October 14, 8:00 p.m.

Warm playing, a fiery personality, and down-to-earth musical intelligence have earned Mark Peskanov praise from American audiences and critics since 1973, when he emigrated from the USSR. A Juilliard graduate, Mr. Peskanov has received an Avery Fisher Career Grant, the first Isaac Stern Award, and the first Frederick R. Mann Young Artist Award. Lawrence resident Rita Sloan is also a graduate of Juilliard, where she studied with the legendary Rosina Lhevinne. Join them for a program of masterworks by Mozart, Prokofiev, Brahms, and the Sarasate Carmen Fantasy.

"A violinist of sensitivity as well as formidable technique." --Cleveland Plain Dealer

General Public: $12
Senior Citizen: $10
Student / Child: $8
Orchestra seating only.

Charge tickets to Mastercard or VISA at 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5:00 p.m. weekdays.

Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and Manhattan Arts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at 537-4400.

Keep District 66 Growing!

Re-Elect
State Representative
IVAN SAND
Tuesday, November 8

Paid for the by Committee to Re-Elect Ivan Sand, Jim Gordon, Treasurer

Beautiful Nails
20% off
any of our nail services
(expires 10-8-88)
TINA'S Studio 32 FOR HAIR
Candlewood Shopping Center
776-8830

COMING TOMORROW
ROCKTOBERFEST
PARTY IN ANOTHER DIMENSION!
KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
18 to enter 21 to drink -619 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-9794

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization
Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment
NOW!

Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10
Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You

8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

R•O•Y•A•L

Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Pi Beta Phi– Oct. 3-4
Pi Kappa Alpha– Oct. 4-5
Pi Kappa Phi– Oct. 5

P•U•R•P•L•E

539-5303

One number brings out the best at KSU

Now, at KSU, there's just one number to remember for fast delivery of pizza that's every bit as good as one you'd go out for.

Godfather's Pizza™ Now you don't have to settle for anything less, anymore.

1118 Laramie
Aggieville

Lunch Buffet only $2.99
Present this coupon and receive ONE all you care to eat lunch buffet for only $2.99. Regularly $3.99 per person!
Monday-Friday, lunch time only.
Valid for up to 4 people.
Valid on dine-in only. Not valid with any other discount offers.
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU

Large Pizza for a Medium Price
Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer. Limited delivery area.
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU

Editorial

Polls aim to give opinions rather than collect them

Commentary

MARK SCHMELLER
Collegian Columnist

Do you think President Reagan is handling his job?

Thousands of Americans are polled on this question each week, and I'm still not sure what it means. If asked, I guess I would have to answer yes. I'm opposed to virtually everything he believes, but I must admit he is handling his job wonderfully.

He runs the most powerful nation on earth but still manages to take long naps after lunch and call it a day before five. He draws a handsome salary and lives in a big, beautiful house with an army of servants. That's not a bad way to handle the most important job in the country. Hats off to you, Ron.

But my beef is not with the president. It is with the question. Polls that ask such nebulous questions have overrun the media. They have also overrun the White House. The Carter and Reagan administrations have made it a habit to take weekly polls over a wide range of issues, and, more often than not, the polls enter the decision-making process.

For example, when the U.S.S. Vincennes shot down the Iranian airliner a few months ago, the White House waited for the polls to come out before they decided if reparations would be made to the victims' families.

Such incidents lead many to claim that the use of polls undermines representative democracy. Our so-called leaders defer their decisions to public opinion, thus failing to vote according to their own true consciences. Others, like White House pollster Richard Wirthlin, claim that polls are "the purest form of democracy, a much better cross section of the public than those who vote." Indeed, well over a third of all Americans are polled at least once each year, so he may have a point.

But the real problem with public opinion polls is that they often don't measure public opinion. Instead, they measure public ignorance and prejudice.

Moreover, they often ask Americans to know the unknowable. Consider this Los Angeles Times question a few years back: What do you think the chances are that President Reagan's colon cancer will recur? The choices were high, 50/50, or low. There were no categories for "How should I know?" "You've got to be kidding?" or "Sorry, I haven't had a chance to examine his colon yet."

Higher on the level of foolishness, we have the phone-in polls. A frequent offender here is the Cable News Network with its nightly Newswatch poll. Last week the poll asked, "Do you think Ben Johnson used steroids?"

This is a question that nobody can answer without a urine or stool sample and several thousand dollars worth of lab equipment. What the poll is really asking for is the viewers' prejudices. Do you think Ben Johnson used an illegal drug because he is black? Because he beat an American athlete? Because he looks shifty?

Nonetheless, I suppose it's a good idea to know the prejudices of the population. The problem is that poll results are presented as facts, not the inaccurate, self-selected samplings of national prejudices and vague impressions that they are.

In the case of TV phone-in polls, the only thing that is really measured is how many morons are willing to throw away 50 cents on an inconsequential phone call. The "opinions" being measured are the opinions of viewers who may have learned most or everything they know about the question from the TV program itself. Indeed, what is created is a sort of perverse feedback loop, in which the news program creates an impression of an issue or candidate, polls people about it, and then justifies its position with the poll results.

Thus, by measuring prejudices, the news media eventually creates them. On top of all that, many pollsters start from prejudiced premises. The Claritas Company, one of the big fish in the $2 billion-a-year polling industry, has sorted the entire U.S. population into 40 demographic groups. Each group has a cute, stereotypic moniker like "Blue Blood Estates" (East Coast rich folk), "Bohemian Mix" (middle-aged hippies), "Springsteeners" (blue-collar working stiffs) and the rather condescending "Norma Rae-Ville" (hayseed types, of course).

These 40 groups have a widespread influence throughout the public opinion and advertising worlds. They determine what kind of ads will be used in what sort of areas, what sort of TV programs will have what types of commercials, and even what kind of speech a candidate will give at what campaign stop.

This is no real threat to democracy, but it is somewhat small-minded to reduce a population of 250 million into 40 character profiles. It is also offensive to know that every time a pollster asks you a question, he or she already has you pegged as a "Springsteener" or "Bohemian Mix."

Columnist Mike Royko, fed up with polls a few years back, suggested that we should all lie to pollsters. Sounds good to me. The hope is that if we keep lying to pollsters, the wave of public opinion polls will eventually subside.

I recommend that everyone make a habit of lying to pollsters. Don't feel as if you have to do it for any idealistic reason, like saving democracy. Do it for the sheer joy of lying to a complete stranger and making a pollster wonder why the heck a "Norma Rae-Ville" would say something like that.

Those who don't vote shouldn't complain

College students seem to enjoy complaining. They complained when the drinking age was raised, when financial aid legislation significantly affected college funding and when a fee for Bramlage Coliseum was approved.

A high number of students complain, but a surprisingly low number act on those beliefs at the polls.

Many believe this topic has been beaten into the ground, that urging people to vote is a hopeless effort. Well, it shouldn't be.

Voter turnout in the United States has been low historically. It is lower than that of most European nations, especially other democracies. The United States is almost at the bottom in both the average turnout percentage of people registered and the average turnout percentage of eligible age groups.

Throughout the world, electoral participation is higher among the wealthy and the educated. The United States doesn't follow this generalization. In this country, the 18-25 age group owns the lowest percentage of voter turnout.

No reason for this exists. The benefits outweigh the costs a thousand-fold.

The cost of transportation to the polls and access to information on candidates is minimal, but the benefits can last a lifetime. Politicians pass legislation to appease the middle class because they want to secure votes. Passing legislation to satisfy an age group that never votes would be ludicrous.

People need to become educated on the candidates in every level of government. They need to find and support politicians who have similar priorities as themselves. They need to inform politicians of their opinions on important topics.

Politicians do vote for their constituents, but only for the active and interested ones.

If people want to affect society and, consequently, their own lives, they must participate in that society's government. Society depends on individuals just as a democratic government does. If people don't care enough to vote, there is no justification for a democratic system.

Artists' Afterthought: The Olympics

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

UNSIGNED EDITORIALS represent the consensus opinion of the Collegian's editorial board. Opinion columns do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian management, Student Publications, Inc. or the newspaper staff in general.

Letters

Satire disputed

Editor,

It would be quite safe to say that I was sickened by the light-hearted position that dust-stirrer Alan Grant takes toward my offense in regard to Mark Schmeller's column, "Insights into the subtleties of male bonding." I can't speak for Paige Nichols, but I sense that Grant's ostensible attack was aimed equally at both of us, even though our letters had considerably different laments.

The refreshing change of pace Grant mentioned was only a retardation of the tardy pace of our views of sex roles. I was surprised to see how sensitive Grant's appreciation of humor must be to even feel a chuckle inspired by Schmeller's column. Sure, being able to laugh at ourselves is important, but being able to look at ourselves is more important.

I do appreciate things and people for their own sakes, regardless of how dull and senseless, Mr. Grant. (I apologize if this is beginning to sound like a Mary Tyler Moore script.) And, yes, I do look to the Collegian for an edge of enlightenment and insurgence, because inert contemplation leads nowhere. I'm sorry you don't feel our newspaper can be a vehicle for spreading salient, yet meaningful, information and points of view.

I have a suggestion for Grant. If commentary such as Schmeller's "insights" offer inspiration to you, and if you really feel like being challenged, maybe you should subscribe to Teen magazine, the National Examiner, the Twilight Zone Magazine or Reader's Digest.

Darren Bradley
senior in fine arts

Indians ignored

Editor,

I'm afraid I do not share Stewart Udall's enthusiasm for Spanish conquistadors in their lust for gold, glory and converts to a rigid Catholicisim in the Western Hemisphere.

What a pity that Udall's romantic tribute to these bold but ignorant "heroes" nearly ignores the civilized values of Native Americans, as well as the brutal oppression which these Europeans (and, later, the Americans) employed against these first Americans.

If anything, the approaching 500th anniversary of Columbus' voyage of "discovery" (which signalled the adventurism of Cortez, Pizzaro, DeSoto, Coronado, Drake, Cartier and others) ought to give us pause for serious reflection. Should we really admire international meddlers and swashbucklers? Or should we admire the peacemakers?

Dave Redmon
senior in elementary education

Exchange can work

Editor,

Frederick Rice (Sept. 27) comments that the book exchange idea presented in the Collegian is a good one except that it ignores the principles of free enterprise. Rice offers free market competition, which he cites as a building block of our society, as the alternative. There is another option which can also be claimed as a foundation of our society: the cooperative.

At my undergraduate college, the cooperative, biannual used-book sale was enormously successful. It was organized and staffed by students who were rewarded for their work with discounts and first choice on books. Beyond that, it was first come, first serve, so students camped out for the best selection. The event was complete with the attendant fun and rituals that I imagine are part of, say, the K-State basketball ticket sales campout (though our campout lasted only one night).

Everyone benefited from this sale, except, of course, the conventional (competitive? monopolistic?) book sellers who seem overly rewarded for their current efforts.

Michel Cavigelli
graduate student in agronomy

Staff/Jim Dietz

K-State head football coach Stan Parrish watches over practice Monday afternoon after resigning from his position Monday morning. The Wildcats' last two losses, of the 23 since Parrish arrived at K-State, played a part in his resignation, which won't take effect until the end of the season.

Resignation sparks response

Nobody, though, seemed very surprised

By Brian Hummell
Staff Writer

The news of K-State head football coach Stan Parrish's resignation evoked mixed reactions on campus Monday — the least of which was surprise.

Parrish's resignation, effective at the end of the 1988 season, was announced in a press release Monday morning after a meeting between Parrish and Athletic Director Steve Miller.

Maurice Henry, junior linebacker, said the decision was no surprise to him.

"Everybody knew it was going to happen sooner or later," Henry said.

He said, however, the blame for the team's losing season should not rest entirely on Parrish.

"Everybody put a lot of pressure on him," Henry said. "But you can only coach so much — the players have to go out and do the rest. He couldn't go out there and throw any passes or make any tackles."

Senior offensive tackle Russ Stange said he didn't know how the resignation would affect the Wildcats.

"It makes everybody mad. This is something that really shouldn't be happening," he said. "It could affect us in a bad way, or it could go the other way, but we're going to be all right."

Sophomore tailback Antoine Dulan, a Proposition 48 casualty last season, said he owes a lot to Parrish.

"He took me in when no one else would. At first everyone showed a lot of interest in me, like USC and Nebraska, but when they saw the ACT scores, all that dropped off.

"When I first heard the news, I didn't know what to think. He's been like a father to me," Dulan said. "I thank him a lot."

Larry Schlappi, president of the Manhattan Catbackers, was disappointed in Parrish's resigning.

"I think we're losing a very good man, a gamer," Schlappi said. "He brought some players in and put us at the level to make it a game with our competition. We've made a lot of improvement this year and I hate to see it all go down the tubes.

"He needed some support from the University, and he didn't get the support he needed."

Schlappi said he had spoken with other Catbacker members and alumni who were also disappointed and concerned about the future of the program.

"I'm afraid we're going to end up like KU and end up with only 50 or 60 scholarship players," Schlappi said.

Chris Nagy, sophomore in electrical engineering and co-author of a Collegian letter to the editor which called for Parrish to be fired, had mixed emotions about the resignation.

"I'm glad he's leaving, but I'm a bit upset he's not leaving until the end of the season," Nagy said. "I honestly think we can get a decent coach in here now."

He cited Parrish's lack of experience at the major college level as his reason for wanting Parrish gone.

"I don't think he's proven he's a Division I caliber football coach," Nagy said.

K-State is Parrish's first head-coaching job at an NCAA Division I school. Parrish is in the middle of his third season at K-State and has compiled a 2-23-1 record. In his previous 10 years of head coaching, from high school to NCAA Division I-AA, Parrish never had a losing record.

Greg Morgan, senior in secondary education and member of the ICAT advisory board, said: "It appears to have been a joint decision between Parish and Miller, so I'm glad for that. There has definitely been an improvement in the football team over last year, but it just wasn't enough. I'm glad he's going to finish out the season."

Doug Benoit, sophomore in feed science, said of Parrish: "He came in a winner and is going out a loser. I feel kind of sorry for him, but something had to be done."

President Jon Wefald said he could understand Parrish's decision.

"When you work that hard for three years, I can understand his disappointment, especially after two heartbreaking loses in a row," Wefald said. "We wish Stan the very best, and we still have a chance to win some games this year with continued enthusiasm and a little luck."

Sports writer Chris Hays contributed to this report.

Dodgers, Mets start playoffs

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — For the Los Angeles Dodgers to beat the New York Mets in the National League playoffs, it will take some strong-armed tactics.

In head-to-head competition this season, the Mets beat the Dodgers 10 of 11 games and outscored them 49-18.

"They have an outstanding team and are strong in every area," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "But we have outstanding pitching, too."

Lasorda will go with his best arm, right-hander Orel Hershiser, in Game 1 of the playoffs tonight at Dodger Stadium against Dwight Gooden, 18-9.

Hershiser, 23-8, finished the season with 59 consecutive scoreless innings to break Don Drysdale's 20-year-old record.

"I started to think about the Mets as far back as the night right after I got the record," Hershiser said. "The Mets have always been more important to me, even than the streak, because of the fact that that was a team-related thing.

"There's 24 guys when I walk out onto the mound. People talk about how pitching is 70 or 80 or 90 percent of the game, but I'm walking out there with 80 or 90 percent of the feelings of 24 guys and a coaching staff. And for me to be thinking about a streak would be wrong. So I'm thinking about the Mets."

Hershiser's last defeat was a 2-1 setback by the Mets on Aug. 24 at Dodger Stadium. He pitched a complete game and allowed seven hits.

The Mets and Dodgers had an afternoon workout at Dodger Stadium Monday. The Mets left for the coast Sunday evening after beating St. Louis 7-5 in the regular-season finale for their 100th victory.

Rookie Tim Belcher, 12-6, says watching Hershiser has been an inspiration to the rest of the staff.

"It's a thing that snowballs," Belcher said of the Dodgers' excellent pitching of late. "With (John) Tudor, Orel and (Tim) Leary throwing all these shutouts this season and lately, everybody just takes the field and expects a line of goose eggs."

Hershiser finished the season with a 2.26 earned run average and struck out 178 batters.

Gooden loves pitching in Los Angeles, and his record shows it.

In six career starts at Dodger Stadium, Gooden is 4-0 with an 0.32 ERA.

"I like the mound at Dodger Stadium," Gooden said. "It's high and firm and you seem closer to the batter."

"It should be a low-scoring series and the team that scores first will have a big advantage," Gooden said.

The Mets scored the first run in seven of the 11 games with the Dodgers and five of the six at Dodger Stadium.

"The first game is very important," Mets first baseman Keith Hernandez said. "If we can beat them and Hershiser, it will have to make them think. But if they win, it would help their confidence against us."

Gooden was 3-0 against the Dodgers this season. In 35 1-3 innings he allowed 25 hits and six runs while striking out 22.

Sports Briefly

KU loses another player

LAWRENCE — Kansas may have lost the services of starting outside linebacker Lance Flachsbarth for the remainder of the season, Coach Glen Mason announced Monday.

Flachsbarth was taken out of last weekend's game against New Mexico State with a knee injury. Mason said he did not know specifically what the injury was, but it was serious and would sideline Flachsbarth indefinitely.

A redshirt freshman, Flachsbarth recorded 19 tackles for the season before suffering the injury.

NBC loses on Olympics

NEW YORK — Unexpectedly low ratings for the recently completed Olympics may force NBC to give advertisers more than $70 million in free spots, according to a published report.

The Wall Street Journal reported the figure in its Monday editions, stating that the network would not confirm the size of its loss.

NBC gambled $400 million on the Games.

Hurricanes remain No. 1

The first 13 teams in the Associated Press college football poll remained the same Monday while Arkansas made the Top Twenty for the first time this season and LSU fell out.

Miami, a 55-0 winner over Missouri, received 53 of 58 first-place votes and 1,153 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

UCLA, which scored two touchdowns in the final period to defeat No. 16 Washington 24-17, received three first-place votes and 1,088 points.

The other two first-place votes went to No. 3 Southern California, which beat Arizona 38-15 and received 1,037 points.

Olympic steroid saga continues

Johnson vows revenge against disqualification

By The Associated Press

HAMBURG, West Germany — Canadian Ben Johnson, denying that he knowingly used steroids, said that he plans to get even with those responsible for his disqualification as Olympic 100-meter dash champion.

"I'll pay back whoever did this to me," the Hamburg-based weekly magazine Stern quoted Johnson, saying he screamed out the remark.

The comment was included in an interview the magazine conducted with Johnson, who was sent home in disgrace after testing postive for a banned substance in the Olympics.

Johnson's positive test resulted in his being stripped of the gold medal and of the world record of 9.79 seconds that he recorded in the race. He also was given a two-year suspension by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

In the Stern interview, Johnson said he may never compete in the 100 again, an event in wehich he set the world record of 9.83 in the 1987 World Championships.

Stern published the interview with the Canadian sprinter in an issue released three days ahead of its normal Thursday distribution date.

"I'm finished. I'll probably never run the 100-meter again," Stern quoted Johnson as saying.

Stern said Johnson made the comments during talks with the sprinter at his sister's Toronto home on Sept. 29.

"The Doping Games," the magazine headlined its front cover beside a photograph of Johnson dashing to the finish line in Seoul with his arm raised, index finger pointed triumphantly in the air.

The talks with Johnson appeared in Stern in German and were translated into English by The Associated Press.

According to Stern, Johnson insisted that he did not knowingly use steroids. He was stripped of his medal after urine tests showed he had used an illegal muscle-building steroid.

Although drug experts concluded the sprinter had been using the steroid over a long period of time, Johnson and his associates said he had been given the drug without his knowledge.

Steroids do more harm than good, trainer says

By Mike Rouse
Sports Writer

When Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson was stripped of his gold medal last week in the Summer Olympic Games at Seoul, South Korea, because his urine sample tested positive for steriods, it made a point about the severe consequences of using illegal substances in athletics today.

Carl Cramer, K-State's athletic trainer, said steroids aren't the answer to athletic problems.

"Steroids will hurt the person more than it will help because the long-term effects will affect the athlete worse than the short-term effects, such as muscle build-up" he said.

In the Olympics, athletes in the top four places in a medal event had to have their urine sampled within an hour after the event at the site of the event.

Medical officals observed athletes providing samples before shipping the samples to the Olympic lab in Seoul, Cramer said.

"The sample is split into two parts, labeled part A and part B. The first part is tested and if a banned substance appears, they test part B in the same manner as part A to confirm the banned substance's (presence)," Cramer said. "So really, the athlete tests positive twice."

Cramer said there are two samples to avoid mistakes.

"It is very (unlikely) a false sign will show up, but with the caliber of athletes and this being the Olympics, they want to be absolutly correct," he said.

Johnson's sample contained stanozolol, an anabolic steriod that has been known to cause cancer in the liver. When an offical found out that the test he worked on was Johnson's, he tested the B sample twice because he didn't want to leave any doubt about the results.

Anabolic steriods are essentially testosterone with many of its androgenic properties removed. Possible side effects of steriods include: liver and kidney disfunction, cancer in these areas, hair loss, acne and enlarged breasts in males.

Cramer said athletes at K-State are

■ See DRUGS, Page 8

Judging team continues tradition

Members gain benefits from judging livestock

By Susan Faler
Collegian Reporter

The livestock judging team is a K-State tradition that not many students hear about, but it is a tradition that is very important to its members and their futures.

"Being on the team can be beneficial," said Mike Bandel, senior in animal sciences and industry. "We learn how to improve our communication skills, travel, meet a lot of people and get better acquainted with important livestock industries."

The intercollegiate competition team judges cattle, sheep and hogs.

Each member judges 12 classes of livestock. The students must rank four animals in each class from the best to the worst.

The members must then defend their rankings orally before a judge. This is done in eight of the 12 classes. The competitors are scored on accuracy — what they saw in the livestock, how they evaluated it, and their oral delivery — and on their persuasiveness.

"(Judging) gives us the opportunity to make a decision about what place the livestock should receive," said Terry Troutt, senior in animal sciences and industry. "And we must communicate our decision to others."

The members complete introductory courses to prepare them for judging.

Livestock and Meat Evaluation is an introductory course that consists of the evaluation of the economic merit of slaughter livestock and their carcasses. Students also learn about meat grading. The students look at live animals on Monday and their carcasses on Friday, when they can evaluate the animals with more precision.

"The two courses that we deal with mostly are Form and Function of Livestock and Principles of Livestock Selection," said Dave Nichols, judging coach and associate professor of animal sciences and industry. "(The Principles) course is taken in the fall of the student's junior year and serves as preparation for the junior livestock team."

"We have a junior livestock team which competes in the spring and then that team becomes the senior livestock team in (the members') senior year," Nichols said. "In the fall of their senior year, they take the class Form and Function of Livestock."

The team competes in six contests a year. In the spring, it competes in the National Western at Denver, in Fort Worth and in the Houston Stock show. During the fall, it competes in the Kansas Junior Livestock contest, in the American Royal at Kansas City and in the North American International in Louisville.

"We get to meet other people who are associated in the industry across the nation," Troutt said.

The team practices from 4:30 to 7 p.m., Monday through Thursday and from 7 a.m. to as late as 8 p.m. on Saturdays. It practices at area ranches and farms that have elite livestock, as well as on campus with the University's livestock, Nichols said.

To be a member, students must have a 2.0 grade point average on 12 hours or more, be enrolled in the two-hour class Form and Function of Livestock, and can not have judged professionally, Nichols said.

"We get involved so much in the judging that it carries over into everything we do," said Darrell Vandike, senior in agriculture education. "It also (provides) great opportunities and experiences."

Poll reveals public doubts government

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Americans believe bribe-taking is rampant in the federal government, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

The national survey of 1,125 adults found deep skepticism of government integrity. In the most critical finding, an overwhelming 70 percent said they thought taking illegal payoffs for special favors was widespread.

Fully half the respondents called the government dishonest overall and seven in 10 called it poorly managed. Even more, 82 percent, said they were not surprised to learn of recent corruption charges involving the Pentagon.

On specific cases, a plurality said former Attorney General Edwin Meese III should have been charged with crimes, and half opposed the suggestion of a presidential pardon for former national security adviser John Poindexter, the highest official charged in the Iran-Contra case.

Respondents were evenly split on a pardon for Poindexter's assistant, former Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, who gained support through his defense of his actions at congressional hearings last year.

The Reagan administration did not carry heavy blame for the overall doubt about government honesty. While 43 percent said the administration had done a bad job of enforcing ethical standards, 40 percent said it had done a good job.

"Rib-It"
The Chef TONIGHT
BAR-B-Q RIBS

Taco Buffet
all you can eat
Cotton Club 99¢
2 fer 1
Drinks & Draws

ATTENTION GOLFERS!
ROLLING MEADOWS GOLF COURSE
announces
"WINTER RATE"
Starting Monday, Oct. 3, 1988
$5 daily weekdays, $7 daily weekends
Call 238-4303
7550 Old Milford Rd.
Junction City, KS
Check our summer merchandise closeout.

Schlabe
WORKOUT CENTER
5 FREE TANS
When you purchase our student special •38 Aerobic Classes
•New Extended Hours
•3,543 lbs. of Free Weights
•Free Towel Service
•David Equipment
•Floating Floor
•Aerobicycles
•Free Nursery
3236 Kimball
Candlewood Center
776-1750

Come
SHAKE YOUR THANG
Wed., Oct. 5 Noon-1 p.m.
Union Court Yard
Saturday Oct. 8
Union Catskeller
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
Ladies in free 9-10:30 p.m.
--Just a little message to let you know we wanna party!--
The Jam the Box Crew
DB92
KSDB 91.9

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE
STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK
SADD
WED. OCTOBER 5
7:00 P.M.
UNION 203
EVERYONE WELCOME!
S.A.D.D. NEEDS YOU!

FACULTY FOLLIES
The KSU Department of Music presents . . .
. . . a medley of musical mania.
ALL FAITHS CHAPEL
Tuesday, October 4 8 p.m.
Students: $1 in advance, $2 at door
Adults: $3 in advance, $4 at door
Sponsored by Pi Kappa Lambda, a scholarship—benefit concert

R • O • Y • A • L

Portraits for the Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., 1:30-5:30 p.m.
Sept. 6 through Nov. 11
K-State Union Room 209

Acacia — Sept. 6
Alpha Chi Omega — Sept. 6-7
Alpha Delta Pi — Sept. 7-8
Alpha Gamma Delta — Sept. 8
Alpha Gamma Rho — Sept. 8-9
Alpha Kappa Lambda — Sept. 9
Alpha Tau Omega — Sept. 9, 12
Alpha Xi Delta — Sept. 12-13
Beta Sigma Psi — Sept. 13
Beta Theta Pi — Sept. 14
Chi Omega — Sept 14-15
Delta Delta Delta — Sept. 15-16
Delta Sigma Phi — Sept. 16, 19
Delta Tau Delta — Sept. 19-20
Delta Upsilon — Sept. 20
FarmHouse — Sept. 20-21
Gamma Phi Beta — Sept. 21-22
Kappa Alpha Theta — Sept. 22-23
Kappa Delta — Sept. 23, 26
Kappa Kappa Gamma — Sept. 26-27
Kappa Sigma — Sept. 27-28
Lambda Chi Alpha — Sept. 28
Phi Delta Theta — Sept. 29
Phi Gamma Delta — Sept. 29-30
Phi Kappa Tau — Sept. 30
Phi Kappa Theta — Sept. 30, Oct. 3
Pi Beta Phi — Oct. 3-4
Pi Kappa Alpha — Oct. 4-5
Pi Kappa Phi — Oct. 5
Sigma Alpha Epsilon — Oct. 5-6
Sigma Chi — Oct. 6
Sigma Nu — Oct. 6-7
Sigma Phi Epsilon — Oct. 7, 10
Sigma Sigma Sigma — Oct. 10
Tau Kappa Epsilon — Oct 10-11
Theta Xi — Oct. 11
Triangle — Oct. 11-12
Boyd — Oct. 12-13
Clovia — Oct. 13
Edwards — Oct. 13-14
Ford — Oct. 14
Goodnow — Oct. 17-19
Haymaker — Oct. 19-21
Marlatt — Oct. 21-25
Moore — Oct. 25-26
Putnam — Oct. 26
Smith — Oct. 26
Smurthwaite — Oct. 27
West — Oct. 27-28
Off Campus (includes Jardine) — Oct. 31 - Nov. 11

Yearbook Associates is the official photographic portrait service for the 1989 Royal Purple. It is important to make your appointment as soon as possible so you won't be left out of the yearbook. There will be sign-up sheets available at the greek houses and residence halls soon after school starts. If you are a member of a sorority or fraternity, but live in a residence hall or apartment, please have your picture taken with your sorority or fraternity. Beginning Sept. 6, appointments may be made in Union 209 by calling 539-5229, 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Cost of the sitting fee for color proofs is $3.50 and may be paid in Kedzie Hall 103.
Please Bring Fee Card or Student I.D.
Yearbook Associates

VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
COLORADO
$167* from
JANUARY 2-6 • LODGING • LIFTS • PARTIES • PICNIC • RACE • MORE!
Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAK 1989
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Hotel or fully equipped condominium lodging for 5 days/4 nights, or 7 days/6 nights • Full day fully interchangeable Vail/Beaver Creek lift tickets for 3 or 4 days with additional days available at reduced rates • Apres Ski Parties sponsored by Leroux Schnapps with live entertainment and complimentary beverages • Mid-week Chicken Picnic with complimentary beverages • Mountain Fun Ski Race with prizes • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/Beaver Creek shuttle service (nominal charge between Beaver Creek and Vail) • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.
TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: WINTER PARK, KEYSTONE AND STEAMBOAT
sunchase tours

P • U • R • P • L • E

Court upholds blockage

By The Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday refused to lift a federal appeals court order blocking the execution of a convicted murderer who wanted all appeals dropped.

Gerald Smith, who was scheduled to be the first inmate put to death by Missouri since 1965, had asked that no appeals be made to delay his execution by lethal injection, scheduled for 12:01 a.m. today.

Smith, 29, was sentenced for the 1980 bludgeoning death of a former girlfriend in St. Louis.

The Supreme Court upheld the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which voted 8-2 late Monday to block Smith's execution, rejecting the state's efforts to lift a stay issued earlier in the day by a three-judge panel of the court.

State Attorney General William Webster's office filed a petition with the nation's highest court late Monday asking that the stay be lifted, said spokesman John Baker.

Smith telephoned The Associated Press to complain about the stay. He said lawyers and judges were needlessly questioning his competency and putting him and his wife through more turmoil by delaying the execution.

"It's not me they're concerned about. They just don't believe in the death penalty," Smith said.

Salad.

BY RICHARD BROADFOOT

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

ClassAds

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not disciminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

ANTIQUE OAK furniture for sale. Parlor table (claw and ball foot), Victrola, china cabinet, rockers. 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

Supreme Elegance is offering
20% OFF
Hair Styling Package
Tues. & Wed. ONLY
Call: 776-3636
221 South 4th

We Deliver
Mon.-Sat. 5-12
Sunday 2-10
The Fresh Alternative
SUBWAY Sandwiches & Salads
539-9391
620 N. Manhattan•Aggieville

FIRST TIME in the history of KSU the Muslim Community Association presents, "Islam on Focus" by Hamed Ghazali on Wednesday, Oct. 5 at 7:30p.m. in K-State Big-8. Free refreshments.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

GET YOUR Scrub Shirts only $10. Westloop Medical Supply, 1231 Westloop.

HAIR SHACK, 415 N. Third, 776-7421. Fall Specials: Perms $20- $25 with cut/ set. Sculptured nails $25, call Mona. Style/ cut/ blowdry $9. Monday- Saturday 8a.m.- 5p.m. We're unique.

NAVY MANAGEMENT
Math, Engineering and Physical Science Majors with 3.3 GPA, earn $1,000 per month during junior and senior years plus $4,000 upon entry. Find out more about the Navy's Engineer Officer Candidate Program, call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

Jazzercise
For class information and location call
776-4877

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

IF TRAINS interest you- prototype or model- call Pat Lenahan at 532-3375. Considering formation of club.

MILITARY CUTS, $7. Open Monday, 1- 7p.m. Now Hairstyling, 110 N. Third. 776-7808.

PROBLEMS, LONELINESS, depression, sex, drugs, alcohol. You talk, we listen. Call FONE Crisis Center, 537-0999.

SEE MARS best in 20 years. Giant 17-inch telescope. Free presentation by Astronomy Club. This Tuesday and Saturday, 9p.m. Cardwell lobby.

joli styling salon
WE'RE NEW
CALL US:
539-1177

Lana Oleen
REPUBLICAN • KANSAS SENATE
1931 Fairchild Avenue, Manhattan, KS 66502

SIP N' DIP
HOT TUB RENTALS
537-1825
ask about our $75 Discount.

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

WHAT IS the highest grade Jethro Bodine completed? If you know the answer to this question, call Domino's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order, 539-0561.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

ROOM AND board for female/ married couple in Junction City in return for occasional shopping/ errands. Call collect, (816)885-2830.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

EXCEPTIONALLY CLEAN one-bedroom, walk-in closet, dining/ living room, kitchen and bath in a six-plex. $265. Phone 537-7087.

QUIET, WELL-MAINTAINED one-bedroom apartment close to KSU for lease to non-smoking adult. Laundry, parking, paid heat and air conditioning and more. $240. No waterbeds, pets. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1939 FORD three-quarter ton pickup. Body in very good condition, runs perfect, new tires, tag. Call before 8a.m., (913)457-3440.

1979 OLDS Cutlass Supreme. Sharp, new tires, $1,900 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

1979 OLDSMOBILE station wagon, four-door, V-8, AM/FM stereo, cruise, excellent condition, $1,290 or best. 537-3721.

1980 MERCURY Capri, 69,000 miles. 539-5834.

1982 DATSUN 280Z fully equipped, five-speed, t-top. 537-9351.

CHRYSLER NEW Yorker 1964, runs well, $450. 539-9277.

NEEDS FIXING, 1978 Monza. Best offer, 537-8906.

7 Child Care

INFANT AND child care in my home, Cico Park area. 537-9351.

8 Computers

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

AMIGA 1000 with expanded memory, extra 5¼ and 3½ inch drives, IBM transformer, lots of software. Call 776-9539 or 1-485-2703 after 5p.m. or weekends.

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4⅜ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

AGGIE SKI and Sport needs a part-time sales clerk evenings and weekends. Apply in person, 1212 Moro.

ARTISTS MAKE more money illustrating for national women's magazine. Call 776-8676 Tuesday/ Thursday or evenings.

COULD YOU be a Boston nanny? Are you a loving, nurturing person who enjoys caring for children? Live in lovely suburban neighborhoods, enjoy excellent salaries, benefits, your own living quarters and limited working hours. Your round-trip transportation is provided. One year commitment necessary. Call or write: Mrs. Fisch, Child Care Placement Service, Inc. (CCPS), 149 Buckminster Road, Brookline, MA 02146. 1-800-338-1836.

EXCELLENT PART-TIME money, distribute advertising survey, all majors apply. PIF Research, 129 Boles, Fayetteville, Arkansas 72701.

EXCITING CONCEPT! Casino-style table operators. Salary plus weekly bonus, plus tips. Exciting, fun positions available at the Hat Creek Company Saloon. Need attractive, dependable and professionally minded individuals to work part-time evenings. High income potential and flexible schedules. No experience necessary, training provided. Coeds, don't be bashful. Sounds interesting? Applications taken and interviews held by Casino Concepts personnel on Saturday, Oct. 8th from noon- 4p.m. at the Hat Creek Company Saloon, 215 E. Eighth, Junction City, Kansas. If further information is necessary, call Casino Concepts, 1-800-843-2030. If not, see you on Saturday.

FOOD SERVERS, full-time morning shift. University Club, 17th and Anderson.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, and juniors: Get paid to train in the summer to become Marine Corps officers after graduation. Aviation and financial aid available. Call collect, 1-841-1821.

Harvest Inn Motel & Torchlight Lounge
Immediate openings for night-time positions:
—desk clerks —cocktail waitresses
—night auditers —doormen
—bartenders
Apply in person at 1001 E. 6th St.
Junction City, KS

PART- OR FULL-TIME experienced help wanted. Must work at least half-days plus Saturdays. Master Lawn and Landscape. Call 539-2842 between 12 and 2p.m.

PAY DAY! Beginning salary $3.60/hour. All shifts for waiter and waitresses; Mexican Tuesday and Thursday 10:30-2:00; hotline server, Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10:30-1:15 and 10:20-2:00; cashier Monday through Friday 8:00-1:30 and Monday through Friday 1:30-4:00; sandwich Monday through Friday 6:00-10:30; ice cream Monday through Friday 10:30-1:30; office assistant, hours will vary. Apply now at the K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. Food Handler's Card a must.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

VISTA DRIVE-IN is now taking applications for part- and full-time help. Must be able to work some noon shifts. Apply in person.

WANTED TO hire part-time help on commercial hog, cattle and crop farm. If interested, call (913)457-3440 before 8a.m.

WORKERS FOR costume shop in Aggieville. Fun job putting together costumes display work and sales. Shop will be open Oct. 15- Nov. 2. Apply in person at 608 N. 12th Street, Monday through Friday between 2 and 5p.m. Ask for Betty.

14 Lost and Found

$50 FOR return of HP-41CV left in CW102. No questions asked. Call 776-5951, leave message.

FOUND: CASIO Scientific calculator. To claim, call 539-8687.

FOUND: NECKLACE near Union. To identify and claim, call 532-6321.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

1982 CSR Kawasaki, Baldwin organ. 539-7210.

1988 WEDDING dress, veil, size 8-9. $300. 539-4188 or 776-1774.

BAR, DRAFTING chair, dinette, bed, couch, desk, swivel desk chair, chest of drawers, misc. 776-9705.

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

HONDA 1971 100CL, 3,400 miles, economical to run, $175. 539-9277.

17 Musical Instruments

Hayes House of Music
D. O. D.
Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

CERWIN- VEGA Bass guitar cabinet with Sunn 18" speaker. Wheels, handles. $125. 539-2401.

FENDER DELUXE reverb amplifier, electric guitar and small practice amplifier. Old but good! 537-0927.

18 Personals

AGR- HERE'S some memories of our wonderful week together... I'd rather get drunk with an AGR than anyone else I know... No sleep till Sunday... We had fun, damn fun... Bad medicine... What time do they quit selling beer in Nebraska?... Paradise by the dashboard lights... pompin' every night... Bad medicine... six nights in a row... Lu-lu... We thought we looked bad in the morning... Bad medicine... Sinkin' the sub... dancin' on the tables... Yo- don't we get points for having the most fun and drinkin' the most beer?... Homecoming just don't get no better than this... You guys are the greatest! We love you, KD's. P.S. Bad medicine.

ANONIMO- THE card and flowers were a surprise, but please reveal your disguise.

HEY DELTS- We had a big old batch of F... (for fun!)... cause we were truckers, we were fighters, we were wiiiild bull riders... but there ain't no need for pompers no more, so we'll just sit at the Sigma house and simmer!... Word! D Tau D and Sigma three forever! Love, The Tri Sigmas. P.S. Yo Delts!! Rock the Beat!

THETAS DAWN and Carrie- Hi ho, hi ho, to Wildcat Land we go! Thanks, Dawn, for all your work for YLH. And Carrie, of course for the whole week! Love, Happy and Know- it- all.

THETA Xi Garrett and Shannon, Theta Amy: We did it! Thanks for all your help! Brittany.

CARLOS- UB26. Happy Birthday. I love you more each day. Stephanie.

CRAZY JEFF: "Mercutio" caught my eye, "Twisters" caught my ear. When the "Angel's Fall," you can bet I'll be near! Your fan, Elizabeth.

DARIN- THANKS for everything. I understand. Lori.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

FOR RENT: Big-screen TV. $49.95 per day, extended rates available. Call 776-8309.

22 Resume/Typing Services

AVOID DISASTER. Hire an expert. Resumes designed to your profession. Typeset, laserprinted. Graphics Plus, 607 N. 11th, Aggieville, 539-6027.

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

Résumé Service
Resumes — Cover Letters
Data Sheets
343 Colorado
Call 537-7294
9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will type papers, theses and dissertations, letters, etc. at reasonable rates. 776-5907.

FOR ALL word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

RESUMES•LETTERS•PAPERS
Professionally typeset; letter quality printer
CLAFLIN BOOKS & COPIES
Corner Denison & Claflin
776-3771

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY will do typing. Call Ruth 537-2211, evenings 539-8768.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

WORD PROCESSING: Hire a professional for your papers, dissertations and manuscripts. Scharmann Word Processing 539-3221.

23 Roommate Wanted

NON-SMOKING ROOMMATE. Opportunity for serious student. $150.00 plus share utilities. 776-9083.

NON-SMOKING FEMALE to share two-bedroom furnished apartment with Christian female. $152.99 plus one-half utilities. 539-9564.

TO SHARE a very nice two-bedroom apartment, near Haymaker. Fireplace, laundry, central air. 776-0642 (Kenney, David) or 539-2702.

TWO ROOMMATES wanted, own rooms, next to Aggieville, one block from campus. $130. Call 537-2854 or 539-4641, both after 5p.m.

24 Situation Wanted

NEED AN odd job done? Something repaired? Can fix most anything. Call Frank, 776-0447.

RIDE NEEDED during weekdays from Junction City to Manhattan. Work hours are 7a.m. to 4p.m. Call 1-238-5298.

25 Sporting/Recreational Equipmen

EARLY CHRISTMAS! 69-inch Connelly Team 1 Slalom with bag and tournament fin. Plate bindings available. 14¼ x 21 SST prop for Johnson V-6. Best offer. 539-7439, ask for Rodger.

28 Adoption

HAPPILY MARRIED couple desires to adopt baby into loving family. We love children and will provide a stable, fun, and enriching life full of love for a baby in a pleasant California community. Please call Nancy and John collect at (818)241-4397 at your convenience.

HAPPILY MARRIED California couple, with lots of love and security, wish to adopt a white baby up to age two. All expenses paid. Totally legal. Please call Jeanie collect. (213)278-6161. Thank you.

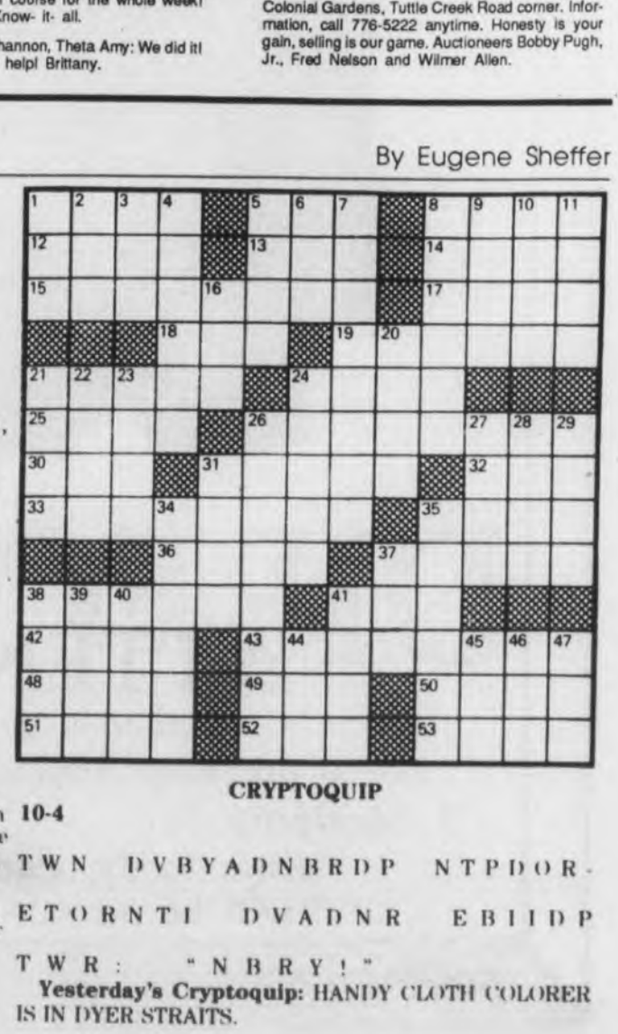
LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

30 Little Apple Auction

LITTLE APPLE Auction. When- every Wednesday, 6p.m. Consign your items early, first come first served. We sell furniture, jewelry, tools, appliances, glassware, antiques and much more. Come out and see. Where- 1217 East Marlatt Ave., east of Colonial Gardens, Tuttle Creek Road corner. Information, call 776-5222 anytime. Honesty is your gain, selling is our game. Auctioneers Bobby Pugh, Jr., Fred Nelson and Wilmer Allen.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Cry heard in a speakeasy?
5 Tom Hanks movie
8 Talk wildly
12 Green Gables lass
13 King, in France
14 Hodge-podge
15 Very festive party
17 Dissolve
18 Equip
19 Three sister goddesses
21 Range or scope
24 Secluded valley
25 Bail
26 Chief support
30 Lemon follower
31 "The — and the Fury"
32 Creek
33 Table game
35 Duration
36 Fabric fuzz
37 Motorcycles
38 First canonical hour
41 Part of a min.
42 Not up yet
43 Victoria is its capital
48 Govern
49 "...man — mouse?"
50 Fencing sword
51 Play the lead
52 — round (meat cut)
53 Asian weight

DOWN
1 Like sushi
2 Black bird
3 Motel of yesteryear?
4 B.A. or M.S., for instance
5 Ship's prison
6 Ending for champ
7 Tittering
8 They lent their ears?
9 Guinness
10 Blue or White
11 Toddlers
16 Party mix
20 Tear
21 Social rebuff
22 Dry Arabian ravine
23 Paradise
24 Thin and bony
26 Apollo 11, for one
27 TV's "Star —"
28 Million follower
29 Sweet potatoes
31 Washer cycle
34 Porch seat
35 List of candidates
37 Beseech
38 Earth's neighbor
39 Border on 40 Membrane
41 Fastener
44 Spanish gold
45 WWII org.
46 Society page word
47 Toothpaste choice

Solution time: 25 mins.

A	S	P		S	H	I	R	E		C	A	T
R	O	E		C	O	L	O	N		U	L	E
C	U	T	T	H	R	O	A	T		T	A	R
			W	E	N		R	A	I	S	I	N
B	E	C	O	M	E		S	I	L	L
E	C	U		E	T	O		L	E	O	N	E
A	R	T	S		S	A	C		S	O	O	T
M	U	S	E	S		R	E	P		S	O	N
		S	A	T	E		R	O	W	E	N	A
A	S	H	T	O	N		T	I	E
I	T	O		C	U	T	A	N	D	R	U	N
D	O	R		K	R	A	I	T		A	N	I
E	A	T		S	E	A	N	S		J	O	B

Yesterday's answer 10-4

CRYPTOQUIP

10-4

TWN DVBYADNBRDP NTPDOR ETORNTI DVADNR EBIIDP TWR: "NBRY!"

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: HANDY CLOTH COLORER IS IN DYER STRAITS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals R

Graduate

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Computerization would give students a chance to see which classes they have completed. This could help them plan future semesters, and give them a view of graduation from the start, Feyerharm said.

It poses a very complex problem because a custom program would have to be written.

Problems would arise with transfer students, Feyerharm said. A class that transfers may not always have the same course title as K-State's class, even if it covers the same material, he said, and that would be difficult to program.

"I don't see our program being done by computer," said William Jahnke, assistant dean of the College of Architecture and Design. "I would not do it unless the student was with me. That way there are no misunderstandings and nothing is done behind (the student's) back."

The curriculum and courses change constantly, so the program would have to be constantly rewritten, Jahnke said.

The College of Engineering uses both methods, but the actual checking is done manually, said Ray E. Hightower, assistant dean of the College of Engineering.

"I don't foresee going totally computer in the near future," Hightower said. "Eventually, yes."

Information exchanged between the student and Hightower may provide graduate placement or career positions. Hightower also may get information from students concerning guidelines for future advising, course content and program improvement, he said.

Improving turn-around time is the idea behind computerizing graduation checks.

"We have a fast turn-around on any information dealing with students," said Kay Stewart, assistant dean of the College of Business.

Stewart is in favor of computerizing the graduation check process, but said she knows it will be tough getting started.

"It takes money and people, and we don't have the resources," Stewart said. "When a change occurs (now), someone makes the change on paper. There is no difference between that and putting it in the computer."

The College of Arts and Sciences is going to try the computerized graduation check with the School of Journalism and Mass Communications, Feyerharm said.

If everyone would stay on track, graduation checks would be easy to make, but a few problem cases consume a majority of the time, he said.

"About 80 to 90 percent of the cases are very routine. A small portion of the students can take a lot of time," Feyerharm said.

Senate

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

another, Hays said, "Gosh, I guess we did a lot of work for nothing."

The bill, according to Hays, sought to enforce the requirements of the constitution and the bylaws.

"(The attendance requirement) was something that had been overlooked," she said.

Nath said he looked forward to the debate over the bill of impeachment.

"I'm just looking forward to facing it. I'm not going to resign," Nath said.

"I talked to Doug (Folk) and he asked me if I wanted to resign and I said, 'no,'" Nath said.

Nath said the process for impeachment is at least three weeks long, given the number of readings the bill would have to go through, and then the trial before the Student Tribunal.

"The process is pretty long-drawn," he said.

Hostage

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

the State Department newsroom at 5 p.m.

Singh was released at 10:05 p.m. local time, 3:05 p.m. EDT, across the street from the Beirut headquarters of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency, which aids Palestinian refugees, said a police spokesman in Beirut who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"We can confirm," she said, "that the Syrian government has told us they have custody of a hostage, an Indian citizen and legal permanent resident of the United States."

She then identified the freed hostage as Singh, a visiting professor at Beirut University College.

Singh's wife, Lalmoney, is in Beirut and Singh, 60, will be turned over to the U.S. ambassador to Syria, Edward Djerejian, Oakley said.

Drugs

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5

tested for substances that are banned by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"The old policy had us testing every athlete before they entered the program and, following that, there would be random tests," Cramer said.

A new NCAA policy is expected to come out in early November.

Steroids or other banned substances haven't been a problem at K-State, Cramer said.

If an athlete has been known to use an illegal substance while at K-State, the athlete and a counselor will meet privately to discuss the problem.

"The meeting is strictly confidential," Cramer said.

If an athlete is found using an illegal substance twice, the case would be turned over to athletic administrators and they would conduct a hearing to decide the athlete's status with the program.

Parrish

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

"I would try to convince him to stay," said Miller, when asked what would happen to Parrish if the Wildcats start winning.

"It would be a real catch-22, wouldn't it? I'd be lying to you if I said I hadn't examined the scenario. If it were to happen, I'd talk to Stan about his future, and we would have to renegotiate."

Parrish, 42, has seen his teams at K-State go 2-23-1. The Wildcats' overall winning percentage is .379 (299-502-41).

Parrish said he's been the victim of a society that places too much emphasis on winning and losing.

"I still feel good about what I've done here. Sometimes to put things in perspective you have to look at the whole package. There are several programs under investigation by the NCAA, and there are programs with problems in the academic area, but none of that has happened at Kansas State University," Parrish said.

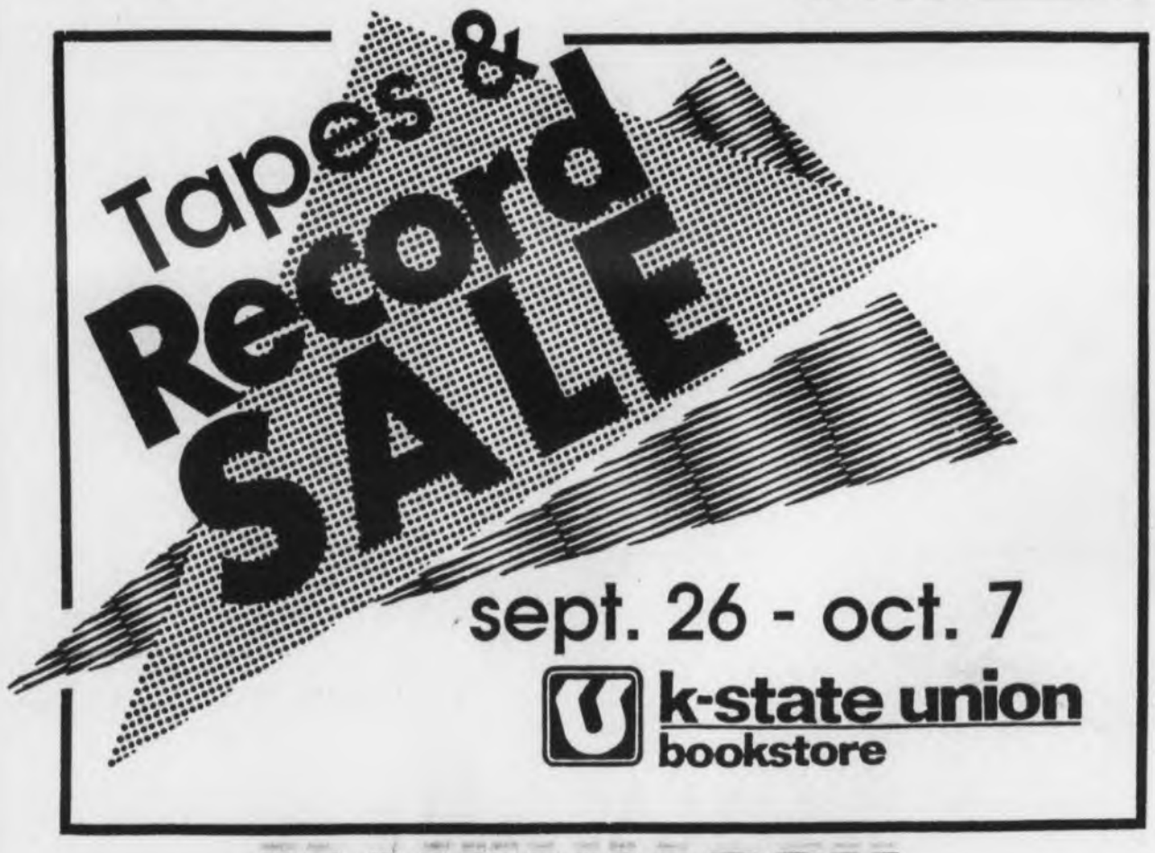
New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt

Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol

I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores

Nautilus Towers-Aggieville

Phone 537-1616 Manhattan



FIRST time in history of KSU
the Muslim Community Association presents:

"ISLAM ON FOCUS"
by Hamed Ohazali

In a series of lectures designed for non-Muslims.

When: Wed., Oct. 5th, 1988
Where: K-STATE UNION Big 8
Time: 7:30 p.m.

Refreshments are free

CAMPUS

DIRECTORY ATTENTION

Today is your last day to purchase directories in the Union.
$1 Students Limit 2 with I.D. $1.50 for non-students
After today, Campus Directories will be on sale in Kedzie 103.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS

Introducing The Zenith Data Systems eaZy™ pc

Suggested retail price: $999
SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE: $699

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CELEBRATES YOUR RETURN TO CAMPUS WITH THIS SPECIAL STUDENT PC OFFER!

It's the start of a brand-new school year. And Zenith Data Systems would like to welcome you back with this special personal computer offer.

With a Zenith Data Systems PC at your desk you'll be able to write and edit papers in a fraction of the time. You'll also enjoy many advanced capabilities that'll give you a definite advantage throughout your college career.

Of course, that advantage will continue long after college since Zenith Data Systems PCs are among the preferred computers in business, too.

So visit your nearby Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact today and make this your most exciting year yet.

Make Your Return To Campus A Happy One—Visit Your Zenith Data Systems Campus Open House:

Student Union Courtyard
October 24 & 25, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.
Contact your local student representative:
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
The Bookstore 532-6583

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one personal computer and one monitor per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems
Form No. 1331-988

Housing Woes

An organization that met recently with students and landlords is attempting to improve neighborhood living conditions in Manhattan. See Page 10.

Weather

Mostly cloudy and cold today, high around 50. Tonight's low 35 to 40. Mostly cloudy Thursday and very cool. High around 60.

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
66612

many former state champions, is underway at the Recreation Complex. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 5, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 32

Kansas State
Collegian

Seniors pitch for fun

By Amy Rosebrough
Collegian Reporter

Eight men braved a cold fall morning to socialize like friends did years ago — over a game of horseshoes.

The Manhattan Parks and Recreation Department's third annual round-robin horseshoe tournament began at 9 a.m. Tuesday in the southwest corner of City Park. The competition was a senior citizen special event.

Brothers Bill and Bruce Scott, Manhattan, entered the competition. Although Bruce, 70, has won the tournament the past two years, he placed third this year.

Bill, 67, had not played for two years because of failing health, but this year he won the event. Bill said he has played horseshoes with his brother "ever since I can remember."

"As long as you get to compete — that's all that matters," Bill said.

The Scotts grew up on a farm in Kansas during the Depression. "In the Depression there was not much to do, but (play) horseshoes," he said.

The brothers have continued playing horseshoes, Bill said, because the sport is good exercise, but it is definitely a warm-weather sport.

Although Bruce was knocked out of the first-place position, he was cheering his brother's every toss.

"I'm just not hittin' today," he said, "but I am hoping my brother wins."

Kathy Menzie, park and recreation employee, said the sport is different from other sports the department sponsors. The competitors do not get upset and, although it is hard work, they seem to enjoy it.

"These people are always appreciative of our efforts," she said. "We get a lot of thank yous when it's over."

Menzie told 70-year-old Glenn Anderson of Leonardville about the tournament three years ago. A friend gave him a pair of horseshoes and Anderson has thrown them every year in the competition, he said.

"(I am) not very good, but when you throw one right it sure feels good," Anderson said.

Anderson has pegs set up by the windmill on his farm, and he practices while he is filling buckets with water.

He said it does not take long for him to become tired after throwing a 2½ pound horseshoe for a while.

Fred Stueve, Wamego, has thrown horseshoes all his life. He said every other Sunday when he was growing up the Lutheran Church would have an ice cream social. After everyone ate, the men would set up the pegs and start a game of horseshoes that would last all day.

"It was the only thing there was to do," he said. "The women would sit and talk while the men played baseball or horseshoes."

Tom Shackelford, Manhattan, said he remembers when the men just "pulled the old horseshoes out and started throwing them."

"Even 15 years ago people would play horseshoes in the park every night," he said.

Shackelford said he likes the sport because it is inexpensive.

"Of course, nowadays you have money invested in the shoes," he said, "but it's still cheaper than bowling."

A pair of professional horseshoes costs around $50, but Shackelford said it is worth the cost because it is a good way to kill time and keep fit.

Staff/John La Barge

Eldon Bergstrom pitches a horseshoe at the Manhattan Parks and Recreation Department's third annual horseshoe tournament Tuesday morning in City Park.

Isenhour delivers address to staff

By Nancy Prosser
Collegian Reporter

Stressing the importance of the college's role in the University, Thomas Isenhour, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, delivered his State of the College address to faculty and staff members Tuesday afternoon in Willard Hall.

Isenhour, who just completed his first year as dean of the college, said: "Rigorous education can be lost in a series of professionally oriented courses that may train students for a job, but leave them no more educated than they found them," Isenhour said. "We must not let this happen at Kansas State University."

Instead, he said, every graduate should know how to collect, interpret, and apply information to problems of all types; enjoy and develop personally along aesthetic, ethical and intellectual lines; and grow and adapt within an ever-changing world.

Isenhour reported increased enrollment within the college. This fall there are 5,052 majors in the college, compared with 4,087 in 1985. The college also reported its best grant and contract year in 1988, passing the $10 million mark for the first time.

Some planning has been done for the creation of a general college within the College of Arts and Sciences.

"We hope to integrate the University's efforts for a core curriculum and liberal arts program for all students within the general college concept," Isenhour said.

Isenhour reaffirmed his commitment of support for the School of Journalism and Mass Communication's effort in regaining its accreditation. Isenhour said there are also other departments in the college that are in need of "emergency" attention.

"Economics was under-budgeted when the department was separated from agricultural economics. Our own business administration college can recruit our faculty with extra salary dollars proving our non-competitive position," Isenhour said.

"Physical education and leisure studies are losing many of its most promising faculty. Aerospace studies will be terminated in two years if officer production does not improve," he said.

A review process of the honors program is expected to begin this year, Isenhour said.

"A complete review of the honors program will start this year. We believe it should be possible to offer an advanced honors program to more students representing more disciplines," he said.

During his presentation, Isenhour announced a major capital campaign for the college. He said he initially estimated that a $55 million endowment is needed for the college, but said he now believes the estimate may have been too conservative.

Isenhour said objectives were to increase

■ See ADDRESS, Page 12

City approves request

$15,000 allotted business center

By Angela Smith
Collegian Reporter

City Commission on Tuesday approved a request of $15,000 to finance the Kansas Entrepreneurial Center for an interim period of three months.

Don Rathbone, dean of the College of Engineering and chairman of KEC, said the center provides a facility for citizens interested in starting a new business. It also provides space, access to a secretary, legal advice and computers.

"This is for people who have an idea for a new business but no money," Rathbone said.

Rathbone said KEC was allowed to establish an office in the Southwestern Bell building, at the intersection of Fairchild Avenue and 17th Street.

"We feel this location is excellent, because it is close to campus and has good parking," he said.

Rathbone said KEC is going to ask many public and private entities as well as the University for additional funding.

John Walters, president of KEC, said public and private funds would "drop off" in the next three years.

K-State was requested to pay $16,000 to $20,000 for the next three years, Walters said.

"This is a very wise investment for the board," Commissioner Richard B. Hayter said.

Commissioner Nancy Denning said she would like to have the funding extended to three years.

Rathbone said the date for the opening has not been set.

"One business is going to move in and there is talk of more moving in the center," Rathbone said.

A business is "typically allowed three years" to stay at KEC before moving out, Rathbone said.

Commissioner Gene Klingler said he supports KEC "whole-heartedly."

Walters said he wants to thank everyone who supported KEC.

"We all are very excited about this program," he said.

Lafene facing many financial troubles

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

K-State may face serious cuts in student health services if Lafene Student Health Center does not receive an increase in student funding, said Dr. Robert Tout, director of Lafene.

"There aren't too many places where we can cut services," he said, "but it will have to happen if we don't get a fee increase."

Some of those cuts in services may mean eliminating the emergency after-hours service and could influence whether vacated positions are filled.

Tout said during the past fiscal year, about 2,200 calls were made to the after-hours service. He estimates that of those, because of cost and inconvenience, perhaps only a third would actually go to an emergency room at the other Manhattan hospitals.

However, Student Senate, which decides fee increases, will be faced early this semester with deciding on a proposed student athletic fee as well. And Tout expressed doubts that Senate would be favorable to two large fee increases.

"This Student Senate is going to be pretty hard-nosed," he said. "But I'm prejudiced. I think health care is important."

What's more, the idea of another student health fee hasn't yet been introduced to Senate.

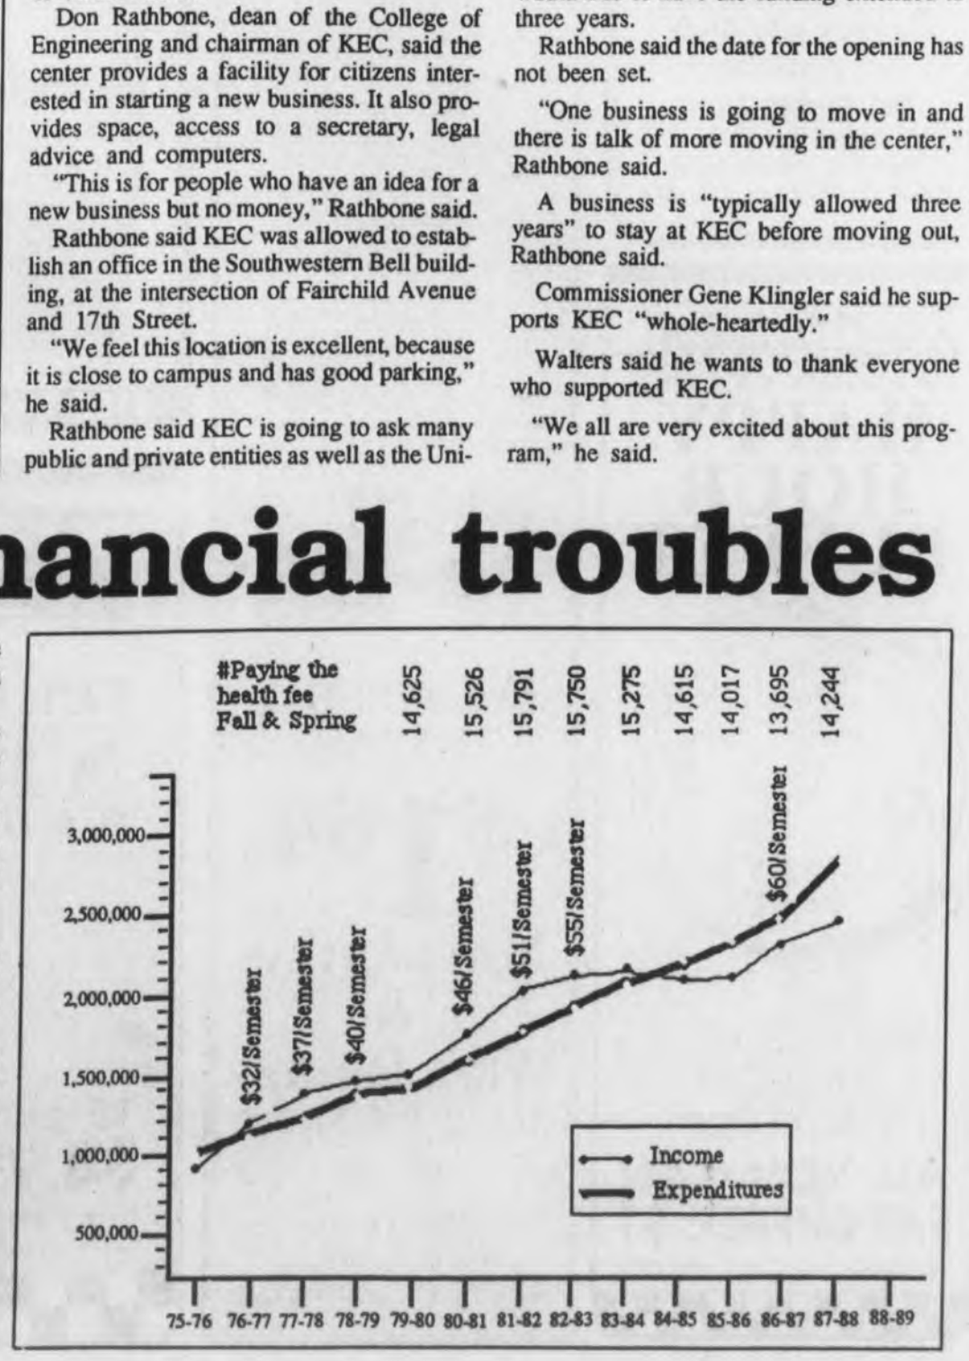
"It will probably be (introduced) in November, but we had hoped to do it in October," Tout said. He said University administrators would like Lafene to go before Senate both this year and next year and not ask for as large an increase that Tout believes is needed all at once.

"I think there's a common desire among us all to keep fees as low as possible," said Mike Lynch, vice president of the Academic Assistance Center. Lynch said he doesn't consider the problem to be an overly serious one.

"I think 'facing problems' is an overstatement at this point. We're in the process of developing a three-to-five year (funding) plan for Lafene."

Full-time students — those who carry seven or more credit hours — have paid $60 per semester since 1986, when a $5 fee increase was implemented. Tout said the fee must be at least $85 to $90 "just to maintain service."

Two Lafene services have already been closed. The diet kitchen was closed in the summer of 1986 and the hospital in December 1987. The elimination of these services resulted in a decrease of eight staff positions.



"Any further closing is going to directly affect health care, and that's dangerous," Tout said.

"We started being affected in the spring semester of 1982," he said. "That was the first time (the University) had a decrease in enrollment."

The decrease in enrollment was coupled with another problem. Expenditures, including insurance premiums for medical personnel and the cost of medical supplies, had been steadily increasing even before enrollment started to decline.

Premiums for Lafene's physicians have more than doubled. As of Nov. 1, 1987, premiums for the physicians were $3,120. This November, that number will have increased

■ See LAFENE, Page 12

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Former hostage treated well

DAMASCUS, Syria — Indian professor Mithileshwar Singh said Tuesday his kidnappers treated him well during his 20 months as a hostage in Lebanon, but "there is no substitute for freedom" and he grieves for those still held.

Three American colleagues were kidnapped with the Indian educator, a 60-year-old resident alien of the United States.

Singh flew from Damascus to Frankfurt, West Germany, where he arrived at 2:20 a.m. Wednesday (9:20 p.m. EDT Tuesday) aboard a U.S. Air Force transport plane, a military spokesman said. Singh did not speak to reporters at the Air Force's Rhein-Main Base.

Craig Springer, spokesman for the U.S. Consulate in Frankfurt, told reporters at the base that Singh would undergo a medical checkup and then a State Department debriefing team was scheduled to interview him later Wednesday.

"This is a two-fold operation. No. 1 is to insure the physical and mental health of Mr. Singh, but at the same time to find out about other contacts he may have had," Springer said.

Singh was taken to a military hospital in Wiesbaden, 24 miles west of Frankfurt, said Air Force Lt. William Dillingham.

His release leaves nine Americans and seven other foreigners still missing in Lebanon and believed held by extremist Moslem kidnappers. Held longest is Terry A. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, who was abducted March 16, 1985.

Twelve Burmese looters killed

RANGOON, Burma — Security forces killed 12 people caught looting or stealing Tuesday, government radio said, and an opposition leader appealed to Amnesty International to help bring democracy to Burma.

State-run Radio Rangoon said soldiers opened fire on a group of people looting a food warehouse in Rangoon and killed 10. Soldiers killed two more people caught stealing iron roofing in another part of the capital, the report said.

The deaths brought to more than 440 the number of people officials say have died since military officers seized control Sept. 18 and cracked down on anti-government demonstrators and looters.

Anti-government strikes that began in August have seriously disrupted supplies of food and other items to the capital.

In a letter to Amnesty International, Tin Oo, a former defense minister and the vice chairman of the opposition National League for Democracy, cited the killing of demonstrators, denial of labor union rights and removal from office of many government officials for taking part in recent anti-government protests.

Brazilian hijacker dead

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — A 28-year-old man who hijacked a Brazilian jet with 100 people aboard last week and later was wounded by police gunfire died Tuesday after a five-hour police interrogation, hospital officials said.

Raimundo Conceicao, whom officials described as a "psychopath" shortly after the piracy, died of kidney failure, according to a medical report released by Santa Genoveva Hospital in Goiania, 850 miles northwest of Rio.

On Sept. 29, Conceicao burst into the cockpit of a Brazilian airliner on a flight from the Western Amazon regions to Rio and demanded that the plane fly to the federal capital of Brasilia. He reportedly told negotiators he wanted to crash the plane into a government building to "settle accounts" with the government because of what he called its recessive economic policies.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

House passes sewage bill

WASHINGTON — The House on Tuesday passed a much-debated bill that bans the dumping of sewage sludge in the ocean after 1992.

The measure, adopted by a 416-0 vote, sets a Dec. 31, 1992 deadline on sludge dumping by the nation's only remaining practitioners: nine sewage authorities located in New York and New Jersey.

The compromise bill, climaxing a 10-year legislative effort, must now be reconciled with a differing version passed by the Senate in August.

Sponsors of the House and Senate bills say they expect to reconcile differences at conference sessions beginning Wednesday. Among other things, the Senate bill sets a Dec. 31, 1991 deadline — a year earlier than the House.

Groups criticize classification

WASHINGTON — A Transportation Department proposal to change the regulatory classification of anhydrous ammonia is drawing warnings from agricultural groups that it will drive up costs of the commonly used nitrogen fertilizer.

The proposal would reclassify anhydrous ammonia as a "poisonous gas" and require new labeling on tanks and containers used to transport the compressed gas, which accounts for about half of the U.S. nitrogen fertilizer supply for farmers.

"It's going to cause a real problem in farm country," says Rep. Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

DOT proposed the change last year as part of a broad effort to make the packaging of a number of hazardous materials conform to international standards. Farm groups contend that the change will not make the shipping and distribution of anhydrous ammonia any safer but will drive up costs and could create new transportation problems.

"It wouldn't really do what I think they're trying to accomplish," says Bill Boettcher of the Fertilizer Institute.

Several members of Congress, including Roberts, have pushed legislation to scrap the proposed change.

If adopted, the reclassification would require anhydrous ammonia tanks to carry a label saying "Inhalation Hazard" and a poison symbol, a white diamond sign with a skull and crossbones.

Currently, anhydrous ammonia is classified as a "nonflammable gas" and is labeled as such.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Judge refuses to halt dance

JOPLIN, Mo. — A federal judge has refused to stay an order striking down the Purdy School District's ban on school dances.

U.S. District Judge Russell Clark, in an order delivered Monday to federal court in Joplin, said school board members had failed to prove his decision was likely to be reversed by the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals. The school board announced Sept. 19 that it would appeal Clark's August order declaring the high school dance ban unconstitutional because it promoted the religious values of those who consider dancing sinful.

Clark did stay his order that the school board pay attorney fees to the Purdy students and parents who filed suit challenging the century-old dance ban. The board had posted a bond ensuring that that the more than $85,000 in attorney fees will be paid should the board lose on appeal.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ALL UNIVERSITY OPEN HOUSE Applications are available for the following committees: Media, Courtyard Entertainment, Special Projects and College Liason. Applications and more information is available in Anderson 122.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT CANCER Research Award applications are available in Ackert 234. All undergraduate students in health-related degree programs are eligible to apply. Deadline is Dec. 5.

TODAY

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES BOARD will meet at 3:30 p.m. in Union 203.

STUDENTS AGAINST DRUNK DRIVING will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 203.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS Returning to School will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

MUSLEM COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union Big 8 Room. The topic is "Islam in Focus." Everyone is welcome.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS will meet at 4 p.m. in Union 208.

PUERTO RICAN Student Organization will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 206.

NON-TRADITIONAL STUDENTS will meet from 5 to 6:30 p.m. in the Union Cottonwood room.

THURSDAY

INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 213.

GRAIN SCIENCE CLUB will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Shellenberger 311. Officers will meet at 6 p.m.

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Janet S. Broers at 1:30 p.m. in Bluemont 368. The topic is "Efficacy of Transitional First Grade in Lawrence, Kan."

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Yee-Wei Huang at 3:15 p.m. in Durland 129. The topic is "Designing Intelligent Knowledge and Data Bases for Separation Scheme Synthesis — A Case Study of Knowledge Engineering in Process Engineering."

SAILING CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

MINORITY BUSINESS STUDENTS in Action will meet at 8 p.m. in Calvin 102.

COLLEGIATE 4-H will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

FINANCE CLUB will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Calvin 201.

PRE VET Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201.

CAMPUS CRUSADE for Christ will meet at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

A.I.C.H.E. will meet at 1:30 p.m. in Ackert 120.

TEACHERS OF TOMORROW will conduct an open forum discussion, "Where Do Teachers Fit in Public Education?," by Dr. Ron Kolenbrander at 7 p.m. in Bluemont 225. A meeting will follow the discussion. Everyone is welcome.

FRIDAY

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 212.

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of David James Patterson at 9:45 a.m. in Weber 146. The topic is "Reproduction in Bos Taurus and Bos Indicus X Bos Taurus Heifers after Manipulation of Postweaning Dietary Energy and Melengestrol Acetate."

PRE-NURSING STUDENTS will tour KU School of Nursing at 2 p.m. Departure from south side of Union at 11:30 a.m. Sign up in dean's office if you plan to go.

K-STATE POLICE

Monday

- The theft of a backpack from Ahearn Field House was reported. Loss was $139.
- A wallet was reported lost off campus. Loss was $30.
- A student parking permit was reported stolen from a vehicle in lot D-4.
- A 1979 Oldsmobile was reported disabled in lot A-30.
- Two county tags were reported stolen.
- A male suspect was reported to have battered a female victim behind Seaton Hall. Police are investigating.
- Criminal damage to a windshield was reported.
- A hit-and-run accident was reported near Ford Hall.

Tuesday

- A faculty/staff parking permit was reported stolen on campus.
- The burglary theft of a computer worth $3,842.63 from the football office was reported.
- The theft of a bathrobe from Ford Hall was reported. Loss was $80.
- Criminal damage to the grass at Brandeberry was reported. Loss was $150 to $200.
- A student parking permit was reported stolen from a vehicle parked on campus.
- A student parking permit, cassette tapes and an umbrella were reported stolen from a vehicle parked off campus.
- Two speakers in a vehicle parked in lot B-3 were reported stolen. Loss was $40.

GOODSON AUTO TRIM
Tailor Made Seat Covers
Tanneau Covers
Boat Covers
Convertible Tops
Vinyl Tops
Complete Auto, Truck & Boat Upholstery
201 Sarber Lane
(behind Wal-Mart)
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 776-7679 Res. 776-7614

BUSHWACKERS · THE · FUNDRINKERY
TONIGHT
Pitchers $2
Well Drinks $1.25
Sunset Grill
Special
10 oz. Top Sirloin
$3.95
5 to 9
531 N. Manhattan

BROTHERS In Aggieville
Rock With Brother's Tonight

$2 LONG ISLAND ICED TEA
FREE PIZZA from 9-10 p.m.
Dance to our new light show on the largest dance floor in Aggieville.
1120 Moro—Aggieville 537-9511

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

OLD MILWAUKEE LIGHT NITE
$1.99 Pitchers
"It just doesn't get any better than this"
No Dress Code
No Cover Charge
—Your Discount Beer Barn—
Go North on Tuttle Creek Blvd., then right on Barnes Rd.
You can't miss it.
"The Finest Little Tavern By a Dam Site"
Rt. 7 537-3133

The Station
HAPPY HOUR BUFFET

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
5:00-7:00pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET: $1
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

LAST CHANCE
1213 MORO, AGGIEVILLE 776-9451
WEDNESDAY MEANS
$1.60 MARGARITAS & WELL DRINKS
ALL DAY & NIGHT!
★ ★
RELAX ON OUR FAMOUS SANTA CLAUS PATIO!

The Station
THE GREAT AGGIEVILLE STEAK-OUT
WEDNESDAYS, 5-10 p.m.

16 oz. SIRLOIN $4.99 includes steak fries & texas toast
8 oz. SIRLOIN $2.69 includes steak fries & texas toast
1115 Moro Street, Aggieville telephone: 776-0030

PARTY IN ANOTHER DIMENSION!
ROCKTOBERFEST
T O N I T E

$1.99 PITCHERS BACK BAR
FREE 3-D POSTERS
FREE 3-D SPECS
FREE SUNGLASSES
50's MOVIES & MUSIC
HOOLA-HOOP CONTESTS
celebrity DJ's tonite: Dana Brunnett & Rod Schandfeld
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT... KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
18 to enter 21 to drink -619 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-9794

Reservoir water level, pesticides concerns

Contamination worrying fishermen

By Laurie Cox
Collegian Reporter

Although Tuttle Creek Reservoir is safe for recreation, pesticide contamination has some fishermen concerned about possible harm to the fish and to the people who might eat them, said Vic Robbins, environmental engineer with the Bureau of Water Quality.

In June, Tuttle Creek Reservoir recorded low levels of pesticide contamination and sedimentation due to abundant rainfall, run-off and land use by farmers, according to a state survey.

Joseph Arruda, assistant professor at Pittsburg State University, worked with the Kansas Department of Health and Environment at the time of the survey. The department took samples of two species of fish — common carp and white bass — and tested them for levels of pesticide concentration.

The carp was tested as a whole fish, while the bass was tested as fillets using only the meat.

The most significant pesticide found in the fish tested was chlordane. Pesticide levels measured at .1 part per million, which is only one-third of the amount needed for the Food and Drug Administration to take action.

Although the concentration of chlordane may be minimal, some laboratory tests have proven ingestion of the pesticide can produce negative side effects.

"Chlordane has been proven to cause cancer in lab animals. And it is thought (to be) possible that if humans consume contaminated fish on a regular basis under continued exposure, that the combination of chlordane and other chemicals could trigger the cancerous process," said John Crellin, consultant epidemiologist for the Missouri Department of Health.

"Three advisories have been issued in the state of Kansas for fish consumption," said Ken Brunson, stream investigator for the State Department of Wildlife and Parks.

The advisories include a warning not to consume bottom-feeding fish in the lower Kansas River below Turner Bridge, and advise a consumption rate maximum of one-half pound of carp or other bottom species per day.

Consumption advisories apply only to the Kansas River between Lawrence and Eudora, below Bowersock Dam and the Arkansas River, and Little Arkansas River within the city limits of Wichita.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency banned the agricultural use of chlordane on April 15. The ban eliminates the possible risk of future increases of chlordane in water supplies.

"The chlordane levels found in rural areas are usually old and will disappear over a period of time. But there have been high levels of pesticide concentration found in rivers below large cities like Wichita and Lawrence," Arruda said.

Other pesticides were found in the test fish, but only as trace elements, making them harmless to consumers. DDT, a colorless, odorless, water-insoluble crystalline insecticide and other elements were found and registered slightly above the trace level, "but these elements can be found all over the Midwest," he said.

"Tuttle Creek's level of concentration is not abnormal," Arruda said. "The KDHE maintains samples of fish tissues from around the state, and half of the sites in eastern Kansas have similar levels."

Mark Wilson, of the State Fish and Wildlife Service, said there have been some reports from fishermen in Missouri of tumors being found in fish. However, because of the low levels of toxicity in this area, the fish will probably die of natural causes before they reach a level high enough to produce cancer.

Tuttle not affected by rainfall amount

By The Collegian Staff

The lack of rain this summer has had little affect on water levels at Tuttle Creek Reservoir, despite low levels recorded in local rivers, according to a Corps of Engineers official.

"Our elevation right now is within a foot of what it should be. It has been all summer. Really, the drought has not had a big affect on the elevation of the lake itself," said Dale Forge, project manager with the Corps of Engineers at Tuttle Creek.

Some of the surrounding rivers have been affected by the drought and the closing of the dam, but the opening of the flow gates a week ago has helped to bring the level of the rivers up, he said.

For the past six weeks, the gates have been shut while work was completed on Rocky Ford. This stabilized the elevation of the lake, Forge said.

Two of the contributing factors to the water level of Tuttle Creek are the inflow rate vs. the outflow rate and evaporation, he said.

On a hot, windy day, the lake may lose as much as half an inch of water to evaporation, he said.

Due to the combination of the outflow rate and evaporation rate, the lake is just within the conservation level, Forge said.

Tuttle Creek hasn't had to supplement the Kansas River because Milford Lake and Perry Lake were able to keep the river level up while Tuttle Dam was closed.

Forge said the small rains a week ago helped to stabilize the level of the lake and surrounding rivers, but additional rain is still needed.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Super Food Barn
OVER 20,000 DISCOUNT PRICES
222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202
Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

SPECIALS

Head lettuce..... 39¢/each Family Pack Sirloin Steak.. $1.75/lb.
Coca Cola ..... 89¢
2 ltr. bottle
Busch Beer..... $4.19
12, 12-oz. cans
Guy's Potato Chips..... 99¢
6.5-oz. bag

R•O•Y•A•L

Portraits for Royal Purple
will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Pi Kappa Alpha– Oct. 5
Pi Kappa Phi– Oct. 5
Sigma Alpha Epsilon– Oct. 5-6

P•U•R•P•L•E

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB
BAKE SALE

TODAY
Shellenberger Hall, Room 105
3:30-5:15 p.m.

Golden Key Society
&
K-State Orchestra
presents
OPENING CONCERT
Adrian Bryttan, Conductor
David Littrell, Soloist
Thursday, October 6, 8 p.m.
Free Admission
McCain Auditorium
Reception for the Public

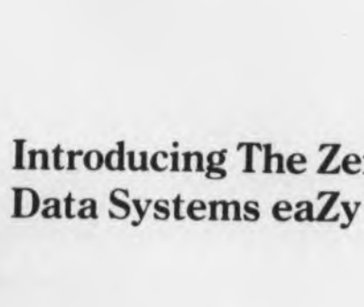
MANY HAPPY RETURNS

Introducing The Zenith Data Systems eaZy™ pc

Suggested retail price: $999
SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE: $699

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CELEBRATES YOUR RETURN TO CAMPUS WITH THIS SPECIAL STUDENT PC OFFER!

It's the start of a brand-new school year. And Zenith Data Systems would like to welcome you back with this special personal computer offer.



With a Zenith Data Systems PC at your desk you'll be able to write and edit papers in a fraction of the time. You'll also enjoy many advanced capabilities that'll give you a definite advantage throughout your college career.

Of course, that advantage will continue long after college since Zenith Data Systems PCs are among the preferred computers in business, too.

So visit your nearby Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact today and make this your most exciting year yet.

Make Your Return To Campus A Happy One—Visit Your Zenith Data Systems Campus Open House:

Student Union Courtyard
October 24 & 25, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.
Contact your local student representative:
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
The Bookstore 532-6583

DESPONDENT OVER SHELDON'S LUCK WITH THE BABES, BRUNO RECONSIDERS ATTENDING THE ZENITH OPEN HOUSE SALE...

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one personal computer and one monitor per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems
Form No. 1331-988

Image proves most important campaign issue

Over and over again I hear critics complaining that the presidential candidates do not talk about real issues. After the first candidates' debate, their stands are more defined on a number of issues, if they are not crystal clear. Still, I wonder how much these debates assist Americans in making good decisions about their next president. Especially if such debates are solely meant to explore the candidates' views on so-called real issues.

Issues. There are scores of them. I believe Americans think the most important ones are: Contra aid, tax cuts, MX missiles, the B-1 bomber, the death penalty, school prayer, oil import fee and the Star Wars Defense Initiative. If you are trying to make a decision in favor of a candidate who shares your position on all of these issues, you are out of luck; at least in the American political system.

In Pakistan, where I come from, parties organize and run the government. In America, as I observe, parties organize but do not run the government.

In Pakistan, political parties (and there are a lot of them, not just two) form a kind of consensus on different issues — although the consensus is broadly conceived and in very general terms. But it makes the voter's relating to a candidate — or more appropriately, to a party — much easier.

In the United States, I do not believe that there is any self-evident consensus on issues. So it winds down to basing a decision on two attributes: the party affiliation or the personal views of the candidates on the issues.

In my opinion, unless the issues are not so overwhelming, like the Great Depression of the 1930s or the Vietnam War in the 1960s, Americans tend to vote along party lines, or across the party lines if they find the image — or to a lesser extent the views — of a candidate from the other party more attractive.

There are, of course, some voters who take such a strong stance on one or two issues that they don't even have a second thought for whom they should vote. Contra aid is one example. I know some people who would vote for Pee Wee Herman if he promised to stop aid to the Contras.

As I read more and more about Central America, the greater I resent aid to the Contras. But, I would not consider one of the current issues the issue in deciding the next president, unless it is unquestionably evident that the issue infringes upon the values Americans so admire.

Commentary

SHEIKH FAISAL RAZZAQ

Collegian Columnist

Even voters who feel so strongly about a single issue may have second thoughts this election year.

Building upon the same issue, how would a strong opponent of Contra aid vote? For Michael Dukakis. Dukakis opposes aid to the Contras but chose a running mate who supports such aid. The list does not end here. Lloyd Bentsen favors 1981 Reagan tax cuts, Star Wars, the death penalty and prayer in public schools. Dukakis opposes them. However, Dukakis favors gun control and federal funds for abortion, while Bentsen opposes both.

With everyone questioning the eligibility of Dan Quayle to be a heart beat away from the presidency, Dukakis does not even think about his own running mate opposing his stands. Does Dukakis believe that what his running mate believes is right? You may want to think about it.

Coming to George Bush, there aren't any clear-cut answers either. As Dukakis puts it, the elections are just over a month away and Bush has not yet sorted out his stand on abortion.

However, from the standpoint of a neutral observer, I find George Bush more competent for the job.

Admittedly his stance on some issues is vague and he tries to define everything in general terms. But this would, I believe, allow him to adapt his policies to the changing needs of America without lying.

In addition, he would feel more accountable for whatever occurs during the next four years without blaming the past administration, which he has co-piloted for the last eight years. This, of course, should not be a factor in electing the next president. Rather, this should be seen as an additional attribute Bush would bring to the presidency if elected.

When it comes to foreign policy, especially in Asia, I am biased. And I mean extremely biased. After witnessing the cold response of former President Jimmy Carter to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, I dread even the thought of a Democratic president. I do resent the insensitiveness of President Ronald Reagan to the United Nations, but at least such a response did not put a nation into 12 years of misery.

I am really not in a position to compare the competency of the two presidential candidates in the context of defense spending and foreign policy in the Far East.

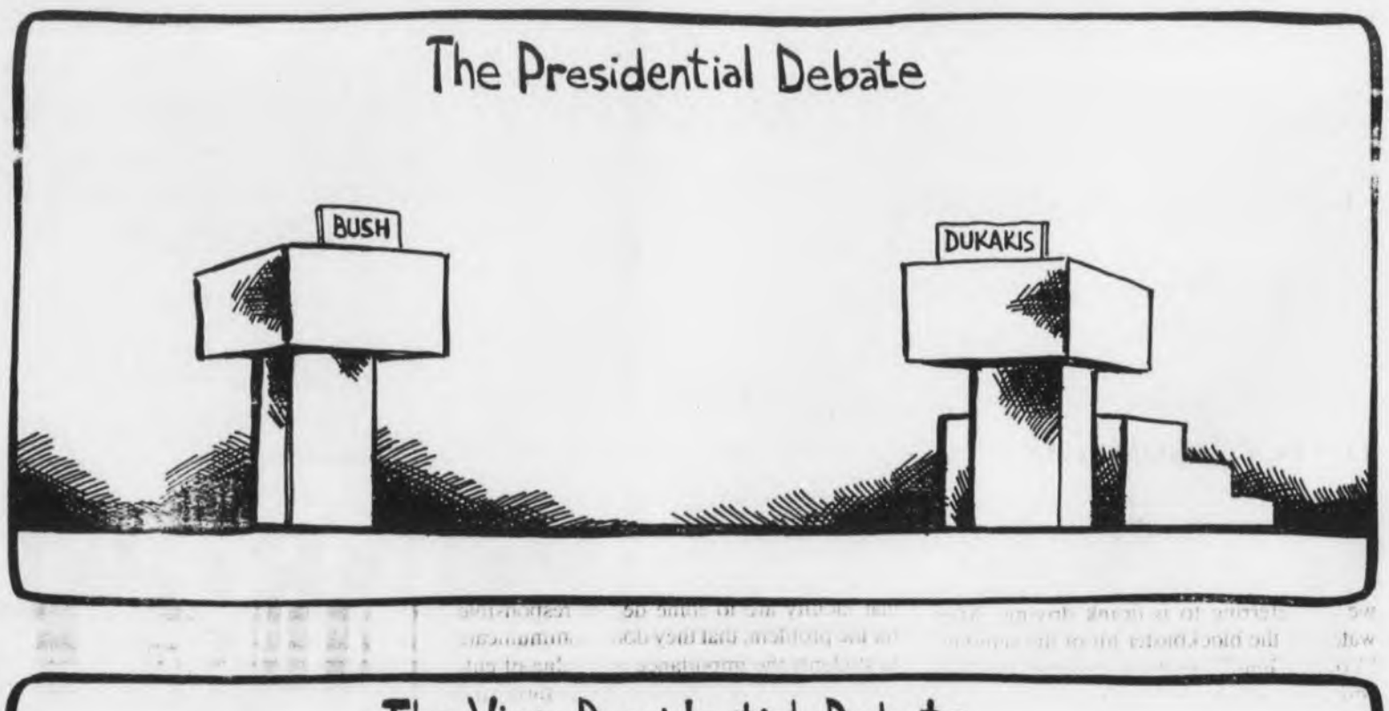
Nevertheless, I have formulated a hypothesis (and you have every right to disagree) which says present activities are weighted average of future retaliations in response to such activities. For example, say Dukakis will not be as soft on defense as he is projected to be. However, he will still be thought of in that manner, and consequently may have to face situations which Bush may not have had to face due to the tough-on-defense image projected by his predecessor. Then Dukakis will have to prove that he is tough on defense by making some important decisions in real-life crisis situations. Will he?

Unpaid student loans do harm to economy

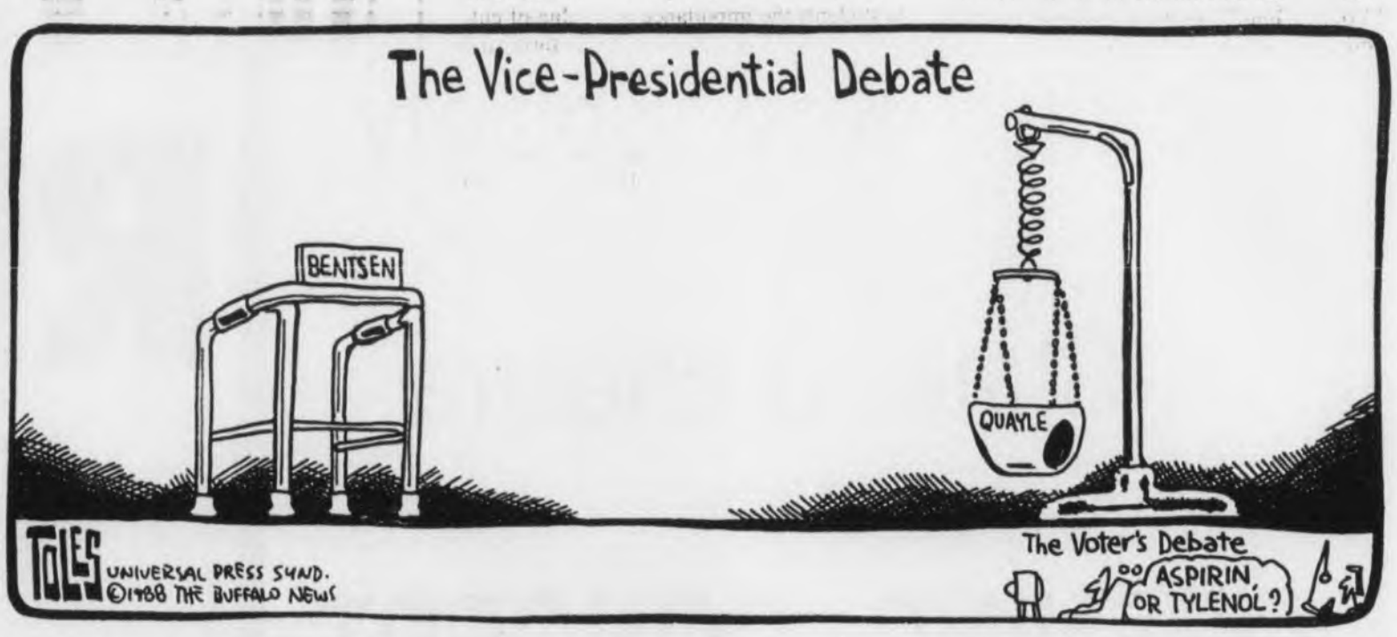
The federal government lost more than $1 billion last year on student loans it guaranteed to banks. Students did not pay back the loans, so the government picked up the cost.

This is a dangerous trend to future students and to the economy.

If the government continues to lose billions on the program, it will likely cut back the program to save money. Indeed, William Bennett, former secretary of education, had proposed cutting off Guaranteed Student Loans to universities where 20 percent or more of the students fail to repay. About 13 percent of K-State's GSLs are not repaid every year.



Sure, most graduates will not be altruistic, and repay the loans for the sake of future students. For them, they figure their unpaid GSLs are a drop in the huge deficit bucket of the federal government.



But they should think again. The GSLs not only pay for education, but they also pay for food, board, parties and whatever else students want to spend the money on. In short, the GSLs pump money into the economy, especially university economies.

The problem is not on what the students spend their loan money. Some say students misuse their GSLs when they spend them on "extras" like stereos, trips to Padre Island or beer. But this spending puts a lot of money into the economy. And although the benefit is indirect, spending money — no matter what it is on — helps the economy by increasing demand. No doubt, this is one of the rationales that drew support for the GSL program in the first place.

When loans are not repaid, it encourages the government to cut back the program. In the end, not only future students and the entire economy will be hurt.

Focusing efforts on how students spend their money is not good. The focus should be on how to get more students to pay back their loans, and that begins with increasing awareness.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

UNSIGNED EDITORIALS represent the consensus opinion of the Collegian's editorial board. Opinion columns do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian management, Student Publications, Inc. or the newspaper staff in general.

Identifying sex discrimination

Learn to remedy a chilly situation

Does K-State discriminate on the basis of sex?

The Chilly Campus Climate research report published by the Project on the Status and Education of Women says that women must overcome discriminations, such as the following, in order to succeed in college:

Admissions and Financial Aid — Women are treated differently on the basis of appearance, parenting and marital status (factors considered irrelevant for men).

Athletics — Support and budgets are biased toward men's events. Aggressive and competitive behavior is stereotyped as masculine behavior. Ridicule serves to discourage women's participation in coaching and in some sports.

Student Government and Leadership — Men are considered natural leaders. Women are required to have extra qualifications to compete. Once elected, women's credentials, abilities and skills are challenged more frequently than men's.

Faculty Behavior — Faculty exhibit subtle and not-so-subtle behavioral patterns projecting sexually biased attitudes. Women are patronized, ignored, overlooked or disparaged.

Classroom and Peer Behaviors — Men tend to monopolize classroom and instructors' resources, time and attention.

Lab and Field — The laboratory and field are considered male turf.

Internships — Discrimination occurs on the basis of sex in budgeting, mentoring, peer support and evaluations.

Reader Comment

NATIONAL ORGANIZATION OF WOMEN

Manhattan Chapter

Health Care — Insurance coverage and premiums are biased against women. Sexual assault survivors are blamed for the assault. Information on contraception or treatment of venereal disease is provided in a derisive or moralistic way.

Campus Safety — Threatening or harassing behavior is trivialized by faculty, staff or institutional policy. Institutions are unresponsive to gay students' concerns.

Suggestions for warming a chilly climate.

Talk about it. If it has happened to you, it probably has happened to other women. Discuss your experiences. Build alliance with other women through support groups and networks.

Let others know how you feel. Respond to sexist comments and jokes by pointedly ignoring the comment, staring, pretending to take the comment literally. When ignored or interrupted, a firm "may I finish" will draw attention to the rude treatment. If there is evidence that your progress has been evaluated based on your sex, claim your accomplishments. If another woman is treated unfairly, come to her defense.

Insist on language, examples and imagery that includes women and includes them on the same status level as men. Insist on learning techniques, curricula and institutional structures that satisfy both female and male developmental models. In our culture, hierarchical, competitive and autonomous structures tend to appeal to men. When you notice faculty, staff and peers making efforts to create an equitable learning climate, give them positive feedback.

Recognize your own sex-role socialized values, habits, nonverbal (body language) and verbal communication styles that keep you from developing your potential. Do you lack self-confidence? Do you belittle yourself? Do you take a submissive stance? Take control! Change these behaviors!

If you notice differential treatment, write down the specifics and pursue the matter with your peers, your instructor, K-State administrative personnel, the Affirmative Action Office, the Women's Resource Center or the Manhattan Chapter of the National Organization for Women. You are not alone. There are many people on your side. By working together we can create an equitable learning, teaching climate at K-State.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column was compiled by Wally Martin, graduate student in education; Sally Eckert, graduate student in chemistry; and Rene Meaker, graduate student in English on behalf of the Manhattan chapter of the National Organization of Women.

Opinion

Letters

Punt Svoboda

Editor,

David Svoboda missed the boat completely in his column on Monday with his vote of confidence for Stan Parrish. Stan Parrish even agrees he cannot effectively coach K-State anymore, evident by his lack of success the last 2½ seasons. The statement that Stan Parrish was too conservative in the second half of the Louisiana Tech game is incorrect. The breakdown was not caused by being too conservative, but by his inability to adjust to Louisiana Tech's scheme. Louisiana Tech adjusted to K-State's game plan, allowing it to come away with a victory.

As for the statement that Parrish has proven himself in the past at Marshall, a Division I-AA school, thus proving he can get the job of turning the program around, this does not equate. His short time as head coach at the previous school, and the reality that he has shown no signs whatsoever of improving K-State's football program, combine to predict the future of the Wildcats, which is more losing.

Parrish has brought in talented players who can win, but it is his calls and decisions which lead these young players. He is the head coach, who is in charge of the entire team, both offense and defense, making the final decisions which guide the team. I do praise Parrish for his accomplishments academically with the team, but football is competitive, and the team has to play that way and win an occasional game.

Proper leadership on the field is needed. The time has come for Stan Parrish to move on and Steve Miller to find a head coach who can bring respectability to the K-State football program.

Gary Jones graduate in regional and community planning

Bring back horses

Editor,

Amidst all the political and economic debate of this election year, we feel there is one issue that has gone unnoticed. The topic we are referring to is drunk driving. After watching the blockbuster hit of the summer, "Young Guns," we have decided the best course of action against drunk driving and other vehicle-related accidents is to replace all motorized vehicles with the vehicle that God has given us: the horse.

Under our new brave, economic plan, all motorized vehicles would be replaced by horses. Larger vehicles such as mini-vans, station wagons and big trucks would be replaced by two horses strapped together with duct tape. The family truckster would be replaced by four feed-injected stallions. Motorcycles and scooters would be replaced by small horses (colts), ponies or big dogs. Of course, Jon Wefald and Pat Bosco would need higher horses, but this could easily be engineered using four-hooved stilts. We feel that it is about time patriotic young Americans stop having their precious bodily fluids sucked from them in senseless head-on collisions with big trucks.

When comparing the risks against the advantages, one would be a fool not to agree with our plan. The ozone layer could be cleared up once and for all, and we would all think cleaner and breathe better. There would be no more auto accidents simply because horses aren't dumb enough to run into other horses, lightpoles, or small children on school crossing zones. Horses could be trained to stop at red lights, go on green lights and run the occassional yellow. Teen-agers would have a tough time killing themselves in a garage with a horse, feces could be used as lawn fertilizer and, when the horse gets old, it could be sold for glue and dog food.

Of course, there would be some problems. For example, the car wax industry would be sure to decline, air bags and seat belts would become obsolete and it would slightly affect the car industry. But people could easily be retrained to feed and groom horses instead of welding cars. Horses have been around a lot longer than we have. Little did the horse know when standing next to Tyrannosaurus Rex that he would play such an important part in history.

In conclusion, our solution may not be the answer to everyone's problems, but in these hard times under the Reagan administration, perhaps the horse could restore some of the feeling of the good old days. As we continue to explore space and inner space we should remember the horse is the most practical form of transportation. Remember the horse for your future and in your prayers.

Michael Unger
senior in architectural engineering and one other

Leave football alone

Editor,

John Kirkland's letter on Friday really offended me. His attempt at satire was in very poor taste and accomplished nothing good.

The paper is not the place to complain about how the football program is run. If people really wants to accomplish something, they can attend the games (or contribute to the KSU Athletic Department). John's "committee" could do a lot more good for the team by attending the games and supporting the team than by complaining in the paper.

Also, I know there are more than 13 people living in the basement of Goodnow Hall. I would resent it very much if my name was "signed" to a letter with which I didn't agree.

I am, and will continue to be, a "Stan Fan."

Mark Reams
senior in industrial engineering

Culture needed

Editor,

I was elated with Monday's editorial, "Students should attend more cultural events." Hooray for somebody! Two positive comments.

One, how many faculty encourage students to attend concerts, lectures, plays, films, discussions, etc.? How many faculty communicate to students the reasons the University devotes so much of its money, time and effort to cultural events? Is it possible that faculty are to some degree responsible for the problem, that they don't communicate to students the importance and value of cultural events? Could the faculty do more and do it better? (When was the last time a professor encouraged you to attend a cultural event?)

Two, could the Collegian help? The staff publication In-View publishes a helpful calendar for several weeks at a time. The Manhattan Mercury does the same on Sunday for the coming week. Could the Collegian do likewise? For example, the Department of Music has many worthwhile concerts and performances that don't get listed in the Collegian; therefore students don't attend beacuse of ignorance. Publicizing something a week or more in advance would help students plan their time and make attendance at cultural events more likely. My point: Don't just point out the problem; also be part of the solution.

Leo M. Schell
professor of education

Irrigation good

Editor,

This letter pertains to the newly installed irrigation systems on our campus. Paul Stangl obviously does not see the long-term benefits they provide. By spending $46,000 to add these systems, we can eliminate some of this nonsense of dragging hoses and sprinklers all over campus.

These irrigation systems will allow the watering to be done efficiently and also allow the grounds employees to perform other needed tasks to maintain the beauty and dignity of our campus landscape.

Money spent on irrigation allows savings in other areas of the grounds budget. I look at the overall benefits of these projects and congratulate K-State for taking pride in what we have. Keep up the good work.

J. Michael McClurg
senior in horticulture

Lack of concern often results in stereotyping

Commentary

RIZWAN MITHANI
Guest Columnist

Stereotyping is a bane of our society and it occurs in our day-to-day lives. Sometimes you are a victim of stereotyping and sometimes you stereotype other people.

Let me start with myself. I was a regular columnist last spring, and I sneaked in a few columns this semester. Some of you are saying to yourselves, "Oh, yeah! We had enough of you last semester." Well, quite a significant cross section of my acquaintances (as well as my special friend whose identity I still choose to keep anonymous) do not think so. About every third person I know has asked me if I am going to continue indulging in verbose pomposity (or pompous verbosity). Well, they did not actually use the phrase, as most of them do not happen to possess these words in their vocabulary.

The point I am trying to make is that I have been stereotyped as a columnist or a writer. This is actually good for my morale, which is a rare attribute of stereotyping. However, before last spring I was not stereotyped as a non-writer. The moral of the story is that one cannot be stereotyped as something one is not, but only as something one is. Does someone in the psychology department beg to differ?

Furthermore, an average person believes that if you write for the newspaper you must be a journalism major — this is an instance of generic stereotyping. It is hard for most people to imagine that I am a graduate student in computer science and that my basic qualifications are in chemical engineering.

Some of you are probably wondering why in the world I am telling you all this.

Well, I am trying to bring home some facts about how innocently stereotypes are created. Talking about personal experiences is an extremely good way of achieving this purpose.

One instance of stereotyping which comes to mind is that of Chinese students being bookworms and unsociable. I would like to assure any readers who believe this to be true that I know at least half a dozen who are not unsociable. And do not blame them for being bookworms — just imagine yourself trying to do graduate studies in China with little or no knowledge of Chinese.

Yet another stereotype is of black people. This stems from pre-conceived notions and prejudiced ideas. Sometimes I wonder how a nation like the United States — a "free country" — still brews racism. There are a lot of people who support racism indirectly by failing to be concerned about it and not voicing their views against it.

Often, people have been stereotyped as introverts or extroverts. This forces them into a groove, as most of them then try to live up to their stereotypes. This may be damaging to one's psychology or personality.

And what about young women who are stereotyped as being loose? I am sure it must be hard for them. Should society hold someone responsible for errors made in youth by stereotyping the person? No, I believe everybody should be given a second chance (or a third, as the case may be).

Finally, remember as you stereotype others, others are stereotyping you. It is fun to victimize others, but no fun to be a victim of the same game.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Rizwan Mithani is indeed a graduate student in computer science and an ex-Collegian columnist.

Student leaders survey released

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Student leaders at Big Eight Conference universities say involvement in politics and university affairs is important and believe their peers are more conservative than a few years ago, according to a survey by University of Kansas Chancellor Gene A. Budig.

Budig made public on Tuesday results of interviews conducted in August with student body presidents at the Universities of Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Nebraska and Colorado, as well as at K-State, Oklahoma State and Iowa State University.

Summarizing his findings, the chancellor said they showed student leaders are less cynical than some had assumed.

"Student leaders believe in the political process, whether the forum is national elections, the state legislature or student government," Budig wrote. "The majority also express trust in political leaders generally (and) ... believe in their own efficacy as well."

Budig's summation of the results was published in "The Green Sheet," the magazine of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges. The magazine was distributed this week.

Purpose of the survey was to sample opinions of student leaders at the eight universities on topics ranging from politics to campus issues.

Budig declined to identify the eight student leaders he questioned, saying he had promised them anonymity. However, he said they are the student body presidents for the current academic year at seven of the institutions, and a designated respondent from the University of Colorado, which has three student leaders.

"The tone of student leadership tends to be conservative or moderate, they note, and decidedly not liberal," Budig said. "Their belief in politics is sufficiently strong that all eight said they would consider a career there.

"A majority maintain that student voices are 'very important' or 'somewhat important' in the state legislative process of budget allocation to higher education."

Here are selected results from Budig's survey:

■ Half of the eight student body presidents said they think it is unlikely a black will be elected president within the next 10 years, with the other half having no opinion. None expects a woman to be elected president in the next decade. Several expressed the opinion that the vice presidential candidacy of Democrat Geraldine Ferraro in 1984 was detrimental to the cause of women in politics.

■ Five of the eight said they trust today's political leaders, which Budig called "a significant shift from a decade ago." Only one did not trust present leaders, and two were uncertain.

■ Six of the eight said it is important for them to be involved in trying to influence the legislative process to support university budgets in the 1989 sessions. Six of the eight also said students exert very important or somewhat important influence in the legislative process.

■ Five of the student body presidents said they would rate the political tendancies of campus politicians as "conservative," while three classified them as "moderate." Two said campus leaders are more conservative now than two years ago, while three said less conservative and one said more liberal. The other two thought they had not changed much.

■ Of campus issues, the student presidents rated the rising cost of education, concern over AIDS, racial tension and quality of academic programs among the most serious. Most said federal student aid programs should be expanded; they believe they should personally be involved in educational programs related to AIDS, and six of the eight said racial tension is a serious problem on their campuses.

■ Despite national attention focused on religious fundamentalism, four of the campus leaders said organized religion is not growing in importance on their campuses. Two said it is growing and two didn't have an opinion.

Children with AIDS given own day care

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. — State and federal officials on Tuesday dedicated the first Head Start day-care center in the nation for children with AIDS and said the program is expected to be a model for the rest of the country.

"Poor children with a terrible disease are a very easy constituency to forget," Gov. Thomas H. Kean said. "This center, with its Head Start background, will help children turn trouble into opportunity."

U.S. Health and Human Services Assistant Secretary Sydney J. Olson, who attended the ceremonies, said similar centers will open soon in Los Angeles, Boston, Baltimore and Alaska.

"We think this will be an exemplary project for other cities and counties," she said.

According to the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, New Jersey has the second-highest number of reported cases of children under 13 with AIDS, at 163. New York has the most — 364.

New Jersey has 5,130 reported AIDS cases, ranking it fifth in the nation behind New York, California, Florida and Texas, according to the CDC. There are a total of 74,447 cases nationwide, with 1,185 of them in children under 13.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is transmitted through the exchange of bodily fluids, most commonly during intimate sexual contact or the sharing of hypodermic needles.

Check Collegian Classifieds

MORTAR BOARD SCHOLARSHIP

—Junior or Senior Standing
—3.3 G.P.A.

Anyone interested in applying for the 1988-1989 Mortar Board Scholarship should pick up an application and information sheet in the Union Activities Center (3rd Floor).

DEADLINE: FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7

Before you order by mail:
•Check the company's reputation.
•Who pays for shipping.
•Check the return policy.
Keep for your records:
•A copy of your order with the mailing date.
•Cancelled check or money order receipt.

If you have problems—see the Consumer Relations Board SGS Office, Union Courtyard or call 532-7296.

Steve's Floral
302 Poyntz
Manhattan, Kansas
539-6227

$1 Roses
cash & carry while supplies last delivery and arranging extra
"We're here to please the customer & you"

Why roam all over town?
Manhattan Shoe Repair has

—Buckles
—Billfolds
—Hand Bags
—Belts
—Coin Purses

Spenco Arches—Insoles at discount prices
Leather Luster $7.89
Rubber Overshoes

21 years experience with fast service, quality work and drive-up convenience

Open 8-5:30 weekdays
Thursday til 8
Saturday 8-4:30
closed Sunday & Monday

So Make Tracks for
Manhattan Shoe Repair
401 Humboldt
Downtown
776-1193

Wash Palace
Shoe Drop Station
Candlewood

The Mutual of Omaha Companies have a future for you . . . in Computer Data Services

We have:
- The competitive market-based salaries you expect
- A selection of exceptional benefits
- A personal career path
- The job you want
- Respect for you
- The computer technology that puts us on the leading edge in our industry

If YOU have what it takes for a challenging career in data processing, talk with the Companies that have a real future for you.

Contact your Career Placement Office to schedule an interview.

Degrees:
Bachelors/Masters Computer Science
Bachelors Information Systems

On Campus Date:
October 7

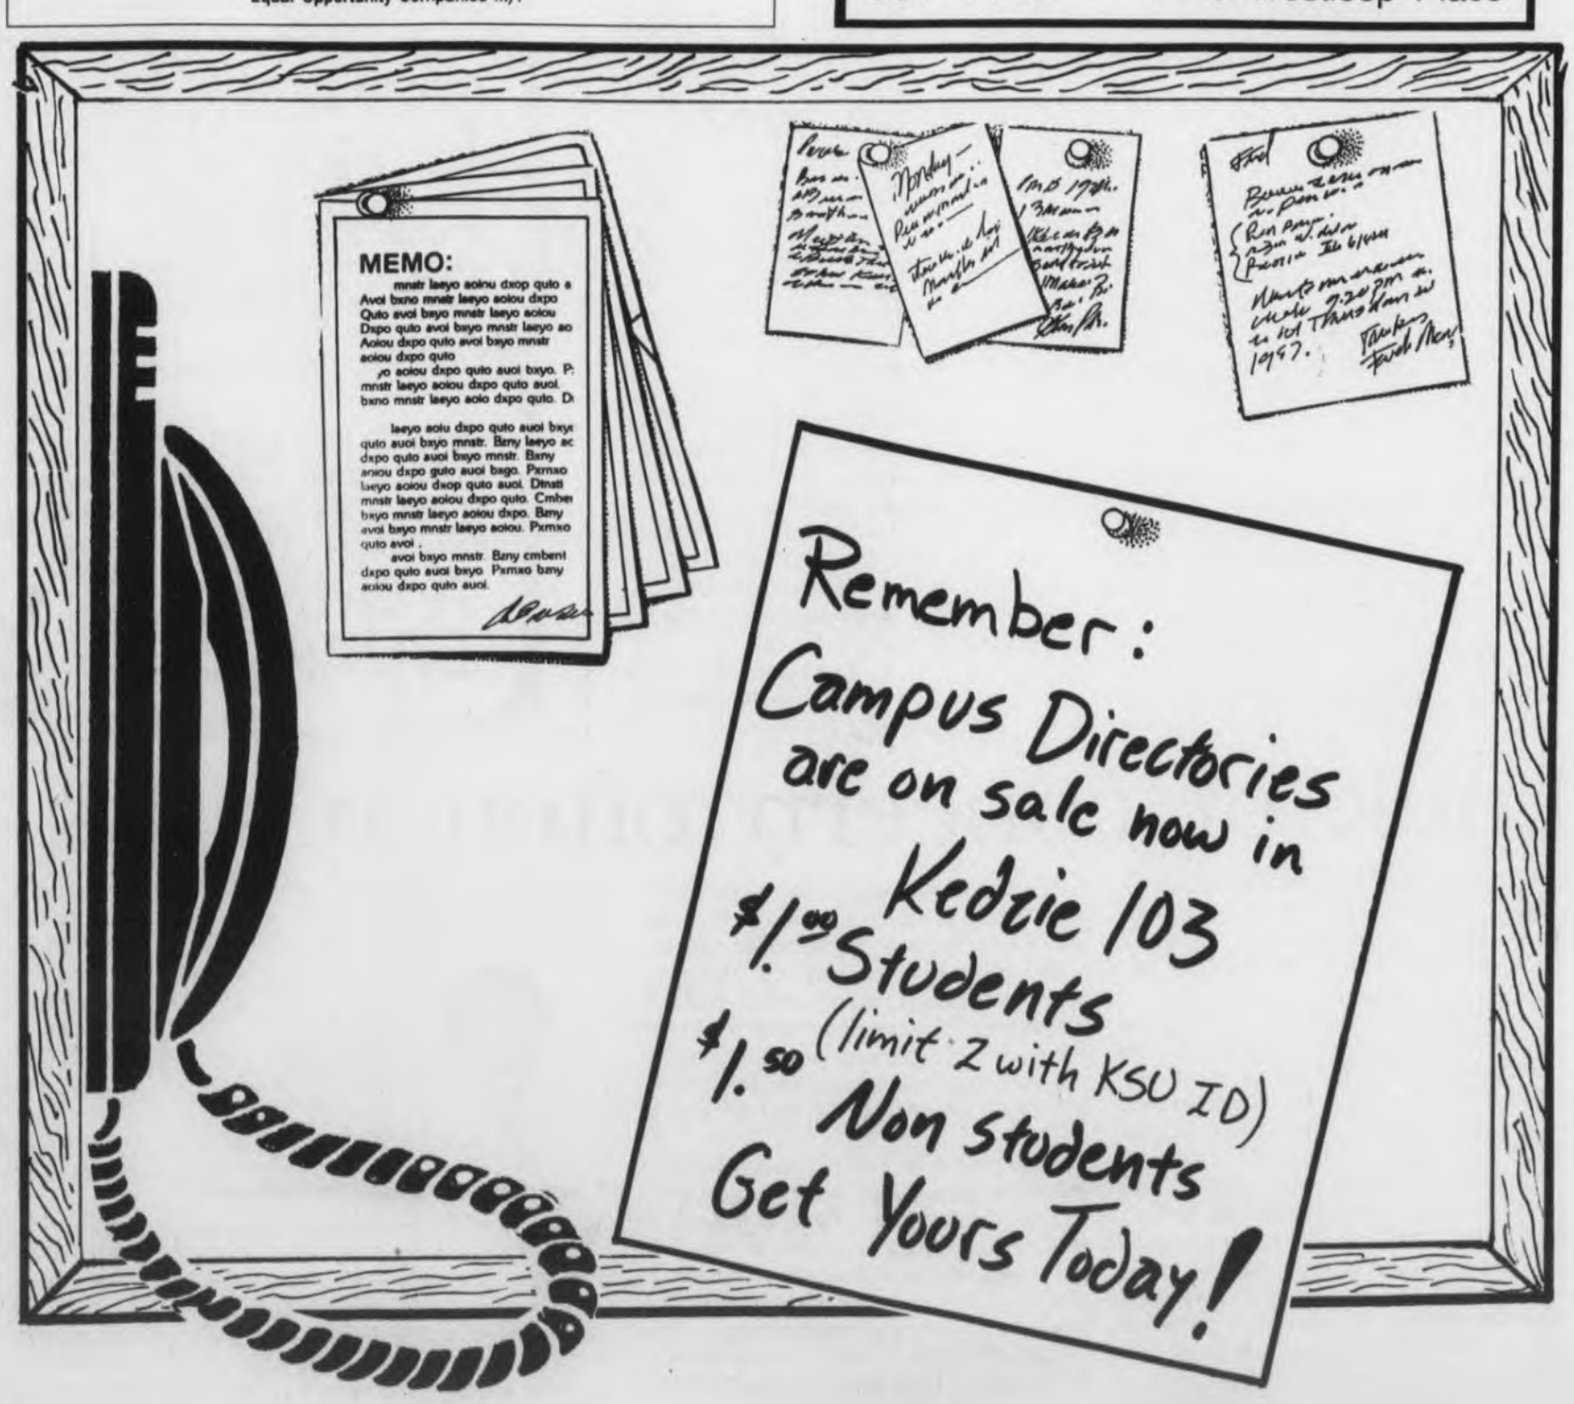
Mutual of Omaha Companies

Equal Opportunity Companies M/F

The Eyes Have It

. . . yours can too at our
Optical Dispensary

Drs. Price, Young, Odle, and Horsch
Optometrists
537-1118 1119 Westloop Place



BAND DAY 1988
Saturday, October 8

Greet your high school band and director from noon until 1:00 p.m. at the south end bleachers of KSU Stadium before the K-State vs. Missouri game.

Abilene
Almena Northern Valley
Andale
Andover
Atchison County
Baileyville
Blue Valley
Bonner Springs
Burrton
Cedar Vale
Central at Burden
Centralia
Centre at Lost Springs
Claflin
Conway Springs
Council Grove
Cunningham
Dighton
Douglass Frankfort
Goddard
Hanover
Hartford
Haviland
Herington
Hiawatha
Hillcrest
Inman
Iola
Jefferson County
Jewell
Junction City
Labette County
Lebo at Waverly
Linn
Little River
Manhattan
Mankato
Marysville
McPherson
Neodesha
North Central at Morrowville
Northern Heights at Allen
Onaga
Pomona
Pretty Prairie
Remington
Riley County
Rossville
Royal Valley at Hoyt
Sabetha
Seaman
South East at Cherokee
St. George
St. Marys
Stafford
Stockton
Tescott at Bennington
Udall
Valley Heights at Blue Rapids
Wakefield
Wamego
Wellington
Wetmore
White Rock
Wichita South

Sponsored by the Kansas State University Admissions Representatives

Course requires mock trading

By Matt Bunker
Collegian Reporter

Trading in commodities markets may mean financial risk for investors, but for students in one K-State class, something potentially more valuable is at stake — their grades.

Harvey Kiser, associate professor of agricultural economics, requires students in his grain marketing course to play a trading game that simulates trading commodities in the real world.

Kiser, who has taught the course since 1982, said students make mock orders to trade wheat, corn, soybeans and other commodities.

Students begin the semester with $15,000, and try to predict which way prices will go, Kiser said.

"(Students) try to make a profit from buying and selling," he said.

The game accounts for a portion of students' grades in the course. If a student makes more than $500, the student receives 10 extra points, he said. A student who loses more than $500 loses 10 points.

Eric Henry, senior in agricultural economics, took Grain Marketing in the fall of 1987.

Henry described the mock trading exercise as "a real good experience." The course encourages students to analyze the market and to become familiar with trading techniques.

Many students who take the course end up trading commodities after graduation, Henry said.

"A lot of students may go back to the farm and use it for hedging," he said.

Students can use either "fundamental analysis" or "technical analysis" to try to predict whether commodity prices will go up or down, Henry said.

Fundamental analysis is based on supply and demand, interest rates and other economic data, while technical analysis uses bar charts and moving averages to spot market trends, he said.

The trading exercise also helps students get comfortable with the personal ups and downs of trading, Henry said.

"You can't get emotional (trading commodities); you need to control your emotions.

"I trade in corn, soybeans and live hogs," Henry said, adding that he applies his experiences from the simulation to his own real-world commodities trading.

"(The game) was a very good experience. It gets a lot of people interested in this field," Henry said, adding that he came close to breaking even in the trading exercise.

Soviet runaway rail car kills 4

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Runaway rail cars filled with explosives crashed into a coal train in central Russia on Tuesday, causing an explosion that killed four people, injured 280 and left hundreds homeless, Soviet media said.

Reports said the accident blew a hole 30 feet deep and 180 feet wide in the ground.

The government newspaper Izvestia said the blast at 4:30 a.m. in a switching yard at Sverdlovsk sent a column of flames shooting into the sky over the city. Sverdlovsk is 850 miles east of Moscow.

The explosion caused tanks of oil and gas to catch fire and blanketed the city with smoke, Izvestia said.

Twelve dwellings were destroyed and 14 buildings were damaged, the newspaper said. It did not say how big the dwellings were, but it was likely they were apartment buildings, since Izvestia said hundreds of people were left homeless.

Izvestia said two workers died at the scene and two more people died later at a hospital. It reported that 87 people were hospitalized.

The official Tass news agency said 280 people sought medical help.

The accounts in the state-run media did not identify the explosives contained in two cars of the freight train. They said only that the explosives were for use in the domestic economy.

The press accounts said a dispatcher ordered the freight train to halt at the wrong location on a track leading into the railyard and that the cars became disconnected and started rolling away.

Izvestia quoted V. Matskevich, Sverdlovsk's chief railroad engineer, as saying the dispatcher's orders to the freight train were a gross violation of rules.

Media reports said a commission was formed to investigate the accident.

The blast at Sverdlovsk, a major industrial center in central Russia with a population of 1.2 million, was the latest in a series of serious rail accidents in the Soviet Union.

Amnesty International list longest ever

By The Associated Press

LONDON — Amnesty International on Wednesday accused a record 135 nations of human rights abuses ranging from the jailing of draft evaders in Western Europe to the massacre of unarmed civilians in Iraq and Sudan.

The international human rights group said the list of offenders in its annual survey was the longest it has published since its establishment in 1961.

Amnesty, which won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1977, recorded abuses last year in more than 80 percent of the 159 U.N. member states. But it said it was encouraged by the emergence of more than 1,000 human rights groups in recent years and the proliferation of laws to protect prisoners' rights.

"In at least half the countries of the world, people are locked away for speaking their minds, often after trials that are no more than a sham," the 278-page report said.

"In at least a third of the world's nations, men, women and even children are tortured. In scores of countries, governments pursue their goals by kidnapping and murdering their own citizens."

It added: "More than ever before in world history, governments are exposed to the glare of international publicity — the greatest weapon we have."

The report cited the United States, where 25 prisoners were put to death last year, for executing John Brogdon, a man diagnosed as mentally retarded, and Edward Earl Johnson, despite "substantial doubts" about his guilt. Amnesty opposes the death penalty.

In China, more than 200 convicted criminals were put to death, but that represented "only a fraction of the total number of death sentences and executions," it said.

The report said at least 760 political prisoners were executed in 39 countries in 1987 but estimated the number probably was much higher.

Riley County utility practices 'unfair'

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kan. — The Kansas Corporation Commission has ordered a Riley County water utility to appear before the commission to explain why the utility has been operating without KCC authority.

In a formal, written order issued late Monday, the KCC directed the Valleywood Improvement District and its owner, Richard Hill of Manhattan, to testify before the commission at a "show cause" hearing Nov. 28. The action is the result of a customer complaint.

The utility serves 120 customers in the Valleywood subdivision in Riley County, just north of Manhattan.

"The customers of the Valleywood Improvement District have been subjected to unfair, monopolistic business practices," the commission said in its order, citing "exorbitant late charges and surcharges."

Privately owned water utilities in Kansas must receive operating authority from the KCC.

SIGMA CHI PLEDGES
My, My, What do we have here?
A Congrats in the Collegian?
Taking 1st, we ran, limboed, and tossed the balloon. Our boys are top rate, now it's time to celebrate! Wednesday is the day to raise a lot of hay!!
See ya then,
Love the Chi-O coaches

HOME CINEMA
SELECTING YOUR MOVIES CAN BE ENJOYABLE WHEN YOU VISIT THE RELAXING ATMOSPHERE OF HOME CINEMA.
Easy viewing of title selection
Hours: Mon.-Thur. Noon-9 p.m. Fri. Noon-10 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m.-10 p.m., Sun. Noon-7 p.m.
Village Plaza Shopping Center
Behind Alco
537-1115

LEARN TO FLY!
Quality Flight Instruction At Inexpensive Rates.
Now offering an introductory flight which consists of ½ hour of hands-on flying. This is an informative flight which costs only $10. Flight time can be added to your logbook.
Flight instruction can be scheduled to meet your needs.
Capitol Airlines 539-7623

Forenza Cardigans
$19.90
Cotton—Rami Blend Cardigan Sweaters originally $47
Turtlenecks 5.90-8.90 originally $16
L'Express Socks 5 pair for $10

HARPER'S FASHIONS
539-6224
Sun. 1-5
331 Poyntz—Downtown

Two new ways to keep the scholastic edge:

Cliffs Notes on Greek Classics
Cliffs Notes on Roman Classics
Gain a greater understanding of the people, events, literary movements and influence of Greek and Roman civilizations.
Now available from:
k-state union bookstore
Get the Cliff's Edge! Cliffs NOTES
P.O. Box 80728, Lincoln, NE 68501-9932

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE
STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK
S A D D
WED. OCTOBER 5
7:00 P.M. UNION 203
EVERYONE WELCOME!
S.A.D.D. NEEDS YOU!

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!

Complete Eyeglasses
SINGLE VISION $24.95
BIFOCALS $34.95
Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Grey Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.
Payless Optical Outlet
1210 Moro, Manhattan
537-1574
M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.
MasterCard VISA

FIRST time in history of KSU
the Muslim Community Association presents:
"ISLAM ON FOCUS"
by Hamed Ghazali
In a series of lectures designed for non-Muslims.
When: Wed., Oct. 5th, 1988
Where: K-STATE UNION Big 8 rm.
Time: 7:30 p.m.
Refreshments are free

Simple test detects additional cancer

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A simple urine test has identified people with bladder cancer at an early, treatable stage and may be useful in other kinds of cancer, the National Cancer Institute announced Tuesday.

Existing tests to diagnose bladder cancer — involving removal of some tissue — pose some risk and are often painful. And they sometimes do not detect the cancer until it has spread and can no longer be cured, the cancer institute said.

One of the researchers who developed the urine test said it detects a protein associated with the spread of tumors. The test has also been used to detect kidney cancer, prostate cancer and a nerve-cell cancer called neuroblastoma, he said.

The protein "seems to be in all the cancers we have screened," said the researcher, Dr. Raouf Guirguis. Guirguis, Elliott Schiffmann and their colleagues report the findings on bladder cancer in the current issue of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Cancer will strike 985,000 Americans this year, according to the American Cancer Society. About 49 percent of cancer patients survive five years after diagnosis.

The cancer institute said that more than 49,000 Americans get bladder cancer each year and that about 10,000 die annually. The five-year survival rate is 77 percent.

Party affiliation not issue with Olsen

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

As a Democrat campaigning for a State Senate seat in a predominantly Republican state, Manhattan attorney Rod Olsen realizes he must appeal to two other groups of voters as well as members of his party.

"I do need Republican support and unaffiliated support," Olsen said.

Olsen, candidate for the 22nd district of the State Senate, which includes most of Geary and Riley counties, views the importance of

Staff/Chris Assaf
Rod Olsen

proclaiming his affiliation differently than his Republican opponent, Lana Oleen.

Oleen has stressed her membership in "the majority party" of the state in talking with voters.

"I think it's presumptuous to inject partisanism in the race. It seems to me a slap in the face to the voters who are more concerned about things other than party affiliation," Olsen said.

One brochure published by Olsen's campaign and used in door-to-door canvassing does not state Olsen's party affiliation.

Olsen said that when going door-to-door, he tells voters he is a Democrat and the brochure is only an informational piece about him, which voters can then use after he has talked with them to learn more about his background.

A circular is being mailed by Olsen's campaign which calls him "the Democratic candidate for the State Senate," Olsen said.

Voters look beyond candidates' party affiliations to examine their experience, Olsen said.

Among the issues Olsen believes important to residents of the area is the inclusion of Washburn University of Topeka in the regents system of state universities.

"I have come out early and clearly against the affiliation of Washburn with the regents system," Olsen said.

Adding Washburn to the seven regents institutions would diffuse the amount of money available for the schools in the system, he said.

"I don't think (adding Washburn to the regents system) makes sense from a higher education standpoint," Olsen said.

Olsen said Oleen has aligned herself with Gov. Mike Hayden, who made a promise to add Washburn to the regents system during the 1986 gubernatorial race.

Oleen herself does not support placing Washburn under the supervision of the Board of Regents.

"I saw (Hayden's Washburn promise) as a ploy by the Bunten-Hayden forces to save Shawnee County voters money and to benefit the governor politically," Olsen said.

Olsen was referring to Rep. Bill Bunten, R-Topeka, chairman of the Kansas House Appropriations Committee. During a Sept. 28 speech in Topeka, Bunten said a legislative strategy tying Washburn's admission to the regents system with community college financing and Hayden's support could place Washburn under the Board of Regents authority.

An additional method to improve state higher education is through funding of the second year of the Margin of Excellence proposal, Olsen said.

Olsen said the regents universities were underfunded compared to their peers in 1982 and 1983, and MOE will allow the universities to reach parity with their peers.

"We just haven't caught up from those bad times," he said.

Another important issue in the campaign, Olsen said, is the state income tax windfall from changes in the federal tax code. The windfall total, which consists of cash reserves being held by the state, is about $310 million.

"Windfall is an interesting political word," Olsen said. "The money comes from tax revenues, but it's referred to as a windfall."

By using the term "windfall," Olsen said, state Republican leaders are perpetuating the notion the money is not coming from taxpayers.

One use for the windfall is to pay for the second year of the MOE, Olsen said.

Recently, Olsen toured the Kansas Correctional Institution in Hutchinson.

"The conditions at Hutchinson are very, very overcrowded," he said.

Olsen said other forms of punishment should be studied before Kansas commits itself to building additional prisons.

Providing affordable health care at the state level is another issue which Olsen said must be faced by the Legislature when its next session begins in January 1989.

Pay telephone owners receive rate decrease

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Monthly service rates charged to customers who own pay telephones will decrease because of a formal order the Kansas Corporation Commission issued Tuesday.

The order, which finalizes a tentative Aug. 31 decision, revises guidelines the commission established in 1985 for the connection and operation of customer-owned pay phones. It was the first time the KCC allowed any person or business to purchase and install a pay telephone.

Under the order, those who have pay telephones installed will pay a monthly service charge equal to the local exchange company's standard business rate. Before the order, the KCC allowed charges of $30 a month.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s standard monthly rate varies from $13.80 and $28.35, while United Telephone Co.'s rates range from $9.33 to $12.78. Most of the customer-owned pay telephones are in areas served by these two companies.

Also, the commission said rates for in-state, long-distance calls cannot exceed by more than 4 percent the rates currently charged by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. for long-distance service.

Finally, the local exchange company will be able to charge the owner of a pay telephone 7 cents for each local call, unless a higher cost can be justified.

99¢ Nacho Bar
Load up all you want
2 fer 1 drinks and draws
Cotton Club

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

TACO HUT
ON THE HILL OVERLOOKING WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
Sanchos & Burritos 88¢ each
reg. $1.30
Taco Dinners $1.77
reg. $2.25
(2 tacos, refried beans, salad with picos)
(offer good Oct. 5—10)
Sun.—Thurs. 11 a.m.—11 p.m.
Fri.—Sat. 11 a.m.—12 a.m.
TACO HUT
2809 Claflin 539-2091

CONGRATULATIONS To The New Farmhouse Little Sister Pledges:

Gina Berrie	Amy Kokenge
Charisse Boley	Kelli Lyon
Cheryl Bowhey	Shawna Maechtlen
Melissa Cain	Jennifer McGraw
Mariangeli Clinteon	Sally Meyer
Stacy Davis	Lainie Miller
Wendy Droge	Karrie Parrock
Kathy Elliott	Jill Royer
Kandi Frankamp	Regina Satterfield
Shari Harter	Shelly Scoby
Kim Hildebrand	Katie Williams
Yuvette Kary	Marlene Wolf

KRYSTALLOS
"Beautiful objects from the earth."
NEW SHIPMENT
EARRINGS
JUST ARRIVED
1124 MORO AGGIEVILLE
11-8 M-S, 1-5 SUN. (913) 539-0360

McCain auditorium
Mark Peskanov, Violin
Rita Sloan, Piano
Friday, October 14, 8:00 p.m.

Warm playing, a fiery personality, and down-to-earth musical intelligence have earned Mark Peskanov praise from American audiences and critics since 1973, when he emigrated from the USSR. A Juilliard graduate, Mr. Peskanov has received an Avery Fisher Career Grant, the first Isaac Stern Award, and the first Frederick R. Mann Young Artist Award. Lawrence resident Rita Sloan is also a graduate of Juilliard, where she studied with the legendary Rosina Lhevinne. Join them for a program of masterworks by Mozart, Prokofiev, Brahms, and the Sarasate Carmen Fantasy.

"A violinist of sensitivity as well as formidable technique." --Cleveland Plain Dealer

General Public: $12
Senior Citizen: $10
Student / Child: $8
Orchestra seating only.

Charge tickets to Mastercard or VISA at 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5:00 p.m. weekdays.

Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and Manhattan Arts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at 537-4400.

Every pair of eyes is unique, too.
Fingerprints aren't the only human mark of distinction. Each pair of eyeprints is also biologically different from another. Because of this we care enough to ask what is important to you—and, we listen.

•Eyeglass Frames & Lens (ask about our limited warranty)
•Sports Vision Care
•Specialized Contact Lens Care
•Lens Available Same Day —Disposable Contact Lens (New!) —Extended Wear — Bifocals
•HMO & Insurance Accepted

Dr. Paul E. Bullock
Optometrist
776-9461
Toll Free: 1-800-432-0036
404 Humboldt—Manhattan
1 Blk. West of Town Center Mall
Extended Hours
Wednesday & Saturday

In the forefront of contact lens technology for over 20 years.

joli styling salon
"We make great looks a reality"
$3 off cut & style
$7 off perm
$2 off manicures
$1 off Hex tanning
Prices effective Oct. 5—Oct. 8 (no coupon required)
We feature HEX the hexagonal, air cooled, stand up system, for a fantastic tan.
Hex—The Ultimate Tanning Machine
1106 Laramie—Aggieville
539-1177
Walk-ins always welcome

PIZZA PALACE
NOW OPEN
Aggieville's Newest Business-1217 Moro
Best Quality-Less Expensive Pizza
K-STATERS WELCOME!!
ORIGINAL ITALIAN RECIPE
PIZZA PALACE
Italian Style
FREE DELIVERY
539-4400
LIMITED DELIVERY AREA
LIMITED TIME ONLY
Call us for Pizza, Lasagna, Spaghetti, Sandwiches & Salads
Pizza by the Slice
•1 slice w/1 topping & 1 16 oz. Coke $1.05
•2 slices w/1 topping & 1 16 oz. Coke $2.05

FIRST ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION
OCTOBER 3 - OCTOBER 7

Monday, Oct. 3
Sweater Celebration
• 35% OFF ALL SWEATERS
Tuesday, Oct. 4
Scarf Celebration
• 30% OFF NEW SCARVES
Wednesday, Oct. 5
Jewelry Celebration
• 25% OFF NEW JEWELRY
Thursday, Oct. 6
Watch Celebration
• 20% OFF NEW WATCHES
Friday, Oct. 7
Belt Celebration
• 20% OFF NEW BELTS
PLUS
• Drawing for free sweater and scarf.
• Free beverages and sweets all week.
• '88 accessorizing seminar Wednesday, 3:00pm.
• Modelling of newest '88 accessories all week.
BRING A FRIEND & JOIN IN THE CELEBRATION!!
Accessories Park ON THE
Mon.-Sat.: 10:00-6:00, Thur.: 10:00-8:30, Sun.: 1:00-5:00
708 North Manhattan Avenue, Aggieville, 537-0707

The Greenery RESTAURANT FOR LUNCH
Serving Everyday 11 a.m.—2 p.m.
Your Choice $2.65 + tax
6 OZ. PETITE SIRLOIN STEAK
8 OZ. CHOPPED BEEF STEAK
8 OZ. HAM STEAK
WHOLE CATFISH
¼ FRIED CHICKEN
TENDER BABY BEEF LIVER
CHICKEN FRIED STEAK
LASAGNA
SOUP AND SANDWICH
All entrees include rolls & butter,french fried potato!
Adjacent to the All Season's Motel
Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan
537-1488

Wrestling tourney showcases talent

By Tom Morris
Sports Editor

Hulk Hogan wasn't there. Andre the Giant wasn't there. Honky Tonk Man wasn't there. And Jimmy "the Mouth of the South" Hart wasn't at ringside spitting out obscenities, much to the disappointment of television wrestling fans.

But there is wrestling at K-State, at least for this week.

The intramural wrestling meet began Monday night at the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex — with more than 200 wrestlers from residence halls, fraternities and independent groups competing — and the meet won't end until Friday, some 189 matches later.

"I've seen a lot of state champions from years past."

—Larry Forsyth, intramural wrestler

Steve Martini, director of intramurals, said the wrestling meet is a "showcase" for many former high school wrestlers.

"Most of these kids wrestled in high school, and there aren't any major colleges in this state that they can go to (and wrestle), so this is a good chance for them to showcase their talents again," he said.

The meet is also unique in that a vast majority of the participants are seasoned veterans.

"Most of the kids here are knowledgeable about the sport," Martini said. "Some of the participants sign up and compete just to get points, which I'm not knocking, but you'd have to be crazy to get out there and wrestle against some of these guys if you don't know what is going on."

Steve Selock, freshman in fisheries and wildlife biology, agrees with Martini's assessment of the competition. After participating in three Kansas high school 6A state tournaments, and placing third his junior year, Selock lost by two points Tuesday night in the 158-pound independent class.

"There's people from all over the state here who have been state champions," Selock said.

Staff/John La Barge

Jeff Kroenlein, senior in business education, ties up legs with Bryce Cole, junior in psychology, in the 150-pound weight class. Kroenlein won the match, 6-0. The intramural wrestling meet began Monday night and will finish Friday night with the all-University finals.

Larry Forsyth, freshman in life sciences and a winner in the 168-pound fraternity division, said his bracket is difficult as well.

"It looks like the further along I go, the tougher it will get," he said. "I really never got to compete in the state tournaments because of a knee problem, but I've wrestled some pretty good people here. I've seen a lot of state champions from years past."

The wrestlers are competing in 10 divisions under high school rules, but NCAA weight guidelines are used, ranging from 118 pounds to heavyweight. In high school, weight classes start at 98 pounds.

"We have a hard enough time finding 118 pounders to compete as it is," Martini said.

As with most intramural competitions, points are awarded for the all-around intramural championship which will be determined in the spring. One point is given for competition, one for a loss, two for a decision or a win by forfeit and 2½ points for a fall. Each weight class winner will receive 10 points. Runners-up get five.

Divisional finals will take place Thursday night at the complex, and the all-University finals start at 6 p.m. Friday.

Mets slip by Dodgers

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Gary Carter's bloop double to center field with two outs in the ninth inning scored two runs and gave New York a dramatic 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Tuesday night and 1-0 lead in the National League playoffs.

The Mets had been shut out for eight innings by Dodger starter Orel Hershiser, who came into the game off a record streak of 59 consecutive scoreless innings.

Gregg Jefferies, who had three hits, led off the ninth with a single and moved to second when Keith Hernandez grounded to first. Darryl Strawberry doubled to right to score Jefferies.

Jay Howell relieved Hershiser and walked Kevin McReynolds. He struck out Howard Johnson and had two strikes on Carter. The Mets catcher then blooped a short fly to center that John Shelby, playing deep, failed to catch with a diving attempt.

The ball dribbled past Shelby a few feet and, with the runners moving on the play, McReynolds came all the way around from first and just beat Shelby's throw to the plate.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is scheduled Wednesday night at Dodger Stadium, starting at 10:05 EDT. The Mets will send David Cone, 20-3, against rookie Tim Belcher, 12-6.

Randy Myers pitched two innings in relief of Dwight Gooden to get the victory. Howell took the loss.

Gooden allowed only four hits and struck out 10 in seven innings of a game that more than lived up to its billing as a pitchers' duel.

Hershiser's regular-season streak broke the major league mark of 58 set by the Dodgers' Don Drysdale in 1968. It does not, however, officially carry into the postseason.

The last run Hershiser had allowed was in the fifth inning against Montreal on Aug. 30. The right-hander then pitched five straight shutouts and went 10 scoreless innings against San Diego on Sept. 28 to set the record.

Athletic director makes seventh trip to Olympics

By Chris Hays
Sports Writer

After taking part in six different Olympics as a coach, you would think that Athletic Director Steve Miller's recent trip to the 1988 Summer Games in Seoul, South Korea, would be the same old routine.

But his seventh Games turned out to be a completely different experience for the former executive director of the Pennsylvania Special Olympics.

"Seoul, South Korea, is a very foreign city in a very foreign country," Miller said. "And I mean that in a sense that all of the other Olympics I have been to were held in cities that are very much like any city in America, like Munich, Montreal and Rome. The only real difference is the language."

Miller said the Seoul Games were also different from many others in proximity. The venues for each of the competitions were spread out in different parts of the city.

"It didn't give the Games that sense of abundance of activity that you had with many other Games," Miller said. "I'm not so sure that being so spread out was the reason, but the Seoul Games also didn't have the usual crowds of Olympic Games. Many venues were half full or even less.

"I think that was mainly due to the way Western press spread so many innuendos that something bad was going to happen during the Games. But security was really tight, and mercifully so, because nothing did happen."

Miller was in Seoul with a group representing the U.S. Special Olympics. Along on the trip were 25 Special Olympians, who were the subjects of a story that Miller said is very indicative of the direction in which the Olympics are headed.

Here's the scenario.

During this summer's U.S. men's basketball tryouts and during the team's tour of the country playing various NBA all-star teams, Coach John Thompson sheltered his players from everything. They had rare publicity appearances, if any, and the press only had two opportunities to talk with the players, and those opportunities were limited to 45 minutes.

It was no different in Seoul. Miller wanted his 25 athletes to meet former K-State standout Mitch Richmond, so he went to the team's hotel.

"Mitch seemed a bit reluctant at first," Miller said, "but he did it and did it graciously. I think it was somewhat of a shock to Mitch, though. You could see that it was not the normal Mitch Richmond, and I attribute that to the condition under which the men's basketball program was run."

Miller took his group to a U.S. military base the next day where Kay Yow's U.S. women's basketball squad was practicing. The women's team was playing in the same facility that Thompson refused to use during the team's stay in Seoul.

"I asked Kay if she would mind if we talked to some of the players and have some pictures taken with them, and she whole-heartedly agreed," Miller said. "Everyone was immersed in the moment. Everyone was hugging and taking pictures — they were even playing some two-on-two games.

"Now this said a lot about Kay and the players — opening themselves up to these athletes — but what says the most is the fact that this very practice was preparing the team for the gold medal game the next day. To take 15 to 20 minutes out of a practice the day before the biggest game of the Olympics was truly special. And that is what the Games are supposed to be

■ See MILLER, Page 12

'Cat volleyball team tries to end streak

By The Collegian Staff

It was a trip to Lincoln, Neb., that ended the K-State volleyball team's season-opening, eight-match winning streak.

Perhaps a trip to Lincoln will spell the end of another streak for K-State — this one being a six-match losing streak.

The Wildcats, 8-6 overall and 0-1 in the Big Eight Conference, will meet the only school to win a Big Eight title. The Huskers have won all 12 of them.

However, even the nationally-ranked Cornhuskers are vulnerable. They were upset on Saturday by Oklahoma.

"I think we are on our way back," K-State Coach Scott Nelson said. "In our last couple of matches, and in practice, our intensity level is back where I think it should be. There for a couple of weeks we lost sight of the things we need to keep track of."

The meeting between the two schools is the second of the year, although it is the first in Big Eight action. Nebraska won 3-0 earlier in the Nebraska Invitational.

K-State dropped its only league match of the season, in five games to Iowa State Friday night in Ames.

The Wildcats will return home for the first time since Sept. 20, when they host Colorado Friday at Ahearn Field House, starting at 7:30 p.m.

In this week's national statistics, K-State is listed No. 17 in service aces with nearly three per game. Individually, outside hitter Lynda Harshbarger is 13th nationally with a game average of .85.

Another outside hitter, Mary Kinsey, is on the verge of setting the K-State career service ace record. She needs three aces for a total of 168. That number would break by one the record set last year by Kristi Jacquart.

Time, administration support necessary to make the Wildcats winners in football

Mid-Week Commentary

TOM PERRIN
Sports Columnist

Even before the "Can Stan" forces could start to gain momentum, K-State football coach Stan Parrish made their job a lot easier.

With Parrish's resignation Monday morning, the speculation about the third-year coach came to an abrupt end.

Many people were fed up with Parrish. Even though he says he'd handle things the same way again, Parrish created too much hype about the Wildcats' program in his first two years. Fan expectations were driven up so high that almost no matter what the outcome was, people would be disappointed.

Parrish made some tactical miscalculations over the years as well. The "Air Parrish" scheme of year one failed, due much in part to a shortage of players suited for such an attack. The ground game designed to feature tailback Tony Jordan last season accomplished little more than getting Jordan so beaten up that he couldn't practice the week before games.

But this year, the Wildcat offense was starting to show signs of life, particularly during the first half of Saturday's 31-28 loss to Louisiana Tech. The return of the passing game seemed to be working and quarterback Paul Watson looked like a Heisman Trophy candidate.

Then Parrish turned conservative in the second half. Louisiana Tech first caught up, then went ahead as the K-State sidelines appeared in disarray.

By the next day, Parrish had decided to resign and gave his players the choice whether that resignation would take effect immediately or at the close of the season.

Parrish said he didn't believe he was getting the support he deserved from administration, and his resignation was designed to remove pressure from K-State players and assistant coaches.

The big question: Was Parrish given a fair shake?

To a large extent, the answer is no.

Granted, Parrish made some mistakes, probably more than his share. But to expect great things from Parrish after only two years and four games is unfair. Building a major-college football program takes time — a lot more time than three years.

Five years is more like it. At least then, Parrish would field a team exclusively with players he recruited. His system would be firmly entrenched and he could be judged solely on his own merits.

Maybe Parrish wasn't making what you'd call satisfactory progress, and that should be justification to fire him. But then again, a strong argument could be made that Colorado coach Bill McCartney wasn't making satisfactory progress in his third year when the Buffaloes finished 1-10 and were even thrashed 38-6 by K-State.

The next year, 1986, Colorado finished 7-4 and played in a bowl game. This year, the Buffs are 4-0 and should go to their third bowl game in four years. Now, I'm not saying K-State is bowl bound next year or even in the next 10 years. Just that it takes time to see the results of a building program.

The K-State administration didn't appear to give Parrish that kind of time or commitment.

The intention of this column, though, isn't to make a martyr of Parrish. If Parrish had concentrated more on program building his first two years and less on hype and unrealistic promises, such as University of Iowa coach Hayden Fry did, maybe boosters and administrators wouldn't have been so down on him.

Hopefully, Parrish's three years will serve as a lesson both to the next Wildcat coach and to K-State administrators.

Only when a capable football coach with realistic expectations can take over the K-State job, and have the full support of the administration, will the program ever have a chance to succeed.

Lawmakers warned about self-insurance

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Lawmakers were warned Tuesday that Kansas might not save any money if the state provides its own insurance to employees instead of contracting with a private carrier.

"Self-insurance is not a solution," Dick Brock, administrative assistant in the Kansas Insurance Department, told a legislative panel.

"We become concerned when people rather flippantly suggest the state should self-insure and somewhat casually imply that self-insurance is an easy solution to all our problems," he said.

Brock told the Legislative Budget Committee that while the state providing its own insurance might ultimately be the best solution to the ever-rising cost of insurance for state employees, any decision must be proceeded by additional study.

State officials are considering having the state provide its own insurance to employees after premiums were increased by Blue Cross and Blue Shield for the second year in a row.

Brock said auditors from the state Insurance Department show the costs being passed on to the state by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kansas, which provides coverage for state workers, are not out of line.

"The costs are there," he said.

"I share the skepticism of others that self-insurance really saves money," said Art Griggs, attorney for the Department of Administration, which handles the state's insurance program.

He said the state could end up incurring the losses that Blue Cross and Blue Shield officials complain about, rather than saving money.

"It's an option we need to keep considering," he told the committee, adding that he was not prepared to make a recommendation on the self-insurance proposal.

Rep. Bill Bunten, R-Topeka, committee vice chairman, said the state might be offering too much coverage to state workers.

"There's no limit on the number of doctors' visits they can have," he said.

Group deals with new housing issue

By Alan Wilds
Collegian Reporter

An organization designed to look at housing problems in the Manhattan area, Home Programs Inc., met recently with students and landlords in an attempt to improve neighborhood living conditions.

Home Programs Inc. or Homeboard, formed in 1984 by the City of Manhattan and University for Man, was originally designed to help the elderly, handicapped and low-income tenants to stay in their homes. The group later realized other issues needed to be dealt with, such as student housing, said Ron Zerrer, Homeboard director.

"We are taking a look at some of the errors that landlords make and ways that tenants can deal with them," Zerrer said.

Homeboard sponsored a student workshop Sept. 26 and a landord workshop on Thursday to discuss housing problems from both viewpoints.

The information gained at the workshops will be taken to a public forum from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 15 at the First United Methodist Church.

The forum is designed to evaluate the issues that are making the housing situation a problem. Zerrer said he believes the group has a healthy mix of opinions to work with from other sources in addition to the two workshops.

"(Homeboard) has met with many neighborhood associations to get as many points of view as possible," Zerrer said.

Zerrer said he considered the student workshop very productive.

"We definitely had some of K-State's best at the workshop. It was the most fantastic dialogue that I have been around," he said.

Some of the problems addressed by students included parking regulations on neighborhood streets, uncontrolled intersections and substandard housing, Zerrer said.

"Many students do not know what a safe house is and they tend to assume that landlords do," he said.

The students also had questions on security deposits that are returned late, incomplete or never returned.

"Many students are unsure of their security deposit policy," Zerrer said. The deposits are supposed to cover any damage to the house other than normal wear and tear. This uncertainty often results in excess charges subtracted from the deposit.

Positive aspects of off-campus housing were also discussed, such as housing near campus, quiet neighborhoods, affordable rent and freedom to choose roommates. Although there are problems, Zerrer said he believes good landlords do exist in the area.

Landlords and property managers attended a similar workshop Thursday. The purpose of the workshop was to evaluate the positives and negatives of housing from the landlords' perspectives, as well as how to turn the negatives into positives, said Stormy Kennedy, president of Homeboard.

The workshop focused on landlord and tenant relationships from the landlord's point of view, said Tim Trubey, vice president of McCullough Development Inc.

The landlords involved wanted to work with tenants in any way possible, Trubey said. However, the rising cost of property ownership and maintenance has caused some problems with landlord/tenant laws.

"Landlord/tenant laws are, in many cases, more favorable to the tenant than the landlord," he said. The damage that occurs to property often exceeds the amount of the security deposit.

"The result (of damage) is financial loss to the landlord," Trubey said, adding that the cost of repairs is rising, plus some tenants don't sufficiently maintain the property.

Trubey said he would like a basis of understanding between landlords and tenants because he believes many of their goals are the same.

"It is always good for the people involved in (housing situations) to get together and share ideas," Trubey said.

Zerrer and Kennedy encouraged people to attend the public forum and agreed that interest in the housing situation should not end there.

"I see the forum as just a small beginning," Kennedy said.

Mayor Dave Fiser will give welcoming remarks at the forum, followed by state Speaker Joe Knopp, and Rev. Stone King, who will speak on Manhattan utility assistance programs, Kennedy said.

Don Oden, an energy analyst from Topeka, will discuss weatherization programs. Monty Wedel, Riley County planner, will focus on housing policy at the county level. Reports will be presented by the following city departments: planning, code, personnel, public housing and human resources, Kennedy said.

Social issues as they relate to housing will be discussed by officials such as Kathy Rankin from the Manhattan Emergency Shelter.

A soup and pie luncheon will be provided by the shelter from noon to 1 p.m. with $5 donations requested.

The forum will be open to public comment from 2:50 p.m. to 3:15 p.m.

Come
SHAKE YOUR THANG
Wed., Oct. 5 Noon-1 p.m.
Union Court Yard
Saturday Oct. 8
Union Catskeller
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
Ladies in free 9-10:30 p.m.
--Just a little message to let you know we wanna party!--
The Jam the Box Crew
DB92
KSDB 91.9

WINTER PARK
COLORADO
$179* from
JANUARY 2-7 • LODGING • LIFTS • PARTY • MORE!
Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS 1989
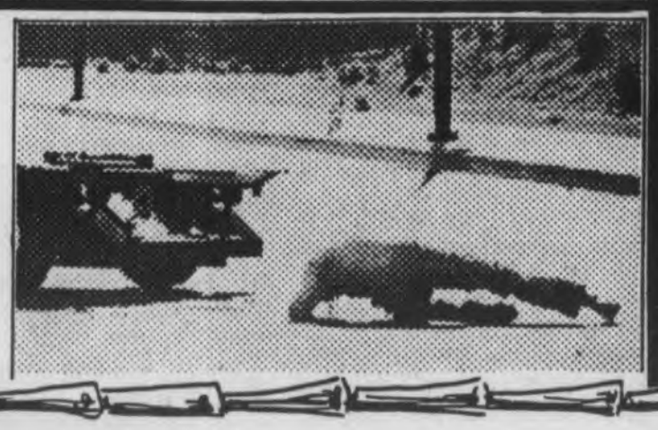
WINTER PARK WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Fully equipped condominium lodging for 6 days/5 nights • Full 4 day lift ticket good for all Winter Park Resort mountains with additional days available at reduced rates • Poolside Welcome Party with complimentary beverages • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/base shuttle service • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.
TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: VAIL/BEAVER CREEK, KEYSTONE AND STEAMBOAT
sunchase tours

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment NOW!
Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10
Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You
8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

THE UPC ADVENTURE
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE



"ENTHRALLING. ACTING ON THE GRAND SCALE." —Richard Schickel, TIME MAGAZINE
JEAN de FLORETTE
YVES MONTAND GERARD DEPARDIEU DANIEL AUTEUIL
A FILM BY CLAUDE BERRI
ORION CLASSICS
k-state union upc kaleidoscope
The exquisite film adaptation of Marcel Pagnol's beloved novel about shattered dreams among Provencal peasant farmers in the 1920s. Breathtaking cimenatography and extraordinary cast augment the poignant story. (In French with English subtitles.)
Today, 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall
Tomorrow, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall $1.75, KSU I.D. Required, Rated PG.

January 2-7,1989

$263
BRECKENRIDGE
Christmas Break SkiTrip
SKI
Trip Includes
• 5 nights lodging at Pine Ridge Condominiums in Breckenridge, Colorado with fireplaces, washer & dryer, telephone, tv and sauna
• Hot tub and heated swimming pool
• 4 days Breckenridge lift tickets
• 4 days equipment rental
• Pre-party
• On-site 'Nuts and Bolts' Party
• His or hers gift pack--filled with free samples of top quality products
• On-site trip sponsor
• Schedule of activities—where, when, and what is happening.
Sign-Up Begins
• Wednesday 5 October 8am-4pm Activities Center 3rd floor of Union
• Limited space available
Don't take any chances with your ski trip. Travel with the best! UPC Travel.
k-state union upc travel

For more information on the location, times, and prices of Union movies, please call the K-State Union's 24—hour movieline at 532-6570.

Michael Keaton is BEETLEJUICE
The Name In Laughter From The Hereafter
k-state union upc feature films
Friday, Oct. 7 & Saturday, Oct. 8
7 & 9:30 p.m., Forum Hall
*ADDITIONAL SHOWING: Sunday, Oct. 9 4 p.m., Forum Hall
All shows $1.75, KSU I.D. Required, Rated PG—13.

DEATH RACE 2000
Friday, Oct. 7 & Saturday, Oct. 8
12 MIDNIGHT, Forum Hall
$1.75, KSU I.D. Required, Rated R.
k-state union upc kaleidoscope

WEDNESDAY NOON LIVE

TODAY Phil Canty, a DJ of KSDB—FM will play "Jam the Box" Dance Music. Come enjoy the music and dance!
Noon—1 p.m., K-State Union Courtyard.
k-state union upc eclectic entertainment

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:3 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion national origin, sex or ancestry.

Have story or photo ideas? CALL 532-6556

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

GET YOUR Scrub Shirts only $10. Westloop Medical Supply, 1231 Westloop.

HAIR SHACK, 415 N. Third, 776-7421. Fall Specials: Perms $20- $25 with cut/ set. Sculptured nails $25, call Mona. Style/ cut/ blowdry $9. Monday- Saturday 8a.m.- 5p.m. We're unique.

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

IF TRAINS interest you- prototype or model- call Pat Lenahan at 532-3375. Considering formation of club.

MILITARY CUTS, $7. Open Monday, 1- 7p.m. Now Hairstyling, 110 N. Third. 776-7808.

PARTY!? Need a DJ? Optimum Output! is the answer. Large system, professional equipment, lowest prices. Chris, 532-3361.

PENTECOSTAL CONQUERERS Bible Club. Every Wednesday 7p.m., Union 202. Bring your Bible, join us. 537-4441.

PROBLEMS, LONELINESS, depression, sex, drugs, alcohol. You talk, we listen. Call FONE Crisis Center, 537-0999.

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

WHAT IS the highest grade Jethro Bodine completed? If you know the answer to this question, call Domino's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order, 539-0561.

FREE CATALOG
of Government Books
Send for your copy today!
Free Catalog
Box 37000
Washington DC 20013-7000

HOUSTON STREET BALLROOM
Wedding Receptions
Dances, Parties
539-1234

1 Announcements

ANTIQUE OAK furniture for sale. Parlor table (claw and ball foot), Victrola, china cabinet, rockers. 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

FIRST TIME in the history of KSU the Muslim Community Association presents, "Islam on Focus" by Hamed Ghazali on Wednesday, Oct. 5 at 7:30p.m. in K-State Big-8. Free refreshments.

Lana Oleen
REPUBLICAN • KANSAS SENATE
1631 Fairchild Avenue, Manhattan, KS 66502

We Deliver
Mon.-Sat. 5-12
Sunday 2-10
The Fresh Alternative
SUBWAY Sandwiches & Salads
539-9391
620 N. Manhattan•Aggieville

Jazzercise
For class information and location call 776-4877

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

ROOM AND board for female/ married couple in Junction City in return for occasional shopping/ errands. Call collect, (816)885-2830.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

EXCEPTIONALLY CLEAN one-bedroom, walk-in closet, dining/ living room, kitchen and bath in a six-plex. $265. Phone 537-7087.

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

QUIET, WELL-MAINTAINED one-bedroom apartment close to KSU for lease to non-smoking adult. Laundry, parking, paid heat and air conditioning and more. $240. No waterbeds, pets. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1939 FORD three-quarter ton pickup. Body in very good condition, runs perfect, new tires, tag. Call before 8a.m., (913)457-3440.

1980 MERCURY Capri, 69,000 miles. 539-5834.

1982 DATSUN 280Z fully equipped, five-speed, t-top. 537-9351.

NEEDS FIXING, 1978 Monza. Best offer, 537-8906.

7 Child Care

INFANT AND child care in my home, Cico Park area. 537-9351.

8 Computers

AMIGA 1000 with expanded memory, extra 5¼ and 3½ inch drives, IBM transformer, lots of software. Call 776-9539 or 1-485-2703 after 5p.m. or weekends.

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

EXCITING CONCEPT! Casino-style table operators. Salary plus weekly bonus, plus tips. Exciting, fun positions available at the Hat Creek Company Saloon. Need attractive, dependable and professionally minded individuals to work part-time evenings. High income potential and flexible schedules. No experience necessary, training provided. Coeds, don't be bashful. Sounds interesting? Applications taken and interviews held by Casino Concepts personnel on Saturday, Oct. 8th from noon- 4p.m. at the Hat Creek Company Saloon, 215 E. Eighth, Junction City, Kansas. If further information is necessary, call Casino Concepts, 1-800-843-2030. If not, see you on Saturday.

FOOD SERVERS, full-time morning shift. University Club, 17th and Anderson.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, and juniors: Get paid to train in the summer to become Marine Corps officers after graduation. Aviation and financial aid available. Call collect, 1-841-1821.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART- OR FULL-TIME experienced help wanted. Must work at least half-days plus Saturdays. Master Lawn and Landscape. Call 539-2842 between 12 and 2p.m.

PAY DAY! Beginning salary $3.60/hour. All shifts for waiter and waitresses; Mexican Tuesday and Thursday 10:30-2:00; hotline server, Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10:30-1:15 and 10:20-2:00; cashier Monday through Friday 8:00-1:30 and Monday through Friday 1:30-4:00; sandwich Monday through Friday 6:00-10:30; ice cream Monday through Friday 10:30-1:30; office assistant, hours will vary. Apply now at the K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. Food Handler's Card a must.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

STUDENT WITH experience in stripping and refinishing furniture needed to strip and refinish four pieces of antique furniture. Reply c/o Collegian Box 8.

VALENTINO'S: now hiring for driver, pizza table and dishroom positions. Please apply in person at 3019 Anderson.

VISTA DRIVE-IN is now taking applications for part- and full-time help. Must be able to work some noon shifts. Apply in person.

WANTED TO hire part-time help on commercial hog, cattle and crop farm. If interested, call (913)457-3440 before 8a.m.

WORKERS FOR costume shop in Aggieville. Fun job putting together costumes display work and sales. Shop will be open Oct. 15- Nov. 2. Apply in person at 608 N. 12th Street, Monday through Friday between 2 and 5p.m. Ask for Betty.

Harvest Inn Motel & Torchlight Lounge
Immediate openings for night-time positions:
—desk clerks —cocktail waitresses
—night auditers —doormen
—bartenders
Apply in person at 1001 E. 6th St.
Junction City, KS

AVIATION CADET PROGRAM
Do you want to fly? Pilot training, ages 19-24 with 60 semester hours for our naval aviation cadet program. Must be a U.S. citizen and physically qualified with a 2.5 plus G.P.A. Call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: CASIO Scientific calculator. To claim, call 539-8687.

FOUND: NECKLACE near Union. To identify and claim, call 532-6321.

FOUND: ONE kitten, orange color, University Inn parking lot. Call 539-6355.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

1982 CSR Kawasaki, Baldwin organ. 539-7210.

1988 WEDDING dress, veil, size 8-9. $300. 539-4188 or 776-1774.

ALPINE CAR five-band equalizer, separate power amp and digital time delay. $110 or best offer, Chris 532-3361.

BAR, DRAFTING chair, dinette, bed, couch, desk, swivel desk chair, chest of drawers, misc. 776-9705.

POPCORN, WHITE Grade "A" 50-pound bags for just $15. Call Troy at 537-6886.

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

10-SPEED BICYCLE, in great shape. Call Seth after 4p.m., 539-9292.

1983 INTERCEPTOR 750. Looks brand new, runs great. Vance and Hines exhaust. $1,600. 539-8086, Kerry.

1985 700 Nighthawk S, black and blue. 6,000 miles. Phone 532-5279.

1986 YAMAHA Fazer FZX700S, Black/ 'Passion' Red/ Chrome, low miles, showroom condition, two helmets, best offer. 532-3420.

FOR SALE: 19¼ -inch Centurion LeMans RB, like new, ridden 20 miles with solar cateye. 1-485-2488.

17 Musical Instruments

CERWIN- VEGA Bass guitar cabinet with Sunn 18" speaker. Wheels, handles. $125. 539-2401.

FENDER DELUXE reverb amplifier, electric guitar and small practice amplifier. Old but good! 537-0927.

KRAMER GUITAR, metallic blue, Floyd Rose Tremolo. Make me an offer. 539-9309.

Hayes House of Music
D. O. D. Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

18 Personals

BUNS- FESS up- Why the Royal Purple Passion Pad makes you such a Wildcat. Cookie.

BURRHEAD, HOPE you like your warm Fuzzy! Luv, your little sis.

DUDETTS: THEY thought you were nuns and innocent because you partied like a child. But throughout the week you evolved into banshees- drinking, dancing and wild. Remember initiation night? You dressed sharp, showered and shaved. All week long you raged with the Dudes while your sisters pomped and behaved. Homecoming week is over it really was a blast, our friendships and our memories are always gonna last. "TCFS the Dudes."

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

IA SOLAR Morans- OK Gang, remember, "To the Greatest Extent," the Library is your best Fwiend. By Guys!

JAMES H.- Happy 21st Birthday. Watch out for the "Stamp" man. Love, Kim.

JEN, HAPPY 21st Birthday! Sure wish it was my turn! Get ready to party the night away! Your pal, Suz.

JULES- DROP MM, go dark hair! Boink 'em hard! -Not Bubba.

PI PHI Karin: Bueno, donuts, beer, fire alarm, tie dye, toilet seat, paint, rock my world. Thanks for a great Homecoming! -D*DH*H.

TO THE girl that dinged my car door late Monday night at Suds yr Duds, could I meet you sometime? Kevin.

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

FREE- TWO adorable tabby kittens. Looking for a new home. Both litter trained. 776-0678.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

FOR RENT: Big-screen TV. $49.95 per day, extended rates available. Call 776-8309.

22 Resume/Typing Services

AVOID DISASTER. Hire an expert. Resumes designed to your profession. Typeset, laserprinted. Graphics Plus, 607 N. 11th, Aggieville, 539-6027.

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will type papers, theses and dissertations, letters, etc. at reasonable rates. 776-5907.

FOR ALL word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY will do typing. Call Ruth 537-2211, evenings 539-8768.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

WORD PROCESSING: Hire a professional for your papers, dissertations and manuscripts. Scharmann Word Processing 539-3221.

RESUMES•LETTERS•PAPERS
Professionally typeset; letter quality printer
CLAFLIN BOOKS & COPIES
Corner Denison & Claflin
776-3771

Résumé Service
Resumes — Cover Letters
Data Sheets
343 Colorado
Call 537-7294
9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. $150 plus one-half utilities. In complex one block from campus. Call 537-2955.

NON-SMOKING ROOMMATE. Opportunity for serious student. $150.00 plus share utilities. 776-9083.

NON-SMOKING FEMALE to share two-bedroom furnished apartment with Christian female. $152.99 plus one-half utilities. 539-9564.

ROOMMATE TO share nice large furnished three-bedroom, two-bath apartment house with washer/ dryer. Rent $120. Call 776-4984 after 5:30p.m.

TWO ROOMMATES wanted, own rooms, next to Aggieville, one block from campus. $130. Call 537-2854 or 539-4641, both after 5p.m.

24 Situation Wanted

NEED AN odd job done? Something repaired? Can fix most anything. Call Frank, 776-0447.

RIDE NEEDED during weekdays from Junction City to Manhattan. Work hours are 7a.m. to 4p.m. Call 1-238-5298.

25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment

EARLY CHRISTMAS! 69-inch Connelly Team 1 Slalom with bag and tournament fin. Plate bindings available. 14¼ x 21 SST prop for Johnson V-6. Best offer. 539-7439, ask for Rodger.

28 Adoption

HAPPILY MARRIED couple desires to adopt baby into loving family. We love children and will provide a stable, fun, and enriching life full of love for a baby in a pleasant California community. Please call Nancy and John collect at (818)241-4397 at your convenience.

HAPPILY MARRIED California couple, with lots of love and security, wish to adopt a white baby up to age two. All expenses paid. Totally legal. Please call Jeanie collect. (213)278-6161. Thank you.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

30 Little Apple Auction

LITTLE APPLE Auction. When- every Wednesday, 6p.m. Consign your items early, first come first served. We sell furniture, jewelry, tools, appliances, glassware, antiques and much more. Come out and see. Where- 1217 East Marlatt Ave., east of Colonial Gardens, Tuttle Creek Road corner. Information, call 776-5222 anytime. Honesty is your gain, selling is our game. Auctioneers Bobby Pugh, Jr., Fred Nelson and Wilmer Allen.

Legal Notice

(Published in the Kansas State Collegian)
October 5, 1988

STATEMENT OF OWNERSHIP MANAGEMENT AND CIRCULATION OF THE KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN. (Required by 39 U.S.C. 3685)

Date of Filing: October 5, 1988.

Title of Publication: Kansas State Collegian.

Frequency of Issue: Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions.

Location of Headquarters or General Business Offices of the Publishers: Room 103, Kedzie Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Publisher: Student Publications, Inc., Kedzie Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas. Director, David L. Adams, Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Editor: Chad Sanborn, Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Managing Editor: Lori Siegrist, Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Owner: Student Publications, Inc., Kedzie Hall, K.S.U., Manhattan, Kansas 66506.

Extent and Nature of circulation:

Average No. copies each issue during preceding 12 months, total number copies printed, 12,793; paid circulation, sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales, 12,224; mail subscriptions, 495; total paid circulation, 12,719; free distribution by mail, carrier or other means, 29; copies distributed to news agents but not sold, none; total distribution, 12,748; office use, left-over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing, 45; total, 12,793.

Actual number of copies of single issue published nearest to filing date: total number copies printed, 14,295; paid circulation, sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales, 13,695; mail subscriptions, 520; total paid circulation, 14,215; free distribution by mail, carrier or other means, 30; copies distributed to news agents but not sold, none; total distribution, 14,245; office use, left-over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing, 50; total, 14,295.

David L. Adams
Director

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

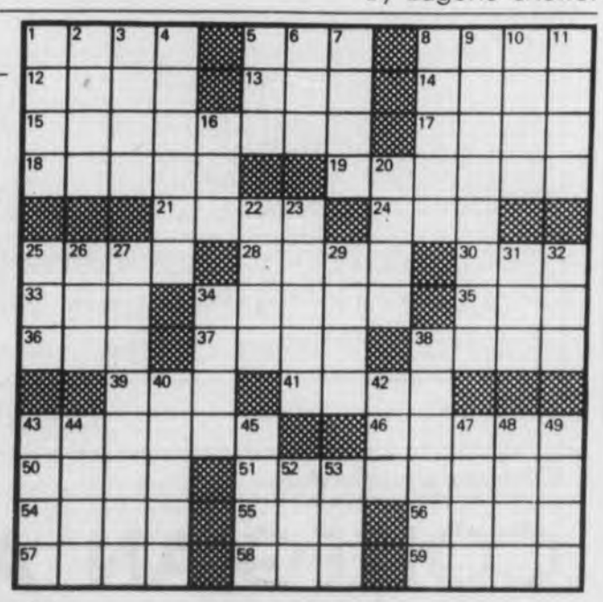
By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Gift to the poor
5 Pilot's record
8 Babylonian storm god
12 Profound
13 Ram's mate
14 Surfer's need
15 Cultivated desert tree
17 It might be smashed
18 Sphere of conflict
19 Tranquil
21 Unit of force
24 — canto (singing style)
25 Black and White
28 Bedouin
30 Young demon
33 It inspired Keats
34 Mine entrances
35 Teacher's org.
36 Door follower
37 Track event
38 Car mar
39 Common street name
41 Hebrew lyre
43 Perseus slew her
46 Doctor's right hand
50 Buck heroine
51 Modern 54 Pro —
55 New: comb. form
56 Liquid measure
57 Unique thing
58 Endeavor
59 Adam's grandson

DOWN
1 Egyptian skink
2 Norman of TV
3 Apportion
4 Goes on a shopping spree
5 Actress Thompson
6 Pussycat's partner?
7 Rubies and emeralds
8 Cognizant
9 Reporter's postmark?
10 The Bard's river
11 Attica township
16 "Crime doesn't —
20 Recedes
22 Nothing, in Madrid
23 Author Jong
25 Total
26 Special time
27 Come before
29 Sweet, pulpy fruit
31 Sorority topic?
32 Sajak of TV
34 " — and the Man"
38 Slave
40 Of the moon
42 Yoko —
43 Philippine Moslem
44 Dash
45 Ethel, to Caroline
47 Weather word
48 French town
49 Congers
52 Ending for pep
53 One type of soldier?

Solution time: 24 mins.

R	A	I	D		B	I	G		R	A	N	T
A	N	N	E		R	O	I		O	L	I	O
W	I	N	G	D	I	N	G		M	E	L	T
			R	I	G		G	R	A	C	E	S
S	W	E	E	P		G	L	E	N
L	A	D	E		M	A	I	N	S	T	A	Y
A	D	E		S	O	U	N	D		R	I	A
P	I	N	G	P	O	N	G		T	E	R	M
			L	I	N	T		B	I	K	E	S
M	A	T	I	N	S		S	E	C
A	B	E	D		H	O	N	G	K	O	N	G
R	U	L	E		O	R	A		E	P	E	E
S	T	A	R		T	O	P		T	A	E	L

Yesterday's answer 10-5

10-5

CRYPTOQUIP

I M H X Z I N K K O N D A Z B X N P O R I R H D R D L S H B N A M H B P X K R D Z L H I N Y R A Y H P I H S R I.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: OUR EXASPERATED RODENT-CONTROL EXPERT CALLED OUT: "RATS!"

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals C

Lafene

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

to $8,114, he said. Medical commodities have already increased over last year anywhere from 5 percent to 12 or 15 percent.

If conditions do not change, Tout said, charges to the individual student for the remaining services might, within five or six years, approach what hospitals and physicians are charging outside the University.

"The entire cost will have to be picked up by (the students) or the (after-hours) service will have to be closed," he said.

Tout compared K-State to the University of Kansas, where all students — both full-time and part-time — pay a student health fee. Full-time KU students pay $68 per semester and part-time students pay about $9.70 per hour per semester, which means part-time students may pay a maximum of about $58.30.

All summer students at KU are required to pay a $40 health fee. This fee doesn't allow the student anything but use of the student service.

At K-State, a part-time student is required to pay $20 per visit for the first three visits and nothing afterward. During the summer here, that number ranges from $4 to $24.

Despite the 6,000 to 7,000 difference in enrollment numbers of the two universities, the number of students at each university who use the services is comparable, Tout said.

"If I had my 'druthers, I would assess fees to all students entering the University and increase the summer health fee," Tout said. "Then I would increase the full-time student health fee, if (Student Senate) doesn't allow any change in the summer fee.

"The real decision will have to be made by the students."

Miller

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

about.

"A young person deserves to experience the full environment of the Olympic Games and that's something that the men's program was desperately missing."

Miller said nationalism is a problem with the Olympic Games because it is overemphasized.

"Some say that's great, but I think the format is very negative," he said. "Something needs to be done to circumvent this flavor of nationalism and if not, that will be the only reason for the loss of the Olympic Games. It would be hard to think of a world without an Olympic Games.

"It's hard for a person to describe an Olympic Games to another individual, and TV and radio are just not good mediums to capture the full atmosphere," he added.

"I'm continually flabbergasted by the level of ability of the athletes. It just stirs my blood. The head-to-head competition between such great athletes is a thing of beauty."

Address

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

the acquisition of grants and contracts, and exploring ways the college can add to the affirmitive action activities of the University.

"We have benefited from liberal educations that include both the breadth of multifaceted experience and the depth of advanced inquiry," he said.

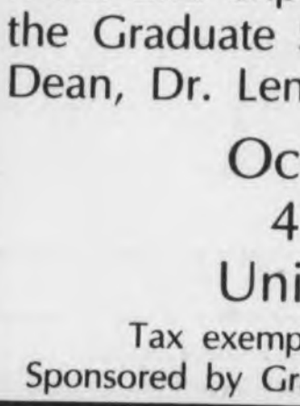
Protesters expand formula boycott

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The people who engineered a seven-year boycott against the Nestle company to fight the promotion of infant formula in Third World nations called on Tuesday for a renewal of the protest on an even larger scale.

Douglas A. Johnson, chairman of Action for Corporate Accountability, called for a resumption of the boycott at a news conference, arguing that Nestle has failed to live up to the agreements it signed in 1984 that ended the original action.

This time, said Johnson, the group is expanding the boycott to American Home Products, which it said is the second largest distributor of infant formula in developing nations.



While urging an across-the-board boycott of the two companies' products, protest leaders are asking their followers to focus on two products from each company: Nestle's Taster's Choice Instant Coffee and Carnation Coffee-mate Non-Diary Creamer, and American Home Products' Anacin and Advil .

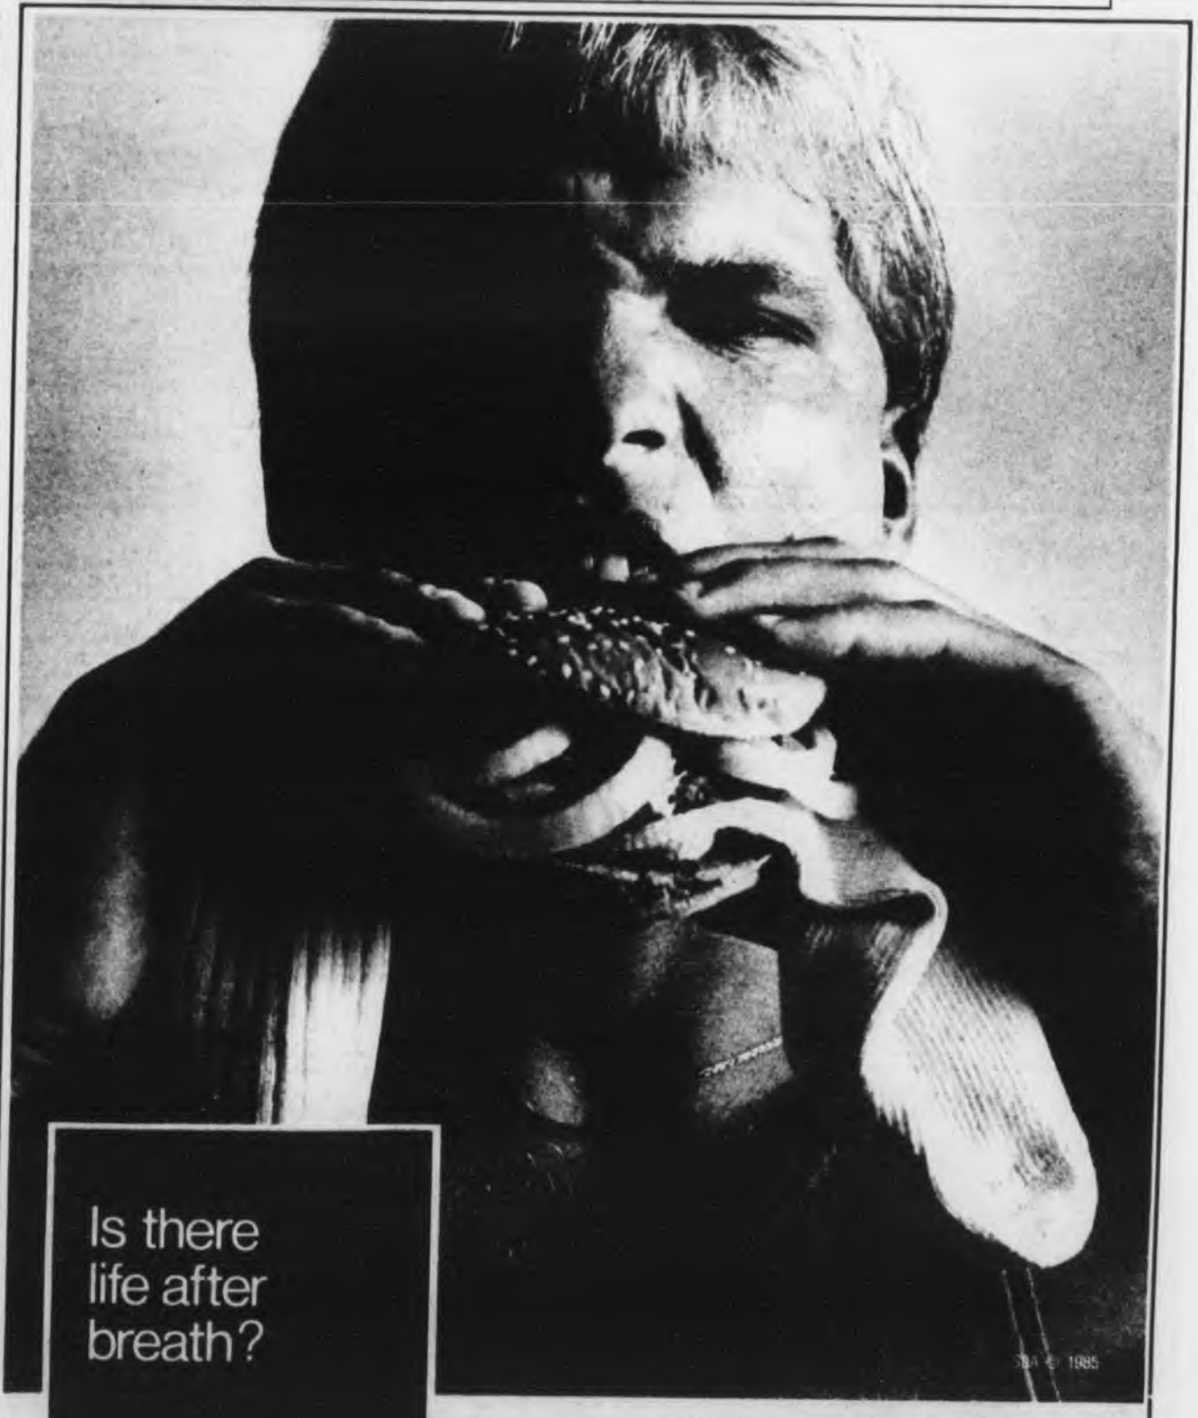
Get Personal
in Collegian Classifieds

Disposable Lenses
available at
Dr. Price, Young, Odle, & Horsch
OPTOMETRISTS
537-1118 1119 Westloop Place

Tonight only!
Bacon-Cheeseburger
1/2 Fries & Coke
The Chef
$2.49

Manhattan Milling Co.
K-31 Fescue $45/50# or $1/lb.
Weed & Feed $6.50/20# or $12/40#
Fertilizers 34-0-0 $6/50#
13-13-13 $6.30/50#
10-30-5 $7.30/50#
Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

Memorial Hospital Auxiliary's
Arts and Crafts Fair
Friday, Oct. 7—12 a.m.-8 p.m.
Saturday, Oct. 8—10 a.m.-4 p.m.
Come see the more than 100 exibits at
Cico Park
Pottorf & Casement Halls



KSU GRAIN SCIENCE CLUB
FLOUR SALE
Wednesday 1-4 p.m.
Shellenberger 220
•White Flour •Whole Wheat Flour
•Rye Flour •Pancake Mix

GRADUATE STUDENTS
Meet and express your views to the Graduate School's Assistant Dean, Dr. Leniel Harbers.
October 5
4 p.m.
Union 207
Tax exempt forms available
Sponsored by Graduate Student Council

Get The EXTRA ADvantage

"The Collegian has consistently reached both the faculty and the students. We feel it's a good value for our advertising dollar." — Max Conde with
Kansas State
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
reaching over 18,000 people daily
"your key to the campus"
101 Kedzie 532-6560

Dog Training

Charles L. Kramer, professor in the Division of Biology, leads an effort to gain national recognition for agility dog training. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly cloudy and cool today with a 20 percent chance for light rain; high 50 to 55. Cloudy tonight with the low in low 40s. Cloudy and warmer Friday with the high in the mid-60s.

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

raiser for the K-State Rowing Association. The association expects to raise about $3,000. See Page 9.

Thursday
October 6, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 33

Kansas State
Collegian

Experience key in fiery debate

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — In a debate described as one in which "no hostages are taken," Democratic vice presidential nominee Sen. Lloyd Bentsen stunned Republican rival Sen. Dan Quayle Wednesday night when Bentsen said, "Senator, you're no Jack Kennedy."

Bentsen was responding to an answer Quayle gave explaining his qualifications to succeed Republican presidential nominee Vice President George Bush as president if the pair win the Nov. 8 election and Bush were to become incapacitated.

In that answer, Quayle pointed out that when former President John F. Kennedy sought the Democratic vice presidential nomination in 1956, he had as much experience in Congress as Quayle currently has.

Quayle went further and said, "I have as much experience as Jack Kennedy did when he sought the presidency."

Bentsen was then asked to respond to Quayle's answer by debate moderator Judy Woodruff of the Public Broadcasting System.

"I served with Jack Kennedy," Bentsen said. "I knew Jack Kennedy. I worked with Jack Kennedy. Senator, you're no Jack Kennedy."

Bentsen's statement drew applause from his supporters in the about 2,000-member audience at the Omaha City Auditorium.

After the applause ended, Quayle said, "That was really uncalled for, Senator."

Bentsen then told Quayle, "You're the one drawing the comparison, and it was not well-taken."

Quayle's answer came in response to a question from Tom Brokaw, debate panelist and NBC anchorman, asking Quayle to explain his qualifications to assume the presidency.

Quayle was asked four times to demonstrate his qualifications by describing the actions he would take immediately after he assumed the presidency.

In his first answer, Quayle said he would say a prayer for himself and for the country. After that, Quayle said he would meet with the cabinet.

In a later answer, Quayle said he would he would be prepared to direct the cabinet and the key advisers to the president, because he would have been working with them on a day-to-day basis.

"If that situation arises, yes, I will be prepared to lead this country forward," Quayle said.

Before answering the questions, the 41-year-old Quayle said the underlying premise of such a question was his qualifications to be vice president and to be president if the need arose.

In response to Quayle's answers, the 67-year-old Bentsen often said the real question was about "maturity of judgment and breadth of experience."

Throughout the debate, which was bare-fisted from the moment Quayle responded to the first question from the four-member panel, Quayle sought to portray Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis as an extreme liberal out of touch with the mainstream of American voters and closely allied with East Coast intellectuals. In one answer to a question about the farm crisis, Quayle said the Massachusetts governor had suggested Midwestern farmers plant Belgian endive, instead of corn or soybeans.

■ See DEBATE, Page 12

Frat chat

Staff/Joe Freeman

TOP: Charles Graber, senior in engineering technology, has a friendly conversation Wednesday afternoon with Amy C. Piper, a resident at the Meadowlark Hills Health Care Center. Graber is a member of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, which will be making public service visits periodically to talk with residents of the center. RIGHT: Dustin Melton, sophomore in management, spends the afternoon conversing with a group of ladies at the center during the fraternity's visit Wednesday.

Groups preparing athletic fee proposals

By Becky Ives
Staff Writer

With student elections about a month away, the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics, the Senate Finance Committee and some student senators are anxiously composing an athletic fee proposal.

Bernie Giefer, graduate student senator and graduate student in chemistry, said the proposal is being hurried in order to get student feedback before the proposal becomes part of the student referendum in the November elections.

The athletic department's proposal is expected to be a revision of the athletic fee proposal made in 1986. The 1986 proposal called for a $7.50 increase in fees for non-revenue sports, but was voted down by the student body. The new athletic fee proposal differs in that it asks for $12.50 and that it will be used for both revenue — basketball and football — and non-revenue sports.

The money would go directly to the athletic department's budget.

"The money will be distributed and divided among the sports, but the formula for distribution is yet to be determined," said Steve Miller, athletic director.

Some of the money would be used to fund additional scholarships, he said. The National Collegiate Athletic Association allows each sport a limited number of scholarships, but the non-revenue sports at K-State do not have enough money to provide all of the scholarships they are allotted.

Troy Lubbers, student body president and junior in pre-professional business administration, said the athletic department is looking for support from the student body.

"There is definitely a need for more money in the athletic department," Lubbers said. "We should be doing our part to support athletics, but there does need to be some sort of control over the money."

He said one way to control the use of the money would be to have a trial period for two or three years and then evaluate the success of the fee. If the Student Senate then decided the fee was not used properly, it would be discontinued.

"This money would give us a better chance to have a successful athletic program," Miller said. "The key issue is that we have got to take care of non-revenue sports, but we have also got to make a commitment to football and basketball."

Miller will be meeting with a committee this week to discuss how the money from an athletic fee would be allocated.

The athletic department will then present a proposal to the Student Senate Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee is also looking into the possibility of proposing an athletic fee.

"Right now, we are trying to get the budgets of the athletic department to help us decide whether we want a fee or not, and if so, how it would be spent," said Mark Burns, committee chairman and senior in marketing. "If we see there is a need for a fee, we will come up with our own proposal and then take it to the Senate."

Burns said the committee is eager to get student feedback on a proposed athletic fee. If a $12.50 fee is passed, it could raise about $400,000 a year.

Giefer made an informal presentation on the athletic fee proposal at the Senate meeting Sept. 22. The plan asked for a $12.50 increase in student fees for all students in the fall and spring semesters. Benefits to students in the proposal are as follows:

■ Eighty percent of the fee will go to the athletic department, and 20 percent will go to sports clubs.

■ Student season football tickets, which will be

■ See FEE, Page 12

Tents return to Ahearn; tickets on sale Oct. 14

By Steve Walker
Staff Writer

One more try.

K-Staters began the familiar trek to Ahearn Field House with tents and sleeping bags in hand as phase two of the traditional campout for season basketball tickets began Wednesday morning shortly after the raising of the purple flag at Anderson Hall.

Tents were set up as early as 10 a.m. Before the day was over, more than 40 tents went up so campers could hold places in line for season tickets.

Phase one began when students ready to fight the weather and sleepless nights set up camp Sept. 12, more than a month before the Oct. 14 ticket sale date.

The tents came down about a week later when the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee said it was too early to begin camping. Members of the committee were worried about damaged grounds and students skipping classes, said Brian Shank, freshman in pre-professional business administration and member of the Bob Uecker Club, the first group in line.

Therefore, they came up with a plan to get the students off campus grounds and maintain their place in line at the same time.

"(Students) got to keep their positions in line," Shank said. "They told us back then to wait for a purple flag to go up on the flag pole in front of Anderson and to take that as the sign to set back up."

Groups who were already on the list did not have to sign in until 9 p.m. Wednesday night. No one from the earlier list lost a place in line.

Each camper can buy 20 tickets. The Athletic Ticket Sales Committee can conduct a roll call of the campers at any time to make sure they have enough people repre-

■ See TICKETS, Page 12

Campus hit by thefts

Loss totals near $9,000

By Kevin Kramer
Collegian Reporter

The problem of limited access to personal computers in student labs just got worse with the theft of three personal computers from Fairchild Hall and one computer from the football office, a loss totaling more than $9,000.

Three Zenith computers and keyboards, one Zenith monitor and one Okidata printer were stolen from the computing lab in Fairchild 212, between 10 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday, said Richard Herrman, investigator for the K-State Police.

"There were people in the lab until 9:30 Tuesday night," said Virgil Wallentine, head of the Department of Computing and Information Sciences.

"We found the room unlocked when we came in this morning," he said. "The room was supposed to be locked and checked by the University police at 10 p.m."

When the lab was checked, the cable that tied the equipment together was found cut and the computers were gone, he said.

Security officers checked and secured the building around midnight, Herrman said. Certain doors are listed to be left unlocked as requested by the department head. The lab is on the list to be open between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m.

"Whoever stole the machines cannot use them," Wallentine said. "The hardware on the computers is modified to work only on our network."

The worst part about the loss is there will be three less computers for the students to use, he said.

The department will have to make another lab unavailable for student use in order to give exams that are normally given in Fairchild 212, Wallentine said.

"The department has no money to replace the computers that were stolen," he said. "But Dean (Thomas) Isenhour is working to find the money to replace the computers."

The University carries no insurance on the equipment, Wallentine said. The value of the computers and equipment stolen was about $5,000.

"The department is going to ■ See THEFT, Page 12

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Chile to have open elections

SANTIAGO, Chile — Military President Augusto Pinochet lost a referendum that would have allowed him to stay in power until 1997, Air Force Commander General Fernando Matthei said early today.

The defeat sets the stage for open elections next year.

"It seem to me that the 'no' (vote) has won," said the general, a member of the law-making military junta, as he entered the downtown government palace at 1 a.m. for an emergency meeting with Pinochet, the four-man junta and the 15-member Cabinet.

"We are calm. We are going to analyze the situation," Matthei added.

The opposition claimed victory.

The turnout was massive and peaceful, but as vote-counting proceeded, Pinochet hinted to reporters of possible street violence and police and army units began to patrol the streets in large numbers.

A parallel count by a 16-party opposition coalition on returns from 44.9 percent of all voting tables reporting tallied to 57.8 percent of the vote saying "no" to continuing Pinochet's presidency to 39.9 percent saying "yes." The opposition challenged the government to compare returns.

In Interior Ministry returns from 676 of the 22,248 voting tables nationwide, "yes" votes totaled 95,668, or 51.3 percent, and "no" votes totaled 86,746, or 46.5 percent, with 2,024 blank votes and 2,066 votes voided for being wrongly marked.

Andrew, Fergie visit school

BRISBANE, Australia — Children at a school for the mentally and physically handicapped burst into tears when told the Duchess of York was coming to visit Wednesday.

"They thought she was coming to take them away. ... We had a real crying match on our hands," said a teacher at Mount Gravatt West Special School.

But when they appeared, the duke and duchess, better known as Prince Andrew and the former Sarah Ferguson, won the hearts of the 60 children age 3 to 18.

The two sat on the floor with five severely disabled children and later joined in a rousing cricket match on the lawn.

The couple are in Australia to officiate at the country's bicentennial celebration.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

New contraceptive possible

NEW YORK — An experimental contraceptive vaccine has blocked fertility without fail in female and male guinea pigs, researchers report, raising prospects that a similar approach might one day work for women and men.

The vaccine is designed to prevent fertilization, which may make it more widely acceptable than another vaccine already in human testing that stops development of the embryo, other scientists said.

Still, "there are many things about it that would have to be changed or improved to make it a useful method for either agricultural animals or humans," cautioned researcher Paul Primakoff.

Primakoff and colleagues at the University of Connecticut Health Center in Farmington report the experiment in Thursday's issue of the British journal Nature.

It is the first demonstration of contraception without fail from a vaccine, experts said.

None of the 25 female guinea pigs that got the vaccine before mating had litters, nor did the mates of the six immunized male guinea pigs. Animals that received sham immunizations for comparison purposes remained fertile.

The vaccine's effect was temporary. Eleven of 24 females tested had regained fertility.

Man travels to donate blood

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Louis Soto has blood, will travel.

The retired construction worker drove 1,003 miles from his home in Connecticut this week to give a pint of blood in St. Paul, part of his plan to give blood in the capitals of every state.

Earlier this year, Soto donated in Madison, Wis.; Little Rock, Ark.; Jackson, Miss., and Baton Rouge, La.

"People always say they don't have time to donate blood," Soto said at the American Red Cross here. "But I say, 'Look, I just drove 4½ days to make a donation. You can spare an hour.'"

In the past 30 years, Soto said, he has donated 23 gallons of blood. He calls it his special way of helping humanity.

Soto, 55, said he travels around the country to inspire people to give blood and to "contribute to another person's longevity." As long as he has his health, Soto said, he plans to continue donating every other month.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

KU to study early childhood

LAWRENCE — A $4 million federal grant from the U.S. Department of Education will fund an Early Childhood Research Institute at the University of Kansas.

The five-year award goes to the university's Bureau of Child Research, which will use it to study transitions in the lives of handicapped children from birth to age 8.

Projects will focus on transitions from hospital to home and infant services, from home to preschool, and from specialized or integrated services and classrooms to public schools.

The study will look at problems affecting children with various handicaps, the emotional and psychological well-being of their families, and the quality and continuity of services. The staff will work with state and national agencies in developing policies affecting services to handicapped children.

Directing the institute will be Mabel Rice, professor of speech-language-hearing, and Marion O'Brien, assistant professor of human development and family life.

Teen-agers steal drug money

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Two teen-agers broke into an apartment, apparently while the occupants were away at church Sunday, and walked off with an estimated $200,000, police said.

The boys, ages 17 and 15, went on a world-class shopping spree, spending about $30,000 and giving away more money until members of the drug gang tracked them down and abducted them.

"I think yes, this is pretty bizarre," said police Sgt. Gregory Mills. "It brings the drug problem to the forefront again. It's pretty bizarre to do something like that and go out and spend that kind of money."

Mills said the boys broke into the apartment Sunday after learning money from a drug operation was stored at what was considered a "safe house." He said the occupants were reportedly in church at the time.

The money taken was mostly in $10, $20 and $50 bills. Police said the boys gave some of it to friends and relatives and went shopping at Bannister Mall.

Word apparently reached the drug gang that the youths had the money and about 5 p.m. Monday the 17-year-old was abducted at gunpoint in front of his house, Mills said. He was released two or three hours later.

About 8 p.m. Monday the 15-year-old was abducted. He was released unharmed at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Baker and the other man allegedly tied up and tortured the youth, trying to find out what happened to the money, police said. Neither of the youths were seriously harmed, police said.

"We're just saying right now it was some sort of retaliation," said Sgt. Marilyn Fortman of the Crimes Against Persons Division. "We have no explanation as to why they were released unharmed."

While the 15-year-old was being held, police searched his house and found $59,000 in his bedroom.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

TODAY

INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 213.

GRAIN SCIENCE CLUB will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Shellenberger 311. Officers will meet at 6 p.m.

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Janet Scott Broers at 1:30 p.m. in Bluemont 368. The topic is "Efficacy of Transitional First Grade in Lawrence, Kansas."

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Yee-Wei Huang at 3:15 p.m. in Durland 129. The topic is "Designing Intelligent Knowledge and Data Bases for Separation Scheme Synthesis — A Case Study of Knowledge Engineering in Process Engineering."

SAILING CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

MINORITY BUSINESS STUDENTS in Action will meet at 8 p.m. in Calvin 102.

COLLEGIATE 4-H will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 207.

FINANCE CLUB will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Calvin 201.

PRE-VET Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201.

CAMPUS CRUSADE for Christ will meet at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

A.I.C.H.E. will meet at 1:30 p.m. in Ackert 120.

TEACHERS OF TOMORROW will conduct an open forum discussion: "Where do Teachers Fit in 'Public' Education?" Dr. Ron Kolenbrander will lead the discussion, which begins at 7 p.m. in Bluemont 225. A meeting will follow the discussion. Everyone is welcome.

SOCIETY FOR THE ADVANCEMENT of management will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Bluemont 101.

AGRICULTURE EDUCATION CLUB will meet at 6:45 p.m. in Bluemont 343.

ICTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA Little Sisters will meet from 9 p.m. to midnight at Chameleons for date dash.

FRENCH TABLE will meet from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

BUSINESS COUNCIL cookout will be from 4 to 6 p.m. at Dean Pohlman's residence.

U-LEARN VOLUNTEER SIGN-UP and training will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Leasure 02.

SILVER WINGS will meet at 9 p.m. in Union 202.

ENGINEERING AMBASSADORS will meet at 7 p.m. in Durland 173.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB will be selling club T-shirts from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Union.

AG COUNCIL will meet at 6 p.m. at Waters conference room.

EXECUTIVE RODEO CLUB will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Weber 146.

RODEO CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Weber 146.

WILDLIFE SOCIETY will meet at 7 p.m. in Ackert 221.

AMERICAN NUCLEAR SOCIETY will take pictures at 8 p.m. in Ward 135.

K-STATE POLICE

Wednesday

- A student parking permit was reported lost in an unknown vicinity.
- A student parking permit was reported lost on campus.
- A two-vehicle, non-injury accident occurred in the parking lot at the KSU Police Department. Damage was more than $500.
- A wheel lock was placed on a silver Chevrolet two-door parked in lot A-30.
- A student parking permit was reported lost off campus.
- A two-vehicle, non-injury accident occurred at Mid-Campus Drive and Anderson Avenue.
- A student parking permit was reported lost off campus.
- The theft of computer equipment worth $8,805.50 and criminal damage worth $185 at Fairchild Hall was reported.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Novelist gives new perspective

A different perspective can change the feeling of a story, and one new novelist has captured this perspective in writing.

De McGlashon, communications specialist at the Cooperative Extension Service and graduate in journalism and mass communications, writes in her first book, "Shadow of a Bird," about the relationship between a divorced mother and her son from the son's perspective.

"The subject is almost taboo," said McGlashon, who writes under the pen name D.M. Toliver.

"It's an area that hasn't been mined before," she said. "It's a vein of gold that has been left for me."

McGlashon will be signing copies of "Shadow of a Bird" from 4 to 6 p.m. today at Claflin Books, 1814 Claflin Ave.

Oct. 7 & 8
Firewater
9:30 p.m.-1:30 a.m.
Cover Charge:
$2 for members
$3 for guests
The Ranch SALOON
A Class B Private Club
3 miles east of Manhattan on Highway 24
593-4989

IMPORT BEER NIGHT

•50¢ off all Imports
•Plus . . . Tonite Free Aimstey
T-Shirts, Posters, Banners, Pins, K-rings, & more!
LAST CHANCE 1215 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
HOME OF THE AROUND the WORLD BEER CLUB
Aggieville, U.S.A.

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS
Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Monday, October 17
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261
Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority at the time of pre-enrollment.

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
Pitchers $2.25 TONIGHT
ON TAP COORS LT, BUD, OLD MILW.
•NO DRESS CODE
•NO COVER CHARGE
THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE
Rt. 5 537-3133

The Greenery RESTAURANT FOR LUNCH
Serving Everyday 11 a.m.—2 p.m.
Your Choice $2.65 + tax
6 OZ. PETITE SIRLOIN STEAK
8 OZ. CHOPPED BEEF STEAK
8 OZ. HAM STEAK
WHOLE CATFISH
¼ FRIED CHICKEN
TENDER BABY BEEF LIVER
CHICKEN FRIED STEAK
LASAGNA
SOUP AND SANDWICH
All entrees include rolls & butter, french fried potato!
Adjacent to the All Season's Motel
Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan
537-1488

BROTHERS in Aggieville
99¢ Night
TONIGHT
Pitchers • Kamis
Wells • Pizza
All for only 99¢ each!
A new light show, expanded dance floor, & 99¢ drinks.
Don't miss out on the fun tonight!
1120 Moro • Aggieville 537•9511

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)

Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa
Park Place apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951

McCain to feature orchestra tonight

By Becky Jones
Collegian Reporter

David Littrell, assistant professor of music, will be the featured cello soloist in the Kansas State Orchestra's opening concert of the year.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. this evening at McCain Auditorium and is free to the public.

Littrell last played with the orchestra as a student in the fall of 1970. That was the first year McCain was used for concerts, he said. Littrell graduated in 1971 with a bachelor's in music.

He will play "Cello Concerto in B Minor" by A. Dvorak. The piece has three movements and lasts about 40 minutes. Littrell said the piece is romantic and emotional, as well as exciting.

Dvorak wrote the piece in 1895 in the United States, Littrell said, and it shows Dvorak's homesickness for his native Czechoslovakia.

"Every cellist loves to play that piece with an orchestra, and I'm no exception," Littrell said. "It's usually considered the greatest cello concerto there is."

This evening's concert will also feature "Overture to 'The Impressario'" by W.A. Mozart, and "Symphony No. 3 in A Minor" by F. Mendelssohn.

Adrian Bryttan, conductor, said the pieces are difficult and the orchestra has spent about a month preparing for the concert.

"I think it's pretty good to put together a program so fast and so soon," Bryttan said. "For such a short period of time, this is amazing. These are all pieces that major orchestras would do — this isn't high school stuff."

He said the orchestra has two short rehearsals during the week and a long rehearsals on Sunday evenings.

The orchestra is comprised of about 60 students. Bryttan said most are not music majors, but are students who played in high school orchestras and "like to keep up their instrument and just like to play."

There will be a reception after the concert.

Golden Key National Honor Society is sponsoring the concert.

Cleaner grain focus of legislation

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

Market incentive prevailed over quality regulation this week when the U.S. House of Representatives passed legislation that could lead to higher prices for clean grain.

"I think we need to encourage farmers to deliver a cleaner product and encourage grain handlers to keep the product clean once it's been delivered," said Rep. Jim Slattery, D-Kan., who introduced the legislation.

If approved by the Senate, the Clean Grain Premium Pilot Project would require the Secretary of Agriculture to establish a pilot incentive program rewarding farmers for producing higher quality corn, soybeans and wheat and placing it in the government price support loan program.

The Commodity Credit Corporation, a federal government corporation, is the entity that extends price support loans to farmers. The CCC is the largest buyer of grain in the world, said Roger Claassen, a legislative assistant to Slattery.

"I think we need to encourage farmers to deliver a cleaner product."

—Jim Slattery representative

The CCC extends price support loans to farmers, which they can pay back with either grain or cash, Claassen said.

"Commodity Credit Corporation has been criticized as being a place where lower quality, dirtier grain tends to originate," he said. "The CCC should lead the way to cleaner, high-quality grain."

One of the major goals of the legislation is to make U.S. grain exports more competitive. U.S. wheat delivered to Japan between 1983 and 1987 contained almost twice as much foreign material, or dockage, as Canadian grain and more than twice the dockage of Australian grain, according to U.S. Wheat Associates.

Claassen said the government's goal is not to interfere with private contracts.

"We don't want to regulate. ... What we're saying is put the incentive in the system," Claassen said.

"We focus very heavily on the farmer premium aspect."

Segregating the higher quality — No. 1 — grain from the No. 2 quality grain is not mandated by the legislation, although that was part of the original proposal, Claassen said.

"That will be up to the Secretary (of Agriculture) as well," he said, "although a number of (grain) warehouseman segregate it already."

The requirement to segregate grain at smaller grain elevators will be an "impossibility" because of limited facilities, said Gary Hintz, manager of Manhattan Milling Co.

"If I were a farmer, I think it would be great," Hintz said, "but for us, it is just not practical. It may affect country elevators in that they'll lose customers."

Clinic to give horse owners instruction

By The Collegian Staff

Horse health care and training information will be featured at a clinic sponsored by the American Quarter Horse Association and the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry on Oct. 8 in Weber Hall.

"The Horse Sense series of clinics provide all horsemen advice and instruction in a variety of areas," said Gary Reynolds, AQHA's director of amateur events and clinic coordinator.

Horse Sense XXII is a seminar conducted by the youth and amateur divisions of the AQHA. The clinic will consist of lectures and hands-on demonstrations by professional and top amateur quarter horse exhibitors, said Dennis Sigler, assistant professor of animal sciences and industry and horse specialist.

Speakers will discuss horse health care, management, equine first aid and basic training of the western horse. The clinic will also cover English and timed-event competition, selection and evaluation of horses.

Speakers will include: C.A. Cofer, Wichita, auctioneer and sales manager; Dean Smith, Council Grove, reining and cutting horse trainer; Nancy Murfin, Wichita, winner of several high-point and year-end awards in horse showing; and Sigler, coach of K-State's horse judging team.

The clinic will begin at 8 a.m. in Weber Arena and the last program will start at 6:30 p.m. Registration at the door will be $10 for adults and $8 for students. An American Junior Quarter Horse Association membership will be issued with each student registration.

"We expect a large turnout and encourage everyone to attend," Reynolds said.

No Pain,
No Gain???
NO WAY!!!!
Pain is a sign that something is wrong!
Call today 537-8305
Dr. Mark J. Hatesohl
Chiropractor
3252 Kimball Avenue

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

3 Days a Week to Reach Your Peak
Get More Shape for your Money Now!!
Get 25% off our Annual Single and Family Memberships
776-1654
Nautilus® 1100 Moro Aggieville Total Fitness Club

BUSHWACKERS THE FUNDRINKERY
TONIGHT
Pitchers $2.50
All Mixed Drinks $1.75
Sunset Grill
Special
6 oz. Filet
$4.95
5 to 9
531 N. Manhattan

Baseball Playoffs
Check your local listings for game times
•Draft Beer
•Hot Dogs
•Peanuts
UNIVERSITY INN
17th & Anderson Ave. • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

TERRIFIC THURSDAY
99¢ well drinks
50¢ kamikaze shots
$1.50 BBAMB
5:00-11:00, burgers, burgers & more burgers!
PLUS
Backroom Dancing
KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
18 to enter, 21 to drink
619 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-9794

The Station
HAPPY HOUR BUFFET
WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
5:00-7:00pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET: $1
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

The Station
THURSDAY 99¢ NIGHT
•99¢ WELLS
•99¢ DRAWS
•99¢ GRILLE ITEMS
•$1.19 BIG C's
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

MTV MUSIC TELEVISION presents
THE RETURN OF THE TALL COOL ONE ROBERT PLANT
with special guest
JOAN JETT AND THE BLACKHEARTS
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 8 PM
Sandstone Amphitheatre
Reserved and Lawn Seats $18.50
on sale now at all CATS outlets and Sandstone
To charge by phone or more info call
(913) 721-3300
NON STOP GO TOUR
—CONTINUES—
KY-102 Bud in Concert KMBC TV

CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR Established 1983
"The Aggieville Alternative"
1800 Claflin
776-4111
See us for Group Discounts
Tuesday: Pool tournament at 8:00
Thurs. & Fri.: —LIVE BAND— Banister Tarrelton
Saturday: $Dollar Days$ $1 Pitchers
Now Open Sundays at 12:00 —with pizza specials & sports on the big screen TV —Open early before K-State vs. Missouri game

Editorial

Next Landon lecturer has unusual background

It's hard to make everybody happy. For the past year, people have been complaining about the Landon Lecture Series on Public Issues, and with good reason. At first, people were annoyed because it featured the same old white, male, establishment speakers who avoided controversy. Granted, many of them were Big Names. But just like Sandra Day O'Conner (who is not male but very white and very establishment), they didn't really have anything of value to say.

Then, finally, at the last Landon Lecture, we got to hear from someone a little less in the mainstream — Barbara Tuchman. Despite technical problems, the lecture was pretty good. It was different — not the same old ideology we've been hearing from so many of the lecturers. But many people who might have attended the lecture and enjoyed her thoughts probably didn't attend because she wasn't a Big Name. They didn't know who she was before she came here, so she couldn't be important. Luckily, the lecture did not suffer from a lack of attendance.

This brings us to the next Landon Lecture. Just when we thought the people who schedule the speakers were starting to listen to the desires of the University community for a greater diversity of speakers, here comes Vernon Walters.

It seems they decided if they couldn't make everybody happy, they wouldn't make anyone happy, except themselves.

He's white. He's male. He's as much of an establishment-lover and a Reagan-follower as they come. And, even worse, most people have absolutely no idea who he is. It's as if the Lecture series is backsliding in the choice of speakers just when we thought there was hope.

Walters will be speaking here Nov. 11. I realize this is a month away, but this is something you won't want to miss. Not because you've never heard a rich, white man speak before, but because it should be interesting to hear what sort of stories this man with a rather tainted past has to tell.

For those of you unfamiliar with Walters, let me start with his good qualities. He's a well-known linguist and a master of eight languages. He's an ex-military man who rose from private to lieutenant general. And he served four years as an ambassador-at-large before taking over for Jeane Kirkpatrick as an ambassador to the United Nations.

Nice. It looks like a nice, boring speech by a nice, boring, old diplomat who can speak nice in several languages. Wrong.

Walters also has a very interesting and less delectable side. As Claudia Wright stated in the New Statesmen while Walters was being nominated as ambassador to the United Nations, "Walter's candidacy for the U.N. post carries an unusual cachet; directly or indirectly, he has been involved in overthrowing more governments than any other official still serving in the U.S. Government."

Commentary

CATHERINE DOUD
Collegian Columnist

Walters' experience with overthrowing governments started while he was in the military. Walters admits that he was involved in the plot to overthrow the government of Iran in 1953. He also tried to block the Kennedy administration's move to open relations with the Italian left.

Walters later went to Brazil in 1962 as a military attache. There he became so embroiled in the overthrow of the Brazilian government that he was able to inform Washington what day the coup would take place a week in advance. A brutal dictatorship was installed, and the president was Castelo Branco, with whom Walters has maintained friendly relations.

Walters was then appointed as the deputy director of the CIA for the next four years. It has been charged that during this time he was complacent with the assassination of former Chilean Defense Minister Orlando Letelier.

Some of what is done during a military career can be forgiven. Walter's private life, however, has been just as interesting.

In 1980, Walters was paid a $300,000 consulting fee from Environmental Energy Systems Inc. — a rather innocent name for a major arms merchant. The consulting fee was for assisting them in their effort to sell tanks to King Hassan of Morocco, with whom Walters had very strong ties.

Walters was also involved in Guatemala during the years he was absent from government office. He visited the government of Luca Garcia three times, and reported that the human rights violations there were not significant, since they were something that would always happen. One month later, aid for Guatemala resumed. Meanwhile, reports indicated that Guatemala continued to have one of the worst human rights records in the area.

While in Guatemala, Walters was paid $1,000 a day by an international oil cartel that was scouting the fields of Guatemala. This was another consulting fee to get him to influence the government to raise oil production quotas. Thus, there were exaggerated claims of oil production which served as the State Department's justification for support of the regime.

After joining the Reagan administration in 1981 as an ambassador-at-large, he became deeply involved in the war with Nicaragua. He was described as being instrumental in aiding the forces of Somoza's National Guard.

As Ambassador to the United Nations, Walters has continually claimed that the United Nations is a disappointment, and puts into practice the Reagan idea of moving away from a World Court. He claims he dislikes the U.N. because it never resolves conflicts, and yet he refused to participate in the case brought by Nicaragua to challange the Contra War.

This is the man coming to our campus to enlighten us in the most prestigious lecture series in the nation. I urge you to attend, but I also urge you to take time to find out him so you can be prepared to critically analyze his statements.

He may be a typical right-wing, white, male speaker, but he has led a very atypical life.

Parrish resignation handled correctly

Although some football fans were calling for a bloody coup, the KSU Athletic Department and Stan Parrish handled Parrish's resignation Monday with class and much-needed tact.

Had the department ousted Parrish mid-season, little would have been gained for the players or fans. A situation that most admit is bad wouldn't have gotten any better.

Asking a coach to take over a team during a problem-filled season and turn the squad around 180 degrees is too much to expect. If that turnaround didn't occur, the coach would start the next year with half a season under his belt and a dark cloud over his head.

The department and Parrish took a better approach by announcing the decision as being effective at the end of the season. This tactic allows for a search for a coach willing to promise what the team, department and fans are asking for — a winning season. Recruiters can now lure prospective students with the promise of the unknown instead of the known.

Had Parrish walked out, nothing would have stopped the unfair analogy between his actions and a team quiting midgame.

The possibility of the team's beginning to win and of Parrish's contract being renegotiated shouldn't even be considered. Parrish should be at K-State because he wants to be here, not because the team is winning.

Parrish said he is tired of fighting the odds and is a victim of a society that overemphasizes winning. But it doesn't seem that K-Staters emphasize winning too much; he has lasted this long.

Other Perspectives

Keep America beautiful — at least until they put away the television cameras.

That seems to be the philosophy Omaha residents are taking in preparation for Wednesday's vice presidential debate. Omahans want to show America its good looks — even if it's not authentic.

Police officers have been ordered to transfer the homeless to an Omaha shelter three days before and one day after the debate. Heaven forbid, we wouldn't want the candidates, the media or the rest of the country to see a serious problem that's plaguing the country.

Nope. It's easier just to sweep the homeless under the rug until company leaves. Police chief Robert Wadman denied that the order was to conceal the homeless, saying the temporary policy resulted from an offer by the Open Door Mission.

But a few days after the debate, the homeless will be wandering the streets again.

— Daily Nebraskan
Oct. 3, 1988

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Letters

One more chance

Editor,

John Kirkland's letter also offended me, along with many others. "If a person doesn't have anything good to say, they shouldn't say anything at all." Our football program is hardly in a position to take any more abuse. I agree with Mark Reams that Kirkland and his so-called "committee" could do a lot more for the football program by attending the games or by at least not saying anything.

Coach Stan Parrish is still trying to rebuild this team and it takes time to recruit great talent and to learn the Big Eight. Like Parrish said, "We could easily be 2-2." This K-State team looks much improved, and I think that next year just may be the year. I'd just hate to see another coach step in and take the team Parrish has rebuilt to a winning season.

I think Parrish deserves one more shot.

Dave Wasylk
junior in physical education

Parrish has promise

Editor,

After reading Chris Nagy's comments in recent Collegians, we felt compelled to give our thoughts on the K-State football situation. It is obvious that Nagy's comments were fueled by the misguided, idiotic notion that K-State should be a national power today. His comment about Parrish's experience makes us ask, "What experience does Nagy have coaching?" Who does this guy think is going to coach a team with a .329 all-time winning percentage? Tom Osborne? Barry Switzer, maybe? We doubt it. Maybe Nagy should turn in his application for the job.

No coach can turn a terrible program into a powerhouse in three years, legally. Next year would be Parrish's first year coaching with his recruits only. Almost everyone will be back on offense. You have to figure quarterback Paul Watson could be a Heisman candidate in three years. He proved his ability to score quickly with four first-half touchdowns last Saturday.

How can a program be expected to turn itself around when it insists on playing musical coaches every couple of years because of a few ignorant opinions of dissatisfied students who obviously do not show up for the games anyway. Just look at K-State's attendance.

Oklahoma and Nebraska were not built in a day. Stan Parrish has brought new ideas to the football program. At least K-State is playing football for whole games and putting suspense in the air for its fans. It should only get better, but it won't with constant whining and quibbling from ungrateful so-called fans.

Kelly Arnberger
junior in secondary education
and one other

Season continues

Editor,

I would like to commend Stan Parrish, his coaching staff and the football team on their outstanding effort this season. I have attended both home games and listened to the others on the radio. Although we have yet to scratch a victory on our chalkboard, we have gained by leaps and bounds.

I am extremely impressed with the team I have watched this year. They have shown great progress from the team I watched last year. I have screamed and cheered from the kickoff to the final play of each game. This weekend we are taking on Mizzou, and I hope we cam stomp them up and down the field. I will be there; and I will be cheering our team on.

Although Coach Parrish has resigned, the season is not over. I challenge the student body, faculty and Manhattan residents to get out there and support our Wildcats. Go get 'em Cats!

Wende Wingert
senior in marketing

Stop turnover

Editor,

Thirty head football coaches in 93 years and four winning seasons since 1937; why would anyone want to try to coach at K-State?

Stan Parrish has done an admirable job in every area but one. Shouldn't he be given a few years to correct that? The football team's graduation rate is 70 percent, Parrish runs a clean program and has several good recruits that will form the nucleus of a winning football team if given the chance.

Since Steve Miller has hinted that Parrish could be rehired if he is able to turn the season around, and Jon Wefald has adopted as neutral a stance as a college president can, it would appear that most of the grumbling is coming from alumns. How many winning seasons have they seen since graduation?

Let Parrish coach, give him the five years on his contract and then re-evaluate the program. A revolving door for coaches is not the way to do it. Support the team, go to games and hope that things can get better. Iowa improved — they had a losing team and fan support has helped turn their football fortunes around. Don't be a Monday morning quarterback unless you're willing to do all you can for K-State athletics.

Joe L. Cook graduate student in art

School forgotten

Editor,

I am very disappointed to note that Kansas Tech was not included in your Sept. 23 article "Higher enrollment brings benefits, problems." As one of the seven institutions of higher learning in the Kansas Board of Regents system, our enrollment data should be included in such reports. I would appreciate your recognition of our membership in the system in future articles dealing with system issues.

For your information, the enrollment head count for the fall of 1988 at Kansas Tech is a record 737 students, 27 more than the previous high, which was experienced in the fall of 1983. The 737 figure represents a 44.5 percent increase over the fall of 1987, when enrollment was 388 students.

These numbers are indeed small in comparison to the other six Regent institutions, but they are significant nevertheless for a relatively young institution with a very specific state-wide mission.

I appreciate your consideration of my request to be included in future articles.

Anthony L. Tilmans
President, Kansas College of Technology

Accreditation gives program special standing in accounting

By Stuart Puls
Collegian Reporter

K-State's undergraduate accounting program is one of only 40 in the nation, and the only one in Kansas.

More than 1200 colleges nationwide have accounting programs, said Randolph Pohlman, dean of the College of Business Administration.

The college was accredited for its general courses in 1987, then received accreditation for the accounting program in April by the American Assembly for Collegiate Schools of Business.

"We are very pleased to have this happen," he said. "It took lots of long hours and hard work by our faculty to achieve (accreditation)."

Pohlman said support from President Jon Wefald and Provost James Coffman helped the college meet the accreditation requirements for the accounting program.

"They helped us when we came up a little short on meeting our requirements for accreditation," he said.

The college went through a long process in order to receive the accreditation, Pohlman said. A "detailed" self-study was conducted that included the number of students being taught, a complete listing of facilities for the library, computers and faculty.

Then an accreditation group visited the college to view the facilities and give suggestions and criticisms. Afterwards, the group made its recommendation to the AACSB, which then finished the process.

"It is a very long, complicated process, that takes several months," Pohlman said.

The college will be considered for reaccreditation in nine years, and has to continue improving its standards in order to keep the accreditation.

"The interpretation of standards change, despite the rules staying the same, so it is difficult to maintain," Pohlman said.

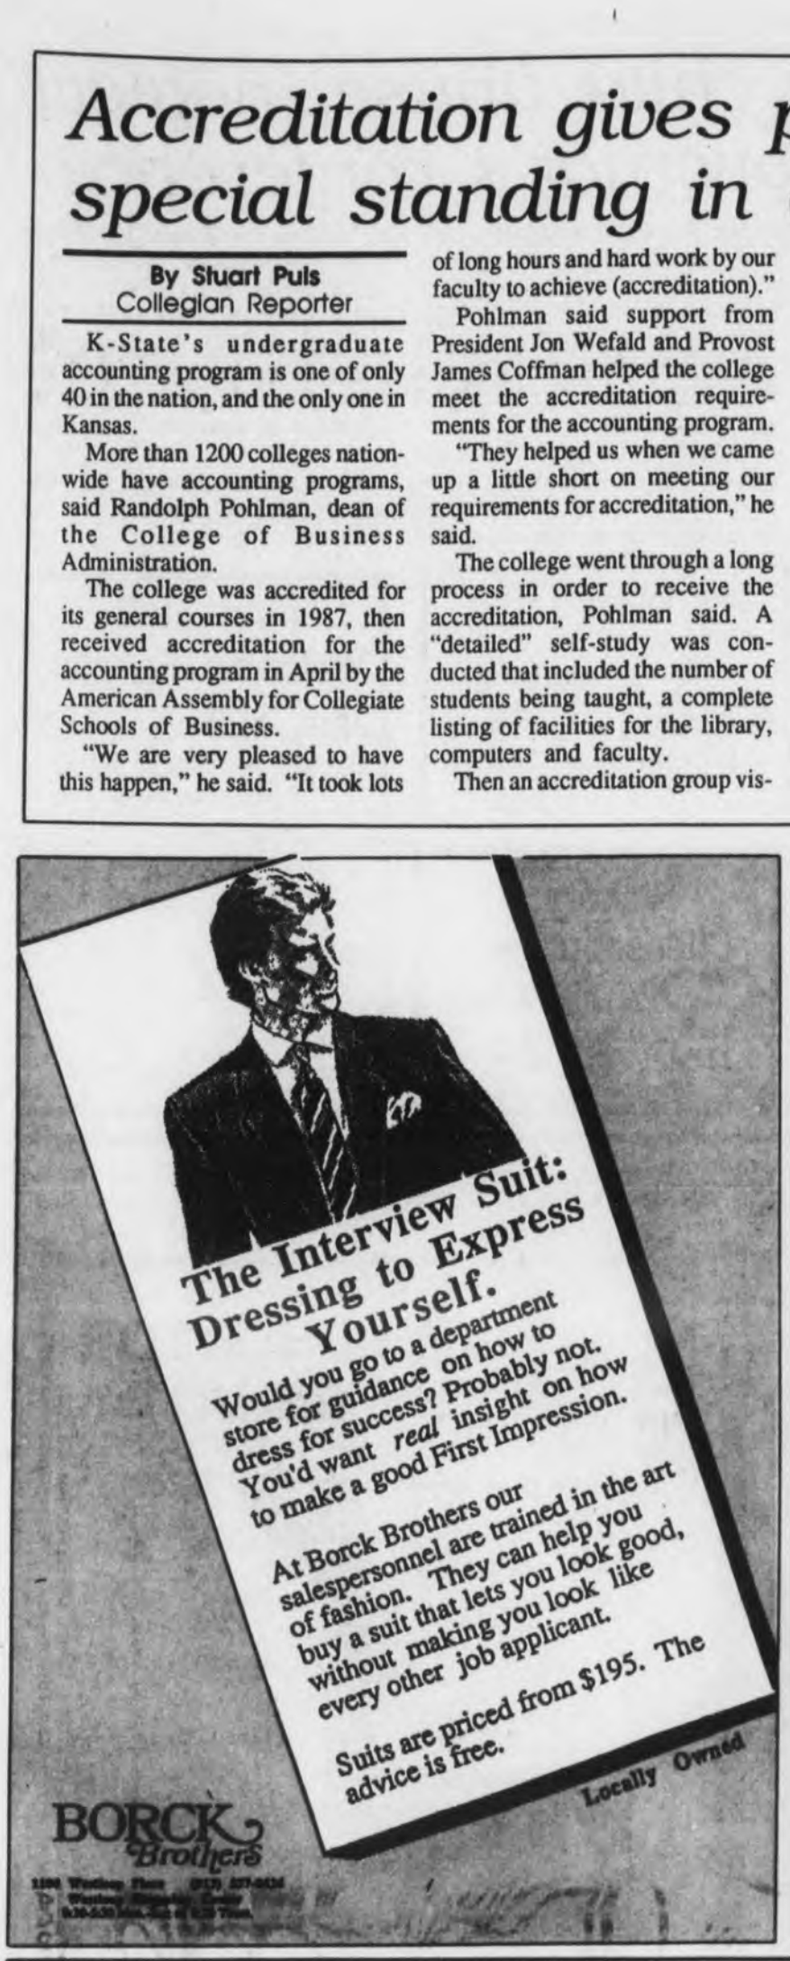
Courses may be required

By Susan E. Faler
Collegian Reporter

The Manhattan Unified School Board of Education Wednesday discussed the possibility of increasing the required 21 hours of credit for high school graduation. This would be accomplished by making fine arts courses a requirement, or by substituting them for other requirements.

If the academic requirements are increased, students who are already having problems will have even greater difficulty making it through those tougher classes, said Beverly Eversmeyer, board member.

The number of students enrolled in courses such as typing, shorthand and practical arts have been decreasing, said Joleen Hill, board member.

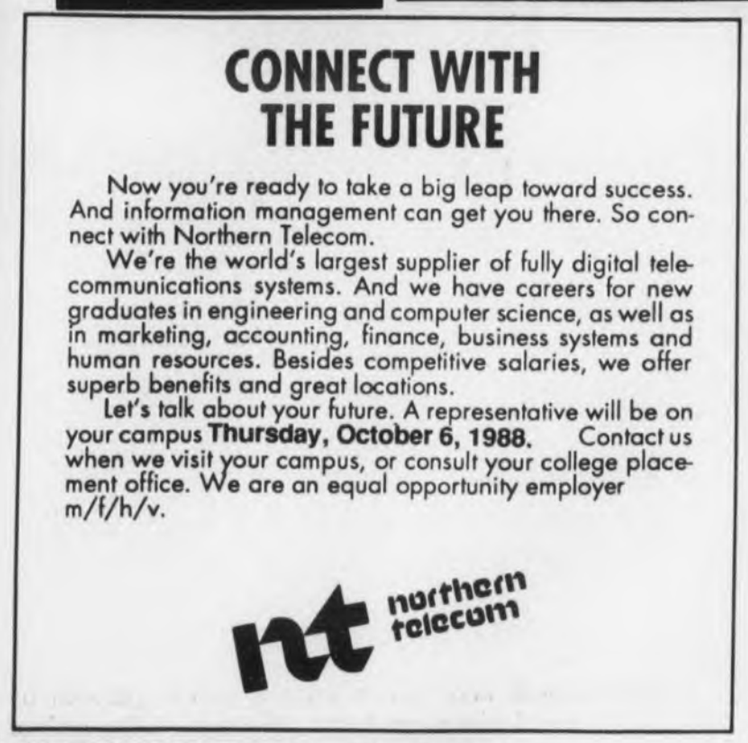


Students focus more on technology to take care of typographical errors. However, these courses could benefit them when technology is not available, Hill said.

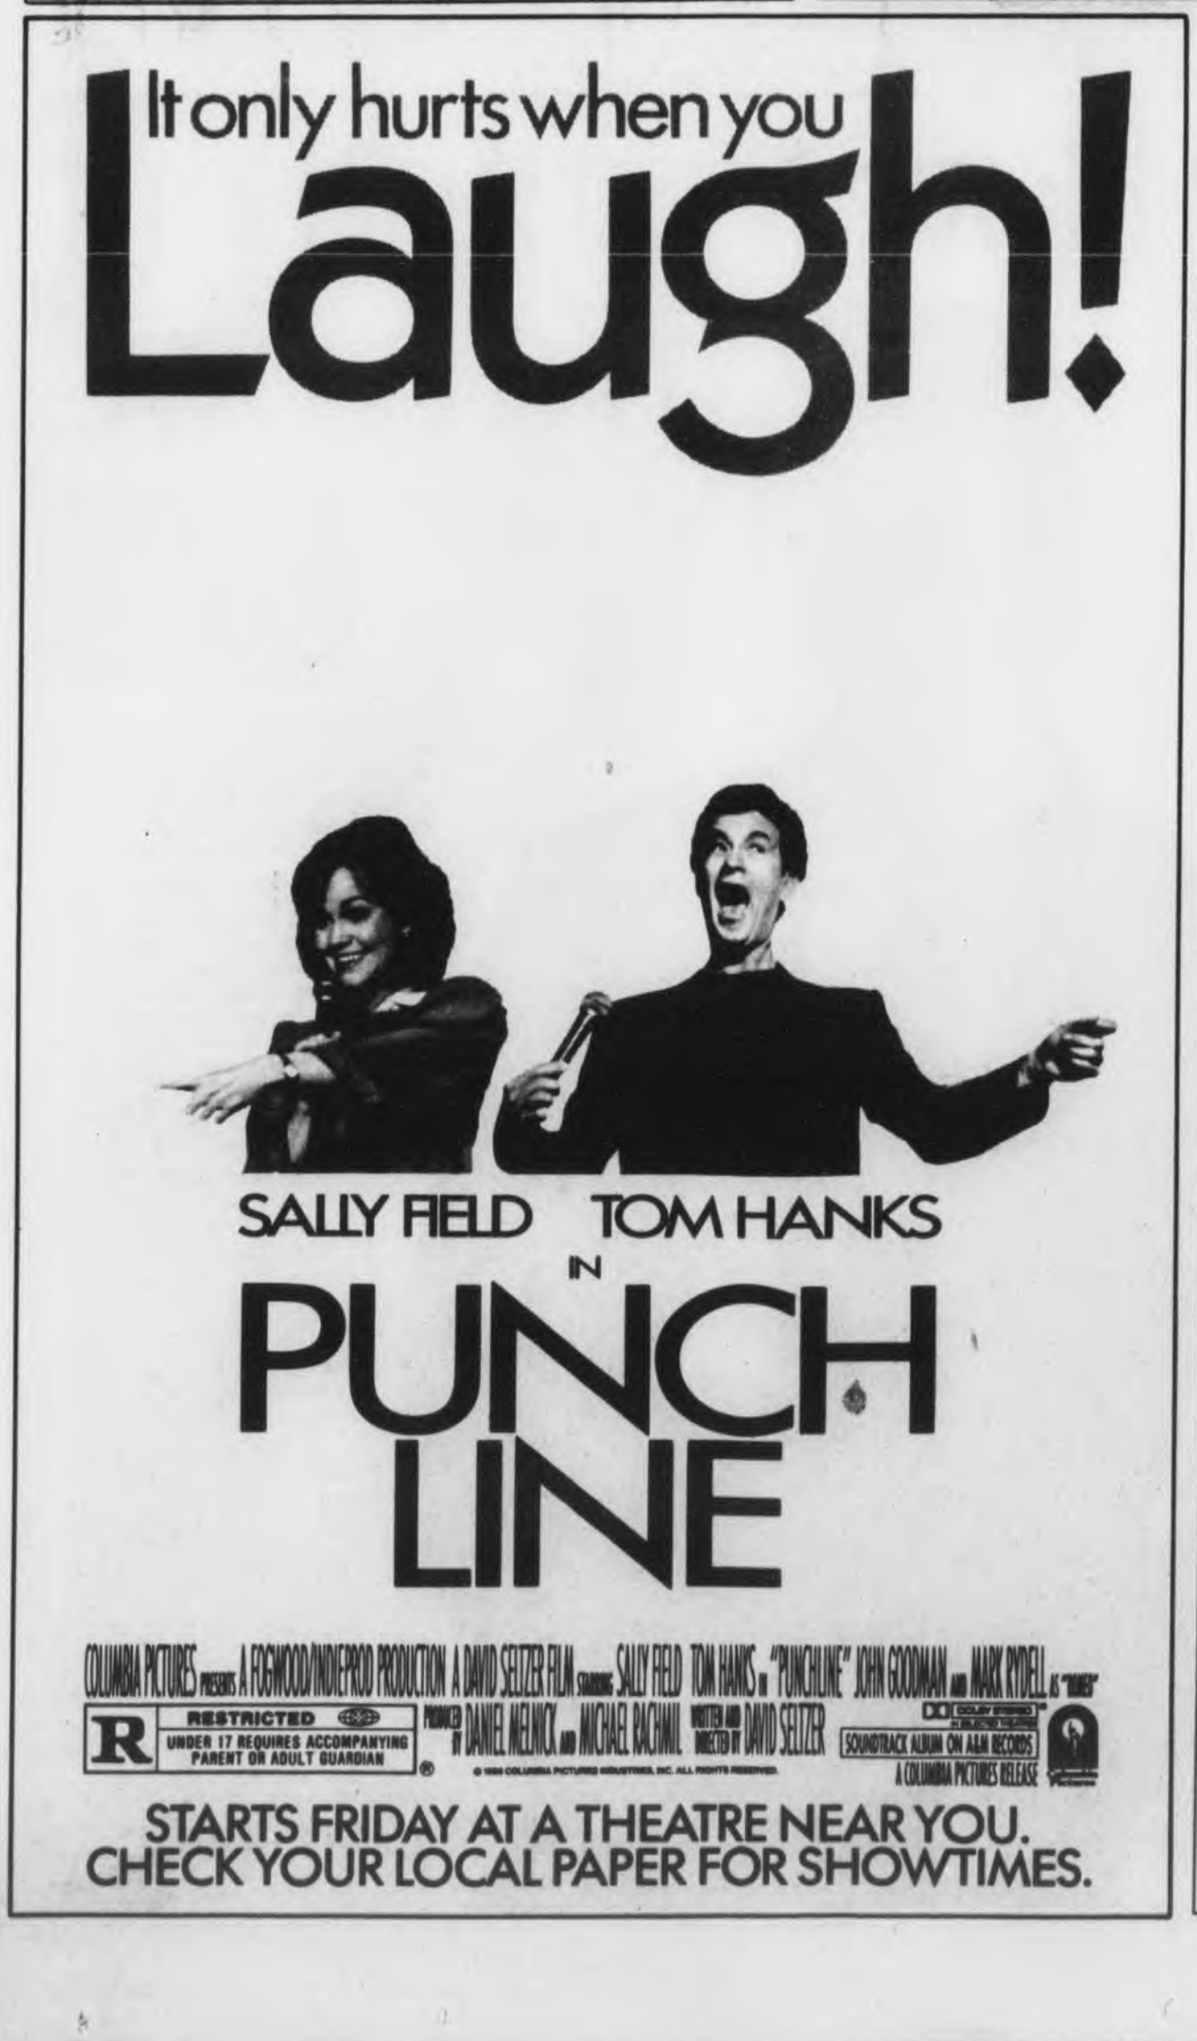
But if students do not have the ability or interest in fine arts classes, they will ruin the class for others who are interested, Eversmeyer said.

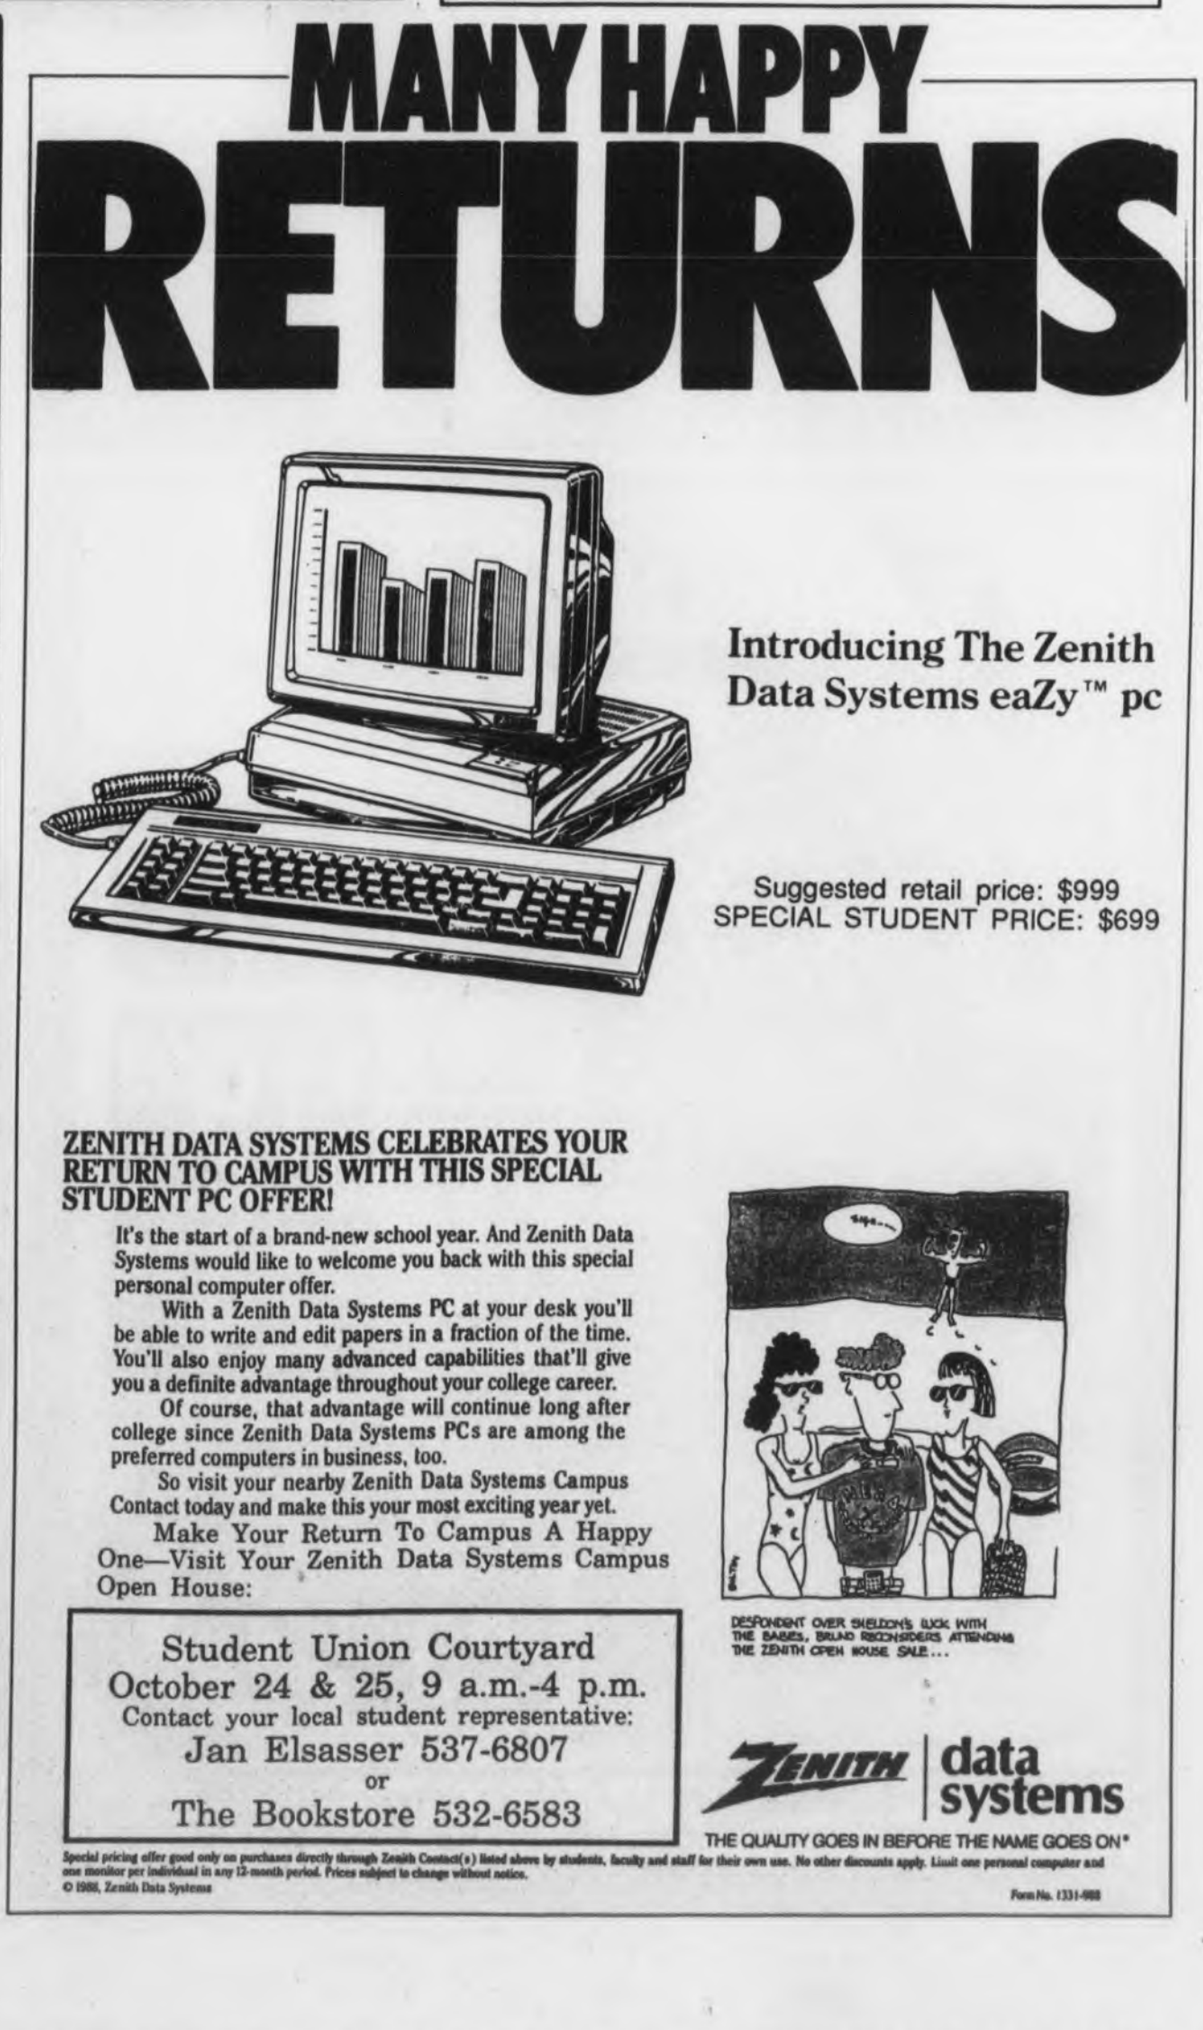
"A lot of the Ivy League colleges do not consider, as part of the application for admission, any of the band, music or art classes," she said. "They consider only math, science, English, and a foreign language, the very basic academic classes. Others are considered to be extra-curricular courses and are not considered as part of the figuring of the grade point average."

A motion was made to request the fine arts curriculum committee study the impact of fine arts requirements for graduation.



"We need knowledge before a decision is made or else the decision will be based on opinion," said Martha Miller, board member.





Drought effects projected

By Jenny Reschke
Collegian Reporter

K-State economists gave six-month projections Wednesday on how this summer's crop-searing drought might affect the grain and livestock markets to farmers and ranchers across Kansas.

The Division of Cooperative Extension conducted this year's first monthly Ag Update program, which is an agricultural marketing and management TELENET conference.

About 500 people at more than 45 locations across the state participated in the 90-minute teleconference, organized by Kansas' county extension offices.

Now in its seventh year, the series provides information to farmers, ranchers and other people in agribusiness, especially lenders, said James Mintert, assistant professor of agricultural economics.

In forecasting the probable price trends for Kansas crops and livestock, panelists Mintert and William Tierney, associate professor of agricultural economics, could not guarantee the prices would continue to increase, despite the drought.

"The wheat markets are waiting to see what happens with the long-term agreement with the Soviets," Tierney said.

Corn farmers, however, should consider selling this year's crop before the prices decline, despite indications of a stronger demand, he said. Tierney then recommended buying into corn futures options.

The forecast for soybeans is uncertain, but historically, prices usually decline after harvest in an unfavorable crop year, Tierney said. Also, soybean exports are down about 40 percent since last year, so producers are advised to sell their crop and consider selling next year's crop.

Two questions addressed by panelist G. Art Barnaby, associate professor in agricultural economics, were whether 1988-89 is the time for farmers to drop out of government farm programs and how farmers can manage income risk during a year that may bring falling crop prices.

According to the extension agricultural economists' 1988-89 Fall Outlook, the overall agricultural forecast encompasses the following ironies:

- Kansas' Congressional delegation will have more to do with future farm policy than will the man elected president this November.
- In the upcoming farm bill debate, old-line Democrats will be supporting policy that would raise food prices for the poor. Old-line Republicans will be touting policy that is a bottom-line impossibility.
- The Federal Reserve and the outcome of U.S.-Soviet nuclear disarmament talks may be the United States' best hopes for the overall economy.
- Drought-reduced crop production could actually bring lower crop prices in 1989.
- Farmers may have to fight consumer groups to keep wheat export levels high.
- Despite record expenditures for farm programs and a huge drought relief bill, farmers' management abilities may never have been more important to their economic survival.

Preventing child abuse, neglect focus of governor's conference

By The Collegian Staff

"Kids Are Worth It" is the theme of the 12th Governor's Conference for Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect, which is today and Friday at the Manhattan Holidome.

More than 300 Kansans who advocate the prevention of abuse are expected to attend, including Jerry Wyckoff, assistant professor of human development at Ottawa University. Wyckoff has been nationally recognized for his work on alternatives to physical punishment and is co-author of "Discipline Without Shouting or Spanking." Wyckoff will speak on the topic "Building a Growth Environment for Children," at 9 a.m. Friday.

Ralph Kantor, program developer and training consultant to the Dallas independent school district gifted child program, is the keynote speaker. "A Time for Heroes: The Power of the Individual and the Organization" is the title of his address, which will focus on the potential of every individual and how to develop that potential toward maximizing efforts to prevent child abuse. Kantor is scheduled to speak at 9 a.m. this morning.

Twenty-four workshops will cover topics such as child abuse laws, AIDS and ethical issues.

Pack of Lies.
The Great American Smokeout. Nov. 17.
AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

99¢ Nacho Bar
Load up all you want
2 fer 1 drinks and draws
COTTON CLUB

Hickory Cheeseburger
The Chef 111 S. 4th
½ fries & coke
$2.49

First Visit Welcome Special
Now $28 reg. $59 value
Dr. Eric J. Wisdom D.D.S.
Family/Dentistry
•Dental Exam
•2 x-rays
•Complete cleaning
1445 Anderson
776-1771
Call for appointment

KSU WILDCATS*KSU WILDCATS

ICAT BASKETBALL TICKETS will go on sale Thursday, October 13 at 8:30 a.m. and will be available until 4:30 p.m.

Each ICAT member may purchase tickets for five other ICAT members with the proper amount of money and 6 fee cards.

Regarding campout
No valid roll will be taken until AFTER 8 a.m. on Saturday, October 8.

These people will assume their positions at that time:

1. Jay Rogers
2. Chris Schafer
3. Greg Todd
4. Eric Loving
5. Kevin Bergstrom
6. Marvin Magby
7. Doug Zeitlon
8. Dan Pope
9. Bruce Butler
10. Rick Perkins
11. Mark McArtor

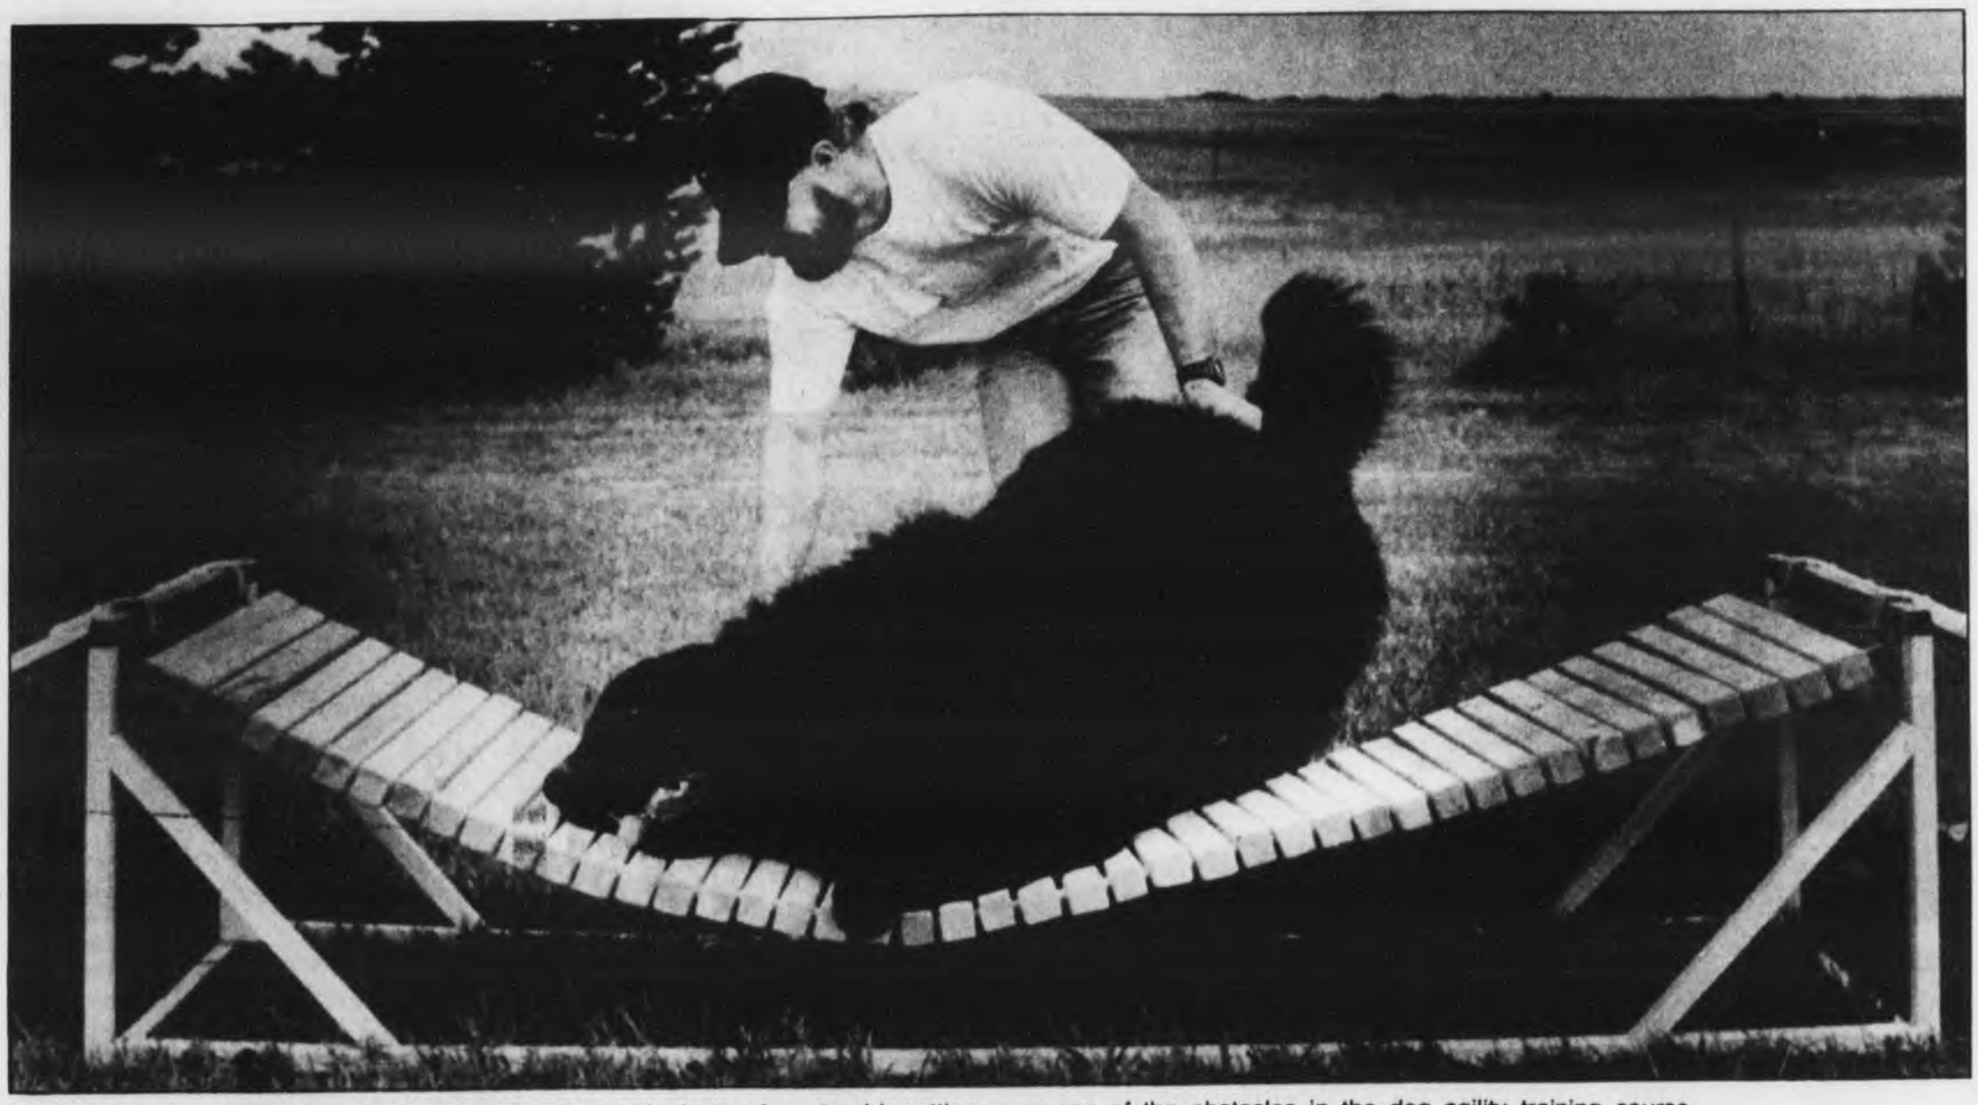
Roll will not be taken from 11 a.m.-6 p.m. on Sat., Oct. 8 due to MU game.

KSU WILDCATS*KSU WILDCATS

A KEY TO EFFECTIVE EDUCATION . . .
Lana Oleen
REPUBLICAN • KANSAS SENATE
1631 Fairchild Avenue, Manhattan, KS 66502
. . . AN EDUCATOR IN THE SENATE
•Administrators Outstanding Educator Award
•Chairman-Kansas Family & Children Trust Ford
•Coordinator for State-wide Job Corps Awareness Campaign
•Legislative Liaison for State Department of Human Resources
Lana Oleen for Kansas Senate, Kent Glasscock, chairman

VANDERBILT'S
501 LEVI'S
SHRINK-TO-FIT Compare to $27.95 38-40 Lengths . . $19.99 — $17.99
PRE-WASHED Compare to $29.95 — $19.99
WHITE WASHED Compare to $34.99 — $24.99
Unlined, Prewashed Indigo Denim Jean Jackets Compare to $49.95 — $29.99 Longs $31.99
Discount Prices
DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100
VISA MasterCard

How to stand out in a crowd.
AMERICAN EXPRESS
The American Express® Card gets an outstanding welcome virtually anywhere you shop, whether it's for a leather jacket or a leather-bound classic. Whether you're bound for a bookstore or a beach in Bermuda. So during college and after, it's the perfect way to pay for just about everything you'll want.
How to get the Card now.
College is the first sign of success. And because we believe in your potential, we've made it easier to get the American Express Card right now. Whether you're a freshman, senior or grad student, look into our new automatic approval offers. For details, pick up an application on campus.
Or call 1-800-THE-CARD and ask for a student application.
The American Express Card.
Don't Leave School Without It.℠
TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES



Teaching dogs new tricks

Cisco, a mixed breed, watches his owners relax while another dog uses the course.

story by Matt Bunker

photos by Chris Assaf

Woodstock, a Newfoundland, and his master Tom Brant, Manhattan, have trouble getting over one of the obstacles in the dog agility training course.

Charles L. Kramer, inventor of the agility dog training course, is trying to increase public support for the sport and have it recognized by the American Kennel Club.

A K-State professor is leading an effort to gain national recognition for agility dog training, a form of dog training in which dogs complete an obstacle course that includes hurdles and tunnels.

Charles L. Kramer, a professor in the Division of Biology, has been working for more than three years to raise public awareness of the sport and secure official recognition by the American Kennel Club. The AKC is a national body that oversees registration of dogs and awards titles and degrees.

Kramer's efforts appear to be paying off. In a July 28 letter to all AKC clubs, the organization's director of obedience said the sport "has the potential to grow and has the support of the American Kennel Club."

The letter also stated the club will seriously consider granting the sport official recognition by "providing a 'Title' degree for those dogs that qualify."

Kramer said the first agility trial at an AKC dog show was in San Mateo, Calif., in April 1988. Several trials have taken place since then, and six to eight more are scheduled for the fall and winter seasons, Kramer said.

"It's really going," he said.

Kramer said he became excited about promoting agility training after realizing its broad appeal.

"This is a type of training that will open up a way for a great many people to work with dogs who otherwise couldn't," he said.

Kramer's agility course consists of hurdles that the dog must jump and non-hurdle obstacles that the dog must go over, under or through.

"The dog's handler runs with the dog, which is off lead, directing it through the course with verbal commands and hand signals," he said.

In order to complete the course successfully, a dog must negotiate each of 13 obstacles within a maximum time. Kramer said his version of the sport allows for variation in obstacles and in course length.

Kramer said he became aware of the potential of agility dog training after he heard about its success in England.

In 1977, Englishman John Varley developed a version of agility dog training as an entertainment at an English dog show, Kramer said. Varley's background in equestrian jumping convinced him that a similar activity for dogs would appeal to spectators, Kramer said.

The sport was an instant success and quickly received official recognition by The Kennel Club, the most influential dog organization in England, he said.

"Agility is now the most popular dog activity in a country (England) that loves dog activities," Kramer said.

Kramer began his campaign with an article in the October 1985 issue of Front and Finish, a national dog obedience magazine. He writes a monthly column called "Agility" for the publication, he said.

He began designing and building equipment for his version of the sport in late 1985 with help from Manhattan machinist Tennyson Collins. Kramer said his equipment differs from English designs in that it is "portable and easy to set up and take down."

In January 1987, Kramer published "Agility Dog Training." That same year, the Dog Writers' Association of America awarded Kramer's book its prize for "Best Care and Training Book."

Kramer said he also produced a videotape that was published this year.

Kramer said the book and videotape are sold through ads in national dog obedience magazines. They are also available through dog training supply companies and specialty book suppliers, he said.

Kramer said he is pleased with the degree of national acceptance the sport has already attained.

"It's really very exciting right now."

Sue Brown, Manhattan, praises her Alaskan malamute, Kari, after completing a run.

Dog owners assemble a tunnel used in the agility course.

Polls give Bush lead; Quayle not popular

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A second national poll has found Democrat Michael Dukakis closing on George Bush in the presidential race, although a newer survey released Wednesday gave the Republican a slightly better lead.

Both surveys found many voters expressing concern about Bush's running mate, Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana.

The newer poll, an ABC News-Washington Post survey conducted from Sept. 28 through Tuesday, put the race at 51-44 percent with the Republicans in the numerical lead. The poll of 1,196 likely voters had an error margin of about four points.

In the other survey, a Harris poll conducted last week, the Republicans won support from 49 percent of 1,235 likely voters, to 46 percent for the Democrats. It also was a dead heat, given the three-point margin of error.

A Harris poll early last month put the race a bit wider, at 50-44 with Bush and Quayle ahead. Similarly, a CBS News-New York Times poll released Tuesday put the race at 48-46, tightened from 49-44 later last month.

The ABC-Post and Harris polls were released on the night of Quayle's debate with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, the Democratic vice presidential nominee. Like other polls, both found doubts about Quayle's qualifications for office.

In the ABC-Post poll, 40 percent said Quayle was qualified to be vice president, but 33 percent said not; the rest didn't know.

State gets unexpected revenues

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The state treasury continues to bulge with unanticipated revenues, as tax collections in September exceeded previous estimates by $20.8 million, official figures from the Legislative Research Department showed Wednesday.

During the first quarter of the current fiscal year, which began July 1, the state has collected $39.5 million more in tax revenues in its general fund than economic forecasters had predicted.

Of the unanticipated revenue collected in the last three months, $18.4 million, or 47 percent, came from individual income taxpayers.

Another $8 million came from increases in sales tax collections and almost $5 million from the corporate income taxes.

Ryan said the state collected some of the revenues through an income tax "windfall" the state received after Congress changed the federal tax code in 1986. But he added that generally the state's economy has improved — a theme repeated frequently by Republican Gov. Mike Hayden during the past year.

"The trends indicate the economy is on an increase," said Kathy Peterson, Hayden's press secretary. "The jobless rate went down again last month. We've got a whole lot more people out in the work force fueling the economy."

Democrats have contended the higher-than-expected revenue collections are the result of the windfall and have attacked the governor becaue he vetoed two measures that would have decreased local property taxes by $30 million statewide.

In addition, the 1988 Legislature passed a tax reform plan modeled on Hayden's, which returned $35 million of the $135 million windfall to individual taxpayers. On June 30, the state treasury had a surplus of $301.2 million, after it collected $81.6 million more than previously expected.

"The real question is what we're going to do with it when we get back to the Legislature," said House Minority Leader Marvin Barkis, D-Louisburg. "I don't think people want us to keep $300 million in the bank. I think there are a lot of problems the governor needs to confront."

For the three months, the state general fund took in almost $505.5 million, compared to an estimate of $465.9 million. The amount also was 12.7 percent, or $56.8 million, more than the collections during the same period last year.

VERSATILE VALUE!
$39.99 Black, Taupe, & Navy
Dressy, yet affordable. Naturalizer's pretty pump doubles for dress or casual...to go with whatever you wear...wherever you go!
Standing Room Only
1222 Moro
Aggieville
DENA NATURALIZER
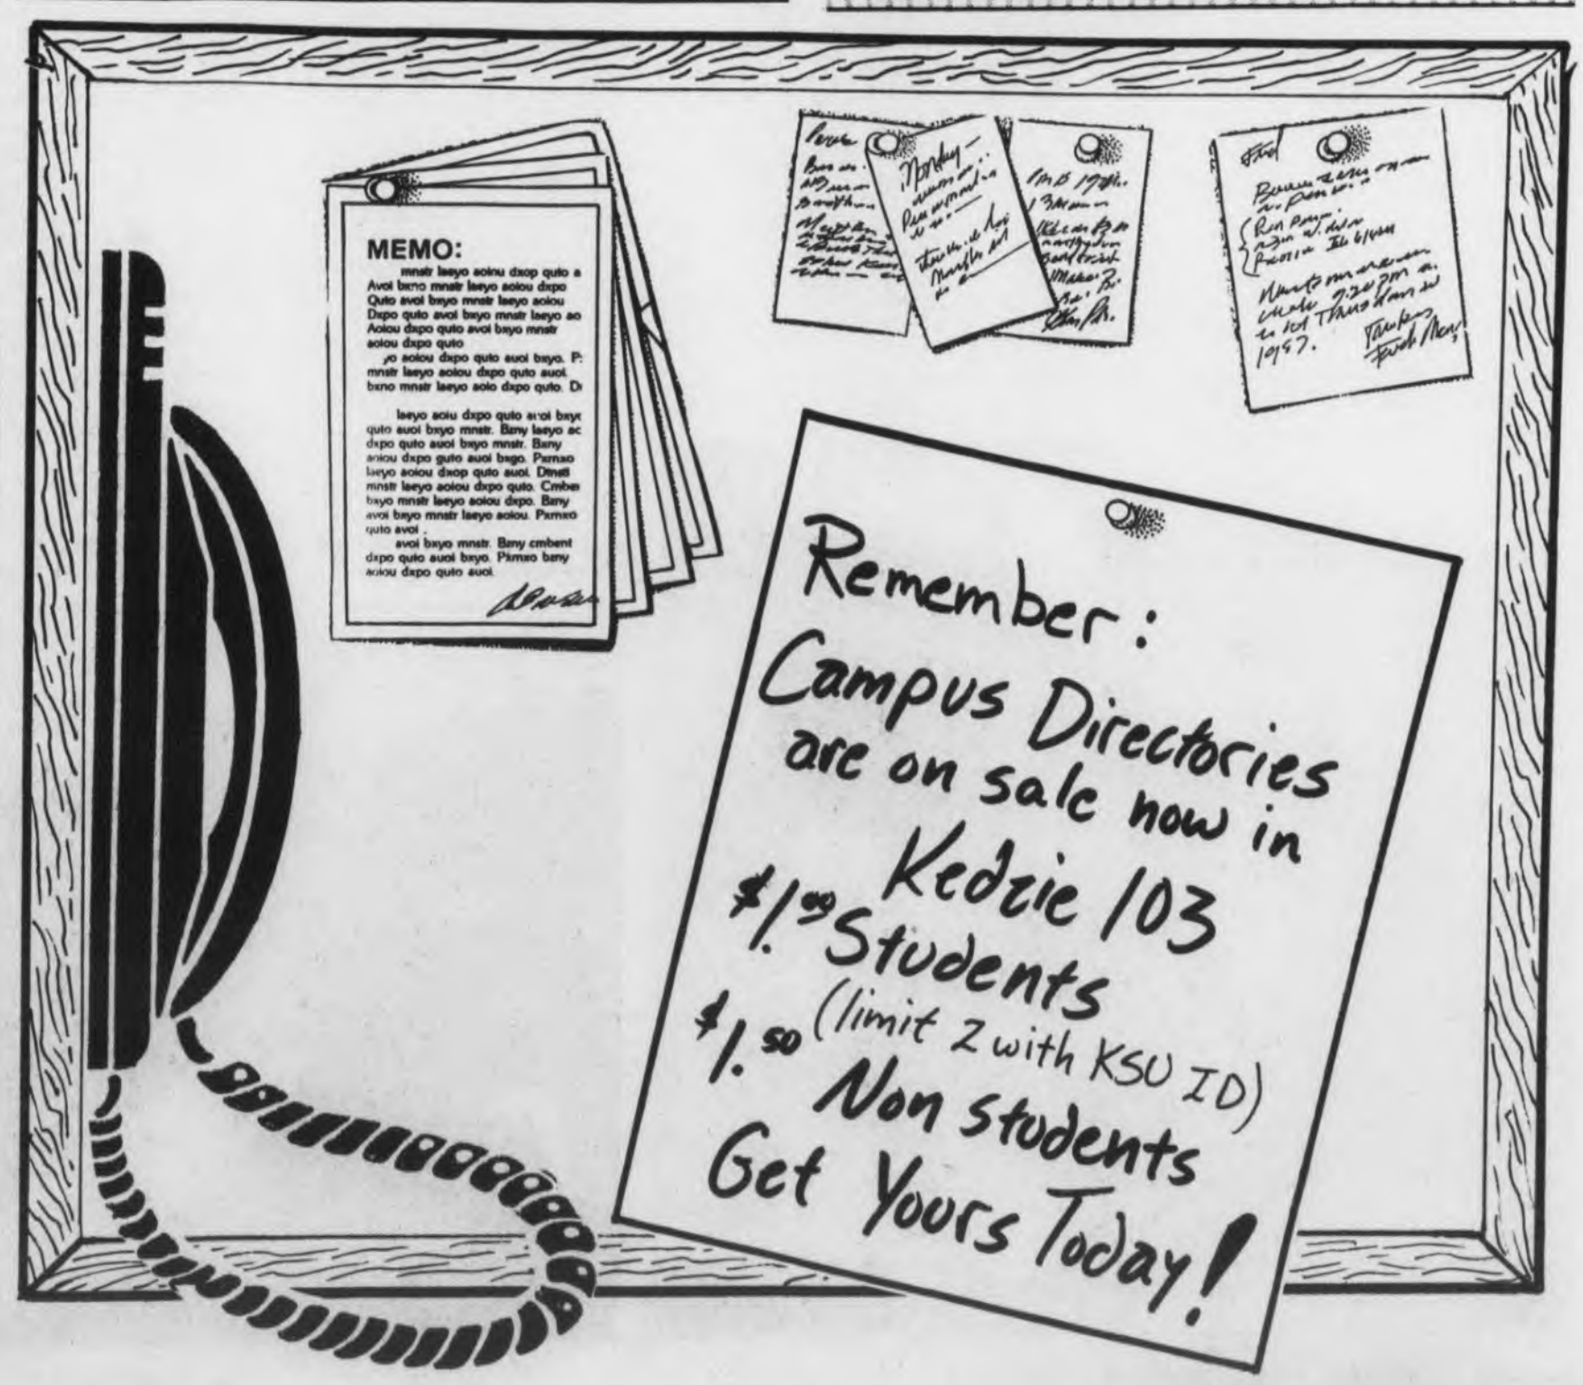
For the way you live!

TACO HUT
ON THE HILL OVERLOOKING WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
Sanchos & Burritos 88¢ each
reg. $1.30
Taco Dinners $1.77
reg. $2.25
(2 tacos, refried beans, salad with picos)
(offer good Oct. 5—10)
Sun.—Thurs. 11 a.m.—11 p.m.
Fri.—Sat. 11 a.m.—12 a.m.
TACO HUT
2809 Claflin 539-2091

LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
Levi Lined & Unlined Denim Jackets
E. Hwy. 24 (2¼ miles east of the Mall)
Mon.-Sat. 9-5:30
Thurs. 9-8:30
Sun. 1-5
776-6715



ADVANTAGES OF DRINKING CIDER INSTEAD OF BEER:
1. NO I.D. required.
2. Higher test scores.
3. Lower breatholizer scores.
4. Better breath. (Especially the morning after.)
5. Lower cost. (Based on average 12 oz. beer = 52¢ Boutz's fresh unpasteurized apple cider 12oz. glass = 36¢) just $3.69 gallon at...
Eastside & Westside Market
east Hwy. 24 by COOP · w. K-18 by Holidome warning: cider left unrefrigerated may be slightly intoxicating!!!

HOLIDAY STYLE
ICE ON ICE
TELL HIM A LITTLE ICE IS ALL IT TAKES TO MELT YOUR HEART.
Pour on the ice. Coolly elegant diamond jewelry that's guaranteed to melt your heart. Ask the man in your life to come in and see our selection of exquisite diamonds from the Ice on Ice Collection. They're sure to have temperatures rising.
DANENBERG'S Holiday JEWELERS
A DIAMOND IS FOREVER.
Across from the Courthouse Plaza Downtown, Manhattan
425 POYNTZ MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

KEYSTONE COLORADO
$156* from
JANUARY 8-15 · LODGING · LIFTS · PARTY · BREAKFASTS · MORE!
Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS 1989
KEYSTONE WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Hotel lodging for 6 days/5 nights • Full day three mountain lift ticket for 4 days with additional days available at reduced rates • Daily continental breakfast at the Comfort Inn • Welcome Poolside Party with complimentary beverages • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/base shuttle service • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.
TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: STEAMBOAT, WINTER PARK AND VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
sunchase tours

The Men of Beta Sigma Psi would like to congratulate the newly tapped Little Sisters of the Golden Rose.

Jan Anderson
Trisha Attebury
Staci Brandyberry
Ann Brenner
Tonja Britt
Laura Burrell
Kathi Clark
Denise Daugherty
Shana Eck
Jennifer Finn
Kristen Good
Lisa Hartsell
Alena Kubicek
Betsy Jennings
Kerrie Lynn
Angie Martin
Rene' Miner
Shonnie Moser
Bridgett Murphy
Lisa Meis
Heidi Nelson
Kristy Parker
Tiffany Peckham
Kelly Reams
Becky Robbins
Lesley Rothlisberger
Geralyn Schell
Darla Schwant
Kelly Smith
Suzanne Smykacz
Jenny Statesman
Collete Stevens
Jeanette Stump
Angela Talarico
Sue Traiger
Mary Vollintine
Julie Wessling
Heather Williams
Kristol Winston
Andrea Woods

K-State's oldest quarterback dies at 98

By Heather Huntington
Collegian Reporter

Ralph Bowlby, K-State's oldest former quarterback, died Tuesday at the age of 98.

Before he died, Bowlby's memories were a bit scrambled, but friends still remember his stories.

Bowlby, a K-Stater in 1908 and 1909, was interested in going to school because he could play football, said Dick Russell, manager of the Bowlby Ranch near Natoma.

"Of course, his parents wanted him to have an education. Education was the one way to do better than your forefathers," he said.

Bowlby played quarterback and end for the 11-man Wildcat team under coach Mike Ahearn, Russell said.

"Mike's Machine," as the team was commonly called, made some history in 1908 with Bowlby's help.

The 'Cats played their first out-of-state game, against Creighton in Omaha, Neb. After the train-ride to Nebraska, several runs by Bowlby led the Wildcats to a 13-point win.

The biggest event of the year, however, was the 23-4 win over Washburn. This was the first-ever football victory over Washburn.

K-State's student newspaper, then called the Student's Herald, announced the victory in a headline that read, "The Hoodoo Broken!"

Even in the early years, K-State and the University of Kansas were very competitive, said Willard Lyness, a 1912 K-State grad.

"KU was usually a little better," he said. "As I remember, K-State's team wasn't very good when I was in school, mainly because they didn't have the students to take part."

Under the direction of Ahearn, however, the team of 1908 managed to finish 6-3.

"The (game) I've heard the most about was where Ralph sat on the sidelines because he had two broken legs," Russell said.

Bowlby was often injured because of his personality, Russell said.

"You have to understand how he was. He was considered a rounder, and the definition of a rounder is he was wilder than Billy Hell. He never did anything the easy way," he said.

Bowlby juggled his time between football and working as a delivery boy for a laundry service on Humboldt Street until the coach informed him he would be better off back home, Russell said.

Bowlby apparently did not spend as much time in class as he did on the football field.

"They kicked him out of school," said Angie Bowlby, his wife. "He wanted to study agriculture, but, because he was a tall husky man, he was good at football. He was more into sports.

"He once told me he was a hero because he made a touchdown. He liked being a hero."

Getting kicked out of school did not seem to dull Bowlby's lifestyle.

In the next few years managed the family ranch and began to travel, Russell said.

Bowlby's house abounds with souvenirs from Africa, South America, China and Europe. Angie has a picture of Ralph sitting on a camel in front of the Egyptian pyramids.

In the 1950s he wrote "The World as Seen by an Old Cowman," a column for the local newspapers.

Bowlby wrote in a column about one of his trips to Africa, "I kind of envied some of those black people in Africa. Sittin' around in the shade shining up their teeth for the next meal. They didn't give a damn if prices were rolled up or down — they didn't aim to buy or sell anything anyway. Had a notion to shack up with them for awhile."

Although he loved to travel, Bowlby always enjoyed coming home to work on the family ranch. He was especially fond of the livestock, Russell said.

"He took care of his horses. I mean he was good to them, but he rode hell for leather," he said.

Although Bowlby lived a active life, he never forgot about K-State.

"He was definitely a supporter of K-State. There for awhile he never missed a football game or the rodeo," Russell said.

Angie has an old purple and white sweater, which she handles with care.

"He always said, 'Don't touch the sweater.' He was so proud of his sweater."

'Huskers down 'Cats in three-game sweep

By The Collegian Staff

LINCOLN, Neb. — In Lincoln, Neb., they have a volleyball program that the football team at the University of Nebraska would be proud of.

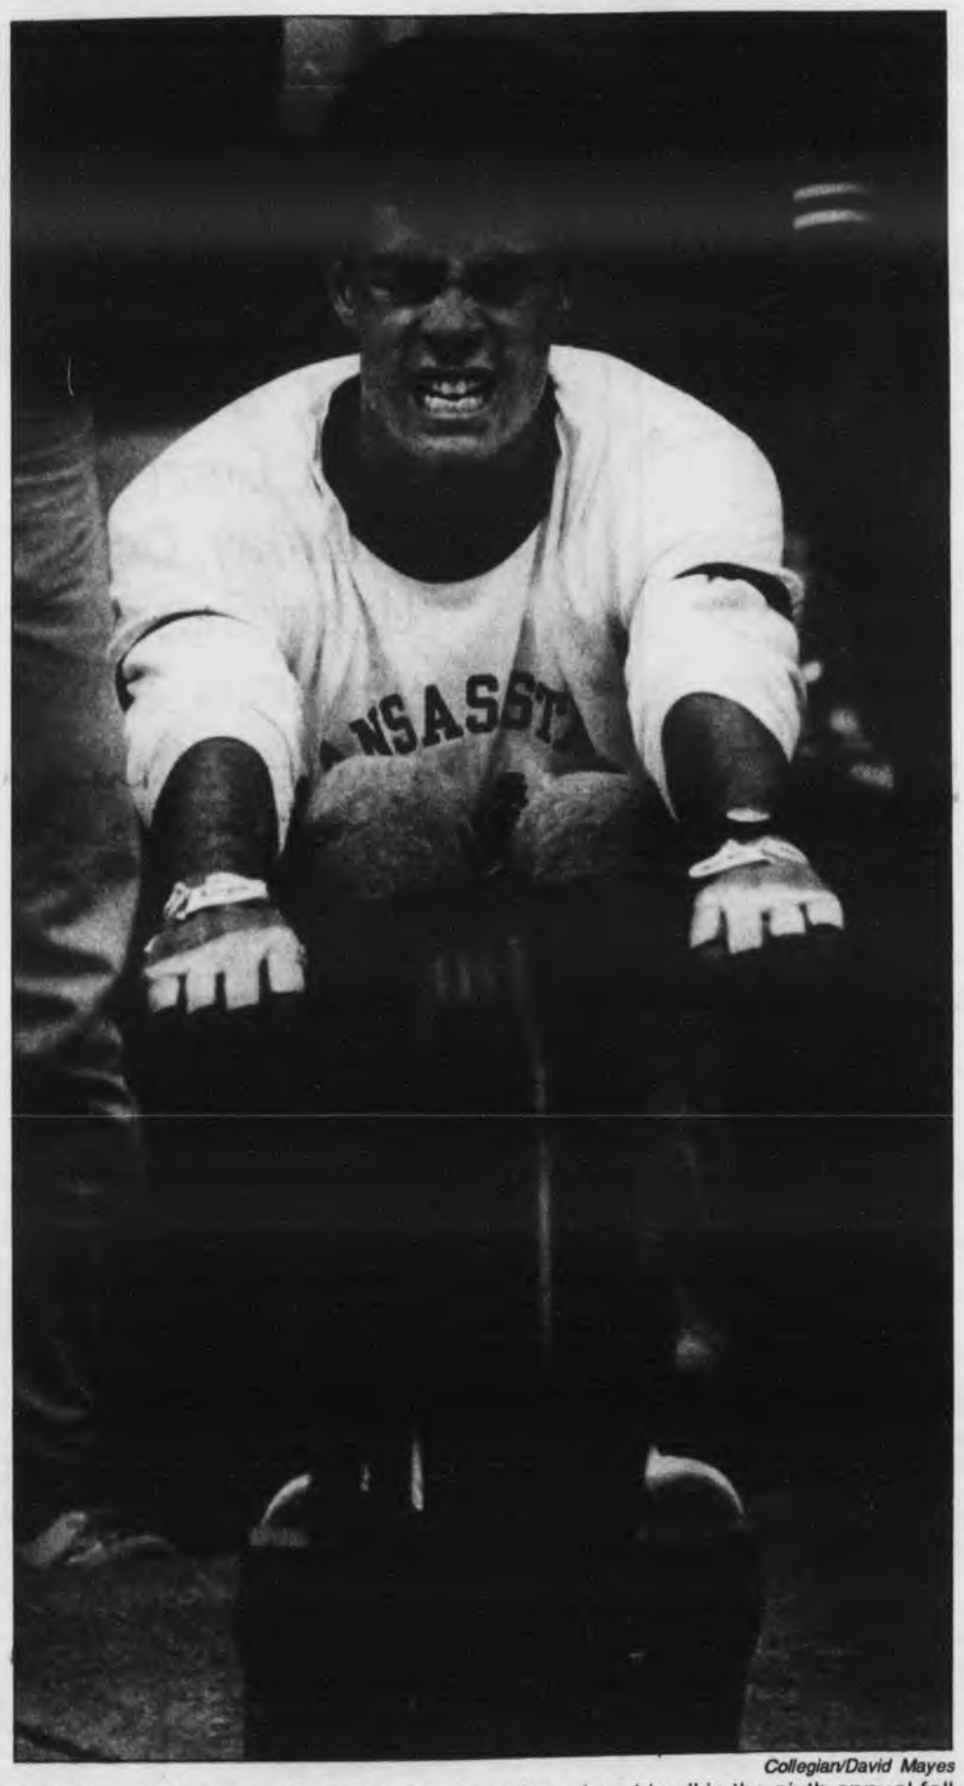
The fourth-ranked 'Huskers, who have won all 12 Big Eight Conference volleyball titles, showed off their talents in a 15-9, 15-11, 15-8 sweep of K-State Wednesday night.

It took Nebraska, however, over 90 minutes to dispose of the pesky Wildcats.

"This is the best we have scored in Lincoln in three or four years," said K-State coach Scott Nelson. "Nebraska seemed to take over the match when things got close."

The loss was the seventh straight for the Wildcats after eight straight wins to open the season. However, Nelson said his team is showing signs of bouncing back.

"Our intensity level is back where it was at the beginning of the season," he said. "We are still giving up some unforced errors that are hurting us. We just need to continue to improve."



Valerie Kastens and Shawnee Call had nine kills each to lead K-State. Amy Dodson and Lynda Harshbarger each added six.

Nebraska is now 12-3 overall and 1-1 in Big Eight play while K-State is 8-7 overall and 0-2 in the conference.

The Wildcats will get a shot at their first conference win on Friday when the Colorado Buffaloes come to town for a 7:30 p.m. match. The match is the first for K-State in Ahearn Field House since Sept. 20.

"It will be a very tough match," Nelson said of the Buffaloes. "They are a legitimate threat to our upper division finish (in the conference)."

Crew works out for profit

Collegian/David Mayes

Carl Albrecht, freshman in electrical engineering, gives his all in the sixth annual fall "erg-a-thon." The erg-a-thon was Wednesday between Seaton Hall and the Union. Albrecht rowed 5,097 meters in 20 minutes.

By Susan Reimer
Collegian Reporter

The sixth annual fall "erg-a-thon" was Wedensday on the island between Seaton Hall and the Union to raise money for the K-State Rowing Association.

Coach Don Rose expects to raise about $3,000 for the team as participants gather pledges from fellow students.

Before proceding any further, the obvious question is, what's an erg?

An erg is a machine used for training rowers in the winter when they can't get on the water. And the machine is versatile because there are three ways to train on the erg, coach Don Rose said.

The first is a long-distance pace, which increases strength and cardiovascular fitness.

"You see what people can really do. You can't fool Mother Nature and you can't fool the erg."

—Don Rose crew coach

The second is a sprint pace, which tests the cardiovascular system and is "very tough on the athlete," Rose said.

The final test is actual work performed while in the boat.

"You see what people can really do," Rose said. "You can't fool Mother Nature and you can't fool the erg."

Rose said the last method is very important, because on the water there is no way to measure how hard each individual person is pulling.

Rose said that when a man breaks 5,000 meters in 20 minutes, and a woman breaks 4,000 meters, it means the person is "in shape and has guts."

Though most of the proceeds from the "erg-a-thon" will go for day-to-day operations of the crew team, Rose said, more ergs may be purchased in the future.

"We only have two hours a day to work out 80 people on 10 ergs. We need more ergs so we can row our guts out," Rose said.

Mike Lockas, senior in mechanical engineering technology and freshmen women's crew coach, said the "erg-a-thon" is a great way to bring in much-needed funds.

"Anything that brings crew to campus is good for the team," Lockas said.

Kirstin Wood, senior in information systems and a member of the women's varsity team, said crew takes a lot of dedication.

"We train hard and put in a lot of hours, but when we are in a race it is worth every step we have run, every meter we have erged and every early morning we have practiced," Wood said.

Dodgers rough up Cone to even NL series at 1-1

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Rookie Tim Belcher allowed five hits in 8⅓ innings and the Dodgers chased pitcher-reporter David Cone with five runs in the first two innings as Los Angeles beat the New York Mets 6-3 Wednesday night to even the National League playoffs at a game apiece.

In an article written for the New York Daily News, Cone said Los Angeles reliever Jay Howell looked "like a high school pitcher" in the ninth inning of Game 1 when the Mets scored three times for a 3-2 victory. Cone also said Dodgers starter Orel Hershiser was lucky to shut out the Mets for eight innings.

Lucky or not, Belcher beat Cone in Game 2. Belcher, who won nine of his last 11 decisions to finish 12-6, had his only problems against Keith Hernandez. The Mets first-baseman hit a two-run homer in the fourth and finished Belcher with a run-scoring single in the ninth.

Belcher, who struck out a season-high 10 batters, allowed a leadoff double by Len Dykstra in the ninth. Dykstra went to third on a grounder, and scored on a single by Hernandez.

Belcher was replaced by former Met Jesse Orosco, who yielded a single to Darryl Strawberry that advanced Hernandez to second.

That brought on Alejandro Pena, who got the save by getting Kevin McReynolds to foul out to third and, after walking Howard Johnson to load the bases, induced Gary Carter to fly out to right.

Mike Marshall singled in runs in each of the first two innings off Cone and added a third hit to start a rally in the fifth.

Cone, 20-3 with a 2.22 earned-run average, allowed a run in the first and four in the second. In two innings, he allowed five hits, hit a batter and committed a balk.

NL Playoffs
Dodgers 6, Mets 3

Prior to Game 2, the Dodgers posted Cone's article on the clubhouse wall and said his words showed no respect.

The Dodgers then went out and showed Cone why they deserved some.

Mickey Hatcher walked with one out in the first and moved to second on a balk. During the season, Cone had a club-high 10 balks.

Hatcher scored when Marshall blooped a shallow fly to left field that fell in front of the sliding McReynolds and just beyond shortstop Johnson.

Cone, who won his last eight decisions, hit Jeff Hamilton with a pitch with one out in the second. In 231⅓ innings, Cone hit only four batters.

Henderson haunts former team

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Dave Henderson, a former Boston postseason hero, singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning and the Oakland Athletics beat the Red Sox 2-1 Wednesday in the first game of the American League playoffs.

Jose Canseco's home run had held up since the fourth inning as Oakland's Dave Stewart and Bruce Hurst hooked up in a pitching duel. But Wade Boggs hit a sacrifice fly in the seventh, setting up Henderson's heroics on a chilly afternoon at Fenway Park.

Carney Lansford hit Hurst's first pitch in the eighth for a double and Henderson grounded the next pitch into right field for the go-ahead single.

Henderson, cheered in the pregame introductions, was Boston's saviour in the 1986 playoffs against California. His home run rescued the Red Sox when they were one strike from elimination in Game 5, and Boston rallied to win the series. Henderson went on to bat .400 in the World Series loss to the New York Mets, but was traded to San Francisco midway through the next season.

Oakland's bullpen, which held Boston to three runs in 35 innings this year, did the job again and preserved the lead. Rick Honeycutt

AL Playoffs
A's 2, Boston 1

relieved Stewart with the bases loaded and one out in the seventh and kept Boggs to a sacrifice fly. In the second, Boggs — a .373 career hitter with the bases loaded — struck out in the same situation, the first time he had fanned in 22 lifetime at-bats against Stewart.

Boggs ended the game by striking out with runners on first and second.

Dennis Eckersley, another former Boston star, finished with two shutout innings. Eckersley, who won 20 games as a starter for the Red Sox in 1978, led the majors with 45 saves this season and Oakland's bullpen had a record 64 saves.

The Athletics won the season series against Boston 9-3 and outhomered them 13-1. Oakland again showed off its pitching and power and took a lead into Game 2 Thursday night, with Storm Davis going against Boston's Roger Clemens.

Stewart, a 21-game winner, was masterful through the middle innings. He retired 10 successive batters, starting with the strikeout of Boggs in the second, and had little trouble until the seventh.

Jim Rice walked with one out and Jody Reed was hit by a pitch. Rich Gedman followed with a line drive to center field and Henderson slipped and fell, but kept it to single that loaded the bases. It was doubtful whether Henderson would have caught the ball; more likely, it would have dropped in, just like Gary Carter's winning double in Game 1 of the National League playoffs.

Honeycutt, a left-hander, took over to face the left-handed Boggs, who led the majors with a .366 average. Boggs hit a line drive to left fielder Tony Phillips, playing his first game in front of the Green Monster as a replacement for ailing Dave Parker, for a tying sacrifice fly.

Hurst, chosen to start the opener over Boston's other 18-game winner, Clemens, because of a 13-2 record at home, gave up six hits in a complete game. One of the hits was Canseco's long home run through a stiff crosswind and over the left-field wall.

Canseco led the majors with 42 home runs and 124 RBI this season. The home run brought cries of "steroids, steroids," from the fans, referring to allegations the big slugger had bulked up on the dangerous substance. Canseco, who has strongly denied using steriods, played back to the crowd, giving a shrug that implied, "Who? Me?"

Sports Briefly

Gretzky to make debut as King

After leading Edmonton to four Stanley Cup championships in five years, Wayne Gretzky has moved his high-scoring act to Los Angeles where he leads the Kings against the Detroit Red Wings Thursday night.

Eight other games are on tap Thursday as the NHL begins its 72nd season.

In other other openers Thursday night, it's Toronto at Boston, Quebec at Hartford, Montreal at Buffalo, New Jersey at Philadelphia, the New York Rangers at Chicago, St. Louis at Minnesota, the New York Islanders at Calgary, and Winnipeg at Vancouver.

The Oilers, going after their third straight Stanley Cup and fifth in six years, begin the regular season on Friday night when they play host to the Islanders.

Surgery on linebacker successful

LAWRENCE — Outside linebacker Lance Flachsbarth underwent knee surgery Wednesday and Coach Glen Mason said he was optimistic about the outcome.

"It's not as bad as I thought before, but he's still possibly down for the year," Mason said.

The Jayhawks worked on the team defensive line, which has several players in new positions.

Government officials deny negotiating for hostages

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department on Wednesday dismissed as "pure fantasy" an assertion by an Iranian opposition leader that the Reagan administration secretly negotiated with Tehran for the release of American hostages in Lebanon.

"There have been no negotiations, no direct contacts between the United States and Iranian officials," said spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley. "There may be private individuals who misrepresented themselves as speaking on behalf of the U.S. government. They are not."

Former Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Tuesday in Paris that Richard Lawless, a former U.S. official, had negotiated in behalf of Vice President George Bush with a representative of Iranian Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani.

In reply, Oakley said: "We have flatly denied anyone is speaking on behalf of the U.S. government."

Lawless, president of a Washington-based trade investment firm known as U.S.-Asia, denied through a business partner that he had engaged in any talks.

In a statement Lawless relayed through partner Therese Shaheen, he said, "I categorically deny, and state for the record, that I am involved either directly or indirectly in any discussions or negotiations with any party related to attempts to secure the release of hostages in Lebanon."

White House denies giving CIA 'license to kill' for terrorists

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House denied Wednesday that intelligence authorizations signed by President Reagan in the mid-1980s gave CIA agents latitude to use assassinations in the fight against terrorism.

Reagan said he was "quite upset" about a published report saying there had been such authorizations and said his 1981 executive order prohibiting assassinations "continues until this day."

White House Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater acknowledged that language in two intelligence findings in 1984 and 1985 subsequently was rescinded by the National Security Council, though he wouldn't say why.

Reagan's spokesman took strong exception to a Washington Post report Wednesday which said phrasing in the earlier documents amounted to a "license to kill" for intelligence agents.

Fitzwater suggested that the Post story was an attempt to embarrass the administration during the election campaign. But he stopped short of saying precisely that, telling reporters to "make your own judgment."

"I think this is an extraordinary cheap shot. It's not true," he said.

Mr. GG's

Hair styling for Men & Women

PERM SPECIAL!

$10 off Regular Perm

With KAREN

(5 years experience)

Coupon Expires 10-31-88

1214½ Moro-Aggieville

539-9920

Parkside

conoco & U-HAUL

Fall Special

- lube
- oil change
- oil filter
- check antifreeze
- check belts/hoses
- up to 5 qts. oil

Get your car ready for winter for $13.95 by Appt.

537-1201 1026 Poyntz Ave.

Memorial Hospital Auxiliary's

Arts and Crafts Fair

Friday, Oct. 7—12 a.m.-8 p.m.

Saturday, Oct. 8—10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Come see the more than 100 exibits at

Cico Park

Pottorf & Casement Halls

WHAT ARE YOU DOING SAT., OCT. 15th?

HOW ABOUT DOING SOME GOOD?

—We need volunteers in Valley Falls, Kansas on Saturday, October 15, 1988 for a day of helping your rural Kansas neighbors fix up their community recreation facilities.

—LUNCH and TRANSPORTATION are provided

•INDIVIDUALS•GROUPS•CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS•

All are welcome to VOLUNTEER their services for the day. No special skills required.

If you're interested in volunteering or need more information Please contact:

MINDY DUTTON or PAM KLAUS

Eisenhower Room 14A

532-6900

Sponsored by: KSU's S.A.V.E. program (Structural Assistance Volunteer Effort)

"YOU DON'T NEED TO TAKE A LOT OF TIME TO DO A LOT OF GOOD."

Paid for by College of Arts & Sciences

Come

SHAKE YOUR THANG

Wed., Oct. 5 Noon-1 p.m.

Union Court Yard

Saturday Oct. 8

Union Catskeller

9 p.m.-1 a.m.

Ladies in free 9-10:30 p.m.

--Just a little message to let you know we wanna party!--

The Jam the Box Crew

DB92 KSDB 91.9

ESTABLISHED 1920

THE Stevensons CLOTHING COMPANY

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS, A YOUNG MAN WOULD GET A FREE NECKTIE WITH A MAJOR PURCHASE.

The Good Old Days are Back.

Buy any suit or sportcoat/slacks combination and get your choice of any necktie in the store FREE. (Choose from our large collection of ties, values up to $30.)

New fall and winter suits and sportcoats are in stock. Stop by today and check them out.

Offer expires October 29, 1988

1342 WESTLOOP PLACE • WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER MANHATTAN, KANSAS (913) 539-8081

THE UPC ADVENTURE

UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE

Bicycle Touring Through The Flint Hills!

When: Oct. 8 & 9

Where: Milford Lake Area

Cost: $15

Includes: Three Meals, Snacks and Transportation for gear and supplies.

Today is the last day of sign-up!

Activities Center on 3rd floor of the K-State Union 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

k-state union upc outdoor rec.

Trip Includes

5 nights lodging at Pine Ridge Condominiums in Breckenridge, Colorado with fireplaces, washer & dryer, telephone, tv and sauna

Hot tub and heated swimming pool

4 days Breckenridge lift tickets

4 days equipment rental

Pre-party

On-site 'Nuts and Bolts' Party

His or hers gift pack—filled with free samples of top quality products

On-site trip sponsor

Schedule of activities—where, when, and what is happening.

Cost: $263 or $231 with own equipment.

Sign-up NOW! 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

Activities Center 3rd floor of Union

•Limited space available

SKI

k-state union upc travel

CHIEFS vs. Raiders

OCTOBER 16, 1988

$22

INCLUDES UPPER RESERVED TICKETS AND ROUND-TRIP TRANSPORTATION

Sign-up: Activities Center on the 3rd floor of the K-State Union 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

Only a few spaces left!

SIC 'EM CHIEFS!

Michael Keaton is BEETLEJUICE

The Name In Laughter From The Hereafter

How do a couple of nice young homebody ghosts get rid of a family of pretentious human beings who have taken over their beloved home? They call on Beetlejuice! Stars Michael Keaton, Geena Davis and Catherine O'Hara. Rated PG-13

This Friday and Saturday, 7 & 9:30 p.m. & *Sunday, 4 p.m., Forum Hall, All shows $1.75 *Special Sunday Feature

"HILARIOUS – A MUCH BIGGER GUT-BUSTER THAN 'GHOSTBUSTERS.' Keaton's 'BEETLEJUICE' is one of the biggest, baddest wolves a ghost movie has ever unleashed, a 'polter-gas.'" – David Edelstein THE VILLAGE VOICE

k-state union upc feature films

The exquisite adaptation of Marcel Pagnol's beloved novel about shattered dreams among Provencal peasant farmers in the 1920's. Breathtaking cinematography and an extraordinary cast augment the poignant story. (In French with English subtitles)

Rated PG

Today, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall, $1.75

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

JEAN de FLORETTE

This award-winning cult science-fiction film stars Keith Carradine and Sylvester Stalone as drivers competing in a futuristic car race where points are scored by running down hapless pedestrians.

Rated R

This Fri. and Sat., Midnight, Forum Hall, $1.75

DEATH RACE 2000

DAVID CARRADINE

A New World Picture

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

For more information on location, times and prices of Union movies call the K-State Union 24-hour movieline at 532-6570.

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not disciminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

FREE CATALOG
of Government Books
Send for your copy today!
Free Catalog
Box 37000
Washington DC 20013-7000

1 Announcements

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations. Today!

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

Having a party?
Need music?
C. G. Disco
call Clyde: (913)784-5604

99¢ slices
every Thursday
PYRAMID PIZZA

WHAT IS the highest grade Jethro Bodine completed? If you know the answer to this question, call Domino's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order, 539-0561.

SOUTHERN SUN
THE TANNING SALON
Keep your tan glowing with us
776-8060
519 N. 12th

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

GET YOUR Scrub Shirts only $10. Westloop Medical Supply, 1231 Westloop.

HAIR SHACK, 415 N. Third, 776-7421. Fall Specials: Perms $20- $25 with cut/ set. Sculptured nails $25, call Mona. Style/ cut/ blowdry $9. Monday- Saturday 8a.m.- 5p.m. We're unique.

IF TRAINS interest you- prototype or model- call Pat Lenahan at 532-3375. Considering formation of club.

MILITARY CUTS, $7. Open Monday, 1- 7p.m. Now Hairstyling, 110 N. Third. 776-7808.

PARTY!? NEED a DJ? Optimum Output! is the answer. Large system, professional equipment, lowest prices. Chris, 532-3361.

PENTECOSTAL CONQUERERS Bible Club. Every Wednesday 7p.m., Union 202. Bring your Bible, join us. 537-4441.

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

ONE-BEDROOM furnished apartment, two blocks west of campus with off-street parking. 539-7811 or 1-456-2090.

ROOM AND board for female/ married couple in Junction City in return for occasional shopping/ errands. Call collect, (816)885-2830.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

EXCEPTIONALLY CLEAN one-bedroom, walk-in closet, dining/ living room, kitchen and bath in a six-plex. $265. Phone 537-7087.

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. Partially furnished. Call Tim at 539-7975.

QUIET, WELL-MAINTAINED one-bedroom apartment close to KSU for lease to non-smoking adult. Laundry, parking, paid heat and air conditioning and more. $240. No waterbeds, pets. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1939 FORD three-quarter ton pickup. Body in very good condition, runs perfect, new tires, tag. Call before 8a.m., (913)457-3440.

1982 DATSUN 280Z fully equipped, five-speed, t-top. 537-9351.

EXTRA CLEAN 1966 Chrysler Newport four-door, what a boat! $450 or best offer. 776-9925 anytime.

7 Child Care

INFANT AND child care in my home, Cico Park area. 537-9351.

8 Computers

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

CHURCH NURSERY attendant needed Sunday mornings 8:15a.m. to 12:15p.m. Must be 18 years of age or older. Complete application at 115 Courthouse Plaza, Monday through Friday between 8:30a.m. and noon, and 1- 3:30p.m. Application deadline Oct. 12.

EXCITING CONCEPT! Casino-style table operators. Salary plus weekly bonus, plus tips. Exciting, fun positions available at the Hat Creek Company Saloon. Need attractive, dependable and professionally minded individuals to work part-time evenings. High income potential and flexible schedules. No experience necessary, training provided. Coeds, don't be bashful. Sounds interesting? Applications taken and interviews held by Casino Concepts personnel on Saturday, Oct. 8th from noon- 4p.m. at the Hat Creek Company Saloon, 215 E. Eighth, Junction City, Kansas. If further information is necessary, call Casino Concepts, 1-800-843-2030. If not, see you on Saturday.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, and juniors: Get paid to train in the summer to become Marine Corps officers after graduation. Aviation and financial aid available. Call collect, 1-841-1821.

MARKETING POSITIONS open with Manhattan business. Knowledge of media, promotions and layout skills necessary. Submit resume to Box 9, in care of K-State Collegian, 103 Kedzie Hall.

ON-CAMPUS TRAVEL representative or organization needed to promote Spring Break trip to Florida or Texas. Earn money, free trips and valuable work experience. Call Inter-Campus Programs. 1-800-433-7747.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART- OR FULL-TIME experienced help wanted. Must work at least half-days plus Saturdays. Master Lawn and Landscape. Call 539-2842 between 12 and 2p.m.

Harvest Inn Motel & Torchlight Lounge
Immediate openings for night-time positions:
—desk clerks —cocktail waitresses
—night auditers —doormen
—bartenders
Apply in person at 1001 E. 6th St.
Junction City, KS

NAVY MANAGEMENT
Math, Engineering and Physical Science Majors with 3.3 GPA, earn $1,000 per month during junior and senior years plus $4,000 upon entry. Find out more about the Navy's Engineer Officer Candidate Program, call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

PAY DAY! Beginning salary $3.60/hour. All shifts for waiter and waitresses; Mexican Tuesday and Thursday 10:30-2:00; hotline server, Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10:30-1:15 and 10:20-2:00; cashier Monday through Friday 8:00-1:30 and Monday through Friday 1:30-4:00; sandwich Monday through Friday 6:00-10:30; ice cream Monday through Friday 10:30-1:30; office assistant, hours will vary. Apply now at the K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. Food Handler's Card a must.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT- temporary, full-time, requires B.S. in biochemistry or related field. Experience with animal care, RIAs, peptide synthesis and general lab procedures required. Submit vitae and three references by Oct. 17, 1988. Position starts Oct. 24, 1988. Contact: Dr. Dolores Takemoto, department of biochemistry, Burt Hall 203, KSU, 532-7009. KSU is Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

SPRING BREAK Tour Promoter- Escort. Energetic person, (M/F/), to take sign-ups for our Florida and/ or South Padre tours. We furnish all materials for a successful promotion. Good Pay and Fun. Call Campus Marketing at 1-800-777-2270.

STUDENT PROGRAMMERS: Responsible programming position, 20 to 30 hours/ week. Graduate, as well as undergraduate students encouraged to apply. Long-term employment given preference. Apply in person to Receptionist, Administrative User Services, Anderson 21, by Monday, 5p.m., Oct. 10.

STUDENT WITH experience in stripping and refinishing furniture needed to strip and refinish four pieces of antique furniture. Reply c/o Collegian Box 8.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS, full- or part-time. Apply in person, Seven Dolors Child Care, Eighth and Colorado.

VALENTINO'S: NOW hiring for driver, pizza table and dishroom positions. Please apply in person at 3019 Anderson.

VISTA DRIVE-IN is now taking applications for part- and full-time help. Must be able to work some noon shifts. Apply in person.

WANTED TO hire part-time help on commercial hog, cattle and crop farm. If interested, call (913)457-3440 before 8a.m.

WORKERS FOR costume shop in Aggieville. Fun job putting together costumes display work and sales. Shop will be open Oct. 15- Nov. 2. Apply in person at 608 N. 12th Street, Monday through Friday between 2 and 5p.m. Ask for Betty.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: CASIO Scientific calculator. To claim, call 539-8687.

FOUND: NECKLACE near Union. To identify and claim, call 532-6321.

FOUND: ONE kitten, orange color, University Inn parking lot. Call 539-6355.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

1982 CSR Kawasaki, Baldwin organ. 539-7210.

ALPINE CAR five-band equalizer, separate power amp and digital time delay. $110 or best offer, Chris 532-3361.

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

POPCORN, WHITE Grade "A" 50-pound bags for just $15. Call Troy at 537-6886.

SIP N' DIP
HOT TUB RENTALS
537-1825
ask about our $75 Discount.

BRAS•BRAS•BRAS
32A 32B 32C 32D 32DD
34A 34B 34C 34D 34DD
36A 36B 36C 36D 36DD
38A 38B 38C 38D 38DD
We have your size!
Patricia's
UNDERCOVER
Lingerie
1224 Moro Aggieville

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1983 INTERCEPTOR 750. Looks brand new, runs great. Vance and Hines exhaust. $1,600. 539-8086, Kerry.

1985 700 Nighthawk S, black and blue. 6,000 miles. Phone 532-5279.

1986 YAMAHA Fazer FZX700S, Black/ 'Passion' Red/ Chrome, low miles, showroom condition, two helmets, best offer, 532-3420.

17 Musical Instruments

CERWIN- VEGA Bass guitar cabinet with Sunn 18" speaker. Wheels, handles. $125. 539-2401.

KRAMER GUITAR, metallic blue, Floyd Rose Tremolo. Make me an offer. 539-9309.

Hayes House of Music
D. O. D.
Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

18 Personals

DIANA, I Love You. Chas.

FIGI'S EVANS, Jones, Bitterman- Are you flowin'? How about them late nighters? Sack offs and study breaks are my favorites! White diamond flour, black star feed, pink carnation...? Only 10 more years! Thanks for your support. Davenport.

COOKIE- DON'T know? Unless the color of the Royal Purple Passion Pad unleashes some hidden talents. Buns.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

INAMORATA "INTEND" to learn more information. Bored? We've never dated but spent some time together.

LA LA: Happy 18th. You finally made it. Thanks for being a great roommate and friend. Love, Sleeze.

MILLILITER- HAPPY Birthday! Hope it's great 'cause you deserve the best! Love ya lots,-?

PHI DELT Huffy- Happy Birthday! The Big 20. Love, your four Tri Delt girlfriends.

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE: Parakeet, one year old, blue and yellow. Cage, toys, food included. $10. 537-4811.

FREE- TWO adorable tabby kittens. Looking for a new home. Both litter trained. 776-0678.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

FOR RENT: Big-screen TV. $49.95 per day, extended rates available. Call 776-8309.

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will type papers, theses and dissertations, letters, etc. at reasonable rates. 776-5907.

FOR ALL word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY will do typing. Call Ruth 537-2211, evenings 539-8768.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, professional documents, resumes, etc., laser printer quality. Call 1-494-2279 after 5p.m.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

WORD PROCESSING: Hire a professional for your papers, dissertations and manuscripts. Scharmann Word Processing 539-3221.

RESUMES•LETTERS•PAPERS
Professionally typeset; letter quality printer
CLAFLIN BOOKS & COPIES
Corner Denison & Claflin
776-3771

23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. $150 plus one-half utilities. In complex one block from campus. Call 537-2955.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted immediately. $135 plus one-third utilities. One block from campus, nice and clean. Call 776-3788 (Rebecca).

NON-SMOKING ROOMMATE. Opportunity for serious student. $150.00 plus share utilities. 776-9083.

NON-SMOKING FEMALE to share two-bedroom furnished apartment with Christian female. $152.99 plus one-half utilities. 539-9564.

ROOMMATE TO share nice large furnished three-bedroom, two-bath apartment house with washer/ dryer. Rent $120. Call 776-4984 after 5:30p.m.

TWO ROOMMATES wanted, own rooms, next to Aggieville, one block from campus. $130. Call 537-2854 or 539-4641, both after 5p.m.

24 Situation Wanted

NEED AN odd job done? Something repaired? Can fix most anything. Call Frank, 776-0447.

WANTED A bass player for rock band. If interested, call 776-1691.

28 Adoption

HAPPILY MARRIED California couple, with lots of love and security, wish to adopt a white baby up to age two. All expenses paid. Totally legal. Please call Jeanie collect. (213)278-6161. Thank you.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

Bloom County

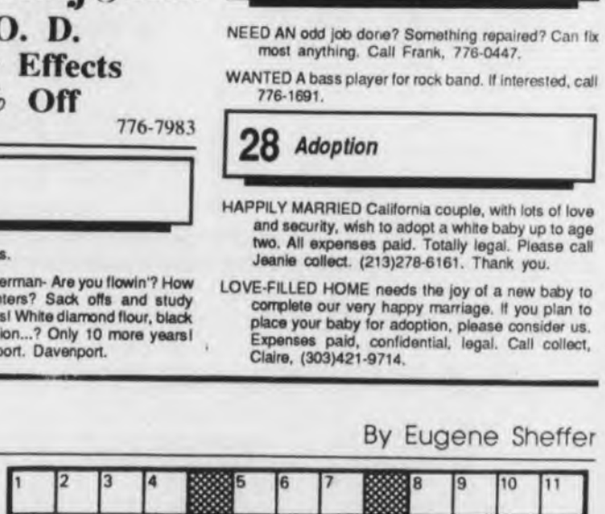
By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz



Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Food fish
5 Bro's sib
8 Oscar Madison, for one
12 Capitol worker
13 Mine output
14 Buster Brown's dog
15 Opposite of "sans"
16 Director Brooks
17 Competent
18 Calm
20 Search out
22 Postal Creed word
23 "All About —" (movie)
24 Crazy
27 Needle-like knife
32 Author Levin
33 Pitcher part
34 Spinning toy
35 South Carolina state tree
38 Santa's grime
39 Jet follower
40 Today
42 Greek letters
45 Whorled shells
49 Tax follower
50 Keats work
52 Fred and Wilma's pet
53 Singing voice
54 "Yes, Captain"
55 Eastern prince
56 Othello, e.g.
57 Crimson
58 Do or sol

DOWN
1 Health resorts
2 "... — you any wool?"
3 Like some cheeses
4 Pour
5 Maugham's middle name
6 Anger
7 Egotist's concern?
8 Suffer from lack
9 Opera book
10 Gawk
11 Borscht base
19 Fro's counterpart
21 Sushi fish
24 Party staple
25 Coach Parseghian
26 Like Tiny Tim's voice
28 Make lace
29 Nicholson-Streep movie
30 It sounds like "two"
31 Choose
36 Falling star
37 Air schedule abbr.
38 Borg's native land
41 Surprised sound
42 Streetcar
43 Angel topper
44 Fly high
46 VIP's wheels
47 Make a scarf
48 Like some losers?
51 Coloring agent

Solution time: 26 mins.

A	L	M	S		L	O	G		A	D	A	D
D	E	E	P		E	W	E		W	A	V	E
D	A	T	E	P	A	L	M		A	T	O	M
A	R	E	N	A			S	E	R	E	N	E
			D	Y	N	E		B	E	L
S	E	A	S		A	R	A	B		I	M	P
U	R	N		A	D	I	T	S		N	E	A
M	A	T		R	A	C	E		D	E	N	T
		E	L	M		A	S	O	R
M	E	D	U	S	A			N	U	R	S	E
O	L	A	N		U	P	T	O	D	A	T	E
R	A	T	A		N	E	O		G	I	L	L
O	N	E	R		T	R	Y		E	N	O	S

Yesterday's answer 10-6

CRYPTOQUIP

10-6

P K V Y I K C T T D Q I G T C Y Q H C S T Q V F H B F Y Q G V P B C Q B D O D V S H C D G Q O

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: THOSE TALL DANCERS AUDITIONING FOR A CHORUS LINE GOT A KICK OUT OF IT.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals P

Tickets

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

senting the tickets they plan to buy, said Jim Gewecke, senior in marketing and member of the committee.

"The Student Senate has said that there is no minimum and no maximum amount of times we can call roll," Gewecke said. "Just because we call two roll calls one day doesn't mean we couldn't call roll every two minutes the next day."

"You never know when they'll check," said Kent Shank, junior in pre-professional business administration and member of the Bob Uecker Club. "So you have to have pretty responsible people in your group."

Students were faced with a cold first night to camp out as the temperature was expected to dip into the 30s. Some campers came prepared with space heaters, blankets and warm clothing. Others took to cuddling. All proposed solutions seem to make the whole experience worthwhile.

"We're planning a cookout for Saturday," said Tim Schumacher, freshman in mechanical engineering and member of the Bob Uecker Club. "It's 'B.Y.O.H.' — Bring Your Own Hamburger."

"We're here because the University is letting us," said Dave Whetstone, junior in pre-veterinary medicine and chairman of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee. "I hope everyone has a good time and behaves."

Tickets go on sale Oct. 14. But this date may be moved up, as it was last year, if the weather is too cold.

Fee

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

assigned by lottery, will be free. ICAT will get priority seating, with the remainder divided fairly among students living off-campus or in organized living groups.

■ A three-year freeze will be placed on the activity fee.

■ A three-year freeze will be placed on the price of student season basketball tickets.

■ Students with a student ID will be admitted into all other sports events free.

The fee can be spent at the discretion of the athletic department, and sports clubs will develop a sub-allocation fund for their portion. The proposal for the allocation of the funds will then be submitted to Senate and, if passed, the money will be released to the sports clubs.

"This is an idea that was presented informally to the Senate, mainly for the benefit of the students," Giefer said. "When I presented it, it was to get a reaction from the Senate and the students."

Giefer said the proposal came from three weeks of talking to students, Senate members, sports club representatives and athletic department representatives.

"My idea is one that guarantees benefits for the students," Giefer said. "It is important that Student Senate represents the student body."

Debate

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Bentsen said the best way for the federal government to help farmers would be through a trade policy. He said the Reagan administration has not had a trade policy, and has stood by while jobs were exported instead of products.

In defending Dukakis, Bentsen stressed his experience and accomplishments as governor of Massachusetts. Bentsen said this would enable Dukakis to deal with the federal budget deficit.

"Gov. Dukakis has been able to balance 10 budgets in a row," Bentsen said.

Dukakis has also lowered the tax rate in Massachusetts, Bentsen said.

Quayle took issue with that statement.

"That's why they refer to him as 'Tax hike Mike' and Massachusetts as 'Taxachusetts,'" Quayle said.

Following the debate, supporters of both campaigns sought to proclaim their candidates as the winners of the event.

Gov. Bill Clinton, D-Ark., said Bentsen delivered "a knock-out punch" to Quayle when Bentsen criticized Quayle for comparing himself to Kennedy.

"It took (Quayle) 20 minutes to get over it," said Clinton, who delivered the nominating speech for Dukakis at the Democratic National Convention.

Lee Atwater, a top official in the Bush-Quayle campaign, said Bentsen's criticism was "a cheap shot."

"Dan Quayle was just drawing a comparison. Dukakis is the one who's tried to identify himself with John F. Kennedy," Atwater said.

Atwater said Bentsen, who is simultaneously seeking re-election as a U.S senator from Texas, failed to do what he had to do for Dukakis during the debate.

"What (Dukakis) needed Bentsen to do was pull Dukakis to the center (of the American political spectrum)," Atwater said.

Dukakis' campaign manager Susan Estrich said the debate proved Dukakis made a good choice in selecting Bentsen.

"It confirms that Lloyd Bentsen is quite qualified to be president (if Dukakis were to be elected and then be incapacitated)."

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said questions about Quayle's competence would continue to plague the Bush campaign because of Wednesday night's debate.

"If George Bush had a problem with Dan Quayle on the ticket before tonight, then he's really got a problem with Dan Quayle on the ticket after tonight," Gephardt said.

Theft

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

rethink the issue of leaving the labs open in the early morning hours," he said. "But we are making no changes at the moment."

There are many other rooms on campus that are open late at night or all the time, Herrman said. Security is difficult because students and instructors work late in the labs, he said.

In a separate report filed Tuesday, the KSU Athletic Department reported the theft of a computer from the football office, Herrman said. There were no signs of forced entry and there is no direct relationship with the two thefts, he said.

Mike Jones, business manager for the athletic department, said the computer, a Macintosh SEHD20 used by the coach's secretary, was stolen from an assistant coach's office.

"It was a high-powered Macintosh and, with the software, it was worth over $4,000," he said.

"The funny thing is, the computer was so new, I hadn't even gotten a bill for it yet," Jones said.

Herrman said police are working on getting the stolen equipment's serial numbers and entering them into the National Crime Information Computer in Washington, D.C.

"People need to be aware that computers are a hot item for theft."

Amigos® The BEST Is Under Our Hat
Aggieville
Manhattan Town Center Mall
Try a light lunch!
Small
TACO SALAD
& Medium Drink
$2.39
SAVE 55¢
Expires 10/10/88

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM EXPRESS
1116 Moro
537-0886
This coupon good for
BEEF w/BROCCOLI OVER RICE
$1.99
not good with any other special or promo.
—expires Oct. 12, 1988—
FREE DELIVERY • 11 A.M.-1 A.M.

Aggieville Flowers
6 ROSES FOR $6
OR $12 a dozen cash n' carry
537-9549 12th & Laramie

CHRYSLER Plymouth
GOETSCH-IRVINE
CHRYSLER-PLYMOUTH-SUBARU
4th and Leavenworth
Phone 776-4875
Expires 10/31/88
10% off
any repair work or maintenance on your car with this coupon
Excludes body shop repair

OPEN 'TIL 2 A.M. DAILY
Sub & Stuff Sandwich Shop
FREE MEDIUM SOFT DRINK
with the purchase of any sub
12th & Moro—Aggieville
WITH THIS COUPON ONLY
Expires 10-15-88 Void with other offers

DONUT LOVERS DOZEN

Carol Lee Donuts
Yes, we're OPEN 24 hrs.
FirstBank Center
Corner of Denison & Claflin
We deliver on large orders
776-8058
1 Dozen Donuts For $1.89 Offer good thru 10/31/88 (with coupon) not good on deliveries
1 Dozen Donuts For $1.89 Offer good thru 10/31/88 (with coupon) not good on deliveries
1 Dozen Donuts For $1.89 Offer good thru 10/31/88 (with coupon) not good on deliveries

AL-BASHA الباشا
Greek & Mediterranean Food
TRY THE GREAT TASTE OF GYROS
A delicious sandwich made with selected meats and served on fluffy Pita bread with fresh onions, tomatoes and a tangy cucumber sauce.
537-7533
1209 Laramie St.
15% OFF $6 or more
Expires Oct. 20, 1988 with coupon
50¢ OFF a Gyro Sandwich
Expires Oct. 20, 1988 with coupon

HEX
new BEGINNINGS
12 Sessions for $25

1107 N. 3rd, 537-1003
with coupon—Expires 12/31/88

Looking for . . .
coupons, campus phone numbers & more KSU Campus Phone Directory
on sale now
Kedzie 103
$1 Students (limit 2 w/ID)
$1.50—Non-student

539-5303
One number brings out the best at KSU
Now, at KSU, there's just one number to remember for fast delivery of pizza that's every bit as good as one you'd go out for.
Godfather's Pizza.™ Now you don't have to settle for anything less, anymore.
1118 Laramie
Aggieville
Large Super Combo only $9.99
Present this coupon and receive a large Original Super Combo pizza for only $9.99.
Weighs over 5 lbs.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer. Limited delivery area. Add $1 for delivery
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU
Two Large Pepperoni Pizzas only $9.99
Present this coupon and receive TWO large pepperoni pizzas for only $9.99.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer. Limited delivery area. Add $1 for delivery
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU

Artistic Hair

Let our staff give you a Design Freedom Perm for only $25 with this coupon.
314 Tuttle Creek Blvd. expires 10-31-88 537-8169

Man Eater

The K-State Players perform "Little Shop of Horrors." The production opens Wednesday in Nichols Theatre and will run through October 22. See Page 7.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 55 to 60, with the low tonight in the mid-40s. Partly cloudy and warmer Saturday with the high 65 to 70.

164 0/0/0  10 S-DIGIT 66612
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

'Cats

powe game of at 1:30 p.m. Satur
Page 9.

Friday
October 7, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 34

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate approves EOF allocations bill

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate Thursday approved the Educational Opportunity Fund Allocation Procedures and the appointments of the elections committee, and closed the 1987-88 accounts for funding of student organizations.

The EOF allocation procedures bill, effective January 1, 1989, establishes the committee, how proposals will be heard, evaluation of the previous year's committee, and a deadline for recommendations for allocations.

The committee will be composed of one student senator and three at-large students to be selected by the student body president, student senate chair and the coordinator of personnel selections.

Proposals for allocation will be heard from April to the end of the second week of the fall semester.

The committee will make its recommendations to Senate by Oct. 15 of each year and will include an evaluation of the effectiveness of the previous year's allocations.

Student Body President Troy Lubbers said to Senate last week there will be a "fiscal year lag time" so that money collected this year will be allocated for next year.

The closing of the 1987-88 accounts leaves Senate with $7,412.87.

Arts and Sciences College Council and the Business Administration College Council retained balances to purchase display signs for various public relations events.

Minority Cultural Programs and Graduate Student Council also retained balances for expenses not covered in last year's budget.

Senate dealt with many conflicts regarding policies and procedures, the first of which arose with the bill to approve the 1988 Elections Committee and committee chair.

Eva Chatterjee, junior in sociology, was appointed elections committee head in April, but approval of that appointment did not occur until Thursday night.

Senator Brenda Halinski, graduate in elementary education, questioned why the appointment was not approved in April.

Justin Sanders, graduate senator in physics and Senate parliamentarian, explained that legislation establishing the committee only requires the committee chair to "be appointed no later than May 1." Halinski, however, questioned the wisdom of that rule, asking what would be done if Senate did not approve Chatterjee's appointment as chairwoman.

"We would find another one," said Mary Jo Lampe, senior in business administration and apparel and textile marketing and chairwoman of the Standing Operations Committee.

Other conflicts arose with the interpretation of the attendance policy, as Senate heard first readings on two bills of impeachment and two bills revising attendance requirements.

No action is taken on first readings; they are informational and allow senators time to obtain research or additional information.

Discussion on the impeachment bills raised questions of interpretation of the attendance rules, representation and responsibilities of senators.

Leading to the conflict were discrepancies between Senate bylaws stipulating that senators can only have three unexcused absences and Senate bill 86/87/21 requiring senators to serve office hours and changing the number of unexcused absences to four.

The interpretation by Senate Chairman Doug Folk is that the bylaw overrides the bill and that any unexcused absences from office hours only affect a senator's grades, not a senator's standing in Senate.

As for representation, the pending impeachment of Senator Rattan Nath, graduate in physics, raised this question as well as that of the attendance policy.

Most of Nath's unexcused absences stem from accumulation of unexcused tardies.

"I don't think I've missed anything in (being late for) Senate that would have been of any importance," he said.

Senators questioned Nath's representation of his constituents in Senate and his representation of Senate action to his constituents.

Sanders said Graduate Student Council feels Nath has done a good job as a senator but that his tardiness was not discussed.

In other action, Senate postponed allocating money for the Vietnam War Memorial until its next meeting.

Construction, scheduled for April 30, 1989, cannot begin until all the money is collected.

Senators prevent impeachment

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

Student Senate blocked placement of a bill calling for the impeachment of 23 Senate members on its agenda in a 37-9 roll call vote Thursday.

Cited as the reason for Senate to consider impeachment of the 22 senators and 1 Student Governing Association officer were excessive unexcused absences as defined by a strict reading of the bylaws to the SGA Constitution and established legislation.

"If we are going to have this (past) legislation, then we ought to go by all of that and not just pick and choose (from it)," said Senator Brenda Halinski, senior in elementary education and a co-sponsor of the bill.

Another co-sponsor of the bill, Senator Rattan Nath, graduate student in physics, would have found himself subject to impeachment if the bill had been placed on the agenda and then passed next week.

Nath is also the sole subject of another bill of impeachment for alleged nonfeasance in office due to excessive unexcused absences.

"I don't mind having this many people in this docket with me," Nath said.

Speaking against the addition of the bill to the agenda, Senator Greg Weisenborn, senior in electrical engineering, said, "I think the idea is good. I think the intent is malicious."

Student Senate Chairman Doug Folk, senior in electrical engineering, said senators who opposed adding the bill to the agenda were frustrated by the negative attitudes of the bill's supporters.

"The reason it is drawing a hostile response from senators is they don't

■ See IMPEACH, Page 12

Staff/Joe Freeman

The K-State Rowing Association formed a giant "Q" at Tuttle Creek Reservoir on the north side of the dam. The rowers used 44 people and five boats up to 67 feet long.

Q-Crew Staff/Joe Freeman

Katherine Wagner, 2, of Manhattan, found her seat at Tuttle Creek Dam to watch the rowers Thursday afternoon. The radio station KQLA is sponsoring the contest for anyone who can expose the "Q" in the most unique way.

Terrorists warn hostages unsafe

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT — Kidnappers holding two American captives threatened their safety Thursday if international interference in Lebanon's political crisis continues.

The warning came in a typewritten statement in Arabic from the Revolutionary Justice Organization. The statement was delivered to the Beirut independent newspaper An-Nahar along with a polaroid picture of U.S. hostage Joseph James Cicippio.

"We shall use all the cards to thwart these conspiracies, including the card of the safety of the hostages, which we shall make the backbone of our confrontation," the statement said.

The photograph showed Cicippio wearing a red and navy blue top. Cicippio, 58, of Valley Forge, Penn., was acting comptroller at the American University of Beirut when he was kidnapped on the school's campus Sept. 12, 1986.

Revolutionary Justice, believed linked to Iran, also claims to hold Edward Austin Tracy, 57, of Burlington, Vt., an author, who was kidnapped Oct. 21, 1986 in Moslem west Beirut.

There are 16 hostages, including nine Americans, held hostage in Beirut. The hostage held longest is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press. He was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Hostage Mithileshwar Singh, an Indian citizen and resident U.S. alien, was freed from captivity Monday after being held 20 months in Lebanon. He was undergoing medical examinations in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

A U.S. official there said Thursday that Singh said he and three Americans held captive with him were frequently moved by abductors to thwart efforts to locate them.

The official, who is close to the U.S. State Department team debriefing Singh, said the team is also getting "a lot of raw information" from him that could be helpful in learning about Americans in Lebanon. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

■ See HOSTAGES, Page 12

Journalism Day planned

By The Collegian Staff

The official dedication of K-State's School of Journalism and Mass Communications will highlight Saturday's Journalism Day activities and will complete what "should have been named in 1910."

The naming of the school will be announced by Richard Dodderidge, chairman of the Board of Regents. President Jon Wefald will present a president's award to Carl P. Miller, executive director of Pacific Coast Edition of The Wall Street Journal from 1929 to 1964.

The dedication ceremony will be at 11 a.m. in Union Forum Hall as part of the former department's Journalism Day activities.

"It means an image of professionalism which we should always have had. We should have been named a school in 1910."

—Carol Oukrop
Director
School of Journalism and Mass Communications

Miller has made a substantial donation to the journalism school, said Carol Oukrop, professor of journalism and mass communications and director of the school.

KSU Foundation policy prevented Oukrop from stating the amount Miller donated.

Miller was a journalism student at K-State in 1919.

Merle Miller, publisher of the Belleville Telescope, will accept the president's award on behalf of his brother, Carl. Carl Miller resides in Hawaii and is unable to attend the ceremonies.

At 9:30 a.m., Donald A. Macdonald, vice chairman emeritus of Dow Jones & Co., which publishes The Wall Street Journal, will speak on the topic of the separation of advertising and news.

Macdonald is a friend of Carl Miller, Oukrop said.

Oukrop said the naming of the school affirms its professionalism.

"It means an image of professionalism which we should always have had," she said. "We should have been named a school in 1910."

Macdonald to speak at ceremony

By The Collegian Staff

Donald Macdonald, a member of the Advertising Hall of Fame and vice chairman emeritus of Dow Jones & Co., will be the main speaker for Journalism Day on Saturday.

Macdonald will speak at 9:30 a.m. in Forum Hall and will participate in the School of Journalism and Mass Communications' dedication and naming ceremony following the address.

Macdonald will be addressing the subject of separation of advertising and news, which Macdonald refers to as the "corporate separation of church and state," said Carol Oukrup, director of the School of Journalism and Mass Communications.

Macdonald graduated from New York University in 1948 and went on to get his M.B.A. from New York University's Graduate School of Business Administration in 1950. Three years after completing his master's, he went to work for Dow Jones as a Wall Street Journal advertising sales representative. Ten years later he became Dow Jones' advertising director.

In 1979 Macdonald was named vice chairman of the company. Dow Jones reorganized into seven principal operating groups in 1980 and Macdonald became president/publisher of the International Group and the Magazine Group. In 1985 he relinquished his operating responsibilites to become senior corporate policy adviser.

Having contributed significantly to the advancement of the art and economic values of advertising, Macdonald was elected into the Advertising Hall of Fame.

At the company's request, Macdonald continues to serve as Dow Jones' representative on the boards of the South China Morning Post, the Far Eastern Economic Review and other overseas affiliates.

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Soviet Union gives peace plan

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates — The Soviet Union has advised the United States of a new Middle East peace plan under which the Arab countries would recognize Israel's right to exist, the Al-Bayan newspaper said Thursday.

The Dubai-based newspaper quoted unidentified Palestinian sources in Tunis as saying the plan also calls for a confederation between Jordan and an independent Palestinian state.

The newspaper said the plan was recently introduced to Palestinian leaders in Tunis, where the Palestine Liberation Organization has its headquarters, by Soviet envoys who have made several visits there. No dates were given.

Secretary of State George Shultz was informed of the new plan by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze on his recent visit to New York, the newspaper said.

The Soviet plan also advocates Israeli recognition of Palestinian self-determination, a PLO agreement to renounce violence and the convening of an international Middle East peace conference that would include the PLO, Israel and the five permanent members of the Security Council — the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain, China and France.

Communist party bosses ousted

NOVI SAD, Yugoslavia — The Communist party bosses of a Yugoslav province were ousted Thursday night while a stone-throwing crowd of 30,000 people assaulted their headquarters.

They had promised to resign earlier Thursday in the most dramatic development in three months of mass street protests over ethnic strife and economic crisis.

Several people were reported injured when the crowd outside party headquarters in Novi Sad, capital of Vojvodina province, surged toward lines of riot police, hurling stones that smashed windows in the building.

Belgrade radio quoted doctors as saying some people suffered bone fractures, but no figures were given. The protesters began to disperse after the leadership stepped down.

Removal of the provincial leadership could lead to wholesale changes in the national party and Yugoslavia's six republics.

Stipe Suvar, the national party chief, said Tuesday night there will be changes in the ruling Politburo and policy-making Central Committee at or before a Central Committee meeting.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

Medical waste bill approved

WASHINGTON — The House, alarmed by used syringes and vials of AIDS-infected blood washing up on shorelines, joined the Senate on Thursday in approving legislation to combat the dumping of medical waste.

"The illegal disposal of medical waste is spreading like an epidemic across the country," said the bill's floor manager, Rep. Thomas Luken, D-Ohio. "This waste is not just repulsive; it can literally kill people.

"According to recent federal studies, as many as 18,000 people each year may contract hepatitis B from accidental contact with medical waste," he said. "Hundreds of those infected will ultimately die from the infection."

The bill, approved 390-28, would require the Environmental Protection Agency to set up a system to track infectious or dangerous trash from hospitals, labs and clinics to its disposal.

The measure, a response to this summer's much-publicized washups of medical trash along the Atlantic Coast, Lake Erie and Lake Michigan, would initially require tracking in 10 states.

AIDS given through bone graft

ATLANTA — Federal health officials Thursday reported the first case of AIDS contracted through a transplant, in a spinal patient who received a bone graft four years ago.

While transplant patients previously have been infected with the virus that causes AIDS, this is the first reported AIDS infection from bone surgery and the first case ever reported in which a transplant has resulted in AIDS itself, the national Centers for Disease Control said.

"This is consistent with how we have found the virus to be transmitted previously — in blood, bodily fluids and body parts from another individual. ... It's an expected mode of transmission," said Dr. John Ward, an AIDS specialist with the Atlanta-based CDC.

The AIDS-transplant case occurred in a woman with progressive spinal disease who, in November 1984, underwent a spinal fusion using bone from her hospital's bone bank. In February 1988, she was diagnosed with AIDS. She was a health care worker, but there were no indications she had contracted an AIDS infection on the job, the CDC reported.

The donor from whom the bone came, a 52-year-old man who had undergone a partial hip bone removal, turned out to be an intravenous drug user — thus, at high risk for AIDS — who was diagnosed with acquired immune deficiency syndrome less than two years after the woman's surgery. He died with AIDS in 1987.

School turns out 'Savages'

SAVAGE, Minn. — Is a student of Savage Elementary a wild child?

Parents seeking to a different name for the town's only elementary school say the current one gives students an undeservedly raucous reputation. But those behind a "save Savage" effort say they seek to preserve the memory of local entrepreneur M.W. Savage.

The name is particularly hard on Savage Elementary youngsters who go on to school elsewhere, said School Board Chairman Larry Carlberg. "They're known as the Savage kids," he said.

But a recent bid to change the name has raised the rankles of old-timers and history buffs in this town of 8,000 people. With the backing of the City Council, American Legion and Chamber of Commerce, the "save Savage" effort has gathered 731 signatures opposing the change.

"I've gone to school there. We have two sons that also went to school there," said Carol Gutoske, who's lived in Savage for 40 years. "Nobody I talked to thought it was detrimental."

Mother's milk fortified

WASHINGTON — Scientists have developed a recipe for fortifying mother's milk that improves the odds of survival for tiny premature infants who are "barely bigger than a man's hand" at birth, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

"The immune properties found in mother's milk are so much more important to preterm infants because they are subject to many more infections than full-term infants," says Dr. Richard J. Schanler, physician in charge of the project at the Children's Nutrition Research Center, Houston, Texas.

But extremely premature babies, some of them weighing less than two pounds at birth, require more concentrated nutrients than mother's milk provides, he said.

Most currently get a preemie formula based on cow's milk until they reach about three pounds and are growing well. After that, some may be switched to mother's milk mixed with a commercial fortifier.

Concern about the practice of feeding the formulas to the tiny infants during their first month of life prompted Schanler and a former colleague, Dr. Cutberto Garza, now at Cornell University, to look into ways of using breast milk from birth.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

TODAY

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 212.

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of David James Patterson at 9:45 a.m. in Weber 146. The topic is "Reproduction in Bos Taurus and Bos Indicus x Bos Taurus Heifers after Manipulation of Postweaning Dietary Energy and Melengestrol Acetate."

PRE-NURSING STUDENTS will tour KU School of Nursing at 2 p.m. Departure from south side of Union at 11:30 a.m. Sign up in the dean's office if you plan to go.

AFRICAN STUDENTS UNION will meet at 8 p.m. in the International Student Center.

STUDENTS FOR EDUCATIONAL Awareness will meet at 3 p.m. in Union 208.

APPLICATIONS FOR THE MORTAR Board Scholarship are due in the Union Activities Center by 5 p.m.

AMERICAN ETHNIC STUDIES Program and Women's Resource Center will meet at noon in Union 206.

MARKETING CLUB Fall Social will be from 4 to 6 p.m. at Mike Ahern's house. Maps available in Calvin 108.

LAMBDA CHI LITTLE SISTERS barbecue will be at 11 a.m. at the Lambda Chi house.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB will be selling club T-shirts from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Union.

SUNDAY

ACACIA LITTLE SISTERS barbecue will be at 10 a.m. at the Acacia house.

CAMPUS GIRL SCOUTS will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

K-LAIRES Square Dance Club Hog Roast will be at 6 p.m. An officer will call members about the location. Pay at the door.

BETA SIGMA PSI Little Sisters String Party will be at 7:30 p.m. at Beta Sigma Psi house.

GOLDEN KEY National Honor Society will have a reception for new members at 3 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

BLUE KEY will meet at 6:30 p.m. in the Union Director's conference room.

K-STATE POLICE

Wednesday

- A student parking permit was reported lost or stolen in an unknown location.
- The theft of a BMX bicycle near Haymaker Hall was reported. Loss was estimated at $300.
- A faculty/staff parking permit was reported recovered.
- A noise complaint between neighbors at Jardine Terrace Apartments was reported.

Thursday

- A faulty fire alarm at Bramlage Coliseum was reported.
- A red, male stray dog of mixed breeding found near Willard Hall was taken to the Veterinary Medicine Center.
- A red Ford Mustang parked in lot A-28N was towed to Manhattan Wrecker. Owner was notified.
- A wheel lock was placed on a white Plymouth Reliant. The lock was later removed.
- A white Toyota in lot A-4 was towed to Mike's Wrecker.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Cadets kick off food drive

Ruth Ann Wefald was scheduled to meet with 100 Air Force ROTC cadets Tuesday for the kickoff of the Flint Hills Bread Basket Food Drive, but rain forced the event inside.

The Bread Basket is a local social service funded by the United Way and the City of Manhattan.

"The purpose of this organization is to minimize hunger and poverty in the local area, and salvage food items that would normally be discarded," said Anita Hanna, director of the Bread Basket.

The food is collected and given to 35 area agencies, who distribute it to the needy, she said.

"This year, the highlight of the kickoff is the involvement of the K-State ROTC cadets," Hanna said. "Usually only two area groups help us with the kickoff, but this year we are happy to have the cadets join us."

The kickoff was tied to World Food Day, which is Oct. 16.

To The Men of Pi Kappa Alpha,

Aye, Yie, Yie, Yie,
Homecoming was the best this year.
So here's to our Pike buds,
We drank lots of beer suds.
We pomped, and sang, and had lots of cheer!
There once was a house named Pike! Pike!
Panty raids they did like! Like!
Chi-o's had a big blast,
Our friendships will last,
Though Homecoming was a psyche!

Love,
The Women of Chi Omega

TACO HUT
ON THE HILL OVERLOOKING WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
Sanchos & Burritos 88¢ each
reg. $1.30
Taco Dinners $1.77
reg. $2.25
(2 tacos, refried beans, salad with picos)
(offer good Oct. 5—10)
Sun.—Thurs. 11 a.m.—11 p.m.
Fri.—Sat. 11 a.m.—12 a.m.
TACO HUT
1809 Claflin 539-2091

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.
Confidential pregnancy testing • Safe, affordable abortion services • Birth control • Tubal ligation • Gyn exams • Testing and treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Providing quality health care to women since 1974. Insurance, VISA & MasterCard accepted.
Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe)
Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free (except KS) 1-800-227-1918

PIZZA PALACE
NOW OPEN
Aggieville's Newest Business-1217 Moro
Best Quality-Less Expensive Pizza
K-STATERS WELCOME!!
ORIGINAL ITALIAN RECIPE
PIZZA PALACE
FREE DELIVERY
539-4400
LIMITED DELIVERY AREA
LIMITED TIME ONLY
Call us for Pizza, Lasagna, Spaghetti, Sandwiches & Salads
12" Single Topping Pizza only $4.99 Pizza Palace 1217 Moro 539-4400 expires Oct. 24, 1988
Two Small Single Topping Pizzas only $6.85 Pizza Palace 1217 Moro 539-4400 expires Oct. 24, 1988

BROTHERS
In Aggieville
FREE BBQ HAMBURGERS
IT'S BBQ TIME
Today 4 - 7 p.m. enjoy BBQ burgers hot off the grille while relaxing inside with your favorite tunes.
Friday & Saturday Nights
Free prizes given away at 1:30 a.m.
T-shirts • Cash • Boxers • Door Passes • Hats
Posters • And More!
•18 TO ENTER–21 TO DRINK•
1120 Moro • Aggieville 537-9511

The Station
TERRIFIC TGIF BUFFET

ALL YOU CAN EAT
$1!
• Baron Of Beef
• Chicken Wings
• Hot & Cold Pasta
• Relish Tray
• Fruit Tray
• Chips & Dip
• Cheese & Crackers
You have to eat it to believe it!
1115 MORO—BAR 776-0030

The Station
NEW!
ALL YOU CAN EAT SHRIMP PEEL

EVERY FRIDAY NIGHT
$7.99
ALL YOU CAN EAT
INCLUDING POTATO, SALAD BAR & LOADS OF SHRIMP!!
1115 Moro—Restaurant 776-0030

Father prepares for return to Saudi Arabia

Statement released if 'inconvenienced'

By Scott Miller
Special Projects Editor

When Edward Coyle returns to Saudi Arabia later this month, in addition to his paper work and travel documents, one of the things he will have prepared for is the possibility of dying in a terrorist attack.

After spending two years teaching in Damman, Saudi Arabia, Coyle returned to Kansas this summer to visit his son Ted, senior in psychology. Coyle hopes to return to Saudi Arabia by the last week of October to resume teaching English for the Royal Saudi Navy.

Before leaving, however, Coyle prepared a statement for Ted to release to the news media in the event he is the victim of actions by the Palestine Liberation Organization or other Palestinian groups.

The statement, which Coyle originally drew up in January 1986 before leaving for Saudi Arabia for the first time, reads in part, "In the event that I am inconvenienced, injured or even killed in an action for which 'Palestinian terrorists' are responsible, I wish it to be clearly understood by all that I regard myself as — in truth — the victim of the misguided policy of the United States in regard to the Palestinian question."

The Palestinian question refers to the future of about 1.5 million Palestinians living in Israel and the Israeli-occupied territories of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The statement also includes the following passage:

"Should I die or be injured while abroad in some 'outrage,' I shall at least be glad that it may provide an opportunity for at least one American voice to be heard around the world, raised in support of U.S. recognition of Palestinian rights!!!"

Coyle prepared the statement to ensure the American government would not use his injury or death to support what he called "the blind acquiescence of the United States in the aggressive and unjust policies of the State of Israel, and its equally deep blindness to the legitimate rights and needs of the Palestinian people."

"Judiasm and Zionism are not synonomous; however, the American public has been led to believe so," he said.

As an example, he mentioned the upcoming presidential elections. "In 1988, as in 1948, the United States stands committed to unconditional support for the state of Israel. Michael Dukakis wants to move the U.S. embassy to Jerusalem, which can only alienate the Arab world, and George Bush outright opposes the idea of the creation of a Palestinian state.

"With regard to Middle East policy, the American public has no choice in the 1988 election," he said.

Zionism, the offical policy of the state of Israel, is recognized by the United Nations as "racist" because it limits the rights of non-Jewish people in the state.

Coyle said he hopes that, should his son ever need to release the statement, it would not be construed as anti-Semetic, which he said he is not.

"I am not anti-Semetic. The one thing I can assert is that I am not anti-Jewish, anti-Semetic or even anti-Israel. In fact, I am pro-Israel — but only the Israel of 1947, not the 1967 territories taken in defiance of U.N. resolutions," he said.

In 1947, a U.N. resolution called for a two-state solution in Palestine, one Jewish and one Palestinian. A year later, the state of Israel was formed. There is still no independent state of Palestine.

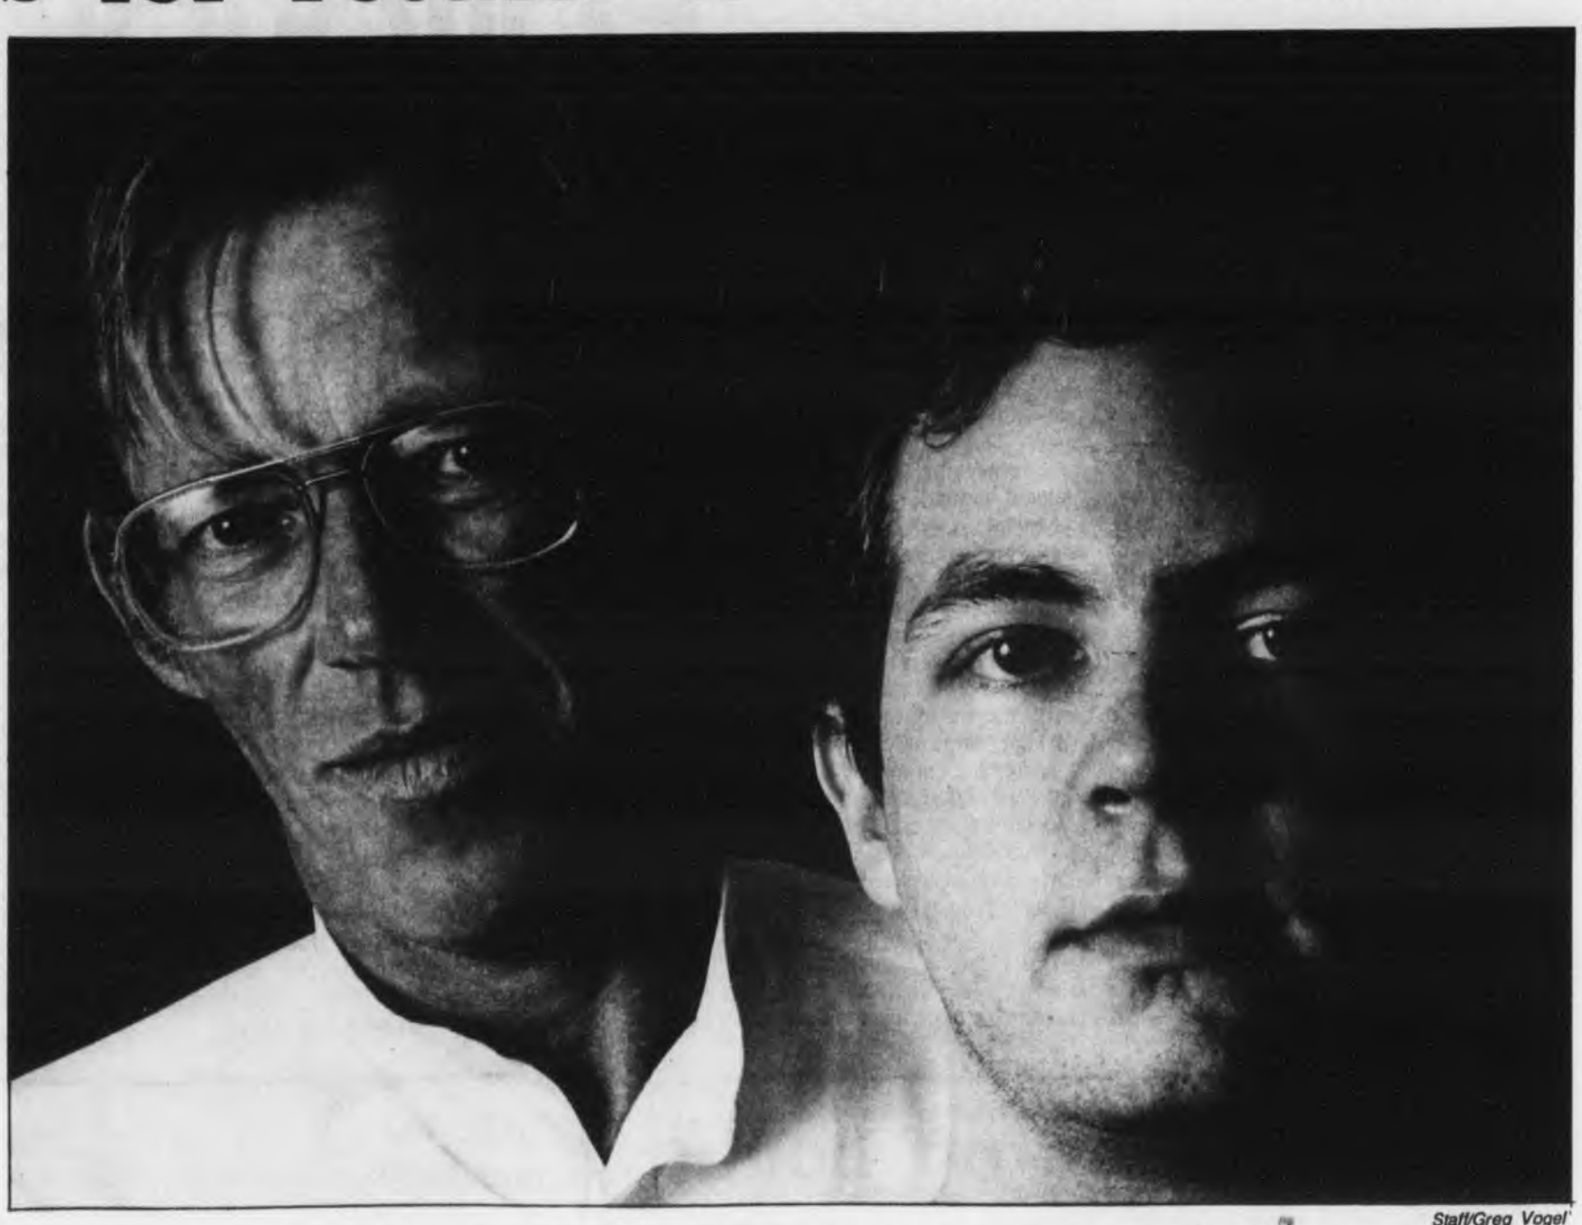
"One can be anti-Zionist without being anti-Semetic. One can support the state of Israel created in 1948 without accepting the present imperial state."

"Israel has no more right to settle people in the West Bank and Gaza than Nazi Germany had to colonize Poland," he said. "The parallels between Nazi Germany and the state of Israel are numerous and bitterly ironic. The tactics used by Israel in repression of the Palestinians in the occupied territories cannot fail to remind the dispassionate of measures used by the National Socialists, the Italian fascists, and so on."

Coyle said the 1982 Israeli invasion of Lebanon was "unprovoked," and "condemned by every member of the United Nations except the aggressor and the United States."

"They were apparently the only two countries in the world not horrified," he said.

Coyle came to his present understanding of the Palestinian question only after years of meeting people and studying the different cultures of the Middle East, including classes in Hebrew literature and history.



After receiving his bachelor's and master's in history of English and his doctorate in psychology in 1976, he began looking for employment.

"I decided I would be waiting for the year 2014 to get a job as a psychohistorian. In the meantime, I began teaching English to Iranian students," he said.

He also worked as a teacher for Saudi Airlines and the Defense Language Institute in San Antonio, Tex., before leaving for Saudi Arabia in 1985.

But the incident that he said even-

■ See FATHER, Page 12

Staff/Greg Vogel

Edward Coyle spent two years teaching English for the Royal Saudi Navy. This summer he returned to Manhattan to visit his son Ted, senior in English. When he returns to Saudi Arabia, he will leave a statement for his son to release if he is involved in a terrorist attack.

D & S Resume and Typing Service
•Reasonable Rates
•Speedy Service
539-5074

UNITED ARTISTS
$2.50 PER PERSON
SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 p.m.
UA SETH CHILDS 6
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD. 776-9000
HEARTBREAK HOTEL PG-13
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
COMING TO AMERICA R
Daily 7:15, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:15, 4:35
YOUNG GUNS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:45
DEAD RINGERS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:05, 4:30
COCKTAIL R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:35
BIG PG
Daily 7:25, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:30

MOVIE INFO. 539-1291
IN JUNCTION CITY
Call 762-4092
CAMPUS
HEART OF AGGIEVILLE
A Fish Called Wanda R
Today at 7:00 & 9:00
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 3:00 & 5:00
CAMPUS SEATS $1
WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center
Alien Nation R
Today at 4:35-7:05-9:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:05
Nightmare on Elm St. IV R
Today at 4:35-7:05-9:30
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:05
Kansas R
Today at 4:30-7:10-9:35
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 2:00
Punchline R
Today at 4:25-7:00-9:35
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 1:50
Gorillas in the Mist PG-13
Today at 4:20-7:00-9:40
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 1:45
Die Hard R
Today at 4:20-7:00-9:40
Matinee Sat. & Sun. at 1:45

The Greenery RESTAURANT
FOR LUNCH
Serving Everyday 11 a.m.—2 p.m.
Your Choice $2.65 + tax
6 OZ. PETITE SIRLOIN STEAK
8 OZ. CHOPPED BEEF STEAK
8 OZ. HAM STEAK
WHOLE CATFISH
¼ FRIED CHICKEN
TENDER BABY BEEF LIVER
CHICKEN FRIED STEAK
LASAGNA
SOUP AND SANDWICH
All entrees include rolls & butter,french fried potato!
Adjacent to the
All Season's Motel
Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan
537-1488

RUSHWACKERS
THE RUNNINGERY
TGIF
Free hors d'oeuvres
5 p.m.
Join us after
Cats-Mizzou
Game for College Football action
Grill Special
Fri.: 16 oz. T-Bone
$5.25
Sat.: 10 oz. Sirloin
$3.95
5 to 9 p.m.
531 N. Manhattan

KSNT·27 Presents
Rolando Blackman & the Dallas Mavericks
vs.
the San Antonio Spurs

Live NBA Action
at BRAMLAGE
COLISEUM
7:30 p.m.
Friday, October 21
Tickets $15.50 & $10.50
Bramlage Coliseum
K-State Union
ITR Office, Ft. Riley
Middle Earth Records, Junction City
Budget Records & Tapes, Topeka
Phone (913) 532-7606
Visa & Mastercard Accepted

UNITED CAMPUS MINISTRY
THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS A FREE LUNCH
BUT . . .
THERE ARE FREE SUPPERS!
You are invited for a free home cooked meal every Sunday Evening at 5:30 at UCM Student Center
Everyone Welcome —
look for the two Red Doors
UCM Student Center, 1021 Denison 539-4281

Phi Delta Theta's "SCORE FOR CHARITY 1988" is coming . . .
October 14, 15, 16
Featuring: T-shirt awards for men's & women's divisions
Pyramid Pizza to MVP of each game
Final Day Games on artificial turf at KSU Stadium Tournament Party Friday at Phi-Lodge
. . . "Remember, do it for Lou."

Keck's STEAK House
EST. 1938
539-2651
Village Plaza
Closed Mondays
Daily Dinner Features
Wednesday
WELCOME STEAK $4.79
Served with salad and choice of potato
Thursday
FAMILY STYLE CHICKEN $4.79
Served with mashed potatoes, Chicken Gravy, Cole Slaw, two vegetables and homemade biscuits
Friday
PRIME RIB $8.50
Aged to perfection
Served til 8:30 PM or while supplies last

1800 Claflin
776-4111
CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1983
"The Aggieville Alternative"
See us for Group Discounts
Tuesday:
Pool tournament at 8:00
Now Open Sundays at 12:00
—with pizza specials & sports on the big screen TV
Friday
—Live Band—
Banister Tarrelton
Saturday:
$Dollar Days$
$1 Pitchers
—Open early before K-State vs. Missouri game

Editorial

Kansas State Collegian Opinions ■ Friday, October 7, 1988

Old monster sports new look

Women should stop supporting subtle sexism

Commentary

KARLA REDELSHEIMER
Collegian Columnist

Little things are starting to bother me. No, small forest animals can't be found nibbling on my ankles but recently I've become aware of a not-so-new train of thought coming back with a subtle new twist.

It's sexism of the '80s. While sexism isn't a new concept, it does have a new edge that's come into the spotlight lately. Women are supporting built-in sexist ideas and are even making logical excuses for it.

Let's look at the recent Miss America pageant which is commonly the target of hard-core feminist criticism. There was talk of ousting the famed swimsuit competition this year. However, the idea didn't float.

When Gretchen Carlson, the newly crowned Miss America, was asked about her feelings on this portion of the competition, she said she didn't see anything wrong with it. That it showed off what a year of discipline and hard work could do for someone.

Well, the Olympics also stressed what years of discipline and hard work can do for people. The Olympic Games, however, are more respectable because this institution is centered around talent, personal triumphs and defeats — not how the athlete looks in a swimming suit or formal wear.

True, no one forces those women to enter a pageant and, yes, most of those women are extremely intelligent. Although this year's pageant organizers made a concerted effort to emphasize brains and not beauty, the evening gown competition and swimsuit competition still kept a large part of the focus on the looks of particular contestants.

Women throughout the country are praying for the Food and Drug Administration to approve Retin-A. The drug, which has been used to treat acne since 1971, has been found capable of repairing some sun-inflicted damage (otherwise known as wrinkles or crow's feet). By the way, this trait in men is often referred to as "character lines." So women turn into old bags, and men get stately in their old age.

"So what's wrong with wanting to look younger and feel better about yourself? Chill out all you uptight feminists," promoters of these products often say.

A recent article in the Kansas City Times said the number of cosmetic operations have doubled from 300,000 to more than 600,000 since the beginning of the 1980s. Nearly 90 percent of cosmetic surgery patients are women.

The problem here is that women still believe their looks influence their position in society. Advertisers have picked up on this insecurity and have used reverse psychology with the high self-esteem pitch to sell their products and operations that often have awful side effects.

Modern women don't need to apologize for pursuing beauty at any price — they now have high self-esteem and confidence. Not quite ...

The September issue of Harper's Bazaar printed an article giving its women readers tips on how to deal with men in the business world. The article was written in a manner which implied that it's a disability to be a woman in the business world.

One "tip" suggested that women should learn about sports, "It's the mother tongue."

The conclusion went on to say that women need to adjust their style of manipulation, "But we can learn it as well as anyone else" — thank heavens women are capable of learning. The worst part of this article was that it was written by a woman. Obviously she hasn't had her cosmetic surgery yet.

Jean Kilbourne, a media analyst and lecturer who has researched advertising's image of women since the 1960s, continues to find many sexist images of women in the 1980s. So many that she updated her film "Killing Us Softly" (first done in 1979) with hundreds of new examples.

Women no longer have to settle with these "subtle" types of sexism. They don't, because for the most part, they are the ones subscribing to built-in forms of sexism. Contrary to popular belief, men aren't responsible for all forms of sexism; although it may have started that way.

Instead of wasting money and time on products and operations designed to make women feel more self-confident, unconditional self-acceptance must be emphasized by both men and women.

With program off hold, NASA must face future

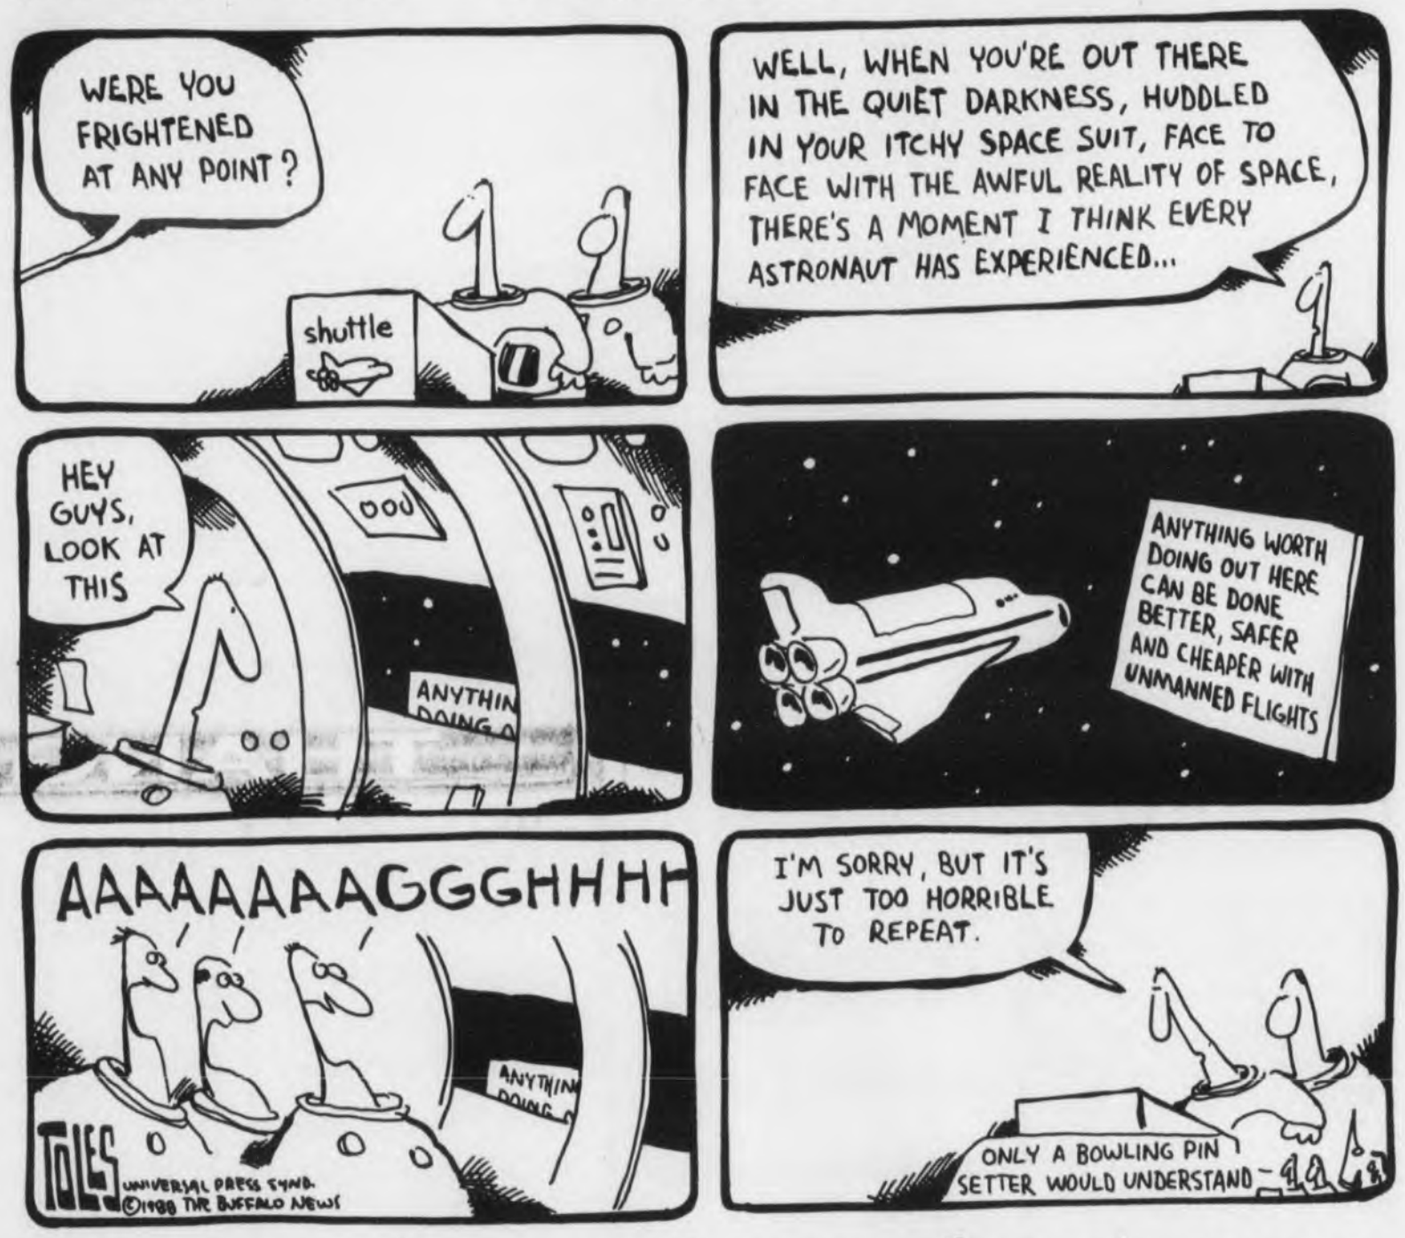
After a long absence, the United States is flying high again.

It was 32 months ago that the space shuttle Challenger exploded upon liftoff and tragically ended the lives of school teacher Christa McAuliffe and six others as the nation watched.

Acting prudently, NASA reacted by grounding all planned, manned space flights.

It was the flawless liftoff of the space shuttle, Discovery, last week that marked the end of this stagnant period of manned space flight.

However, during the past 2½ years, America has lost precious time in the race into space. The long-term effect the loss will have on the program is yet to be fully seen.



The important aspect, though, is that America is back on track.

In just six hours following liftoff, the Discovery crew accomplished the main task of the flight by releasing a satellite that will give NASA almost constant contact with future missions.

With only a few minor problems in the cooling system, the shuttle has put Americans at ease and the program on more solid ground.

The tragedy of the Challenger will not be forgotten soon. But, the Discovery has paved the way for future manned space flights, and, it is hoped has paved the way for further NASA expansion.

The United States can no longer pride itself on the glory of moon shots. It is time to make up for lost time and quit playing catch-up with other space programs.

The fool saith, "Put not all thine eggs in one basket." Which is actually saying, scatter your time and attention. But the wise man saith, "Put all thine eggs in one basket, and watch that damn basket!"

— Mark Twain

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Mature discussions about rape will only help with situations

Commentary

JUDY DAVIS
Guest Columnist

Rape. The word itself offends the senses and the soul. Years of insisting that we confront the reality — the incidence, the consequences, the causes — of rape have not dulled my sensitivity to the act or the word.

But I am often glad to hear and see and use the word "rape," for the use of the word sometimes indicates progress toward elimination of the act: an instructor requests a class presentation about acquaintance rape; student artists perform a play about rape and participate in public discussions of the subject after each performance; residence hall staff and students engage in thoughtful, sensitive discussions about rape.

All are examples of constructive and honest uses of the ugly word that names the ugly act.

We use the word destructively, however, when we use it frivolously. No rape survivor's trauma is diminished by loose talk of rape. No woman's safety is enhanced by rumor. On the contrary, abuse of the word "rape" trivializes the survivor's experience and — to the extent that we are distracted by it — endangers all of us.

I do not mean to suggest that there should be less talk of rape, but that we should get clear about our reasons for talking. We must take great care to make our talk meaningful and effective.

If you or someone you love has been raped, you deserve to talk to knowledgeable and understanding people who will genuinely respect both you and your experience. Talking about your experience with people who appreciate it, in a supportive and compassionate atmosphere, can ease your pain and facilitate your recovery. Not talking about it can prolong both.

If you have questions or information about rape in the K-State community, you need to talk with one of the many people on campus whose primary concern is students' well-being. They will take you and what you say seriously. They may even be able to translate your concerns into action beneficial to the community as a whole.

The Women's Resource Center, University Counseling Services, the Dean of Student Life Office, and Lafene Student Health Center all offer confidential, non-judgmental assistance. Without sacrifice of privacy or dignity, you can talk to people in any of those services about your experiences and your concerns, and know that your words are not wasted.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

UNSIGNED EDITORIALS represent the consensus opinion of the Collegian's editorial board. Opinion columns do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian management, Student Publications, Inc. or the newspaper staff in general.

Letters

Public exploited

Editor,

I am in complete agreement with the Collegian's Sept. 28 editorial on Speaker Jim Wright's disclosure of the very poorly kept secret that the CIA has been manipulating events in Nicaragua in an attempt to cause civil unrest and generate support in the United States for the Contras. The Republicans successfully changed the subject to Wright's "ethics," and few reports on the matter have asked two seemingly obvious questions: Should our government be allowed to deceive its own citizens by staging confrontations in a foreign country, and should the doctrine of "national security" be used to keep such deceptions secret?

Of course, the entire U.S. policy toward Central America has depended on selling the U.S. public what it doesn't want. A recent report by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs describes a "domestic covert operation" (the Office of Latin American Public Diplomacy) created by the White House to "lobby the Congress, manipulate the media and influence domestic public opinion."

Those are the committee's words, but in a 1986 memo to National Security Adviser John Poindexter, a CIA propaganda expert involved in the operation wrote: "We are operating with a relatively narrow window in which to turn around American perceptions of the Contras — and particularly of Nicaragua — or we will be chewed up by Congress. We discussed the obvious, which is part of our strategy, including such things as: the need to convince people of the key importance of the Contras to our national security, the need to glue white hats on our team, etc."

The latest CIA hijinks in Nicaragua are just another scheme to sell us the Contras, a product we can do without.

T.S. Cox
adjunct associate professor of agronomy

Elevators safe despite much misuse

By Alan Wilds
Collegian Reporter

Residence hall elevators that transport hundreds of students every day remain among the safest there are despite heavy loads and frequent misuse, said an official with K-State's Department of Housing.

Gene Wiley, maintenance superintendent, said all of the elevators are safety inspected once a year by Dover Elevator Co. in Wichita.

"Our safety inspections rank at the top every year," Wiley said.

All elevators in residence halls are the original elevators installed when the buildings were constructed, said Charlie Farrell, facilities supervisor. He said usually no major repairs need to be done on them.

Many of the elevators are often misused or vandalized.

"We would not have much repair work if it were not for misuse," Wiley said.

He said the elevators have many built-in safety devices that will shut it down at the first sign of trouble.

Farrell said forcing doors open is the most common form of misuse. Other things that will stop an elevator are kicking doors and trying to open them while an elevator is in transit.

Wiley said another problem has been removing or damaging the call buttons on the inside and outside of the elevators.

A slightly less physical form of misuse is pushing all the floor buttons before exiting the elevator. Wiley said this is what causes students to become angry because they have to wait for the elevator to hit every floor.

"We would not have much repair work if it were not for misuse."
—Gene Wiley superintendent

About 95 percent of all elevator repairs come from vandalism and misuse, Wiley said. Elevator maintenance is done by the Department of Housing instead of being contracted by a repair company.

"We have better maintenance than a lot of elevators in the state," Wiley said.

A large amount of money is saved by doing all the maintenance in house, Wiley said, since the average maintenance cost on elevators, including wages, is about $50,000.

"A staff is provided continuously to service elevators," Wiley said.

When an elevator breaks down, a serviceman is usually on the scene within 15 minutes to one hour.

"Overall, I feel the residence hall elevators are tremendously safe and no one is going to get hurt on them," Wiley said.

Stewart cancels because of illness

By The Collegian Staff

Officials at Bramlage Coliseum announced Thursday that rock star Rod Stewart is canceling his Oct. 28 concert at Bramlage.

Jason Miles, junior in political science and arts and sciences senator, said Thursday night at the Student Senate meeting that the concert will not be rescheduled and tickets will be refunded.

Stewart became ill while performing on the East Coast and has canceled his Midwestern concerts to allow time to make up missed appointments in the East, Miles said.

Bramlage Coliseum Director Charles Thomas said that although fewer than 2,000 tickets have been sold for the concert at Bramlage, he did not think this was the reason for the cancellation.

Stewart's scheduled performance at the University of Nebraska's Bob Devaney Center Oct. 17 has also been canceled.

Group calls for more lights after alleged night assault

By Chris Koger
Collegian Reporter

The alleged assault on campus of a female architecture student by an unidentified male Monday has prompted the K-State American Institute of Architecture Students to circulate a petition asking for more lighting along the alley on the north side of Seaton Hall.

K-State Police received report of the assault shortly after midnight Monday, said Lt. James Tubach, investigating officer with the campus police.

There are currently no suspects in the case and Tubach declined to release the name of the victim.

Mike Barolak, senior in interior architecture and student representative of the AIAS, said this is the second time an architecture student has been attacked on campus since the start of school this fall.

"There is definitely a need for more lighting around Seaton," he said. "Once you're 20 feet away from Seaton on the way to your car at night, the lack of lighting could pose a dangerous situation."

Tubach said the Monday morning incident is the only assault on campus that has been reported to the campus police this school year.

"This was the first such report to our office. I've been through the area, and I didn't feel the lighting was inadequate," he said.

"We have police that patrol the area regularly, though," Tubach added.

Barolak said the lighting has students concerned.

"We've begun having escorts for some of the females leaving the studios at night. It's always been a topic to get more lights, but this time we really want to get something done," he said.

"The College of Architecture is really backing us, especially (Architecture and Design Dean Mark) Lapping," Barolak said.

Eugene Kremer, professor of architecture and faculty AIAS adviser, said he believes the architecture students have to be aware because of the late-night hours spent on campus.

"This is more of a concern with these students because a typical architecture student spends many nights working in studios," he said.

"I have no doubt there are areas on campus that need more lighting for safety, but I'm not sure where exactly these concerns are focused," Kremer said.

Kremer also said the petition wasn't his idea.

"I'm supportive of AIAS, but this was the students' decision," he said.

Report says staff inadequate

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — More than a third of the state's nursing homes fail to provide adequate care for residents, many because of a lack of staffing, an advocacy group said Thursday.

Leaders of Kansans for the Improvement of Nursing homes said they think the 1989 Legislature should make state laws regulating nursing homes tougher, beef up state inspection staffs and increase spending on a federally sponsored program that helps pay for nursing home care.

The group's president, Petey Cerf, said the organization based its assessment of conditions on taped interviews with more than 250 Kansans who have relatives in nursing homes.

"You hear a lot that in Kansas nursing homes give excellent care," Cerf said. "We were not convinced that most Kansas nursing homes give excellent care."

The group conducted its survey over the past four years, asking relatives of nursing home residents to discuss their family members' care.

The group received complaints about care provided in 132 of the state's 377 nursing homes, or 35 percent — a number that might have been higher if the survey had continued, Cerf said.

The group also received compliments about the care in 20 nursing homes across the state. Cerf acknowleged the group did not concentrate on getting positive responses because it wanted to document possible care deficiencies. The nursing homes cited in the report and the relatives of residents are not identified by name in the report.

The group summarized the contents of the interviews in a special report.

99¢
Spread Buffet
Cotton Club
7 kinds of Hors d'ouevres

KRYSTALLOS
"Beautiful objects from the earth."
NEW SHIPMENT
EARRINGS
JUST ARRIVED
1124 MORO AGGIEVILLE
11-8 M-S, 1-5 SUN. (913) 539-0360

—TONIGHT ONLY—
CHICKEN FRIED STEAK DINNER
w/veg & potato
$1.99
(with coupon)
The Chef

THE NEW phi kappa tau fraternity invites the Men of K-State to the 1st Annual PUTT-PUTT RUSH CLASSIC to be held
Sunday, Oct. 9
2 p.m.
at
Putt Putt Golf Course
For information call 539-7416

Come
SHAKE YOUR THANG
Wed., Oct. 5 Noon-1 p.m.
Union Court Yard
Saturday Oct. 8
Union Catskeller
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
Ladies in free 9-10:30 p.m.
--Just a little message to let you know we wanna party!--
The Jam the Box Crew
DB92
KSDB 91.9

Steve's Floral
302 Poyntz
Manhattan, Kansas
539-6227
$1 Roses
cash & carry
while supplies last
delivery and arranging extra
"We're here to please the customer & you"

Weekend Special
Come visit our Pet Dept.
Red Velvet Swords 69¢ reg. $1.60
Painted Glass $1.99 reg. $4.80
Blue Ecara Cichlid $2.99 reg. $4.00
Gold Sailfin Mollies $7 a pair reg. $13.00 a pair
While Supplies Last
Colorful fish give pleasure and are beautiful SAVE $1-$3 per fish
GREEN THUMB
PLANTS — PETS
Serving Manhattan Over 30 Years
1105 Waters—539-4751
ACROSS FROM ALCO
GARDEN CENTER

STEAMBOAT
COLORADO
$158* from
JANUARY 2-8 • LODGING • LIFTS PARTY • PICNIC • MORE!
Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAK 1989
STEAMBOAT WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Hotel or fully equipped condominium lodging for 5 days/4 nights, 6 days/5 nights or 7 days/6 nights • Full day lift tickets for 3 or 4 days with additional days available at reduced rates • Welcome Apres Ski Party at the top of Thunderhead with live entertainment and complimentary beverages • Mid-week Mountain Chicken Barbecue with complimentary beverages • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/base shuttle service • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.
TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: KEYSTONE, WINTER PARK AND VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
sunchase tours

Primitive Wilderness Living/ Survival Skills Demonstration
by John & Geri McPherson
•Braintan Buckskin
•Friction Fire
•Cordage Making
•Primitive Bows/ Arrows
•and more (Atlatl, traps, cooking, etc.)
Held at: The Book Shop
Westloop Shopping Center
Manhattan, Kansas
Saturday, October 8, 1988
9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
Rain Date: October 15, 1988

BACK-TO-SCHOOL BLUES?!!

Let Aggie Hair Shapers put a smile on your face with a new look.
$3 off cut and style
$5 off perm
Aggie Hair Shapers
Present coupon with service.
(expires 10/15/88)
Ask for Daneen, Kim, Cyd, Darcey, Julie, or Kara

Baking students find housing off campus

By Stephanie Morrill
Collegian Reporter

K-State students are not the only ones being affected by the shortage of space in the residence halls. Also affected are students from the American Institute of Baking who have relied on the residence halls for temporary housing in the past.

Students from around the world come to Manhattan to study at the institute. Each one must find housing for five months of the year, but K-State residence halls are no longer an option.

"All of our students are currently living in apartments," said Ken Embers, director of admissions.

"Previously, the students were able to live in the K-State dorms, but due to the increased enrollment that the University has experienced this year we've had to find alternatives," Embers said.

This can be good and bad for the students, he said. Because many of the international students do not own cars, they need to be placed in residences within walking distance from the school.

But many times the students didn't "fit in" at the residence halls anyway because they are not typical college students, Embers said.

"About one-third of our students are international, one-third are company-sponsored and one-third are self-sponsored," he said.

Although the ages of these students range from 20 to 45 years old, the average age is 27 years old. About 85 percent of the students are males "because baking is traditionally thought of as a physical profession," Embers said.

When students apply to the institute, they have the option of finding their own housing or using a referral list of apartments provided by the institute.

"Some of the apartment landlords keep our students separate from other residents and try to match them up with other students from the institute," Embers said.

"I had no problem finding an apartment," said Allan Steinik, student at the institute. "They set me up with a roommate and everything."

Some students don't have such good luck.

"We had great problems with our apartment — the plumbing was broken and it was a mess when we got there," said Mei Yin Chan, student at the institute.

Students enrolled in classes that meet for 19 weeks, such as Baking Science and Technology or Bakery Maintenance Engineering, are typically the students who need apartments because they stay in town the longest, Embers said.

K-State's Department of Housing "hasn't given much thought to allowing these students to live in the dorms again, due to increased enrollment, but it is a possibility ..." said Tom Frith, housing director.

"The (institute) students were a delight to have living in the dorms, we had no problems with them at all," Frith said.

Play shows part of blues' past

By Eva Craig and Heather Huntington Collegian Reporters

It was nominated for three Tony awards, it was voted the Best Play of the Year by the New York Drama Critics Circle, and it will be performed at 8 tonight in McCain Auditorium.

"Ma Rainey's Black Bottom," is a "blues drama" that presents the history of black musicians in the 1920s, said Anne Butler, associate for Special Services and coordinator of the play.

The play re-enacts the life of Ma Rainey, who is known as mother of the blues. Rainey specialized in singing about women and for women. She sang about their problems with men and the family. From this she developed a style of blues known as classical, said Butler.

The play is set during a 1927 recording session and, through Ma and her four accompanying musicians, focuses on racism, oppression and self-hatred, the conditions from which the civil rights movement evolved.

Rainey traveled as a vocalist with musical touring groups and while in Southern Missouri, she heard a young woman singing the blues. Rainey liked it and incorporated it into her act.

"She was one of the key figures in introducing the blues to a wider audience," said Harriet Ottenheimer, a blues expert and professor of social anthropology and social work.

"I'm a big fan of Ma Rainey, and I like how she dealt with the problems of racism," said Shirlyn Henry, junior in speech and a member of Ebony Theater. "Many people overlook the fact that she was a deeply religious person. I think she was able to overcome a lot because of her beliefs."

Playwright August Wilson, a published poet and former artistic director of a black theater, was awarded a Jerome Foundation fellowship in the late 1970s.

This gave him the chance to rework a one act play about a blues recording session into the full-length "Ma Rainey."

Wilson has written other well-known plays, including, "The Piano Lesson," "Fences," and "Joe Turner's Come and Gone."

Each play addresses important questions faced by blacks in the twentieth century.

Butler was responsible for bringing Amaryllis Productions, the New York-based touring company that will present the play, to McCain.

"There were many campus groups that helped make 'Ma Rainey' possible," Butler said.

"It's an absolutely thrilling show," said Richard Martin, director of McCain Auditorium.

"It's dealt with in a powerful but meaningful way," he said. "To ignore the fact that there has been racial tension in our country is no answer. I can't remember any reviews that were critical in that way."

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present
Little SHOP of HORRORS
LITTLE SHOP OF HORRORS
Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

Saturdays from 1 6pm will never be the same again...
Listen to Metal Head. I do.
METAL HEAD
on Manhattan's only metal station...
DB-92

ATTENTION WILDCAT FANS
Enjoy A
25% DISCOUNT
on any small, medium, or large serving of ICBIY frozen yogurt when you wear purple on game day.
Our frozen yogurt has one-fifth the fat and one-half the calories of ice cream!
We'll also have available the popular Purple & White Swirl!!
Offer applies to all home football games. Toppings, waffle cones are regular price.
Try our new non-fat frozen yogurt!
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville
Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sunday
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores ™

ESTABLISHED 1920
THE Stevensons CLOTHING COMPANY
DUCK HEAD
DUCK TAIL
Heads or Tails
the Duckhead/Ducktail Sweatshirt is a real eyecatcher. In an array of brilliant colors, each features the famous Duckhead logo on the front; our whimsical Duck takes a "nose dive" on the back.
Medium, Large or Extra Large Sweatshirts. 50 poly/50 cotrton blend at $32 each.
1342 WESTLOOP PLACE • WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
MANHATTAN, KANSAS (913) 539-8081

Radio Shack ASSOCIATE STORE
Shop Now and Reap an Abundance of Savings on Our Bumper Crop of Exclusive Electronics Values!
HARVEST OF VALUES
"Beeperless" Phone Answerer TAD-320 By DUOFONE* Save $50 149.95 Reg. 199.95 Low As $15 Per Month* It talks! Synthesized voice tells number/date/time of each message. #43-392 Backup battery extra
Video Effects Switcher By Archer* Cut 22% 69.95 Reg. 89.95 Does wipes/fades. Two video/audio inputs/outputs. #15-1274
Mobile CB With Priority TRC-418 By Realistic* Save $40 59.95 Reg. 99.95 Priority switch gives instant access to Ch. 9 or 19. #21-1511
Dual-Powered B&W TV By Radio Shack 10% Off 89.95 Reg. 99.95 Plays on AC at home or 12VDC in van. #16-241
VHS VCR With Digital Effects and HQ Model 70 By Realistic Save $150 349.95 Reg. 499.95 Low As $18 Per Month* Remote Picture-in-Picture and Digital Video Memory Effects. Watch a tape and a TV show at the same time—even "freeze" the big play and recall it later. Helpful on-screen prompts make programming the 21-day/8-event timer easy. HQ system enhances picture definition. 45-function wireless remote. #16-651 Remote batteries extra Stereo TV-Sound Receiver TV-200 By Realistic Save $50 169.95 Reg. 219.95 Adds MTS stereo, wireless remote control and 140-channel cable-compatible tuning to any TV. #16-1283 Remote battery extra. Low As $15 Per Month*
19" Color TV/Monitor TC-1010 By Radio Shack Save $100 299.95 Reg. 399.95 Low As $15 Per Month* Audio/Video In/Output. Use the 20-key remote to control all major functions—right from your chair! 110-ch. cable compatible. #16-260 Remote batteries extra
Auto-Dial Memory Phone ET-192 By Radio Shack Cut 30% 34.95 Reg. 49.95 Stores up to 20 phone numbers for auto-dialing. Touch-redial, tone/pulse* dialing. #43-532 Memory batteries extra Modular Telephone Cords By Radio Shack Save Big! Cut 38%. Heavy-duty 25-foot handset cords in white, almond, beige and brown. Reg. 7.95. Each 4.95. #279-290/291/292/293 Half Price! Heavy-duty 25-foot dual-jack coiled extension cord. Reg. 6.95. Sale 3.49. #279-377
3-Channel Walkie-Talkie TRC-89 By Realistic 33% Off 19.95 Reg. 29.95 With Ch. 14 crystals. #21-1611 Batteries, additional crystals extra
2-Line Desk Phone With Hold Button ET-180 By Radio Shack Cut 33% 39.95 Reg. 59.95 #43-373 Puts one or both lines on hold. Tone/pulse* dialing.
Personal AM/FM Stereo Receiver STEREO-MATE* By Realistic 25% Off 14.88 Reg. 19.95 Includes Headphones Superb "hands-free" stereo. #12-123 Batteries extra
AM/FM Stereo Cassette By Realistic Save $40 89.95 Reg. 129.95 24 Watts Total Power. Digital-electronic tuning with 12 presets, seek and scan. Front/rear fader. Fits in most dashes. #12-1926
Car Stereo EQ/Booster By Realistic Save $30 69.95 Reg. 99.95 7 Bands • 80 Watts Total Power. Customize your car stereo's sound! Front/rear fader, CD input jack, night illumination. #12-1956
AM/FM Clock Radio Chronomatic* -261 By Realistic Cut 25% 14.88 Reg. 19.95 Value-packed! LED display, snooze/sleep, battery backup. #12-1568 Backup battery extra Benchtop Multimeter By Micronta* 20% Off 79.95 Reg. 99.95 Our best multi-tester! For hobbyist or "pro." #22-195 Batteries extra ENERCELL® Batteries By Radio Shack HALF PRICE!

Type	Cat. No.	Reg.	Sale
AA	23-468	.29	.14
C	23-467	.37	.18
D	23-466	.37	.18
9V	23-464	.59	.29

Our Best Metal Audio Cassettes SUPERTAPE* By Realistic 34% Off 60 Minute 3.95 Each Reg. 5.99 #44-960 MB-60; 90 Minute 4.59 Each Reg. 6.99 #44-961 MB-90
Radio Shack Associate Store 2609 Anderson in Anderson Square 539-6151 Weekdays 9-6 Saturday 9-5 Closed Sunday

EntertainmentFriday

'Little shop' adds variety

Tony Espinosa, freshman in theater, comforts Maria Santucci, freshman in theater, during the second half of the performance. Espinosa, playing Seymour, is an employee in the shop along with Santucci, playing Audrey, in the musical written by Howard Ashman and based on the 1960 horror film by Roger Corman.

In a season of "Murder, Mayhem and Merriment," the K-State Players' second production of the season, "Little Shop of Horrors," is a bit of each and more; that is if you consider death by a man-eating plant murder.

"It's everything — a musical, a drama, a comedy, a tragedy," said Mike Smith, junior in industrial engineering, describing the musical written by Howard Ashman and based on the 1960 horror film by Roger Corman. Smith plays the voice of the man-eating plant, Audrey II.

"It's bordering on morbid," said Smith.

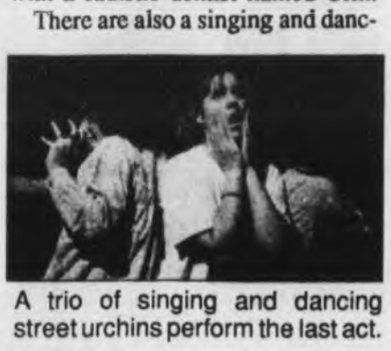
The play is a satire of science fiction, "B" movies and musical comedies.

"Little Shop" is set in the skid row flower shop of Mr. Mushnik who has two employees: a shy young man named Seymour and a scatterbrained young woman named Audrey.

"The characters are stereotypes. Audrey is a bubble-head; Seymour is a klutz," said director Luke Kahlich, associate professor of speech and head of the K-State dance program.

"Yet I think theater needs to do more than that. There are emotions that are touched, relationships established and changed," he said.

"Audrey is a sweetheart. She's probably experienced a lot of things a lot of people have, only she sees them differently. She has a really innocent point of view," said Maria Santucci, freshman in theater and interior design, who portrays Audrey.



"She has a soft touch with everything, including life. She is very lovable. You can't help but fall in love with her. She's just so cute," Santucci said.

Tony Espinosa, freshman in theater, who portrays Seymour, said his character suffers from a poor self-concept.

"He went to the Skid Row School for Boys and didn't even finish grade school," Espinosa said.

Seymour is secretly in love with Audrey, who thinks she is in love with a sadistic dentist named Orin.

There are also a singing and dancing trio of street urchins and a couple of musical bums and reporters.

A trio of singing and dancing street urchins perform the last act.

One member of the trio, Jan Remy, senior in theater, described the trio as "street-smart bee-bop gals."

"We're the only ones in the whole play who know what is going on," Remy said. "We're just poor street kids — low-lifes who reap the benefits of Seymour and the plant."

And then there is Audrey II, Seymour's plant, whose health and happiness grow in direct proportion to the amount of fresh blood it receives daily.

It's especially fond of human blood.

"Audrey II is a malicious, deceptive, conniving, rude and offensive plant," said Jim Smith, sophomore in theater and radio/television, who operates the plant.

"The plant is funny, but then always underneath you realize 'that's horrible — it eats people.' It's funny, but then it really isn't," Kahlich said.

"He's a really good con-man/plant," Jim Smith said.

"Constantly all the action evolves around the fact that the plant exists, and as it grows its power increases. It is through its influence that the dramatic structure evolves," Kahlich said.

The growth of the plant throughout the play is made possible through the use of a four-part creation rented from the Boot Hill Museum Repertory Company of Dodge City.

Three people had to be cast in the part of the plant: one person for the speaking part, one puppeteer to operate the small version of the plant and one person to operate the three big stages of the plant from inside.

The Boot Hill Repertory Company built the plant for its recent production of the play. This construction of the plant has been used in various productions.

Kahlick cast Jim Smith to operate the large version of the plant. Smith had played the part in a production at Fort Hays State University last year using the exact same plant.

Although he is having fun playing the part again, he said, "It's not as challenging as the first time, but on the same token I have to avoid com-

■ See SHOP, Page 12

Jan Lee, junior in theater, climbs into Audrey II during rehearsal. Three people were cast in the part of the plant.

Wendy Walburn, senior in music-theater; Jan Remy, senior in music-theater; and Ayne Steinkuehler, freshman in history, perform in the last act of the "Little Shop of Horrors."

story by Kendra Gensemer

photos by Brad Camp

NOW SHOWING

K-State Union

Beetlejuice
7 and 9:30, Friday and Saturday, Sunday, 4. Forum Hall.

Deathrace 2000
Friday and Saturday at midnight. Forum Hall.

Campus Theater

A Fish Called Wanda
Daily, 7 and 9.
Matinee 3 and 5, Saturday, and Sunday.

Westloop Cinema 6

Kansas
Daily 4:30, 7:10 and 9:35. Matinee 2:00, Saturday and Sunday.

Gorillas in the Mist
Daily 4:20, 7 and 9:40. Matinee 1:45, Saturday and Sunday.

A Nightmare on Elm Street Part IV
Daily 4:35, 7:05 and 9:30. Matinee 2:05 Saturday and Sunday.

Alien Nation
Daily 4:35, 7:05 and 9:30. Matinee 2:05 Saturday and Sunday.

Punchline
Daily 4:25, 7 and 9:35. Matinee 1:50, Saturday and Sunday.

Die Hard
Daily 4:20, 7 and 9:40. Matinee 1:45 Saturday and Sunday.

Seth Childs Cinema

Young Guns
Daily 7:15 and 9:40. Matinee 2:20 and 4:45, Saturday and Sunday.

Heartbreak Hotel
Daily 7:10 and 9:40. Matinee 2:25 and 4:45, Saturday and Sunday.

Coming To America
Daily 7:15 and 9:40. Matinee 2:15 and 4:45, Saturday and Sunday.

Dead Ringers
Daily 7:15 and 9:40. Matinee 2:05 and 4:30, Saturday and Sunday.

Cocktail
Daily 7:10 and 9:30. Matinee 2:00 and 4:35, Saturday and Sunday.

Big
Daily 7:25 and 9:35. Matinee 2:10 and 4:30, Saturday and Sunday.

Theater

Ma Raineys Black Bottom
This play centers on lives of black musicians in the 1920s. Friday Nichols Theatre 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults

Events

K-State Band Day
High school bands from across the state will be performing during halftime of the K-State-Missouri football game.

Shake Your Thang
Urban contemporary and dance music party, sponsored by KSDB 91.9 Radio. Saturday, Union Courtyard from 9 p.m to 1 a.m. Live remote broadcast and giveaways. Admission is $1.50.
Ladies in free from 9-10:30.

New Video Releases

Dead Heat - Oct. 11
Salsa - Oct. 12
A New Life - Oct. 12
Critters II - Oct. 19
Two Moon Junction - Oct. 19
Bright Lights, Big City - Oct 19

Interaction key to design contest

By Jody Hundley
Staff Writer

Teams of four students each will have 24 hours to begin and complete a design problem before being judged by honored alumni from the College of Architecture and Design during BlitzFest 1988.

"No other department on campus honors former graduates in this manner. It's a chance for students to talk with alumni and to see their work," said Eugene Kremer, professor of architecture.

"The honorees pay their own expenses to come here and be a part of BlitzFest. It's their way of giving back to the college," he said.

'Development of Communications in America' will be the source of ideas for this year's "charrette" — a short, intense design problem.

"Specific guidelines and information haven't been released yet, but the competition focuses on ideas, not detailed drawings. We don't specify size, location or budget of the 'charrette,'" he said.

"We're looking for clear, strong ideas that are well communicated. Boldness and clarity are to come through on one 30- by 40-inch paper."

Teams are composed of one student from at least three of the departments within the college — architecture, landscape, interior, and regional and community planning.

BlitzFest 1988 began Thursday with an alumni honoree presentation. Activities continue through Saturday night when winners of the design competition are announced.

Kremer said BlitzFest is a chance for students within the college to interact with graduates from 10 years ago, as well as have fun.

Six years ago, fourth-year architecture students thought of the "charrette" idea. They proposed that a charrette should come from each of the departments — architecture, landscape, interior, and regional and community planning, Kremer said.

The four alumni attending the event will be Robert E. Burns, master's of regional and community planning, from East Lansing, Mich.; David L. Gnaegy, bachelor's of architecture, St. Louis; Alan Kuniholm, bachelor's of architecture, Portland, Maine; and Curtis Slife, bachelor's of interior architecture, Tempe, Ariz.

Kremer said it is important to bring people into the school who are close enough to the students' ages to serve as role models.

"Students are very impressed with the honorees' work. Since the four of them graduated 10 years ago, students can relate," he said.

Included in the three-day schedule is guest lecturer James McCullar, principal in the New York City firm of James McCullar and Associates, Architects. He will give a presentation today at 3:30 p.m. in the Union Little Theatre. There is a dinner tonight for team design competition and a BlitzBash Saturday.

Star Wars coming in under budget

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In what one official acknowledged was "a startling change," the Defense Department said Thursday it has slashed the cost of the first phase of a Star Wars defensive shield from $115 billion to $69 billion, and the system could be available within a decade.

But Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the figures should be viewed with "some skepticism" because the cost of weapons programs often goes down while they are in the planning stages and then rises when production starts.

The new figures arise from a restructuring of the Strategic Defense Initiative, the formal name of President Reagan's 5-year-old program to develop a high-tech shield against attack by Soviet nuclear missiles.

Those changes were approved after Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci ordered a review when it became apparent the Democratic-controlled Congress would cut Reagan's Star Wars budget request for the fiscal year that began last Saturday.

The president sought $4.8 billion for Star Wars, but Congress approved $4.1 billion, up from last year's $3.9 billion budget.

The current debate over Star Wars centers around plans to develop a first-stage program that could form the basis of a wide-ranging system.

The initial phase is based chiefly on space-based interceptor rockets, known as SBIs, that would be housed in flying "garages" circling the globe, ready to be fired at launched Soviet missiles.

The large cost reduction is chiefly achieved by scaling back plans for the number of interceptor rockets, Pentagon officials told a joint hearing of the Senate and House Armed Services committees.

"This is a startling change," acknowledged Robert Costello, undersecretary of defense for acquisition.

While the exact figure is classified, the Pentagon said "there would be fewer than 200 carrier vehicles (garages) with several SBIs aboard each carrier."

The Defense Department also said it can develop a better guidance unit for the rockets, meaning the chances of success for each rocket would be increased and thus the number that would have to be fired would be reduced.

In addition, the sophistication of a planned surveillance and tracking satellite system is being reduced, leading to another savings.

Air Force Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson, director of the SDI program, said the decision whether to build a first-stage system could be made early in the next decade, with deployment to begin in the late 1990s.

Professors receive national recognition

By The Collegian Staff

Four faculty members received national achievement awards at a competition sponsored by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

The faculty members, who were recognized for developing educational aids in the field of agriculture, were David Pacey, assistant professor of engineering technology; Freddie Lamm, instructor at the Colby Branch Station of the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station; John Kramer, Extension assistant of agricultural engineering; and Mark Schrock, associate professor of agricultural engineering.

Pacey, Lamm and Schrock developed a spreadsheet template, or computer program, for county agents and farmers to determine tractor weight and irrigation energy costs, Pacey said.

Lamm concentrates on irrigation and multi-plan microsoftware; whereas, Pacey specializes in the Lotus 123 computer program, Lamm said.

"So we put the two together for the project. More spreadsheets would be available to those interested in using it," he said.

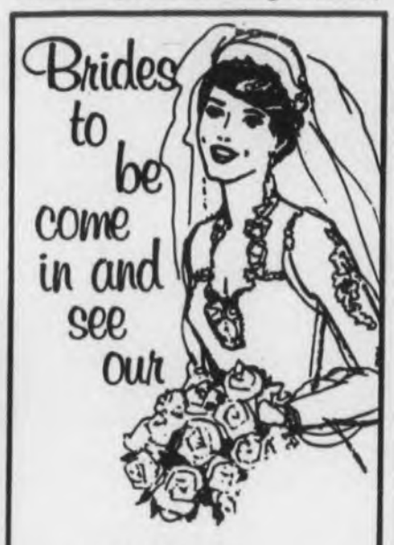
Kramer's project was on "Two-Way Radios for Farm Use." This project gave "producers background information in radio communication and its availability for use in Kansas," Kramer said.

The main reason professors enter the competition is "to get recognition, to encourage (other agricultural engineers), and to give them a mode to share their work with others," Pacey said.

Each professor received a blue ribbon and a certificate for his work.

The annual competition takes place during the summer, Pacey said. Last year's competition was in June at Rapid City, S.D.

The competition had eight categories and about 200 people entered, he said.



Pacey, Lamm and Schrock entered a category that had 20 entries.

CROSS POINT
Christian Rock on the edge
Sunday 5 to 9 p.m.
on DB92 KSDB 91.9

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

R•O•Y•A•L
Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Sigma Nu—Oct. 7
Sigma Phi Epsilon—Oct. 7, 10
P•U•R•P•L•E

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM Restaurant
539-8888 1304 Westloop
Sunday Buffet
11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
$5.95
Children under 5 free
Egg Rolls
Crab Ragoon
Crispy Wonton
Imperial Soup
Fried Rice
Fresh Fruit
Curry Chicken
Pork Lo Mein
Beef with Oyster Sauce
Vegetable Delight
Hot Braised Chicken
Sweet n' Sour Pork
Shrimp with Snow Peas
FREE DELIVERY 11 a.m.-1 a.m.

• INVITATIONS
• ANNOUNCEMENTS
• NAPKINS
• BRIDAL BOOK
• ACCESSORIES
Campbell's
Gifts For All Occasions
Now is the time to layaway for Christmas.
776-9067 5th & Poyntz Downtown
539-1891 1227 Moro Aggieville

MANY HAPPY RETURNS

Introducing The Zenith Data Systems eaZy™ pc
Suggested retail price: $999
SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE: $699

Here's what other pizza places serve with their pizza.

More pizza. That's right. About the only thing you can have with your pizza, at those other places, is another slice of pizza.
But at Valentino's, you can complement your pizza with a variety of salads, pasta dishes and lots more. Off our menu. Or off our Grand Italian Buffet.
So enjoy all the pizza you want, but don't stop there. Imagine: Pizza, salad and more pizza.
Or lasagne, pizza and salad. Or salad, primavera casserole and breadsticks. Or pizza and spaghetti. Or spinach noodle salad and garlic rolls. The choices are as individual as you ... and your family.
Sure. We understand why other places want to serve pizza. We do, too. But what we don't understand is why they stopped there.
Enjoy the variety at Valentino's. Try us today!

Valentino's
The Pizza Restaurant That Didn't Stop With Pizza
3019 Anderson Ave.—Village Plaza
537-4350
We Deliver!

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CELEBRATES YOUR RETURN TO CAMPUS WITH THIS SPECIAL STUDENT PC OFFER!
It's the start of a brand-new school year. And Zenith Data Systems would like to welcome you back with this special personal computer offer.
With a Zenith Data Systems PC at your desk you'll be able to write and edit papers in a fraction of the time. You'll also enjoy many advanced capabilities that'll give you a definite advantage throughout your college career.
Of course, that advantage will continue long after college since Zenith Data Systems PCs are among the preferred computers in business, too.
So visit your nearby Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact today and make this your most exciting year yet.
Make Your Return To Campus A Happy One—Visit Your Zenith Data Systems Campus Open House:
Student Union Courtyard
October 24 & 25, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.
Contact your local student representative:
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
The Bookstore 532-6583

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®
Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one personal computer and one monitor per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems
Form No. 1331-988

Tigers' ground game to challenge Air Parrish

K-State Wildcats vs. Missouri Tigers

Game Time: 1:30 p.m. Saturday.
Place: KSU Stadium (42,000).
TV: None. Radio: Wildcat Radio Network (KMAN 1350 AM).
Season Records: K-State 0-4; Missouri 1-2-1.
Series Record: Missouri leads 51-17-5.
Notes: It's Band Day ... K-State's last three wins over Missouri came at Columbia ... the Wildcats' last home win against the Tigers came in 1970 ... Against Miami, the Hurricanes never punted and Missouri never kicked off ... K-State punter Shane Pouch had his best day as a Wildcat, with a career high 57-yard punt. He averaged 39.2 yards per punt against Louisiana Tech, also a career best.

File/John La Barge

Missouri starting quarterback John Stollenwerck (9) is tackled by K-State linebacker Lorne Whittle in last year's game at Columbia, Mo. Stollenwerck injured his shoulder last week against Miami (Fla.) and won't play Saturday against the Wildcats.

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

It's going to be a matchup of two distinctly different offenses Saturday, when the Missouri Tigers bring their power-packed running game into KSU Stadium to meet the Wildcats' aerial thrill show.

"They've shown they can run the ball, there's no question about that," said Stan Parrish, Wildcat head coach. "That's their strength.

"I think that they think they are better than us and that they can just come in here and try to power the ball down the field on us."

During their first four games, the Tigers' offense has had success on the ground, while their passing game has been somewhat suspect. Missouri averages 234 yards rushing per game and 88 yards passing per game. The 'Cats, on the other hand, have averaged 250 yards passing per contest, while only averaging 112 yards rushing.

Missouri will be without the services of its starting quarterback, John Stollenwerck, who received a shoulder injury in the Tigers' last outing against Miami (Fla.). Taking over at the quarterback slot will be either Brad Fitzmaurice or Corey Welch, both redshirt freshmen.

Other injuries on the Missouri squad include halfback Charles Quint, who suffered rib cartilage damage, and outside linebacker Brad May who sustained a sprained neck. Both will be unavailable for play on Saturday.

Injuries for the Wildcats include wide receiver David Brooks, who had two catches for 138 yards and two touchdowns against Louisiana Tech last week. Brooks tore knee ligaments in the game and is lost for the season. Safety Dimitrie Scott suffered a concussion in last week's contest, and his availability is on a day-to-day basis.

Missouri coach Robert "Woody" Widenhofer is impressed with K-State's offense, but said defense is one of the Wildcats' bigger problems.

"They have moved the ball real well against everyone they've played so far, including Iowa," Widenhofer said. "Their problem isn't that they can't move the ball. Their problem is stopping people on defense. They also haven't received any real, true breaks."

Widenhofer also said Parrish's recent resignation announcement might have an impact on the play of the Wildcat players.

"(Parrish's resignation) will probably affect their football team a lot," Widenhofer said. "Knowing what kind of an individual Stan Parrish is, and what kind of rapport he has with his players, they are sure to come out fired up for this one.

"It lends itself to a 'Let's win one for the coach' type of attitude."

An interesting factor in the contest will be how each team stops the other's offensive strength. Missouri has outrushed its opponents in its first four games, 935 yards to 400 yards, while being outpassed, 351 yards to 1,184 yards. The Wildcats have been outrushed by their opponents 112 yards to 137 yards, and they have also given up more passing yardage, gaining 250 yards per contest to their opponents' 284 yards.

K-State's game plan won't change drastically from the previous four games, Parrish said.

"On defense we might do some different things up front to give them a different look," Parrish said. "On offense we are definitely going to come out passing the ball. That's what we do best. We will probably run the ball a little more this week than last week to keep them honest, but we will throw the ball quite a bit.

"We've been running the ball better lately than we have in past years," he added. "We're rushing the football for more than 100 yards a game so I'm not concerned with our running game too much."

K-State's cross country teams to run again after 2-week layoff

By Chris Hays
Sports Writer

K-State's men's and women's cross country squads, both coming off impressive victories at the Emporia State Invitational two weeks ago, are back in action Saturday at the Southwest Missouri State Distance Classic.

Coach John Capriotti said he will leave five or six of his top runners from the men's team at home this weekend, while the women will be at full strength.

"We're sitting them out to give the rest of the guys a shot at the last two spots on the squad for the Cal-Poly meet next week," Capriotti said. "All of the ones who are not going to run this weekend will still be going next week."

Those making the trip to Springfield, Mo., are redshirt freshman Tod Eggers, the top finisher at Emporia; sophomore Matt Vavala, who took ninth at Emporia; redshirt freshman Kevin Lashley and sophomore Joe Bonneau.

"I still expect us to compete well as a team. We'll have a very competitive team," Capriotti said. "The University of Arkansas men are supposed to be there, and they are one of the best teams in the country, so it should be a good test for us."

The women's team swept the top nine spots at Emporia and will field the same team this weekend.

K-State has been led by freshman Janet Haskin and junior Angie Barry, who finished first and second, respectively, two weeks ago.

"We've been getting some good leadership from Angie Barry, and she is running real well right now," Capriotti said. "Everyone has been running great in practice the past two weeks."

Two more freshmen, Janet Treiber and Jennifer Hillier, finished in third and fourth place at Emporia, while juniors Becky Ives, Marge Eddy and Jenny Faunce; sophomore Tammy Van Laeys and freshman Leslie Meidinger took the next five positions.

Capriotti said he expects better competition this weekend than K-State received in its first meet.

"Southeast Missouri and Southwest Missouri are very good," Capriotti said. "It's going to be a lot tougher than the Emporia meet."

Saturday's meet at the Green Hills Country Club begins with the women's 5,000-meter race at 10 a.m. The men's five-mile race starts at 10:45 a.m.

Next week, the Wildcat harriers will travel to San Luis Obispo, Cal., for the Cal-Poly Invitational. The Cal-Poly meet will be a homecoming of sorts for Capriotti. That is where he logged his collegiate career and was also coached by current K-State athletic director Steve Miller.

Wildcat volleyball team ends 7-game road trip

By The Collegian Staff

It may take K-State's volleyball team a little time to get used to its new surroundings — Ahearn Field House — where the Wildcats haven't played since Sept. 20 when they swept the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

After playing its last seven matches on the road, K-State is home to face Big Eight foe Colorado at 7:30 tonight. The match is a critical one in the Big Eight Conference race. The Buffaloes are the most improved team in the league at 9-7 overall and 1-1 in Big Eight play.

The Wildcats, 8-7, enter the match on the heels of a seven-match losing streak. Included in that streak are two Big Eight losses to Nebraska and Iowa State. In fact, K-State's last victory was that Sept. 20 home date with the Kangaroos of UMKC.

"There is no doubt this will be a tough match," K-State coach Scott Nelson said. "Colorado is easily the most improved team in the league. (The Buffaloes) are a legitimate threat to our upper-division finish."

Colorado is 0-3 against K-State. The Buffaloes are only in the third year of developing their program.

"The K-State match is a big one for us," Colorado Coach Brad Saindon said.

In Big Eight play, Colorado has dropped a five-game decision to Oklahoma and has defeated Iowa State. In the loss to the Sooners, Colorado led 12-2 in the first game before falling 16-14. The opening-game loss was the difference in the five-game defeat. Oklahoma then went on to upset Nebraska.

K-State lost in five at Ames against the Cyclones and lost in three games to defending champion Nebraska in its two conference setbacks.

Sports Briefly

Tennis team enters tourney

The K-State women's tennis team will travel to Lincoln, Neb. this weekend to compete in the 'Husker Invitational tennis tournament.

Teams competing this weekend along with K-State are Wichita State, Iowa, Texas Tech, Colorado, Nebraska, Arkansas and Minnesota.

Mariners fire manager

SEATTLE — The Seattle Mariners, the only franchise in major league baseball history that never has had a winning season, cleaned house Thursday by firing manager Jim Snyder and three of his coaches.

Seattle had a 68-93 record this year, last in the American League West, 35½ games behind division champion Oakland.

Snyder became the seventh Mariners manager fired in the team's troubled 12-year history. Six managers have been released in the eight years California land developer George Argyros has owned the club.

Osborne: college ball 'weird'

OMAHA, Neb. — Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said Thursday that college football is in the midst of a "weird season" in which the national champion might lose a game.

He said he expects changes in the national ratings by the end of the season, and that some games already have surprised him.

"I thought LSU was a great football team, and they got beat by Ohio State and then Florida. Some teams you thought were great are losing and some that you thought were pretty average are winning."

A's snare commanding 2-0 lead

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Rookie Walt Weiss, the ninth-place hitter in a lineup of sluggers, singled home the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning Thursday night and the Oakland Athletics beat the Boston Red Sox 4-3 for a commanding 2-0 lead in the American League playoffs.

The Athletics headed home, where they swept all six games from Boston this season and have won 14 of the last 15. Game 3 is Saturday night with Oakland's Bob Welch facing Mike Boddicker.

Jose Canseco, who led the majors with 42 home runs and 124 RBI, homered for the second straight game and Mark McGwire hit an RBI single in the seventh for a 3-2 lead before Rich Gedman's home run in the bottom half of the inning tied it.

But while Oakland's Bash Brothers brought the Athletics back against Roger Clemens, it was the bottom part of the order that won it. Ron Hassey singled with one out against Red Sox relief ace Lee Smith and took third on Tony Phillips' two-out single. That brought up Weiss, a .389 hitter against Boston this year, and he escaped an 0-2 hole against the fast-balling Smith and lined a single just in front of diving center fielder Ellis Burks.

Dennis Eckersley, who led the majors with 45 saves, got his second save of the series. Gene Nelson went one inning for the victory while Smith, who got out of a first-and-third jam in the eighth by retiring Canseco and Dave Parker on fly balls, took the loss.

Boston was 53-28 at Fenway Park this season while the Athletics were 54-27 at the Oakland Coliseum.

Oakland won nine times in 12 games against Boston in the regular season.

Clemens and Davis made the two highest-scoring teams in the AL look feeble through five innings, each allowing only one hit.

The Red Sox broke through for two unearned runs in the sixth, aided by Dave Henderson's error, but Canseco and Mark McGwire helped Oakland rally for a 3-2 lead in the seventh.

Henderson, the former Boston playoff hero who singled home the winning run in Game 1 on Wednesday, led off the sixth with a single. Canseco, who homered in Game 1, then sent an 0-2 fastball high into left-field screen to tie it 2-2. It was Canseco's third career homer among seven hits in 24 at-bats against Clemens.

The Athletics kept coming as Parker followed with a single. A nice stop by shortstop Jody Reed on Carney Lansford's grounder resulted in a forceout, but a balk and wild pitch put a runner on third.

McGwire, who fanned in his first two at-bats and was 0-for-10 with six strikeouts against Clemens, worked out of an 0-2 hole and lined a single to left for the lead.

Davis struck out Reed to start the seventh and Athletics manager Tony La Russa brought in left-hander Greg Cadaret to face the lefty Gedman.

AL Playoffs: A's 4, Boston 3

The strategy backfired when Gedman pulled a drive into the right-field seats at the 302-foot mark. It was his first home run against a left-hander since July 25, 1987.

Davis got the first two outs in the sixth on two pitches before a fan ran onto the field with the count 2-2 on Dwight Evans. When play resumed a couple of minutes later, Davis threw two balls to walk Evans and then walked Mike Greenwell.

Jim Rice followed with a hard, sinking liner to center. Henderson charged and got his glove on the ball at his knees, but dropped it and Evans scored. Burks, robbed by Henderson on a deep drive earlier, singled home Greenwell for a 2-0 lead.

Clemens heated up from the start on a night when frost warnings were posted in Boston and the Bruins opened the hockey season. Clemens retired the first nine batters, including four in a row on strikeouts.

Oakland's first hit wasn't much to brag about. Luis Polonia opened the fourth with a dribbler to the right side of the mound that Clemens fielded cleanly but then threw wide of first baseman Todd Benzinger. Polonia was credited with a single and was given second on Clemens' error.

After Henderson struck out, Polonia tried to steal third with Canseco at the plate, and was thrown out. Gedman, who threw out 39 percent of potential base stealers this year — slightly below the league average — made a strong throw, and Canseco then lined out to end the inning.

Clemens struck out the side in the sixth around a double by Tony Phillips. That gave Clemens seven strikeouts without a walk.

Davis wasn't as overpowering as Clemens, but just as effective. He did not allow a hit until Benzinger opened the fifth with a hard one-hopper that hit Davis in the right knee.

Quayle's debating target of criticism

By The Associated Press

Democrat Michael Dukakis criticized Dan Quayle in campaign rhetoric and commercials on Thursday, saying the Republican vice presidential candidate appeared "extremely insecure" in debate. George Bush praised his running mate's performance but quickly changed the subject to crime control.

Quayle shook off a poll suggesting that Democrat Lloyd Bentsen beat him handily in their debate Wednesday night and said the Republicans are "still ahead" in the race for the White House. Most pre-debate surveys gave Bush a slight advantage over Dukakis with a little over a month remaining in the campaign.

Bentsen preferred an instant ABC poll rating him the debate winner by 51 percent to 27 percent. "I was just delighted," said the Texas senator.

The highlight of the debate came as the 41-year-old Quayle said his experience in Congress compared favorably with John F. Kennedy's record at the time of the 1960 campaign.

"Senator, you're no Jack Kennedy," Bentsen shot back.

The Dukakis campaign rushed to air two television commercials questioning Quayle's qualifications. One showed pictures of Harry Truman, Lyndon Johnson and Gerald Ford, all vice presidents who succeeded to the presidency without an election, while an announcer said Bush's pick of Quayle as running mate marked a "lapse of judgment."

Dukakis told reporters aboard his campaign jet en route to Texas the debate was a "real plus for us" and called Quayle's performance "very disturbing."

Reagan, coming to Quayle's defense, said Bentsen resorted to a "cheap shot ... unbecoming a senator of the United States" with his much-quoted debate put-down of the GOP vice presidential candidate.

Bentsen disputed any suggestion of nastiness on his part.

Scorpions rock Kansas Coliseum

Fans help make video

By Judd Annis
Collegian Reviewer

Scorpions' fans who were at Wichita's Kansas Coliseum Wednesday night didn't realize that they would be making a video.

"You see the cameras out there, you see them?" shouted the German rock group's lead singer Klaus Meine as he pointed to a mobile camera platform on the floor of the arena.

Music Review

"We're here to do something very special tonight," he said. "So you can see yourselves a couple of weeks from now on MTV."

The footage was for the group's upcoming video "Passion Rules The Game," the second video from its successful Savage Amusement album.

About 8,000 fans would have to wait for almost 90 minutes of the show, however, for the cameras to officially start rolling.

By showtime, word of what was to occur had spread and the floor was quickly jammed with those eager to be filmed.

As the curtain covering the stage lifted and smoke began to roll out from the wings, the mood of the arena was one of excited anticipation.

Guitarists Rudolf Schenker, Francic Buchholz and Matthias Jabs and Meine rose on small platforms from under the stage to begin the show with "We Let It Rock, You Let It Roll," followed by "Blackout" and "Big City Nights."

"Bad Boys Running Wild" and "Make It Real" revved up the crowd for "Coast to Coast," a driving instrumental featuring Meine playing a Les Paul with his bandmates at center stage.

The pace slowed briefly for the acoustic guitar classic "Holiday" from the German rocker's '79 album Lovedrive.

As lighters blazed throughout the arena, the group eased into its heavy ballad "Still Loving You" and concluded the first part of its set with the rocker "Can't Live Without You."

The members left the stage briefly as drummer Herman Rarebell began a solo. With his platform rising above the stage, the rest of the band suddenly emerged amidst clouds of dry ice to play "Coming Home."

The band moved into "The Zoo," a song from the '80 album Animal Magnetism that gives Scorpions' concerts a shot of adrenalin. As this shot took effect, the band ended the show with "No One Like You," leaving the crowd in a frenzied state for the band's reintroduction and video shoot.

After the group returned to the stage, Meine readied the crowd, and with a cue from the director, began "Passion Rules the Game."

For purposes of filming the band, a recording of the song was played instead of a live performance.

As cameras swooped over the crowd and a cameraman roved the stage, Meine, Jabs, and Schenker climbed a suspended scaffold.

After the first take, Meine told the packed crowd in front of the stage that he knew they could do better.

"I know we can make this a lot more exciting," he yelled, and with the arena crowd on its feet, began the song again.

The group finished the evening with an encore of "Rock You Like A Hurricane" and "Dynamite."

While being present for the making of a video is obviously a climax for any rock 'n' roll fan, the evening is made even more complete when the show itself looks and sounds good.

The fans in attendance Wednesday left the coliseum satisfied by a solid rock show and a very enjoyable evening.

Brawley rape case solved; charges false

By The Associated Press

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. — Tawana Brawley's tale of rape by a gang of whites was a lie fanned into a source of racial tension through the "hucksterism and opportunism" of her advisers, New York's attorney general said Thursday.

"We have the facts. We have solved the case. The allegations she had made are false," Robert Abrams said as he released copies of an exhaustive, 170-page grand jury investigation of the black teen-ager's story.

The grand jury said it found no evidence of sexual assault and said Brawley herself was responsible for the degraded condition in which she was found after a four-day disappearance last November.

The investigation received no cooperation from Brawley or her family, who with their advisers — the Rev. Al Sharpton and attorneys C. Vernon Mason and Alton Maddox — had accused authorities of a racially motivated cover-up.

"They have charged the atmosphere with incredible, incendiary remarks and with extraordinary tension," Abrams said during a news conference. He asked the state judicial discipline committee to punish the lawyers.

Brawley was found Nov. 28, seemingly dazed, outside an apartment that had recently been vacated by her family in Wappingers Falls, 75 miles north of New York City. Her body was smeared with feces and scrawled with racial slurs.

She claimed she had been held captive for four days and raped by several white men, and she implicated law enforcement officials in the attack.

The grand jury provided no reason for Brawley to lie but noted that she had been punished and beaten on previous occasions by her mother and her mother's boyfriend, Ralph King, for leaving home and staying out late.

The report cleared Assistant District Attorney Stephen Pagones and Harry Crist Jr., a policeman who committed suicide shortly after Brawley was found. Both were accused by her advisers of taking part in the alleged attack.

Abrams charged the Brawley lawyers lied repeatedly about the case, urged their clients to break the law and "made every effort to prevent the criminal justice system from uncovering the truth of what happened to Tawana Brawley."

The attorney general accused the advisers of "opportunism and hucksterism in presenting their personal agenda" and added: "Perhaps the greatest disservice done by the Brawley advisers is the reckless manner in which they jeopardized the rights of future victims of racial assaults."

Brawley's advisers bitterly attacked the report.

"What should we expect from 21 whites from Dutchess County?" Mason asked on New York City radio station WLIB, referring to 21 whites on the panel of 23. "It is clear they never intended to arrest and prosecute those people who did this to Tawana Brawley."

Sharpton said Abrams is "not after people who rape black girls. ... They want to stop anybody who will stand up for the rights of black people in this country."

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS

Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Monday, October 17
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261
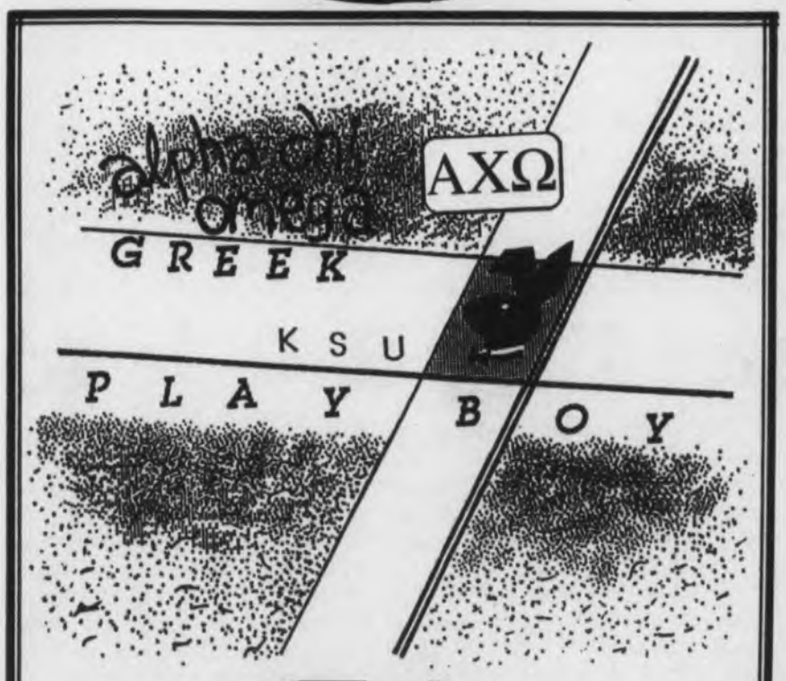
Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority at the time of pre-enrollment.

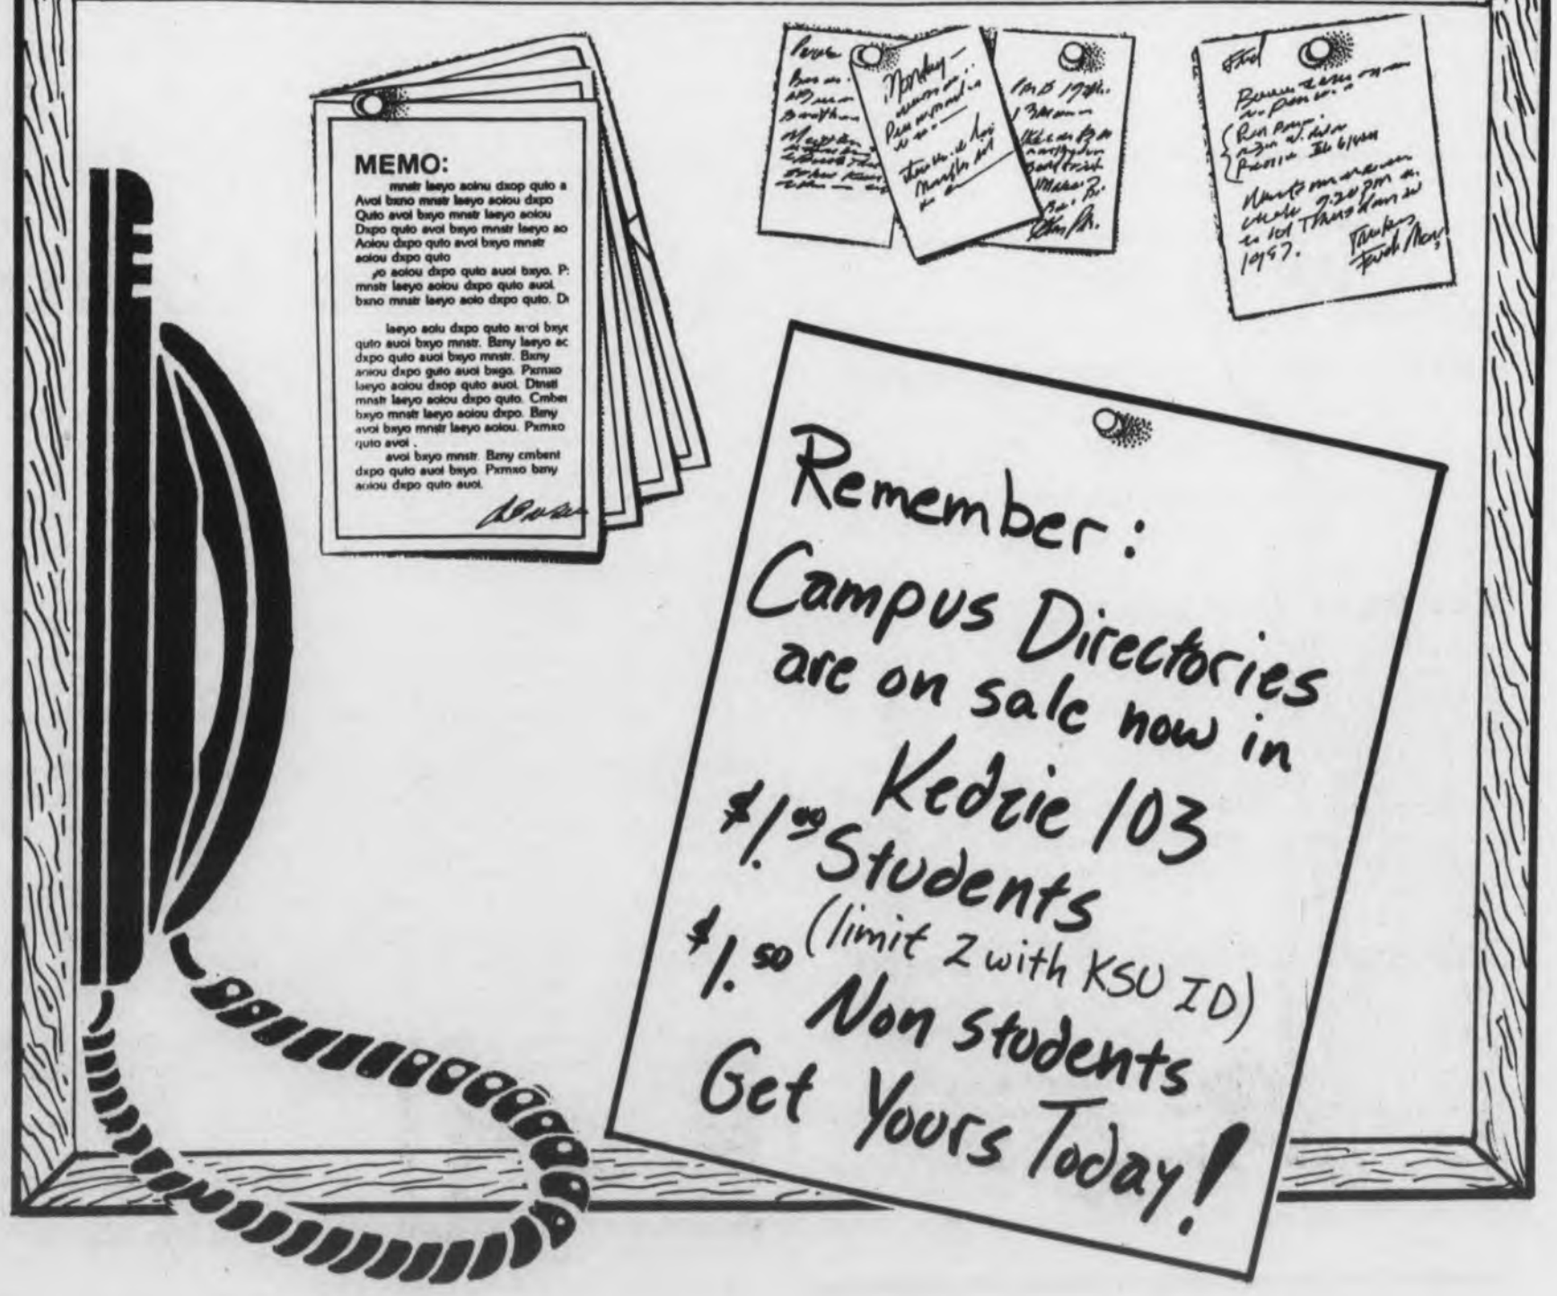
COME TO THE MOVIES TONIGHT
FILMS
7:30 p.m.



"Pale Rider"
Starring Clint Eastwood
Free Admission
UCM Student Center
1021 Denison
United Campus Ministry

BUSCH®
FALL ROUND-UP

12 packs NOW ON SALE at participating retail liquor stores



BUSCH® Beer
Head for the Mountains.

POWER FM 94.5

Announcing the '88 Greek Playboy Candidates

Acacia	John Fralick	ΦΔΘ	Curt Weber
ΑΓΡ	Bill Brand	Figi	Luke Burger
ΑΚΛ	Trent Ramsey	ΦΚΤ	Sean Buffum
ΑΤΟ	Scott Taggart	ΦΚΘ	Jake Kisel
ΒΣΨ	Travis Turnquist	ΠΚΑ	Steve Heck
ΒΘΠ	Brent Gaskill	ΠΚΦ	Eddie Enyeart
ΔΣΦ	John Fuhrman	ΣΑΕ	Mark Thomas
ΔΤΔ	Todd Dugan	ΣΧ	Dirk Fankhauser
ΔΥ	Darren Keller	ΣΝ	Matt Sise
FH	Jeff Couchman	ΣΦΕ	Darin Cooper
ΚΣ	Scott Coffman	ΤΚΕ	Tracy Bollig
ΛΧΑ	Jim Jarrett	Triangle	Warren Kennedy

Funding relieves stress on college families

Senate child care allocation eases student parent burden

By Melissa Paul
Collegian Reporter

The KSU Childcare Cooperative's allocation of $32,000 from Student Senate last April has enabled many students with families to afford using the co-op and has allowed the co-op to stabilize its budget.

Johnna Oakley, junior in biology, and her husband have two children at the co-op.

"It was a blessing when they passed the bill," Oakley said.

The Oakleys would have had to turn to a babysitter, which they said would have been inadequate care for their children, besides not having the funds to afford one.

"The number one priority was the quality of care," she said. "(Now) I have no worries."

Johnna Oakley said one reason she is impressed with the co-op is that her children's learning abilities have increased as a result of the interaction with their peers and the mind-stimulating activities the co-op provides.

The Oakley family receives funds from the Social Rehabilitation Services, which is a state agency that provides social aids such as food stamps, education rehabilitation and childcare. Without the help of the $32,000 CHILDSHIP funds, the co-op would not have been able to accept SRS recipients, said Nancy Bolsen, director of the co-op.

The SRS aids undergraduate students who meet the SRS requirements, which considers monthly income, monthly estimated cost of childcare and the number of family members. Together the SRS and the family pay a certain amount for childcare a day, such as $9.60 a day for infants.

The cost for care at the co-op is $21 a day for infants. With the CHILDSHIP funds, the SRS families were able to bridge the gap between the co-op cost and the limited SRS payments, Bolsen said.

The CHILDSHIP funds also aid families that do not receive SRS funding. The student families that demonstrate a need are required to pay only a portion of the daily cost, and the CHILDSHIP funds cover the remaining amount.

Any family that wanted funds was required to fill out an application designed by the co-op and the SGA.

Sixty-one children have been helped by the CHILDSHIP funds, Bolsen said, adding that the families of these children have guaranteed aid for the entire 1988-89 academic year.

The funds, which were distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis, were depleted two weeks before the usual enrollment rush, Bolsen said. Because of this, there are still children who are in need of funds waiting to get into the co-op.

"There are eight on the waiting list who have filled out all the information," she said.

Play area to be improved

By Melissa Paul
Collegian Reporter

Squeaky swings, rusty seesaws and bumpy grounds will no longer hinder children's play at the Jardine Terrace Apartments thanks to the Department of Housing and the KSU Childcare Cooperative.

The groups are planning improvements on existing playgrounds in the Jardine area.

Director Nancy Bolsen said the co-op is planning improvements on the playground located at the rear of its building at Jardine.

Sometime this fall the children will have a "trike track" to ride their bicycles and pull their wagons on, she said. By spring they will have a "friendship garden," which will include a flower bed and a tree enclosed by a low wall and wooden structures for climbing.

"We're still working on the master plan," Bolsen said. "We're hoping to start in October or November."

The funding for this project comes from the $86,128 Student Senate allocation to the co-op in 1986 for renovations of the building, furniture and fixtures.

The co-op is also planning to fence in the front of the toddler's area to improve safety, she said.

Bolsen said the need for playgrounds stems from the state regulations that requires childcare centers to take the children outside every four hours, except in extreme weather.

The housing department is making changes and improvements on Jardine Park, which is the playground area for Jardine residents and children.

Improvements include the addition of several wooden benches and structures for climbing.

Thomas Frith, director of housing, said these improvements are being made to enhance the playground situation.

"We're fulfilling a need we've long recognized," he said.

The playground proposal will cost about $9,000. The majority of the money for the playground equipment will come from Jardine residents' rent payments.

The work is scheduled to begin Monday, with the engineers marking off water and gas lines, said Gene Wiley, maintenance supervisor. He said he does not know when the project will be completed because of the weather factor.

"This time of the year you never know what it will do," he said.

Wiley said the finished product would resemble the Manhattan City Park playground equipment.

Another change the co-op is working on is a name change. Bolsen has submitted Child Development Center as a new name to replace the current KSU Child Care Cooperative to Dorothy Thompson, associate University attorney, who is reviewing the proposal.

Bolsen said she hoped a name change would reflect the changes the co-op has gone through in the past year. She said the new name would prevent people from associating the childcare center with a cooperative since it no longer has membership fees or requires parental help.

$5.00 off any Halloween Mask
priced over $15.00
KRAZY KRIS'
NOVELTIES & GIFTS
1128 Moro; Aggieville • 539-4567
offer expires 10/31/88

30 Portraits
Seasons Greetings
PLUS your own Christmas Cards
NOW ONLY $8.95
2(8x10s), 2(5x7s),* 10 wallets, 16 Memorable Moments™ Portraits & 16 Christmas Cards with Envelopes
*approximate size Above listing is total contents of package Sitting Fee 95¢ — Advertised special two poses — our selection. Special effects, black & white backgrounds available only in our Designer Collection. Additional charge for groups.
ALCO
3007 ANDERSON AVE.
SATURDAY OCTOBER 8 Hours 10-2, 3-6
SUNDAY OCTOBER 9 Hours 11-4

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)
Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa
Park Place apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951

Ebony Theatre Company
A SEASON OF CHOICES
The Colored Museum
by George C. Wolfe
November 3, 4, 5
"Master Harold" . . . and the Boys
by Athol Fugard
December 1, 2, 3
Purple Masque Theatre
Kansas State University
SHOWTIME 8 p.m.
Box office will open at 7:30 p.m.
Admission
$2 Student/Senior Citizens $3 General Public "Experience the Reality"

R • O • Y • A • L

Portraits for the Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., 1:30-5:30 p.m.
Sept. 6 through Nov. 11
K-State Union Room 209

Acacia — Sept. 6
Alpha Chi Omega — Sept. 6-7
Alpha Delta Pi — Sept. 7-8
Alpha Gamma Delta — Sept. 8
Alpha Gamma Rho — Sept. 8-9
Alpha Kappa Lambda — Sept. 9
Alpha Tau Omega — Sept. 9, 12
Alpha Xi Delta — Sept. 12-13
Beta Sigma Psi — Sept. 13
Beta Theta Pi — Sept. 14
Chi Omega — Sept 14-15
Delta Delta Delta — Sept. 15-16
Delta Sigma Phi — Sept. 16, 19
Delta Tau Delta — Sept. 19-20
Delta Upsilon — Sept. 20
FarmHouse — Sept. 20-21
Gamma Phi Beta — Sept. 21-22
Kappa Alpha Theta — Sept. 22-23
Kappa Delta — Sept. 23, 26
Kappa Kappa Gamma — Sept. 26-27
Kappa Sigma — Sept. 27-28
Lambda Chi Alpha — Sept. 28
Phi Delta Theta — Sept. 29
Phi Gamma Delta — Sept. 29-30
Phi Kappa Tau — Sept. 30
Phi Kappa Theta — Sept. 30, Oct. 3
Pi Beta Phi — Oct. 3-4
Pi Kappa Alpha — Oct. 4-5
Pi Kappa Phi — Oct. 5
Sigma Alpha Epsilon — Oct. 5-6
Sigma Chi — Oct. 6
Sigma Nu — Oct. 6-7
Sigma Phi Epsilon — Oct. 7, 10
Sigma Sigma Sigma — Oct. 10
Tau Kappa Epsilon — Oct 10-11
Theta Xi — Oct. 11
Triangle — Oct. 11-12
Boyd — Oct. 12-13
Clovia — Oct. 13
Edwards — Oct. 13-14
Ford — Oct. 14
Goodnow — Oct. 17-19
Haymaker — Oct. 19-21
Marlatt — Oct. 21-25
Moore — Oct. 25-26
Putnam — Oct. 26
Smith — Oct. 26
Smurthwaite — Oct. 27
West — Oct. 27-28
Off Campus (includes Jardine) — Oct. 31 - Nov. 11

Yearbook Associates is the official photographic portrait service for the 1989 Royal Purple. It is important to make your appointment as soon as possible so you won't be left out of the yearbook. There will be sign-up sheets available at the greek houses and residence halls soon after school starts. If you are a member of a sorority or fraternity, but live in a residence hall or apartment, please have your picture taken with your sorority or fraternity. Beginning Sept. 6, appointments may be made in Union 209 by calling 539-5229, 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Cost of the sitting fee for color proofs is $3.50 and may be paid in Kedzie Hall 103.
Please Bring Fee Card or Student I.D.
Yearbook Associates

P • U • R • P • L • E

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment NOW!
Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10
Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You
8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

Hostages

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

The three Americans held with Singh were Jesse Turner, 41, a native of Boise, Idaho; Alann Steen, 49, of Boston; and Robert Polhill, 54, of New York City.

The communique was the first from Revolutionary Justice since July 7, when the group threatened to "punish" hostages for the U.S. downing of an Iranian jetliner over the Persian Gulf.

The communique accused right-wing Christian militants of collaborating with Israel, Iraq and NATO to partition Lebanon as a first step to turning it into "an Israeli satellite and a NATO base for intrigues against the people of the region."

It called the Christian militants "the grandsons of the crusaders" and warned: "We shall mete out the just punishment to the conspirators."

Impeach

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

believe it is a legitimate matter of concern," Folk said.

One area of conflict between the sponsors and opponents of the bill is which past legislation governing attendance is valid.

Legislation adopted during the 1986-87 Senate term was viewed as invalid by opponents of the impeachment bill.

Folk, using his authority to rule on the validity of legislation, said the bill is invalid because it disagrees with the unexcused absence limits in the bylaws to the SGA Constitution.

The bylaws state that a senate member will be considered for impeachment after accumulating three unexcused absences. The 1986-87 legislation states a senator will be considered for impeachment after accumulating four absences.

Folk said he ruled the entire piece of legislation invalid because of the four absence requirement. Legislation cannot supersede the bylaws, he said.

Halinski argued that until the Student Tribunal rules on the validity of the 1986-87 legislation, Senate should follow its rules as they are written.

"The bills that I brought up were sent to Student Tribunal. It couldn't rule because it didn't have a quorum," she said.

Following the vote against placing the impeachment bill on the agenda, Senator Scott Darger, senior in marketing, proposed adding a bill to the agenda which would have called for the firing of Halinski, Senate's work-study secretary.

Addition of the bill was disapproved.

"That was also somewhat a malicious joke," Folk said.

Father

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

tually led to the statement came in 1981 when he heard the story of a Palestinian friend whose father and four uncles were not allowed by Israeli security forces to visit a dying relative.

"You could see the misery of this family multiplied by the number of Palestinians. And these were the lucky ones. These were not the ones caught in the refugee camps," Coyle said.

"Every time you meet a Palestinian, there is a tragedy somewhere in the immediate background," he said.

According to Coyle's statement, "The actions of the PLO and other Palestinian organizations can be — and, by right, ought to be — seen as desperate measures taken by a wronged people when its earlier appeals to American 'reason' and 'sense of justice' have consistently failed."

"I know that I could never in this world forgive anyone who killed my children, and one must remember that in Arab cultures, the family is second only to God," he said.

"Anyone who has sympathy for the Israelis, in all justice must feel the same for the Palestinians," he said.

"Does the U.S. stand on record as favoring self-determination? As long as we believe in that, we have to get out of the way and let the Palestinians decide their future for themselves."

Shop

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

paring this show with the other one."

Kahlich saw the original production of "Little Shop" in New York and said he has tried to recapture the feeling of that production.

"If you've seen the movie, you shouldn't think you know what the play is about. There are lots of different things," Mike Smith said.

"The big difference is the usual Hollywood thing — they changed the ending from the play," Kahlich said.

"What we're doing different is simply the scale. Movies have limitless space; theater space has to be much more versatile," he said. "Actors must work very hard in the technical aspect in what is technically the same space but dramatically not."

Kahlich said he would not claim that the musical is written for social value, but primarily entertainment.

"It is a very popular production with audiences," he said.

"There is going to be a lot of grooving in the audience," Remy said. "The play is more fun than the movie."

The actors did a lot of impromptu work on their characters, working more with personality than with lines, Santucci said.

The 14-member cast has been practicing every day since the end of August, Kahlich said.

The cast is young, with most of the large roles being played by freshmen, which is really rare, said stage manager Gregory Alan, senior in dance and theater.

"When we auditioned there was so much talent that if these people stick around we'll have a really good program," he said.

About 60 people worked on the show, with some help from the Fundamentals of Technical Production and Stage Lighting classes, Alan said. It is a smaller cast than usual for a musical, because there is a trio instead of a chorus and a five-piece combo instead of an orchestra.

The production opens Oct. 12 in Nichols Theatre and will run through Oct. 22.

Tickets are $6 for students and seniors, and $7 for general admission. They are available at the Nichols Theatre Box Office.

The box office is open from noon to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

FREE CATALOG
of Government Books
Box 37000
Washington DC 20013-7000

Putt-Putt® Golf
Open Fri., Sat. & Sun.
Afternoons & Evenings
Through October

Feeling run down?
No get up and go?
FEEL GOOD AGAIN!!

Call today 537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
Chiropractor
3252 Kimball Avenue

Memorial Hospital's
Wee Care
daytime care for children with minor illnesses
call 776-3300

QUALITY NATURAL FOODS
from your local co-op store
811 Colorado
539-4811
People's Grocery Cooperative

KOREAN MOVIE
—Night Cuckoo—
Little Theatre
Tonight 7:30 p.m.
(Rated R)
no admission under 19
Korean Student Assoc.

SPAGHETTI SUNDAY

ALL YOU CAN EAT SPAGHETTI AND GARLIC BREAD!!
ONLY $3.25
SERVING 5-8 p.m.
Open Noon Sundays For Lunch, Too!
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT... KITE'S BAR AND GRILL
619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

RAINMAKERS
TORNADO TOUR
IN CONCERT
FRIDAY OCTOBER 14, 1988
SPECIAL GUEST
THE RINGO'S OF SOUL
AT THE
WASHBURN UNIVERSITY WHITE CONCERT HALL
TICKETS AVAILABLE IN TOPEKA: BUDGET TAPES & RECORDS; MOTHER EARTH RECORDS & TAPES; FACTS & SNACKS WASHBURN UNION; IN LAWRENCE: UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS UNION
$5.00 STUDENT/$10.00 PUBLIC
GENERAL ADMISSION ONLY
DOORS OPEN AT 7:30pm
MUSIC STARTS AT 8:00pm
FOR MORE INFO. CALL
SPONSORED BY WSA
(913)232-4297

IF WE DON'T HAVE THIS MOVIE FOR RENT WE'LL GIVE YOU ANOTHER ONE FREE.
HERE'S WHAT THE OTHERS WILL GIVE YOU:

This week's GUARANTEED MOVIE IS: RAMBO III
NOW Featuring Nintendo
If the guaranteed movie isn't available for rent when you come in, you can watch any other movie of your choice. FREE.*
NATIONAL VIDEO®
MORE COPIES OF THE HITS!SM
TWO LOCATIONS
Junction City 1009 W. 6th 762-4270
Manhattan 1123 Westloop 537-0089

Religious Directory

GRACE BAPTIST CHURCH
Worship 10:30 a.m.
Collegian class
Sunday School 9:15 a.m.
Dr. Judd Swihart
& Gordon Hibbard, teachers
Students Welcome
776-0424 2901 Dickens Ave.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
801 Leavenworth 537-0518
Worship 8*30 & 11 am.
Church School 9:30 am.
•College Outreach (Tuesday, K-State Union)
•Weekday Programs for Youth
•Nursery available
Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Phillip S. Gittings III

COLLEGE AVENUE UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
Sunday School — 9:30 a.m.
(College-age Class)
Worship Service — 10:45 a.m.
1609 College Ave. 539-4191

The Assembly
Sunday Praise Hours
10:15 a.m. and 6 p.m.
•Sunday School—9 a.m.
•Collegiate Bible Class
•Transportation available
Office 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.
Mike Wall, Pastor 537-7967
MINISTRY FOR THE DEAF

STUDENTS WELCOME!
COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Worship Service
2221 College Heights Rd.
537-7744

Trinity Presbyterian Church
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
•Nursery Provided
•Handicap Accessible
•Rides Available
Pastor James Cramer
1110 College Ave. 539-3921

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 a.m. Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services
John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
invites you ...
WORSHIP, SUNDAY 11 a.m.
Danforth Chapel (campus)
Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m.
Sunday - Lutheran Student Center
Don Fallon, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4451
Come share the Spirit!

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave. 539-8462
Shabbat Services 8 p.m. Fri.
Religious School 9:30 Sun.
Rides available
sponsor B'nai B'rith Hillel at K-State
Campus Adviser,
David Margolies, 532-6154

First Church of the Nazarene
"Stepping out in faith ... Reaching out in love."
Morning Worship—10:50
Evening Praise—6:00
Sunday School—9:45
College Class—9:30
Pastor K. Ray McDowell 539-6376 (home)
1000 Fremont 539-2851 (church)
*Nursery Available

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
Worship Saturday 6 p.m.
Sunday 8 and 10:45 a.m.
—Bible Class—
Sunday 9:30 a.m.
Student fellowship 5 p.m.
in the K-State Union
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

First Baptist Church
Sunday Worship 11 a.m.
Church School 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd. 539-8691

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH
WORSHIP 8 & 10:30 a.m.
Randy Sly, Pastor
For information on College Class call church office
SUN. EVE. WORSHIP 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd and 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups) 6 p.m.
2nd and 4th Sundays
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ
115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan
S.W. corner 14th & Anderson
Steve Ratliff, Pastor
Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
776-2086 Nursery Provided 776-0259

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079

Christian Campus Ministry
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Classes 9:30 a.m.
& Wed. 7:30 p.m.
Andy Miller—Campus Minister
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

St. Isidore's
Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday - 5 p.m.
Daily Mass 10 p.m.
(except Fridays)
711 Denison 539-7496

UNITED PENTECOSTAL CHURCH
Sunday School 10:00 a.m.
Worship Service 11:00 a.m.
Evangelical Service Sun. 7:00 p.m.
Youth Service Tues. 7:30 p.m.
700 Vattier, 776-8717 or 537-0384

UNITARIAN-UNIVERSALIST FELLOWSHIP of MANHATTAN
10:45 a.m. Service & Sunday School
Nursery provided, everyone welcome
On K-18, ½ mile east of K-177
For info: call 537-2349

University Christian
2800 Claflin 776-5440
8:30-11 a.m. Worship
9:45 a.m. Sunday School
6:30 p.m. Eve. Service
Accessible To Handicapped Students Welcome

DIAL-A-PRAYER
(913) 762-4837
762-2287
Someone there to pray with you.
24 hours

Unity Church of Manhattan
Sunday Service 11 a.m.
Study group 6:30 p.m. Sun.
1221 Thurston, UFM House
539-8416

Crestview Christian Church
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Collegiate Sunday School 9:30
776-3798
4761 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

First Congregational Church United Church of Christ
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
700 Poyntz 537-7006
Dr. Robert L. Carlson, Pastor

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Sunday School—9:40 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not disciminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

GET YOUR Scrub Shirts only $10. Westloop Medical Supply, 1231 Westloop.

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

PENTECOSTAL CONQUERERS Bible Club. Every Wednesday 7p.m., Union 202. Bring your Bible, join us. 537-4441.

Having a party?
Need music?
C. G. Disco
call Clyde: (913)784-5604

HOUSTON STREET BALLROOM
Wedding Receptions
Dances, Parties
539-1234

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

HAIR SHACK, 415 N. Third, 776-7421. Fall Specials: Perms $20- $25 with cut/ set. Sculptured nails $25, call Mona. Style/ cut/ blowdry $9. Monday- Saturday 8a.m.- 5p.m. We're unique.

CROSS POINT
Christian Rock
on the edge
Sunday 5 to 9 p.m. on DB92 KSDB 91.9

MARS MANIA
KSU Astronomy Club
Telescopes open to public to see Mars and other sky objects.
Cardwell Lobby
Oct. 8
9-11:30 p.m.

AVIATION CADET PROGRAM

Do you want to fly? Pilot training, ages 19-24 with 60 semester hours for our naval aviation cadet program. Must be a U.S. citizen and physically qualified with a 2.5 plus G.P.A. Call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

IF TRAINS interest you- prototype or model- call Pat Lenahan at 532-3375. Considering formation of club.

PARTY!? NEED a DJ? Optimum Output! Is the answer. Large system, professional equipment, lowest prices. Chris, 532-3361.

SIP N' DIP
HOT TUB RENTALS
537-1825
ask about our $75 Discount.

WHAT IS the highest grade Jethro Bodine completed? If you know the answer to this question, call Domino's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order, 539-0561.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

ONE-BEDROOM furnished apartment, two blocks west of campus with off-street parking. 539-7811 or 1-456-2090.

ROOM AND board for female/ married couple in Junction City in return for occasional shopping/ errands. Call collect, (816)885-2830.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

EXCEPTIONALLY CLEAN one-bedroom, walk-in closet, dining/ living room, kitchen and bath in a six-plex. $265. Phone 537-7087.

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. Partially furnished. Call Tim at 539-7975.

QUIET, WELL-MAINTAINED one-bedroom apartment close to KSU for lease to non-smoking adult. Laundry, parking, paid heat and air conditioning and more. $240. No waterbeds, pets. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1982 DATSUN 280Z fully equipped, five-speed, t-top. 537-9351.

EXTRA CLEAN 1966 Chrysler Newport four-door, what a boat! $450 or best offer. 776-9925 anytime.

7 Child Care

INFANT AND child care in my home, Cico Park area. 537-9351.

8 Computers

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

CHURCH NURSERY attendant needed Sunday mornings 8:15a.m. to 12:15p.m. Must be 18 years of age or older. Complete application at 115 Courthouse Plaza, Monday through Friday between 8:30a.m. and noon, and 1- 3:30p.m. Application deadline Oct. 12.

EXCITING CONCEPT! Casino-style table operators. Salary plus weekly bonus, plus tips. Exciting, fun positions available at the Hat Creek Company Saloon. Need attractive, dependable and professionally minded individuals to work part-time evenings. High income potential and flexible schedules. No experience necessary, training provided. Coeds, don't be bashful. Sounds interesting? Applications taken and interviews held by Casino Concepts personnel on Saturday, Oct. 8th from noon- 4p.m. at the Hat Creek Company Saloon, 215 E. Eighth, Junction City, Kansas. If further information is necessary, call Casino Concepts, 1-800-843-2030. If not, see you on Saturday.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, and juniors: Get paid to train in the summer to become Marine Corps officers after graduation. Aviation and financial aid available. Call collect, 1-841-1821.

HELP WANTED, Telephone survey part-time Monday through Friday, students welcome. 537-3394.

MARKETING POSITIONS open with Manhattan business. Knowledge of media, promotions and layout skills necessary. Submit resume to Box 9, in care of K-State Collegian, 103 Kedzie Hall.

ON-CAMPUS TRAVEL representative or organization needed to promote Spring Break trip to Florida or Texas. Earn money, free trips and valuable work experience. Call Inter-Campus Programs. 1-800-433-7747.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART-TIME HELP wanted (10- 15 hours/ week). Duties will include data entry, proofing computer printouts, filling orders, typing and some heavy lifting. Preference given to applicants with computer experience. Important: Must be able to work during school breaks, including full-time between fall and spring semesters. Interested? Contact Coleen or Bridget at 532-5970.

Harvest Inn Motel & Torchlight Lounge
Immediate openings for night-time positions:
—desk clerks —cocktail waitresses
—night auditers —doormen
—bartenders
Apply in person at 1001 E. 6th St.
Junction City, KS

PAY DAY! Beginning salary $3.60/hour. All shifts for waiter and waitresses; Mexican Tuesday and Thursday 10:30-2:00; hotline server, Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10:30-1:15 and 10:20-2:00; cashier Monday through Friday 8:00-1:30 and Monday through Friday 1:30-4:00; sandwich Monday through Friday 6:00-10:30; ice cream Monday through Friday 10:30-1:30; office assistant, hours will vary. Apply now at the K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. Food Handler's Card a must.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT- temporary, full-time, requires B.S. in biochemistry or related field. Experience with animal care, RIAs, peptide synthesis and general lab procedures required. Submit vitae and three references by Oct. 17, 1988. Position starts Oct. 24, 1988. Contact: Dr. Dolores Takemoto, department of biochemistry, Burt Hall 203, KSU, 532-7009. KSU is Equal Opportunity/ Affirmative Action Employer.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

STUDENT PROGRAMMERS: Responsible programming position, 20 to 30 hours/ week. Graduate, as well as undergraduate students encouraged to apply. Long-term employment given preference. Apply in person to Receptionist, Administrative User Services, Anderson 21, by Monday, 5p.m., Oct. 10.

STUDENT WITH experience in stripping and refinishing furniture needed to strip and refinish four pieces of antique furniture. Reply c/o Collegian Box 8.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS, full- or part-time. Apply in person, Seven Dolors Child Care, Eighth and Colorado.

VALENTINO'S: NOW hiring for driver, pizza table and dishroom positions. Please apply in person at 3019 Anderson.

VISTA DRIVE-IN is now taking applications for part- and full-time help. Must be able to work some noon shifts. Apply in person.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: ONE kitten, orange color, University Inn parking lot. Call 539-6355.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

FILE CABINET, posture chair, two living room chairs, white dresser and desk, maple student desk. 539-4792.

GENUINE LEATHER pants, misses size 6, small size sweaters, coats, raincoats. 539-4792.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

POPCORN, WHITE Grade "A" 50-pound bags for just $15. Call Troy at 537-6886.

STUDENT DESK, office desk, swivel desk chairs, couch, dinette, chest, beds, bar, misc. furniture. 776-9705.

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1983 INTERCEPTOR 750. Looks brand new, runs great. Vance and Hines exhaust. $1,600. 539-8086, Kerry.

1985 700 Nighthawk S, black and blue. 6,000 miles. Phone 532-5279.

1986 YAMAHA Fazer FZX700S, Black/ 'Passion' Red/ Chrome, low miles, showroom condition, two helmets, best offer. 532-3420.

BIANCHI CERVINO mountain bike. Used only two months. Excellent condition. Extra tires, handlebars, lock. 532-5381.

17 Musical Instruments

CERWIN- VEGA Bass guitar cabinet with Sunn 18" speaker. Wheels, handles. $125. 539-2401.

Hayes House of Music
D. O. D.
Guitar Effects
30% Off
327 Poyntz 776-7983

KRAMER GUITAR, metallic blue, Floyd Rose Tremolo. Make me an offer. 539-9309.

18 Personals

ADPI'S- GRAB your tickets and get ready 'cause tonight's the night. We'll go from Greece to Transylvania, to the Isle of Tonya. With the world as our playground, the sky's the limit. Love, the Beta Sigs.

B. AND J.: Susie's Laundry Service no longer caters to the baseball team. Start hitchin' to Suds Yer Duds. -R.S.S. and S.

ED, THANKS for always being there when I need someone to talk to. You can always cheer me up. Hey, I sure could use another Hug. L.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

GEE KELL- You're swell, so now you're 19! Is that all it's bean? You've been a great friend and roommate. We'll be with ya to the end. Happy B-lated B-day. Stephani and Nacolle.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Little Pooter, tomorrow's your 21st. Maybe now you won't have to pay $3 cover charge! Love you, Big Stinker.

HEY, SPOT, Style missed you while you were gone!!

PIKES- WE'LL search and search till we find it all, our scavenger hunt will be a ball. Here and there and all around, hoping that everything can be found. Can't wait! The G-Phis.

TKE POWDER Puff Coaches: Dave, Aaron and Shawn- "Hey check out the sun!" "Nerds and Gum did the trick." Any doubts? Try a wishbone right. "Call time out -- I don't have anything to say, I just wanted to run out on the field." You guys were the greatest! Thanks for all your support. The Psyched F.

STACEY: HAPPY 21st Birthday! You're the greatest! Fuzzy Love, your little sis, Alisa.

TKE TRACY- Only one more week! Don't be nervous, don't be shy- your brothers think you're a hell of a guy! You'll do great, you'll look fine, just remember it's Alpha Chi Greek Playboy time! Best of Luck, Melanie.

TWIT- HOPE your 22nd birthday weekend is Great! Don't eat too much! ILY, Twaddles!

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE: Parakeet, one year old, blue and yellow. Cage, toys, food included. $10. 537-4811.

FREE- TWO adorable tabby kittens. Looking for a new home. Both litter trained. 776-0678.

20 Professional Services

SOUTHERN SUN
THE TANNING SALON
Keep your tan glowing with us
776-8060
519 N. 12th

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

FOR RENT: Big-screen TV. $49.95 per day, extended rates available. Call 776-8309.

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will type papers, theses and dissertations, letters, etc. at reasonable rates. 776-5907.

FOR ALL word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY will do typing. Call Ruth 537-2211, evenings 539-8768.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, professional documents, resumes, etc., laser printer quality. Call 1-494-2279 after 5p.m.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

WORD PROCESSING: Hire a professional for your papers, dissertations and manuscripts. Scharmann Word Processing 539-3221.

23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. $150 plus one-half utilities. In complex one block from campus. Call 537-2955.

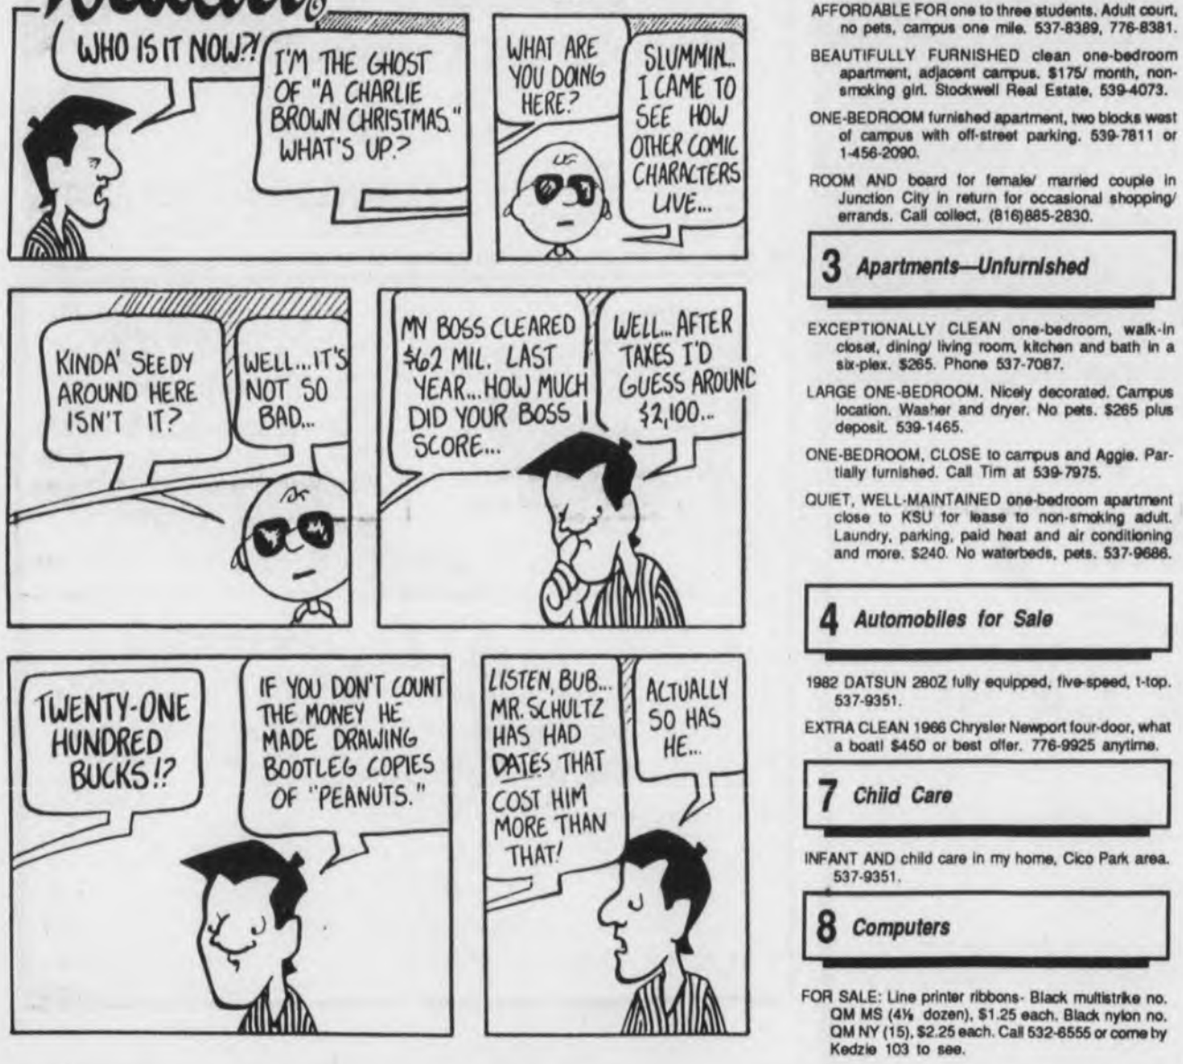
FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted immediately. $135 plus one-third utilities. One block from campus, nice and clean. Call 776-3788 (Rebecca).

NON-SMOKING ROOMMATE. Opportunity for serious student. $150.00 plus share utilities. 776-9083.

NON-SMOKING FEMALE to share two-bedroom furnished apartment with Christian female. $152.99 plus one-half utilities. 539-9564.

ROOMMATE TO share nice large furnished three-bedroom, two-bath apartment house with washer/ dryer. Rent $120. Call 776-4984 after 5:30p.m.

24 Situation Wanted



NEED AN odd job done? Something repaired? Can fix most anything. Call Frank, 776-0447.

WANTED A bass player for rock band. If interested, call 776-1691.

28 Adoption

HAPPILY MARRIED California couple, with lots of love and security, wish to adopt a white baby up to age two. All expenses paid. Totally legal. Please call Jeanie collect. (213)278-6161. Thank you.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

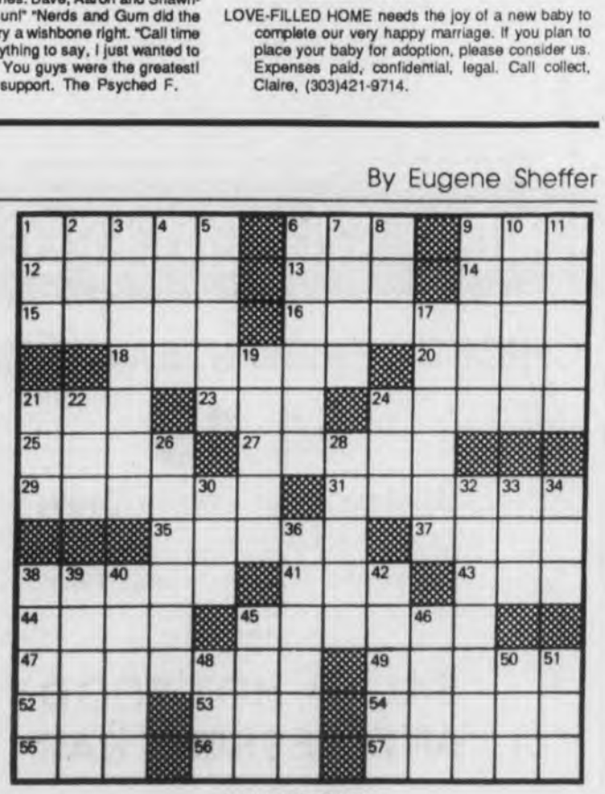
By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Drew to a close
6 Ninny
9 Peculiar
12 Singer Haggard
13 Quick drink
14 "The Raven" writer
15 Record needles
16 Battery
18 Cleans
20 One type of rug
21 Shooter ammo
23 Afternoon social
24 TV's "The — Bunch"
25 Wise ones
27 Mini-map
29 Searched into 31 Haystack find
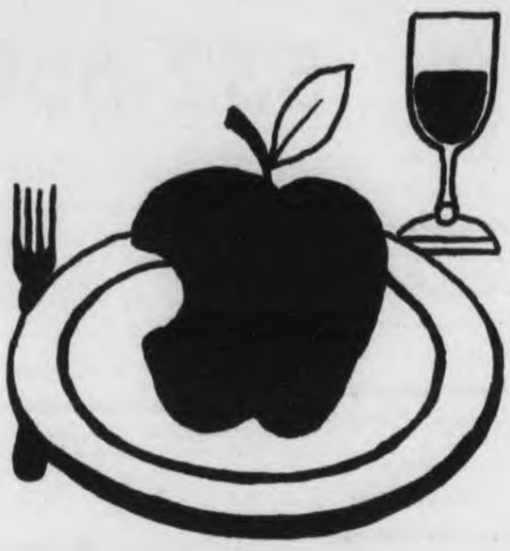
35 Cream of the crop
37 Zwei follower
38 To any extent
41 Checkers side
43 Longing
44 Owed amount
45 Prohibited
47 Not teary
49 Crazy as —
52 Ending for count
53 Dined
54 Personal computer
55 — Moines
56 Impair
57 Crooked

DOWN
1 Print units
2 Dogcatcher's trap?
3 Plasterboard
4 Singer Fitzgerald
5 Believer of a sort
6 Like llamas
7 Letter opener
8 007, for one
9 Verdi specialty
10 Meted out
11 Holdup
17 Transported wares
19 Alpine heroine
21 Cacao holder
22 Cote mom
24 Country contest
26 Willowy
28 Villainous look
30 Building addition
32 Shiprepairing site
33 Jamie — Curtis
34 German article
36 Old merchant
38 Appended
39 Concise
40 Deep pit
42 O'Neill forte
45 Greek consonant
46 Yale players
48 Sweet potato
50 Mine yield
51 "Who's Sorry — ?"

Solution time: 28 mins.

S	H	A	D		S	I	S		S	L	O	B
P	A	G	E		O	R	E		T	I	G	E
A	V	E	C		M	E	L		A	B	L	E
S	E	D	A	T	E		F	E	R	R	E	T
			N	O	R		E	V	E
D	A	F	T		S	T	I	L	E	T	T	O
I	R	A			E	A	R			T	O	P
P	A	L	M	E	T	T	O		S	O	O	T
		S	E	T			N	O	W
T	H	E	T	A	S		W	H	E	L	K	S
R	A	T	E		O	D	E		D	I	N	O
A	L	T	O		A	Y	E		E	M	I	R
M	O	O	R		R	E	D		N	O	T	E

Yesterday's answer 10-7



CRYPTOQUIP

10-7

W L S T L N W S J Y G G N Y R T P Q D R P B J W R P J G B P B D W Q V P G E Q W V Q P G P R S P Q E R P G Y.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: OUR PLUSH HEALTH SPA IS CHARGING PATRONS AN EXERCISE TAX.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals C

DINE OUT

AT MANHATTAN AREA RESTAURANTS

---

1 Mrs. Powell's 1
Delicious Cinnamon Rolls
FREE CINNAMON ROLL
with the purchase of a roll and large drink
Manhattan Town Center
Expires October 31, 1988

2605 Stagg Hill Rd. Gregov's 776-1234

WEEKEND SPECIAL

Family Style Pan-Fried chicken $4.50
Broiled Salmon w/ Crabmeat Stuffing $6.95
Prime Rib $7.95

All above served with choice of potatoe, vegtables, and salad.
Entertainment for dining & dancing.

AUTHENTIC TEXAS AND MEXICAN FOOD
GAME DAY SPECIAL
11 a.m.-5 p.m.
SINGLE BEEF FAJITA
with sour cream, guacamole, & pico de gallo. Served with Spanish rice & frijoles barrachos.
$3.95
☆ GREAT MARGARITAS

LONE STAR CAFE
606 N. 12th
NEXT TO HIBACHI HUT

E·A·T·A·T
Rock A Belly
B·A·R·&·D·E·L·I

"Sub of the Week"

"6" Pastrami" $2.25
Shaved Pastrami & Provolone. Served warm with lettuce, tomato & chips.

"BIG GIRLS" $1.50 23 oz. draft

Join us all day for Great Food & A Great Time!

COCKTAILS
BAGELS

Serving Food from 10:00 A.M.-9:00 P.M.
Serving Cocktails 10:00 A.M. to 2:00 A.M.
Monday-Saturday

718 N. Manhattan ▪ 539-8033 ▪ AGGIEVILLE

SUNDAY STUDENT SPECIALS

CHICKEN FRIED STEAK DINNER
$4.49
Mushroom or Cream Gravy
Includes choice of Potato plus Toast, Salad, Hot Food and Dessert Bar

++++

SALAD, HOT FOOD AND DESSERT BAR
$3.79
Show your Student ID Card and request the Student Special of your choice!

Breakfast Buffet Sat./Sun. 6-10:30 a.m.
100 Bluemont
SIRLOIN STOCKADE.

AGGIEVILLE U.S.A.

PYRAMID PIZZA

FAST, FRIENDLY, & FREE DELIVERY
539-4888

TAKE A BREAK WITH US THIS WEEKEND
For a Real Gourmet Burger other fine foods and EeGee's Made Ice Cream

EeGee's
Restaurant & Ice Creamery
1129 Laramie •10 a.m. Midnight • 537-3999

Piñata

BACK THE CATS!

Then join us after the game for FROSTY MARGARITAS!
&
SIZZLING HOT FAJITAS!

1219 Bluemont
539-3166
Open daily at 11:00 am

DON'T BE A STYROHEAD

Let's face it. a daily diet of tasteless burgers in styrofoam boxes can turn you into a dull person.

Go for the fresh alternative! Get a fresh, delicious Subway sandwich or salad for a change. You'll love it.

$1 off of any foot long or large salad

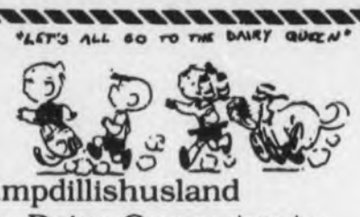
We deliver
539-9391
Sun. 2-10
Mon.-Sat. 5-12

The Fresh Alternative
SUBWAY Sandwiches & Salads
620 N. Manhattan
Aggieville

Hours:
Mon.-Sat. 11-2
Sun. 11-11
exp. 10/18/88

---

9 Piece Chicken Special



$7.39
Limit 2 per visit or call ahead.
Expires Oct. 31, 1988

901 N. 3rd.
776-9031
3002 Anderson
539-9491

Kentucky Fried Chicken.

"LET'S ALL GO TO THE DAIRY QUEEN"

Welcome Football Fans!

Come to scrumpdillishusland for all your favorite Dairy Queen treats before and after the game. We're open until midnight.

Dairy Queen brazier

Dairy Queen Brazier
1015 N. 3rd, Manhattan
776-4117

PEPSI STOP & SHOP PEPSI

WEEKEND SPECIALS

KSU Squeeze Bottle—99¢
Double Cheeseburger & 16 oz. Pepsi—$1.59
Nachos with chili & cheese—99¢

We refill all cups!

1455 Anderson • 537-2200
Anderson Village

Cheeseburgers
4 oz.–$2.75
7 oz.–$3.25

Manhattan, Ks.
105 N. 3rd
M-F 11 a.m.-2 a.m.
Sat. 10 a.m.-2 a.m.
776-9879

Falsetto's PIZZA
539-3830

Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster!
The Best For Less
Two Pizzas — $5.99
No Coupon Required
- Homemade — Made by hand
- Fresh Ingredients
- Dough made daily
- 100% Real Mozzerella Cheese
- Free Delivery — Limited territory

MENU

Italian Sausage, Pepperoni, Ground Beef, Mushrooms, Black Olives, Onions, Jalapenos, Pineapple, Green Peppers, Ham, Extra Cheese

	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
Cheese	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 Item	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 Items	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 Items	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 Items	9.79	12.99	14.59
Deluxe	9.79	12.99	14.59
Vegie	9.79	12.99	14.59
Supreme	10.74	14.24	15.99
Each Additional Item	.95	1.25	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

*3-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

Horse Sense

More than 100 horse lovers and enthusiasts attended the Horse Sense XXII clinic Saturday in Weber Arena. See Page 3.

Weather

Early morning fog today, then sunny and mild, high in the low 70s. Northwest winds 10 to 20 mph in the afternoon. Clear tonight, low in the mid-40s. Sunny Tuesday, high in the upper 60s.

Missouri's football team manhandled K-State, 52-21, Saturday in KSU Stadium. See Page 9.

Monday
October 10, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 35

Kansas State
Collegian

Singer's music conveys hope

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

"This one is for the down and out and all of those who believe in a brighter day. This one is for the down at heart and every time they had to stand aside." — from "The Down and Out" by Odeis Taylor.

"I'm trying to get across the feelings of the destitute people that are homeless, (and) also those who are jobless and don't seem to have any hope right now," said Taylor, a country and western singer. "And I'm trying to tell the average American citizen what's going on, through the lyrics of my music."

Taylor, a Manhattan resident, released a 45 rpm record earlier this year containing the songs "The Down and Out" and "American Hero." He is also working on a second 45 addressing the same themes.

Taylor co-produced the first record with Steve Bachoritch at the studios of Voyager Productions in Manhattan. The two records are part of Taylor's "Homeless Project." He plans to donate 25 percent of the proceeds from the record sales to agencies that shelter the homeless in the areas where the records are sold.

"He just seemed like a man with an extreme amount of drive," Bachoritch said of Taylor. Bachoritch is the owner of Voyager Productions, an 8-track recording studio.

Taylor is using the recent recording as a promotional tool. He has not placed it on the market for sale, but instead has given it to area radio stations. He thinks if his songs are played on the radio, then he can begin selling the records.

Taylor paid for the production of the records with money received in an insurance settlement from an accident which left him 75 to 80 percent physically disabled.

"I've put all of that into living expenses, transportation, making the records, record production, studio time, musicians, promotion of the record, that sort of thing," he said.

"I've been having to do it all myself. It's like I need a corporation, but here I am," Taylor said.

Because of his injuries, Taylor said he has been unable to find work which will provide enough money to pay the $50-a-week child-care bill for his 5-year-old son, Shane.

"I can't be back like I was before. There are jobs that I can do, but the jobs that I can do pay so little that it would cost me to go to work," Taylor said.

The themes of poverty and homelessness were chosen by Taylor "because I've been in that situation a few times myself," he said.

"I've been on and off welfare since I've been in Kansas, about nine years," Taylor said.

The musician has searched for work in the areas he is qualified to work, he said.

"I have a college degree — a B.A. in social sciences. Unfortunately, that is the minimum for any social science openings that I've checked into in the past couple of years," Taylor said.

"There are like 25 people ahead of me who are better qualified," he said.

While performing at a club in Arkansas 11 years ago, Taylor first got the idea to use his music to help people.

"This deaf girl came up and put her hand on my guitar. ... I didn't realize what was going on at the time," he said.

After his performance, the girl told Taylor's ex-wife she wanted to feel the vibrations of Taylor's guitar because she was unable to hear the music.

"The typical reaction when somebody reaches out for an instrument when somebody's playing is to back up, and I started to, then I stopped and said, 'Wait a minute, something ain't right. I'm going to let her do that just to see what happens,'" he said.

After seeing reports about the homeless in 1985, Taylor wrote the two songs that are on his first recording. He said he uses his music to give something to society.

"I don't see anything else I can do. I'm using whatever resources I have and I can get my hands on to produce something to make me feel like I'm doing something for society as opposed to being what — who was it? — the Bolsheviks, termed a social parasite."

Taylor said President Reagan is not responsible for poverty in America, but he is critical of some of Reagan's statements about the poor in America.

"I've always been pro-Reagan, (but) not necessarily pro his programs. ... I may criticize some of his programs from time to time — mainly the ones where he goes on TV and says things like 'there's no poor people in America' and stuff like this," he said. "I kind of get a little upset at him saying things like that.

"But, I also understand that politics, especially politicians, and most especially someone that's in the position that he is, have to be positive in their statements."

He said a friend recently made a trip to California and told Taylor he saw three men standing along an interstate highway holding signs which read, "I'll work for you for room and board."

"That's getting down to the bottom there. Sometimes I felt like getting down to the bottom myself. Fortunately, I managed through," he said.

Staff/Brad Camp

Odeis Taylor, Manhattan, released a 45 rpm record earlier this year containing the songs "The Down and Out" and "American Hero." He is working on a second record addressing the same themes. Part of the proceeds from the sales will go to agencies that shelter the homeless.

Abortion re-enters spotlight

New court may overturn Roe vs. Wade decision

By Kevin Kramer
Collegian Reporter

Controversy and questions about abortion have surrounded the opening of the new term of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court began its 1988-89 term Oct. 3 with no abortion cases accepted for review. But several lower federal courts are hearing cases on the issue — rulings involving the laws demanding parental involvement in abortions for teen-age girls.

The question of what the future holds for the Supreme Court was raised by Justice Harry A. Blackmun during a Sept. 13 speech to students at the University of Arkansas.

Blackmun suggested that the court, in its upcoming term, might reverse the ruling of Roe vs. Wade — the 1973 Supreme Court decision which legalized abortion under certain conditions.

Under Roe vs. Wade, a pregnant woman has the right to have an abortion during the first three months of pregnancy; under state supervision during the second three months; or during the final three months if her life is endangered.

Blackmun, who wrote the 1973 decision, told students: "The next question is, 'Will Roe vs. Wade go down the drain?' I think there's a very distinct possibility it will this term."

Blackmun indicated the fate of the 15-year-old decision will rest in part on the views of the court's newest member, Justice Anthony M. Kennedy.

There is a possibility that Roe vs. Wade will be re-examined, said Orma Linford, associate professor of political science.

For the first time in recent memory, the court has a conservative majority which opposes abortion, she said.

"The court is also conservative in having justices who don't like to overturn previous rulings," Linford said.

Roe vs. Wade is unlikely to be overturned by the court, she said. They may, however, modify the ruling.

A key issue will be the litigation of whether a government can place a limitation on the access to abortion, Linford said.

"The fight will be over the constitutionality of access to abortion," she said.

The court, upon a review of Roe vs. Wade, will be looking at redefining the standards under which an abortion can occur, Linford said.

Linford said Justice Sandra Day O'Connor stated in a 1986 dissenting opinion in Thornburgh vs. American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists that the mechanism which determines the formula for when the state could regulate abortion is self-destructive due to changing medical technology.

O'Connor's view of "undue burden" on the abortion decision redefines the standards by which abortions are performed, Linford said.

By definition, O'Connor's standard challenges the privacy of human rights and the government's purpose in the regulation of abortion, she said.

Satellite center receives funding

By Paul Branson
Staff Writer

K-State has received a $700,000 grant from the federal government to establish a fixed up-link dish and to help with the federal government's distance education program.

The grant is a portion of the $5.5 million given to the Midlands Consortium Star Schools Project. In addition to K-State, the association includes the University of Kansas, the Oklahoma Department of Education, Missouri School Boards Association, Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, the University of Alabama-Birmingham and the University of Mississippi.

Melvin Chastain, associate professor of radio and television, said the consortium was one of four that was chosen from a field of 70 applicants to receive money from the Star Schools Program.

"(The consortium) received $5.5 million of the $19 million the program had," Chastain said.

KU received $450,000 through the grant, bringing the total money given to Kansas schools to more than $1 million.

The up-link dish will be located behind Umberger Hall and near the soon-to-be-built Educational Communications Center.

Chastain said the dish will cost around $278,000. Another $90,000 will be used to set up 30 receiver sites around the state, with the remainder of the money going to development and personnel.

Walt Reicher, press secretary for Sen. Bob Dole, said Dole pushed hard for the funding.

"Rural America gets the short end of the stick in technology," Reicher said. "If we can get this technology to rural Kansas, I think it will be very beneficial for the students."

Chastain said Oklahoma and Missouri already have some experience with satellite-based education.

"We're jumping in with both feet," Chastain said.

Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri will focus on producing, sending and evaluating the programs, while Alabama and Mississippi will concentrate on setting up receiving stations.

Chastain said courses in foreign languages, math and science will be included in the programs offered.

"These will really benefit the rural schools who can't attract and keep qualified teachers in these areas," Chastain said.

This type of education is very timely because regents schools are increasing their admissions standards, Chastain said.

Protests threaten Yugoslavian state

By The Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — President Raif Dizdarevic warned Sunday that a national state of emergency would be imposed if protests over financial hardship and ethnic issues do not immediately cease.

Earlier Sunday, tens of thousands of demonstrators took to the streets, and students in the southern republic of Montenegro began a hunger strike to protest police violence and demand the ouster of Communist leaders.

In a rare and hastily scheduled nationwide address, a somber Dizdarevic promised leadership changes later this month during an emergency session of the federal government and urged measures to reduce inflation, now averaging 217 percent annually.

"There is a real danger that the actions which are imperiling constitutional order could continue and spread," Dizdarevic said during the 30-minute radio and television address. "It is the final hour to turn things around."

Dizdarevic said a "state of emergency could be introduced in Yugoslavia if the trend of negative events in the country is not immediately stopped."

Yugoslavia's collective nine-man state presidency has warned top Communist party (League of Communists) bodies in the country's six republics to take measures to control the situation, the president said.

He also assured the nation's 23 million citizens that a key Communist party meeting scheduled for Oct. 17 will result in changes in the leadership, but he did not elaborate.

Residents reported heavy police presence and roadblocks around Titograd, capital of Montenegro republic, 280 miles southwest of Belgrade. Riot police wielding clubs broke up an overnight rally there Saturday against local Communist party leaders.

Three people were reported hospitalized in Niksik, 15 miles northwest of Titograd, where police fired tear gas Saturday to break up a crowd.

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

200 die in Algerian riots

ALGIERS, Algeria — Soldiers fired into crowds of demonstrators Sunday who refused to disperse, and police and hospital sources said at least 200 people have died in rioting over rising prices and a government austerity program.

Clashes between the army and demonstrators grew more violent late Saturday and early Sunday. Soldiers were ordered to shoot at protesters who did not disperse and fired repeatedly.

The government, without elaborating, confirmed deaths among security forces, with the worst violence reported in southern and eastern Algiers and the western port of Oran. Fighting also was reported in 12 provincial centers.

The official APS Algerian news agency gave a list of reasons for the mounting unrest — crop failure, the collapse of oil prices, the global economic crisis and Algeria's enormous population increase — from 9.4 million in 1954 to more than 23 million.

The unrest began about 10 days ago, when industrial workers staged strikes for higher wages. The government said it would not break with its austerity plan to raise wages, and youths began rampaging in Algiers and other cities.

The austerity plan is aimed at resolving an economic crisis made worse by the fall in the price of oil, the nation's main source of revenue. The plan, announced in January, increased most food prices and cut surplus workers in the state-owned industries that dominate the economy.

The annual unemployment rate is estimated at 40 percent, and food prices have risen by at least 40 percent since January.

Sunday in the capital, Algiers, army helicopters armed with rockets flew low, apparently to discourage crowds from forming.

The city was mostly calm. After midday prayers at the city's mosques, some people gathered and chanted, "Chadli Must Go!" in reference to President Chadli Bendjedid. They dispersed quickly when soldiers charged.

Authorities on Thursday imposed a state of emergency with overnight curfews and reported the arrest of more than 900 people for looting.

Bus plunges into river

NEW DELHI, India — A bus skidded off a mountain road in the eastern state of Assam and fell into a river on Sunday, killing at least 38 people and injuring 16, the United News of India reported.

The news agency, which did not say how many people were aboard the bus, said the driver lost control of the vehicle after it was passed by a car.

The accident occurred 20 miles north of Guwahati, the state's largest city.

7 die in South African riots

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Seven blacks were killed and four homes were damaged by arsonists in a series of violent incidents outside the Indian Ocean city of Durban, police said Sunday.

The sketchy police unrest report lists incidents reported within the preceding 24 hours. The report did not give any more details of the latest violence.

Durban and other cities in Natal Province, such as Pietermaritzburg, have been the sites of some of the country's most sustained black-on-black faction fighting in recent years.

The two main rivals are Inkatha, a political organization headed by Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi, and the United Democratic Front, a nationwide anti-apartheid coalition that the government banned in February.

Hostage returns to U.S.

WIESBADEN, West Germany — A hostage recently freed by his Moslem extremist kidnappers in Lebanon left Sunday for the United States after medical checks and a debriefing at a U.S. military hospital, an official said.

"Dr. Mithileshwar Singh left today for the United States," said Lt. Tom Gilroy, a press spokesman for the U.S. Air Force Station in Wiesbaden.

Gilroy said he was not allowed to reveal the flight schedule or destination.

Hospital officials last week said the India-born Singh, freed Oct. 3, planned to travel to Colorado, but did not specify where. Before he left for Beirut in 1983, Singh taught business economics in Grand Junction, Colo., at the now-defunct Western Colorado University.

During Singh's stay at the air station's hospital, he said he did not want to speak to reporters. On Thursday, a source close to the debriefing team said Singh was worried about how his kidnappers may react to his public statements.

Singh, an Indian citizen with U.S. resident status, was kidnapped Jan. 24, 1987, in Beirut along with three American citizens who are still in captivity.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

20 million attend fun park

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A 6-year-old Kansas boy got a special welcome at the Worlds of Fun amusement park when he become the 20 millionth person to visit the park.

Nicholas Salava of Burlington, his 8-year-old brother Jonathon and his parents, Dan and Tammy, were loaded down with bags of Worlds of Fun shirts, stuffed animals and other gifts Saturday for setting the mark.

The family also was given a key to the park and a family passport for the 1989 season.

Park officials said about 1.2 million guests have visited the park each year since it opened in 1973. The 10 millionth guest passed through the gates in 1981.

Worlds of Fun President Lee Derrough said it was not surprising the winner was from out of town. He said 60 percent of the park's attendance is from outside the Kansas City area.

Candidates clash on issues

HUTCHINSON — Candidates for Kansas' 4th district congressional seat clashed in a debate Sunday, with Republican challenger Lee Thompson criticizing Rep. Dan Glickman for breaking a 1976 pledge to serve only 12 years in the House.

"The 12 years is not the issue. The issue is do you keep your word, and the issue is do you practice what you preach," Thompson said at the debate sponsored by The Hutchinson News.

Glickman, a Wichita Democrat who is seeking a seventh term, said he had changed his mind because his greater seniority in the House had elevated him to the chairmanship of the agriculture subcommittee on wheat and feed grains, which he described as a pivotal position for Kansas farmers.

"I can do things to help the people of my state that very few other people can do in this country," Glickman said.

Thompson made his criticism of Glickman's 12-year pledge at the outset of the debate and kept returning to the issue throughout, saying it illustrated the need for a change in Congress.

"We must do something about the extraordinary power of an elite group of people who are in Congress and simply stay there forever," Thompson said.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

FILING FORMS are available for Student Body President, Student Senate and Board of Student Publications in the SGA Office. Deadline is 5 p.m. Oct. 18.

TODAY

ASHRAE will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Durland Atrium.

PI SIGMA EPSILON Executive Board will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 203.

CHIMES JUNIOR HONORARY will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 204.

HUMAN ECOLOGY COUNCIL will meet at 5:15 p.m. in Justin 254. Yearbook pictures will follow meeting.

ACE will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room. David Zuck, of Federated Insurance Co., will speak on insurance for business.

ENGINEERING STUDENT COUNCIL will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures. A meeting will follow in Union 213.

FARMHOUSE LITTLE SISTERS will meet after yearbook pictures at 8:30 p.m. at Farmhouse.

MINORTIY ASSEMBLY of Students in Health will meet at 7 p.m. in Derby Food Center 134.

COE AMBASSADORS will meet at 4:45 p.m. in Bluemont 106.

STUDENT DIETETIC ASSOCIATION will meet at 6:30 p.m. at Last Chance.

TUESDAY

AGRICULTURAL COMMUNICATORS of Tomorrow will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 203.

DEAN OF STUDENT LIFE Leadership Workshop is conducting a meeting subtitled "Why Am I Always So Alone In My Struggle To Have My Own Way?" from 4 to 5 p.m. in Union 206. It is open to all students.

CAREER PLANNING and Placement will show video tapes at 3:30 p.m. in Holtz 107B on interview preparation and interview follow-up.

WHEAT STATE AGRONOMY Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 313.

AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room. Pictures will follow meeting.

CHRISTIAN ACTION will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Derby Conference Room.

K-STATE POLICE

Thursday

- Two IDs were reported lost.
- A student parking permit was reported stolen from a vehicle parked in lot D-5. Loss was $30.
- A wheel lock was placed on a Subaru parked in lost A-30. The lock was later removed.
- A vehicle parked in lot A-30 was towed to Manhattan Wrecker. The owner was notified.
- A two-vehicle, non-injury accident occurred in lot D-3. Damage was less than $500.
- A student parking permit was reported stolen from a vehicle parked in lot B-2. Loss was $30.
- Criminal damage to a vehicle in lot B-2 resulted in a $75 loss and $100 worth of damage.
- A two-vehicle, non-injury accident occurred in lot A-14. Damage was more than $500.
- Property reported stolen Oct. 4, 1988, was recovered.

Friday

- A bicycle reported stolen from outside of Fairchild Hall was later recovered.
- Criminal damage to a vehicle in lot B-15 resulted in an estimated $50 loss.
- A wheel lock was placed on a white Pontiac Fiero parked in lot A-5. The lock was later removed.
- Criminal damage to a vehicle in lot B-2 was reported. An outside mirror was broken off.
- A two-vehicle, non-injury accident occurred in lot A-28S. Damage was estimated at more than $500.
- The burglary theft of a faculty/staff parking permit was reported. Loss was $44.
- Theft of pottery from West Stadium was reported. Loss was $10.

Saturday

- A report was filed on the use of controlled substances at Marlatt Hall. Suspects were arrested and taken to Riley County Jail.
- A fire extinguisher was set off in the basement of Seaton Hall.
- A non-injury, two-vehicle accident occurred in lot A-26. Damage was less than $500.

COSTUME ALLEY
OPENS OCT. 15
Now located next to Brothers & upstairs
Lots of WIGS things to dress up in!

LARGE PIZZA ONLY 5.99
with one topping
dine in or free home delivery
with this coupon
offer good through Oct. 31
"premium pizza at a cardboard pizza price"
523 South 17th
537-1484

BUSHWACKERS
• THE • FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9:00
TONIGHT
Russ T. Nails
along w/ Mark Cordes
Grill Special—Steak & Shrimp $3.95 5 to 9
*Reservations recommended but not necessary
539-4321 531 N. Manhattan 539-9727

PAC CATS CASH
FRIENDS HELPING FRIENDS
FORE MORE INFORMATION CALL 539-6927
ONE DOLLAR

WHAT IS PAC-CATS CASH?
PAC-CATS Cash is an incentive program that gives you a chance to earn "dollars" for your participation in the PAC-CATS Wellness Program. Trade your "cash" in for incentives at the PAC-CATS Office, Lafene Lower Level-Suite 26.

EARNING CASH IS EASY
You earn $1 of PAC-CATS Cash for:
*Meeting with a PAL
*Completing your PAC for 1 week
A total of $2 per week is possible

Stop by our table in the Union this week M-F 9:30-1:30.

WHAT CASH BUYS
Level 1 Gifts
*PAC-CATS baseball cap
*Medium Size I Can't Believe It's Yogurt
*Voucher for 2 jumbo cookies from The Bakery
*A beverage from the Union's Juice Bar
Purchase of Level 1 requires: $5 PC Cash
Level 2 Gifts
*PAC-CATS "Celebrate Wellness" t-shirt
*The Stretching Book
*Gourmet Brown Bag Lunch
*Ticket to an event at Nichols Theatre
Purchase of Level 2 requires: $9 PC Cash
Level 3 Gifts
*PAC-CATS "Celebrate Wellness" sweatshirt
*1989 Diet and Health Calendar
*Brown Bag Gourmet Lunch for 2
*1989 365 New Words a Year Calendar
Purchase of Level 3 requires: $17 PC Cash

START YOUR PAC OCTOBER 10-14
AND EARN A LEVEL 3 GIFT BEFORE FINALS
Reach your goals and have some fun!

PAC-CATS would like to thank Residence Hall Food Service and I Can't Believe It's Yogurt for their support.

F A L L
ACCESSORY BONUS
OCTOBER 9 - OCTOBER 14
$10.00 OFF
Coupon valid on purchases of $50.00 or more.
1 coupon per customer, valid October 9-14, 1988 ONLY
Not valid in conjunction with any other promotion
$5.00 OFF
Coupon valid on purchases of $25.00 or more.
1 coupon per customer, valid October 9-14, 1988 ONLY
Not valid in conjunction with any other promotion
"Rather than buying new outfits, women are spiffing up old clothes with splashy scarves, belts and pins."
- the Kiplinger Washington Letter (Sept. 23, 1988)
Accessories Park ON THE
Mon.-Sat.: 10:00-6:00, Thur.: 10:00-8:30, Sun.: 1:00-5:00
708 North Manhattan Avenue, Aggieville 537-0707

School dedication 'a proud moment'

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

Board of Regents Chairman Richard Dodderidge, a K-State graduate in journalism, said Saturday, "What a proud moment this is for Kansas and for all of us," after officially dedicating the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications.

The official dedication and announcement of the school's new name highlighted Journalism Day, which was in Forum Hall. The event was sponsored by the School of Journalism and Mass Communications.

Naming the school for A.Q. Miller was made at the suggestion of Miller's son, Carl P. Miller. Carl Miller and his wife, Ruth, donated $1 million to fund an endowment for the school.

A.Q. Miller was publisher of the Belleville Telescope from 1904, when he purchased the paper, until 1958 when his son, Merle Miller, purchased his stock in the paper.

"A.Q. Miller was a unique Kansas journalist who has left a lasting impact on community journalism," Dodderidge said.

President Jon Wefald, in presenting a President's Award to Carl Miller, said "(Carl and Ruth) Millers' gift stands as one of the truly great financial expressions anyone has ever made to this University."

"Scholarship funds to attract the best and brightest students, and capital support for the latest equipment and instructional tools are critical needs at Kansas State University, particularly within the College of Arts and Sciences and our journalism and mass communications programs," Wefald said.

A portion of the Millers' donation has gone to purchase Macintosh computers for a computer lab in Kedzie Hall, where the journalism school is housed.

Donald Macdonald, vice chairman emeritus of Dow Jones & Co., credited Carl Miller with ensuring the development of a national edition of The Wall Street Journal.

Macdonald said Miller perservered through the crisis following the 1929 stock market crash to keep the Pacific Coast edition of The Wall Street Journal functioning.

"If he hadn't kept it alive, it's unlikely we would have a national edition today," Macdonald said.

Miller's work on the Pacific Coast edition was "a keystone in our development," Macdonald said.

Carl Miller was executive director of the Pacific Coast edition of The Wall Street Journal from 1929 until 1964.

Thomas L. Isenhour, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, praised Cruise Palmer, former executive editor of The Kansas City Star and The Kansas City Times, for Palmer's work in obtaining Carl Miller's donation.

"Cruise Palmer ... worked with his long-time friend, Carl Miller, to bring about today's events. Cruise Palmer has, for decades, been an advocate and supporter of our journalism programs," Isenhour said.

Christopher Miller, great-grandson of A.Q. Miller, said the naming of the school for his great-grandfather was a proud moment for his family.

"It's a once in a lifetime thing."

Collegian/Brian Kratzer

Carla Wennberg, of Ft. Collins, Colo., demonstrates how to select horses and equipment for training at the Horse Sense XXII clinic.

Successful clinic helps horse lovers

By Mark Rader
Collegian Reporter

More than 100 horse lovers and enthusiasts attended lectures and demonstrations by professional and top amateur quarter horse exhibitors Saturday at Horse Sense XXII in Weber Arena.

"The Horse Sense series of clinics provides all horsemen with advice and instruction in a variety of areas," said Gary Reynolds, the American Quarter Horse Association's director of events and Horse Sense coordinator.

"We concentrate on providing sound advice, so everyone interested in horses can come to a Horse Sense clinic and gain valuable information."

Carla Wennberg, of Fort Collins, Colo., started the afternoon session with a lecture and demonstration on English riding. Wennberg teaches equine sciences at Colorado State University and spent several years in Germany riding dressage, an advanced level of English riding competition.

Wennberg, an AQHA approved judge, detailed what she looks for in competitions and explained how exhibitors could improve their riding abilities. Wennberg stressed the need to combine the horse and rider into a unit.

"The best riders are probably bowlegged because their legs fit around the horse better," she said.

C.A. Cofer, auctioneer and sales manager from Wichita, described how to purchase a horse, stressing the importance of buying a horse suited to the purpose needed.

Dr. Cody Coyne, assistant professor of surgery and medicine, lectured on basic equine first aid and how to recognize and treat various horse diseases.

Dean Smith, of Council Grove, shared his 25 years of experience in training horses. Smith specializes in training horses for cutting and reining. He won the 1969 National Reining Horse Association Futurity and the 1970 NRHA Open Reining.

Karen Russell, of Hutchinson, showed how to train a horse to be competitive in timed events. She stressed the need for patience and kindness with horses, adding that a moment of anger can undo weeks of accomplishments.

Dennis Sigler, assistant professor of animal sciences and industry, spoke on the selection and evaluation of western and hunt seat horses.

The seminar was sponsored by the American Quarter Horse Association and the K-State Department of Animal Sciences and Industry.

Former Union director given area award

By The Collegian Staff

Walter Smith, former Union director, was honored Friday for his 30 years of service as a Union employee.

Smith received the Walter Smith-Jess Zink Award for Outstanding Service. He received the award at a Union staff meeting. Smith and Zink are the first recipients of the award, which will be given annually to union employees in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma who have made significant contributions during the previous year.

Zink is the union director at the University of Missouri.

"I think it's appropriate that (Smith) is the first recipient of the award, because he has contributed a lot to the Union and helped it become what it is today," said Jack Sills, who replaced Smith as director last year.

Smith began working at the Union shortly after it was built in 1956 and has worked in various capacities, including assistant and associate director. He became the director in 1973 and served in that capacity until his retirement in May.

"He's very easygoing and greatly appreciated for his work here at the Union. He helped the Union change to meet the students' needs," Sills said.

It was Smith's ability to meet the demands of constant change that helped the Union become recognized as one of the top five unions.

TACO HUT
ON THE HILL OVERLOOKING WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
Sanchos & Burritos 88¢ each
reg. $1.30
Taco Dinners $1.77
reg. $2.25
(2 tacos, refried beans, salad with picos)
(offer good Oct. 5—10)
Sun.—Thurs.
11 a.m.—11 p.m.
Fri.—Sat.
11 a.m.—12 a.m.
TACO HUT
Where good friends get together
2809 Claflin 539-2091

OPEN 6 DAYS A WEEK
(913) 537-0644
GREEN LIGHT AUTO PARTS
2049 Fort Riley Boulevard
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
GREEN LIGHT AUTO

FREE PIZZA!
BUY ONE & GET ONE FREE
Specify Original "Golden Braided" or new "Thin Style" Crust

SPECIAL COUPON
PYRAMID PIZZA®
MONDAY MANIA
Buy Any PYRAMID PIZZA & Get
The Second Pizza (of equal value)
FREE!
Good Mondays Only
Delivery–
Fast, Friendly & Free!
539-4888
12th & Moro
Aggieville, USA
PYRAMID PIZZA™
We Pile It On!
© 1987 Pyramid Pizza, Inc.

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS
Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Monday, October 17
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261
Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority at the time of pre-enrollment.

Attention Recent College Graduates:
These positions are open immediately. Rapidly growing management consulting firms seeking highly energized recent graduates. Complete training program is provided for an entry-level sales management position. Candidates must be self-starters and willing to work long hours. Starting annual salary of $25-35,000. Work ethic and attitude are paramount.
For information, call Human Resources at: 1-800-527-1984.
On Campus Recruiting will be Oct. 26.

A KEY TO EFFECTIVE EDUCATION . . .

Lana Oleen
REPUBLICAN • KANSAS SENATE
1631 Fairchild Avenue, Manhattan, KS 66502

. . . AN EDUCATOR IN THE SENATE
•Administrators Outstanding Educator Award
•Chairman-Kansas Family & Children Trust Fund
•Coordinator for State-wide Job Corps Awareness Campaign
•Legislative Liaison for State Department of Human Resources
Lana Oleen for Kansas Senate, Kent Glasscock, chairman

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA PLEDGES
Tonight at the KKΓ house you will see... to find your pledge mom you'll need the key!

Missy Andeel
Melissa Annis
Carrie Aspegren
Rhonda Bathurst
Deborah Bieberly
Andrea Brayfield
Shannon Carson
Devin Davidson
Suzy DeBauche
Heather Downs
Shannon Dubach
Deva Featherston
Stacey Fithian
Jennifer Flax
Melissa Gerhardt
Michelle Ghiselli
Katrina Goering
Kristin Goodman
Amy Hiett
Jennifer Hoffman
Lynette Johnston
Debbie Katzer
Liz Law
Laurie Little
Christina Loud
Joycelyn Lucas
Marci Murfin
Renee Noss
Leah Pogue
Debbie Perrin
Jill Preston
Robin Ramel
Mary Sue Rinella
Wendy Robinson
Stephanie Sherer
Kendra Spaeth
Lisa Stang
Niki Stewart
Brandi Thoden
Heidi Thoden
Jill Turnbull
Amy Turnquist
Jennifer Tuvell
Alison Van Loenen
Jana Warta
Erin White
Nelisha Wilson
KKΓ

Vice presidential candidates grab for attention

Commentary

DWAYNE LIVELY
Collegian Columnist

First came the Beatles; they were the "Fab Four." Then came the Monkees; and they, because they were hand-chosen and promoted as an American version of the Beatles, were the "Pre-Fab Four." Now, unfortunately, pre-fabrication has reached the level of presidential politics in the form of the Pre-Fab Veeps, Lloyd Bentsen and Dan Quayle.

When Walter Mondale chose Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate in 1984, he was accused of attempting to pander to the women voters. Whether this had a hand in his defeat is debatable, but it did give his candidacy the stigma of appealing to "special interest groups." Instead of choosing a candidate fit to serve as president, Mondale appeared to be using Ferraro as a tool to get himself elected.

Despite this, both Michael Dukakis and George Bush have chosen running mates they believe will get them elected, not running mates who would necesarily make good presidents.

Bentsen is Dukakis' absolute ideological opposite. Bentsen supports the death penalty; Dukakis opposes it. Bentsen supports aid to the Contras; Dukakis is adamantly opposed to it. Bentsen is basically a conservative disguised as a Democrat.

Surely Dukakis would never vote for Bentsen for president. Yet, he has given him a huge step up towards the presidency. If Dukakis is elected president and anything happens to him — illness, assassination, etc. — a person who represents everything Dukakis is against would ascend to the presidency. Anything Dukakis might have accomplished would probably be undone by the new conservative president. Why would Dukakis risk this? Simple; he believes he needs Bentsen in order to get elected.

Bentsen offers Dukakis two major pluses. He is from Texas and can hopefully deliver Texas' large number of electoral votes. He also balances Dukakis' image. Dukakis is perceived as being "very liberal," almost too liberal by some standards, and the addition of Bentsen to his candidacy makes him look balanced and more moderate. Therefore, he is more appealing to middle-of-the-road and undecided voters. Bentsen also gives Dukakis' campaign a touch of the old John F. Kennedy appeal, with a young, Massachusetts liberal balanced by a mature, wise, Texas conservative. Unfortunately Dukakis, to quote a mature, wise, Texas conservative, "is no Jack Kennedy."

Bush was faced with a different dilemma when he sat down to choose his running mate. He has the reputation of being a somewhat lifeless person with ambiguous beliefs. Many have called into doubt his ability to make it on his own in politics. He has been called a wimp by more than a few people. Therefore, he needed a running mate who would not overshadow him and make him look weak.

Bob Dole was out. He has too much of an aura of strength about him and would definitely have overshadowed Bush. Jack Kemp was out for the same reason. Elizabeth Dole and Nancy Kassebaum were out because having them on the ticket would make it appear that Bush was pandering to women, much like Mondale had been accused of doing. Someone like Quayle was all that was left. He is young, which gives Bush a more mature, wise appearance, and his comments could be more easily contained than those of Dole or Kemp. Unfortunately for Bush, Quayle also comes across as the most pre-fab of the vice presidential candidates.

Yet, the use of Pre-Fab Veeps to get elected seems to have backfired in both the Republican and Democratic campaigns. Both vice presidential candidates have begun to overshadow their running mates, especially after last Wednesday's Quayle/Bentsen "debate." Bush and Dukakis had an unexciting, uneventful, heavily scripted "debate" which attracted little media attention. Quayle and Bentsen, however, even though they had a similarly scripted "debate," managed to steal the limelight from the presidential candidates with a single comment.

Quayle compared his qualifications to those of John F. Kennedy in an appeal to Democratic voters and Bentsen struck him down with the already infamous line, "I knew Jack Kennedy. ... you're no Jack Kennedy." There has been more extensive analysis of the vice presidential "debate," than of the presidential. Bush had been trying to play down the importance of the debates. He is not a very good debater when compared to Michael Dukakis. It is certain he never intended for the Quayle/Bentsen debate to get as much press as it has.

Quayle was heavily coached to temper his remarks and keep him from making any mistakes that would come back to haunt Bush. That ploy backfired. Bentsen even came across as being stronger than Dukakis. His line created more fireworks than any made by Dukakis. The result of all this is a presidential election in which voters select the president because of his running mate and not because of his policies or leadership ability.

Hopefully, the candidates have learned from their mistakes and have realized that vice presidents should be chosen according to their ability to lead the country in the absence of the president, not according to their abilities to get the candidates elected. A Dole/Bentsen debate would have helped Bush's campaign immensely. Dole is qualified to be president, could fight a war of words with Bentsen and would appear less pre-fab than Quayle.

On the other hand, a Dole/Jesse Jackson debate would have been very interesting. However, as long as candidates use the vice presidency as a campaign tool and a way to safeguard their image, such debates will never occur. Hopefully, though, the era of the Pre-Fab Veep will soon pass into nonexistence. Only then will the country have a group of presidential candidates to choose from who are capable of standing on their own two feet, not just on shoulders of their running mates.

Questions unanswered in candidates' debate

Last Wednesday night the American public had a chance to watch a debate between the two mainstream vice presidential candidates. What many people saw was a very controlled debate — a debate controlled by the candidates, not the ones asking the questions.

The format of the debate allowed each candidate two minutes to answer a question asked by one of the four panel journalists. The other candidate was then allowed a one-minute rebuttal.

With this format, the candidates only had to address the issue for the first few moments and not the full minute or two. This let the candidates completely avoid the question, a ploy Dan Quayle used frequently. Sometimes Quayle did little more than restate the question before proceeding into a rehearsed text of what he wanted to say.

An example of his evasion was when Tom Brokaw, NBC anchorman, asked how Quayle would defend his poor voting record on poverty programs. He stumbled at first, obviously shaken by the question. Then, after a few seconds of trying to address the issue, he stared straight into the camera and went directly into his coached, rehearsed answer.

Lloyd Bentsen was also guilty of this.

Bentsen was repeatedly asked how he would act if he became president, because he and Michael Dukakis differ greatly on some issues. Bentsen continually turned the question around and stated how he and Dukakis agreed on many issues, but did not answer how he would act on the ones on which they differ.

With the current format, all the voting public will ever hear in these debates is what the candidates want to tell us, and not what we want to know about the candidates.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Karen Allen, Robert R. Short
FEATURES EDITOR ..... Christine Doll
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Scott Miller
AGRI/BUSINESS EDITOR ..... Paula Selby
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Nancy Chartrand
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Michael Nichols
COPY EDITORS ..... Nancy Downing, Ann Iseman, Mark Schreiner
SENIOR STAFF WRITERS ..... Susan L'Ecuyer, Erwin Seba
STAFF WRITERS ..... Paul Branson, Richard Broadfoot, Audra Dietz, Becky Ives, Brian Hummell, Steve Walker
SPORTS WRITERS ..... Russ Ewy, Chris Hays, Micheal May, Melissa Payne, Mike Rouse, Chris Wilhelm
SPORTS COLUMNISTS ..... Tom Perrin, David Svoboda
COLUMNISTS ..... Catherine Doud, Dwayne Lively, Sheikh Faisal Razzaq, Karla Redelsheimer, Mark Schmeller
REVIEWERS ..... Bradley Atchison, Carrie Miller
CARTOONIST ..... Richard Broadfoot
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Julia March
STAFF ASSISTANT ..... Jennifer Lippold
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Chris Assaf, Brad Camp, Jim Dietz, Joe Freeman, Brett Hacker, Jeff Stead, Greg Vogel
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Richard Broadfoot, Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Mark Schmeller, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Robert R. Short, Janet Swanson

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Todd Schultz
DISPLAY SALES REPRESENTATIVES ..... Brenda Birt, Brian Howell, Denise Lambert, Tammy McCreary, Michelle Slavik, Jennifer White, Brent Windsor
OFFICE/CLASSIFIED AD ASSISTANTS ..... Kim Beyer, Tomari Quinn, Christa South
GRAPHIC ARTISTS ..... Dave Casper, Kendell McMinimy
PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Jennifer Quist

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR ..... David L. Adams
ACTING DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Charlie Fair
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Shelly Potter
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Schmidt
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555
Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Reporter runs with the herd

Debate gives lesson in campaign journalism

Commentary

ERWIN SEBA
Guest Columnist

At about 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, I was standing at the back table in the unassigned media work area in the basement of the Omaha City Auditorium. The assigned media were next to the unassigned area.

Mitch and Jean from the Nebaraska Wesleyan University weekly newspaper were sitting next to me when I noticed a short man walking through the two work areas.

"There's John Tower," I said. Tower is a former Republican senator from Texas. He headed the Tower Commission, which investigated the Iran-Contra affair at the request of President Reagan.

Mitch, a loud man who had pointed out that the college press sat in the back because we weren't as good as the professionals covering the vice presidential debate between Dan Quayle and Lloyd Bentsen, looked up and said, "Where?"

I pointed out Tower and said, "He really is short." The top of Tower's head would have been no higher than my shoulder. And I stand 5-foot-9.

Mitch picked up his note pad and walked over to where Tower was standing.

"Going to get some quotes?" I said.

"Might as well," Mitch said.

Jean picked up her camera and took pictures of Tower while Mitch interviewed him.

I watched them for a couple of minutes and then went back to reading material about Quayle and Bentsen.

After reading for a few minutes, I stopped and asked myself, "What if Tower says something?"

I picked up my note pad and went looking for Tower. I had joined the herd.

Herd journalism occurs when large packs of notebook-toting and microphone-wielding reporters chase public figures, public officials and would-be public officials.

Every four years, the best examples of herd journalism can be found in the United States, as reporters and photographers from both the print and broadcast media chase would-be presidents trekking across the country seeking voters.

But the several hundred reporters and technicians in Omaha on Wednesday were there to cover the vice presidential candidates' debate, and really they were there to cover Quayle.

Michael Dukakis had been hitting George Bush hard on his selection of Quayle. Dukakis had stated during his debate with Bush a week earlier that many people were made nervous by the idea of Quayle being a heartbeat away from the presidency.

Quayle was in Omaha to prove he was as qualified to be president as Bentsen, Dukakis' running mate.

As the time for the debate drew near, the noise level increased to a roar and journalists smoked the free cigarettes, ate the free dinner, and drank the free beer and Coca-Cola provided by Phillip Morris, Inc.

The television sets placed in front of the tables were tuned to "The Cosby Show," "Wheel of Fortune" and the C-Span cable network.

I asked the reporter from the London Daily Telegraph if it was always this noisy.

"I'm told it gets quiet. And, of course, the television sets are all turned to the same thing," he said.

As the 7:30 p.m. starting time approached, the noise level dropped and a person walked around the area turning all the televisions to CBS.

When the debate began, all that could be heard above Dan Rather's introduction was an odd phone ringing and keyboard keys clacking.

Notes were taken from the beginning, and, as something interesting was said, a call was made or typing would take place.

About the third or fourth time that Quayle was asked what he would do if he had to become president, reporters were getting frustrated. Quayle listed his qualifications again and said the question was not about age, but about experience and then began to draw comparisons between himself and Jack Kennedy.

Quayle finished, and Bentsen was asked to respond.

"I served with Jack Kennedy," Bentsen said. "I worked with Jack Kennedy. I knew Jack Kennedy. Jack Kennedy was my friend. Senator, you're no Jack Kennedy."

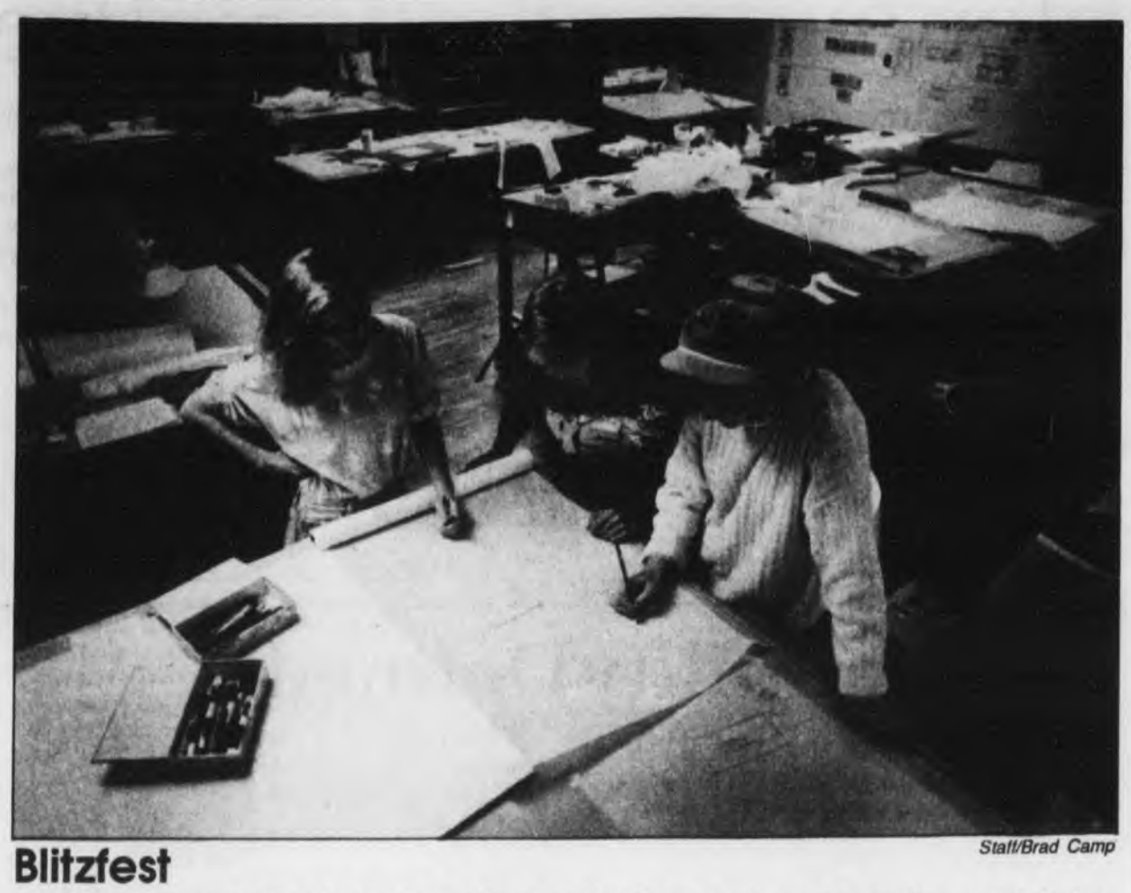
Cheers broke out through the press area. Leads had been selected. Something had happened. At the end of the debate, reporters walked en masse to the red-carpeted area where the "spin-doctors," as a Japanese television correspondent referred to them, would be present to tell us why their man won and the other guy lost.

The Democratic spin-doctors were out first. Bentsen won. The Kennedy line was a knock-out. Quayle was asked five times what he would do. He couldn't answer.

Then the Republican spin-doctors appeared. Quayle won. The Kennedy line was a cheap shot. Quayle said what he would do.

The reporters started asking the Republicans questions. The Kennedy line really hurt Quayle, it was a knock-out blow, wasn't it? Quayle was asked five times, why he didn't answer it?

And then the Republican claims were phrased as questions and thrown at the Democrats.



For another hour, reporters and cameramen moved from clump to clump of other reporters and cameramen asking, "Who's this guy?" or "Who's she?" meaning the person being questioned.

Finally, at about 10 p.m., former Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, Bush's campaign chairman, came in the media center to say Quayle won and Bentsen got in a cheap shot with the Kennedy line.

Paul Kirk, Democratic Naitonal Committee chairman, then came in to say the Kennedy line was fair and the country would look on Quayle with sorrow for comparing himself to a legitimate war hero and a published author, like Kennedy had been when he sought the preisdency.

No new spin-doctors came to the media center and the herd ran to do stand-ups and bang on keyboards to give the world "the first draft of the history" of the vice presidential debate.

Editor's Note: Erwin Seba, senior in journalism and mass communication, is a senior staff writer for the Collegian. His story of the vice presidential debate appeared on the front page of Thursday's Collegian.

Blitzfest

Staff/Brad Camp

Stephanie Horstman, junior in interior architecture; Karl Good, sophomore in environmental design; and Christine Scharrer, sophomore in environmental design, brainstorm ideas for the Blitzfest '88 competition Saturday. The competition gave students a chance to work with alumni from the college.

Small investors still hurting after last year's market crash

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two out of three small investors who experienced problems during the stock market crash are still waiting a year later for their complaints to be resolved, according to a survey released Sunday by state regulators.

The North American Securities Administrators Administration said 64 percent of investors responding to a survey said their problems arising from the collapse of the stock market in October 1987 had not been resolved.

"This confirms our suspicions that small investors were and remain the invisible victims of the Oct. 19 stock market crash," said John Baldwin, the new president of the NASAA, the national organization for state securities regulators.

"A full year after Black Monday, those of us who regulate the markets at the grass roots level are still finding a surprising number of dazed investors stumbling through the ruins of their post-crash finances," said Baldwin, who is director of the Utah Securities Division.

Baldwin said the organization's survey showed that investors who had been burned were not rushing back into the market. One out of seven small investors said they had bailed out of the market altogether or were holding less than $500 in securities.

Of those still in the market, two-thirds indicated they had changed or were planning to change brokerage firms.

The most common complaint, made by half of the survey respondents, concerned problems with brokers executing trades late or getting trades wrong during the hectic period surrounding the crash. The next most common gripe, made by 33.7 percent of those in the survey, concerned charges that their broker had misled them.

Close behind at 30.3 percent were complaints concerning brokers who put their customers in unsuitable investments such as a highly risky venture.

North urges fight on communism

By The Associated Press

CUPERTINO, Calif. — Some 300 people turned out to jeer fired National Security Council aide Oliver North while he urged more than 1,000 Christian business leaders to fight the "alien and godless philosophy" of communism.

"I don't think (North) cares one way or another" about protesters, admitted rally organizer Mitch Diamond, outside an auditorium where North addressed members of the Christian Businessmen of Silicon Valley on Saturday.

Some of the protesters dressed as a Moslem ayatollah and as President Reagan. Many carried signs denouncing North's clandestine efforts to sell weapons to Iran and secretly funnel profits to U.S.-backed Contra rebels battling the leftist Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

Mary Ellen Furia of nearby Los Gatos and Ethel and Jack Ballad of Saratoga showed up with signs in support of North, who faces trial next year on 16 federal charges of conspiring to defraud the government.

"Ollie North is our man. What Congress won't do, Ollie can," read their signs.

MONDAY IS SLAB NIGHT

SLAB OF RIBS $9
($3.00 OFF REGULAR PRICE!)
genuine hickory smoked BBQ ribs and mounds of our homemade fries (feeds 2-4). 5-10pm

PLUS $1 ALL DOMESTIC LONGNECKS

LAST CHANCE
1213 Moro Street, Aggieiville, 776-6451

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment NOW!
Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10
Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You
8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

WHAT ARE YOU DOING SAT., OCT. 15th?
HOW ABOUT DOING SOME GOOD?
—We need volunteers in Valley Falls, Kansas on Saturday, October 15, 1988 for a day of helping your rural Kansas neighbors fix up their community recreation facilities.
—LUNCH and TRANSPORTATION are provided
•INDIVIDUALS•GROUPS•CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS•
All are welcome to VOLUNTEER their services for the day. No special skills required.
If you're interested in volunteering or need more information Please contact:
MINDY DUTTON or PAM KLAUS
Eisenhower Room 14A
532-6900
Sponsored by: KSU's S.A.V.E. program (Structural Assistance Volunteer Effort)
"YOU DON'T NEED TO TAKE A LOT OF TIME TO DO A LOT OF GOOD."
Paid for by College of Arts & Sciences

Attention Customers
WE'VE MOVED!
Come see us at our new location
1329 ANDERSON
kinko's the copy center
coupon
2½¢ per copy
8½x11/20 No. white/auto fed originals present coupon at time of purchase
Open 24 Hours
Offer Expires 10/31/88
coupon

BRAMLAGE COLISEUM

THURSDAY OCTOBER 20

7:30 PM • $16.00
ALL SEATS RESERVED
L.A. Guns
ON SALE NOW

Tickets available at Bramlage Coliseum Box Office, Middle Earth Records (in Junction City), ITTR Office (at Fort Riley), Mother Earth Records and Budget Tapes & Records (in Topeka), the University of Kansas Student Union (in Lawrence) or charge by phone (913) 532-7606.
Tickets may be subject to a service charge.
A CONTEMPORARY PRESENTATION

CHECK US OUT!
Come in and check us out!
At Village Inn, we want your expectations to meet ours. Next time you visit Village Inn look us over and see if we make the grade!
VILLAGE INN SCORE CARD
Food ☑Excellent
Service ☑Excellent
Cleanliness ☑Excellent
Server Courtesy ☑Excellent
Tell Us How We Did!
Village Inn Pancake House Restaurant
©1988 Village Inn Corporation
204 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Manhattan

Union to offer weekend entertainment alternative

By Theresa Luling
Collegian Reporter

Most college students live for the weekend.

It's a time to relax, sleep late and spend time with friends.

But when Friday evening rolls around, many frequently ask, "What is there to do?"

Manhattan answers with a variety of activities for a Friday night's entertainment.

There is drinking, dancing, bowling, roller skating, movies ... and the list goes on.

But when a student's cash supply is low, these activities can seem like a major investment and the possibility of an affordable date is low.

The Union Program Council, food service and recreational facilities are addressing this problem.

These organizations are working together to develop an affordable Friday night event for K-Staters and their guests.

"For one price, we would offer a dinner plus the choice of either the UPC 7 o'clock movie or bowling and billiards in the Recreation Area," said Terese Chapman, promotion and marketing coordinator of the Union.

"Our main goal is to get students involved with the Union (by) providing them with good, quality selections of entertainment," she said.

An all-you-can-eat Friday night buffet was offered in the past, but it was eliminated due to lack of attendance, Chapman said.

To aid in the development of the package, a questionnaire entitled "Are You Looking For Something Different?" was distributed in September to students in the Union Stateroom cafeteria.

"We needed student input due to the fact that the planning necessary to implement such an event would require a considerable amount of time, effort and money," Chapman said.

Eighty percent responded positively to such a package, she said, with a majority of the respondents being juniors and seniors.

"There was definite interest in a package that would include an all-you-can-eat buffet, as opposed to finger foods," she said.

Students, she said, wanted something substantial for their money.

Although students marked live entertainment as the most desirable part of the dining atmosphere, they were flexible when it came to the seating arrangements, she said. Some desired quiet dining with waiters in the Bluemont Room while others preferred open dining in the courtyard.

One survey question asked where individuals went on Friday evenings.

Chapman said she found, to her dismay, that a lot of students stayed at home. That is the segment of the student population Chapman would like to attract to the program.

With the numerous promotions getting underway in preparation for the Christmas season, there has been little time to finalize a package, Chapman said.

"For our own sanity and to do it right, we have set a target date for next semester," she said.

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

High tuition hinders youth

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Fewer than six out of 10 young people say they have saved for college, and nearly 50 percent said tuition costs prevent many from seeking a higher education, according to a poll released Sunday.

In addition, more than one out of three teen-agers and young adults questioned in a survey commissioned by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education believe the most expensive colleges offer the best education.

The poll, aimed at measuring student awareness of college issues, was based on telephone interviews of 1,001 people age 13 to 21 from Aug. 24 to Sept. 7. It was released as part of National Higher Education Week, which began Sunday. The poll, conducted by the Gallup Organization, had a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Thirty-eight percent agreed that "the higher the tuition costs of a college, the better the quality of education a student will receive." Among pre-college-age students, the figures were higher: 53 percent of 13- to 15-year-olds agreed with the statement; 41 percent of 16- and 17-year-olds surveyed did. But only 27 percent of current college students and graduates felt that way.

Asked what they thought was the major reason more students do not go to college, 48 percent said they thought the reason was that college is too expensive and they can't afford it.

Fifty-nine percent of high school juniors and seniors polled said they or someone in their families had saved for their college education. The rest said they hadn't saved or they didn't know.

Asked what they'd do if they couldn't afford the college they wanted, 37 percent said they'd try to get loans, 32 percent would look for part-time jobs, 14 percent said they would select another college, and 2 percent said they would not attend college at all. The rest weren't sure.

Other findings:

- 54 percent of America's high school juniors and seniors said they expect to graduate from college; 8 percent plan to graduate from high school but go no further. The remainder said they plan to attend vocational or trade school, or go to college but not long enough to graduate.
- 67 percent said that in selecting a college, availability of particular courses and curriculum was "extremely important"; 44 percent cited the school's academic reputation; 45 percent said expense was a crucial factor. Only 20 percent cited social life or athletic reputation as "extremely important."

Compatibility Defined

IBM-Com•pat'i•bil'i•ty adv. 1. Capable of existing together in harmony. 2. Able to use most common software; usu. of the business/research world. 3. Growth & flexibility. 4. Hyundai 16TE.

HYUNDAI

Introducing the Super 16TE PC-compatible.

Introducing a new level of IBM-compatibility, speed (10Mhz) and flexibility (5 expansion slots). Each Hyundai includes 640K memory, a "101" keyboard, full software (wp, spreadsheet, database), orientation, support and an 18 month warranty. Best of all- its backed by $20 billion Hyundai Corporation and your local Connecting Point Computer Center in Westloop Shop.Center.

	Retail	KSU Price.*	Disc.
☐ Super 16TE	$ 1045.	$ 735.	30%

Sample Systems:
☐ 2 drive, amber monitor 1095.
☐ 2 drive, color monitor 1299.
☐ 30Mb, amber monitor 1495.
☐ 30Mb, color monitor 1699.

*Based upon full system purchase. IBM is a reg. tm of IBM Corp.

KSU's "Seoul" Authorized Hyundai Dealer

ConnectingPoint COMPUTER CENTER
1115 Westloop Shop. Ctr
539-0801

Attention KSU Apple Purchasers:
Connecting Point's "Apple Team" has contracted to support KSU departmental and personal purchases. Call us for assistance in selecting systems, software solutions and ordering your Mac. Connecting Point has a full line of Apple "Add-Ons" from disks to software to cases to drives.

539-5303

One number brings out the best at KSU

Now, at KSU, there's just one number to remember for fast delivery of pizza that's every bit as good as one you'd go out for.

Godfather's Pizza.™ Now you don't have to settle for anything less, anymore.

1118 Laramie
Aggieville

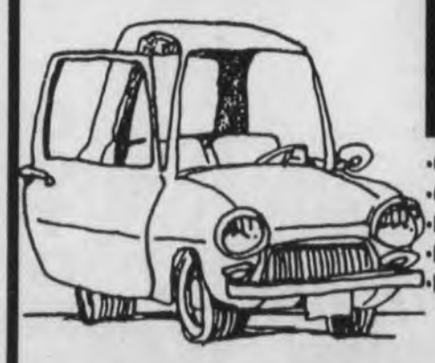
Lunch Buffet only $2.99
Present this coupon and receive ONE all you care to eat lunch buffet for only $2.99. Regularly $3.99 per person!
Monday-Friday, lunch time only.
Valid for up to 4 people.
Valid on dine-in only. Not valid with any other discount offers.
Expires: 11-11-88
Godfather's Pizza KSU

Large Pizza for a Medium Price
Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer. Limited delivery area.
Expires 11-11-88
Godfather's Pizza KSU

AUTO DIRECTORY

Rose Muffler House
– Complete Exhaust Systems
– Free Estimates
– Custom Exhaust
– Installation
776-8955 700 N. 3rd

CAR CLINIC INC.
"WE CARE ABOUT YOU AND YOUR CAR"
*Auto Tune-ups
*Electrical Repairs
*Diesel Engine Service
*Computer Engine Analysis
*Automatic Transmission Service
*Heater & Air Conditioner Service
539-1040
214 Colorado
Tony Ekart
Gary Bonewitz
Tim Bonewitz



C&M AUTO SUPPLY
Parts • Supplies
•Equipment • Accessories
•Automotive Paints •
Welding Supplies
DOMESTIC–IMPORTS–CUSTOM PARTS
776-4747
Mon.-Sat. 8 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
305-311 South 4th

IMPORT CAR
PARTS & SERVICE
EXPERT MECHANICS ON DUTY
COMPLETE LINE OF FOREIGN PARTS
Quality Parts
Reasonable Prices
Lots of Free Advice
539-0577
315 S. 3rd "AT THE VIADUCT"
8-5:30 M-F, 9-1 Sat.

THOMASON AUTO SERVICE
AMERICAN & FOREIGN •Transmission •Starters •Brakes
•Alternators •Tune-ups
1½ miles E. on U.S. 24
776-1366

Western Auto
Your Total Automotive Headquarters!!
*Complete line of Automotive Accessories and High Performance
*Discount Auto Parts
*Professional Installation Available
*Self-Service Gasoline
*Convenient Store Hours
*Fast Friendly Service
Western Auto
Low Discount Prices Everyday of the week
Western Auto
The Auto Supply Company
539-0535
Tuttle Creek Blvd. & Kimball Ave.
Next to Dutch Maid

Alan Clark
BODY SHOP INC.
COMPLETE BODY REPAIR SINCE 1967
ESTIMATES
INSURANCE CLAIMS WELCOME
776-5333
2160 Pillsbury Dr. • S. Hwy. 177

Wayne's Quik Lube
•CHANGE OIL AND FILTER
•COMPLETE 12 POINT CHECK
•MINOR MECHANICAL REPAIRS
•BRAKES •AIR CONDITIONING
•RADIATOR FLUSHES
HOURS: 8-6 MON.-FRI.
NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY
SOUTH OF HOLIDOME
2304 SKY-VUE LANE—MANHATTAN
539-5431

Specializing in:
■Honda ■Fiat
■Porsche
■Toyota ■BMW
■Volvo ■SAAB
■VW - Audi
noble's
AUTO WORKS
Foreign Car Specialists
539-5511
Complete Fuel Injection Service
Diesel and Gas
Open M-F 8:30-5:30
1809 Ft. Riley Blvd.

PERMANENT PART-TIME POSITIONS
$5.00/HR GUARANTEED-FLEXIBLE HOURS

Telemarketing is growing fast and, according to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, will soon employ more people than any other industry.

Here in Kansas, the leader is Idelman Telemarketing, Inc... ITI contacts the current customers of well known companies like AMOCO OIL, CITIBANK, AT&T, GENERAL MILLS, MC DONALD'S, SPORTS ILLUSTRATED, INC. MAGAZINE and many other top U.S. firms.

We provide a fully paid training program and the best guaranteed part-time wages in town. There's benefits too, including paid vacations, paid holidays and free continental breakfast on weekends.

If you are a good listener, have good verbal skills, enjoy people and want to work early evening and weekend hours, then we want to visit with you. Our supervisors are warm, friendly & helpful and our work environment is 1st class.

So join Kansas' leading telemarketing company...

CALL
776-5000
Mon.-Fri. Noon to 6 pm
IDELMAN TELEMARKETING, INC
WICHITA-HUTCHINSON-SALINA-NEWTON-EMPORIA-MANHATTAN

Russia reports first AIDS death; doctors fail to identify virus

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union on Sunday reported its first AIDS death, that of a pregnant prostitute from Leningrad, and authorities may publish her photograph to alert her sexual partners.

The 29-year-old woman died Sept. 5 of pneumonia following a 26-pound weight loss, chronic tonsillitis and bronchitis and a serious decline in the count of her immune system's T-cells, the labor newspaper Trud reported.

All are common symptoms of aquired immune deficiency syndrome, and the newspaper noted that epidemiologists were incensed that the woman's doctors failed to diagnose AIDS before she died.

They are now trying to locate the victim's sexual partners to determine who else might be infected with the disease, and authorities are considering publishing the woman's photograph to alert her partners, Trud said.

She was registered as a night school student and as a worker.

5-year crime decline ends

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Crime levels rose 1.8 percent last year, the government reported Sunday, ending a five-year decline the Reagan administration had attributed partly to vigorous law enforcement and tougher treatment of criminals.

People living in the West were the most likely to have been victims of crime last year, while residents in the Northeast were the least likely to be victimized, said the study by the Bureau of Justice Statistics.

Nationally, the number of personal and household crimes rose about 613,000 in 1987 to more than 34.7 million.

In 1986, the number of crimes hit the lowest level in the 15-year history of the government's national crime survey, 34.1 million.

Even with the increase, crime levels last year were 16 percent lower than in 1981, the peak year with 41.5 million crimes committed, said Joseph Bessette, acting director of the bureau, a Justice Department agency.

Administration officials have suggested that the decline in crime was due to sterner law enforcement and a more cooperative public. Some academic experts analyzing the data have stressed that the size of the most crime-prone age group, those in their mid to late teens, has shrunk in the 1980s.

The crime-prone age group will continue to decline in size until the early 1990s, demographers say.

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.

Confidential pregnancy testing • Safe, affordable abortion services • Birth control • Tubal ligation • Gyn exams • Testing and treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Providing quality health care to women since 1974. Insurance, VISA & MasterCard accepted.

Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe)
Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free (except KS) 1-800-227-1918

R•O•Y•A•L

Portraits for Royal Purple
will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Sigma Phi Epsilon–Oct. 10
Sigma Sigma Sigma–Oct. 10
Tau Kappa Epsilon–Oct. 10-11

P•U•R•P•L•E

OCTOBER BLAST
CONDE'S IS BLASTING THE COMPETITION!
If you're tired of high prices and fast talking salesmen, come to CONDE'S and
CHECK US OUT!
1. We're going to sell you what you need, NOT JUST WHAT WE NEED TO SELL!
2. We're not going to forget you after the SALE, we've got 3 experienced IN-STORE TECHNICIANS to back up what we sell!
3. Value for Value We Won't Be UNDERSOLD!

Every CD Player on sale!
RCA-CD 180
Compact Disc Player
•Hitachi Built
•3 beam laser
•15 track programability
•2 year warranty
RCA
$138 includes free Laserline Disc Storage Unit

Every TV on sale!
Mitsubishi CS 1946
remote control TV
MITSUBISHI
$299
•125 channel cable ready
•on screen time & channel
•sleep timer
•Multi-Function Remote

$77 Each
infinity RS 1000
• Polypropylene woofer
• Polycell tweeter
• All Infinity speakers on sale now!

5" RCA TV
•Built-in clock
•AM/FM Radio
•Portable
RCA $89

SONY S-3800
Full Remote Rack System
*Turntable
*100 WPC Amp
*Double Cassette Deck
*AM/FM tuner
*Tower speakers and rack incl.
$598
SONY

EVERY PORTABLE ON SALE!
RCA
13" diagonal
XL-100
$149
• Color portable with automatic tuning

LIMITED TO STORE STOCK
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
Monday-Thursday 10 am-8 pm
Friday & Saturday 10 am-5:30 pm
Sunday 1-5 pm
It's A Whole New World at
CONDES
QUALITY PLUGGED IN...
AUDIO • VIDEO • TV
776-4704
407 Poyntz
Downtown Manhattan

NEW MUGS FROM HALLMARK

Conversational messages convey a personal shared feeling. Perfect for a special friend.
$5.95 each.

Hallmark

k-state union bookstore

© 1987 HALLMARK CARDS, INC.

WAL-MART
Pictureland® Portrait Studio
Christmas Portrait Offer!
FREE 8x10
with the purchase of our 13-piece portrait package

(frame not included)

PLUS $2 OFF
NOW ONLY $7.95 plus 95¢ sitting fee (reg. $9.95)
BRING IN ANY LOWER-PRICED ADVERTISED OFFER AND WE'LL MATCH IT!
one 8x10, two 5x7s* and ten wallets on your choice of a traditional, nursery, spring or fall background
Plus an extra 8x10 FREE! on a traditional background
We welcome everyone...babies, children, adults and family groups. No appointment is ever necessary. Satisfaction guaranteed! Poses our selection. Black and White Backgrounds. Double Exposure and other Special Effects Portraits not available in advertised package. $1.50 for each additional person in portrait. Minors must be accompanied by an adult. *approximate size
Studio Hours: Daily: 10 a.m. until one hour prior to store closing; Sunday (where open): store opening until one hour prior to store closing 6 Days Only!
Tuesday, October 11 through Sunday, October 16
*CHRISTMAS BACKGROUND AVAILABLE
Manhattan, KS
628 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
LAST TIME THIS OFFER AVAILABLE FOR CHRISTMAS GIFT GIVING!

FREE

NEW! Schick® Ultrex® Plus PIVOTING RAZOR

The ONLY pivoting razor with a lubricating comfort strip and one-push cleaning for the ultimate shave!

PERSONALIZED with your SCHOOL NAME and SCHOOL COLORS
PLUS
A CHANCE TO WIN A Schick Athletic Bag!

Complete this FREE Schick Razor Sweepstakes Entry form and bring to your bookstore

Bookstore Hours
MON. - THUR. 8am-8pm
FRI. 8am-5pm
SAT. 9am-5pm
SUN. 12pm-5pm

k-state union bookstore

STORE COUPON
NEW! Schick Ultrex Plus PIVOTING RAZOR

To receive your free school razor, first fill in the required information. Then bring this coupon to the bookstore.
Hurry! quantities are limited.
ONE PER STUDENT ONLY.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip Code _____
Phone # ( ) _____
This coupon is your entry to the Schick Athletic Bag Sweepstakes.

HURRY - QUANTITIES LIMITED

K-Staters in FFA to receive highest honors

Management skills necessary for American Farmer degree

By Kelly Campbell
Collegian Reporter

Six K-State students will be recognized for their outstanding business and management skills at the National Future Farmers of America convention Nov. 10-12 in Kansas City, Mo.

The students will receive the FFA American Farmer Degree in recognition of their management of a business in a supervised work experience program and for their contributions to the FFA.

The degree is the highest award for FFA members, said Richard Malir, senior in agricultural economics and former national president of FFA. Fourteen Kansas FFA members will receive the degree this year.

To be eligible for the American Farmer Degree, candidates must have earned Greenhand, Chapter Farmer and State Farmer degrees and must have operated a business for several years, Malir said.

Candidates are evaluated at the national level for their contributions to FFA, he said. Members' previous awards and achievements, leadership positions and supervised work experience programs are also considered.

The work experience program is the most important consideration, said Kevin Pool, junior in animal science and one of this year's recipients of the degree. Extensive record books must be maintained for the program.

The record books are like an accounting system, Pool said. Participants start as freshmen in high school and maintain the books, accounting for all expenses and income, for the program's duration, which is usually at least six years. The method teaches management and business skills, Pool said.

Pool trained and showed horses for his supervised work experience program. "Everything I did was with a horse, around a horse or on a horse," he said.

He trained horses for reining and pleasure riding, rode race horses, showed horses for clients and worked on a ranch, he said.

Pool served as president of the Coffeyville FFA chapter for one year and as treasurer for two years. As a junior in high school, he was the State Star Agribusinessman, which is the highest business award at the state level.

During the same year, Pool was selected for the State Agricultural Sales and Service Proficiency Award. As a high school senior, he was awarded the Bailey Plainsman Scholarship.

This year, Pool will represent Kansas at the national convention as the National Star Agribusinessman nominee.

Pool said he thinks the FFA is the best organization with which a youth can be involved.

"I'll always promote the FFA," he said. "They've always been good to me and I'll always be in debt to them."

Stanley Brandyberry, junior in agricultural mechanization, earned the degree by operating a cow-calf program. One of the main criteria for the degree is to increase in net worth and show expansion, he said.

Brandyberry began his program with 48 cow-calf pairs and 107 acres. During the next seven years, he increased this to more than 800 acres, Brandyberry said. Half of the acreage is pasture for his cow-calf operation and the other half is cultivated.

Brandyberry has served as vice president of the Hill City FFA chapter and participated in a variety of community service activities. He has also received a number of proficiency awards at the state level for crop, diversified-crop and beef programs, he said.

Faculty assist program

By Kelly Campbell
Collegian Reporter

K-State members of the Future Farmers of America have additional help adjusting to college life. Professors are available to FFA students for academic counseling, support and assistance.

Three of these professors have been selected by the National FFA to receive the Honorary American Farmer Degree because of their outstanding contributions to FFA, said Mary Kane, executive secretary for the Kansas FFA.

Nominations are submitted by the state FFA, Kane said. The national association selects the recipients based on their contributions to FFA at the state and local levels.

John Parmley, associate professor in adult and occupational education (agriculture education), was nominated because of his outstanding contributions toward training future FFA advisers, said Earl Wineinger, assistant specialist for Continuing Education conferences and previous executive secretary for the Kansas FFA.

Parmley has been at K-State for nine years and has played a significant role in the education of future agriculture teachers and advisers, Wineinger said.

Parmley was a high school agriculture teacher for 10 years in Colorado and taught at Ohio State for two years before coming to K-State.

Parmley is nationally recognized for his contributions in agricultural education, Wineinger said.

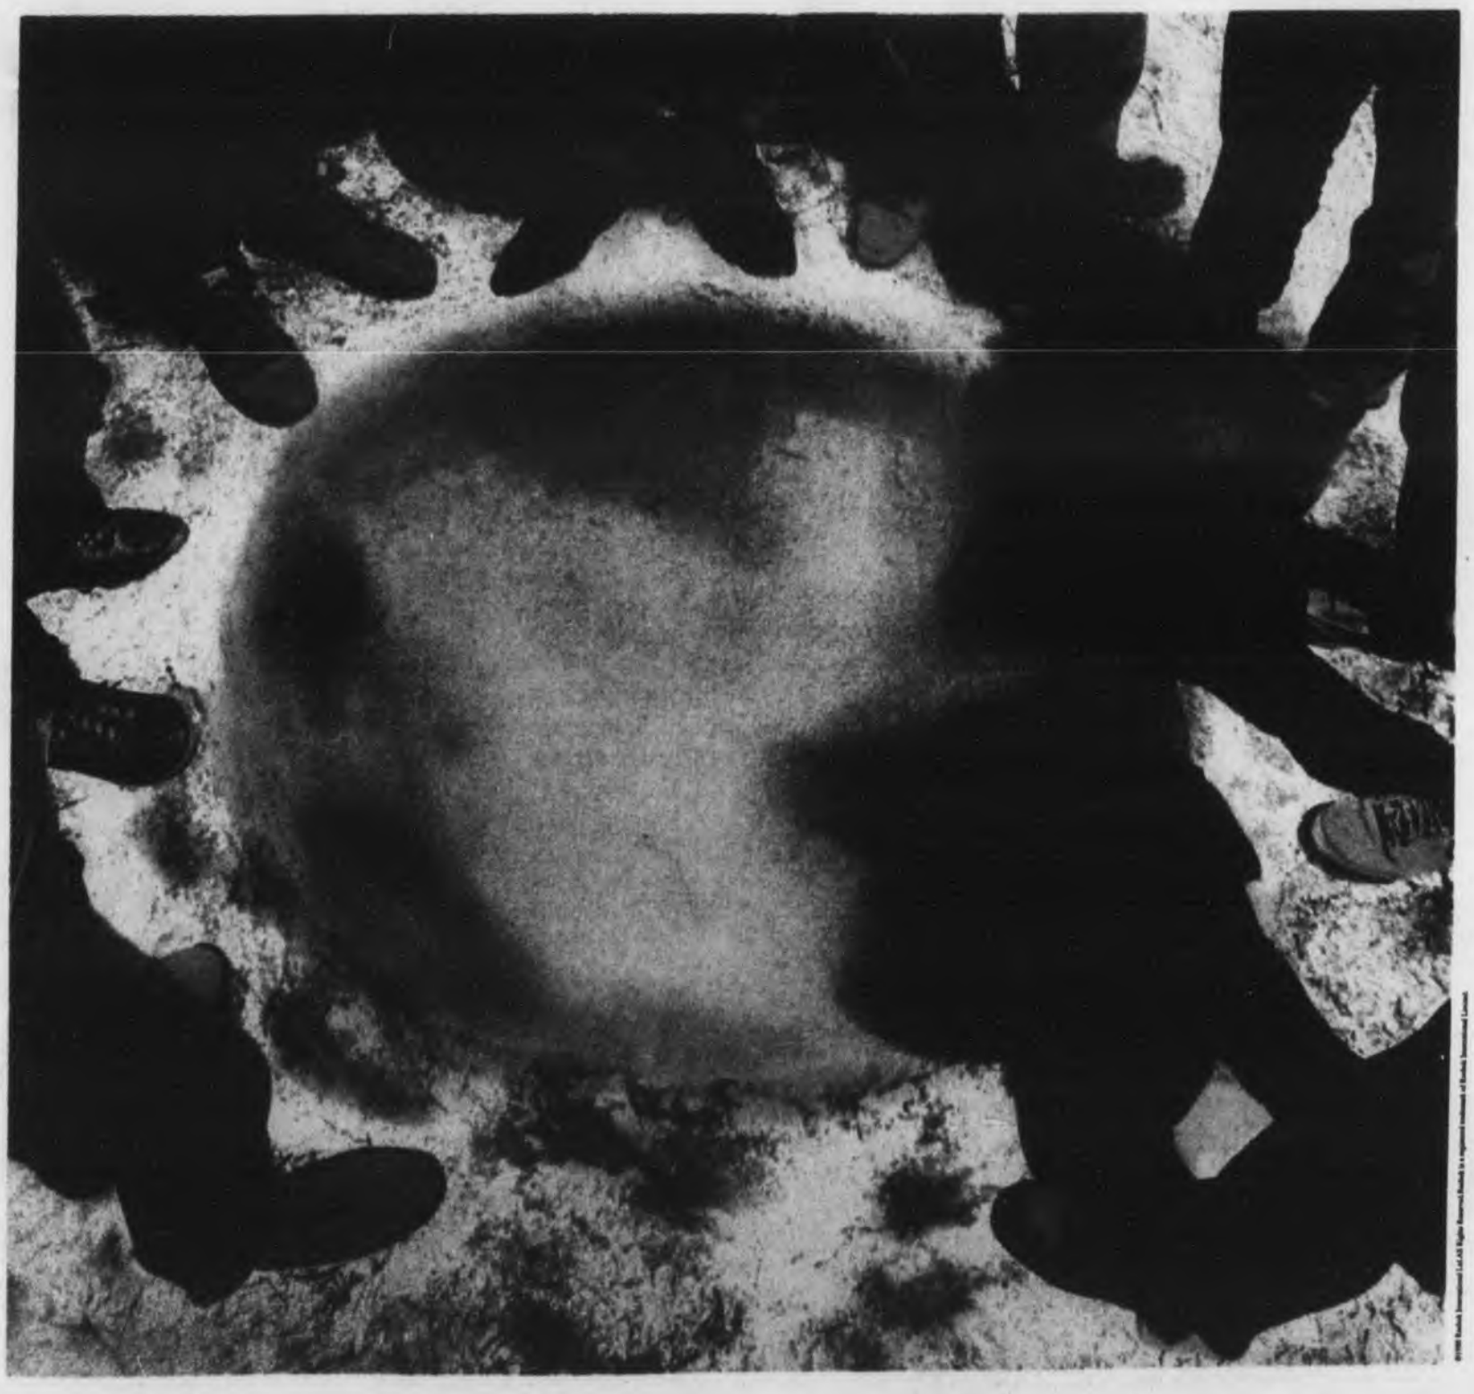
John Slocombe, associate professor in agricultural engineering, was nominated for the honorary degree because he has been instrumental in conducting the state and national FFA Agricultural Mechanization Contests, Wineinger said, adding that Slocombe has made significant contributions as an agriculture educator and FFA adviser.

John Riley, associate director of resident instruction for the College of Agriculture, was also nominated. He has provided guidance and counseling to FFA members for many years, Wineinger said.

Riley has been involved with the state convention and is involved with recruitment of members for the state organization, he said. Riley is also active in preparing Kansas FFA members to compete for national offices.

The honorary degrees will be presented at the National FFA convention Nov. 10-12 in Kansas City, Mo.

Parkside
conoco & U-HAUL
Fall Special
•lube
•oil change
•oil filter
•check antifreeze
•check belts/hoses
•up to 5 qts. oil
Get your car ready for winter
for $13.95 by Appt.
537-1201 1026 Poyntz Ave.



MAKE A WISH COME TRUE
With a Dairy Queen Frozen Ice Cream Cake.
WE TREAT YOU RIGHT
Dairy Queen
1015 N 3rd Manhattan

Having a party?
Need music?
C. G. Disco
call Clyde: (913)784-5604

Headache?
Back Pain?
Neck Pain?
Not with Chiropractic
Call 537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
3252 Kimball Ave.

OFFICIAL SHOE OF THE CENTER FOR METEORITE RESEARCH.

When greeting interplanetary life forms, the following rules of etiquette apply: 1) If it's glowing, don't touch it. 2) Wait until heavy smoke dissipates to begin conversation. 3) Never, ever approach the outer rim without first lacing up a pair of Reebok Rugged Walkers.

Stylish, yet comfortable, the Rugged Walker is the perfect footwear in which to greet strange visitors from outer space. Even your Uncle Ted and Aunt Louise. And they come in sizes to fit both men and ladies. So you and a loved one can probe fallen asteroids together.

So the next time you're examining possible UFOs, or just watching science fiction on cable channel D, try on a pair of Rugged Walkers.

Your center of gravity will never be the same.

Reebok
REEBOKS LET U.B.U.

McCain auditorium

Mark Peskanov, Violin
Rita Sloan, Piano
Friday, October 14, 8:00 p.m.

Warm playing, a fiery personality, and down-to-earth musical intelligence have earned Mark Peskanov praise from American audiences and critics since 1973, when he emigrated from the USSR. A Juilliard graduate, Mr. Peskanov has received an Avery Fisher Career Grant, the first Isaac Stern Award, and the first Frederick R. Mann Young Artist Award. Lawrence resident Rita Sloan is also a graduate of Juilliard, where she studied with the legendary Rosina Lhevinne. Join them for a program of masterworks by Mozart, Prokofiev, Brahms, and the Sarasate Carmen Fantasy.

"A violinist of sensitivity as well as formidable technique." --Cleveland Plain Dealer

General Public: $12
Senior Citizen: $10
Student / Child: $8
Orchestra seating only.

Charge tickets to Mastercard or VISA at 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5:00 p.m. weekdays.

Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and Manhattan Arts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at 537-4400.

Missouri manhandles Wildcats, 52-21

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

There were no surprises in K-State's 52-21 loss to the University of Missouri Saturday in KSU Stadium.

Missouri planned to run. K-State planned to pass.

Strength vs. finesse.

And coach Stan Parrish admitted that when push came to shove, Missouri manhandled the Wildcats.

"They ran over for us," Parrish said. "From a manpower standpoint ... we would have needed a (two)-touchdown lead to really put the heat on them. I don't think that K-State failed due to any lack of effort."

K-State's offense gained only half the yardage (296) that its defense allowed Missouri (592). The Tigers were able to run the ball at will, gaining 367 yards on 66 carries for an average of 5.6 yards per carry, and controlled the clock, holding the ball for more than 36 minutes.

"This year we have been struggling. We had a tough non-conference schedule (such as Miami, Fla., Indiana and Houston), but the offense exploded (today)," said Missouri coach, Robert "Woody" Widenhofer.

K-State's defense did contain Missouri's running game in the first half, giving up just 103 yards on the ground. The high point for the 'Cat defenders came in the first quarter when Wildcat defensive end Danny Needham intercepted a Brad Fitzmaurice pass and returned it 28 yards to the Missouri 15 yard line, setting up K-State's first score.

But the second half was a different story, as the Tigers broke loose for 288 yards.

The 'Cats stuck to their basic game plan, but Parrish said the size of Missouri's defensive front was more than the battered K-State squad could handle.

"They played well," Parrish said. "I think they are much improved over last year and they are by far the toughest team we've faced so far this year.

"Our defense didn't come out and play with the aggressive style that we have played with all year," Needham said. "We had a bunch of blown assignments. That's the first wishbone team we've faced with our new defense and we blew a lot of covers.

"As far as the outcome of the game, I think it was them executing better than we did. I thought we played well the first half except for the last three or four minutes. We got sloppy after that and gave up a bunch of things that we shouldn't have."

"Missouri came out at the top of their game," said 'Cat wide receiver Greg Washington. "We weren't at the top of our game. We can't afford to play a game when we're not at the top of our game.

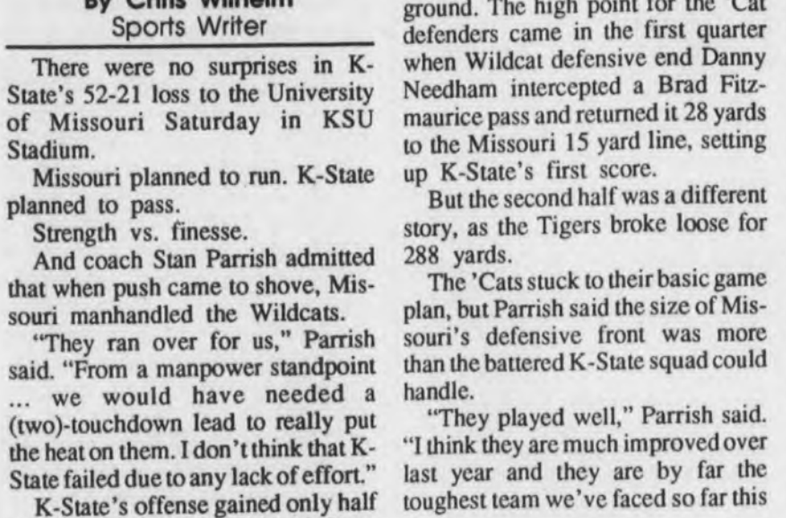
"If we come out and play and we're not at the top of our game, we might not have a chance to beat anyone."

K-State's offense entered the game as the best passing team in the Big Eight, averaging 250 yards per game. While they didn't hit their average, K-State's quarterbacks connected on 17 of 35 attempts for 215 yards, with two touchdowns and two interceptions.

In the first half, redshirt freshman Paul Watson completed eight of 20 attempts for 108 yards before reinjuring his right shoulder. Sophomore Carl Straw started the second half and threw for 107 yards.

K-State was not surprised that Missouri rushed the ball for more than three times the yardage as did the 'Cats, but the fact that they threw the ball better did surprise K-State.

"They were able to open up the running game by completing a high percentage of their passes," Parrish said. "They are considered a running team, but they did a good job of throwing the ball today."



Missouri's quarterbacks Corey Welch and Fitzmaurice, who replaced injured starter John Stollenwerck, completed 10 of 16 passes, with one touchdown and one interception. Fitzmaurice had the better passing day for the Tigers, as Welch did most of his damage on the ground. Fitzmaurice connected on seven of 11 passes for 88 yards, with one interception.

STATISTICS	KSU	MU
First Downs	25	15
Rushing Yards	367	81
Passing Yards	215	225
Return Yards	31	39
Att.-Comp.-Int.	35-17-2	16-10-1
Total Yards	296	592
Fumbles-Lost	0-0	3-2
Penalties	6-75	8-50
MISSOURI	10 14 21 7—52
K-STATE	7 7 0 7—21

RUSHING — K-State, S. Jones 9-56, Watson 8-16, Madden 4-7, Dillon 2-6, Straw 1-2, Dulan 1-(-1), Washington 1-(-3); Missouri, Welch 15-105, M. Jones 2-51, Fitzmaurice 6-46, Stowers 9-35, J. White 5-34, Hall 7-29, Elmore 9-20, T. White 5-17, Moore 4-14, Boykin 2-11, Van Zant 2-5.

PASSING — K-State, Watson 20-8-2-108, Straw 15-9-0-107; Missouri, Fitzmaurice 11-7-1-86, Welch 5-3-0-139.

RECEIVING — K-State, Washington 4-46, Dulan 3-76, Austin 2-29, Hernandez 2-28, M. Smith 1-9, Tolbert 1-9, Friedrich 1-9, McKinnis 2-6, A. Jones 1-3; Missouri, Bruton 2-87, Lemmers 3-71, Cameron 2-30, Hall 2-26, J. White 1-11.

Staff/Chris Assal

K-State linebacker Maurice Henry cools off on the sidelines. Henry's 11 tackles in Saturday's game against the Tigers led the 'Cats.

Staff/John LaBarge

K-State wide receiver Mark Austin (8) is brought down by Missouri cornerback Pat Ray (23). Austin, a 5-foot-9, 170-pound senior from Dangerfeld, Texas, had two receptions for 29 yards in Saturday's loss.

Tigers' quarterbacks team up in victory

By Mike Rouse
Sports Writer

So what if University of Missouri's starting quarterback was injured in last week's 55-0 loss to No. 1 ranked University of Miami (Fla.)? So what if the reserves were two untested freshmen?

What would be a burden to most teams turned into a blessing in disguise for the Tigers. And what K-State got was double trouble as Missouri used the two quarterbacks to defeat the Wildcats Saturday.

Corey Welch and Brad Fitzmaurice both inflicted damage on the Wildcats' defense after Missouri starter John Stollenwerck was scratched because of a shoulder injury.

"No one expected me to do anything, so it was easy for me to go out there and play as well as I did."

—Corey Welch
Missouri quarterback

"I was really surprised at the poise that they had," Missouri coach Woody Widenhofer said. "We needed to take at look at both of those kids since we don't know when John (Stollenwerck) will come back. We need to find one or two that we can really rely on to get us a win."

Fitzmaurice, a 6-foot, 182-pound freshman from Jefferson City, Mo., is known as a passing quarterback. Saturday, he also hurt the Wildcats running the ball.

"I was real confident coming in. I just wanted to make the right reads, the right calls and put some points on the board," Fitzmaurice said.

Fitzmaurice started the season at second-string, but was inserted into the starting slot this week after Stollerwreck was injured.

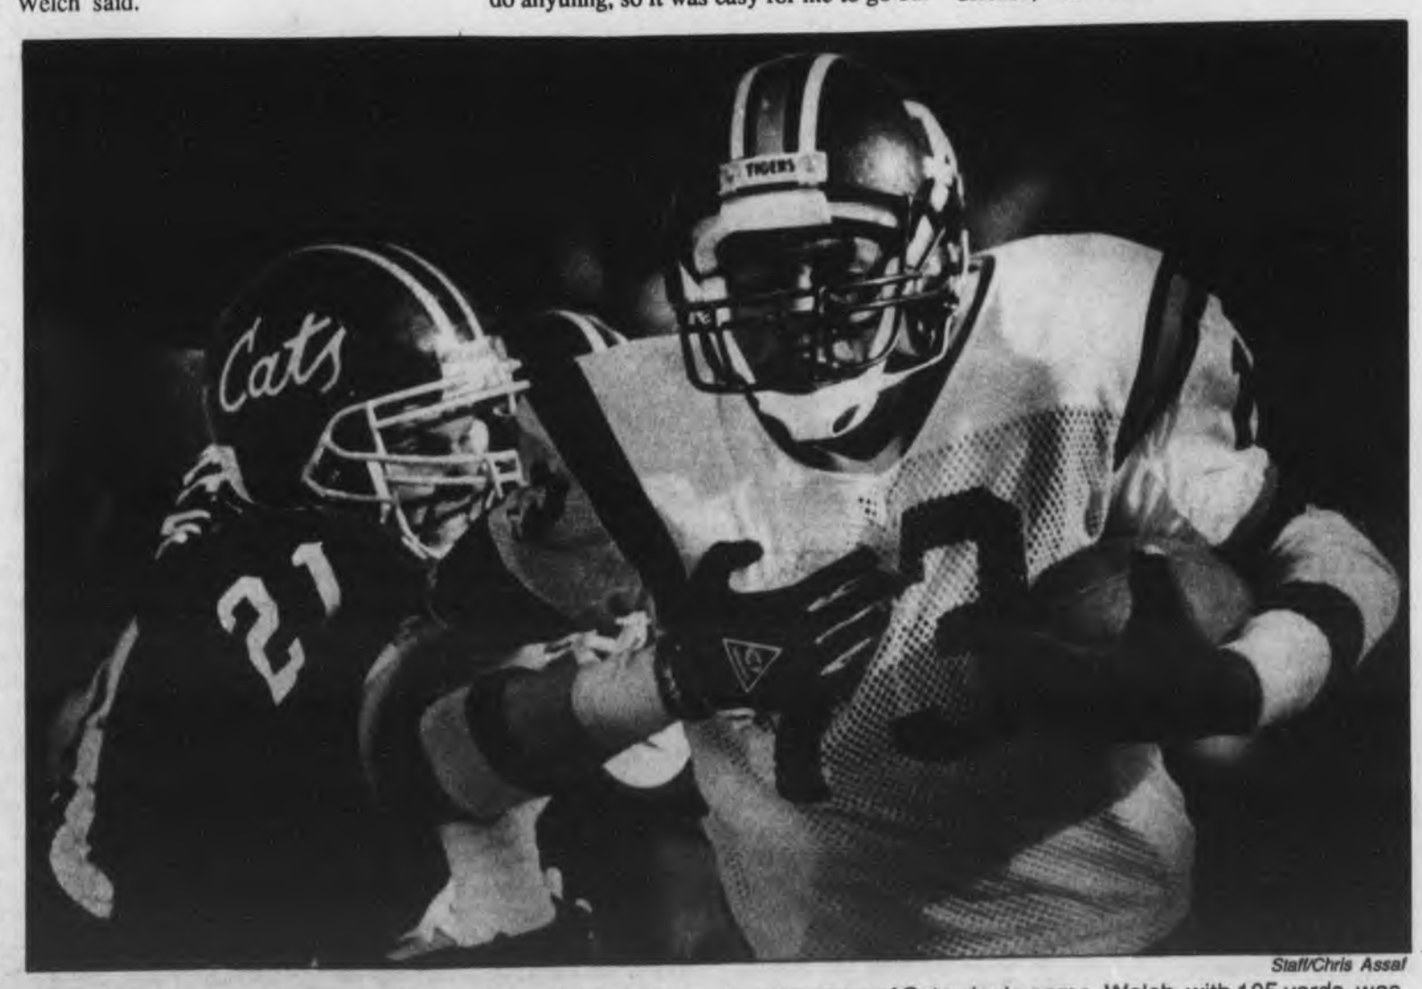
"Brad really beat Corey out as the No. 2 quarterback last spring. However, we knew that Corey had a lot of ability. So we had a chance to start one today, and Brad did a very good job for us," Widenhofer said.

Welch, a 6-foot-2, 192-pound freshman from Kansas City, Mo., gave the Wildcats the most trouble, running for one touchdown and passing for another. He gained 105 yards on 15 carries, including a 49-yard touchdown run. And he passed for 139 yards, including a 80-yard touchdown pass to Tim Bruton.

"We used the run to set up the pass. We used a lot of play action, which really helped me hit the receivers that were wide open," Welch said.

Welch said he doesn't believe the quarterback situation at Missouri is a competition.

"I look at it as the both of us getting better. We are trying to get better, not competing to see who's first-string or second-string.



"I'm not worried about the quarterback situation. I just want to win. If I play, I want to do the best I can do and if it's Fitzmaurice or Stollenwerck, I'll cheer for them on the sideline," Welch added. "No one expected me to do anything, so it was easy for me to go out there and play as well as I did."

K-State head coach Stan Parrish praised the way Welch performed.

"I think that Welch is a guy who has got a chance (to be one of the best quarterbacks in the Big Eight Conference). He gives them another dimension," Parrish said.

Widenhofer was pleasantly suprised at how both quarterbacks kept their poise.

"They were definitely the key to the offense," he said.

Staff/Chris Assal

University of Missouri quarterback Corey Welch attempts to get away from K-State defensive end Danny Needham in the fourth quarter of Saturday's game. Welch, with 105 yards, was the Tigers' leading rusher. The Tigers beat the 'Cats 52-21.

Selection committee announced

By The Collegian Staff

K-State athletic director Steve Miller has announced a 12-member search committee that will review applications and nominations for the new head football coach at K-State.

Miller, the chairman of the committee, said the members are: John Capriotti, K-State track and cross country coach; Bob Krause, vice president for institutional advancement; Troy Lubbers, student body president; Mary Molt, chairman of K-State's intercollegiate athletic council; Max Moss, K-State alumnus and Wichita veterinarian; Bob Snell, K-State faculty representative; Gary Spani, K-State football All-American and a retired member of the Kansas City Chiefs; Veryl Switzer, associate athletic director and assistant vice president for student services; Dan Upson, K-State alumnus and Big Eight Conference Officials' Observer; Jack Vanier, K-State alumnus and rancher from Brookville, Kan.; and Paul VonNostran, president of Manhattan Steel and Pipe.

"I'm very pleased and proud of the composition of the search committee," Miller said. "It represents nearly all segments of our constituency, and it consists of a wide range of both football and athletic interests."

The committee will be searching for a replacement for current coach Stan Parrish, who last week resigned, effective at the end of this season.

Miller said he plans to have a new coach named by Dec. 1.

Get out the brooms: Oakland sweeps Boston

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Then, it was Reggie and Sal, Campy and Catfish. Now, it's the Bash Brothers and Eck.

The Oakland Athletics, showing off the pitching and power that made them baseball's winningest team, completed a four-game sweep in the American League playoffs by beating the Boston Red Sox 4-1 Sunday.

Dennis Eckersley, who led the big leagues in saves, set a playoff record with his fourth save of the series and Jose Canseco, whose 42 home runs were the most in the majors, set an AL mark with his third homer.

The Athletics returned to the World Series for the first time since 1974, the year they won their third straight championship. Game 1 will be Saturday night in either New York or Los Angeles.

"A lot of guys could have won this award," said Eckersley, voted the Most Valuable Player after finishing the combined four-hitter. "It's kind of my year."

The Athletics posted baseball's first four-game sweep since 1976 when Cincinnati's Big Red Machine rolled over the New York Yankees.

"I had a feeling we'd sweep them here," Canseco said.

So did Reggie Jackson, the star of those great A's teams in the early 1970s.

"It just seems like the year of the Oakland Athletics," Jackson, now a television commentator, said in the winning clubhouse.

Boston manager Joe Morgan agreed.

"We lost to the best team in this league. There's no doubt about it," said Morgan, the rookie manager who began with 12 successive victories in July and ended with seven consecutive losses.

The Athletics made straight A's in the playoffs. They did better in every phase, demonstrating why they dominated with 104 victories this year.

"I think I'm free to admit that we must have a real, real good club," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said. "But I think the 4-0 figure is very misleading. It was a tight series."

Or was it?

The Athletics were shocked when Boston was made the slight favorite before the series started and set out to prove they were best.

"People can see we honestly deserved to win 104 games," winning pitcher Dave Stewart said. Stewart, La Russa indicated will start the World Series opener.

Canseco said it didn't matter who Oakland played for the title.

"We're going in and we'll be the team to beat, the team with the better record, the team with the better balance," he said.

The Athletics will also be better rested.

"It's a good thing we aren't playing tomorrow," Eckersley said. "I need a couple days to rest, at least now."

Eckersley pitched six shutout innings in the series, allowing only one hit. He got the last three outs, retiring Rich Gedman and Jody Reed with the tying run at second. Morgan began the ninth inning by pinch hitting for both Jim Rice and Dwight Evans.

"I was shocked," Eckersley said.

The Red Sox, whose longest losing string during the regular season was four games, picked a bad time to duplicate that streak. The Athletics dominated Boston this year, going 13-3 and winning all eight in Oakland, giving them 15 victories over the Red Sox in the last 16 meetings in Oakland.

Stewart pitched into the eighth inning before yielding to Rick Honeycutt. Eckersley started the ninth.

Canseco, the major league home run leader with 42, hit a solo shot in the first inning and tied George Brett's AL playoff record. Canseco has hit five home runs in 26 career at-bats against loser Bruce Hurst, including one in Game 1.

Stewart made the early lead stand up, allowing only Jim Rice's RBI grounder in the sixth. Stewart left after Ellis Burks' leadoff single in the eighth and Honeycutt immediately got Marty Barrett to ground into a double play. Eckersley pitched the ninth to get his fourth save in as many games.

Dwight Evans, the only player on either team who participated in Boston's 1975 playoff victory over Oakland, did not help the Red Sox.

Oakland won an AL West-record 104 games, one season after Minnesota won the pennant with 85 victories. The Athletics' sweep marked for the first time since division play began in 1969 that two different AL West teams have gone to the World Series in successive years.

Boston, whose 89 victories were the fewest for any AL East title in a full season, lost its final three games of the year and continued to wobble.

Rodney would be proud of A's

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports Columnist

The Oakland Athletics proved it one more time Sunday afternoon — the American League Western Division is the best in Major League baseball.

In sweeping the Boston Red Sox in four games to win the American League Championship Series, the A's proved they're in a class by themselves in 1988, and their division is in a class by itself as well.

To all those detractors that have called the division the "American League Worst" over the last few years, here's a simple suggestion: Take a look at the record book.

Including 1985, when the Kansas City Royals came from behind to beat the Toronto Blue Jays in the American League Championship Series and then did the same thing to the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series, the A.L. West has had three of the last four A.L. representatives in the Fall Classic.

The one A.L. East team that snuck in the back door to the World Series was the Boston Red Sox, who won the A.L. title in 1986 when the California Angels choked and all but handed Boston the pennant.

In 1987, the Cinderella Minnesota Twins took the A.L. title over the Detroit Tigers, and then went on to down the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series.

In 1988, the A's, who now hold the record for most wins by an A.L. West team in a regular season with 104, simply destroyed the Red Sox in the ALCS en route to facing either the New York Mets or the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series.

Regardless of who the A's face, they should come away with the third World Championship in four years for the division many have referred to as the "unwanted stepchild" of the majors for several years.

Granted, there is no team in the A.L. West that has dominated its division as have, say, the Cardinals in the N.L. East during the past few years.

True, there have been four different champs in the division in the past four years. That, however, says something for the extremely competitive nature of the seven teams pursuing the crown.

And now the A's, with such veterans as Don Baylor, Dennis Eckersley and Ron Hassey blending with the youth and sheer raw talent of Jose Canseco, Mark McGwire and Walt Weiss, are easily the class of the major leagues.

The Royals, Twins and soon the A's — the class of major league baseball in the class division in the sport.

Rodney Dangerfield would be proud.

Harriers take first at SWMSU

By Mark Schmeller
Collegian Reporter

The K-State men's and women's cross country squads took a strong, but carefully measured, step forward Saturday.

At a point when most other teams have run three, four, or even five races, K-State coach John Capriotti prefers to hold his runners back in an attempt to peak in the last few, important meets of the season.

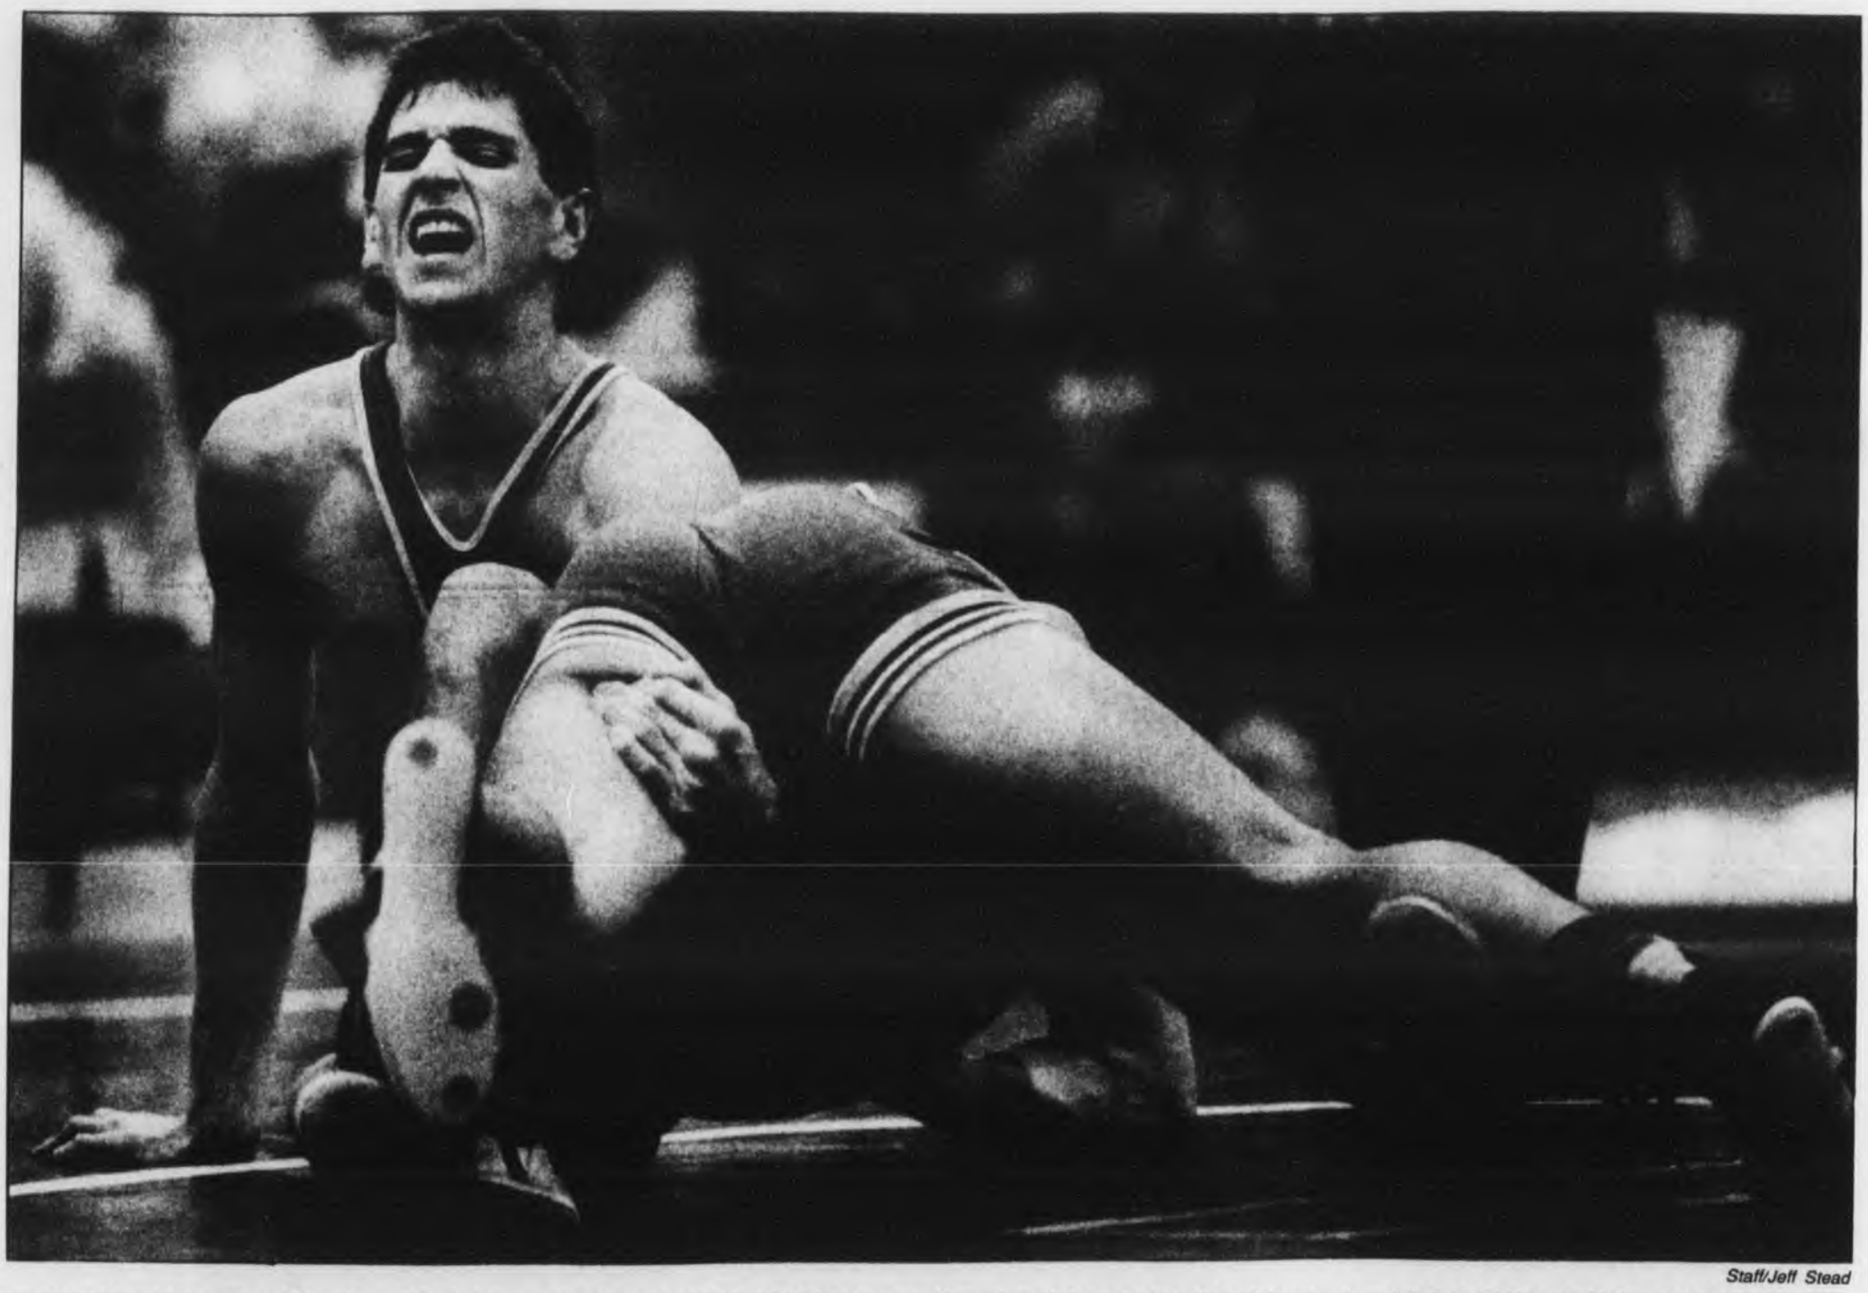
Nonetheless, his teams looked promising at the Southwest Missouri State Invitational, their second meet this year.

K-State's women handled the nine-team field easily, beating runner-up Southeast Missouri State by 50 points. Former Arkansas All-American Melody Sye, running unattached, took the individual honors, covering the 3.1-mile course in 16:52.

After Sye it was K-State's race, with freshman Janet Haskin placing second in 17:05. She was followed by junior Angie Barry in third with a time of 17:19. Then came freshman Janet Treiber (fifth, 17:32), junior Becky Ives (seventh, 18:03), freshman Jennifer Hillier (eighth, 18:07), and juniors Marge Eddy (ninth, 18:10) and Jenny Faunce (11th, 18:14).

"Our women ran fast," Capriotti said. "They are all doing well now and doing all they can. They all ran about a minute faster than in our first meet, which they need to as we head into the (California State Polytechnic College) meet next weekend."

Despite the fact that the course was riddled with poor footing and excessive turns, the team ran together well and turned in some fast times, Capriotti said.



Haskin admitted she was nervous running against Sye, but she said her performance helped her confidence.

Barry said the competition was a lot tougher Saturday than in the team's first meet two weeks ago, but that the results, coupled with several weeks of "perfect" training, had the team ready for next week's Cal-Poly Invitational.

Capriotti hopes to see how the women stack up against teams such as Stanford University, UCLA and the University of Nebraska. Cal-Poly will also serve as a debut for the men's first team, who have not yet run together.

With the top seven runners out for training purposes, Capriotti's men held their own against the 12-team field Saturday. Perennial

■ See CROSS, Page 14

Staff/Jeff Stead

Jeff Kroenlein tries to break free from Mark Johnson's grasp during the All-University Intramural Wrestling Tournament Friday night at the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex. Johnson won the 150-pound match 5-2. Pi Kappa Alpha claimed the fraternity division with 103 points, while Sigma Alpha Epsilon finished second.

Intramural wrestling tournament ends

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

K-State students got a chance to get back on the mat and compete Tuesday through Friday in the All-University Intramural Wrestling Tournament.

Pi Kappa Alpha claimed the fraternity division with 103 points as Sigma Alpha Epsilon finished second with 100 points. The Enforcers ran away with the independent division title by compliling 94 points, 74 more points than runner-up Smith House. Haymaker 3 edged out Marlatt 3 by a score of 48-46 in the residence hall division.

"I'm pleased with the outcome (of the tournament)," said Steve Martini, intramurals director. "There was good competition in all the weight divisions.

"There were some really good matches in some of the divisions, like there are every year. It depends on the personnel competing," he said. "Every year, I look forward to having it."

Martini said the tournament gives some very good wrestlers a chance to compete, and some of those wrestlers have the ability to perform at the collegiate level.

"(K-State's not having a wrestling team) is unfortunate for those guys who are really good. Some are potential varsity collegiate athletes, but, because they didn't want to go out of state or didn't get a scholarship, their wrestling career is basically over," Martini said. "This meet gives those athletes the opportunity to have some further competition."

Wrestlers competed in 10 different weight classes in the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex.

Chad Carter won in the 118-pound division, Charles Anderson claimed the 126 title, Tom Gilbert won at 134, Lance Lusk captured the 142 division, Mark Johnson won in the 150 division, J.D. Hand claimed the 158 division, Preston Underwood topped the 167 division, Tony Schmitt won the 177 division, Paul Stangl won the 190 division and Paul Kolbeck captured the heavyweight division.

"I really thought it was a good, solid competition with a lot of good wrestlers," said Gilbert, sophomore in statistics. "When I went out there last year it was a lot more relaxed ... but it really surprised me this year to see everyone going head-to-head out there. It got pretty serious.

"I sort of lucked out in my fraternity division. I won by default when I split the other guy's head open and he had to get stitches. Otherwise, it would have been more tense."

Sports Briefly

Wildcats lose 8th straight

The losing streak of K-State's volleyball team has now invaded Ahearn Field House.

The Wildcats, who won eight straight matches to start the season, suffered seven consecutive losses, all on the road, before returning to Ahearn Field House Friday night.

It was not a happy homecoming as the Wildcats fell to the rapidly improving Colorado Buffaloes, 15-7, 15-13, 15-7.

Oilers dump Chiefs, 7-6

HOUSTON — Houston backup quarterback Brent Pease, frustrated by three earlier pass interceptions, ran four yards for a third quarter touchdown, rallying the error-prone Oilers to a 7-6 victory over Kansas City Sunday.

The Oilers improved to 4-2, while Kansas City dropped to 1-4-1.

Tennis team places 3 at Nebraska

By The Collegian Staff

As K-State tennis coach Steve Bietau watches his team, he continues to look for signs of improvement. At the 'Husker Invitational Saturday, the fifth-year Wildcat mentor got just what he was looking for.

Playing in a field that included Minnesota, Arkansas, Colorado, Texas Tech, Iowa, Nebraska and Wichita State, K-State's women notched one first-place finish and two third-place finishes on its way to its strongest showing this season.

"Just looking at the chances we had to win against competition like this shows marked improvement," Bietau said. "Overall, it was an exceptionally good weekend. It was our strongest showing against this kind of competition (in the last four years)."

The individual standout was Annika Emtell at No. 6 singles. She breezed through the competition, winning the final over Christy Leach of Minnesota, 6-3, 6-1.

"Annika only lost a total of six games in the whole tournament," Bietau said. "That's just about one per set. There wasn't another division in the tournament that was so dominated by one player."

Sara Hancock, playing at No. 2, wrapped up one of the third-place finishes, while No. 5 Valerie Rive' had the other. Both posted straight-set wins in the third-place matches, after losing in the second round.

The most exciting finish by a K-Stater, however, was that turned in by Marijke Nel at No. 1 singles. Playing for fifth place against Katherine Edelkotter of Nebraska, Nel found herself down 5-1 in the third set. The junior responded by fighting off five match points and won the match, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

In doubles play, the top K-State finish came at No. 3 with Rive and Miste Bitner taking fourth.

K-State Results
Singles

No. 1: Marijke Nel lost to Gorde, Minnesota 6-1, 2-6, 6-0; def. Grantham, Texas Tech 6-4, 6-2; def. Edelkotter, Nebraska 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

No. 2: Sara Hancock def. Marshall, Colorado 7-5, 3-6, 6-3; lost to Guba, Nebraska 6-1, 6-7, 6-3; def. Peyton, Iowa 6-3, 6-1.

No. 3: Helen Schildknecht lost to Moe, Minnestoa 6-4, 6-3; lost to Jacquard, Wichita State, 3-6, retired; won seventh-place match by forfeit.

No. 4: Thresa Burcham def. Clark, Colorado 6-0, 6-4; lost to Tyggum, Nebraska 6-0, 6-2; lost to Shaun, Arkansas 6-1, 6-1.

No. 5: Valerie Rive' def. Jones, Nebraska 6-3, 6-0; lost to Breigttag, Minnesota 6-2, 6-4; def. Kaplan, Colorado 6-3, 6-1.

No. 6: Annika Emtell def. Muldowney, Iowa 6-1, 6-0; def. Hamilton, Texas Tech

■ See TENNIS, Page 14

Bakkers attempt PTL revival; federal agents keep close watch

By The Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — While Jim and Tammy Bakker have been asking for money to regain control of PTL and set up a new television ministry, federal agents have been keeping a close watch on their fund-raising tactics.

"I imagine they're checking very carefully to see what he's doing," said Hendersonville lawyer Jim Toms, one of Bakker's attorneys. He said federal authorities have questioned him about the recent fund-raising.

"They're looking at it critically, but are keeping an open mind," Toms said. "They're giving him room to see what he is really going to do."

The focus on the latest fund-raising effort comes in the midst of a 14-month-long federal grand jury investigation into possible wrongdoing by the former PTL president and founder and his top aides.

Bakker won't disclose how much his latest efforts have raised. But Toms said he is keeping federal authorities posted on Bakker's activities and has offered to let Internal Revenue Service agents inspect Bakker's financial records.

In a fund-raising campaign launched last month, the Bakkers mailed about 200,000 packets to potential donors across the nation.

Cards in the packets spell out their intentions: "Your gifts are used to support Jim and Tammy and all their ministry. They have the discretion to allocate your gift where needed. Jim and Tammy have a nonprofit ministry, New Covenant Partners and Church, and are proceeding to apply for tax exemption, but your gift is not tax deductible at this time."

Charles Alexander, the Justice Department prosecutor heading the grand jury investigation, declined to say if agents are asking about the Bakkers' latest fund-raising techniques.

"I have no comment at all," Alexander told The Charlotte Observer.

Les Witmer, an IRS spokesman in Atlanta, said: "Obviously, based on previous activities, the Internal Revenue Service would be very interested in the fund-raising activities of the new corporation."

The IRS in April revoked PTL's tax-exempt status on the ground that Bakker operated it mostly to make money — not to minister.

Zoo tries mating project

By The Associated Press

GULF BREEZE, Fla. — Colossus and Muke have stopped fighting, but they haven't started much else, zoo keepers said Sunday on the third day of a breeding project for the two oversized gorillas.

"They pretty much just sit on opposite sides of the yard," said Lori Layfield of The Zoo in this Panhandle city. "They haven't had much contact."

But she said keepers were pleased that there's been no repeat of a first-day fight and that there were signs Colossus, a 600-pound male on his first date, and Muke, a 250-pound female, are at least interested in each other.

"He peeps at her and she peeps at him. If she moves out of his sight, he'll move around until he can see her, and she does the same," Layfield said.

Overall, keepers who didn't know what to expect are "thrilled" by the gorillas' first weekend together, she said.

Colossus, who has been in the zoo since March, and Muke, (pronounced moo-key) there since June, got their first look at each other Friday.

Colossus, the largest gorilla in U.S. captivity, charged and flipped literally head over heels in an apparent attempt to injure Muke. He came away with a mouthful of fur and a 5-inch gash in his neck delivered by Muke.

"That was a good introduction," said Pat Quinn, the zoo's president and director. "It was the first time he has touched another gorilla since he was an infant over 20 years ago."

Both gorillas are age 22. Colossus stands at 6 feet, 2 inches. Muke is believed to be one of the larger female gorillas in captivity.

Colossus was captured as an infant in the western lowlands of Central Africa in 1967. He came to Florida from Benson's Animal Park in Hudson, N.H. Muke is on loan from the St. Louis Zoo.

Shrimp & Beer
15¢ Shrimp
all you want
COTTON CLUB

2 FER MONDAYS
All regular priced meals are 2 for 1 with any reg. priced beverage purchase.
Mondays 5 to 9 p.m.
Free putt putt passes Mondays only
with this coupon
The Chef
111 S. 4th

All Seasons MOTEL
1501 TUTTLE CREEK BLVD.
MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66502
(913) 539-5391
Student Special
Peace and quiet to study or just get away
$13 Single $18 Double
Day Rate 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.—$10
(offer good Sun.-Thurs., on availability)
Student I.D. Required
Call for reservations 539-5391

Begin Graduate School in January '89
Psychology
• Master of Arts
• Doctor of Psychology
• Innovative • Applied • Clinical • Small Classes
• Hospital Affiliations • Clinical Training Facilities On Premises
• Afternoon & Evening Classes • North Central Accredited
• Full & Parttime Programs • Handicapped Accessibility
• Equal Opportunity Educational Facility
Forest Institute of Professional Psychology
1322 South Campbell • Springfield MO 65807
417 831 7807

UNITED ARTISTS
$2.50 PER PERSON SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 p.m.
UA SETH CHILDS 6
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD. 776-8686
HEARTBREAK HOTEL PG-13
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
COMING TO AMERICA R
Daily 7:15, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:15, 4:35
YOUNG GUNS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:45
DEAD RINGERS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:05, 4:30
COCKTAIL R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:35
BIG PG
Daily 7:25, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:30

"I wasn't rubbing it in–I just wanted Eddie to know the score of last night's game."

Go ahead and gloat. You can rub it in all the way to Chicago with AT&T Long Distance Service. Besides, your best friend Eddie was the one who said your team could never win three straight.

So give him a call. It costs a lot less than you think to let him know who's headed for the Playoffs. Reach out and touch someone.®

If you'd like to know more about AT&T products and services, like International Calling and the AT&T Card, call us at 1 800 222-0300.

AT&T
The right choice.

The Station
STADIUM NIGHT MONDAY

$1 STADIUM BEERS
(24 oz!)
GAME ON 7 FT. TV
New York Giants
vs.
Philadelphia Eagles
tonite!
Remember Taco Tuesday Tomorrow!

Mon., Wed., Fri.

CYNTHIA, top designer with 5 years experience. Specializes in long hair, and men's styling.
For introduction CYNTHIA is offering 50% off (reg. $18) a cut with style through Oct. 21st
Call CYNTHIA for your personal appointment.
776-8830
TINA'S Studio 32 FOR HAIR
Candlewood Shopping Center

Understanding health additives important

By The Collegian Staff

From A to Zinc, vitamins and minerals may seem like the proper health supplements for students surviving on cupcakes and potato chips. But there is more to maintaining a healthy diet than popping a Fred Flinstone chewable vitamin every day.

Determining an adequate dosage, checking the supplement for possible health risks, and choosing the supplement that best complements one's dietary habits are only a few of the factors that must be considered before investing in health additives.

Martha Olson, Lafene Student Health Center dietician, and Cindy Burke, Lafene health educator, said they would not recommend vitamins as a dietary supplement, but agreed that using them as a supplement wouldn't hurt anyone.

Olson and Burke also agreed on one other diet issue that many students overlook — that eating a variety of foods is the key to a healthy diet.

Burke attributed the lack of variety in college students' diets to the easy access to fast food.

"Fast food has some nutritional value, but the high fat and cholesterol content makes it an unhealthy constant diet," she said.

"Supplements are important for people who don't eat right most of the time," said Mary Pendergrass, manager of General Nutrition Center. She also said supplements are a good idea for people who need more vitamins and minerals in their diets, such as athletes and women.

GNC's health products include whole wheat pretzels and yogurt raisins. They also carry a complete line of vitamins and minerals, and offer informational pamphlets on their products.

Although the average grocery store carries a large variety of national brand vitamins and minerals, store brands are usually cheaper. Olson suggested buying the cheaper brand.

"If a student wants to take a supplement, a plain, simple multivitamin that contains 100 percent of the recommended daily allowance is fine, even if it is a generic label," she said.

Laurie Pomeroy, of the Diet Center, said she agrees eating a variety of foods and balancing nutrients are necessary for a healthy diet.

She said she also subscribes to scientist Linus Pauling's view that vitamin C plays an important role in deterring disease. Pomeroy said she doesn't believe in large dosages, but said people should increase their intake of vitamin C if they are tired or sick.

FREE CATALOG
of Government Books
Send for your copy today!
Free Catalog
Box 37000
Washington DC 20013-7000

68 bands play for halftime show

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

The K-State Marching Band didn't perform alone in the halftime show of Saturday's K-State vs. University of Missouri football game.

The Pride of Wildcat Land shared the field with 68 other bands from Kansas high schools in the 53rd annual K-State Band Day.

"We hoped for more bands," said Stanley Finck, band director.

This Band Day should have drawn more interest than usual because the Wildcats played another Big Eight team, he said.

All Kansas high school bands were invited to participate, Finck said.

A parade on Poyntz Avenue kicked off the day's festivities. The bands then went to KSU Stadium to rehearse.

The bands played four songs but didn't march. Instead, the bands stood in place and formed the letters "KSU" across the football field.

The bands performed "Wildcat Victory," "I Heard it Through the Grapevine," "I Get Around" and the "1812 Overture."

More than 100 drill team and flag corp members performed on the north lawn of the stadium, Finck said.

The Gyll Bates Twirlers of Manhattan and Rhonda's Rubberbands, a twirling group from Wamego, also performed with the high school drill teams.

Band Day isn't complete without a few problems, Finck said. Directing almost 3,000 people is not an easy task.

"There's no way to keep them all quiet. It's difficult to communicate in that stadium even with the PA system," he said.

A lot of bands don't learn the music before arriving, and that causes more problems, Finck said.

"We see some band directors handing out the music for the first time as the kids get off the bus," he said.

Each high school band director is responsible for getting copies of the music, and this can lead to sour notes. Sometimes a director will get the wrong arrangement of the right song and not know it, he said.

Finck, however, doesn't deal with all the problems alone. K-State band members also help organize and lead the event.

"There is a great deal of preparation," Finck said.

K-State band members volunteer to be in charge of one high school band, said Kristi Field, band member and sophomore in biology.

"We lead them through the parade and make sure they get to the stadium on time," she said.

The K-State band members have to get their band in the right seats during the game and put them in the right place at halftime.

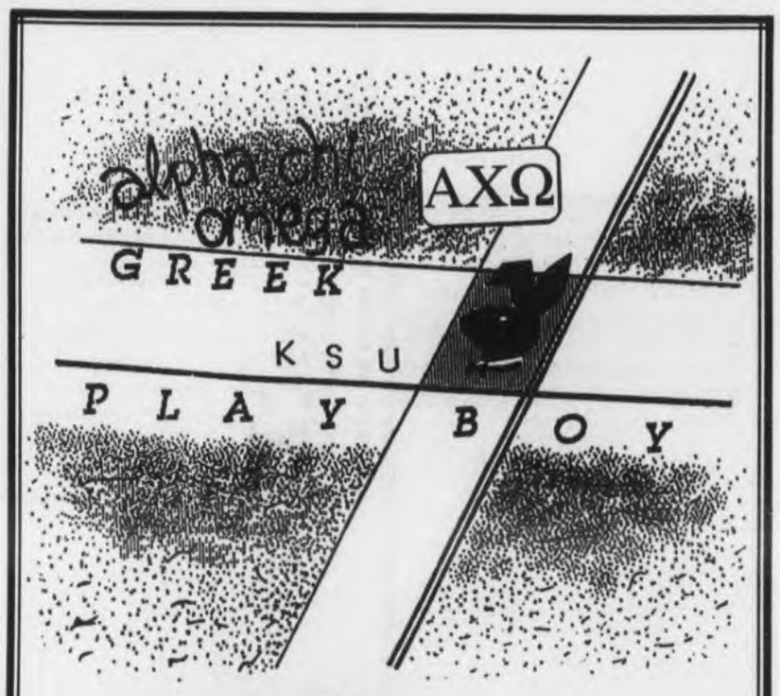
Band Day is a lot of work, but it does have its advantages, said Darin Baugher, band member and senior in civil engineering.

"It's is a good recruiting tool for the band and K-State, " he said.

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)

Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa

Park Place
apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951



THE KSU MARKETING CLUB

Presents

MARION LABORATORIES, INC.

Tonight 7 p.m.
Union Little Theater

All Majors Welcome
Refreshments Served

Schliebe WORKOUT CENTER
POWER FM 94.5

Voting in the Union
October 11, 12, 13

Vote for your favorite candidate

Proceeds to benefit Cystic Fibrosis

THE UPC ADVENTURE
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE

Now Showing
2ND FLOOR SHOWCASE

Photographs by the Collegian Photographers

October 10-October 21

k-state union upc arts

Now Showing
K-STATE UNION ART GALLERY

Mixed Media on Rice Paper by Emily Martin

October 10-October 29

k-state union upc arts

★★★
"THE FUNERAL IS A GEM, FUNNY AND MOVING..." — Chris Chase, Daily News
"SEX AND DEATH, SEX AND FOOD, FOOD AND DEATH. ...a wry blend of ritual, obsession and modern-day Japanese culture." — Janet Bernard, New York Post
JUZO ITAMI'S
THE FUNERAL
...A DEADLY COMEDY.

Wednesday, October 12, 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall and Thursday, October 13, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre and 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall.

Rated PG.
All shows $1.75.
KSU ID Required.

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

Survival Game Adventure
October 30

k-state union upc outdoor rec.

Join ORC for a new kind of outdoor recreation — the Survival Game! Teams will compete against each other using paint guns to determine the winning team. This adventure will take place near Manhattan and includes the rental of the paint guns and the paint pellets. Experience a different kind of fun and excitement! INFORMATION MEETING: Tuesday, October 18, 7 p.m., Union Room 207. SIGN UP BEGINS: Wednesday, October 19, 8 a.m., Activities Center, 3rd floor Union.
COST — $10
TRIP INCLUDES: gun rental, paint pellets, and refreshments

SKI

SKI TRIP INCLUDES:
-5 nights lodging at Pine Ridge Condominiums in Breckenridge, Colorado.
-4 days Breckenridge lift tickets.
-4 days equipment rental.
-Pre-party.
-On-site 'Nuts and Bolts' party.
-His or Hers Gift Pack filled with free samples of top quality products.
-Schedule of Activities: where, when and what is happening.
-Trip sponsors.

*Trip costs $231 with your own equipment.

SIGN UP TODAY: 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Activities Center, 3rd floor Union.
LIMITED SPACE AVAILABLE

"Don't take any chances with your ski trip. Travel with the best. UPC Travel."

k-state union upc travel

Ice organisms discovered

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A vast and previously undiscovered population of tiny plants and animals lives in hollowed pores carved through the sea ice that forms annually around Antarctica, researchers said in studies released Sunday.

Cornelius Sullivan, co-leader of a National Science Foundation polar study expedition, said scientists studying the sea ice found large and thriving populations of krill, a small shrimp-like animal, grazing on one-celled plants and animals that live in the ice pores.

"The sea ice is a place where for a small expenditure of energy the krill can avoid predators and live in a rich pastureland," said Sullivan, the director of marine biological research at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

Existence of the vast population of plants and animals living in the ice came as a surprise to researchers who spent 70 days during the heart of the Antarctic winter studying the polar ice.

During the winter, sea water freezes to a six-foot thickness and forms a pack extending 1,100 miles from the Antarctic mainland. The total ice formed around the South Pole continent is roughly 11 million square miles, three times the area of the United States.

Each spring, 80 percent of the ice melts, creating a nutrient-rich layer of water that is filled with small plants and animals, and with the birds and mammals that feed on them.

But the amount of life that existed within the ice during the winter months was an unanticipated discovery, said Sullivan in a telephone interview.

He said the scientists found that the sea ice was not solid, but was pocked with channels, "rather like Swiss cheese." These channels form as hairlike pores when the ice freezes and then are enlarged by wave action.

Once the channels are in place, they form a home for one-celled plants called algae that live in the microscopic spaces between the ice crystals.

Sullivan said the algae is "remarkable" because it is able to perform photosynthesis in temperatures at or below freezing. Sunlight strikes the ice five to six hours a day in the winter and enough of the light penetrates the ice to allow the algae to grow.

ClassAds

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

HAIR SHACK, 415 N. Third, 776-7421. Fall Specials: Perms $20- $25 with cut/ set. Sculptured nails $25, call Mona. Style/ cut/ blowdry $9. Monday- Saturday 8a.m.- 5p.m. We're unique.

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

MARY KAY Cosmetics-skin care-glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible.

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

PENTECOSTAL CONQUERERS Bible Club. Every Wednesday 7p.m., Union 202. Bring your Bible, join us. 537-4441.

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

SUBJECTS NEEDED- paper/ pen task. Study on selecting fastfood restaurant managers. Receive two McDonald's coupons each for free hamburger, fries, drink. Signup Bluemont Hall, fourth floor lobby.

TKE POWDER Puff Championship Gamma Phi Beta, Alpha Delta Pi square off at Griffith Park, 8p.m. Tuesday. Everyone welcome.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

WHAT OCCUPATION does Eddie Haskell have today? If you know the answer to this question, call Dominoe's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order. 539-0561.

Late Night
Campus Crusade
Dave Robinson
speaking on
"Relating the Real You"
Tues., Oct. 11, 10 p.m.
Kappa Delta Sorority

EeGee's
Restaurant & Ice Creamery
Monday
Don't be a
Couch Potato
STUFF A SPUD
at EEGEE'S
ONLY $1.00
BROCCOLI CHEESE-$2.00
CHILI CHEEZY BACON-$2.50
12th & Laramie•Aggieville

KEMPO
KARATE CLASSES
9 yrs. in Manhattan
Instr.: Ty Callahan
Certification:
U.S. Dept. of Justice 1983
USKF 1984
776-2450

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

ONE-BEDROOM furnished apartment, two blocks west of campus with off-street parking. 539-7811 or 1-456-2090.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

EXCEPTIONALLY CLEAN one-bedroom, walk-in closet, dining/ living room, kitchen and bath in a six-plex. $265. Phone 537-7087.

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. Partially furnished. Call Tim at 539-7975.

QUIET, WELL-MAINTAINED one-bedroom apartment close to KSU for lease to non-smoking adult. Laundry, parking, paid heat and air conditioning and more. $240. No waterbeds, pets. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1973 DODGE cornet, 78,000 miles, have to see to appreciate, $700. 537-8950 after 5p.m.

1982 CAMARO, power steering, power brakes, four-speed transmission, stereo, 50,000, $5,800. 776-0382.

1982 DATSUN 280Z fully equipped, five-speed, t-top. 537-9351.

7 Child Care

INFANT AND child care in my home, Cico Park area. 537-9351.

8 Computers

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4⅓ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

CHURCH NURSERY attendant needed Sunday mornings 8:15a.m. to 12:15p.m. Must be 18 years of age or older. Complete application at 115 Courthouse Plaza, Monday through Friday between 8:30a.m. and noon, and 1- 3:30p.m. Application deadline Oct. 12.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, and juniors: Get paid to train in the summer to become Marine Corps officers after graduation. Aviation and financial aid available. Call collect, 1-841-1821.

HELP WANTED, Telephone survey part-time Monday through Friday, students welcome. 537-3394.

MARKETING POSITIONS open with Manhattan business. Knowledge of media, promotions and layout skills necessary. Submit resume to Box 9, in care of K-State Collegian, 103 Kedzie Hall.

MCDONALD'S IS now hiring for all day shifts between the hours of 5a.m. to 4p.m. We offer a starting wage of $3.50 per hour with frequent raises. We also offer meal benefits, uniforms and flexible hours. Please apply in person at 815 N. Third Street.

MCDONALD'S OF Westloop is looking for some enthusiastic, dependable people who enjoy working with people. Part-time day shift hours available between 5a.m. and 4p.m. with very flexible schedules. Starting salary $3.50/ hour with frequent raises available. Apply in person anytime, 1011 Westloop.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART-TIME HELP wanted (10- 15 hours/ week). Duties will include data entry, proofing computer printouts, filling orders, typing and some heavy lifting. Preference given to applicants with computer experience. Important: Must be able to work during school breaks, including full-time between fall and spring semesters. Interested? Contact Coleen or Bridget at 532-5970.

PAY DAY! Beginning salary $3.60/hour. All shifts for waiter and waitresses; Mexican Tuesday and Thursday 10:30-2:00; hotline server, Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10:30-1:15 and 10:20-2:00; cashier Monday through Friday 8:00-1:30 and Monday through Friday 1:30-4:00; sandwich Monday through Friday 6:00-10:30; ice cream Monday through Friday 10:30-1:30; office assistant, hours will vary. Apply now at the K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. Food Handler's Card a must.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

STUDENT PROGRAMMERS: Responsible programming position, 20 to 30 hours/ week. Graduate, as well as undergraduate students encouraged to apply. Long-term employment given preference. Apply in person to Receptionist, Administrative User Services, Anderson 21, by Monday, 5p.m., Oct. 10.

NAVY MANAGEMENT
Math, Engineering and Physical Science Majors with 3.3 GPA, earn $1,000 per month during junior and senior years plus $4,000 upon entry. Find out more about the Navy's Engineer Officer Candidate Program, call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

INTERNSHIP AVAILABLE
The Kansas Pork Producers Council Student Promotion Internship is designed to involve a KSU student in the functions of a commodity organization.
The student should be interested in public relations, restaurant management, human ecology, meats or general agriculture.
The student is required to have 60 hours completed, but have two semesters remaining.
A $1000 scholarship and 3 credit hours will be awarded.
The internship will run from January 1, 1989, to December 31, 1990.
Applications may be obtained from the KPPC, 2601 Farm Bureau Road, Manhattan, 776-0442.
They are due in the KPPC office by October 15.

ON-CAMPUS TRAVEL representative or organization needed to promote Spring Break trip to Florida or Texas. Earn money, free trips and valuable work experience. Call Inter-Campus Programs, 1-800-433-7747.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS, full- or part-time. Apply in person, Seven Dolors Child Care, Eighth and Colorado.

TWO-YEAR COGNITIVE psychology research project. About five hours per week at $5 per hour, including summers. Sophomores with high GPA preferred. Contact Dr. Thompson, 532-6850.

VALENTINO'S: NOW hiring for driver, pizza table and dishroom positions. Please apply in person at 3019 Anderson.

VISTA DRIVE-IN is now taking applications for part- and full-time help. Must be able to work some noon shifts. Apply in person.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: PUPPY, near band practice field. About six months old. 539-2100.

FOUND: YOUNG affectionate cat, 1800 block of Laramie. Call to identify, 776-7488 or 537-3654.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas. 1-437-2734.

POPCORN, WHITE Grade "A" 50-pound bags for just $15. Call Troy at 537-6886.

STUDENT DESK, office desk, swivel desk chairs, couch, dinette, chest, beds, bar, misc. furniture. 776-9705.

FIREWOOD
Seasoned Mixed Firewood
$50 Truck Load
Split and Delivered
Call 539-3835 after 5 p.m.

Attention Seniors:
Tired of having a very basic resume? At Heirloom Portraits we have just the thing to spruce up that resume at an affordable price. Be a part of the growing individuals that put together not only an exceptional resume, but enhance the business stature by complimenting the paper with a beautiful color portrait.
All it takes is a telephone call to set up an appointment.
776-1175
Heirloom Portraits

HOUSTON STREET
BALLROOM
Wedding Receptions
Dances, Parties
539-1234

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1983 INTERCEPTOR 750. Looks brand new, runs great. Vance and Hines exhaust. $1,600. 539-8086, Kerry.

1985 700 Nighthawk S, black and blue. 6,000 miles. Phone 532-5279.

1986 YAMAHA Fazer FZX700S, Black/ 'Passion' Red/ Chrome, low miles, showroom condition, two helmets, best offer. 532-3420.

BIANCHI CERVINO mountain bike. Used only two months. Excellent condition. Extra tires, handlebars, lock. 532-5381.

17 Musical Instruments

CERWIN- VEGA Bass guitar cabinet with Sunn 18" speaker. Wheels, handles. $125. 539-2401.

American Heart Association

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings & Drumsticks
Buy 1 Set, Get a 2nd Set
½ Price
327 Poyntz 776-7983

18 Personals

ALPHA OF Clovia's Julie- Hi! Have fun in your classes! Don't meet too many Bryans today! Love, your Little Sis.

AZD MARIA, opps MSG. Thought we forgot? But how could that be? Your countdown is over, you're now 21. Do you have a hangover? Do you remember if you had fun? Love, Cheryl, Sheila and Laura.

DAVE- DIDN'T get to thank you for "saving" me Thursday night at Brother's. I appreciate it! C.

DISHRAG TJB: I "tackled" you, you carried me home, the fare for the ride home was a kiss. I didn't think I'd still be paying that fare a year later, but it's been wonderful! I love you! SP.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

GERALYN- THANKS for the best year of my life. I love you muchly! Happy Anniversary, Honeybunch. -Michael.

GRADY- JUST can't get enough of your craziness. G.G.

GRICHARD, HOPE you had a great 22nd birthday! Have an even better year! ILY, VLH.

HOLA K2 Yo soy su pequena hermana. Guess who? You'll find out soon! Clovia Love.

KIMMY- THANKS for making our year so special. Happy 1st Anniversary! Love, Will.

KKG MEL, I'm so happy we are finally pinned. I Love You! Fiji Cory (snake!)

SUZY THE Alpha- You're not a goober, you're my aunt! Have a nice day! Love, your Little Niece.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

EXPERIENCED TYPIST will type papers, theses and dissertations, letters, etc. at reasonable rates. 776-5907.

LASERPRINTED AND Typeset resumes are 10% off with coupon from KAT magazine. Graphics Plus, 607 N. 11th, Aggieville. 539-6027.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, professional documents, resumes, etc., laser printer quality. Call 1-494-2279 after 5p.m.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

Résumé Service
Resumes — Cover Letters
Data Sheets
343 Colorado
Call 537-7294
9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE, NON-SMOKER wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Reasonable price. Call 537-2973. 1002 Gardenway.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted immediately. $135 plus one-third utilities. One block from campus, nice and clean. Call 776-3788 (Rebecca).

NON-SMOKING FEMALE to share two-bedroom furnished apartment with Christian female. $152.99 plus one-half utilities. 539-9564.

24 Situation Wanted

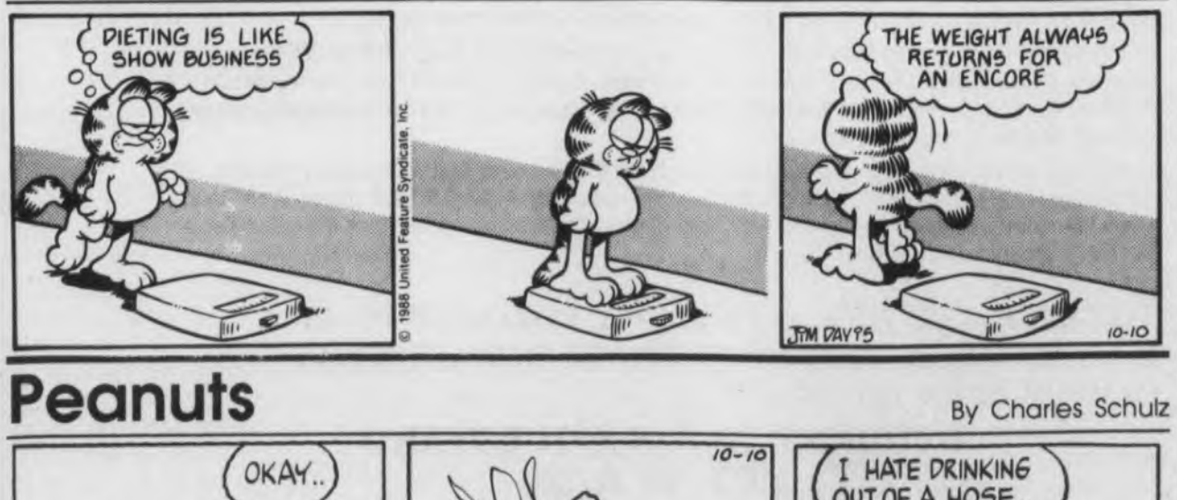
WANTED A bass player for rock band. If interested, call 776-1691.

WANT TO trade Def Leppard ticket near stage for ticket on aisle between sections 17 and 18 near row 25. 587-8883.

28 Adoption

HAPPILY MARRIED California couple, with lots of love and security, wish to adopt a white baby up to age two. All expenses paid. Totally legal. Please call Jeanie collect. (213)278-6161. Thank you.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.



Bloom County

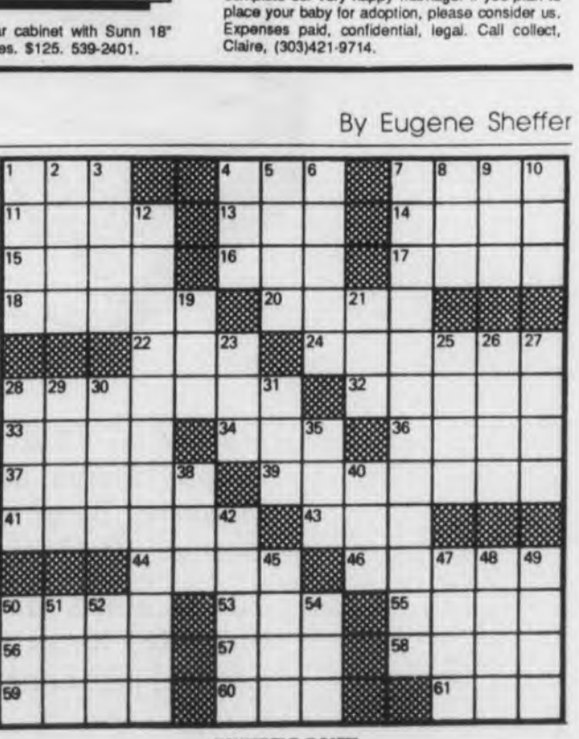
By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz



Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Comic Bill, for short
4 Cow's stomach
7 Actor Milo O'—
11 Iowa college town
13 "How was — know?"
14 "High —" (movie)
15 Token
16 Irish sea god
17 River in France
18 Small porch
20 Store away
22 "Rug"
24 Hurry
28 Endure excessive heat
32 Role for Valerie Harper
33 Engage
34 Insolent talk
36 Designer Cassini
37 Reserved and cool
39 Degrades
41 Autocrat
43 College cheer
44 Taj Mahal site
46 San Diego player
50 Box
53 Lime follower
55 Laugh loudly
56 Crowd
57 Coral reef
58 Sicilian volcano
59 Sweet potatoes
60 Before
61 McMahon and Sullivan

DOWN
1 "— Timberlane"
2 Neglect
3 Kind of lily
4 Wire measure
5 Sweet, pulpy fruit
6 Mary of comics
7 Rabbit's cousin
8 Biblical mountain
9 Ending for pig
10 Donkey, in Dijon
12 Large cats
19 Theater section
21 Rower
23 Hair styling need
25 Unit of weight in India
26 Paradise
27 Persistent fault-finders
28 Food fish
29 Sly trick
30 Love god
31 To free from
35 Ending for zip or trip
38 London's trademark
40 Plan in detail
42 Vestige
45 Jewish month
47 Be foolishly fond
48 Dancer Sally
49 Epochs
50 Diffident
51 Problem for a princess?
52 Ending for fore or fire
54 Storm center

Solution time: 24 mins.

E	N	D	E	D		A	S	S		O	D	D
M	E	R	L	E		N	I	P		P	O	E
S	T	Y	L	I		D	R	Y	C	E	L	L
		W	A	S	H	E	S		A	R	E	A
P	E	A		T	E	A		B	R	A	D	Y
O	W	L	S		I	N	S	E	T
D	E	L	V	E	D		N	E	E	D	L	E
			E	L	I	T	E		D	R	E	I
A	T	A	L	L		R	E	D		Y	E	N
D	E	B	T		B	A	R	R	E	D
O	R	Y	E	Y	E	D		A	L	O	O	N
E	S	S		A	T	E		M	I	C	R	O
D	E	S		M	A	R		A	S	K	E	W

Yesterday's answer 10-10

CRYPTOQUIP

10-10

O X Q N U B Z P Y B D , G Y V V A N Y K K G X Y D J P A D Y " X J Y U X V B Z P Y O A B V Q P V " ?

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: OUR HUMORLESS MECHANIC AT LOCAL STATION WAS KNOWN AS A CRANKCASE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals W

Bush leading in state political poll

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A new poll published Sunday by the Topeka Capital-Journal showed George Bush widening his lead in Kansas, although his advantage still is within the margin of error in a 500-person sample taken Oct. 3-5.

The latest Kansas Poll also showed nearly one-third of the state's voters had not made up their minds, meaning the race could tighten up if Democrat Michael Dukakis can persuade those who are undecided to vote for him. Dukakis had a narrow lead among independents — 42 percent of whom said they had not made a decision.

The poll also showed that Bush's vice presidential running mate, Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, was a drag on the Republican ticket in this historically GOP-dominated state even before last week's vice presidential debate with Lloyd Bentsen.

And, it revealed all four Kansas congressmen with Nov. 8 opposition continue to hold overwhelming leads over their foes with the election now a month away. Opponents of Jan Meyers, Jim Slattery, Dan Glickman and Bob Whittaker have failed so far to attract more than token support, the poll showed.

Of the 500 persons questioned by telephone by Central Research Corp. of Topeka for the Capital-Journal in the latest sampling, 40 percent said they would vote for Bush if the election had been held early last week, while 31 percent said they would vote for Dukakis. The remaining 29 percent said they weren't sure.

Those figures compared with a Kansas Poll taken Aug. 29-Sept. 7, also a 500-person sample, that showed Bush with a narrow 41-38 lead. Both surveys have a margin of error of plus or minus 6 percentage points, meaning in the latest survey Bush could be ahead by as many as 15 points or behind by 3.

Bush's strengths are in the 1st Congressional District of western Kansas, where he held a 46-31 bulge in the new survey, and in the 3rd District of suburban Kansas City, where his margin was 42-29. Bush also led in the 2nd District of northeast Kansas, 38-25 and in the 4th District of south-central Kansas, 38-34.

Dukakis led only in the 5th District of southeast Kansas, 38-36.

The poll surveyed approximately 100 persons of voting age in each of the state's congressional districts, but they are not necessarily registered to vote, nor were they asked if they intended to vote.

Thirty-five percent identified themselves as Republicans, 30 percent as Democrats and 35 percent as independents. Kansas voters are registered as 41.6 percent Republicans, 28.6 percent Democrats and 29.6 percent independent.

Bush led 75-9 among Republicans, while Dukakis led 61-13 among Democrats and 30-28 among independents. Men supported Bush 47-31 and women 33-32. Bush also led among voters 18 to 29 years old, 53-29, and among those 45-64 by 48-28 and those 65 and older by 31-27. Dukakis led among baby boomers in the 30-44 age range, 39-36.

If Bush is gaining strength in Kansas, the poll suggests it is not due to any help he is getting from his selection of Quayle as his running mate.

In the four congressional races, the latest survey showed Democrat Slattery with a 52-11 advantage over his Republican challenger, Phil Meinhardt, Republican Meyers with a 57-9 bulge over Democrat Lionel Kunst, Democrat Glickman with a 76-12 lead over Republican Lee Thompson, and Republican Whittaker with a 69-14 margin over Democrat John A. Barnes.

A month earlier, the Kansas Poll showed Slattery ahead 60-14, Meyers in front 69-12, Glickman leading 74-16 and Whittaker in front 75-14.

In each instance, the incumbent lost some percentage points to the undecided column in the latest poll.

Cross

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10

national champion Arkansas won the meet with 21 points, with K-State placing fourth behind Southeast Missouri State and Southwest Missouri State.

Junior Roger Koester, running unattached, placed 14th, covering the five-mile course in 25:30. Sophomore Steve Christenson, also unattached, was 17th in 25:36.

"Our men ran well, even though they were tired because we worked hard in practice this week," Capriotti said. "They all ran their fastest times of the season and competed hard. I was really happy with our second group of seven."

Junior Joe Bonneau led the way for the men's team, placing 20th in 25:48.

Tennis

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10

6-1, 6-0; def. Leach, Minnesota 6-3, 6-1.

No. 7: Miste Bitner def. Osterlund, Colorado 6-1, 6-2; lost to Isaac, Texas Tech 7-5, 6-2; lost to Evans, Iowa 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

No. 8: Tracy Parker lost to Mariani, Arkansas 6-0, 6-1; lost to Nichols, Iowa 6-2, 6-0.

WINTERIZATION SPECIAL

TIME TO WINTERIZE

$49.95

All Cars and Light Trucks

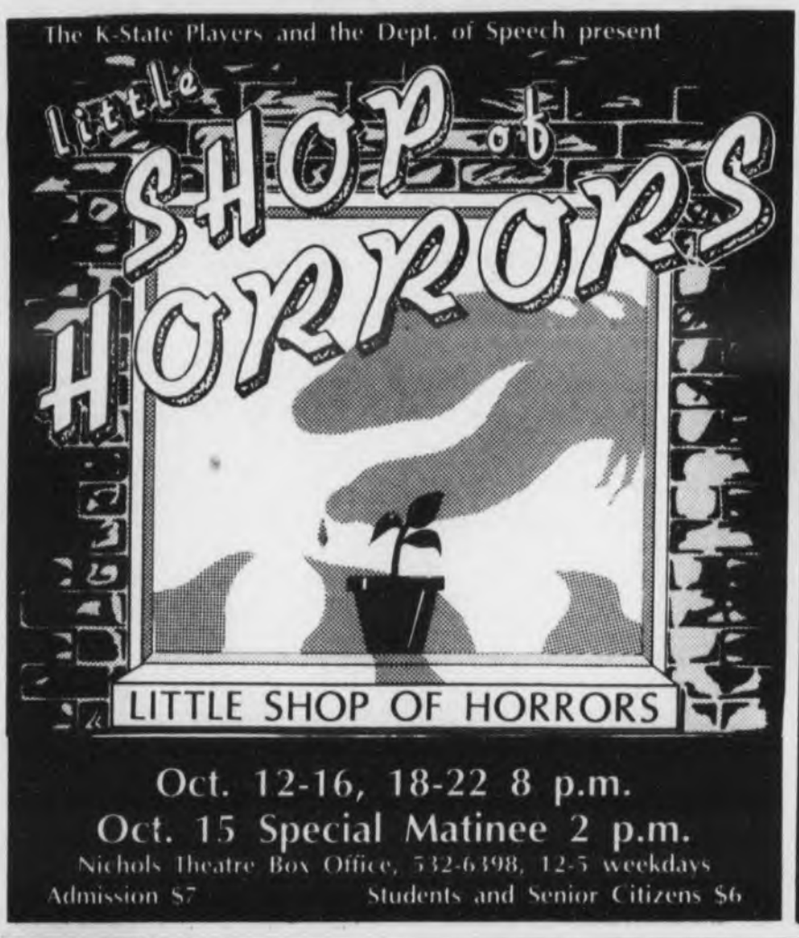
1) Flush Complete Cooling and Heating System
2) Replace with Fresh Anti-Freeze Mixture
3) Test System to 30 Degrees Below Zero
4) Check Heater Water Control Valve
5) Check Heater Control Cables & Blower Motor
6) Check Radiator Hoses & Heater Hoses
7) Check All Drive Belts
8) Replace Windshield Washer Solution/Deicer Solution
9) Check Windshield Washer & Wiper Operation
10) Inspect Windshield Wiper Blades
11) Test Complete System for Proper Operation

PLUS PLUS PLUS PLUS

FREE 2 Westloop Cinema Theatre Tickets with the purchase of a Winterization Special and a copy of this ad.

TOYOTA QUALITY
WHO COULD ASK FOR ANYTHING MORE!

MANHATTAN HONDA
2816 AMHERST
(Seth Childs at Amherst)
MANHATTAN 539-7441



The Wash Palace
3216 Kimball—Candlewood

For Complete Cleaning, Alteration and Repair Service

- Coin Laundry
- On the spot FREE Garment Pressing
- Laundry Drop-off Service
- Professional Dry Cleaning & Alterations
- Drive-up window and door
- Bargain Laundry Center w/large capacity washers
- Complete Shoe and Leather Cleaning and Repair
- Big Screen TV
- Pool Table
- Snacks

Coming soon: The Wash Palace Car Wash
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m. 537-9833

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present

Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

ROAD SCHOLAR

SUPERSPORT™

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN — WITH THE NEW BATTERY-DRIVEN SUPERSPORT™ — TO TAKE YOU FROM COLLEGE TO CAREER.

Small, lightweight, flexible and economical. Ideal for spreadsheets, word processing and more. That's the new SupersPort from Zenith Data Systems — today's leader in battery-operated portables.

FLEXIBLE COURSE SCHEDULE. Whatever your agenda, the SupersPort's modular configuration easily adapts to your computing style. With a detachable battery for easier portability. An AC adapter/recharger that plugs into any outlet. MS-DOS® to run virtually all PC/XT compatible software. And 640K RAM — expandable to 1.64MB with EMS. Plus the SupersPort comes in your choice of dual 3.5" 720K floppy drive or 20MB hard disk models. For flexible desktop performance anywhere on campus.

CARRY SOME GREAT HOURS THIS TERM. Hours of battery power, that is. For greater productivity everywhere your studies take you. Thanks to Zenith's comprehensive Intelligent Power Management — a system that lets you control how your battery power is consumed. So you won't waste valuable energy on components and peripherals not in use.

EASY COLLEGE READING. The easiest. After all, the SupersPort features Zenith's renowned dazzling backlit Supertwist LCD screen for crisp text and superior readability. And its CRT-size display is one-third larger than most competing portables for enhanced viewing. The screen even tilts back 180-degrees so it lies flat to accommodate a desktop monitor.

Dual 3.5" 720K
Floppy Drive Model
Suggested Retail Price: $2,399
Special Student Price: $1,439

20MB Hard Disk Model
Suggested Retail Price: $3,599
Special Student Price: $2,219

TO CATCH THE NEW SUPERSPORT PORTABLE PC AT A SPECIAL PRICE, VISIT YOUR ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CAMPUS OPEN HOUSE;

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCT. 24 & 25
9A.M. to 4 P.M.
CONTACT YOUR LOCAL
STUDENT REPRESENTATIVE
JAN ELSASSER
537-6807 or
THE BOOKSTORE 532-6583

ZENITH data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

PC/XT is a registered trademark of IBM Corp. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp. Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one portable personal computer per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems Form No. 1392

'Gorillas in the Mist'

The story of Dian Fossey and her 23-year struggle to defend gorillas is recreated in the movie "Gorillas in the Mist." See Page 3.

Weather

Sunny but not as warm today, high 65 to 70. Clear tonight, low in the upper 30s. Clear and warmer Wednesday, high 70 to 75.

164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sectin
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
66612

...Challenge events of the ...
lenge. See Page 5.

Tuesday
October 11, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 36

Kansas State
Collegian

Maintenance to cost extra

By Becky Ives
Staff Writer

Maintaining "up-to-date and well-equipped" laboratories at K-State, the University of Kansas and Wichita State University may cost engineering students an extra $10 a credit hour this spring semester.

"This is an absolute necessity for a quality engineering program with up-to-date and well-equipped labs," said Donald Rathbone, dean of the College of Engineering. "We are not getting it done with our present budgeting process."

The money would be used for purchasing equipment and for maintaining existing equipment in the engineering labs. The proposal was brought to the Council of Chief Academic Officers, and is now waiting to be presented to the Council of Presidents at the Board of Regents meetings Oct. 19 and 20.

"I don't want old, out-of-date labs. That is not my game, but that is what will happen if we don't get the support we need."
—Donald Rathbone dean

Rathbone said the fee, which could raise from $300,000 to $400,000 a year, is necessary to maintain up-to-date labs.

"We probably spend close to $300,000 a year on just maintenance," Rathbone said. "That does not even include the purchase of new equipment."

Rathbone said the Department of Engineering spends almost $200,000 a year to maintain its computer hardware and software. The department did not have that expense 10 years ago, and the state has not responded to the new need.

A recent study by the American Society for Engineering Education recommended a program should be allotted $165,000 for equipment per every 40 bachelor of science degrees awarded in engineering. In 1986-87, K-State had 434 engineering students earn degrees, which amounts to $1,736,000 for equipment, based on the ASEE study.

"Support from the state has been sporadic at best," Rathbone said. "Quite frankly, we need an ongoing base to work from. We have tried to get that base from the state since my tenure as dean, and have not been successful. The only alternative is to go to the students.

"I would prefer not to do this. If I had my choice, I would like to get the allocation from the state, but the state feels the students should help to pay for their education," he said.

The three universities are all in the same predicament, Rathbone said.

Some schools in the region have an additional charge of some type for engineering students. In the Big Eight Conference, Iowa State University charges an additional $100 per semester for equipment upkeep. The University of Missouri at Columbia has a $12 per credit hour fee.

The University of Oklahoma has a computer-use charge that ranges from $35 to $70 a semester and Oklahoma State University charges $10 a credit hour, depending on the course.

If the proposal is accepted by the Council of Presidents and the Board of Regents, it could be enacted as early as the spring semester of 1989.

"We can be successful, but we have to maintain quality labs," Rathbone said. "I don't want old, out-of-date labs. That is not my game, but that is what will happen if we don't get the support we need."

Troy Lubbers, student body president and junior in pre-professional business administration, will make a presentation to the board as chairman of the Student Advisory Board. He said he has received negative responses about the increase from students.

"We understand the need to purchase new equipment and to maintain it for the engineering department," Lubbers said. "However, we feel it should be the state's responsibility."

Staff/Greg Vogel

Ghoulish go-go
Mary Ann Locke, senior in finance, takes a study break Monday afternoon and dances with an inflatable skeleton on the roof of her apartment. Locke said she and her friends often dance on the roof.

Students injured in wreck

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

Two K-State students were seriously injured in a head-on collision Monday night two miles west of St. George on Highway 24, according to the Pottawatomie County Sheriff's Office.

The victims, 20-year-old Katherine Elder, senior in finance, and 25-year-old Peggy Crubel, sophomore in pre-professional elementary education, were transported to Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center in Topeka by helicopter, Deputy Robert Baker said.

"The exact cause of the accident is unknown, but both drivers were seriously injured," Baker said. "Right now, it looks like a head-on collision.

"There was a lot of wreckage. She (Elder) was pinned in the wreckage and we had to use the 'Jaws of Life' to pull her out."

Elder was taken from the scene to Stormont-Vail by the Life-Star helicopter then transported to the University of Kansas Medical Center. She suffered extensive fractures in both arms and both legs, according to Stormont-Vail officials.

Elder was alert and able to talk before she left Stormont-Vail, said a hospital spokeswoman.

"All her bones in both arms and legs were broken," she said.

Crubel was transported by Pottawatomie County ambulance to The St. Mary Hospital in Manhattan and then flown by helicopter to Stormont-Vail, said a St. Mary spokeswoman.

Crubel was admitted to intensive care at Stormont-Vail and was reported to be in stable condition, said a Stormont-Vail spokeswoman. Details concerning the extent of Crubel's injuries were unavailable.

Elder was driving a 1980 Toyota Celica and Crubel was driving a 1986 four-door Mercury, Baker said.

The accident is still under investigation.

Commission fails to investigate

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Securities and Exchange Commission has failed to investigate most reports of suspicious foreign trading of U.S. securities, despite a growing number of illegal trades originating from abroad, a House panel said Monday.

A report by the Government Operations Committee said the SEC had actively investigated only 61 of 229 reports from stock exchanges of suspicious foreign trades — mostly those appearing to involve insider trading — in 1986 and 1987.

The report was based on a year-long investigation by the panel's subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs.

The 168 incidents not investigated by the SEC, the subcommittee said, involved 503 foreign individuals, banks or other entities in 25 countries and represented gross potential profits for the foreign investors of at least $38.1 million.

The director of the SEC's enforcement division, Gary G. Lynch, said Monday he had not seen the report's final draft, but that in testimony before the panel last June the commission had taken issue with the way the probe was being conducted.

He said the House subcommittee investigators had underreported the number of SEC staffers working on cases involving foreign purchases and sales of U.S. securities, and that the report was based on an incorrect assumption that all trading activity brought to the SEC's attention automatically warranted a federal investigation.

Lynch said many trades — by domestic and foreign investors alike — are reported to the SEC as "suspicious" because they are executed near the time of a major price move on a securties exchange. Most of these trades, he said, are legitimate.

Besides cases of potential insider trading,

■ See SEC, Page 8

25 more die in Algerian protests

By The Associated Press

ALGIERS, Algeria — Soldiers with machine guns fired on protesters Monday, killing at least 25 people and wounding dozens, witnesses said. President Chadli Bendjedid promised reforms to end the bloody weeklong revolt.

Bendjedid, in a nationwide address Monday night, hinted he would not run for reelection at the end of the year. But he defended his declared state of emergency and said he would "not allow the country to fall into anarchy."

Reliable reports from police, doctors and other sources say up to 300 people have been killed in the riots that began last week, the worst in this North African nation since its independence from France in 1962.

No official casualty figures have been issued.

Monday's shooting occurred in the Bab-el-Oued district of western Algiers during protests against spiraling prices and Bendjedid's economic policies.

"There were bodies laying on all sides," one witness said. "The soldiers were piling them into trucks, one body on top of another."

The witness and others who saw the shooting reported several dozen people wounded, with some of the seriously injured taken away by ambulances.

Army helicopters armed with missiles made repeated passes over Bab-el-Oued at low altitude, apparently trying to frighten the protesters.

The demonstration was organized as a "peaceful protest march" by the Islamic fundamentalist Movement for Algerian Renewal, which has made claims of leading the revolt.

A marcher reported seeing the body of a teen-ager wrapped in a sheet and taken away by friends. Others spoke of at least 25 and perhaps 30 dead.

Trouble began when about 10,000 demonstrators gathered in the Belcourt district for the protest march.

Soldiers fired machine guns into the air to break up the march, which was banned under a state of emergency declared last Thursday. Troopers have orders to shoot demonstrators who refuse to disperse.

■ See ALGERIA, Page 8

K-State campers out to have fun

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

Neither rain nor wind nor behavior problems have kept basketball fans from camping out for season tickets this year. Fan behavior has been even better than the weather, according to campus police officials.

The traditional campout doesn't seem to have any traditional problems, said campus police officer Glenn Brown, who patrols the lawn by Ahearn Field House. Campers are behaving themselves, he said.

"They have been doing real well this year. It's been going good," he said.

There has been trouble with people leaving cars parked in the street between the Union and Ahearn, but that's to be expected, he said.

The campers are on state property, and must obey all state laws and regulations, said campus police Chief Charles Beckom. As long as they obey the law, there won't be any problems, he said.

Alcohol and open fires are prohibited by state law and aren't allowed on the campsite, he said. No arrests or complaints have been made since the campout started.

To stay out of trouble, students toss flying disks, play catch and study.

They also prepare for the long afternoons and especially for the unseasonably cold nights. Campers for the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity said sleeping bags aren't enough to keep warm.

"We have a generator and a lot of blankets," said Mark McCormick, sophomore in business finance.

Fans eager to be first in line for basketball tickets pitched tents Sept. 12, more than a month before the Oct. 14 sale date. A week later, the athletic ticket sales committee told campers to go home because it was too early to start the ticket line.

The committee gave the official signal to restart the campout Wednesday with a purple flag on the Anderson Hall flagpole.

McCormick said this year's shortened campout is an improvement.

"It's ridiculous to camp out for over a month. This new system is better," he said.

Campers for the Kappa Sigma fraternity agreed.

"Camping out would have been a pain after a month. A week and a half isn't bad," said Doug Cramer, freshman in business finance.

The Kappa Sigs had the first tent in the

■ See CAMP, Page 8

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Japanese see Soviet destroyer

TOKYO — A Japanese anti-submarine patrol plane saw two Soviet missile destroyers sailing northward in the Sea of Japan on Monday, indicating the Soviet Pacific Fleet has begun its fall naval exercise, a Defense Agency spokesman said.

The "Udaloy"-class destroyers were seen about 120 miles west of the tip of Shakotan Peninsula on Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island, said Lt. Cmdr. Yutaka Nojima, the agency spokesman.

On Sunday, five Soviet warships were seen by a Japanese patrol plane off nearby Rebun Island, Nojima said.

Last year, the Soviet Union mobilized more than 20 military vessels in its fall exercise, conducted for about a week, he said.

Locust swarms form in Africa

ROME — A new generation of desert locust swarms has been forming throughout the Sahelian countries of Africa and in the Sudan despite intensified control measures, a United Nations agency said Monday.

New swarms are "forming relentlessly" because continuing rain has created favorable breeding conditions, said Edouard Saouma, director-general of the Food and Agriculture Organization.

Up to now, serious damage to crops has been prevented, he added.

The locust invasion in North Africa, described as the region's worst in three decades, began earlier this year.

The FAO also reported that swarms of locusts have reached Gambia and in Cape Verde. Large-scale breeding of the pests was reported in northern Ethiopia.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

New Age fair 'spiritual warfare'

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — About a dozen Christian protesters warned visitors to the Colorado New Age State Fair this weekend that they may be walking a path toward Satan.

An estimated 3,000 people attended the fair sponsored by self-proclaimed psychics, channelers, healers and therapists that was held at City Auditorium.

The Christians, who toted three life-sized wooden crosses, shouted Bible passages and other warnings as the visitors entered the auditorium.

"What we have, in a nutshell, is spiritual warfare," said Rod Eddy, a protester who quoted Bible passages to passers-by.

Several protesters shouted to fair visitors, "Jesus gives you eternal life, and it won't cost you $3," referring to the entry fee.

Authorities, responding to complaints from fair sponsors, warned the sidewalk protesters not to use bullhorns or form a human chain to prevent people from entering the exhibit.

There were no arrests, although tempers on both sides flared at times, said Police Lt. R.C. Cornelison.

Fair sponsor Shanti Todd said, "Nobody here thinks about Satan. It's the Baptists and the satanists who think about Satan. We believe in the power of what we can do in our lifetime."

"They see God as judgment and punishment, but I see God as the creator of the universe. I see God as the spirit in all things."

"I find it (the protests) disrespectful because lots of people are very, very new to all this," said Ken Comfort, owner of Alphalight Publishing of Lawrence, Kan., which had a fair booth.

"We're free to have our own choice. Those people claim to have a better idea of what is right for others. What's going on out there is fear and ignorance," he said.

Protester Jude Bodholdt responded to complaints by saying, "It breaks my heart to see these people turn to something that's not true. It's obvious they're people searching for something."

AIDS protesters prepare

WASHINGTON — About 300 AIDS protesters rallied outside the federal health headquarters building Monday in a warmup for a more intense demonstration planned today in which they will try to block entrances to the Food and Drug Administration headquarters in nearby Rockville, Md.

Leaders of the demonstrations have said they expect hundreds of arrests in what they bill as a civil disobedience action they hope will be the largest since marches on the Pentagon during the Vietnam War.

Monday's rally was outside the vacant Hubert H. Humphrey Building, which houses the Health and Human Services Department. Because it was on a federal holiday, the building was deserted and surrounding streets were nearly vacant.

A small contingent of police watched as a series of speakers ridiculed the Reagan administration for what they said was a criminally inadequate response to AIDS and castigated the news media for not paying enough attention to the disease.

The rally was organized as a mock trial with speaker after speaker reading off a list of "charges" against the administration as a "judge" stood by nodding affirmatively at each count.

"Guilty, guilty, guilty," the crowd chanted as various charges were leveled.

A major focus of the afternoon rally, as well as the demonstration planned today, is to press for wide access to experimental drugs for people suffering from AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Explosion at plant kills 2

SANTA FE SPRINGS, Calif. — A carbon dioxide tank exploded at a plant that makes airplane and rocket parts Monday, killing at least two people and injuring seven others, authorities said.

The explosion at Reinhold Industries, which is about 15 miles southeast of Los Angeles, occurred about 2:30 p.m., as employees were installing a high-pressure molding machine, said Fire Marshal Stan Boettcher. Several carbon dioxide cylinders were beside the building, and one or more may have been hooked up to the machine, he said.

The blast caused telephone and electrical outages, said Sheriff's Sgt. Thomas Heller.

The explosion of the colorless, odorless gas did not result in a fire or further chemical leaks, he said.

"One portion of the building was totally demolished where the equipment went through part of the roof," said Boettcher.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Kansans qualify for rich list

TOPEKA — The new list of the 400 richest people in the United States features four Kansans, including one billionaire, according to Forbes Magazine's "Forbes 400," which was released Monday evening.

The richest man in Kansas, with an estimated net worth of $1.1 billion, was Charles de Ganahl Koch of Wichita. Koch inherited his fortune, via Koch Industries, an oil, gas and refining company.

His three brothers also made the list but do not live in Kansas.

Koch is one of 51 billionaires on the list, and listed the same net worth as August A. Busch Jr., the St. Louis beer baron.

Ewing M. Kauffman, the founder of Marion Laboratories and part owner of the Kansas City Royals, had net worth of $740 million. Although his company is located in Missouri, he lives in Mission Hills, Kan.

Donald Joyce Hall made his millions, an estimated $560 million, through Hallmark Cards. One of his sisters, Barbara Hall Marshall, with an estimated net worth of $285 million, calls Kansas City, Mo., home. Another sister, Elizabeth A. Hall Reid, has net worth of $285 million and lives in Denton, Texas.

The fourth Kansas member of the "Forbes 400" is Miller Nichols, of Prairie Village. He made his estimated $300 million through real estate, including developing the Country Club Plaza in Kansas City, Mo.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

TUESDAY

AGRICULTURAL COMMUNICATORS of Tomorrow will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 203.

CAREER PLANNING and Placement will be showing video tapes at 3:30 p.m. in Holtz 107B on interview preparation and follow-up.

WHEAT STATE AGRONOMY Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 313.

AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room. Pictures will follow meeting.

CHRISTIAN ACTION will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Derby Conference Room.

WOMEN OVER 50 Support Group will meet from noon to 1 p.m. in Union 202.

CIRCLE K INTERNATIONAL will meet at 8:45 p.m. in Union 205.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 213. Pictures will follow meeting.

RESEARCH AND SPONSORED Programs will have a seminar at 3:30 p.m. in Denison 224 for faculty members preparing their first proposal.

GERMAN TABLE will meet at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS Returning to School will meet for peer counseling from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

PRESERVATION SOCIETY will meet from 3 to 4 p.m. in Union 207.

ASSOCIATION FOR COMPUTING Machinery will meet at 4 p.m. in Nichols 122. The topic is "Communications Interfacing for Transmitting Information Using High-Speed Modems."

MORTAR BOARD will meet at 9:30 p.m. in Justin.

BAKERY SCIENCE Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Shellenberger 301.

PHI THETA KAPPA Alumni Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 205.

ORDER OF OMEGA will meet at 6:15 p.m. in Union Council Chambers.

SPURS Sophomore Honorary will meet at 9 p.m. in Union 206.

HORSEMAN'S ASSOCATION will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Weber 146 for yearbook pictures.

K-STATE POLICE

Sunday

■ The theft of a gold necklace valued at less than $500 from Moore 430 was reported.

■ A two-vehicle, non-injury accident occurred on Petticoat Lane. Damage was estimated at more than $500.

■ A woman reported that unknown suspect or suspects damaged her 1980 Mercury while it was parked in lot D-3. Damage was more than $150.

■ Criminal damage to two windows in the men's room in the west wing of Seaton Hall was reported.

Monday

■ A faculty/staff parking permit was reported lost off campus.

■ The theft of a phone from Bluemont Hall was reported.

■ A wallet and contents worth $71 was reported stolen at Farrell Library.

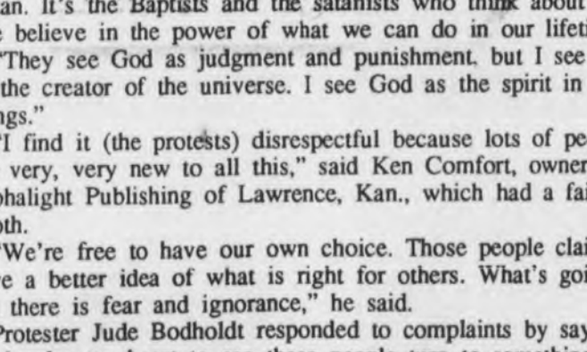
■ A student parking permit was reported destroyed in a car fire off campus.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Leadership workshop canceled

The first of a series of all-campus leadership workshops scheduled to begin today has been postponed. The workshop, "Conducting An Effective Meeting," has been rescheduled for Oct. 18, from 4 to 5 p.m., in Bluemont 122.

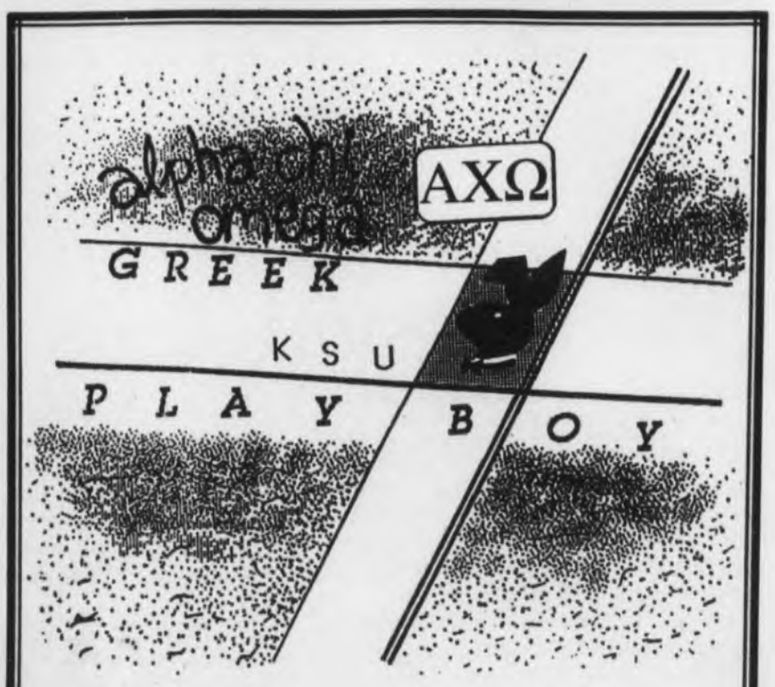
The workshop was subtitled "Why Am I Always Alone In My Struggle To Have My Own Way?" and had been scheduled from 4 to 5 p.m. in Union 206.



The series of workshops, sponsored by the dean of Student Life Offices, was started in order to address the need for an expanded comprehensive leadership development program. Future workshops will be on Tuesdays throughout the fall and spring semesters.

Some of the topics for future workshops are "Time and Stress Management," "Listening and Communicating Effectively," "Effective Committee Work and Delegation," "Creative Leadership," "Assertiveness," "Motivation" and "Women/Minorities as Leaders."

BUSHWACKERS
• THE • FUNDRINKERY



Comedy Invasion
Every Mon. & Tues. at 9:00
TONIGHT
Russ T. Nails
along w/ Mark Cordes
Grill Special—Steak & Shrimp
$3.95
5 to 9
*Reservations recommended but not necessary
539-4321 531 N. Manhattan 539-9727

BLUE MOON WATERBEDS
"...For the Rest of Your Life"
EMERGENCY
Just Married
Must Raise Cash Fast!
No Reasonable Offer Refused
217 S. 4th Manhattan 776-0716

ΓΦΒ vs. ΑΔΠ
Annual TKE Powder Puff CHAMPIONSHIP
8 p.m., Tues., Oct. 11 at Griffith Park
Everyone Invited
Sponsored by KTE's, Power FM 94.5, Falsetto's 539-3830

Live from Manhattan, Collegetown, U.S.A., Heartbreak City . . . it's . . .
Late Night with Campus Crusade
featuring:
Dave Robinson
"Relating the Real You"
Discover your personality type and what famous people are like you also featuring:
David Letterman and his silly sidekick Paul
Tuesday Oct. 11, 10 p.m.
Kappa Delta Sorority

SOUTHERN SUN THE TANNING SALON
POWER FM 94.5
Voting in the Union
October 11, 12, 13
Bills and Silver Coins—Positive
Pennies—Negative
Vote for your favorite candidate
Proceeds go to the Alpha Chi Omega Foundation which supports Cystic Fibrosis

Grant provides training of cancer researchers

By Rich Broadfoot
Staff Writer

A program to train and recruit cancer researchers at K-State, the University of Kansas and the University of Kansas Medical Center has been made possible by a $1.8 million grant provided by the Wesley Foundation of Wichita.

The program, which required more than a year to plan, was the brainchild of Jane Henry, associate vice chancellor of KU Med Center, and Terry Johnson, director of the K-State Division of Biology and Center for Basic Cancer Research.

"It is unique to have a cooperative program of this magnitude at institutions that are, in a sense, competing for the same students and research money," Johnson said.

The program is designed to train post-doctoral fellows, called Wesley Foundation Scholars, in several areas of basic and clinical cancer research.

At K-State's Center for Basic Cancer Research, the Wesley Foundation Scholars will be trained to specialize in areas of molecular biology and cell-growth regulation. At KU and KU Med Center, trainees will specialize in anti-cancer drug resistance and tumor immunology.

"I enjoy the life here and also the laboratory."
—Jean-Jacques Diaz
Wesley Scholar

"An advantage of this kind of program is that trainees in different areas of research get to know each other. The scientists working in basic laboratory research get to interact with those doing clinical research, and this gives them each a perspective they couldn't get otherwise," said Donald Roufa, professor of biology and coordinator of the Wesley Foundation Scholar program at K-State.

The primary goals of the program are to attract the best young scientists to Kansas and to foster intercampus relations among the three campuses, Roufa said.

Senior cancer researchers with proven records in extra-institutionally funded research were selected to take part in the program. These researchers were then given the opportunity to select about 30 Wesley Foundation Scholars from nearly 100 applicants.

The researchers working with and training the Wesley Scholars selected the trainees. This ensures that only the best applicants were accepted, Johnson said.

The program was advertised internationally, and the 13 Wesley Foundation Scholars who will be trained at K-State include individuals from across the United States, as well as Japan, China, France, England, Africa and India.

Jean-Jacques Diaz of Leon, France, is one of the Wesley Scholars at K-State.

"I enjoy the life here and also the laboratory," Diaz said. "The community seems very close and it is very quiet."

The Wesley Foundation is a non-profit organization working to develop programs to improve health and well-being. It is one of the largest health-related funding organizations in the United States.

Fight for gorillas brought to life with convincing screen portrayal

By Brad Atchison
Collegian Reviewer

"I want to know who I am and what it was that made me that way" — Dr. Louis Leakey.

In 1965, Dian Fossey was a physical therapist in Kentucky.

In 1966, Fossey was a primatologist doing field research in the mountainous Central African country of Rwanda.

Film Review

Talk about a drastic career move.

"Gorillas in the Mist" is a biographical film based on the research diaries of the mysterious Fossey, who committed 23 years to the study of gorillas in the Virunga Mountains of Rwanda.

Fossey collected priceless scientific data about the ways of the mountain gorilla. Research, however, took a back seat to her ongoing fight against poachers and zoo trappers.

"Gorillas in the Mist" focuses on her fight for the survival of the mountain gorilla, and what a fight it was.

Fossey's defense probably saved this endangered species from extinction. But, in the fight, she made enemies who are thought to have been involved in her murder in 1985.

Sigourney Weaver plays the part of Fossey. In her performance, Weaver brings Fossey and the fight for her gorillas back to life.

From the first moments in the misty mountains of Central Africa to the concluding scenes, Weaver's portrayal is totally convincing.

She seems to relive Fossey's pain, anger, love and frustration.

The most dynamic component of this film is the magnificent cinematography.

"Gorillas in the Mist" was filmed on location in Rwanda with the same mountain gorillas that Fossey had researched.

It didn't hit me right away, but not far along in the movie I realized, "Hey, those are real gorillas climbing all over Sigourney Weaver."

This interaction gave the "in the field" scenes the suprisingly realistic flavor of documentary footage.

During the course of the film, Fossey criticizes National Geographic for focusing on herself, rather than on the gorillas.

If Fossey was alive to see this biography, I believe she would voice the same complaint.

Several times in the course of the film, Michael Apted, director, allows the focus of the movie to shift away from Fossey's work and toward fluffy, prime-time drama.

A half-baked love story and hollow secondary characters are out of place in this otherwise very realistic film.

"Gorillas in the Mist" is a unique film which presents an insightful look into the life of Fossey, and the misty, mysterious world of the mountain gorilla.

Candidates to speak in bipartisan forum

By Amy Lyons
Collegian Reporter

Undecided voters will be offered an opportunity to "Meet the Candidates" in a forum at 7 tonight in the Union Little Theatre.

Sponsored by the K-State Young Democrats, the forum will allow 10 local candidates the opportunity to discuss their views on issues with students and faculty members.

"It will be a bipartisan forum," said Rob Brown, president of K-State Young Democrats and sophomore in political science."

The format allows each candidate five minutes at the podium, Brown said. A reception in Union 212 will follow the forum.

"We'd like students to be more aware of the issues and the candidates," Brown said. "We hope everyone will stick around to meet the candidates."

Voter registration information will be available.

Brown said participants will include 2nd District U.S. Congressional candidate Phil Meinhardt and Tony Housch, representing Jim Slattery; 22nd District State Senate candidates Lana Oleen and Rod Olsen; 66th District Kansas House candidate Katha Hurt; 67th District Kansas House candidate Sheila Hochhauser; Riley County Attorney nominees John Taylor and Bill Kennedy; and Riley County Commission candidates Les Frazier and Dick Jepsen.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

The Chef "Rib-It" TONIGHT 111 S. 4th BAR-B-Q RIBS

QUALITY NATURAL FOODS
from your local co-op store
811 Colorado
539-4811
People's Grocery Cooperative

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

joli styling salon 539-1177
1106 Laramie
Aggieville
GRAND OPENING
$10 off perms
$12 off perm and cut
$2 off French Manicure
prices effective Oct. 10-15
REGISTER TO WIN
haircuts
1 perm
manicures
tanning sessions
Walk-ins always welcome

The Station
T.N.T.
(TACOS 'N TEQUILA)
TUESDAY'S TRADITION LIVES ON!

since 1885 when this picture of aggieville was taken, the station's T.N.T. tuesday has been a manhattan tradition.
well almost.

Those famous freshly prepared crisp flour shells with homemade salsa, fresh tomatoes, lettuce and mounds of cheese
• 99¢ TACOS 3 for $2.75
• 1/2 PRICE MARGARITAS
• $2.50 NEW ULTIMATE MARGARITAS
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

SELECTING YOUR MOVIES CAN BE ENJOYABLE WHEN YOU VISIT THE RELAXING ATMOSPHERE OF HOME CINEMA.
Easy viewing of title selection
Hours: Mon.-Thur. Noon-9 p.m. Fri. Noon-10 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m.-10 p.m., Sun. Noon-7 p.m.
Village Plaza Shopping Center
Behind Alco
537-1115

COSTUME ALLEY
OPENS OCT. 15
Now located next to Brothers & upstairs
Lots of things to dress up in!

ESTABLISHED 1920
THE Stevensons CLOTHING COMPANY
INVITES YOU TO OUR FALL OPEN HOUSE!
NEW LOOK - The 60-year old tradition of Stevensons has a fresh approach to menswear with a newly remodeled store
NEW OWNER - Stevensons mens and ladies stores are both under new management
NEW MERCHANDISE - Both Stevensons stores are featuring beautiful new fall and winter items, new labels as well as favorite designers
plus a NEW SHOE STORE - Foley's in Westloop - the only mens and ladies shoe store on the west side of Manhattan
REGISTER TO WIN
One of 10 $100.00 Certificates
Totaling $1,000.00
Good At Stevensons Men's and Ladies and Foley's Shoes
Now Through Saturday
STOP BY LOOK US OVER
AND ENJOY SOME REFRESHMENT
1342 WESTLOOP PLACE • WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
MANHATTAN, KANSAS (913) 539-8081

BROTHERS in Aggieville
CLASSIC ROCK NIGHT
Join us tonight for $2 Wells and CLASSIC ROCK by the Beatles, Beach Boys, Led Zepplin, The Doors, Rolling Stones & more

Trivia questions with prizes from The Sound Shop and Brothers for those of you who know your rock-n-roll.
1120 Moro—Aggieville 537-9511

Human rights group goes popularity seeking

Commentary

MARK SCHMELLER
Collegian Columnist

On paper, the world is getting to be nastier place to live in.

In its new report last week, human rights group Amnesty International listed more nations in violation of the U.N. Universal Declaration of Human Rights than it ever has in its 27-year history. More than 135 nations, including the United States, were listed, and the crimes run along the lines of torture, execution, poor conditions for prisoners, and the jailing of prisoners of conscience, that is, people whose only crime is speaking their minds. Some 80 countries, ranging from the obvious (the Soviet Union) to the not-so-obvious (those in Western Europe) hold prisoners of conscience. Little ol' Uganda alone has some 4,000 prisoners of conscience.

Despite the grim numbers, Amnesty was encouraged by the emergence of some 1,000 active human-rights groups worldwide. Moreover, Amnesty was pleased to note that "more than ever in world history, governments are exposed to the glare of international publicity — the greatest weapon we have."

Amnesty was probably referring in large part to its current Human Rights Now concert tour, a worldwide extravaganza starring Peter Gabriel, Sting, Bruce Springsteen, Tracy Chapman and a Senegaleese singer by the name of Youssou N'Dour. Tickets go for about $35 each in the United States and Europe, mostly to help cover lower admissions in the numerous Third World countries where the tour will stop.

Tour organizers readily admit that the purpose of the tour is not to raise funds, but to raise consciousness about human rights. The tour may even lose money, which is why the yuppie shoe company Reebok has pitched in $10 million. An executive for Reebok explained that the tour "dovetailed with our corporate philosophy." As if Nike and Adidas supported oppression.

Details aside, I suppose the tour is a pretty good idea. As opposed to many recent pop-charity causes, Amnesty's causes are more specific. They deal with specific individuals, and members engage in letter-writing campaigns to free them. The process has yielded real, tangible results, using public pressure as a means of freeing prisoners of conscience and protecting the rights of other political prisoners.

Furthermore, it is heartening to see something of substance reach the public's eyes and ears during a campaign year filled with empty symbolism and transparent media-stroking. When a bunch of rock stars can appear more intelligent, sincere and concerned about their world than anything the Republicans or Democrats can offer, you know there is something afoul.

But this is not to say that Sting should be president, because for all its well-meant intentions and deeds, there are some troubling aspects concerning the Human Rights Now tour.

For one, the notion of an organization like Amnesty seeking mass approval through celebrity endorsement and corporate sponsorship seems to run contrary to what the organization was originally about. Amnesty was respected as a small group of knowledgeable and dedicated individuals, winning the Nobel Peace Prize in 1977. The members' actions spoke for themselves. Amnesty didn't need rock musicians to speak for them or to remind its members who Stephen Biko was.

Now that Amnesty has chosen to court mass popularity, it has enlisted the services of the pop music intelligentsia and reduced its ideas to stadium-rock sloganeering. Indeed, the crucial issue of human rights is now taking the same approach that made "Save the whales," "No nukes" and "Legalize pot" into laughable hippie slogans.

Fans can sign up for Amnesty membership at the concerts, but one wonders whether the memberships are more akin to souvenirs than ideological commitments. Such doubts can only lessen the perceived force of belief behind the work of members, as cynics will be justified in asking if the name on the letter or petition belongs to a lifelong advocate of human rights or some yuppie temporarily overcome with grief and guilt during the Tracy Chapman set.

Even more troubling is that pop stars like Sting and Peter Gabriel have become overnight spokesmen for the most important rights advocacy group in the world. In a world where government figures are criticized for belonging to organizations like the American Civil Liberties Union, celebrities seem to take it upon themselves to take "controversial" positions.

This wouldn't be so bad if I didn't have such a hard time believing the depth of their sincerity or intelligence. When Peter Gabriel takes the stump for Amnesty and announces that the issues of homelessness and poverty should be added to the list of human rights violations, his heart is in the right place, but he doesn't understand that Amnesty has built its reputation upon the defense of political rights, not economic ones. Maybe Gabriel just wants to be your sledgehammer.

Sting is perhaps the most appalling self-proclaimed intellectual of the touring group, a man who wears non-prescription tortoise-shell glasses and characterizes his sexual appeal as being "literary. Like being ----ed by a college professor." One has a hard time believing him when he sings "We can live here and be happy with less" after pulling in $6 million in record sales over the last few years. In fact, I have a hard time believing anything he says.

But perhaps the most telling characteristic of the Amnesty tour's pseudointellectuality is a bit of advice folk singer Tracy Chapman's manager gave her. He told her, in so many words, to remain quiet between songs. The idea being that anything Chapman says might be too politically specific and offend her mostly white-yuppie audience. Thus, when she sings "Poor people gonna rise up/and get their share," she makes sure to avoid mentioning from where that share might come (i.e. the salaries of audience members).

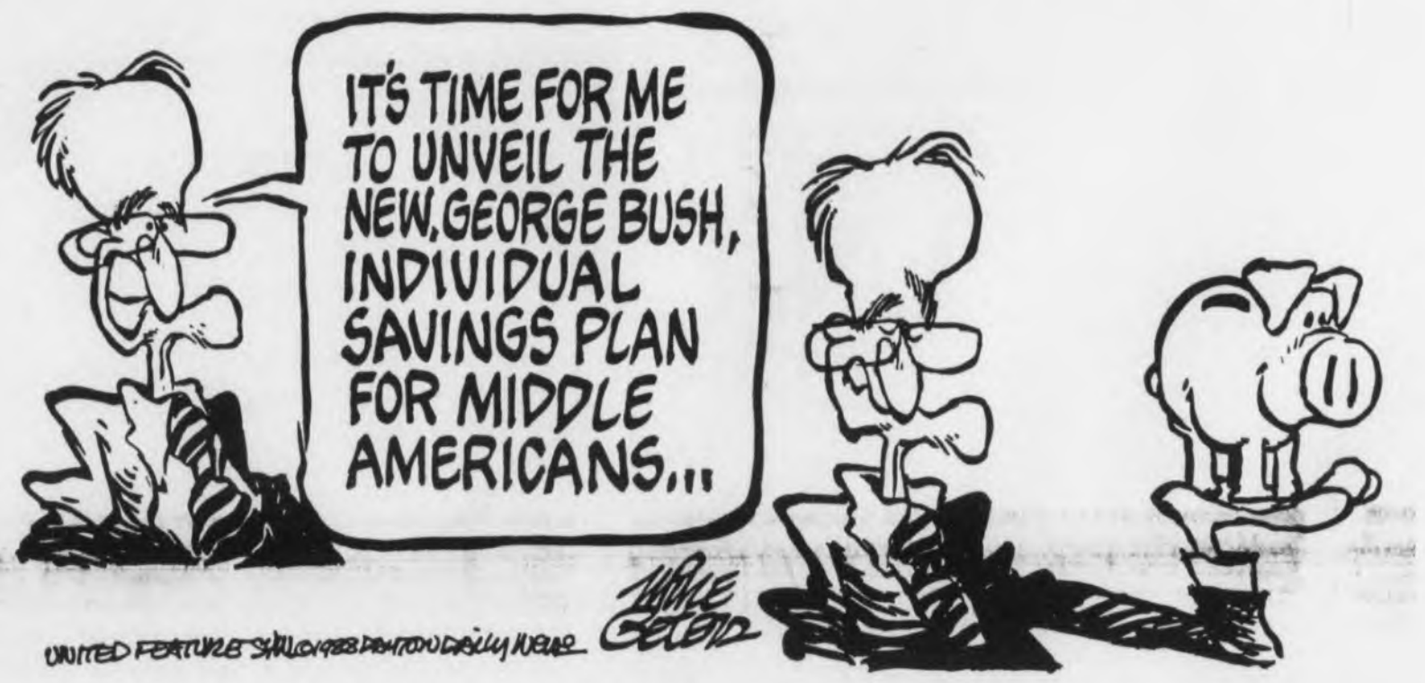
Amnesty seems to be heading down this same road in its quest for pop-culture status. While this may be helpful in raising consciousness of human rights violations around the world, one wonders whether it might not detract from the bite of Amnesty's message and the influence of its actions.

Bush campaign bases morals on popularity

It has taken a while for Republican presidential candidate George Bush to figure out the abortion thing.

Back in 1980, when he was campaigning for the Republican nomination against Ronald Reagan, Bush was pro-abortion, even favoring federal funding in some instances. By 1984, he had adopted the pro-life stance of Reagan.

During the first presidential debate, Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis made the quite obvious point that Bush's support of a constitutional amendment making abortions illegal would lead to the punishment of women who receive abortions. Bush seemed rather surprised by this idea, and admitted that he hadn't "sorted out" the issue of punishment.



How strange it is that Bush, who claims to be tough on crime, had to be reminded by his "soft-on-crime" opponent that when you make something a crime, you have to punish the guilty. Furthermore, he had failed to realize that if one defines abortion as murder, and then calls for the death penalty for all murderers, it would mean the death penalty for those who contract for an abortion or execute one.

If someone believes as much in stopping abortion and punishing crime as Bush says he does, such a position could be easily defended. But someone in the Bush camp, most likely Bush himself, figured out that such an extreme position might not sit well with voters, especially women voters.

Therefore, Bush underwent a profound, overnight philosophical synthesis and announced that only the doctor should be punished, not the woman, who should be treated with "help and love."

Bush's flip-flop on abortion is offensive to both sides of the issue because he wants to have it both ways. He wants abortion to be a crime, but he doesn't want to punish it. Moreover, if only doctors are punished for abortion, then self-performed, back-alley abortions will remain unpunished and, no doubt, become more prominent. So much for Bush's "kinder nation."

Perhaps even more offensive is that on moral issues like abortion, Bush has no moral or ideological beacon to guide him outside of his naked ambition for public office and foolish desire to pander to all viewpoints.

Government by, for students

Opportunity for involvement abounds

Commentary

TROY LUBBERS
Guest Columnist

Margin of Excellence. Financial aid. Holton Hall. Child care. Athletic ticket sales and seating. All of these issues and many more have affected our lives here at K-State in the past year. Were you aware of these issues? Are you tired of not knowing what is happening around campus? Do you feel like you have leadership skills that are not being used? Shouldn't you be doing more to better — not only yourself — but your University? If the answer is "yes" to any of these, I've got a solution for you. Check out the exciting world of student government.

Throughout the past year, members of the Student Governing Association have worked hard to better K-State. With extensive lobbying efforts at the state level, we were a major force in obtaining increased faculty salaries and increased financial aid. On the local campus level, we have seen the dedication of Fred Bramlage Coliseum and the renovation of Holton Hall, both important contributions of past and current student leadership. It is this type of involvement and these types of projects that make our SGA one of the most effective in the region.

By now you're wondering how you can become involved in SGA and gain not only self-confidence, but also valuable leadership and communication skills. As the old saying goes, "There's no time like the present." Election time is near and now is the time to get motivated. I encourage anyone who is interested in running for either student body president or Student Senate to go to the SGA office, first floor of the Union, and obtain all the information needed for the campaign. The registration deadline for candidates is Oct. 18.

Student senators are elected by colleges and the number allocated to each college is based on enrollment. Senators are required to attend Senate meetings every Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room. Senators also serve one office hour per week and work on one of six standing committees throughout the year. Each senator is eligible to receive two credit hours per semester.

If being a senator doesn't sound appealing, or if you fail to get elected to an office, there are still many other ways to become involved in SGA. Following the elections, interested students can apply to serve on either the judicial, legislative or executive branch of student government.

The judicial branch offers five areas in which to get involved. The judicial council is an example of a position offered in this area of government. The council exercises general supervisory power over the student judicial systems in matters of court administration and procedures, and serves as an advisory body to the Student Senate on matters of judicial policy.

The legislative branch covers, as I mentioned, six standing committees. While senators do serve on these committees, students-at-large are also appointed. The committees cover a broad range of interests, from finance to academic affairs. Being a Student Senate intern is another way to become involved. This group provides assistance to senators in areas of research and other activities. They are also assigned to one of the standing committees. The interns are eligible to receive one hour of credit per semester.

Finally, the executive branch offers many opportunities. Not only will the next student body president appoint students to more than 30 different committees, he or she will also appoint a cabinet. Positions like attorney general, chief of staff, and publicity director make up the cabinet, which is composed of eight or more people.

As you can see, SGA is a broad, diverse group that works in many ways to better both our University and our students. If any of these positions sound enticing, or if you would like to find out more about SGA, there will be an SGA workshop Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room. I encourage you to attend this workshop, then stick around for the weekly Senate meeting. Take this opportunity to expand your horizons and gain the most out of your college career.

Editor's Note: Troy Lubbers, junior in preprofessional business administration, is K-State's student body president.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

Letters

Sheikh columns

Editor,

I always enjoy reading the columnists on your editorial page. When Faisal Razzaq's picture appears with his column, I know I am in for a stimulating and thought provoking few minutes of reading. However, one word — Sheikh — has puzzled me throughout the year. The new campus directory does not indicate that Sheikh is your columnist's first name. I must presume it is a courtesy title — the only one I ever see on a Collegian byline.

That sent me to Webster's New World Dictionary for definitions of sheikh: "1. The chief of an Arab family, tribe or village. 2. an official in the Moslem religious organization, 3. a masterful man to whom women are irresistably attracted."

If your columnist fits either of the first two definitions, I for one would like to see you include parallel titles from other cultures: Grandfather, Chief, Deacon, etc.

If your columnist fits the third definition, then I think it only fair that you also make your bylines read Sheikh Mark Schmeller, Sheikh Tom Perrin, Sheikh David Svoboda and Sheikh Dwayne Lively. I have spoken to a number of women on campus and they are equally divided as to which one they are most attracted to.

Harry Marsh
professor of journalism
and mass communications

ROTC students experience challenge

Ranger competition tests cadets' physical abilities

Whether it was for glory, pain or revenge, three groups of ROTC students gathered in Manhattan Saturday morning to put their bodies through a test.

"It is a challenge — that's why they call it Ranger Challenge," said Thaniel Monaco, team member and freshman in engineering.

The challenge was met by ROTC Ranger squads from Emporia State University, the University of Kansas and K-State.

To chants of "No pain" and "You're a Ranger now," the squads competed in physical training, the grenade toss, a one-rope bridge and a 10-mile march.

"This helps us individually as cadets," said Dane Childs, team captain and junior in history. "But other than that, I don't know why we put ourselves through this."

The physical training portion of the test, which was in Memorial Stadium, consisted of sit-ups, push-ups and a two-mile run. The other portions were at Tuttle Creek Reservoir. Scores were totaled for each individual and the top eight scores were averaged for a team total.

"It's a good competition and helps the cadets learn additional training," said Sgt. Bruce Marvin, K-State's team coach and military science instructor.

Only two members of K-State's 10-member team competed last year.

"They'll gain a lot of self-confidence and will enhance their skills," Marvin said. "In the long run, (their participation is) taken into consideration when rating their potential before they graduate."

Cadets from the ROTC program volunteered for the team and began training individually about six weeks ago, Childs said. Team practices, which started about two weeks ago, included a run each day at 6 a.m.

"This competition is a barometer of how far we've come and (what events) we need to work on. To be a Ranger is to be a little bit extra. We do consider ourselves to be somewhat elite, but that's because we put in the extra work."

—Mike McFann
Kansas ROTC cadet

"We must be masochists to do this," said John Highfill, team member and freshman in engineering.

Marvin said the competition will be used as preparation for the Brigade competition Oct. 28 in Fort Sills, Okla. The top four teams from the Brigade will compete in the regional competition at Fort Riley.

Mike McFann, KU's team captain and senior in personnel administration, said the Challenge gives the squads a measure of readiness.

"This competition is a barometer of how far we've come and (what events) we need to work on," McFann said.

"To be a Ranger is to be a little bit extra. We do consider ourselves to be somewhat elite, but that's because we put in the extra work," he added.

Monaco said he joined the Rangers to get a head start on his training.

"You're trained a lot quicker and it's of a higher quality," he said. "You get ahead of the rest. But it's tough right now."

Michael Byerley, Emporia's team captain and senior in history, said being a Ranger "meant being the best."

"Five days a week we run seven to eight (miles) and practice two hours, three days a week. It's intense, definitely intense," he said.

KU, McFann said, was back to avenge last year's loss to Emporia by one point.

"We're after what you could call revenge," he said. "There is definitely a state rivalry."

But KU's revenge was not to be. Emporia won the event, KU placed second and K-State was third.

"Of course, I'd like to come out on top, but it's the practice that matters," Marvin said.

ROTC cadet Richard Keist tosses a dummy grenade at a target. The competition was among ROTC teams from K-State, Emporia State University and the University of Kansas.

ABOVE: ROTC cadet John Highfill strains to do a push-up during a portion of the Ranger Challenge Saturday morning. RIGHT: ROTC cadet James Marbut collapses after finishing the two-mile run.

Story by Janet Swanson

Photos by Greg Vogel

Sports Briefly

Rugby teams win matches

K-State's rugby teams won two games Sunday at Swope Park in Kansas City, Mo. In the club side game, K-State defeated Johnson County, 6-4. And in the college side match, K-State blanked Central Missouri State, 16-0.

K-State, 6-2-1 overall, plays this weekend in the Heart of America tournament at Swope Park. The team opens play Saturday morning against Topeka.

Chiefs' game a sellout

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Next Sunday's game with the Los Angeles Raiders is a sellout, the Kansas City Chiefs announced Monday.

The game, which starts at noon in Arrowhead Stadium, could mark the first appearance of Bo Jackson, Kansas City Royals' baseball star, in his second National Football League season.

The Chiefs announced that they had 2,000 standing-room-only tickets to sell for Sunday's game.

LA takes lead in playoffs

NEW YORK — Rick Dempsey hit a two-run double in the fourth inning and Kirk Gibson hit a three-run homer in the fifth Monday, leading the Dodgers to a 7-4 victory over the New York Mets and giving Los Angeles a 3-2 lead in the National League playoffs.

The Dodgers, who beat the Mets only once in 11 games during the regular season, moved to within a game of their first pennant in seven years. The loss moved New York to the brink of its first playoff series loss after four East Division titles.

Miami remains atop football poll

Big Eight has 3 representatives in Top 20

By The Associated Press

Indiana's Hoosiers, ranked in The Associated Press college football poll for the first time this season, welcome the national exposure but can't forget the years of struggle it took to get it, Coach Bill Mallory said Monday.

Indiana, improving each year since Mallory's winless rookie season in 1984, earned the No. 18 ranking Monday after a 41-7 victory over Ohio State.

Miami, UCLA and Southern California remained the top three teams, while Notre Dame moved from fifth to fourth. The Irish replaced Auburn, which fell eight spots to 12th after a 7-6 loss to Louisiana State.

LSU, 3-2 and ranked 19th after a one-week absence from the poll, was the only other newcomer besides Indiana voted into this week's Top Twenty.

"The way I look at it, it's good exposure. It's important, but the big thing is we have our minds on the job each week, and the poll will take care of itself," said Mallory, whose Hoosiers are 4-0-1.

Indiana is 2-0 in the Big Ten Conference and tied with No. 15 Michigan and unranked Illinois for first place.

The only blemish on Indiana's record is a 28-28 tie with Missouri.

"It's good, but it boils down to what we do on Saturday, and that's where our focus of attention is," Mallory said of the national ranking.

It's also important, he said, that his players remember it wasn't long ago that the football program was at rock bottom, when Mallory succeeded Sam Wyche and became the third Indiana coach in three seasons. Mallory inherited a five-game losing streak and lost all 11 games in 1984 before the turnaround began. The Hoosiers were 4-7 in 1985, 6-6 in 1986 and 8-4 last year.

"You never forget where you've come from and how you got where you are," Mallory said. "You have to remind the younger players, too, who haven't gone through the things these other players have to be aware of what's gone into putting this program where it is today.

"Never allow that attitude of complacency to sit in. That'll cut your throat quicker than anything."

Since the start of the 1987 season, Indiana's 12-4-1 record is the best among all Big Ten teams, and the Hoosiers no longer are sneaking up on their opponents, Mallory said.

"I know the teams we play aren't surprised any more," he said. "They're all cranking up for us on the field. As we go along, people will begin to realize this."

Miami did not play over the weekend and held onto first place for the sixth week in a row. The Hurricanes received 52 of 56 first-place votes and 1,115 of a possible 1,020 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

UCLA remained No. 2 for the fifth week in a row by beating Oregon State 38-21. The Bruins received one first-place vote and 1,051 points.

Southern Cal, which had the remaining three first-place votes and 1,012 points, was third for the third straight week following a 42-14 victory over Oregon. The loss dropped the Ducks out of the Top 20 from the No. 18 spot.

The only other dropout was Alabama, 12th last week but a 22-12 loser to Mississippi.

Notre Dame, a 30-20 winner over Pittsburgh, took over the fourth spot with 932 points.

1.	Miami (52)	4-0-0	1,115	1	15. Michigan	3-2-0	298	17
2.	UCLA (1)	5-0-0	1,051	2	16. Washington	4-1-0	257	19
3.	USC (3)	5-0-0	1,012	3	17. Arkansas	5-0-0	239	20
4.	Notre Dame	5-0-0	932	5	18. Indiana	4-0-1	147	-
5.	Fla. St.	5-1-0	817	6	19. LSU	3-2-0	130	-
6.	W. Va.	6-0-0	811	7	20. Florida	5-1-0	77	14
7.	Nebraska	5-1-0	747	9
8.	S. Carolina	6-0-0	704	8
9.	Oklahoma	4-1-0	663	10
10.	Okla. St.	4-0-0	599	13
11.	Clemson	4-1-0	564	11
12.	Auburn	4-1-0	538	4
13.	Georgia	5-1-0	452	15
14.	Wyoming	6-0-0	323	16

Others receiving votes: Alabama 61, Duke 39, Oregon 38, Washington St. 38, Syracuse 26, Penn St. 25, Brigham Young 19, Western Michigan 17, Ball St. 9, Texas El-Paso 6, Hawaii 3, Colorado 2, Southern Mississippi 1.

'Wednesday Noon Live' entertains K-Staters

By Amy Bullock
Collegian Reporter

Live from the K-State Union Courtyard it's ... Wednesday Noon Live.

The program stars musicians, comedians, singers, jugglers or anyone who has talent and would like to perform.

Wednesday Noon Live is a new program sponsored by the Union Program Council Eclectic Entertainment Committee and occurs in the Union Courtyard on Wednesdays from noon to 1 p.m.

"It gives people an opportunity to get up and perform in front of an audience, and it also gives students something to do over the lunch hour," said Aaron Krebs, show coordinator and member of the EEC.

Wednesday Noon Live is a takeoff of Nooners, which used to be in the Catskeller over the noon hour.

Nooners was sponsored by a branch of UPC called the Coffeehouse Committee.

The Coffeehouse Committee disbanded five years ago.

"Right now it looks as if things are getting off to a good start. We've had a lot of calls and have booked a lot of different shows."

—Aaron Krebs
Wednesday Noon Live coordinator

"Each year the Coffeehouse Committee would get new members and the old ones would graduate, so pretty soon all the original starters of the Nooner series were gone, so eventually it just faded out," Krebs said.

Sylvia Scott, program director of UPC, presented the idea again to Krebs.

"It was just such a wonderful program. The students really liked having their talent shown. Often people in the community would hear of certain performers, and they would call the UPC office and would want to hire some of the performers for a party or something," Scott said.

"So a lot of the people who performed for Nooners were actually going on and getting paid for what they did. I just thought it was a really good program, because it was something we could provide free and (it) gave the people with talent a chance to perform," she said.

Krebs said he liked the idea because of its many possibilities.

"When Sylvia brought the idea up to me, I thought it had real good possibilities and also would be a good way to liven up the courtyard," Krebs said.

Upcoming Wednesday Noon Live shows will include individuals from the United Black Voices and segments from the Haymaker Hall talent show.

Wednesday Noon Live applications are available at the UPC office.

Abuse prevention network established at Fort Hays

By The Associated Press

HAYS — A nationwide college alcohol abuse and drug use prevention network will be established at Fort Hays State University through a $235,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Education, FHSU President Edward Hammond announced Monday.

He said Fort Hays was selected from among colleges and universities throughout the country and will "take the lead in this particular field."

"Of all the universities that exist, to have Fort Hays heading up the national network is quite a compliment," he said.

The two-year grant will be used to:

- Establish a national publication package to help universities and colleges develop methods to prevent abuse of alcohol and other drugs.
- Organize a national advisory council of students.
- Sponsor a series of regional conferences throughout the United States for colleges and universities interested in receiving information.

The goal of the network is to help educational institutions develop activities that will encourage prevention, Hammond said.

"What we're trying to do is help college students and university students to understand that you don't have to have alcohol," he said.

He said that the program will be directed at abuse and under-age use of alcohol. Hammond pointed out that most students at the university level are not of legal age to drink alcohol.

The network's headquarters will be on campus, but the exact location has not been decided, the president said. He said that graduate assistants and existing staff probably would be used to establish the network.

Hammond is national president of BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students), a member of the U.S. Department of Education planning group for a network of drug-free colleges.

The Station
DOCTOR SHOT NIGHT TUESDAY

ALL SHOTS $1
OVER 35 SHOTS!
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

Attention Customers
WE'VE MOVED!
Come see us at our new location
1329 ANDERSON
kinko's
the copy center
coupon
2½¢ per copy
8½x11/20 No. white/auto fed originals
present coupon at time of purchase
Open 24 Hours
Offer Expires 10/31/88
coupon

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)

Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa
Park Place
apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951

Taco Buffet
all you can eat
99¢
COTTON CLUB
17th & Anderson

Compatibility Defined
IBM-Com•pat'i•bil'i•ty adv. 1. Capable of existing together in harmony. 2. Able to use most common software; usu. of the business/research world. 3. Growth & flexibility. 4. Hyundai 16TE.
HYUNDAI
Introducing the Super 16TE PC-compatible.
Introducing a new level of IBM-compatibility, speed (10Mhz) and flexibility (5 expansion slots). Each Hyundai includes 640K memory, a "101" keyboard, full software (wp, spreadsheet, database), orientation, support and an 18 month warranty. Best of all- its backed by $20 billion Hyundai Corporation and your local Connecting Point Computer Center in Westloop Shop.Center.

KSU's "Seoul" Authorized Hyundai Dealer
ConnectingPoint COMPUTER CENTER
1115 Westloop Shop. Ctr
539-0801
Attention KSU Apple Purchasers:
Connecting Point's "Apple Team" has contracted to support KSU departmental and personal purchases. Call us for assistance in selecting systems, software solutions and ordering your Mac. Connecting Point has a full line of Apple "Add-Ons" from disks to software to cases to drives.

	Retail	KSU Price.	Disc.
☐ Super 16TE	$ 1045.	$ 735.*	30%
Sample Systems:
☐ 2 drive, amber monitor	1095.
☐ 2 drive, color monitor	1299.
☐ 30Mb, amber monitor	1495.
☐ 30Mb, color monitor	1699.

* Based upon full system purchase. IBM is a reg. tm of IBM Corp.

Over 20,000 name brand T-Shirts, Tank Tops and Sweatshirts must be sold
Cash and Checks Only
ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR•SPORTING GOODS
LIQUIDATION
Save 40-60% off retail
HUNDREDS OF ITEMS AT COST OR BELOW!
Corona HEAVYWEIGHT T-SHIRTS REG. $17.95 ONLY 6.99
HEAVYWEIGHT SWEATSHIRTS REG. $24 ONLY 9.99
PRO & COLLEGE TEAM SWEATSHIRTS & T-SHIRTS ONLY 4.99-10.99 • CELTICS • BEARS • REDSKINS • OVER 40 COLLEGES
WEIGHTLIFTING GLOVES & BELTS
GLOVES REG. $10-$18 NOW 7.99
BELTS REG. $24 NOW 16.99
SUNGLASSES OVER 25 DIFFERENT STYLES VALUES FROM $8-$14 ONLY 3.99 PR.
ASSORTED COLORS STYLES & SIZES
Polo KNIT SPORT SHIRTS • OXFORD DRESS SHIRTS • SWEATERS • JEANS • DRESS PANTS • VALUES FROM $35-$60 ONLY 14.99 AND UP!
JUMBO OVERSIZED T-SHIRTS REG. $12-$14 • GUESS • MICKEY MOUSE • COCA COLA • ONLY 6.99
BEACHWEAR T-SHIRTS • BEACH SHIRTS & DRESSES REG. $14.00-$32.00 NOW ONLY $5.99 AND UP!
2000 PR. ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR MUST GO!
Hard Rock Cafe T-SHIRTS TANKTOPS REG. $14.00-$16.00 NOW ONLY $5.99-6.99
SWEATPANTS • HEAVYWEIGHT • ASST'D STYLES ONLY 6.99 AND UP! • COLLEGES • PRO TEAMS • NAME BRANDS • PLAIN • ETC.
HEAVYWEIGHT SWEATSHIRTS VALUES FROM $12-$24 ONLY 6.99 AND UP! ASSORTED COLORS, STYLES
OVER 2000 PAIRS OF ATHLETIC SHOES TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • JOGGING • AEROBIC • BASKETBALL • RUNNING • VALUES FROM $18-$50 ONLY $7.99 AND UP! • PONY • PUMA • NEW BALANCE • LA GEAR • SAUCONY • CONVERSE • MANY OTHERS
SOCKS • TUBE • CREW • ROLLOVERS • VALUES $2-$4 99¢ & UP! 6 PR. PACK REG. $10-$12 ONLY 4.99
DESIGNER TANKTOPS & T-SHIRTS • MAUI & SONS • SPEEDO • BEVERLY HILLS POLICE DEPT. • CALIFORNIA BEACH CO. • GOTCHA • JAMS • TAG SHARK ONLY $4.99 AND UP! REG. $12-$16 OVER 20 DIFFERENT STYLES
VUARNET SUNGLASSES OF FRANCE T-SHIRTS • TANKTOPS ONLY 7.99 REG. $14-$18 SWEATSHIRTS NOW 9.99
NAME BRAND ATHLETIC AND RUNNING SHORTS • COLLEGES • NAME BRANDS VALUES FROM $9-$14 ONLY 3.99-5.99
NAME BRAND LONG SLEEVE T-SHIRTS & BASEBALL SLEEVES • COLLEGES • NAME BRANDS VALUES FROM $10-$14 ONLY 4.99-6.99
Holiday Inn—530 Richards Drive
One Day Only — Thursday, Oct. 13th 10 a.m.-8 p.m. — One Day Only

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!

Complete Eyeglasses
SINGLE VISION $24.95
BIFOCALS $34.95
Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Grey Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.
Payless Optical Outlet
1210 Moro. Manhattan
537-1574
M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.
MasterCard VISA

Leaders to quiet tension

By The Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Communist authorities put more police on the streets and imposed unspecified "urgent measures" in Montenegro's capital Monday, but protests fed by economic crisis and ethnic tension did not stop.

Protest has swept much of southern and eastern Yugoslavia in recent weeks. Police used violent tactics for the first time over the weekend to disperse Montenegrin students and workers demanding the dismissal of local Communist Party leaders.

President Raif Dizdarevic went on national television Sunday night to appeal for calm, warning of unspecified emergency measures.

Unrest continued Monday in Titograd, the capital of Montenegro 280 miles southwest of Belgrade, and the regional party leadership held an emergency meeting, the official news agency Tanjug reported.

Workers and 2,000 students at Niksic, 30 miles north of Titograd, rallied outside a government building and in a steel mill where 2,800 workers were on strike for a second day, Tanjug said.

Police used clubs and tear gas to break up weekend crowds in Titograd and disperse marchers in Niksic who were on their way there.

The Titograd rally was an explosion of anger about hardships resulting from the austerity program the government imposed in May because of a $21 billion foreign debt and high inflation, which has soared to an annual rate of 217 percent. The unemployment rate is about 15 percent.

Concern for Montenegrins in southern Serbia's troubled Kosovo province, where Serbs and Montenegrins are a minority to ethnic Albanians, also has stirred passions.

Tanjug reported, without details, that "urgent measures" were imposed Monday in Titograd. It said later 1,000 construction workers called off a strike after local party leaders promised to consider their demands.

An official reached at the government information office in Titograd reported more police patrols in some parts of the city and said civilian defense units were told "to display special vigilance and prevent any repetition of the unrest of the past weekend."

He said steps would be taken to ease shortages of such food staples as meat, bread and cooking oil.

In Belgrade, the federal government said it was rescinding a 28.5 percent rise in electricity prices announced Oct. 1, the fourth of the year.

Workers in Titograd, who chanted at a rally Friday for bread to feed their families, blame local party leaders for the economic troubles and demand their dismissal.

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

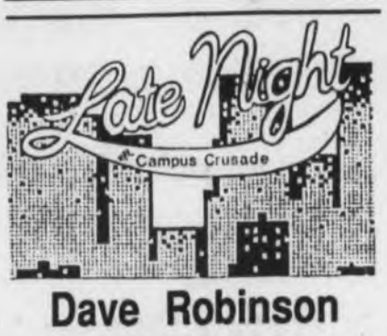
Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.



HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

MARY KAY Cosmetics-skin care-glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible.

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

AVIATION CADET PROGRAM

Do you want to fly? Pilot training, ages 19-24 with 60 semester hours for our naval aviation cadet program. Must be a U.S. citizen and physically qualified with a 2.5 plus G.P.A. Call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

Dave Robinson
speaking on
"Relating the Real You"
Tues., Oct. 11, 10 p.m.
Kappa Delta Sorority

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Vote X Common Sense Uncommon Leadership

Lana Oleen
REPUBLICAN • KANSAS SENATE

Lana Oleen for Kansas Senate
Kent Glasscock, Chairman

Attention Seniors:

Tired of having a very basic resume? At Heirloom Portraits we have just the thing to spruce up that resume at an affordable price. Be a part of the growing individuals that put together not only an exceptional resume, but enhance the business stature by complimenting the paper with a beautiful color portrait.

All it takes is a telephone call to set up an appointment.

776-1175

Heirloom Portraits

EeGee's
Restaurant & Ice Creamery
TUESDAY
Eegee's Made Tacos
2 for $1.00
Taco Salad $2.99
Carta Blanca-99¢
12th & Laramie•Aggieville

Having a party?
Need music?
C. G. Disco
call Clyde: (913)784-5604

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

PENTECOSTAL CONQUERERS Bible Club. Every Wednesday 7p.m., Union 202. Bring your Bible, join us. 537-4441.

TONIGHT, TONIGHT, tonight. TKE Powder Puff Championship. Griffith Park, 8p.m.

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

WHAT OCCUPATION does Eddie Haskell have today? If you know the answer to this question, call Dominoe's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order. 539-0561.

College of Human Ecology
Activities Carnival
Wed., Oct. 12-Thurs., Oct. 13
9:00-2:30
Hoffman Lounge, Justin Hall

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

ONE-BEDROOM furnished apartment, two blocks west of campus with off-street parking. 539-7811 or 1-456-2090.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. Partially furnished. Call Tim at 539-7975.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1973 DODGE cornet, 78,000 miles, have to see to appreciate, $700. 537-8950 after 5p.m.

1980 CITATION. Runs good, AM/FM cassette stereo, five-speed, new tires, good gas mileage. 776-5573 weekday afternoons.

1982 CAMARO, power steering, power brakes, four-speed transmission, stereo, 50,000, $5,800. 776-0382.

1978 PLYMOUTH Horizon four-door, four-speed, air conditioning, 539-7439. Ask for Troy.

8 Computers

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4⅓ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, and juniors: Get paid to train in the summer to become Marine Corps officers after graduation. Aviation and financial aid available. Call collect, 1-841-1821.

MARKETING POSITIONS open with Manhattan business. Knowledge of media, promotions and layout skills necessary. Submit resume to Box 9, in care of K-State Collegian, 103 Kedzie Hall.

MCDONALD'S IS now hiring for all day shifts between the hours of 5a.m. to 4p.m. We offer a starting wage of $3.50 per hour with frequent raises. We also offer meal benefits, uniforms and flexible hours. Please apply in person at 815 N. Third Street.

MCDONALD'S OF Westloop is looking for some enthusiastic, dependable people who enjoy working with people. Part-time day shift hours available between 5a.m. and 4p.m. with very flexible schedules. Starting salary $3.50/ hour with frequent raises available. Apply in person anytime, 1011 Westloop.

ON-CAMPUS TRAVEL representative or organization needed to promote Spring Break trip to Florida or Texas. Earn money, free trips and valuable work experience. Call Inter-Campus Programs. 1-800-433-7747.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART-TIME HELP wanted (10- 15 hours/ week). Duties will include data entry, proofing computer printouts, filling orders, typing and some heavy lifting. Preference given to applicants with computer experience. Important: Must be able to work during school breaks, including full-time between fall and spring semesters. Interested? Contact Coleen or Bridget at 532-5970.

PAY DAY! Beginning salary $3.60/hour. All shifts for waiter and waitresses; Mexican Tuesday and Thursday 10:30-2:00; hotline server, Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10:30-1:15 and 10:20-2:00; cashier Monday through Friday 8:00-1:30 and Monday through Friday 1:30-4:00; sandwich Monday through Friday 6:00-10:30; ice cream Monday through Friday 10:30-1:30; office assistant, hours will vary. Apply now at the K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. Food Handler's Card a must.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS, full- or part-time. Apply in person, Seven Dolors Child Care, Eighth and Colorado.

TWO-YEAR COGNITIVE psychology research project. About five hours per week at $5 per hour, including summers. Sophomores with high GPA preferred. Contact Dr. Thompson, 532-6850.

VALENTINO'S: NOW hiring for driver, pizza table and dishroom positions. Please apply in person at 3019 Anderson.

VISTA DRIVE-IN is now taking applications for part- and full-time help. Must be able to work some noon shifts. Apply in person.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

THREE-BEDROOM PHELPS house, three blocks west of campus, available November. $450/ month. 539-3672.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: PUPPY, near band practice field. About six months old. 539-2100.

FOUND: RADIO- controlled airplane, north of football field. Call 532-6115, days.

FOUND: YOUNG affectionate cat, 1800 block of Laramie. Call to identify, 776-7488 or 537-3654.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings & Drumsticks
Buy 1 Set, Get a 2nd Set ½ Price
327 Poyntz 776-7983

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

POPCORN, WHITE Grade "A" 50-pound bags for just $15. Call Troy at 537-6886.

STUDENT DESK, office desk, swivel desk chairs, couch, dinette, chest, beds, bar, misc. furniture. 776-9705.

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1983 INTERCEPTOR 750. Looks brand new, runs great. Vance and Hines exhaust. $1,600. 539-8086, Kerry.

1985 700 Nighthawk S, black and blue. 6,000 miles. Phone 532-5279.

1986 YAMAHA Fazer FZX700S, Black/ 'Passion' Red/ Chrome, low miles, showroom condition, two helmets, best offer. 532-3420.

BIANCHI CERVINO mountain bike. Used only two months. Excellent condition. Extra tires, handlebars, lock. 532-5381.

18 Personals

ANONYMOUS: NO, it wasn't me- but it could have been. DB.

BABY- LUV, I miss you. Love, Sweet Dream.

BAGS- THEY say that the best relationships are challenging ones, but don't you think this is a bit ridiculous?! Love, Your Lab Partner.

CARA, THE time has been great, I hope it won't end. C&C Saturday, your birthday, camping out, Thanksgiving, all are time to come that will be special. George.

DTD- THE usher's brother, Birthdays are fun, just wait and see, look who's turning the big 2-oops! Have a great one! KAO Maid of Honor.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

MARC- YOU beautiful piece of manhood. Last night was an incredible sexual experience. Love, Holly, Kathy and Big Suzie.

TODD- NEXT time I'll have to use the baseball bat! Love, Kid.

TO LON and the Awesome BB Team: Ice cream and brownies the KD's ate. With the basketball team of K-State. With this new season we wish you the best. Because you guys are better than the rest! Love, the KD's.

TO THE Buddy- System workout crew, let's get psyched about everything this week O.K. Love, your "lil" Banana.

TO THE three ladies at Capitol Federal and Burger King: We left you a note and you quickly replied. We took off and ran, but we couldn't hide. If we get a third, would you give us a try? Please respond.

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

ACFA REGISTERED Blue Smoke Persian kittens. Wholesale price. Call Jennifer, 532-6161 (days), and 539-6748 (evenings).

FREE, FREE, free: Three kittens eight weeks old. Call 537-4384.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

LASERPRINTED AND Typeset resumes are 10% off with coupon from KAT magazine. Graphics Plus, 607 N. 11th, Aggieville. 539-6027.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

Résumé Service
Resumes — Cover Letters
Data Sheets
343 Colorado
Call 537-7294
9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

TERM PAPERS, professional documents, resumes etc., laser printer quality. Call 1-494-2279 after 5p.m.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE, NON-SMOKER wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Reasonable price. Call 537-2973. 1002 Gardenway.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted immediately. $135 plus one-third utilities. One block from campus, nice and clean. Call 776-3788 (Rebecca).

ROOMMATE WANTED to share two-bedroom apartment with two other people. $116 month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments, 1005 Bluemont. 537-1878.

24 Situation Wanted

WANTED A bass player for rock band. If interested, call 776-1691.

WANT TO trade Def Leppard ticket near stage for ticket on aisle between sections 17 and 18 near row 25. 537-8883.

30 Adoption

HAPPILY MARRIED California couple, with lots of love and security, wish to adopt a white baby up to age two. All expenses paid. Totally legal. Please call Jeanie collect. (213)278-6161. Thank you.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

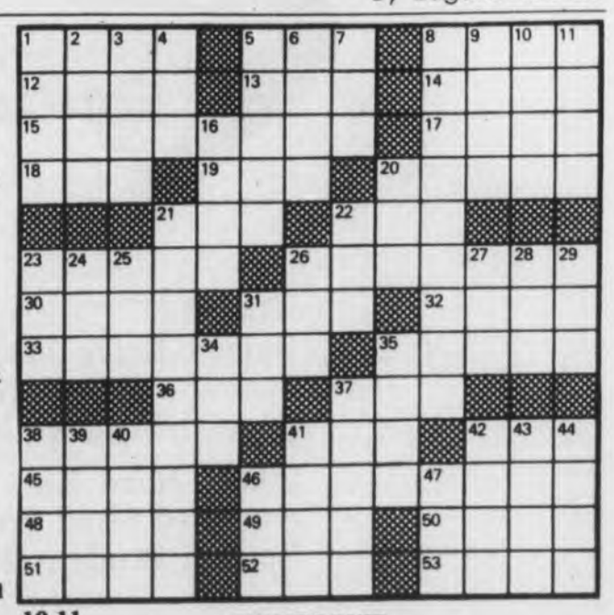
By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Soft drink
5 Michael Jackson hit
8 Inept actors
12 Fetid
13 Blunder
14 Of the ear
15 Annoying insect
17 Gam or Moreno
18 Table leaving
19 Pablo's uncle
20 Thing of value
21 "Some Like It — "
22 American humorist
23 She was "Gigi"
26 Understood
30 Hebrew measure
31 Devour
32 Employ
33 Analyzes
35 Smithy
36 One of the Gabors
37 Hasten
38 Island greeting
41 Calloway
42 Psych. org.
45 French novelist
46 Early trolley
48 Slide
49 Ending for ration
50 Connection
51 French river
52 Anagram for may
53 Caesar's fatal date

DOWN
1 London district
2 Swan genus
3 Malicious gossip
4 Classified items
5 Suit
6 Singer Guthrie
7 Thirsty
8 One type of crab
9 Aconite
10 Arachnid
11 Sing like Ella
16 English school
20 Political org.
21 Kind of leather
22 TV's Fleming
23 The heart
24 French spirit
25 The tumeric
26 "Fill 'er up" stuff
27 Moslem saint
28 Work unit
29 Bill — Williams
31 Spanish queen
34 Eggs
35 Lies
37 Sheik's retreat
38 Likewise
39 Norse god of mischief
40 Elevator man
41 Rum mixer
42 Etcher's need
43 Window section
44 Clumsy boats
46 Dry fodder
47 Yale man

Solution time: 24 mins.

C	O	S			M	A	W		S	H	E	A
A	M	E	S		I	T	O		N	O	O	N
S	I	G	N		L	E	R		O	R	N	E
S	T	O	O	P		S	T	O	W
			W	I	G		H	A	S	T	E	N
S	W	E	L	T	E	R		R	H	O	D	A
H	I	R	E		L	I	P		O	L	E	G
A	L	O	O	F		D	E	M	E	A	N	S
D	E	S	P	O	T		R	A	H
			A	G	R	A		P	A	D	R	E
S	P	A	R		A	D	E		R	O	A	R
H	E	R	D		C	A	Y		E	T	N	A
Y	A	M	S		E	R	E		E	D	S

Yesterday's answer 10-11

10-11

CRYPTOQUIP

V E F I A P F S A P Z A V F U B T L C - F L , " C X S T B B X W J U ' W W J H Z W I H F W W Z P T E F I J F Q Q P Z C J U . "

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: COULD A GREAT, PENNILESS POET WRITE "OWED ON A GRECIAN URN"?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals M

Algeria

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Many in the crowd moved to the Bab-el-Oued district.

Witnesses said soldiers started shooting and demonstrators shouted to people watching from balconies to throw down firearms so they could "defend ourselves."

Most downtown offices were closed and traffic fell to a trickle in Algiers, the capital.

In his speech, Bendjedid stressed his respect for the constitution, and said he was elected against his will in 1979. Taken together, the two statements pointed to his wish to retire, since the constitution does not allow a president to serve more than two terms.

It had been widely assumed that a ruling party meeting at the end of the year would amend the constitution to allow Benjedid to continue in office. He was certain to be re-elected as the sole candidate for president.

Benjedid said he would "respect the popular will and to facilitate the rise of young people to the leadership." But he said these changes must take place in a calm atmosphere.

He said his government would propose political reforms to a popular referendum, but gave no details. The reforms, he said, would be the natural extension of announced government economic changes.

Early Monday, before the shooting in Bab-el-Oued, the government tried to relieve some shortages. Large stocks of flour, butter and cooking oil were delivered to state-operated stores and private shops.

Cheese, semolina, lentils, coffee, sugar and rice — all unobtainable for weeks — suddenly reappeared.

Lines outside bakeries and other food stores disappeared during the day. Some state stores that had been wrecked by rioters reopened, admitting customers by side doors because their facades still were boarded up.

Prices were considerably below black market rates. Butter was offered at the subsidized price of $1.75, not the $4.30 it cost on the black market last week.

Many customers emerged from stores with shopping baskets bulging, a rare sight in shortage-plagued Algiers.

Rising prices for staple foods have been a chief complaint of protesters. The cost of many items has risen 40 percent or more because of economic reforms Benjedid announced last January, to take effect gradually through early 1989.

The Movement for Algerian Renewal has called for immediate supplies of cheaper food, Bendjedid's resignation and dissolution of the National Liberation Front, the only legal party.

Oil and gas are Algeria's main exports.

SEC

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

the House report said the "suspicious" trades referred to the SEC included possible sales of unregistered securities and unspecified other acts of market manipulation.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Doug Barnard, D-Ga., found that the dollar volume of U.S. securities bought and sold by foreigners increased from $25.6 billion in 1977 to $277.5 billion in 1986. Last year it leaped to $481.9 billion.

It said expert testimony before the panel last summer indicated that the number of illegal trades also had grown in recent years, although the report gave no figures on this.

Foreign transactions accounted for 18 percent of the total dollar value of all U.S. equity market transactions last year, the subcommittee said, but they represented more than 30 percent of the suspicious trades reported to the SEC by stock exchanges.

In response to the subcommittee investigation, the report said the SEC promised to assign more people to its international enforcement activities and give them more responsiblity, to pursue new information-sharing agreements and to renegotiate and expand the scope of existing agreements.

The House report said these changes would be inadequate to correct the enforcement problem.

Only six countries — Switzerland, Britain, Japan, Canada, the Netherlands and Italy — have bilateral information-sharing agreements with the United States.

Camp

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Cramer said starting the campout in September was too early and missing class to spend more than a month in line wasn't worth it.

David Parks, senior in agricultural economics, said K-State basketball games are worth camping out for, no matter how long it takes.

"This is the only way you're going to get a ticket this year," Parks said.

He said he doesn't mind the long hours of just sitting in line.

"It gives me a chance to be outside, and you meet a lot of people," he said.

KSU Wildcats*KSU Wildcats

ICAT MEMBERS

T-Shirts are in

You can pick them up at the ICAT table in the Union
TODAY

KSU Wildcats*KSU Wildcats

STEAMBOAT
COLORADO
$158* from

JANUARY 2-6 • LODGING • LIFTS PARTY • PICNIC • MORE!

Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS 1989

STEAMBOAT WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Hotel or fully equipped condominium lodging for 5 days/4 nights, 6 days/5 nights or 7 days/6 nights • Full day lift tickets for 3 or 4 days with additional days available at reduced rates • Welcome Apres Ski Party at the top of Thunderhead with live entertainment and complimentary beverages • Mid-week Mountain Chicken Barbecue with complimentary beverages • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/base shuttle service • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.

TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: KEYSTONE, WINTER PARK AND VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
sunchase tours

PAC CATS CASH
FRIENDS HELPING FRIENDS
FORE MORE INFORMATION CALL 539-6927
ONE DOLLAR

WHAT IS PAC-CATS CASH?

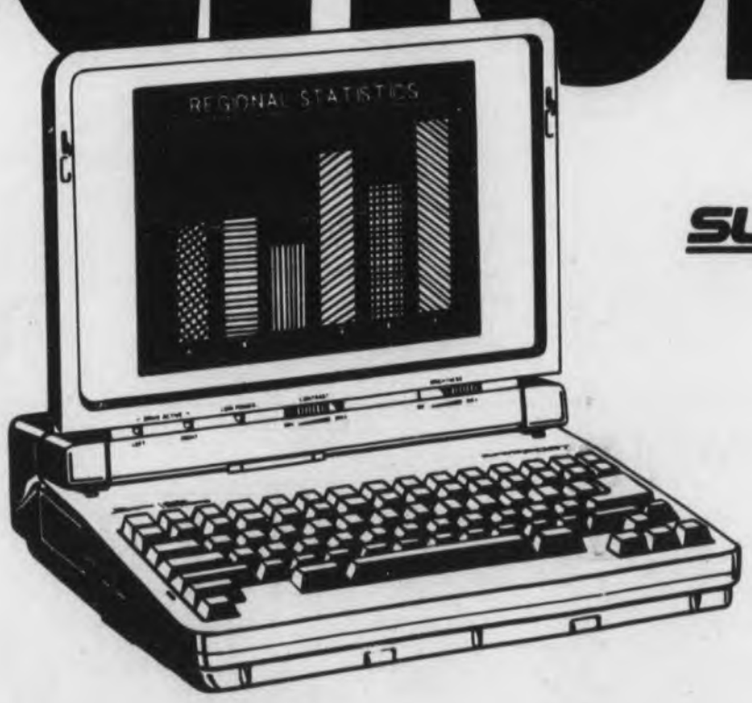
PAC-CATS Cash is an incentive program that gives you a chance to earn " dollars" for your participation in the PAC-CATS Wellness Program. Trade your "cash" in for incentives at the PAC-CATS Office, Lafene Lower Level-Suite 26.

EARNING CASH IS EASY
You earn $1 of PAC-CATS Cash for:
*Meeting with a PAL
*Completing your PAC for 1 week
A total of $2 per week is possible

WHAT CASH BUYS
Level 1 Gifts
*PAC-CATS baseball cap
*Medium Size I Can't Believe It's Yogurt
*Voucher for 2 jumbo cookies from The Bakery
*A beverage from the Union's Juice Bar
Purchase of Level 1 requires: $5 PC Cash
Level 2 Gifts
*PAC-CATS "Celebrate Wellness" t-shirt
*The Stretching Book
*Gourmet Brown Bag Lunch
*Ticket to an event at Nichols Theatre
Purchase of Level 2 requires: $9 PC Cash
Level 3 Gifts
*PAC-CATS "Celebrate Wellness" sweatshirt
*1989 Diet and Health Calendar
*Brown Bag Gourmet Lunch for 2
*1989 365 New Words a Year Calendar
Purchase of Level 3 requires: $17 PC Cash

START YOUR PAC OCTOBER 10-14
AND EARN A LEVEL 3 GIFT BEFORE FINALS
Reach your goals and have some fun!

PAC-CATS would like to thank Residence Hall Food Service and I Can't Believe It's Yogurt for their support.



First time in history of KSU
the Muslim Community Assoc.
PRESENTS:

QURAN :
THE FIRST LEGISTLATIVE OF ISLAM
by HAMED GHAZALI

Second lecture in a series of lectures designed for non-Muslims

7:30 pm
Wed., Oct. 12, 1988
Rm 208, K-STATE UNION
Refreshments provided

ROAD SCHOLAR

SUPERSPORT™

Dual 3.5" 720K
Floppy Drive Model
Suggested Retail Price: $2,399
Special Student Price: $1,439

20MB Hard Disk Model
Suggested Retail Price: $3,599
Special Student Price: $2,219

ZENITH data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

PC/XT is a registered trademark of IBM Corp. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp. Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one portable personal computer per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems Form No. 1392

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN — WITH THE NEW BATTERY-DRIVEN SUPERSPORT™ — TO TAKE YOU FROM COLLEGE TO CAREER.

Small, lightweight, flexible and economical. Ideal for spreadsheets, word processing and more. That's the new SupersPort from Zenith Data Systems — today's leader in battery-operated portables.

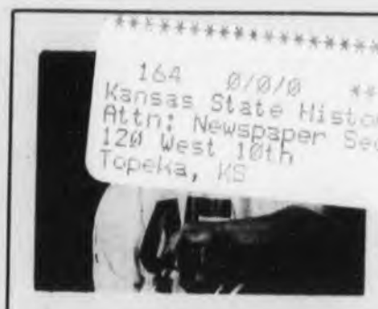
FLEXIBLE COURSE SCHEDULE. Whatever your agenda, the SupersPort's modular configuration easily adapts to your computing style. With a detachable battery for easier portability. An AC adapter/recharger that plugs into any outlet. MS-DOS® to run virtually all PC/XT compatible software. And 640K RAM — expandable to 1.64MB with EMS. Plus the SupersPort comes in your choice of dual 3.5" 720K floppy drive or 20MB hard disk models. For flexible desktop performance anywhere on campus.

CARRY SOME GREAT HOURS THIS TERM. Hours of battery power, that is. For greater productivity everywhere your studies take you. Thanks to Zenith's comprehensive Intelligent Power Management — a system that lets you control how your battery power is consumed. So you won't waste valuable energy on components and peripherals not in use.

EASY COLLEGE READING. The easiest. After all, the SupersPort features Zenith's renowned dazzling backlit Supertwist LCD screen for crisp text and superior readability. And its CRT-size display is one-third larger than most competing portables for enhanced viewing. The screen even tilts back 180-degrees so it lies flat to accommodate a desktop monitor.

TO CATCH THE NEW SUPERSPORT PORTABLE PC AT A SPECIAL PRICE, VISIT YOUR ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CAMPUS OPEN HOUSE;

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCT. 24 & 25
9A.M. to 4 P.M.
CONTACT YOUR LOCAL
STUDENT REPRESENTATIVE
JAN ELSASSER
537-6807 or
THE BOOKSTORE 532-6583



Emergency Help

Low-income Manhattan residents can turn to the Emergency Shelter Inc. for financial assistance. See Page 7.

Weather

Sunny today, high in the 60s. Clear tonight, low 35 to 45. Sunny Thursday, high in 70s or low 80s.

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
66612 ck ses at ghbor-

ing Manhattan Christian College. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 12, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 37

Kansas State Collegian

Phil Meinhardt, Republican candidate for the second district U.S. House of Representatives, speaks to a small audience Tuesday night in the Union Little Theatre. The pre-election "Meet the Candidates" forum was sponsored by the K-State Young Democrats.

Staff/Christopher T. Assaf

Candidates discuss views in forum

By Amy Lyons
Collegian Reporter

Ten candidates and two surrogates rubbed elbows Tuesday night on the stage of Union Little Theatre in a pre-election "Meet the Candidates" forum. The twelve campaigners used an allotted five minutes to disseminate their views, then met with interested members of the audience in a post-lecture reception in Union 212.

Speakers included hopefuls for offices in the U.S. House of Representatives, State Congress and Riley County Commission.

Approximately fifty people attended the forum, coordinated by the K-State Young Democrats. Rob Brown, sophomore in political science and president of the group, said he was pleased with the outcome, but expected a larger audience.

Candidates, in appeal to the campus setting, generally geared comments toward education and the Margin of Excellence, touching on major issues and their backgrounds for office.

In the second district race for the U.S. House of Representatives, Republican Phil Meinhardt butted heads with Tony Housch, field representative for the incumbent Congressman Jim Slattery. Meinhardt compared the race to the national presidential campaign.

"As far as the two candidates are concerned, my opponent's beliefs are very close to that of Michael Dukakis, and my beliefs, in contrast, are very close to that of George Bush," Meinhardt said. He said Slattery is "clearly in favor of raising taxes" and would be like "Tammy Faye Bakker with a new credit card," while Meinhardt feels a federal budget reduction is in order.

"The biggest issue in our campaign is the fact that (Slattery) says he will raise taxes and I want to control spending," Meinhardt said at the reception.

Tony Housch said Slattery's political theory can be summed up under the heading of "good government," with the issues following behind.

"Slattery wants to maintain the level of good government he has achieved with his response to citizens," Housch said, stating Slattery's goals as wanting to address the deficit, agricultural policy and rural health care. Housch cited Slattery's position on the House budget committee and his record for constituent service as proof of leadership qualification.

In one of the "closest races in the state," according to Brown's introduction, which referred to a recent poll of Kansas voters, 22nd district state senatorial candidates Lana Oleen and Rod Olsen exchanged ideas.

Oleen came out in favor of the MOE and opposed adding Washburn University to the Kansas Board of Regents system. The Republican said these two issues directly affect K-State students, faculty and staff and emphasized the importance of education in the

■ See FORUM, Page 14

Study reveals pay inequities

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

A study prepared by an official in the Office of Affirmative Action demonstrates that the reclassification of the civil service salary system continues inequities between the levels of pay for male and female employees of K-State.

Mary Kissel, assistant director of the affirmative action office, said creating equity between the salaries of male and female employees was an original goal of the reclassification study currently underway across the state.

"What I do in (my study) is make the connection between pay equity and reclassification. That's a link that existed at one time and now has been lost," she said.

In response to complaints by female employees about changes in their rates of pay after the December 1986 implementation of the first phase of "the Comprehensive Classification and Job Rate Study," Kissel undertook her own study of the impact of reclassification at K-State.

"I got a lot of calls. The phone rang off the hook with women saying, 'I understood this reclassification was going to address pay equity. Since I only got a $30 raise a month, I don't think that's addressing pay equity. And I think it's unfair and would you look into this for us.'"

Pay equity, which is sometimes described as comparable worth, does not mean equal pay for equal work, Kissel said.

"The idea of pay equity is that you identify the factors that are relevant to all jobs and that you set salary ranges on this basis rather than on tradition or market value or 'that's the way it has always been, so that's the way it's going to stay," she said.

After the December 1987 implementation of Phase II of the study, Kissel saw the inequities between pay for workers in male-dominated and female-dominated jobs were continuing.

Sandra Coyner, director of Women's Studies, said Kissel's study was important for women employees.

"I think it demonstrates that we were sadly mistaken to place our hope in the reclassification study for moderating the inequities between men and women," Coyner said.

"We were led to believe the reclassification study was going to place salaries on a rational basis," she said.

The study is flawed by the way it is performed, Coyner said. Each of the planned five phases of the projected five-year study is being performed by a different classification study team using different standards for the jobs examined in that phase.

Prior to the implementation of Phase I of reclassification, 36 percent of salaries for workers in secretary and clerical positions tended to cluster around range 10, which for fiscal year 1989 would be a base salary of $1,071 per month on the pay scale for classified employees.

Kansas provides at least 33 ranges of pay for classified employees. Within each range are several steps through which employees rise based on their length of service to the University.

Following Phase I, 45.6 percent of salaries for secretary and clerical workers clustered around range 13, which would be a base salary of $1,240 per month on the FY 1989 pay scale. Only one salary was below range 9, or $1,019 per month, and no salary exceeded range 18, or $1,583 per month, on the scale.

Phase I affected the salaries of secretary and clerical workers, job fields considered to be female-dominated. To be female-dominated, at least 70 percent of the employees in a job field must be female. At K-State, more than 90 percent of secretarial and clerical positions are filled by women.

Employees affected by Phase I of the reclassification found that the value of their longevity — length of term of service to the University had been diminished.

Before Phase I, secretary and clerical employees' level of longevity

■ See ACTION, Page 14

Faculty approve evaluation plan

By Christina Doherty
Collegian Reporter

Faculty Senate Tuesday approved the Assessment Document, a plan instituted by the Kansas Board of Regents to evaluate undergraduate programs at universities under its jurisdiction.

The Council of Chief Academic Officers' guidelines of the assessments call for covering the evaluation of basic skills, liberal education and major field requirements.

Under this direction, each university is in charge of finding its own method of evaluation.

The method to be used at K-State, developed by the Office of Planning and Evaluation Services staff, includes five instruments of evaluation.

- Senior Survey, designed to be given to all graduating seniors in each unit surveyed in a given year.
- One-Year Alumni Survey, for use with recent graduates.
- Four-Year Alumni Survey, to be used to obtain information from less recent graduates.
- Employer Survey, to be used to get evaluative information from supervisors of alumni at their places of employment.
- Graduate/Professional School Survey, to be used to provide evaluative information for alumni who have pursued advanced degrees.

In this plan, the University will be divided into two parts, each being surveyed every four years. Under this organization, each college will be evaluated once every four years.

Cornelia Flora, Faculty Senate president, said this method of assessment is popular on a national scale.

"This was prompted by a nationwide thrust. This is the current fad in education," Flora said.

"It is a relatively inexpensive and unintrusive endeavor," said Gerald Hanna, chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee on Undergraduate Program Evaluation.

Flora said the assessment will be beneficial to the University.

In other action, Faculty Senate approved a policy on racial and ethnic harassment which will appear in the Faculty Handbook in a brief reference, with the full policy appearing in the appendix.

Faculty Senate also announced a legislative forum at 3:30 p.m., Oct. 13, in Union 207, where candidates for the Kansas Legislature will answer questions about issues affecting K-State.

Reappraisal near completion

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

Initial phases of the new state-required reappraisal efforts are being completed in Riley County, said Sam Schmidt, county appraiser.

The actual appraisal should be completed by Jan. 1, allowing six months for the hearing and appeal process to continue through June 15, 1989, Schmidt said.

After the initial appraisal, one-fourth of the county will be appraised every year, so that the county as a whole will be reappraised every four years for market value.

All counties were required by the state to purchase IBM Systems 36 computers to aid the continuous task of reappraisal. The computers were required to keep labor costs of reappraisal to a minimum, he said.

With computerization, Schmidt said it would be a "sure thing" that property taxes would be adjusted for accuracy every year, while the actual property is physically reappraised every four years.

State law requires the appraisal of all property, even if it yields no property tax income to the county or state, he said.

K-State is tax exempt by law, as are all state properties. In Riley County this includes Fort Riley, Tuttle Creek Reservoir, the county fish and game preserves, the City of Manhattan, as well as out-of-state residents who own property in Kansas, Schmidt said.

"A lot of (reappraising) at Fort Riley will be done in the office, because (the army) won't let us run over its fields with our measuring equipment," Schmidt said.

The dollar figure ratio of non-taxable to taxable property in Riley County is 3-to-2, he said.

The mill levy, or property tax, for Riley County now equals 155.933 cents per thousand dollars assessed, or 155.933 mills. All property is appraised at market value. Residential property will be assessed at 12 percent, while commercial and recreational will be assessed at 30 percent of the value.

"There has been some concern (by the public)," said Stan McNickle, assistant appraiser. "(But) some taxes won't go up."

Noise level ordinances discussed

By Angela Smith
Collegian Reporter

During a work session Tuesday, Manhattan City Commission considered establishing an acceptable noise level to be used in the enforcement of Manhattan noise ordinances.

Manhattan's three noise ordinances concern: disturbing quietude, disturbing the peace, and the use of loudspeakers and amplifiers.

Concern about the enforcement of the ordinances was brought to the commission's attention after a recent fraternity party.

On Sept. 28, Sigma Nu fraternity had a party which was shut down due to complaints of unacceptable noise levels. Conflict over this shutdown caused Commissioner Richard Hayter to question the enforcement of the ordinance code.

Scott Cashman, president of Sigma Nu, said the fraternity hired a band to play at a non-alcoholic party.

"We were trying to promote the first all-University, non-alcoholic party," he said. "We thought a good way to get students here would be to get a good band."

Cashman said he applied and received a sound permit, but the Riley County Police Department received complaints during the party and ordered the band to stop playing at 9 p.m. Cashman was then issued a ticket.

"What is the use for a sound permit?" Cashman said. "All it allows you to do is to start the music up, then after that the first complaint shuts you down."

Ralph Lashbrook, a Manhattan resident who lives near the Sigma Nu house, said he has "been very lenient" toward the fraternity.

"I thought the situation this year would get better, but is not only bad this year, it is worse," he said. "The excessive beat of the music drives you nuts."

Hayter said the commission should establish a maximum level for noise. When a situation such as the Sigma Nu party occurs, the noise level should be measured. If the level is above the maximum, it is not

■ See COUNCIL, Page 14

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Czechs realign government

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — The Communist Party leadership made changes at the top of the party and government Tuesday in a meeting that also expressed clear opposition to sweeping economic or political reform.

Ladislav Adamec, 62-year-old premier of the Czech lands, was chosen as new federal premier to replace Lubomir Strougal, who resigned Monday after more than 18 years in the job and gave up his seat on the Communist Party's ruling Politburo.

Jaromir Johanes becomes foreign minister, replacing Bohuslav Chnoupek. He has been first deputy foreign minister since July 1987 and is a former ambassador to Canada and the United States.

Interior Minister Vratislav Vajnar, 58, will be replaced by Frantisek Kincl.

The changes were made at a two-day meeting of the party Central Committee session, which ended Tuesday, and were announced at a news conference by Jan Fojtik, the new party ideologist. He also said five men were made full members of the Politburo, increasing the membership from 12 to 15.

Soldiers quell Algerian riots

ALGIERS, Algeria — Protesters stayed off the streets yesterday after a week of violence that killed more than 400 people, but the young men who led the revolt against economic hardship remained angry and impatient.

Tanks and soldiers guarded areas most affected by the riots, including Bab-el-Oued, Belcourt and Ruisseau. Helicopter gunships chuffed overhead.

Shops were half-open, with metal curtains ready to slam down at any sign of trouble, and people bought large quantities of staple foods that had suddenly become available.

Truck convoys brought flour, butter, semolina and cooking oil into Algiers during the night and government stores sold the food to all comers at subsidized prices. Butter that was available only on the black market last week, at $4.30 a pound, could be had for $1.75.

No official casualty toll has been released, but reports from hospital, medical and police sources indicate at least 400 were killed and more than 1,000 injured. The French news agency Agence France-Presse estimated the number of dead at 500 or more.

Thirty-five people, including a correspondent for the official news agency, were reported killed in an outbreak of violence Monday night shortly before a speech in which President Chadli Benjedid promised sweeping reforms.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

Cuban gunboat seizes ship

MIAMI — A Cuban gunboat seized a 160-foot supply ship carrying New Zealand's entry in the America's Cup race and detained eight United States citizens Tuesday, the Coast Guard said.

The Tampa Seahorse, a New Orleans-based ship, was sailing about 12 miles off the southeastern tip of Cuba when the gunboat approached and seized it, said Coast Guard spokesman Dan Vogeley.

The ship's agent later told the Coast Guard in Miami that the America's Cup entry, the New Zealand, was aboard the ship, which was en route from Long Beach, Calif., to New York City.

There were no reports of shots fired or use of force, and the ship and crew were taken without further incident to Cayo Mola, Cuba, Vogeley said.

The master of the ship disputed the Cuban navy's claim that the vessel was inside the island nation's territorial waters and placed an urgent call to the Coast Guard at about 3 p.m. EDT.

6 die in tanker plane crash

OSCODA, Mich. — An Air Force tanker plane crashed Tuesday at Wurtsmith Air Force Base, killing six people and injuring 10 others, authorities said.

A KC-135 Stratotanker used to refuel other planes went down at 2:20 p.m. as it was returning to the base from a mission to K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, said Staff Sgt. Donald Lawber, a spokesman at the air base in the northeastern Lower Peninsula.

Eight of the 10 injured were treated at the base hospital, Sgt. Darryle Moody said. He said the two people admitted to the base hospital were in good condition Tuesday night.

Moody said all the people aboard the plane were military personnel.

Reports received by the Pentagon indicated the plane was carrying six crewmen and 10 passengers, said Lt. Col. Rick O'Born, a Pentagon spokesman in Washington, D.C.

The four-engine plane was reported to be on fire at the end of the runway after the crash, he said.

It was not known what the plane's mission was, Senior Airman Michael Blair said.

According to a U.S Air Force fact sheet, the KC-135 is a military version of the Boeing 707 transport and can fly at near sonic speed and at altitudes up to 50,000 feet, allowing receiver aircraft to onload fuel without slowing down or descending to lower altitudes where jet engines burn fuel more rapidly.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

'Wrongful birth' claim refused

KANSAS CITY, MO — A Kansas City couple cannot sue a physician for failing to tell them about a test that would have revealed the presence of Down's Syndrome before their child was born in 1983, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

The court, without comment, refused to review a "wrongful birth" claim by Carl and Barabara Wilson, who said they would have chosen abortion if they had known the child had the disorder.

Wilson was 36 at the time she conceived and 37 when she gave birth to her son, Robert, on June 23, 1983. The boy was born with Down's Syndrome, a genetic disorder that causes mental retardation and other defects.

In their suit against Dr. Donald Kuenzi of suburban Gladstone, Mo., the Wilsons cited medical evidence that the risk of a child having the disorder is about one in 1,000 when the mother is in her 20s and about one in 300 when she is 36.

The Wilsons said Kuenzi failed to inform them the disorder could be detected by amniocentesis, a medical procedure that tests fluid in the womb. They sued the doctor for negligence on their own behalf, and sued him for wrongful life on their son's behalf.

William Bernard, the Wilsons' lawyer, said he was disappointed that the Supreme Court would not review the case.

Washburn enrollment increases

TOPEKA — Washburn University, which could be the subject of intense legislative debate in the 1989 session, has an enrollment of 6,571 students for this fall semester, the municipal university announced.

That is 1.4 percent above the 6,438 students Washburn had in the fall semester of 1987.

Robert Burns, vice president for academic affairs, said 96 percent of Washburn's students are Kansas residents. He said Washburn's enrollment has gone up 9 percent in the past decade, despite rising tuition rates and a planned reduction in law school enrollment.

Gov. Mike Hayden is expected to propose taking Washburn into the state university system next session. The six state universities generally oppose adding Washburn, fearing it will stretch state funding even thinner among the existing schools.

Washburn relies on a combination of state aid comparable to what community colleges receive, student tuition revenue and a local property tax levy for its funding.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

COME TO THE ACTIVITIES Carnival to see what the college of Human Ecology has to offer from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Oct.12 and 13 in Hoffman Lounge, Justin.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "Little Shop of Horrors" at 8 p.m. Oct.12-14 in Nichols Theatre.

TODAY

MUSLIM COMMUNITY Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 208.

STUDENT GERONTOLOGY Club will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 350.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS will meet at 4 p.m. in Union 213.

ASSOCIATION OF ADULTS Returning to School will meet for peer counseling from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

GYMNASTICS CLUB will meet at 8 p.m. in Union Courtyard.

NATIONAL SOCIETY OF BLACK ENGINEERS will meet at 6:15 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

COMMUNITY SERVICE Program will have a table from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Union to recruit students for the summer.

KSNEA will meet at 3:30 p.m. in Bluemont 217. The topic is "Creativity in the Classroom."

OPEN FORUM QUESTION/ANSWER Session for all Environmental Design students will be at 4:30 p.m. in Little Theatre. Dick Hoag, department head, will lead the forum.

THURSDAY

PARACHUTE CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 206.

FOODS AND NUTRITION Interest Group will meet at 5:15 p.m. Students from various nutritional fields will discuss their summer internships.

SOCIETY OF MANUFACTURING Engineers will meet at 7 p.m. in Durland 129.

DEMONSTRATION INTERVIEW, open to all majors, will be at 7:30 p.m. in Durland 173.

CAMPUS CRUSADE for Christ will meet at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

SAILING CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

FORESTRY AND PARK Resources Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Call 228.

WOMEN IN COMMUNICATIONS INC. will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Ecumenical Christian Ministries, 1021 Denison Ave.

AMERICAN SOCIETY of Civil Engineers will meet at 7:40 p.m. in Throckmorton 132.

ICTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

AGRICULTURE REPS will meet at 6 p.m. in Calvin 211.

STUDENT GOVERNING ASSOCIATION Leadership Workshop will be at 6 p.m. in Union Big 8 Room. Everyone is welcome.

SGA OFFICE OPEN HOUSE will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on first floor Union for anyone interested in Student Government.

AG AMBASSADORS will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137. Yearbook pictures will follow.

K-STATE POLICE

Monday

■ The burglary theft of items from a handbag in Justin Hall was reported.

■ Audiovox tune knobs worth $40 were reported stolen from a vehicle parked in lot B-2.

■ A student parking permit worth $15 was reported stolen.

Tuesday

■ A wallet was reported recovered in Justin Hall.

■ A student parking permit was reported stolen from a vehicle parked off campus.

■ A trash can worth $28 was reported stolen from Seaton Hall.

■ A faculty/staff parking permit was reported lost in an unknown vicinity.

■ A wallet and contents worth $45 were reported lost.

■ A cable box worth $150 was reported stolen from Haymaker Hall.

For informative, comprehensive coverage of ELECTION '88, read the Collegian

Keep District 66 Growing!

Re-Elect State Representative

IVAN SAND

Tuesday, November 8

Paid for the by Committee to Re-Elect Ivan Sand, Jim Gordon, Treasurer

BUSHWACKERS · THE · FUNDRINKERY

Wed. $2 Pitchers $1.25 Wells

Grill Special 10 oz. Top Sirloin $3.95

Thurs. ALPHA CHI GREEK PLAYBOY 9 p.m. 531 N. Manhattan

BLUE MOON WATERBEDS "...For the Rest of Your Life"

EMERGENCY Just Married Must Raise Cash Fast! No Reasonable Offer Refused

217 S. 4th Manhattan 776-0716

ROCKY FORD TAVERN

Pitchers $2.25 TONIGHT ON TAP COORS LT, BUD, OLD MILW.

•NO DRESS CODE •NO COVER CHARGE

THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE

RL. 5 537-3133

BROTHERS In Aggieville

GO AHEAD... GO OUT TONIGHT

$2 Pitchers $2 Long Island Iced Teas

YOU CAN AFFORD IT!

1120 Moro 18 To Enter•21 To Drink 537-9511

Intramural Volleyball Officials Clinics

all those interested must attend the following:

1) Sun., Oct. 16 6:30 p.m. Union 207
2) Mon., Oct. 17 6:30 p.m. Rec Complex Multipurpose Rm.

Young Democrats

note these important dates:

Meeting—Today at 4 p.m., Union 213
Democratic Chili Feed—Thursday, Oct. 13, 5:30-7 p.m. at headquarters
Club Picture—Thurs., Oct. 13, 8 p.m., Fairchild 202

R•O•Y•A•L

Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Triangle–Oct. 12
Boyd–Oct. 12-13
Clovia–Oct. 13

P•U•R•P•L•E

Gas odor near campus prompts investigation

By Robert Short
Campus Editor

Reports of a strong gasoline odor Tuesday morning from sewer vents along the 1600 block of Anderson Avenue prompted a six-hour investigation by the Manhattan Fire Department and other city officials.

The Manhattan Fire Department was first contacted about fumes, which were found to be potentially flammable, at 10:30 a.m. by Manhattan Christian College officials. Employees of several businesses and offices along the south side of Anderson also reported noticing the odor of gasoline, said Larry Reese, deputy fire chief.

Employees of the Division of Continuing Education located in the Wareham Building, 1623 Anderson Ave., said they had been aware of the odor during the past few weeks, but said it was the strongest Monday. The Wareham Building, located south of Anderson Avenue behind Nichols Hall, has a sewer exhaust grate near the back of the building.

"When I first walked in the building I could smell (the odor). It was really strong, it smelled like gasoline," said Rene Delehanty, a receptionist with the division.

Continuing Education employees said the smell was the strongest in the basement.

City officials blocked off sections of 16th Street after test equipment showed that fumes from the liquid were 85 percent flammable, said Bruce McCallum, director of public works for the City of Manhattan.

The possibility of gasoline leaking from underground storage tanks at University Amoco service station was investigated, but employees of the service station said tank levels were normal. University Amoco is located one block west of where the odor appeared to be the strongest.

"We've been cleared by the fire department," said Dave Prater, owner of University Amoco. "The EPA will come down on you like a ton of bricks if you don't check (the tanks) daily."

Mike Conduff, Manhattan city manager, said the contamination appeared to be raw gasoline, but the source of the liquid was still unknown.

"Right now we are trying to isolate the source of the contamination," he said.

A sample of the contaminant was given to K-State officials for testing in University laboratories to determine what the substance was and possibly its origin. It appeared to be petroleum-based, Reese said.

The results of the test, he said, should be returned in 28 to 48 hours. Until then, city officials will continue to monitor the city's sewer systems, he said.

KPL Gas Service employees checked natural gas lines for leaks in all of the buildings in the area, but nothing was found, Reese said.

Manhattan firefighters flushed the 12-inch sewer main running parallel to Anderson Avenue with a mixture of foam and water at 4 and 7:30 p.m. to disperse the odor and flush out the remaining liquid, Reese said.

Staff/Jim Dietz

Rick Stillwagon, Manhattan firefighter, holds a hose in a sewer hole at the corner of 17th and Anderson Tuesday night. The Manhattan Fire Department had worked on eliminating a highly flammable gas-smelling substance from the sewers between 15th and 17th streets along Anderson Avenue since Tuesday morning.

Oleen lists schools as top priority

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

Lana Oleen, Republican candidate for the 22nd district of the State Senate, said school finances and prisons would be the most important issues to be considered by the Kansas Legislature when its next session opens in January 1989.

Oleen said property tax reappraisal and school district reclassification will affect how Kansas school districts are financed.

She said her experience as a teacher will enable her to better represent a district in which the largest industry is a state university.

For higher education, finances mean passage of the second year of the Margin of Excellence, a proposal which Oleen supports and for which she has campaigned.

"I have called and written on behalf of (MOE)," she said. "I think of (school finance) as parts of a pie. (MOE) is a section."

Oleen said she supports the construction of new prison facilities to deal with overcrowding of the state's prisons.

Lana Oleen

"I think (prisons) will be one of the two biggest issues before the Legislature," she said.

Another criminal justice issue, capital punishment, will probably come before the Legislature this session, Oleen said.

If called upon to vote on reinstitution of the death penalty, Oleen said she would cast a "yes" vote.

"I would vote for it. I would not indiscriminately vote for it," she said.

Five instances in which Oleen thinks the death penalty should be applied are: in cases of multiple murders, killing for hire, killing of witnesses, the murder of children and the killing of police officers.

"Under those conditions, I would vote for it," she said.

Capital punishment would probably come before the State Senate due to the high turnover in senators since the 1987 legislative session, when the death penalty was last considered, Oleen said.

Also, providing relief for taxpayers because of differences between the federal tax code and the state tax code will be another issue coming before the Legislature, she said.

"I believe the next legislative session will address and pass legislation to put us more in line with the federal tax code," Oleen said.

If she is elected, Oleen said she plans to open offices in Junction City and Manhattan to facilitate meeting with constitutents.

Oleen said she is opposed to the addition of Washburn University of Topeka to the universities under the authority of the Board of Regents.

Oleen is running against Democratic candidate Rod Olsen.

Kruger, 'Cats treat campers to chili feed

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

The K-State basketball team and head coach Lon Kruger gave campers outside Ahearn Field House a break from their normal menu and the cold weather Tuesday night with a chili feed in Ahearn.

"We really appreciate the campers. (Serving chili) is easy; camping out is the hard part," Kruger said. "This is a way for the basketball players to show their appreciation and everyone has fun."

Campers not only got a chance to warm up, but to meet basketball team members and coaches. The basketball players said serving chili is their way of giving something back to the campers.

"The campout really shows the caliber of our fans. They are sacrificing all their time, and we appreciate it," said team member Tony Massop, junior in English and pre-law.

The team served about 30 gallons of chili, provided by the Department of Housing and the KSU Athletic Department, and provided soft drinks to wash it down, Kruger said.

"If they can camp out for us, then we can serve them chili," said player Mark Dobbins, senior in marketing.

Jim Kearn, sophomore in architecture, said he needed a change in his campout diet.

"We usually just eat pizza while we're here. The chili is a good break," he said.

Some campers said food alone won't keep them warm.

"It's great, but we could use a heater," said Robin Cutshall, freshman in pre-med.

Players said the dedication fans have shown by camping out gives an emotional boost to the whole team.

Super Food Barn
OVER 20,000 DISCOUNT PRICES
222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202
Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

SPECIALS

Del Monte Tomato Juice ..... 69¢
46 oz. can

Milwaukee's Best, reg. or light $2.99
12 12oz. cans

Pepsi ..... 97¢
2 ltr. bottle

Ground Chuck ..... $1.29/lb.
Family Pack

Lay's Potato Chips ..... 99¢
7 oz. bag

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)

Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa

Park Place apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951

Why roam all over town?
Manhattan Shoe Repair has

—Buckles
—Billfolds
—Hand Bags
—Belts
—Coin Purses

Spenco Arches—Insoles at discount prices
Leather Luster $7.89
Rubber Overshoes

21 years experience with fast service, quality work and drive-up convenience

Open 8-5:30 weekdays
Thursday til 8
Saturday 8-4:30
closed Sunday & Monday

So Make Tracks for
Manhattan Shoe Repair
401 Humboldt
Downtown
776-1193
Wash Palace
Shoe Drop Station
Candlewood

VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
COLORADO
$167* from

JANUARY 2-6 • LODGING • LIFTS • PARTIES • PICNIC • RACE • MORE!

Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAK 1989

VAIL/BEAVER CREEK WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Hotel or fully equipped condominium lodging for 5 days/4 nights, or 7 days/6 nights • Full day fully interchangeable Vail/Beaver Creek lift tickets for 3 or 4 days with additional days available at reduced rates • Apres Ski Parties sponsored by Leroux Schnapps with live entertainment and complimentary beverages • Mid-week Chicken Picnic with complimentary beverages • Mountain Fun Ski Race with prizes • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/Beaver Creek shuttle service (nominal charge between Beaver Creek and Vail) • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.

TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: WINTER PARK, KEYSTONE AND STEAMBOAT
sunchase tours

GREEK OPEN HOUSE
BENEFIT TONIGHT
proceeds from the Greek Open House to benefit the Kansas State Vietnam Memorial

• $1.99 PITCHERS BACK BAR
• FREE PRIZES, AUCTION & MORE!
• JOIN: Tri Sigs, Alpha Chios, ADPis, Kappas, ATOs, Sigma Nus, Sigma Chis and Fijis, TONITE!
• GUEST DJ's: Nicki Cox & Ray Norman!

MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT...
KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
18 to enter 21 to drink - 619 N. 9th St., Aggieville, 539-9794

Two Locations To Serve You Better

1443 Anderson
(Across the Street from Nichols Hall)
Sun.-Sat. 7 a.m.-8 p.m.
537-2426

211 S. Seth Childs
(South of Seth Childs Theatres)
Sun.-Sat. 11 a.m.-8 p.m.
537-2411

SUBS N SUCH
Home of the Kitchen Sink

- 17 Different Footlongs and 6" Subs
- Custom Original Style Bread
- 4 ft.-6 ft. Party Subs Available on Order
- Design Your Own Sandwich
- Call Ahead, We'll Have It Ready

FOR YOUR INFORMATION:
Former Navy Submarine Cooks tell of a sandwich they prepared for their crews during the World War II era. It was served on a firm loaf of bread which resembled home made. The firm consistency of this bread allowed toppings to be applied to the sandwich without the bread becoming doughy, unlike a Hoagie. True to tradition, Subs-N-Such still serves its Subs this way.

Graduate school entrance exams make no sense

Try to answer this question: A parking lot charges a flat rate of X dollars for any amount of time up to two hours, and 1/6 X for each hour or fraction of an hour after the first two hours. How much does it cost to park for 5 hours and 15 minutes?

You have roughly a minute and 45 seconds to understand and work through this problem. Your admission to a decent graduate school may very well hinge upon your response, if this question appeared on your Graduate Record Examination or the Graduate Management Aptitude Test.

Most graduate schools throughout the United States require at least one entrance exam. The favorite for graduate schools of business is the GMAT. K-State's Graduate School of business, following the trend, also requires GMAT for admission to the Master of Business Administration or the Master of Accountancy programs. In addition, if you are unfortunate enough to be labeled as an international student, you will have to take the Test of Spoken English for admission to the M.Acc. program. It would not matter if you had done your undergraduate work in the United States and had taken all sorts of communication electives.

Enough has been said about the validity and reliability of entrance exams. For the most part, the exams are debatable. I am not really concerned about the reliability and validity of such exams. What bothers me is a more fundamental question: Do graduate schools have the right to ask for such test scores, or at least a real need for them?

In a sense, the requirement of such scores implies an invasion of the applicant's privacy. It will be useful to draw a parallel between the test score requirements and a polygraph.

A polygraph, better known as a lie detector, is a psychological technique that uses physiological responses to questions in order to evaluate an individual's truthfulness. Lie detectors, until recently, were being used on a noticeable scale by employers to verify the information given by the prospective employees. Use of the polygraph is now controversial on the grounds that it invades the privacy of the employee. There is substantial pressure on employers to quit using them.

Commentary

SHEIKH FAISAL RAZZAQ

Collegian Columnist

A similar case can be made of test scores. I would define required test scores for admission to graduate schools as a dirty technique that uses mental responses to tricky questions to verify what is already shown on the transcript of the student.

Here's a college graduate who has worked hard for years to earn a college degree. Now this poor guy goes to the graduate school and presents his transcript for admission to the graduate school. "That's not enough," says the graduate school, "Spend some more time and money, and fetch us some test scores."

I contend virtually all the information is incorporated into the transcript of a student. It is just a matter of the graduate schools putting in some time and effort to retrieve the relevant information they need in order to make a good decision.

For example, to measure the quantitative skills of an applicant, the admission committee can devise a weighted average measure of the grades in relevant courses like mathematics, computer science, statistics and so on.

As far as variability in the grading standards of the undergraduate institutions goes, such variability can be nullified by adjusting the measure as seen appropriate by the admission committee.

It may be pointed out to graduate school admission committees that they not only have transcripts from the applicants, but also boiler-plate application forms. These forms usually require numerous personal essays and some even require information on where your parents went to school.

Considering the sample of overt and covert information available to graduate schools, the only reason I think graduate schools require test scores is to make their lives easier and lives of students uncomfortable. By requiring test scores, graduate schools are in fact asking for verification of information they already have. Furthermore, by requiring the applicants to take tests which are not needed, they are implicitly invading the privacy of the candidates.

Some graduate schools have realized the uselessness of such test scores. For example, the graduate school of business at Harvard does not require or accept GMAT scores.

At K-State, the only department I can think of (there might be more) which does not require applicants to take some sort of ability test for entrance into a graduate program is the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering. I wish there were many more of them here and at universities all over America.

By the way, if you worked through the problem at the beginnig of this column, the correct answer is 1 2/3 X.

U.S. should support elections in Chile

In recent referendum elections, the people of Chile voted to end the 15-year dictatorship of Gen. Augusto Pinochet. Not too surprising, considering that the people in Chile never wanted him in the first place.

In 1973, certain factions in the United States backed a coup to topple the government of Chile's elected leader Salvador Allende; thus ending Chile's long-standing tradition of democracy.

Throughout the recent history of Latin American countries, the U.S. government has seen it necessary to meddle in their governments. History provides many examples of this. In Guatemala, American big business — objecting to mild land reform policies — used its influence to overthrow a democratic, popularly-elected government. In Nicaragua, by supporting an unpopular leader, the United States sent the Sandinista government to Moscow to buy arms and seek other aid.

In Chile, the U.S. government, namely the CIA, overthrew a popularly-elected president, because the CIA believed Chile had taken socialism too far to the left. Despite certain problems in the Chilean economy, the military junta that the United States put in power only made things worse, by nearly collapsing the economy.

The United States has, in many cases, helped overthrow popular governments only to have it come back in its face in a wave of anti-Americanism.

Now Chile has the chance to turn full circle, and once again have a popularly-elected government. If the anti-American sentiment has not been built up too far by the supporting of the Pinochet regime, then the United States has the chance of helping this newly-elected leader make a better Chile. The United States will in turn receive a valuable ally and will improve relations with Chile and other Latin American nations.

It is time the American government stopped forcing its short-sighted policies on other nations, only to have the countries turn against America in the long run.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTOGRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

UNSIGNED EDITORIALS represent the consensus opinion of the Collegian's editorial board. Opinion columns do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian management, Student Publications, Inc. or the newspaper staff in general.

Enrollment restrictions needed

Limited resources affect architecture

The lead editorial in the Sept. 26 issue of the Collegian addressed the inadequate resources available to meet the educational needs of the growing enrollment at K-State. This matter is of vital importance to the College of Architecture and Design, to the University and to the citizens of Kansas.

For more than two years, the college has been engaged in a careful, wide-ranging study of its resources and its means for assuring fair and efficient use of these resources. Mindful of the proud and historic land-grant mission of our University, which has served our nation with distinction, we have sought to meet our dual obligation: to make professional environmental design and planning education accessible, and to assure the delivery of quality educational opportunities. To do less would be to honor the form of the land-grant tradition while betraying its substance.

The college has made careful projections of future enrollments and has described the human, physical and financial resources required to responsibly accommodate those enrollments. The Provost and the President have studied our findings and have concluded that K-State will not be able to meet those needs. Together we have decided the only ethical course of action open to us is development of a means to limit enrollment in the college.

Reader Comment

FACULTY & ADMINISTRATION

College of Architecture and Design

Cognizant that nothing can measure intellectual or creative ability — that high school grades or ACT scores are not infallible predictors of academic success in higher education — we are working with the office of Planning and Evaluation Services and with similar colleges across our nation to fashion admission criteria which will help assure that the students entering our college have diverse backgrounds, high motivation and adequate preparation for our demanding curricula. No matter what criteria we employ in deciding on admission to the freshman year, we remain committed to assuring students the opportunity to transfer into our college from other K-State colleges and from other institutions.

The College of Architecture and Design has long served a highly diverse student body: rural and urban, American and international, students who have come directly from secondary school, who have served in the military, who have begun their studies in other fields and who have decided to pursue new life directions after years or decades in their careers. We have witnessed the intellectual ferment and the heightened academic achievement fostered by this rich mix of students. We will retain the diversity which has contributed so significantly to the strength of the College of Architecture and Design at K-State as we control our enrollment.

Letters

Way off base

Editor,

Judd Annis, I too attended The Beach Boys' concert Saturday, Oct. 1. However, unlike you, I totally enjoyed it. I suggest that if you require a clear, finished product, that you purchase a compact disc player and some Bose 600 Series speakers. As Mike Love stated, the majority of the concert-goers weren't even thought of when The Beach Boys first started performing. How old were you?

I didn't hear any booing going on, except when Mike Love teased the audience about not doing their "car songs." And duh, "I is a college student," I too noticed that after 15 years on the road, a few of the band members looked well-aged. Duh again, you are pretty observant Judd. I guess the best part about The Beach Boys concert was that upon returning to class Monday I wasn't Def, oops, I mean deaf from an overbearing sound system and I could still hear my teacher's lecture.

The real test for rock bands is not how loud they can play, but how long can they stay. Judd — Judd! Can you hear me, Judd?

In 25 years, Judd, if Def Leppard is still playing concerts, I eat these words. Can you hear me Judd? Are you Def, Judd?

Dean Dawson
sophomore in park resource management

Prison population warrants research

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A special task force will seek federal funds to begin research into possible reforms of the state's system for sentencing criminals, in hope of making it easier to manage a growing prison population.

The Coordinating Council on Criminal Justice voted yesterday to ask the National Institute of Corrections for a grant to begin the research, which could then be used to set up a system of sentencing guidelines for judges. Such a system generally would make sentences more specific and limit a judge's discretion in sentencing those convicted of crimes.

Corrections Secretary Roger Endell, who serves as the council's chairman, said such research would cost "a couple of hundred thousand dollars" initially. The council also could seek money from the Legislature later, he said.

"This would be the seed money to get it started," Endell said of the federal funding.

The council spent much of its regular monthly meeting discussing sentencing guidelines with two officials from Minnesota, which enacted a specific system in 1980.

Gov. Mike Hayden formed the council in March to look for long-term solutions. Its members include four legislators, state Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert H. Miller and Attorney General Robert T. Stephan.

"It's the long-term solution," Endell said. "It would give us a long-term monitoring capability because it would allow us to manage the situation."

Endell has complained frequently about the state's sentencing laws, which only establish the range of time a person will spend in prison, leaving the decision of how much a person will actually serve up to the Kansas Parole Board.

For example, a judge in Kansas may sentence a person convicted of a Class D felony that involve crimes against people to a minimum of two to three years in prison all the way up to a maximum of five to 10 years in prison.

In Minnesota, the Legislature created a sentencing guidelines commission, which ranked individual crimes in 10 categories based upon their seriousness.

A person's sentence is then based upon the crime and his or her past criminal record. The sentence also is specific — a person convicted of armed robbery would be sentenced to two years in prison, for example.

Judges can hand out a sentence that is either harsher or more lenient than that recommended, but they must justify such a sentence in writing because it can be appealed.

"I thought this should have been adopted many years ago," Stephan said.

College aptitude test scores decline

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Modest declines in scores Kansas students posted on college aptitude tests taken last school year should spur the state to improve high school curriculum opportunities, state Education Commissioner Lee Drogemueller said today.

"If we don't improve our curriculum, Kansas students are going to fall behind," Drogemueller told the state Board of Education, which opened a two-day monthly meeting.

"We're going to move backward by standing still," he added. "We've got to be concerned, because our ability to compete in a global society is very important. (The Kansas scores) are significant because we're not moving ahead as rapidly as we should. We've got to move forward."

Drogemueller's comments ended a lively discussion among the 10 board members over significance of declines in American College Testing (ACT), Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and Prelimary SAT-National Merit Scholar test scores by Kansas high school juniors and seniors during the 1987-88 school year.

Those scores showed Kansas students' composite average scores dropped from 19.3 in 1986-87 to 19.1 in 1987-88 out of a maximum of 36 on the ACT; from 1045 to 1035 out of a maximum 1600 on the SAT, and from 88.6 to 88.3 out of a maximum 160 on the PSAT-NMSQT.

Those scores still ranked Kansas above the national average of 18.8 on the ACT, 904 on the SAT and 85.4 on the PSAT-NMSQT.

Generally, Kansas' students math scores declined more than they did in other areas.

Fifty-two percent of Kansas' college-bound seniors last academic year, or 19,053, took the ACT, which is required for entry into most colleges and universities but not the more prestigious ones.

Only 10 percent of Kansas' college-bound seniors, or 2,902, took the SAT, which is required when applying for admission to the prestigious universities.

Thirty-eight percent of Kansas' college-bound high school juniors, or 11,959, took the PSAT-NMSQT, which prepares them for taking the SAT a year later and determines selection as a national merit scholar.

Assistant state Education Commissioner Sharon Freden, who presented the figures to the board, said she was concerned about the decline in Kansas scores, even though they were modest.

The scores reflect the curriculums the students have, she said, adding, "Students need access to and enrollment in courses that will help them succeed in college. The obvious is true: The students who have been enrolled in more math courses do better on math tests."

Drogemueller came down strong on the side of board members who argued the tests are an important guage of how Kansas' students are faring in an increasingly competitive scientific world.

He agreed with board member Kathleen White of Prairie Village, who said, "Those students have to compete out there in the world. We need to know how our's are doing in relation to others. I don't think it's such a small piece (of the educational picture in Kansas)."

"Compared to what the regents' schools require, these are not very good scores," said another board member, Sheila Frahm of Colby.

However, board members Richard Robl of Hutchinson and Paul Adams of Osage City questioned importance of the test scores. They said the tests are unimportant for those who don't go to college and don't predict what kind of student a person will be in college.

"We need to make it clear that it (test score) correlates with what their chances are in college," said Robl. "I don't think it's very important for most students. It's not necessarily indicative of how well our schools are doing. It's only one little piece of information."

"Does this show what's going on in education in Kansas? I think it does not," said Adams. "We're talking only about half of our students. We need to be concerned about all of them. I'm fearful of splashy headlines that make us look bad, and maybe this shouldn't."

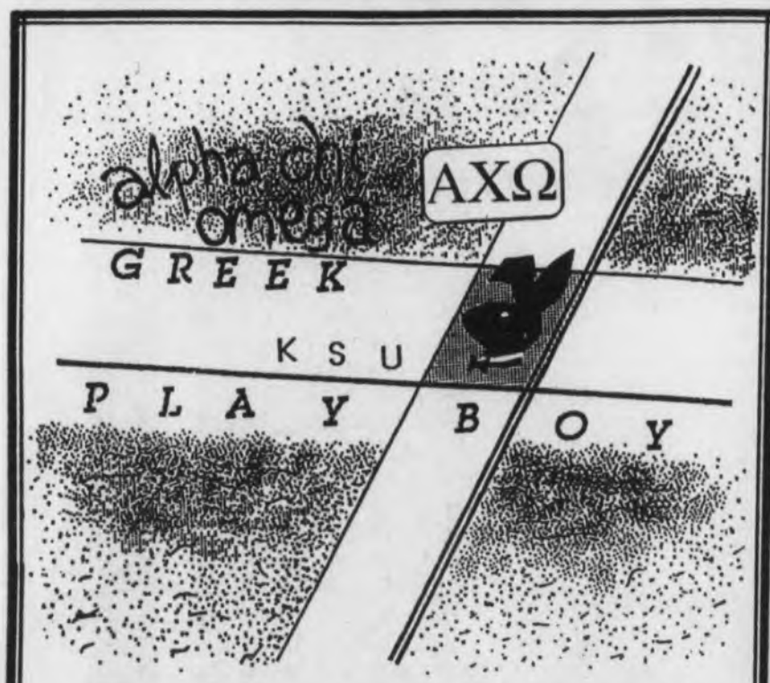
Topeka board member Connie Hubbell said perhaps the board was "being too hard on ourselves." She noted that Fortune Magazine had ranked Kansas seventh in the nation on the basis of the college aptitude scores, and said that was pretty good.

Manhattan
SHOE REPAIR
25% OFF
Rubber Overshoes
in stock
Sale Ends 11/1/88
Open Tues.-Fri. 8-5:30
Thurs. 8-8, Sat 8-4:30
401 Humboldt, 776-1193
Wash Palace, (Shoe Drop)
Candlewood

No Pain,
No Gain???
NO WAY!!!!

Pain is a sign that something is wrong!
Call today 537-8305
Dr. Mark J. Hatesohl
Chiropractor
3252 Kimball Avenue

The Station
THE GREAT AGGIEVILLE
STEAK-OUT
WEDNESDAYS, 5-10 p.m.



16 oz. SIRLOIN $4.99
includes steak fries & texas toast
8 oz. SIRLOIN $2.69
includes steak fries & texas toast
1115 Moro Street, Aggieville telephone: 776-0030

Manhattan Milling Co.
Purina Cat Chow
20 lb. bag—$9.99
Purina Hi-Pro
50 lb. bag—$17.50
Purina Field & Farm
50 lb. bag—$14.25
Purina Dog Chow
50 lb. bag—$14.50
Purina Puppy Chow
40 lb. bag—$16.95
Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

joli styling salon 539-1177
1106 Laramie
Aggieville
GRAND OPENING
$10 off perms
$12 off perm and cut
$2 off French Manicure
prices effective Oct. 10-15
REGISTER TO WIN
haircuts
1 perm
manicures
tanning sessions
Walk-ins always welcome

WAL-MART
Pictureland Portrait Studio
Christmas Portrait Offer!
FREE 8x10
with the purchase of our 13-piece portrait package

(frame not included)
PLUS $2 OFF
NOW ONLY $7.95 plus 95¢ sitting fee (reg. $9.95)
BRING IN ANY LOWER PRICED ADVERTISED OFFER AND WE'LL MATCH IT!
one 8x10, two 5x7s* and ten wallets on your choice of a traditional, nursery, spring or fall background
Plus an extra 8x10 FREE! on a traditional background
We welcome everyone...babies, children, adults and family groups. No appointment is ever necessary. Satisfaction guaranteed! Poses our selection. Black and White Backgrounds, Double Exposure and other Special Effects Portraits not available in advertised package. $1.50 for each additional person in portrait. Minors must be accompanied by an adult. *approximate size
Studio Hours: Daily: 10 a.m. until one hour prior to store closing; Sunday (where open): store opening until one hour prior to store closing
The photographer will be here through
Sunday, October 16
CHRISTMAS BACKGROUND AVAILABLE
628 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan, KS
LAST TIME THIS OFFER AVAILABLE FOR CHRISTMAS GIFT GIVING!

Good Luck to All Greek Playboy Contestants From POWER FM 94.5
Tomorrow at 8 p.m.
at BUSHWACKERS
• THE • FUNDRINKERY
in Aggieville

ESTABLISHED 1920
THE Stevensons CLOTHING COMPANY
INVITES YOU TO OUR FALL OPEN HOUSE!
NEW LOOK - The 60-year old tradition of Stevensons has a fresh approach to menswear with a newly remodeled store
NEW OWNER - Stevensons mens and ladies stores are both under new management
NEW MERCHANDISE - Both Stevensons stores are featuring beautiful new fall and winter items, new labels as well as favorite designers
plus a NEW SHOE STORE - Foley's in Westloop - the only mens and ladies shoe store on the west side of Manhattan
REGISTER TO WIN
One of 10 $100.00 Certificates
Totaling $1,000.00
Good At Stevensons Men's and Ladies and Foley's Shoes
Now Through Saturday
STOP BY LOOK US OVER
AND ENJOY SOME REFRESHMENT
1342 WESTLOOP PLACE • WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
MANHATTAN, KANSAS (913) 539-8081

ArtShare educates local students

By Becky Ives
Staff Writer

In an effort to help educate elementary students in the arts, and to help them learn about dance, the K-State Dance Repertory Organization is working with the Manhattan Public Schools in the ArtShare program.

ArtShare is a joint project between the program and Manhattan USD 383. It was created by Luke Kahlich, associate professor of speech, and is being coordinated by Nancy Keyser-Shade, dance instructor.

"Luke has been talking with people in the public school system for about a year trying to get this going," Keyser-Shade said. "There was interest last year, but no time in the elementary schedule to do it, so we waited until this year."

As a pilot program, ArtShare is only going to two of the public schools.

Oct. 3 to Oct. 20, K-Staters go to Eugene Field School and Woodrow Wilson School. On the three Mondays in that span, students go to Eugene Field, and on the three Thursdays, they go to Woodrow Wilson.

Patricia Durbin, senior in dance and a class leader, said the reaction of the third-grade students to the classroom sessions has been great.

"The kids had a blast," Durbin said. "After we were done, I asked them if they had fun dancing and they were so suprised that they did. To them, dancing is something that you just don't do.

"In fact, when we finished today's session, one of the groups asked us if we would come back the very next day," Durbin said.

Fifteen students from the Methods and Materials of Teaching Dance class will present lecture/demonstrations, performances and class sessions to the schools.

The classroom sessions will be for the third-grade classes only, while the lecture/demonstrations will be for the entire schools.

"The lecture/demonstration is an introduction class; how we train ourselves to dance and what we consider to be dance," Keyser-Shade said. "We do things like go through problems and solve them through dance."

An example of that, Keyser-Shade said, is how a person can go through a short doorway with a glass of water balanced on his head. The students learn to solve that by participation.

"Our specific goal is to create dance as an educational process that involves both body and mind," Keyser-Shade said. "The elementary students get that knowledge, not from our telling them and having them spit it back out to us, but through their own discovery and participation."

The two classroom sessions are divided into two topics. In the first session, the students learn to work on shapes and how the shapes move through space. The second session is designed to teach how dance is related to music.

Both the class sessions and the lecture/demonstrations last for 45 minutes.

"The whole idea is to get the students up and moving around. After all, movement is natural to anybody. We let the students create with both their minds and their bodies," Durbin said.

The reaction to the program has been very positive, Keyser-Shade said.

"So far the reaction has been very positive from both the elementary school reaction and from our point of view," she said.

KU student dead; motive unknown

By The Associated Press

LAWRENCE — The body of a college student from Chicago was found hanging from a tree branch near his fraternity house at the University of Kansas Tuesday.

The victim was identified as Glenn Franklin, 20, a junior.

He was discovered with a rope around his neck and hanging from a tree in a wooded area between the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house and Memorial Stadium. The discovery of the body was reported to city police in a call to the 911 emergency line.

"The cause of death is still undetermined pending notification from the coroner. The motive is unknown. There does not appear to be any foul play," campus police Lt. Jeanne Longaker said.

"The investigation is not complete, but so far there appears to be no one else involved except the victim," she said when asked if the death was a suicide. She said Franklin left notes but added that she did not know the content of the notes or where they were left.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

KSU
Credit Union will be closed
Friday, Oct. 14
and reopen
Monday, Oct. 17
in temporary offices at Leisure Hall,
Room 6B.

This 60-day move is necessary while our Anderson Hall office is renovated.

KSU Credit Union
6B Leisure Hall
Weekdays, 9 a.m.-4 p.m
532-6274

DISTINGUISHED
GRADUATE FACULTY MEMBER AWARD

Students, Faculty, and Staff are invited to an Honor Lecture

"Rural Peoples in a Global Economy"
by Professor
Cornelia B. Flora

Department of Sociology, Anthropology, and Social Work

1988 Recipient of the Distinguished Graduate
Faculty Member Award

President Jon Wefald, presiding

3:30 p.m., Friday,
October 14, 1988
Nichols Theatre

Attention Customers
WE'VE MOVED!
Come see us at our new location
1329 ANDERSON
kinko's
the copy center

coupon
2½¢ per copy
8½x11/20 No. white/auto fed originals
present coupon at time of purchase
Open 24 Hours
Offer Expires 10/31/88
coupon

DINE-IN/CARRYOUT
Check your local yellow pages for the Pizza Hut® restaurant nearest you.

$9.99 TWO MEDIUM CHEESE HAND-TOSSED PIZZA
$1.60 PER ADDITIONAL TOPPING. COVERS BOTH PIZZAS

•AGGIEVILLE	•WESTLOOP SHP. CTR.	•3RD & MORO ST.
1121 MORO	2931 CLAFLIN RD.	231 MORO
539-7666	539-7447	776-4334

*FOR DELIVERY CALL 539-7666 OR THE LOCATION NEAREST YOU.
NOT VALID IN COMBINATION WITH ANY OTHER
SPECIAL OFFER. EXPIRES NOV. 6, 1988
Pizza Hut.

LAST CHANCE
1213 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
776-9451
WEDNESDAY MEANS
$1.60
MARGARITAS
&
WELL DRINKS
ALL DAY & NIGHT!
★ ★
RELAX ON OUR FAMOUS SANTA CLAUS PATIO!

PAC CATS CASH
FRIENDS HELPING FRIENDS
FORE MORE INFORMATION CALL 539-6927
ONE DOLLAR

WHAT IS PAC-CATS CASH?

PAC-CATS Cash is an incentive program that gives you a chance to earn " dollars" for your participation in the PAC-CATS Wellness Program. Trade your "cash" in for incentives at the PAC-CATS Office, Lafene Lower Level-Suite 26.

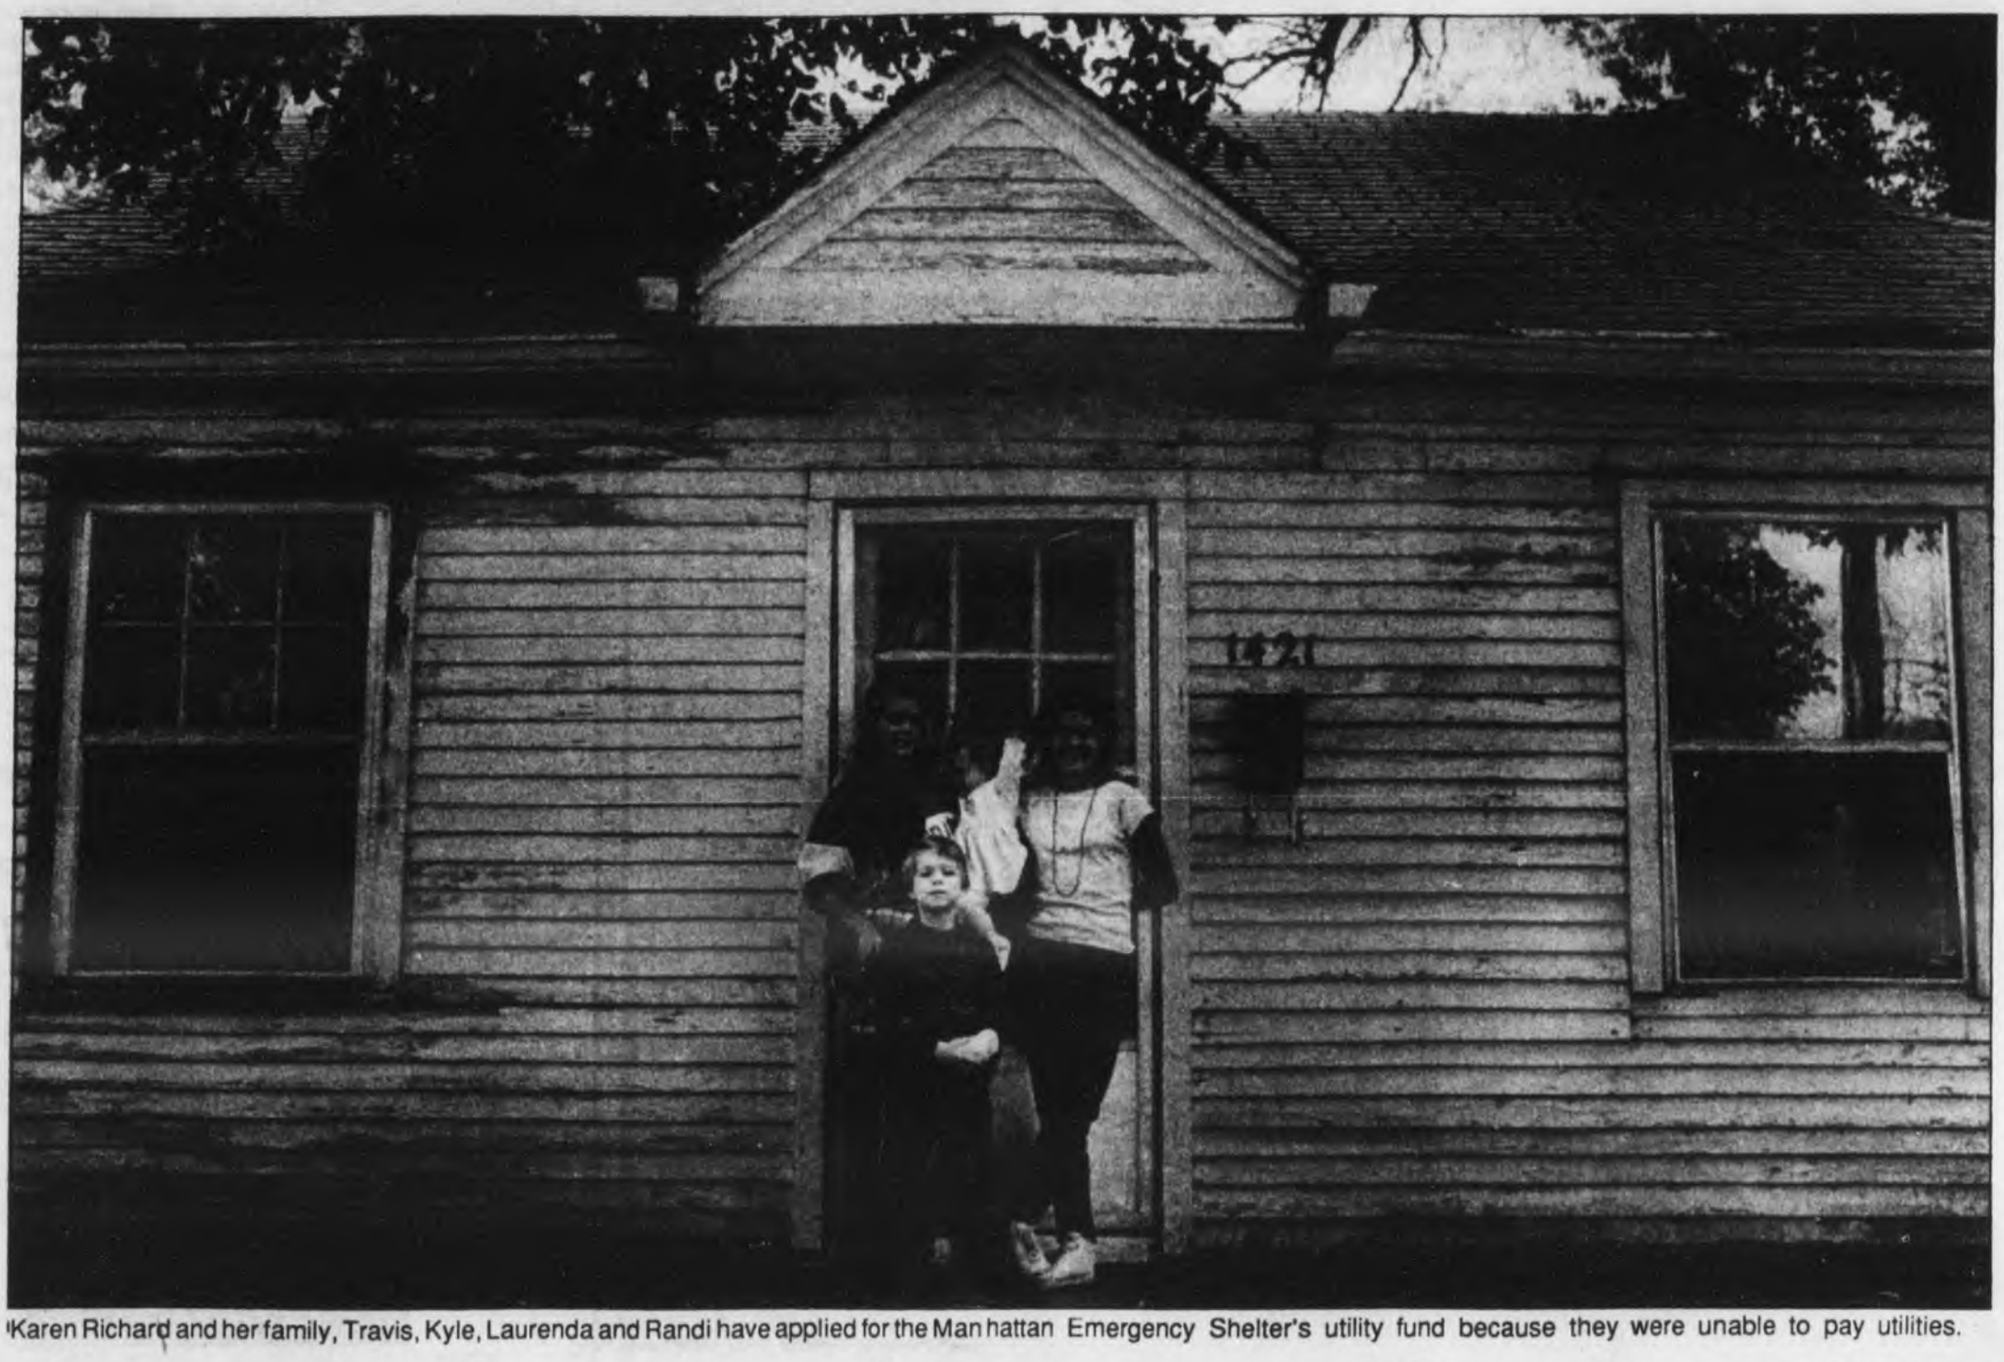
EARNING CASH IS EASY
You earn $1 of PAC-CATS Cash for:
*Meeting with a PAL
*Completing your PAC for 1 week
A total of $2 per week is possible

WHAT CASH BUYS
Level 1 Gifts
*PAC-CATS baseball cap
*Medium Size I Can't Believe It's Yogurt
*Voucher for 2 jumbo cookies from The Bakery
*A beverage from the Union's Juice Bar
Purchase of Level 1 requires: $5 PC Cash
Level 2 Gifts
*PAC-CATS "Celebrate Wellness" t-shirt
*The Stretching Book
*Gourmet Brown Bag Lunch
*Ticket to an event at Nichols Theatre
Purchase of Level 2 requires: $9 PC Cash
Level 3 Gifts
*PAC-CATS "Celebrate Wellness" sweatshirt
*1989 Diet and Health Calendar
*Brown Bag Gourmet Lunch for 2
*1989 365 New Words a Year Calendar
Purchase of Level 3 requires: $17 PC Cash

START YOUR PAC OCTOBER 10-14
AND EARN A LEVEL 3 GIFT BEFORE FINALS
Reach your goals and have some fun!

PAC-CATS would like to thank Residence Hall Food Service and I Can't Believe It's Yogurt for their support.

VANDERBILT'S



Genuine, Exotic
ELEPHANT
For the Western boot wearer who knows what he wants and can afford to buy it. Trophy series from Laredo offers a boot with the look of success! Exotic, genuine elephant leather foot with leather-like upper.
$88.88
Compare to $139.95

WESTERN
Three colors available: Black smooth cowhide, Red Label Hondo (Medium Brown), and Grey cowhide. 12" matching top with Apache flame stitching and accent boot pulls. These boots are as comfortable as they are tough. Cushion insoles for all day wear, durable outsoles.
$49.99
Compare to $89.95

$49.99
Compare to $89.95
ROPER
New this year from Laredo. Popular-priced Ropers with cowhide foot and matching deep dip shaft. Cushioned insoles for all-day or all-night comfort because you can wear them for work, play or dancing the night away. 1st Quality, with Dupont Hypalon sole for extra long wear. Available in sizes D 7-12, 13, EE 7-12.
With Dupont Hypalon Sole!

Laredo
WESTERN BOOTS
VISA
DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100
MasterCard

Karen Richard and her family, Travis, Kyle, Laurenda and Randi have applied for the Manhattan Emergency Shelter's utility fund because they were unable to pay utilities.

Shelter helps residents afford utilities

Karen Richard first went to the Manhattan Emergency Shelter Inc. in October 1985. She had just been released from an alcohol and drug treatment program and needed a place to stay. The shelter gave her a month of free housing, until she could find a place of her own.

Now, three years later, Richard needs help again.

Like many other Manhattan residents, Richard is looking for a job. Although she has no source of income, the bills keep coming. With her four children, ranging in age from 14 months to 11 years, Richard turned to the shelter for assistance.

MESI, located at 831 Leavenworth Street, offers shelter, life skills classes, clothing giveaways and utilities assistance. Manhattan residents who meet income guidelines based on family size can receive financial assistance to help pay their utility bills, said Kathy Rankin, MESI executive director.

Unless Richard receives utility assistance, Kansas Power and Light will cut off her gas and electricity.

"It's starting to be winter, and I got a lot of bills to pay. I've already had my power cut off by KPL once," she said Thursday at the shelter.

"The assistance program is great; it helps people like me who are without work and can't pay some bills," Richard said. "I came in here the first time (KPL) cut me off, and (MESI) helped me out the same day."

Utility assistance is relatively new. Red Cross began the program in 1985. The shelter took over two years later because the cost of running the program was too great for the Red Cross, Rankin said.

The utility program is the only "main program of its type" in Manhattan, she said, other than the Low Income Energy Assistance Program (LIEAP). It is a federal program available to the elderly and handicapped during the winter and summer. LIEAP is also available to low-income families during the winter.

Those who aren't assisted by the shelter usually find help through other agencies, Rankin said. Options include the Salvation Army, Kansas Department of Social Rehabilitation Services, United Way and area churches.

Rev. John Stoneking from the First United Methodist Church and Rev. Phil Gittings from the First Presbyterian Church went to the Manhattan City Council in 1984 to request funds for the utility program.

The city donated $15,000, provided that area churches could supply $5,000. Stoneking said city funding has dropped to less than $10,000 during the past few years.

The amount of funds social service programs in Manhattan receive is decided by a social services advisory board, said Curt Wood, Manhattan director of finance. The amount allocated for utility assistance in 1989 is $9,300.

Stoneking, who serves on the shelter's board of directors along with Gittings, will talk about utility assistance programs available in Manhattan at a Homeboard public forum from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday at the First United Methodist Church. Homeboard is an organization that deals with housing problems in the Manhattan area.

"A lot of people are having a difficult time with food and rent, so they try to do without one or the other," Stoneking said. "It's possible to do without high utilities in the summer and use the money for food, but when the winter comes, it's impossible to neglect utilities."

Merrie Martin, volunteer administrator at MESI, has been donating three to four hours of her time each Thursday for the past year to meet with assistance applicants.

"On an average Thursday, we'll have about eight to 15 applicants. Our peak times are two or three months behind peak utility usage months.

"So, although it's almost winter," Martin said, "we're helping people pay summer bills now. It won't be until December and January that we hit the winter bills."

It is impossible to help everyone because of lack of funds, Rankin said.

"If a person comes in with a very large bill and his electricity will be shut off the next day, we probably can't help that person much," she said, adding that the shelter usually would help that person find another means of help.

"We deal with smaller bills. If we pay only a part of the large bill, the person will still lose the power," Rankin said. "That's almost throwing our money away — the person still has a problem."

In 1985, 243 applicants received utility aid. The number fell to 130 in 1986, but rose to 372 last year. Out of 358 applicants so far this year, 278 have been helped.

Rankin said fewer were helped the second year because large amounts of money were given out at a time. Instead of limiting the amount paid on a certain bill, the policy allowed the total bill to be paid, which at times totaled $200, on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Martin said that this year's budget restrictions allow each applicant about $30 to $40 for a bill, and this aid can only be received three times a year.

"The figures might be misleading because a person we turn down one week might come in again and be approved later. This happens a lot when bills aren't past due one week, but the next week they are. We try to pay the most urgent bills first," Martin said.

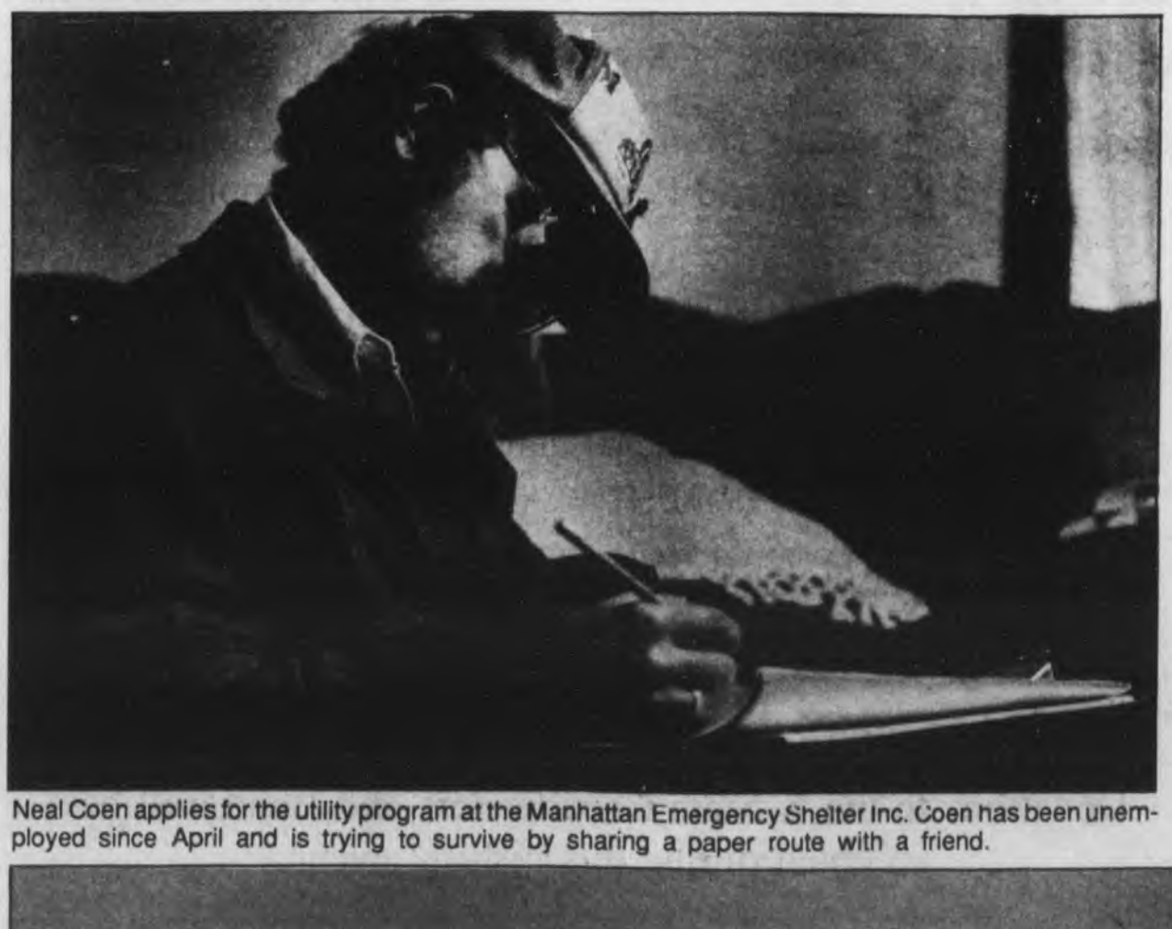
Applicants are also asked if they could set up a pay agreement with KPL.

"We want our clients to make an effort before they come to us. KPL will work with them, because the bottom line is that KPL wants them to keep their power on, but (KPL) also wants their money," Rankin said.

"(Power cut-off) is a last resort," said John Johannes, KPL district manager. "We have a customer adviser who will sit down and work out problems with bill payments."

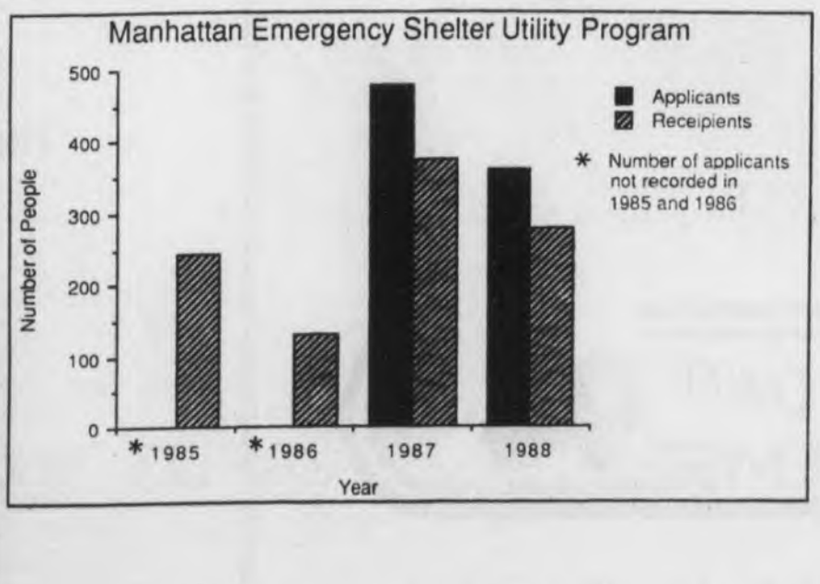
KPL will refer customers who have bill problems to other agencies that can assist with the payments, but sometimes a customer fails to receive payment elsewhere, Johannes said.

"We disconnect quite a few customers on a daily basis, but we are not in the business to shut off people's power.



"When our customers get their bill, it's for services that they have already used," he said. "So when we bill, it's for something that has already been provided."

"We try to find out if people are living within their means; we don't want to help someone who doesn't need it," she said. Before accepting people, MESI checks their bill payment history.



"Once in a while we find a person who has not made an effort to be self-sufficient. In this case, we might help (the person) find a job or refer him to another agency," Rankin said.

The University for Man sponsors a service that enables a home owner to save money on utility bills by upgrading the energy efficiency of the house. UFM supplies the labor,

■ See UTILITY, Page 13

Neal Coen applies for the utility program at the Manhattan Emergency Shelter Inc. Coen has been unemployed since April and is trying to survive by sharing a paper route with a friend.

Story by Chris Koger
Photos and graph by Mike Venso

Lawmakers pass bill to increase pensions

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A bill passed in the waning days of the 1988 Legislature that fattened lawmakers' pensions has become fuel for fire in this fall's legislative campaigns.

Both Republican and Democratic incumbents who voted for the measure, increasing legislators' pensions by up to 44 percent, seem to be on the defensive, while challengers have found an issue that has gotten the attention from both voters and newspaper editorial writers.

Despite news accounts of the bill's passage two days before the session ended, scant attention was paid to it until later in the summer when some legislative candidates began raising the issue in their districts.

"It's surfaced in races on both sides of the aisle," said Senate Minority Leader Mike Johnston, D-Parsons. "I think it will be significant in some races."

Gov. Mike Hayden, who included funding for the measure in his budget proposal last January, and veteran lawmakers who contribute to the state pension plan, gain the most by the bill.

Under a special category of state employees created by the bill, the governor will see his state pension increase 44 percent when he reaches age 65. At the time the bill was passed, Hayden said he thought only legislators, not state officers such as himself, were affected by its provisions. He signed the bill into law on May 17.

Hayden has said the pension change was aimed at attracting qualified people, especially young people, to the Legislature, and at the same time encouraging older members to retire.

Veteran legislators who have made maximum contributions to the Kansas Public Employees Retirement System will see their pensions go up 44 percent, the same as the governor's.

Reverend calls Pope 'anti-Christ'

By The Associated Press

STRASBOURG, France — The Rev. Ian Paisley, a militant Protestant leader from Northern Ireland, disrupted Pope John Paul II's unity speech to the European Parliament on Tuesday by shouting: "I renounce you as the anti-Christ!"

The pontiff had just begun delivering the key speech of his four-day trip to northeastern France, a talk in which he urged Europe to adopt a common political structure. The European Parliament is an advisory body to the 12-member European Economic Community.

Paisley stood by his desk in the back of the assembly chamber during welcoming remarks by Lord Plumb, president of the Parliament. As the pope began speaking, he was immediately interrupted by Paisley, standing about 11 rows from the pontiff.

"I renounce you! I renounce you as the anti-Christ," shouted Paisley, leader of the Irish Protestant Democratic Unionist Party, who was instantly surrounded by about a dozen deputies to the Parliament. They shouted to drown out his insults, threw paper at him and tore from his hands a crude orange banner reading: "Pope John Paul II, anti-Christ."

Plumb twice called for order and then evicted Paisley to the applause of deputies and an estimated 300 spectators in the gallery.

A group of deputies dragged and shoved Paisley from the hall. He later told journalists, "I was hammered. I was beaten about the ears and body."

John Paul smiled briefly at the outburst and resumed his speech that was again interrupted, this time by a round of applause.

Paisley has spearheaded opposition to the 1985 Anglo-Irish agreement which granted the government of Catholic-dominated Ireland a say in the running of Northern Ireland, a British province where 60 percent of the population is Protestant.

The pope has not taken a stand on whether the province should be united with the Irish Republic but has called for peace and reconciliation between Catholics and Protestants.

As he has throughout his trip, John Paul urged the unification of Europe and encouraged the nations to serve as "a beacon in the civilization of the world" by fighting pollution, prejudice and secularization.

John Paul said the agreement by the 12 European Community members to integrate their economies by 1992 would hasten political integration. Some Common Market officials have called for development of a common political organization — perhaps even a "United States of Europe."

"A common political structure ... far from endangering the identity of the people of the community, will be better suited to guarantee more fairly the rights ... of all regions," said the 68-year-old pontiff.

In addition to Britain and France, the EEC members include Belgium, Denmark, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Portugal, Spain and West Germany.

Schliebe WORKOUT CENTER
LAST WEEK to get 10% OFF
4 Month Student Semester Special
Exp. Oct. 15
776-1750
GO FOR IT!

COTTONWOOD RACQUET CLUB
3615 Claflin
Claflin at Hudson
776-6060
Cottonwood Racquet Club
Weight Room
½ off Initiation Fee Until Oct. 25
•Best free weights in town plus universal machines
•Open 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily for your convenience
•Come in and look us over

SALE—SALE—SALE—SALE
Taco Burgers—2 for $1
(reg. 80¢ each)
Chili Burrito—$1.77
burrito covered w/chili, topped w/cheese—chips
(reg. $2.20)
Offer good Oct. 12-17
Sun.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-11 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-12 a.m.
TACO HUT
"Where good friends get together"
2809 Claflin Rd. 539-2091

COSTUME ALLEY
OPENS OCT. 15
Now located next to Brothers & upstairs
Lots of weird things to dress up in!

TEE'ZERS
CUSTOM TEES & SCREEN PRINTING
Fall for Fleece Sale!!!
CALL FOR A QUOTE TODAY!
AS LOW AS $8.50 each* INCLUDES 1 COLOR SCREEN PRINT!!!
776-5621
MANHATTAN'S PERSONAL SERVICE SCREEN PRINTING
WE'LL COME TO YOU, AT YOUR CONVENIENCE
*S.S. While minimum order 20, colored sweats 25¢ more each, 35¢ per additional color

Every pair of eyes is unique, too.
Fingerprints aren't the only human mark of distinction. Each pair of eyeprints is also biologically different from another. Because of this we care enough to ask what is important to you—and, we listen.
•Eyeglass Frames & Lens (ask about our limited warranty)
•Sports Vision Care
•Specialized Contact Lens Care
•Lens Available Same Day
—Disposable Contact Lens (New!)
—Extended Wear — Bifocals
•HMO & Insurance Accepted
Dr. Paul E. Bullock
Optometrist
776-9461
Toll Free: 1-800-432-0036
404 Humbolt—Manhattan
1 Blk. West of Town Center Mall
Extended Hours Wednesday & Saturday
In the forefront of contact lens technology for over 20 years.

HISTORY IN THE MAKING
TRANSFER THE TRADITION
Midnight Madness III
KSU
Be a part of the first basketball event in Bramlage Coliseum.
Activities start at 9:30 p.m. with a party at Ahearn Fieldhouse.
The party includes music from 97 FM, 87-88 Basketball highlights, free hot dogs and Pepsi to first 3,000 people.
At 10:30 p.m. Wildcat basketball team will lead the fans in a parade to Bramlage.
The party will continue at the Coliseum with Yell Practice, music by the K-State Band, and Radio highlights with Mitch Holthus from Voice of K-State Wildcats.
At 12:01 a.m., the FIRST basketball practice in Bramlage will Begin
THIS FRIDAY
Donations to the K-State Cheerleaders and Band will be accepted during this historic event.
Sponsored by 97 FM, WIBW 580 AM, Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. of Marysville, — Manhattan, John Murdock, Inc.-Chevrolet-Cadillac-Oldsmobile-GEO, and Ohse Meats.

alpha chi omega AXΩ GREEK
KSU
PLAY BOY
POWER FM 94.5
Voting in the Union
October 11, 12, 13
Bills and Silver Coins—Positive
Pennies—Negative
Vote for your favorite candidate
Proceeds go to the Alpha Chi Omega Foundation which supports Cystic Fibrosis

Mets stay alive, force 7th game

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — David Cone wrote a different story in Game 6 of the National League playoffs, pitching a five-hitter as the New York Mets beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 Tuesday night to tie the best-of-seven series at three games apiece.

The decisive seventh game will be played Wednesday at Dodger Stadium. Orel Hershiser, a 23-game winner, will start for Los Angeles against Ron Darling, 17-9.

Hershiser started Games 1 and 3 without getting a decision, and got a save in the Dodgers' 12-inning, 5-4 victory in Game 4.

Kevin McReynolds, with a two-run homer among his four hits in four at-bats, provided the offense against loser Tim Leary. McReynolds, who also had a sacrifice fly, drove in three of the five runs as New York provided the scoring Manager Davey Johnson had promised for the sixth game.

The four hits tied an NL playoff record accomplished by eight players, the last Tito Landrum of the St. Louis Cardinals in 1985.

The Mets dominated the season series against the Dodgers, winning 10 of 11. But Los Angeles won two of three games at New York to take a 3-2 lead into Game 6 and the warmth of the swaying palm trees.

After the Mets won the first game 3-2 with three runs in the ninth off Hershiser and Jay Howell, Cone wrote in a first-person article for the New York Daily News that Howell looked like a "high school pitcher" and Hershiser was "lucky" to throw eight shutout innings.

The Dodgers, inspired by Cone's prose, chased him after two innings of Game 2, scoring five runs on five hits en route to a 6-3 victory. It was Cone's shortest outing as a starter this year, and his career as a columnist lasted only one more day.

Cone then came back and got the

■ See METS, Page 13

'Cat volleyball team plays improved MU

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

It's getting to be desperation time for Coach Scott Nelson and his volleyball team.

K-State entered the season as one of the Big Eight Conference powers with five starters back from last year's 17-11 team that finished fourth in the Big Eight Conference race.

However, after eight straight wins to open the season, the Wildcats, 8-8 overall and 0-3 in the conference, play at Columbia, Mo., tonight sporting an eight-match losing streak.

And Missouri, 8-30 last season, won't be a breather on K-State's schedule. The Tigers have already won nine matches, including a 1-1 record in Big Eight play.

"What we're concentrating on is changing our offensive patterns," Nelson said. "We are trying not to be overly concerned with the losses. We're really concerned with elevating our level of practice, but also elevating our level of execution. Our offense was fairly strong early in the year. With the change, we will be gaining an extra attacker in our lineup."

By focusing on the team's current strengths, Nelson said the 'Cats can get back on the winning streak.

"We feel like some of the strengths of the old system weren't being realized, so we went to a new system," Nelson said. "We've added a few things offensively that we haven't in the past. We are going to go with a two-setter offense and changing the structure of our plays offensively.

"We're one of the top serving teams, yet over the course of the last half-dozen matches serving hasn't been a strength of ours. We are working on that every day to make it strong again," he said.

Even though the changes have had little time to solidify, Nelson said his squad can use them effectively against Missouri.

"I think it will take several days for it to jell completely, but that doesn't mean that we can't win with it right away," Nelson said. "There are just a few finer details of the offense that we will have to iron out.

"We have good experience on our team and good young players. It just seems that over the past couple of weeks we've just been out of sync as a unit. So we're trying to give ourselves new direction, get our responsibilities defined and basically get operating a little bit more efficiently as a unit," he added.

Nelson compares Missouri to Iowa State, who the 'Cats lost to in five games earlier this season. He said the 'Cats could have beaten Iowa State but lost due to unforced errors.

"Missouri plays a very similar style of game," he said.

In conference play, Missouri won in three games over Kansas and lost in three games to Oklahoma.

Onward Christian soldier

Reserve fullback attends K-State, MCC

By Tom Morris
Sports Editor

"Do you know that in a race all the runners run, but only one gets the prize. Run in such a way to get the prize. Everyone who competes in the games goes into strict training. They do it to get a crown that will last forever. Therefore, I do not run like a man running aimlessly; I do not fight like a man beating in the air. No, I beat my body and make it my slave so that after I have preached to others, I myself will not be disqualified for the prize."
— 1 Corinthians 9: 24-27

With the drug-related problems professional and amateur sports have experienced lately, it makes one appreciate athletes such as K-State reserve fullback J.B. Sikes.

Sikes, in his first full season as a Wildcat, is majoring in secondary education at K-State and carrying a second major in Christian education at Manhattan Christian College as well.

Though Sikes' future ambition is to be an instructor in a public high school, many people learn that he attends the Christian college across the street from K-State's campus and stereotype Sikes as a minister.

"When I first came here, I sometimes felt like I was alone in the crowd," Sikes said. "Sometimes the players would say something I didn't think was appropriate, and they would find out I'm from Manhattan Christian College, and stereotype me.

"This year, though, the team is a lot closer and it makes (my situation) a lot better. This is a really neat opportunity."

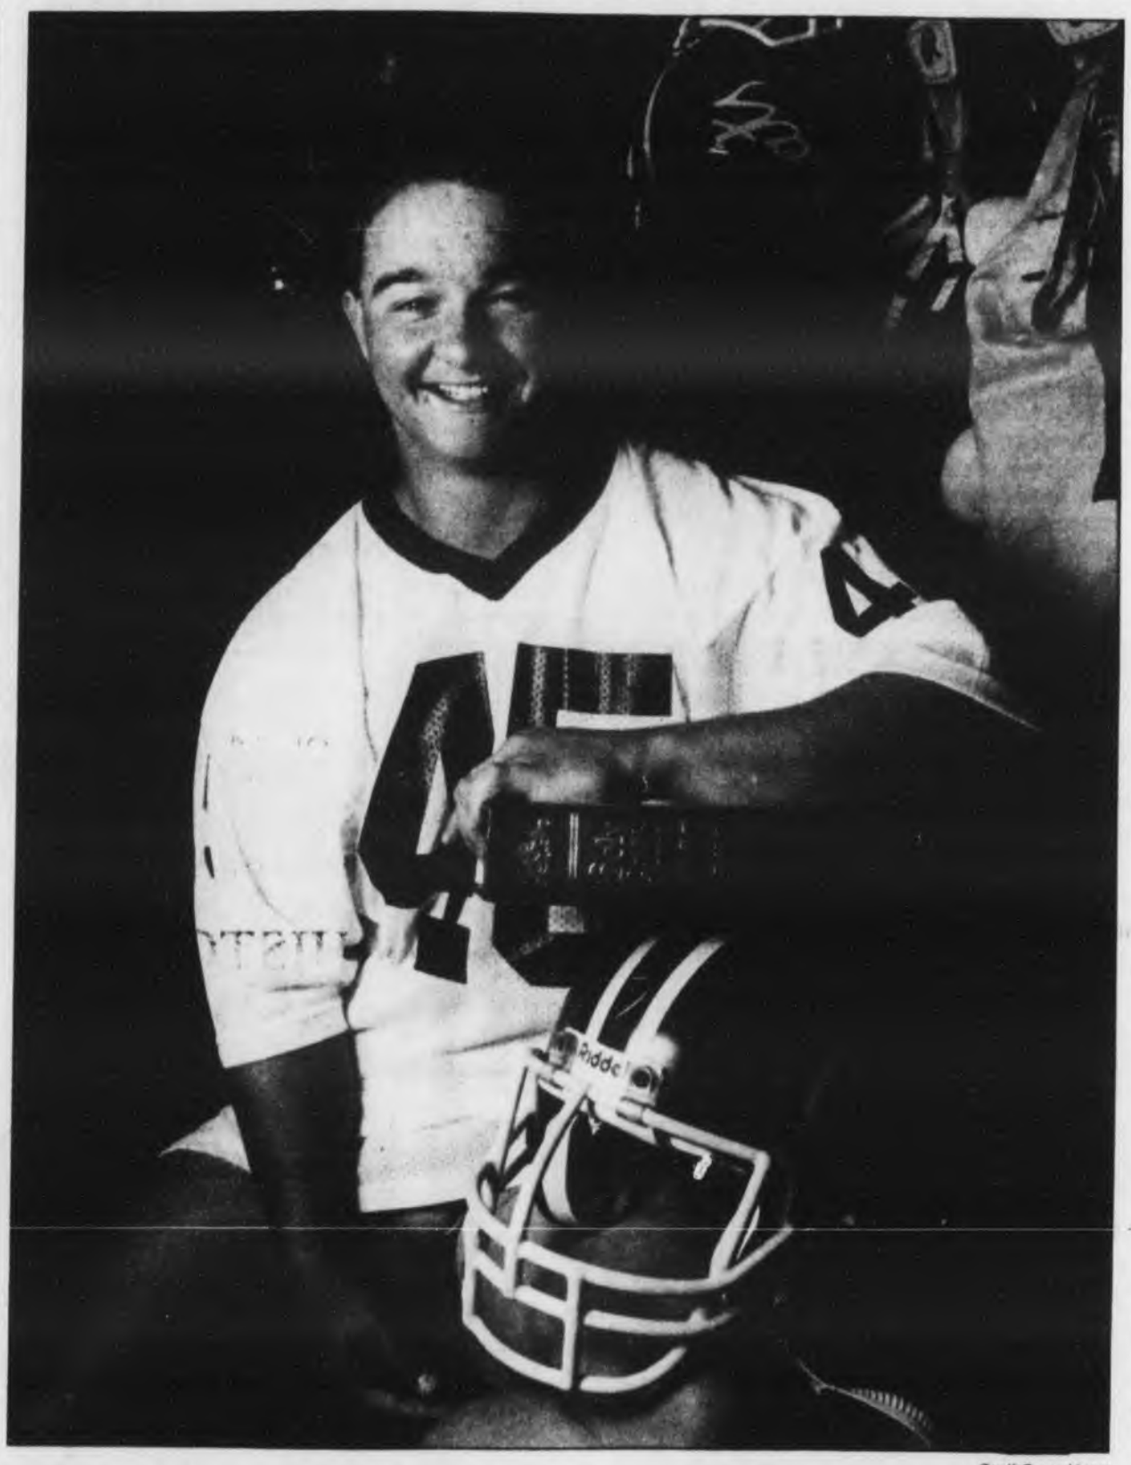
A tie-in between athletics and the Bible isn't as inconceivable as one might think.

The Corinthians were familiar with the foot races in their own Isthmian games which occurred every other year, and were second only to the Olympic Games in importance. And the apostle Paul uses the figure of boxing to represent the Christian life, according to the New International Version Study Bible.

Sikes is participating in a co-op program between K-State and Manhattan Christian College. About 80 students annually attend and earn degrees from both colleges, University registrar Don Foster said.

Willard Nelson, dean of the College of Education — which has about 12 co-op students — said the program has been "real attractive" for both colleges.

"We've had some good relationships with the Manhattan Christian College as a result of this," Nelson said. "It has attracted students to Manhattan and it is great publicity for our city."



As far as Sikes' athletic status is concerned, the program is approved by both the NCAA and the Big Eight Conference because hours at both institutions can be applied to determine full-time status and degree requirements, Foster said.

Sikes, who attended Oklahoma State University for a semester before transferring to K-State, said he decided to put his belief in God above athletics.

"I had thought about it before, but I had always put football first," Sikes said. "I just realized my relationship with God was better than that. I'm going (to MCC) because I just wanted to get closer to God and learn more about the Bible for myself."

Sikes played football for Laustia High School in Papillion, Neb., and his junior year the team placed second in the Nebraska Class A playoffs. Though Sikes has yet to run a down for the 'Cats this season, the No. 3 fullback said he is content to run on the scout team during practice.

Because he is carrying two majors, Sikes usually starts his day at 6 a.m. and doesn't stop until late at night. He is also an active member in K-State's chapter of Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Staff/Greg Vogel

K-State reserve fullback J.B. Sikes attends classes at Manhattan Christian College in addition to K-State courses. Sikes said he attends MCC to get "closer to God and learn more about the Bible."

Of basketball tickets, camping and the 'Burma Road'

Mid-Week Commentary

TOM PERRIN
Sports Columnist

Forget this one topic stuff. This week, I've got not one, not two, but three things I want to write about.

First off, the basketball ticket situation.

Leaving the Nov. 26 men's basketball game with Purdue off the student season tickets is an unfair decision. OK, so the game is over Thanksgiving break.

It shouldn't matter.

An obvious majority of students will want to see the first-ever K-State men's game in Fred Bramlage Coliseum. But, due to the game being left off the student season ticket, they'll have to pay an extra $5 if they want to be there.

Granted, the athletic department's policy in the past has always been to omit games that fall during vacations from student tickets. But if ever there should be an obvious exception to this policy, this is the time.

It isn't as bad as it could be, though. Ticket manager Carol Adolph said students will get first crack at buying tickets in the same area in which they have season tickets.

Now for more complaints about basketball tickets.

When is this outdated tradition of camping out for tickets ever going to end? Don't get me wrong, camping out is a great show of support for the K-State basketball program. To all the students who are taking part, I say that's great. You only go to college once and there's some things you've just got to do.

But there is definitely a better way. Why can't K-State just make all student seats general admission the way they do at the University of Kansas? This way, the students who get to the Coliseum first before each game can get the best seats. Typically, these are the loudest, most enthusiastic fans — the ones a home team should want near the court.

Perhaps some kind of provision could be made to have a small reserved section for ICAT members. ICAT members do pay $20 to join and deserve the chance for some decent reserved seating in return.

Other than that one exception, though, making all student seats general admission would solve a lot of problems and prevent even more sickness that comes from spending nights in the cold.

But enough basketball already. After all, this is football season. And again for a while in the first half Saturday, K-State looked pretty good against Missouri.

The Wildcats have a capable quarterback in Paul Watson and plenty of capable pass receivers. If Watson would have spent less time fleeing tacklers and more time looking for receivers, he might have been able to help put some more points on the board.

K-State coach Stan Parrish is calling K-State's next three games "The Burma Road." It's a road that few teams would want to brave. K-State must face No. 9 Oklahoma, No. 7 Nebraska and No. 10 Oklahoma State in consecutive weeks. All three of these teams have a good chance to be playing somewhere on New Year's Day.

The "Burma Road" is a clever term, but I still prefer Parrish's "Bataan Death March" label for the Oklahoma-Nebraska-Oklahoma State stretch of last year.

Regardless of the terminology, the result for the 'Cats is likely to be the same. The biggest hope is that K-State can stay injury-free for the big clash in Lawrence against KU Nov. 5.

K-State hasn't won in Lawrence since 1969, and Parrish has the chance to step down as the Wildcat coach who never lost to the Jayhawks.

Who was it that said K-State football fans didn't have anything to look forward to, anyway?

Sports Briefly

Straw may start against OU

Freshman redshirt quarterback Paul Watson's shoulder bruise is deeper than originally thought, so sophomore Carl Straw probably will start at quarterback Saturday against Oklahoma, coach Stan Parrish said Tuesday.

Watson, who suffered the injury in last week's loss to Missouri, won't be able to practice until the end of the week.

Wichita Pilots purchased

WICHITA — Businessman Bob Rich of Buffalo, N.Y. is the new owner of the Texas League Wichita Pilots baseball franchise.

Rich refused Monday to disclose how much he paid.

Holieway may miss K-State game

By The Associated Press

NORMAN, Okla. — Oklahoma quarterback Jamelle Holieway, who hurt his right ankle against Texas, may not start Saturday against Kansas State, Coach Barry Switzer said Tuesday.

Holieway, a senior, suffered the injury late in the first quarter as the ninth-ranked Sooners moved toward their first touchdown drive. Backup Charles Thompson took over with Oklahoma inside the Texas 10 and played the rest of the game.

"Jamelle didn't practice yesterday. Jamelle was hobbled pretty good," Switzer told writers and broadcasters as his weekly luncheon.

"If he misses another day of practice — and the way he looked yesterday, I wouldn't think he'd practice today — we'll start Charles. You've got to practice to play."

Switzer said that normally when the starting quarterback says he's all right after an injury, as Holieway did, the coach is tempted to put that player back in the game.

"But when it's in the ankle, you're concerned," Switzer said. "Our trainers and doctors recommended we not play him, so we held him out. He's frustrated by it, but it's the only thing we could do."

Thompson wound up rushing for 77 yards and a touchdown in the Sooners' 28-13 victory, and received a game ball. Others receiving game balls on offense were fullback Leon Perry, guard Anthony Phillips and halfback Anthony Stafford.

On defense, game balls went to backs Kevin Thompson and Greg DeQuasie, and linebacker Kert Kaspar. Punt returner Glyn Milburn also got a game ball.

"Not for his punt returns," said Switzer, "but because of the way he practiced last week simulating Eric Metcalf. He gave us a great picture."

The Oklahoma defense did a good job containing Metcalf, a speedy and dangerous halfback. Switzer said the defense has been the most-improved part of the team since the season opener against North Carolina.

"Gary (Gibbs) felt like we played better this year against Texas than we did last year as a total unit," he said, referring to his defensive coordinator.

This week Oklahoma is home to play K-State, which is winless in five games. Switzer said his coaches say the Wildcats are "probably less talented than they've ever seen them."

Candidates prepare for Thursday debate

By The Associated Press

Michael Dukakis and George Bush sparred at a distance Tuesday over trade issues in a prelude to this week's prime-time debate. The Democrat vowed to stand up for American companies and jobs, while the vice president charged that his rival was guilty of "protectionist demagoguery."

"My opponent needs an issue and he's willing to scare people to find it," Bush said of Dukakis' recent emphasis on a need to regain American dominance in world economic competition.

Dukakis counterpunched a few hours later as he left Boston for the West Coast. "I'm for more trade, not less trade. I want to export American products, not American jobs," he said.

Dukakis also took a fresh swipe at the Republican vice presidential candidate as new polls indicated Bush's ticketmate is draining support from the GOP. Said Dukakis: "Dan Quayle asks us to believe that if he ever had to fill in for George Bush, America could get by on a right wing and a prayer."

Bush defended his pick for vice president, saying Quayle had helped draft legislation that created jobs for the poor.

The two combatants in the race for the White House exchanged barbs as fresh polls charted a dwindling lead for Bush with four campaign weeks remaining. The surveys showed Dukakis and running mate Lloyd Bentsen gaining ground since last week's vice presidential debate.

Despite the polls, surveys by The Associated Press and others in recent weeks have indicated Bush holds a marked advantage in the Electoral College, with the race likely to be decided by the results in several large swing states.

Democratic party officials announced that two senior strategists had been pulled out of Florida in what seemed to be a concession that Bush's double-digit lead there could not be overcome. The two were headed for Ohio, a swing state where Dukakis is viewed as trailing more narrowly.

Both candidates set aside time over the next few days to prepare for their second and final debate of the fall campaign, set to begin at 9 p.m. EDT Thursday on the campus of UCLA.

In a speech near Boston before flying west, Dukakis mentioned several steps to improve America's ability to "take charge of our future," including a major effort to improve the nation's scientific and engineering capabilities. "I want us to begin selling cars and computers and compact discs to the Germans and the Japanese and the Koreans, not arms to the ayatollah," he said.

Bush campaigned in Seattle, where he said foreign ownership of U.S. plants helps to create jobs and suggested that Dukakis was mouthing campaign rhetoric that he doesn't believe.

"Frankly, I've been surprised at my opponent's recent turn to protectionist demagogury," the vice president said in prepared remarks. "I don't think he really believes it."

Bush added that "like the Know Nothing Party a century before him," Dukakis had "turned to fear of foreigners. Or maybe with this latest flip-flop, he's become a believe-nothing candidate."

Hanks plays comic in 'Punchline'

By Judd Annis
Collegian Reviewer

Film Review

Riding the huge success of his summer blockbuster "Big," Tom Hanks is back, this time with Sally Field in "Punchline."

The movie features Hanks as a medical school dropout, struggling to make it as a stand-up comedian.

Hanks, best known for his wise-guy sarcasm, plays the brilliant, self-destructive Steven Golden.

He is joined by Sally Field and a strong supporting cast in this touching drama about the manic-depressive world of comedy.

Field, in a role that gives us a new look at her acting ability, portrays Lilah Krytsick, a New Jersey housewife with the same dream of making people laugh, but whose laughter on the home front dwindled away years ago.

The two try out their material, along with other comedians waiting to be discovered, at a small comedy club in New York City.

The big break must come quickly for Hanks, who has been kicked out of school, locked out of his house and is in danger of being discovered by his stiff-lipped doctor dad.

The movie tackles the dangerous realm of drama and comedy combined, and comes away a winner.

It achieves this, not by making light of the subject, but by making a subject of something light — comedy.

With a well-balanced approach, the movie deals with two very different comedians who have radically opposite lifestyles and motives for being in the comedy business.

"Punchline" is arguably Hanks best film to date, and gives a fresh look at the maturing young actor.

Whether he is offering noontime laugh-therapy to a hospital ward, imitating Gene Kelly's dancing and singing "in the rain," or totally flubbing a routine for his disappointed father, Hanks offers the audience seamless acting; a performance in which you can't see him act.

Field, whose daily family life is an untapped wealth of riotous happenings, is forced to play a convincingly unfunny role as a comedian while going about her duties of grocery shopping, cooking dinner and getting her three kids off to school.

With the help of Hanks, Field learns to believe in her own comic ability and gains new-found courage and success.

John Goodman, as Krytsick's Polish-American husband, fills the shoes of a misguided but caring spouse perfectly, and together, the couple's family moments are truly touching.

Then there are the jokes themselves, eliciting plenty of crack-ups and belly laughs from the audience.

If the club crowd laughs and the theater crowd doesn't, this film would be in trouble, but with a good comedy script, "Punchline" delivers.

The movie, which bills Hanks and Field as the main attractions, will not give Field much added notoriety (not that she needs it), but will turn Hanks, a popular leading man, into a certifiable star.

Go see "Punchline" to experience superb acting, a lot of chuckles and plenty of tenderness.

Pack of Lies.
The Great American Smokeout. Nov. 17.
AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

Bacon Cheeseburger Fries & Coke
$2.49 up to 4 per coupon
Wed. & Thurs. Only
The Chef 111 S. 4th

K-State Students! Are you tired of paying high rents for sub-standard rental housing?
Then come to the Home Program Forum at the First United Methodist Church this Saturday, October 15, 9 a.m.-3 p.m. This is your opportunity to voice your concerns and learn how you can seek better rental housing for your money.

First Visit Welcome Special
Now $28 reg. $59 value
Dr. Eric J. Wisdom D.D.S.
Family/Dentistry
•Dental Exam
•2 x-rays
•Complete cleaning
1445 Anderson
776-1771
Call for appointment

KSU Credit Union will be closed Friday, Oct. 14 and reopen Monday, Oct. 17 in temporary offices at Leisure Hall, Room 6B.
This 60-day move is necessary while our Anderson Hall office is renovated.
KSU Credit Union
6B Leisure Hall
Weekdays, 9 a.m.-4 p.m
532-6274

Over 20,000 name brand T-Shirts, Tank Tops and Sweatshirts must be sold
Cash and Checks Only
ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR-SPORTING GOODS
LIQUIDATION
Save 40-60% off retail
HUNDREDS OF ITEMS AT COST OR BELOW!
Corona HEAVYWEIGHT T-SHIRTS REG. $17.95 ONLY 6.99 HEAVYWEIGHT SWEATSHIRTS REG. $26 ONLY 9.99
PRO & COLLEGE TEAM SWEATSHIRTS & T-SHIRTS ONLY 4.99-10.99 • CELTICS • BEARS • REDSKINS • OVER 40 COLLEGES
WEIGHTLIFTING GLOVES & BELTS GLOVES REG. $16-$18 NOW 7.99 BELTS REG. $26 NOW 16.99
SUNGLASSES OVER 25 DIFFERENT STYLES VALUES FROM $8-$14. ONLY 3.99 PR.
ASSORTED COLORS STYLES & SIZES Polo KNIT SPORT SHIRTS • OXFORD DRESS SHIRTS • SWEATERS • JEANS • DRESS PANTS • VALUES FROM $35-$60 ONLY 14.99 AND UP!
JUMBO OVERSIZED T-SHIRTS REG. $12-$14 • GUESS • MICKEY MOUSE • COCA COLA • ONLY 6.99
REG. $14.00-$32.00 BEACHWEAR T-SHIRTS • BEACH SHIRTS & DRESSES NOW ONLY $5.99 AND UP!
2000 PR. ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR MUST GO!
Hard Rock Cafe T-SHIRTS TANKTOPS REG. $14.00-$16.00 NOW ONLY $5.99-6.99
SWEATPANTS HEAVYWEIGHT • ASST'D STYLES ONLY 6.99 AND UP! • COLLEGES • PRO TEAMS • NAME BRANDS • PLAIN • ETC.
HEAVYWEIGHT SWEATSHIRTS VALUES FROM $12-$24 ONLY 6.99 AND UP! ASSORTED COLORS, STYLES
OVER 2000 PAIRS OF ATHLETIC SHOES TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • JOGGING • AEROBIC • BASKETBALL • RUNNING • VALUES FROM $18-$60 ONLY $7.99 AND UP! • PONY • PUMA • NEW BALANCE • LA GEAR • SAUCONY • CONVERSE • MANY OTHERS
SOCKS • TUBE • CREW • ROLLOVERS • VALUES $2-$4 99¢ & UP! 6 PR. PACK REG. $10-$12 ONLY 4.99
DESIGNER TANKTOPS & T-SHIRTS • MAUI & SONS • SPEEDO • BEVERLY HILLS POLICE DEPT. • CALIFORNIA BEACH CO. • GOTCHA • JAMS • TAG SURF ONLY $4.99 AND UP OVER 20 DIFFERENT STYLES REG. 12-$16
VUARNET SUNGLASSES OF FRANCE T-SHIRTS • TANKTOPS ONLY 7.99 REG. $14-$18 SWEATSHIRTS NOW 9.99
NAME BRAND ATHLETIC AND RUNNING SHORTS • COLLEGES • NAME BRANDS VALUES FROM $9-$14 ONLY 3.99-5.99
NAME BRAND LONG SLEEVE T-SHIRTS & BASEBALL SLEEVES COLLEGES • NAME BRANDS VALUES FROM $10-$14 ONLY 4.99-6.99
Holiday Inn—530 Richards Drive
One Day Only
Thursday, Oct. 13th
10 a.m.-8 p.m.
One Day Only

One of a kind
John Ross Lumbert, Manhattan

The Birthplace

At The Birthplace, our philosophy supports individualized care for each family. We offer prospective parents a lot of options. You may choose the homelike atmosphere of a birthing room with a special birthing bed, or you may prefer a conventional labor room with a birthing chair.

Once your baby arrives, you have your choice of a private or semi-private room. (Private rooms are just $9 more per day, when available.) And, you may have your baby with you in your room as much (or as little) as you wish. Full or partial rooming-in gives you practice caring for your baby — with your nurses readily available to offer help or answer questions. We want you to feel comfortable with your baby when you get home.

Your baby may be fed on demand or at scheduled times. We also offer personalized teaching and your maternity and nursery nurses will help identify any special needs or problems and assist in handling them before you leave.

At The Birthplace, every birth is one of a kind.

We would welcome the opportunity to meet you and to show you The Birthplace. Please call the Director of Education at (913) 776-3300, ext. 113, to schedule your personal tour.

Memorial Hospital
Sunset & Claflin • Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-3300

Possible ground-water poison causes alarm

Riley County landfill to close; state seeks alternate solution

By Lisa Pfannenstiel
Collegian Reporter

In one day, a person throws away about 3.32 pounds of garbage. In a week, the accumulation has grown to 23 pounds and in one year a large pile — 1,211 pounds of garbage — is tossed out by the average consumer.

Multiply that pile by the 63,600 individuals in Riley County and the pile becomes a mountain of 29,000 tons of solid waste.

When a soup can or a piece of computer paper is thrown away, the trash is stored in a landfill. However, when the Riley County Landfill closes in July 1990, a new method of storage and disposal must be implemented.

The development of an alternative solid-waste disposal system stemmed from the Riley County Commissioners decision Jan. 4 to close the landfill. The landfill, which lies in the flood plain of the Kansas River, was pressured to close and relocate because of the indication of groundwater poisoning, said Monte Wedel, Riley County planner.

Wedel said a grant was submitted to the state for investigation of alternative disposal methods. The state suggested a regional approach to the research. Five counties representing 134,000 people — Riley, Pottawatomie, Clay, Geary and Marshall counties — and Fort Riley have combined resources to work on the project. The Big Lakes Regional Council was formed to coordinate the efforts.

The council consulted Franklin Associates, an engineering firm from Prairie Village to determine the existing characteristics and parameters of solid waste management. The firm will also propose feasible alternatives to the current method of landfill storage, he said.

Franklin Associates has completed the first part of the research, which involved describing existing characteristics of the solid waste. The results, which were presented to the public Sept. 27 at a public forum at CiCo Park, included county assessments of waste disposal methods and a breakdown of the materials generated, recovered and disposed in the region.

Annual solid waste quantities for the Big Lakes region total about 110,000 tons. Paper or cardboard is the largest component and represents more than half the waste recovered for recycling. Yard waste was the second largest component, none of which was recycled as compost or for other uses. Other components of the solid waste total include food, aluminum, plastics, metals, rubber and leather, textiles and wood.

Overall, the municipal solid waste material recovered for recyling was estimated at 6.6 percent in the Big Lakes region, which was below the national percentage of 10.8.

From the results of the preliminary research, Franklin Associates has recommended an integrated approach, including the potential roles of recycling, waste-to-energy program and landfilling, Wedel said.

Nick Artz, engineer for Franklin Associates, said recycling efforts could possibly be increased 25 to 30 percent if curb-side separation of paper and other materials was implemented. Leaf composting and office paper recovery — especially from K-State — could contribute to the recycling efforts, he said.

In addition to recycling, Artz said incineration is a possible alternative used in a waste-to-energy facility. The energy produced could provide energy to homes and the University, he said.

During the waste-to-energy process, heavy metal residues such as lead are produced, Artz said. These materials would have to be disposed in a new area landfill or transferred outside the five county region.

With implementation of a combined effort of recycling, incinera-

■ See GARBAGE, Page 13

City to look at recycling

By Lisa Pfannenstiel
Collegian Reporter

As the Big Lakes Regional Council lays the groundwork for alternative solid waste management in Manhattan, other communities have implemented recycling programs as part of their solutions.

Manhattan has incorporated several forecasted suggestions from Franklin Associates, an agency hired by the city to review Manhattan's waste system. Manhattan provides some recycling incentives for residents. Several area businesses and organizations collect various materials, including aluminum cans, newspapers, bottles, batteries, and auto bodies.

"Public opinion appears positive toward recycling efforts," said Monte Wedel, Riley County planner.

"We need a total strategy. We have created some awareness through brochures, and an education committee has been created to help coordinate the promotion, but I would like to get the (recycling) program formalized," he said.

The Big Lakes Regional Council will coordinate the solid waste management program following recommendations proposed by Franklin Associates.

The company has not only researched the Big Lakes problem, but has consulted several other communities throughout the United States during the past several years.

Two communities it consulted include Montgomery County, Md., and Champaign/Urbana, Ill., which have similar waste management circumstances and are comparable in size to the Big Lakes area of 134,000 people.

Montgomery County plans to significantly increase its recycling efforts, said Esther Boyring, recycling coordinator for Montgomery County.

"We plan to recycle 30 percent by 1997," Boyring said.

About 80,000 homes presently have curb-side newspaper collection. Further efforts include expanding mandatory curb-side to 150,000 residents for materials including glass, cans, yard waste and corrugated containers.

Montgomery County plans to build a processing center for the recycled materials, which will cost from $7 to $10 million. The recycling efforts and the center will be financed though a countywide collection and disposal fee of about $150 annually per household.

Montgomery will implement a pilot program — grass and brush collection — adding to its current quarterly collection and composting efforts.

Montgomery is also in the planning stages of building a resource recovery that would burn 1,800 tons of trash per day. The steam energy produced would provide power and help defer the operating costs. The residues would be deposited into a new landfill.

"The community reaction has been positive toward the program. Recycling has been well accepted because the community wants the resource recovery program to be as small as possible," Boyring said.

Champaign/Urbana, population 120,000, has a different management approach than Montgomery County.

Champaign/Urbana's landfill will be full during the next several months, said Rod Fletcher, solid waste manager of Urbana Public Works. Once the Champaign/Urbana landfill is closed, residents will haul their trash to surrounding counties' landfills.

He said the county's emphasis has been placed on recycling. Promotional efforts were extensive and direct mail produced the greatest response in explaining the recycling program. Other efforts included radio announcements and posters in area businesses. Targeting an education program in the schools was another key effort in promotion, Fletcher said.

■ See RECYCLE, Page 13

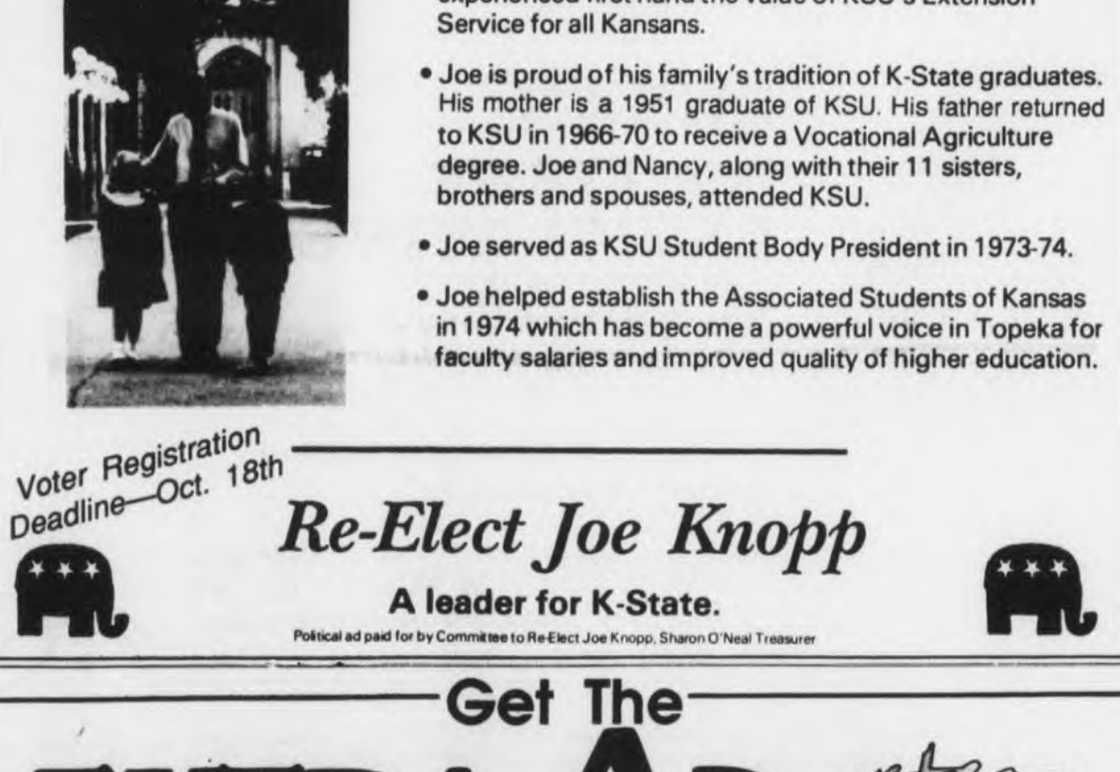
American Heart Association

The Station
HAPPY HOUR BUFFET

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
5:00-7:00pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET: $1
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030



Santa Fe Days
October 13th - 17th!
Blue Corn Muffins
Avocado Nut Bread
Cheddar'n Chile Loaf
Jalapeño Bread
~ made by ~
War Fel's Homemades
Produce Specials:
Hass Buttery Avocados...69¢ ea.
Tomatoes 69¢ lb.
Limes...8 for $1
Cilantro...39¢ bunch
Green Chiles & Jalapeños...79¢ lb.
free guacamole & salsa recipes
Cactus 25% off entire stock
Open every day 9am-8pm
Friday, Saturday, & Sunday Fajitas!!! made fresh on the site! Raoul's Escondido
Eastside & Westside Market
east Hwy. 24 (Poyntz Ave.) by COOP
West Ft. Riley Blvd. by the Holidome

Working for K-State means...

A K-State Heritage.
- Joe was raised on a farm south of Chapman and experienced first hand the value of KSU's Extension Service for all Kansans.
- Joe is proud of his family's tradition of K-State graduates. His mother is a 1951 graduate of KSU. His father returned to KSU in 1966-70 to receive a Vocational Agriculture degree. Joe and Nancy, along with their 11 sisters, brothers and spouses, attended KSU.
- Joe served as KSU Student Body President in 1973-74.
- Joe helped establish the Associated Students of Kansas in 1974 which has become a powerful voice in Topeka for faculty salaries and improved quality of higher education.

Voter Registration Deadline—Oct. 18th
Re-Elect Joe Knopp
A leader for K-State.
Political ad paid for by Committee to Re-Elect Joe Knopp, Sharon O'Neal Treasurer

JUMPERS $28.90
Carmel side button jumpers in corduroy, brushed cottons and cotton twills...in a whole range of colors.
TURTLENECKS $8.90
Wear under jumpers or great with jeans in a variety of colors.
HARPER'S
FASHIONS
Open Sundays 1-5
331 Poyntz
Downtown, Manhattan

Get The EXTRA ADvantage

"Kite's, a KSU tradition for over 35 years, has been advertising in the K-State Collegian for the same amount of time. Let's say that 35 years is an ample test period for the Collegian's effectiveness." — Rusty Wilson (at left)
with
Kansas State
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
reaching over 18,000 people daily
"your key to the campus"
101 Kedzie 532-6560

Nuclear weapons lab lacks needed security

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Energy Department has admitted hundreds of Eastern Bloc and other foreign visitors into its nuclear weapons labs without required security checks, a Senate hearing was told yesterday.

The visitors included suspected foreign agents and people from overseas facilities believed to be trying to build nuclear weapons, according to Keith Fultz of the congressional General Accounting Office.

Fultz, who did not identify any of these people, told Governmental Affairs Committee chairman John Glenn, D-Ohio, that GAO does not believe the three high-level research labs are fully protected against espionage.

The visitors, mainly scientists, came from a variety of communist bloc nations headed by the Soviet Union and China.

Richard Du Val, a deputy assistant energy secretary, said officials began tightening security a year ago.

Safety regulations halt weapons output

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Energy Department officials, declaring a need to "rectify past sins" in its operation of atomic reactors, on Tuesday announced that the introduction of new safety procedures would delay restarting the Savannah River Plant, which produces nuclear weapons materials.

Energy Undersecretary Joseph Salgado also gave assurances that plutonium and tritium supplies are adequate to ensure that existing nuclear weapons would not degrade or be cannibalized to assure a continued strategic deterrent.

The three aging reactors at Savannah River, in Aiken S.C., have been shut down for safety considerations. Construction of new reactors to produce nuclear weapons materials is not expected to start until the early 1990s.

Salgado, addressing' a midday news conference, said that Energy Department officials have ordered engineers at the Savannah River Plant to start up the K-reactor in December during a four-week phased operation that should bring it close to full steam in early January.

K-State FFA changing its image

By The Collegian Staff

As K-State Collegiate Future Farmers of America grows, it is changing its image from that of a group focused on agriculture education to that of former high school FFA members who want to continue active participation.

Collegiate FFA is now a social organization that gives students with similar ideas and backgrounds a place to meet, socialize and have fun, said Brian Dierberger, senior in agronomy and president of the group.

The group has about 15 fee-paid members, but will continue its recruitment process during the rest of this semester, said Earl Wineinger, FFA adviser and assistant specialist of Continuing Education Conferences.

Collegiate FFA is a service group that helps the state association with meetings and contests at K-State, said Dierberger. This serves as the group's primary function, Wineinger said.

Future projects may include helping with the national FFA convention, which is conducted annually in Kansas City, and helping with community service projects.

These project ideas are in the planning stages, Wineinger said.

The group is having trouble recruiting the students who were active in high school FFA programs.

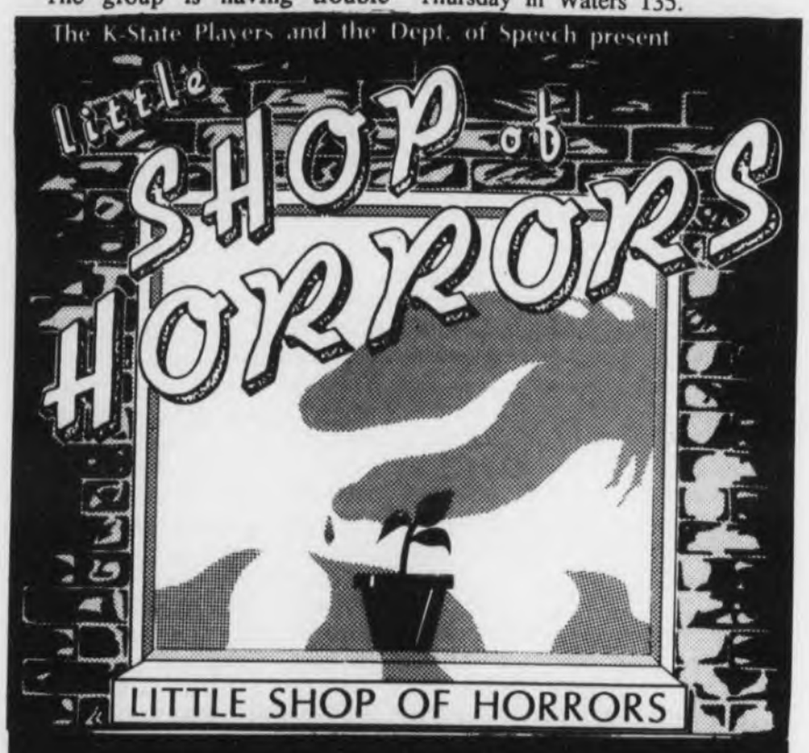
"I don't know why there is a problem with getting those students to come and join the club. Maybe it's because they have a busy schedule and don't think that they have any time for it," Dierberger said.

The group invites interested students to attend one of its meetings. The next meeting will be 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Waters 135.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

OPTOMETRISTS

Drs. Price, Young, Odle, and Horsch



We'd like to be your Optometric office.

TO SLEEP WITH — O2

- Extended Wear, Gas Permeable, Tinted Extended Wear, Tinted Soft Contact Lenses
- Disposable Contacts/planned replacement program
- Approx. 5,000 Contact Lenses in stock
- Free consultation and trial contact lens fitting

537-1118 1119 Westloop Place

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present

Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

First time in history of KSU
the Muslim Community Assoc.
PRESENTS:

QURAN :
THE FIRST LEGISLATIVE OF ISLAM
by HAMED GHAZALI

Second lecture in a series of lectures designed for non-Muslims

7:30 pm
Wed., Oct. 12, 1988
Rm 208, K-STATE UNION
Refreshments provided

Compatibility Defined

IBM-Com•pat'i•bil'i•ty adv. 1. Capable of existing together in harmony. 2. Able to use most common software; usu. of the business/research world. 3. Growth & flexibility. 4. Hyundai 16TE.

HYUNDAI

Introducing the Super 16TE PC-compatible.

Introducing a new level of IBM-compatibility, speed (10Mhz) and flexibility (5 expansion slots). Each Hyundai includes 640K memory, a "101" keyboard, full software (wp, spreadsheet, database), orientation, support and an 18 month warranty. Best of all- its backed by $20 billion Hyundai Corporation and your local Connecting Point Computer Center in Westloop Shop.Center.

	Retail	KSU Price.*	Disc.
☐ Super 16TE	$1045.	$735.	30%

Sample Systems:

☐ 2 drive, amber monitor	1095.
☐ 2 drive, color monitor	1299.
☐ 30Mb, amber monitor	1495.
☐ 30Mb, color monitor	1699.

* Based upon full system purchase. IBM is a reg. tm of IBM Corp.

KSU's "Seoul" Authorized Hyundai Dealer

ConnectingPoint COMPUTER CENTER
1115 Westloop Shop. Ctr
539-0801

Attention KSU Apple Purchasers:

Connecting Point's "Apple Team" has contracted to support KSU departmental and personal purchases. Call us for assistance in selecting systems, software solutions and ordering your Mac. Connecting Point has a full line of Apple "Add-Ons" from disks to software to cases to drives.

THE UPC ADVENTURE
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE

Sign Up Today!

Sign up today in the Activities Center, 3rd floor of the Union, to ski in Breckenridge, Colorado from January 2-7, 1989. Limited space available. Cost is $263. Trip includes:

- *5 nights lodging
- *Hot tub & Heated swimming pool
- *4 days Breckenridge lift tickets
- *4 days equipment rental
- *Pre-party
- *On-site 'Nuts and Bolts' Party
- *His or hers Gift Pack
- *On-site trip sponsor
- *Schedule of Activities

(Cost is $231 with your own equipment)
"Don't take any chances with your ski trip. Travel with the best. UPC Travel!"

k-state union upc travel

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

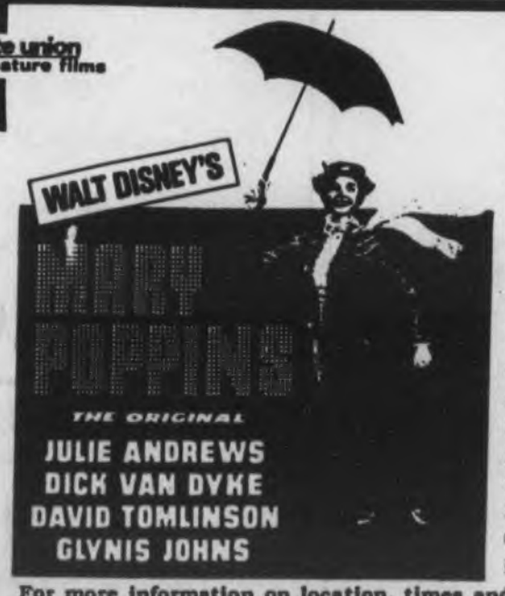
DAVID NASTER

ROMIE ANGELICH

McCain Auditorium
October 28, 1988, 8 p.m.
Tickets go on sale October 17 at K-State Union Activities Center and the McCain box office
All Seats $2.00

k-state union upc eclectic entertainment

Joke Contest at Bushwacker's Wednesday, October 26, 10:45 p.m.- Midnight and Thursday, October 27, 9-10 p.m.



Contestants are allowed in free. Prizes will be awarded for finalists and winner. Pick up applications at Bushwacker's or Activities Center, 3rd floor Union.

Just for Laughs

THE LAST EMPEROR

Praised as the most honored film in 25 years and winner of 9 Academy Awards, "The Last Emperor" is an epic masterpiece. It is the true story of Pu Yi who was crowned Emperor of China in 1908 at the age of three and ended up, 60 years later, a humble gardener of Peking. The film takes you through six decades of turmoil and revolution in China through the eyes of one man. As the director Bernardo Bertolucci explains, "Pu Yi's story can be described in many ways- as a journey from darkness to light or as the metamorphosis of a man who, as the Chinese say, changes from a dragon to a normal person, from the Emperor to a citizen." Rated PG-13. Friday, Oct. 14 and Saturday, Oct. 15, 6 & 9 p.m., Forum Hall. *NOTE SPECIAL TIMES!

k-state union upc feature films

Disney's triumphant musical masterpiece returns with unforgettable songs, exuberant dances, and a dazzling combination of live action and animated visual effects. Winner of five Academy Awards including Best Original Musical Score. Stars Dick Van Dyke and Julie Andrews. Rated G. Saturday, October 15, 2 p.m. and Sunday, October 16, 2 & 7 p.m., Forum Hall.

For more information on location, times and prices of Union movies, call the K-State Union 24-hour movieline at 532-6570.

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

It is an inescapable fact that each life must culminate in the final embarrassment of a funeral! This is a story about three days in which a married couple, an actor and actress, must preside over a traditional Japanese funeral for a member of the family. Their confusion and perplexity over the complex demands with which this situation confronts them, and the reactions of other participants, create a story that is at once comic, sad and moving. Directed by Juzo Itami. (In Japanese with English subtitles.) Wednesday, October 12, 7:30 p.m. & Thursday, October 13, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & 7:30 p.m., Forum Hall.

Recycle

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

"Curb-side collection was stressed," said Jim Pendowski, director of intergovernmental solid waste management. "Each household received two trash containers for separation of recyling materials."

The part of the Champaign/Urbana program that differs from the Montgomery County plan was the development of an invessel composite to dispose partially biodegradable materials. A central station of inorganic and organic materials appears more feasible than incineration, Pendowski said. The residue ash produced from incineration was a product the county wanted to avoid.

"Safe solid waste management is crucial," Pendowski said. "Total management involves generation, hauling and disposal. In any community, the low-risk diagnosis is to begin backwards — start with the evaluation of disposal and then concentrate on the public's input in recycling and generation of waste."

Garbage

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

tion and landfilling, Artz said his rough calculations reduced the solid waste percentage by 80 percent of the current disposal totals.

Franklin Associates will formally introduce its recommendations to the public at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 27, at CiCo Park.

Utility

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

and the home owner supplies money for the materials used.

"We don't have many who are able to use this program because not very many of our clients are owners," Martin said.

The average aid applicant is on welfare and has a family with young children, she said.

"It's very rare when we get a KSU student (requesting utility assistance), because our applicants generally can't afford (college)," she said.

Richard is trying to pass the GED so she can attend college, where she plans to study to be a social worker.

"I want to help people like they've helped me," she said.

Mets

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

last three outs of the Mets' 8-4 victory in Game 3 on Saturday but still wanted a chance to prove his 20-3 season was not a fluke.

After a shaky first inning, Cone shut the Dodgers out on one hit until two were out in the fifth when reliever Brian Holton singled, Steve Sax walked and Mickey Hatcher singled in a run to make it 4-1. Holton was 0-for-10 this season and 1-for-20 lifetime.

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

Bobby T's
Restaurant and Fundrinkery

Wednesday Night is Steak Night at Bobby T's

16 oz. T-bone $4.99
6 oz. Filet $3.39

3240 Kimball—Candlewood
539-1571

MARY KAY Cosmetics-skin care-glamour products. Free facial, call Floris Taylor, 539-2070. Handicapped accessible.

EeGee's
Restaurant & Ice Creamery

Wednesday
Real Cheese Day

Cheese Lover Burger
Topped with 5 kinds of cheese.
With waffle fries.
Only $3.98
12th & Laramie•Aggieville

NAVY MANAGEMENT
Math, Engineering and Physical Science Majors with 3.3 GPA, earn $1,000 per month during junior and senior years plus $4,000 upon entry. Find out more about the Navy's Engineer Officer Candidate Program, call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

WHAT OCCUPATION does Eddie Haskell have today? If you know the answer to this question, call Dominoe's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order. 539-0561.

College of Human Ecology
Activities Carnival
Wed., Oct. 12-Thurs., Oct. 13
9:00-2:30
Hoffman Lounge, Justin Hall

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings & Drumsticks
Buy 1 Set, Get a 2nd Set
½ Price
327 Poyntz 776-7983

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

FIREWOOD
STUDENT DISCOUNTS
Free Delivery
539-0477

Cotton Club
99¢ Burger Buffet
4-7 p.m. + drink specials

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. Partially furnished. Call Tim at 539-7975.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1973 DODGE cornet, 78,000 miles, have to see to appreciate, $700. 537-8950 after 5p.m.

1980 CITATION. Runs good, AM/FM cassette stereo, five-speed, new tires, good gas mileage. 776-5573 weekday afternoons.

1981 FORD Fairmont Futura, two-door, sunroof, air conditioning, AM/FM cassette, $1,500 or best offer, must sell. 539-0397.

1982 CAMARO, power steering, power brakes, four-speed transmission, stereo, 50,000, $5,800. 776-0382.

1978 PLYMOUTH Horizon four-door, four-speed, air conditioning, 539-7439. Ask for Troy.

8 Computers

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd
Manhattan 913-776-6650

COMMODORE 64 disk drive, $200 worth of software, $200. Call Dave after 4p.m. 537-4136.

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, and juniors: Get paid to train in the summer to become Marine Corps officers after graduation. Aviation and financial aid available. Call collect, 1-841-1821.

HEADSTART TEACHER, immediate opening for the 1988- 1989 school year. Degree in early childhood education or CDA (Child Development Associate) required. Nine month position, six hours per day. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, Kansas 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

MARKETING POSITIONS open with Manhattan business. Knowledge of media, promotions and layout skills necessary. Submit resume to Box 9, in care of K-State Collegian, 103 Kedzie Hall.

MCDONALD'S IS now hiring for all day shifts between the hours of 5a.m. to 4p.m. We offer a starting wage of $3.50 per hour with frequent raises. We also offer meal benefits, uniforms and flexible hours. Please apply in person at 815 N. Third Street.

MCDONALD'S OF Westloop is looking for some enthusiastic, dependable people who enjoy working with people. Part-time day shift hours available between 5a.m. and 4p.m. with very flexible schedules. Starting salary $3.50/ hour with frequent raises available. Apply in person anytime, 1011 Westloop.

ON-CAMPUS TRAVEL representative or organization needed to promote Spring Break trip to Florida or Texas. Earn money, free trips and valuable work experience. Call Inter-Campus Programs. 1-800-433-7747.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PAY DAY! Beginning salary $3.60/hour. All shifts for waiter and waitresses; Mexican Tuesday and Thursday 10:30-2:00; hotline server, Monday, Wednesday and Friday 10:30-1:15 and 10:20-2:00; cashier Monday through Friday 8:00-1:30 and Monday through Friday 1:30-4:00; sandwich Monday through Friday 6:00-10:30; ice cream Monday through Friday 10:30-1:30; office assistant, hours will vary. Apply now at the K-State Union Food Service Office. We offer student pay plan, job variety, and centrally located work place. We require that you must be honest, reliable and display a sense of urgency, must be clean, neat and wear appropriate attire. Food Handler's Card a must.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Lr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

SCHOOL BUS drivers 1988- 1989 school year. $4.75/ hour, must be 21 years of age, have a good driving record and complete a training program. Bus driving experience not required. Part-time: 6:30-8:30a.m. and 2:40- 4:30p.m. Job description available and apply to: USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

SUBSTITUTE TEACHERS, full- or part-time. Apply in person, Seven Dolors Child Care, Eighth and Colorado.

TWO-YEAR COGNITIVE psychology research project. About five hours per week at $5 per hour, including summers. Sophomores with high GPA preferred. Contact Dr. Thompson, 532-6850.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED for musical homeless project, all fields of study, even your personal contacts can make a difference. Contact Odeis Taylor, 776-4036.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

THREE-BEDROOM PHELPS house, three blocks west of campus, available November. $450/ month. 539-3672.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: ONE wedding band in Throckmorton Hall 132 at 11:30a.m. Monday. Claim at Waters 311 with description.

FOUND: PUPPY, near band practice field. About six months old. 539-2100.

FOUND: RADIO- controlled airplane, north of football field. Call 532-6115, days.

FOUND: YOUNG affectionate cat. 1800 block of Laramie. Call to identify, 776-7488 or 537-3654.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

FOR SALE: Apartment washer/ dryer. Best offer by Oct. 15. Call 537-8238 after 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

STEREO COMPONENTS for sale. Yamaha R-3 receiver, $125. Boston Acoustics A60 speakers, $100 for pair. Call Kelley at 776-9576.

STUDENT DESK, office desk, swivel desk chairs, couch, dinette, chest, beds, bar, misc. furniture. 776-9705.

TECHNICS TURNTABLE. Best offer over $35. No cover. Works great. 537-9218.

18 Personals

ALPHA ZI'S: Homecoming was the greatest, dinner will be fun. Be at the Phi Lodge Wednesday night, 'cause at beer drinkin' we're number one!

BABY- LUV, I miss you. Love, Sweet Dream.

BETA PLEDGE MIKE J.- How are sloppy seconds? Who's Bob? Ask G-Phi Christi!

BUNS- COLOR of course, but texture too. I can't get enough of it or you. Cookie.

CHI-O PLEDGE Mary L.: You have a Big Sis who thinks you're just swell, and an Owl Pal, at that, who will forever wish you well. Now it's my turn to get you, and they'll both have to share, 'cuz you're my new pledge dot- the best dot anywhere! Love, Mom.

CHI-O TARRA: The contractions are here, your birth is near! Get excited for this afternoon?!? Luv, ???

CLOVER TRUDY T.- I'm glad you're my Big Sis. Have you found your clothes? Clovia Love, Your Little Sis.

DANNY- YOU had me fooled, I'll admit. Never again will I be so confident. We've had lots of fun and there's much more to come. I'm glad you're my mom. Love, your dot, Brenda.

DENNIS- QUIT being so rude and self-centered.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

JENNY, IS there a Scotti in your life now (or just in your diary?) An Interested Idiot.

R.S.S. AND S., Suzie's closed and it ain't right. The baseball team's doing laundry alone tonight. B&J.

TO THE three ladies at Capitol Federal and Burger King: We left you a note and you quickly replied. We took off and ran, but we couldn't hide. If we get a third, would you give us a try? Please respond.

WOMEN OF K-State, Party till you're Def. Ask friends for details.

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

ACFA REGISTERED Blue Smoke Persian kittens. Wholesale price. Call Jennifer, 532-6161 (days), and 539-6748 (evenings).

FREE, FREE, free: Three kittens eight weeks old. Call 537-4384.

20 Professional Services

HOUSTON STREET
BALLROOM
Wedding Receptions
Dances, Parties
539-1234

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

GARAGE FOR rent, 1131 Vattier, one block from campus. $35 per month. Call Professor McGuire, 776-5682.

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

FOR ALL word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

LASERPRINTED AND Typeset resumes are 10% off with coupon from KAT magazine. Graphics Plus, 607 N. 11th, Aggieville. 539-6027.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, professional documents, resumes, etc., laser printer quality. Call 1-494-2279 after 5p.m.

Résumé Service
Resumes — Cover Letters
Data Sheets
343 Colorado
Call 537-7294
9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE, NON-SMOKER wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Reasonable price. Call 537-2973. 1002 Gardenway.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted immediately. $135 plus one-third utilities. One block from campus, nice and clean. Call 776-3788 (Rebecca).

NEEDED: FEMALE to take my place at an apartment. Own bedroom, $160/ month, one block from Justin Hall. Call Karen at 539-2733. If I'm not home, please leave message on machine and I'll call back.

ROOMMATE WANTED to share two-bedroom apartment with two other people. $116 month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments, 1005 Bluemont. 537-1878.

24 Situation Wanted

WANTED A bass player for rock band. If interested, call 776-1691.

WANT TO trade Def Leppard ticket near stage for ticket on aisle between sections 17 and 18 near row 25. 537-8883.

28 Adoption

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

Next time you feed your face, think about your heart.

Go easy on your heart and start cutting back on foods that are high in saturated fat and cholesterol. The change'll do you good.

American Heart Association

Bloom County

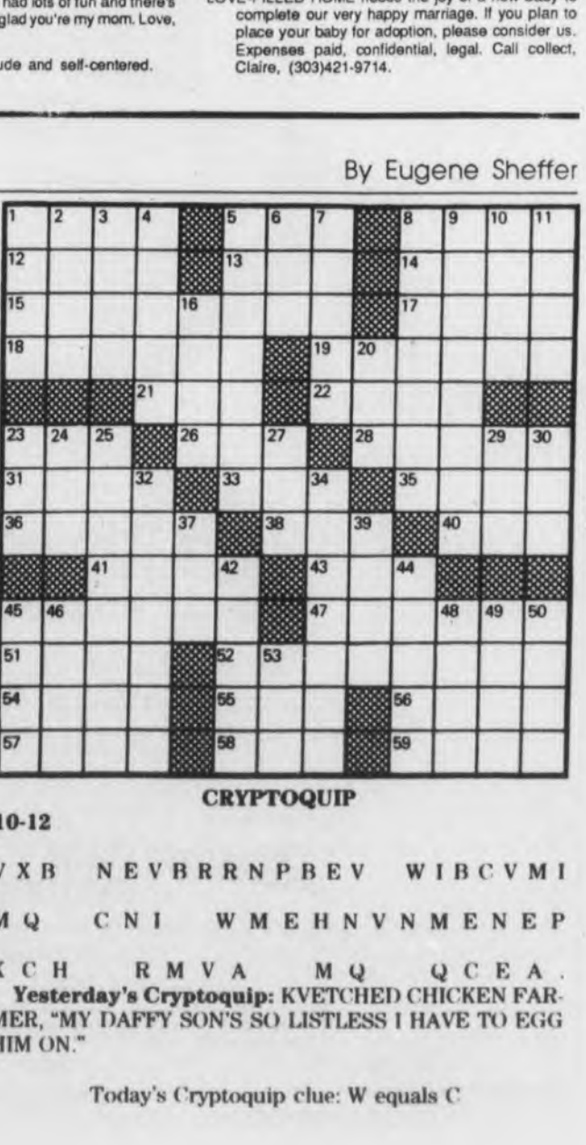
By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz



Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Hindu discipline
5 Rude shelter
8 Migrant worker
12 "...two fives for —?"
13 Cuckoo
14 What a gamble entails
15 Sea animal
17 Arrow poison
18 Climbed
19 Funeral orations
21 Ending for amp
22 Converse
23 Noted editor
26 Printer's measures
28 Showy flower
31 Dull
33 One type of story
35 Dirk
36 Civetlike animal
38 Scottish cap
40 "I — Around" (1964 hit)
41 Mirth
43 Kid: slang
45 Spend them in Pakistan
47 Wild ass
51 Dismounted
52 Like certain beds
54 Bring to pitch
55 Ram's mate
56 Site of the Taj Mahal
57 Impudent talk
58 Bosh!
59 Unreliable witness

DOWN
1 Wild oxen
2 Of the ear
3 Actress Rowlands
4 Point of view
5 Sets
6 Miss Merkel
7 Its capital is Lhasa
8 Baltimore players
9 He went ape over Fay
10 Words of understanding
11 Supplements
16 Wax
20 Baby's perch
23 Area of interest: slang
24 Crude metal
25 Essential things
27 Drunkard
29 Society page word
30 Thus far
32 Crosses out
34 British title
37 Palmer's peg
39 Chinese dynasty
42 Glacier deposit
44 Fundamental
45 Stool pigeons
46 Hawaiian game fish
48 Leslie Caron role
49 One of the Pounds
50 "— Window" (movie)
53 — Jima

Solution time: 27 mins.

S	O	D	A	■	B	A	D	■	H	A	M	S
O	L	I	D	■	E	R	R	■	O	T	I	C
H	O	R	S	E	F	L	Y	■	R	I	T	A
O	R	T	■	T	I	O	■	A	S	S	E	T
■	■	■	H	O	T	■	A	D	E	■	■	■
C	A	R	O	N	■	G	R	A	S	P	E	D
O	M	E	R	■	E	A	T	■	H	I	R	E
R	E	A	S	O	N	S	■	F	O	R	G	E
■	■	■	E	V	A	■	H	I	E	■	■	■
A	L	O	H	A	■	C	A	B	■	A	P	A
L	O	T	I	■	H	O	R	S	E	C	A	R
S	K	I	D	■	A	L	E	■	L	I	N	K
O	I	S	E	■	Y	A	M	■	I	D	E	S

Yesterday's answer 10-12

CRYPTOQUIP

10-12

V X B N E V B R R N P B E V W I B C V M I M Q C N I W M E H N V N M E N E P X C H R M V A M Q Q C E A.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: KVETCHED CHICKEN FARMER, "MY DAFFY SON'S SO LISTLESS I HAVE TO EGG HIM ON."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals C

Action

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

compensation was spread out among the bottom seven steps on the longevity scale.

After Phase I, 63.8 percent of secretary and clerical employees were at the first level of longevity compensation, called step A, though in higher pay ranges. Prior to Phase I, 17.2 percent of secretary and clerical employees had been at step A.

"If they (the employees) had moved from step C, range 10 ($1,179) to step C, range 13 ($1,369), I would not have had my phone ringing off the hook," Kissel said. "That would have been a pretty substantial pay increase and everybody would have been happy."

She said a proposal to keep employees on the same longevity step was presented to the Legislature, but was rejected due to the cost.

"The Legislature opted to do the less expensive route and to give a 2.5 percent raise," Kissel said.

The employees who benefited the most from the change were those with the least longevity, she said.

Originally, Kissel said she was excited to see Phase I. In the job evaluation categories, she said she saw the framework for evaluating the factors common to all jobs, which is essential for implementing a pay equity plan.

"But, I shouldn't have gotten quite so excited, because you see some inconsistencies, even here," Kissel said. "But, I didn't really notice these inconsistencies until I started comparing them to Phase II (categories)."

With the comparison, came the discovery that two evaluation categories — physical demands and environmental conditions — were shared by the three storekeeper jobs on the Phase I survey and all of the jobs on the Phase II survey.

The three storekeeper jobs were the only male-dominated jobs in Phase I. All of the Phase II jobs, such as plumbers and electricians, are in male-dominated fields.

"If you were to say (there is a reason for excluding the two categories) to (those who made up the categories), they could say, 'They weren't relevant to the other jobs and we needed some flexibility,'" she said.

Kissel said office workers and manual laborers should be evaluated on the environmental conditions and physical demands of their jobs.

"Nobody in his or her right mind is going to say that it's harder to work in an air-conditioned office than it is out on a painter's job. ...Secretary and clerical workers would be rated lower in these (categories) than some manual labor type jobs. But (the environmental conditions) should still be factors. They would just be rated lower and the men's jobs would be rated higher," she said.

The difference in categories makes the state study questionable, Kissel said.

"It's the example of the kind of inconsistency that calls into question the validity of the study," she said.

When Phase II was implemented, some workers' salaries rose above range 20, or $1,745 per month, to such levels as range 28, or $2,578 per month; range 25 or $2,227 per month; and range 23 or $2,020 per month.

"There does not appear to have been a lid put on the upper level of workers of Phase II as there was in Phase I," Kissel said.

Phase I salaries spread from ranges 9 to 18. Phase II employees' salaries spread from ranges 7 to 28.

Kansas began studying pay equity issues following the 1983 loss of a lawsuit by the state of Washington. In the suit, Washington was found to have admitted and left uncorrected discrimination based on sex.

A study prepared for then Kansas Gov. John Carlin in 1984 by the Department of Administration found that pay inequity based on sex did exist and should be corrected, but a reclassification study was needed to gain consistency in the job specifications of classified employees.

Forum

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Kansas Legislature.

"I came out early on (the denial of Washburn to the Regents), and I came out firm. It is currently the only city-funded school left in the country and I think we ought to let it continue to have this distinction," she said, reasoning that K-State would have more adequate funding with Washburn's omission from the regents system.

Olsen, the Democratic candidate who lost by 24 votes in the last election, said he, like Oleen, was in favor of the MOE and opposed to Washburn becoming a regents institution. He also shared her dissatisfaction with the current legislature and the overlooked importance of the recent census, which could allow the 22nd district another senator.

Council

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

acceptable and the ordinance would be put into effect.

"What is difficult is to decide what is acceptable noise and what is not," Commissioner Kent Glasscock said.

"I have a hard time deciding what an acceptable decibel level is," Mayor Dave Fiser said.

Fiser suggested the commission attend a party and measure the decibel level to help them determine what is acceptable.

Commissioner Gene Klingler said something needs to be done about the ordinances.

"I think we can do better and we need to balance the fun of living groups," he said.

Have story or photo ideas? CALL 532-6556

The Wash Palace
3216 Kimball—Candlewood
For Complete Cleaning, Alteration and Repair Service

- Coin Laundry
- On the spot FREE Garment Pressing
- Laundry Drop-off Service
- Professional Dry Cleaning & Alterations
- Drive-up window and door
- Bargain Laundry Center w/large capacity washers
- Complete Shoe and Leather Cleaning and Repair
- Big Screen TV
- Pool Table
- Snacks

Coming soon: The Wash Palace Car Wash
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m. 537-9833

Attention Recent College Graduates:
These positions are open immediately. Rapidly growing management consulting firms seeking highly energized recent graduates. Complete training program is provided for an entry-level sales management position. Candidates must be self-starters and willing to work long hours. Starting annual salary of $25-35,000. Work ethic and attitude are paramount.
For information, call Human Resources at: 1-800-527-1984.
On Campus Recruiting will be Oct. 26.

WINTERIZATION SPECIAL
TIME TO WINTERIZE
$49.95
All Cars and Light Trucks
1) Flush Complete Cooling and Heating System
2) Replace with Fresh Anti-Freeze Mixture
3) Test System to 30 Degrees Below Zero
4) Check Heater Water Control Valve
5) Check Heater Control Cables & Blower Motor
6) Check Radiator Hoses & Heater Hoses
7) Check All Drive Belts
8) Replace Windshield Washer Solution/DeIcer Solution
9) Check Windshield Washer & Wiper Operation
10) Inspect Windshield Wiper Blades
11) Test Complete System for Proper Operation
PLUS PLUS PLUS PLUS
FREE 2 Westloop Cinema Theatre Tickets
with the purchase of a Winterization Special and a copy of this ad.
TOYOTA QUALITY
WHO COULD ASK FOR ANYTHING MORE!
MANHATTAN HONDA mazda TOYOTA
2828 Amherst Ave.
Seth Childs At Amherst
Manhattan 539-7441

ROAD SCHOLAR
SUPERSPORT™

Dual 3.5" 720K Floppy Drive Model
Suggested Retail Price: $2,399
Special Student Price: $1,439
20MB Hard Disk Model
Suggested Retail Price: $3,599
Special Student Price: $2,219

ZENITH | data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON*

PC/XT is a registered trademark of IBM Corp. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp. Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one portable personal computer per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems Form No. 1392

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN—WITH THE NEW BATTERY-DRIVEN SUPERSPORT™—TO TAKE YOU FROM COLLEGE TO CAREER.
Small, lightweight, flexible and economical. Ideal for spreadsheets, word processing and more. That's the new SupersPort from Zenith Data Systems—today's leader in battery-operated portables.
FLEXIBLE COURSE SCHEDULE. Whatever your agenda, the SupersPort's modular configuration easily adapts to your computing style. With a detachable battery for easier portability. An AC adapter/recharger that plugs into any outlet. MS-DOS® to run virtually all PC/XT compatible software. And 640K RAM—expandable to 1.64MB with EMS. Plus the SupersPort comes in your choice of dual 3.5" 720K floppy drive or 20MB hard disk models. For flexible desktop performance anywhere on campus.
CARRY SOME GREAT HOURS THIS TERM. Hours of battery power, that is. For greater productivity everywhere your studies take you. Thanks to Zenith's comprehensive Intelligent Power Management—a system that lets you control how your battery power is consumed. So you won't waste valuable energy on components and peripherals not in use.
EASY COLLEGE READING. The easiest. After all, the SupersPort features Zenith's renowned dazzling backlit Supertwist LCD screen for crisp text and superior readability. And its CRT-size display is one-third larger than most competing portables for enhanced viewing. The screen even tilts back 180-degrees so it lies flat to accommodate a desktop monitor.

TO CATCH THE NEW SUPERSPORT PORTABLE PC AT A SPECIAL PRICE, VISIT YOUR ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CAMPUS OPEN HOUSE;
STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCT. 24 & 25
9A.M. to 4 P.M.
CONTACT YOUR LOCAL STUDENT REPRESENTATIVE
JAN ELSASSER
537-6807 or
THE BOOKSTORE 532-6583

Role-playing

Dungeons and Dragons was invented in 1972. Although the craze began in 1979, it is still going strong in Manhattan. See Page 7.

Weather

Sunny today with the high around 80. Partly cloudy tonight with the low in the low 50s. Mostly sunny Friday and continued warm with the high in the low 80s.

5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
66612

ch-mond, the top draft pick of the Golden State Warriors, signed a five-year contract for $600,000 a year. See Page 11.

Thursday
October 13, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 38

Kansas State
Collegian

Gasoline leakage traced to station

By Brian Hummell
Staff Writer

University Amoco began pressure testing its underground fuel tanks Wednesday after raw gasoline was detected in sewers running parallel to Anderson Avenue east of the service station.

"The station closed its pumps voluntarily at 6 p.m. (Tuesday) night and they will remain closed until the situation is totally fixed," said Larry Reese, deputy fire chief.

"We have had no problems with the station, they have been very cooperative," he said.

The Manhattan Fire Department and other city officials conducted a six-hour investigation of a report of gasoline fumes coming from the sewer grates along the 1600 block of Anderson Avenue. Fire officials continued to flush the 12-inch sewer main throughout the day and evening Tuesday.

"The Amoco corporation is bringing in a consultant to see what's to be done (regarding cleanup)," Reese said.

"Right now we're waiting, taking precautionary measures (and) digging monitoring holes," he said.

Officials of the Kansas Department of Health and Environment were contacted Tuesday to aid in the investigation.

"Gasoline vapors were detected in the sewer lines since Tuesday at 10 a.m. and the fire department has been flushing (the lines) periodically," said Mary Jane Stell, of the KDHE.

"There is a certain amount of explosive hazard in the sewers, but the flushing neutralizes that potential," Stell said.

"Right now they are pressure testing the whole system, to see if there are any leaks. The lines are emptied and then filled with air in order to detect if and where a leak is occuring," she said.

Chuck Gannehill, fire department batallion chief, said testing of the underground gasoline tanks was completed Wednesday and fuel line testing will continue today. Gannehill said they won't know any definite facts until the testing is complete.

Seventeenth Street between Anderson Avenue and Laramie Street was closed off at 2 p.m. to allow city officials to continue testing for possible gasoline leaks. Fire officials also roped off the University Amoco from the west entrance to the University Inn.

Anderson Avenue was limited to two-lane traffic at 2:45 p.m. "to keep traffic away from the gas pool," located on the southwest corner of 17th Street and Anderson Avenue, Reese said.

U.S. bases may close

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress overwhelmingly passed legislation Wednesday which authorizes the Pentagon to close unneeded military bases at a savings of up to $5 billion a year.

The Senate approved the bill 82-7 and the House followed shortly afterward with a 370-31 vote which sent the measure to President Reagan. He is expected to sign it.

The Defense Department estimates that between $2 billion and $5 billion a year can be saved if it is permitted to pare down the list of 3,800 U.S. military installations.

"We are addressing one of the great sacred cows in this country and in this body," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

The bill sets up a complicated base-closing procedure which essentially cuts through the thicket of laws enacted by Congress in the past decade to thwart Pentagon efforts to shut down bases.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said, "We know we cannot afford excess bases that we don't need, (but) we all also understand the reality and the sensitivity of the communities in America that are so dependent, in some cases, on these bases, at least in the short run, and we know that reflects itself here in the Congress."

The bill endorses a Pentagon-appointed commission which has been meeting for months, trying to put together a list of bases to be closed. The current panel will be expanded to 12 members by the bill.

The panel will make its recommendations by Dec. 31 and Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci would have until Jan. 15 — five days before he leaves office — to either accept or reject the entire list. He could not change the list.

If Carlucci approves the list, Congress would have until mid-April to overturn the proposal, but it could only do that by approving a resolution which could then be vetoed by the incoming president.

No base closures would begin before 1990.

Collegian/Brian Kratzer

Shadow shooter

Dwayne Murphy, freshman in psychology, shoots baskets Wednesday evening on the basketball courts between Putnam and Boyd halls. The pleasant weather brought many students outdoors to enjoy various activities.

Gift aids collection

By Stuart Puls
Collegian Reporter

A gift of more than 300 first-edition copies of American and British novels dating from the 1800s has provided Farrell Library with books many universities have only on microfiche.

The books, which were part of the personal library of Joseph Pick, were donated by Pick's daughter and son-in-law, Miriam and Grant Poole.

The family wanted the books to go to a library instead of a private collector, Miriam Poole said.

"These books mean too much to go to a private collector. I wanted the library to have them. (Grant Poole) taught at the college, and I used to be on the library committee, so it seemed like the natural thing to do," she said.

Grant Poole, who graduated from K-State in 1959 with a degree in secondary education, served as a temporary teaching assistant for the Department of General Studies.

The collection, which includes limited first editions and copies autographed by authors such as Sinclair Lewis and Edith Wharton, is housed in Farrell's special collections.

Special collections preserves books and other materials that are considered rare or unique, said Antonia Pigno, head of special collections.

Pick, an avid book collector who died in 1970, ran a greeting card store that was once New York's second-largest distributor of Hallmark cards.

"We are very happy to be able to house such a collection. Mr. Pick was very careful in the books he chose. His interests were in 20th century American and British novels, especially first editions. (The collection) is very special and exciting," Pigno said.

Sandra Douglass, library assistant, said the books are like a time capsule.

Although the monetary value of these books is not known, Pigno said the books carry more scholastic value than monetary value. An appraiser would be needed to put a dollar figure on the books, Pigno said.

Pigno said Pick was so serious about collecting that he had his own card catalog. Each book was keyed by a category — no value, first edition or autographed.

The books can be useful to students who want to compare different editions, Pigno said.

"Students can see how the writer has changed the novel from the first edition to the final edition. Sometimes the writer, after the first publication, may have lengthened or shortened (the) work. Students can trace these differences and see the writer's creativity at work," Pigno said.

Special session may be called to aid Contras

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will consider calling Congress back to Washington for a special session later this year if he judges that Nicaragua's Sandinista government is seeking to mop up the remnants of the anti-government Contra rebels, the White House confirmed Wednesday.

Reagan plans to announce his intent in a statement later this week, said sources who spoke only on condition of anonymity. If the president decides to do so, he would ask Congress for quick action to release $16.5 million in military aid for the Contras now stockpiled in Honduran warehouses.

"There's no change in policy," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Wednesday night. But he acknowledged that a conditional plan for seeking new military aid for the Contras also was discussed.

Members of Congress were briefed Wednesday on a statement that could be issued by the president as early as today, said an official accompanying the president on a speaking trip to New Jersey.

"It indicates that the humanitarian aid in the Defense Department bill is fine, but if the Sandinistas make 'x' moves, he (Reagan) would call Congress back to consider military aid," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The statement is intended to send a strong signal to the leftist Sandinistas that "Reagan ain't leaving town," as one source put it, and will be watching developments in Nicaragua.

Fitzwater said that White House staff officials, including National Security Adviser Colin D. Powell, ■ See CONTRA, Page 14

Student dies after wreck

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

A K-State student involved in a two-car accident Monday night on Highway 24 died at 10:45 a.m. Wednesday at the University of Kansas Medical Center, said medical center officials.

Twenty-year-old Katherine Elder, senior in finance, was driving east on Highway 24, two miles west of St. George, when she collided with an oncoming car driven by another K-State student, according to the Pottawatomie County Sheriff's Office.

The other car was driven by Peggy Crubel, sophomore in preprofessional elementary education.

"Crubel was driving west and crossed over the center line about two feet when she collided head-on with Elder," said Pottawatomie County Sheriff Dean Taylor.

"Both Elder and Crubel were wearing seat belts," he said. Elder was pinned in the wreckage for more than an hour.

Elder was driving a 1980 Toyota Celica, and Crubel drove a 1986 Mercury. Both vehicles were totaled, Taylor said.

Crubel was taken by ambulance to The St. Mary Hospital in Manhattan and then transported to Stormont-Vail Regional Medical Center in Topeka by helicopter, a St. Mary's official said.

Crubel suffered multiple lacerations and a knee injury, according to Stormont-Vail officials. Cruble is listed in fair condition at Stormont-Vail.

The exact cause of Elder's death has not been determined, medical center officials said.

An autopsy is scheduled for today.

Candidates plan strategy

Debate last of campaign

By The Associated Press

Neither George Bush nor Michael Dukakis came in contact with the voters on Wednesday, huddling instead with their handlers to go over lines for today's second and final presidential debate of the campaign.

Bush staged a brief made-for-television event before disappearing into his debate preparation meetings. He invited Los Angeles Police Chief Daryl Gates in for breakfast in a subtle continuation of his effort to make crime control a central theme of his candidacy.

The vice president told reporters he intended to show the country "what my heartbeat is" during his face-to-face clash with Dukakis and said he would continue depicting his rival as a liberal. Bush also arranged to attend the National League playoff game between the Los Angeles Dodgers and New York Mets after wrapping up his debate preparation for the day.

Democrat Dukakis had baseball on his mind as well as he interrupted his debate homework to play catch with an aide while photographers recorded the scene. Referring to the first presidential debate and the one last week between running mates, he said, "We're ahead 2-0; we're going to make it a clean sweep."

He described his debate repertoire in baseball lingo, as well, saying he would use a "fastball, curve, slider — maybe a knuckler" during his 90 minutes on stage.

Workers in Los Angeles erected a debate-night set — wooden lecterns, red carpet and telegenic blue background — that was trucked in from Omaha, where it was used in last week's vice presidential debate. The debate begins at 9 p.m. EDT on the UCLA campus in Los Angeles.

Bush goes into the 90-minute encounter with a modest lead in the public opinion polls, although Dukakis appears to have cut into the Repu-

■ See DEBATE, Page 14

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

New Czech officials take over

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Premier Ladislav Adamec and his Cabinet were sworn in Wednesday, one day after the most sweeping leadership changes since a Soviet-led invasion ended Alexander Dubcek's liberal "Prague spring" of 1968.

Adamec replaces Lubomir Strougal, 64, who resigned Monday after 18 years as premier and also gave up his seat on the ruling Communist Party Politburo.

President Gustav Husak, replaced as party chief in December by Milos Jakes, administered the oath. Husak had led the party since Dubcek was ousted.

In his acceptance speech, Adamec appeared to confirm expectations that he would not have Strougal's enthusiasm for the kind of economic and social reform being promoted by Mikhail S. Gorbachev in the Soviet Union.

"We must carry out the program of restructuring," he said, but "we have no magic wand with which we could change things overnight," according to a report by the official news agency CTK.

Adamec, a 62-year-old former premier of the Czech Republic and deputy federal premier, often has criticized poor economic performance.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

Cuba releases merchant ship

MIAMI — A merchant ship carrying New Zealand's America's Cup racing yacht was released from Cuban custody and escorted into international waters Wednesday, less than a day after its seizure, the Coast Guard said.

The brief detention was "the maritime equivalent of 'pull you over and check your license,'" said Barney White, a spokesman for the ship's agent, Zapata Gulf Marine of Houston.

The Coast Guard said the ship, Tampa Sea Horse, which was seized Tuesday, is now proceeding to New York. The Cubans claimed it was in their territorial waters, although the shipping firm denied that.

Coast Guard Lt. Jeff Karonis said the Tampa Sea Horse departed from the Cuban port at about 12:40 p.m. EDT Wednesday and the Cuban harbor pilots left 20 minutes later.

"They (crew) said they were seized, the vessel was inspected and their passports were checked," Karonis said after the Coast Guard in Miami talked to the ship by radio.

Former fireman suspected

JEFFERSON, N.H. — Authorities said Wednesday a former volunteer firefighter is suspected of setting 16 suspicious blazes that have terrified this town since May, prompting residents to sleep in shifts and form night patrols.

Plainclothes police officers hustled Lance Lalumiere, 23, into the police station in neighboring Lancaster, where he was arraigned on one felony arson charge stemming from a fire at his brother's cabin. Bail was set at $50,000.

State Safety Commissioner Richard Flynn said the state will seek indictments against Lalumiere, charging him with setting 15 other fires.

Five of the 21 suspicious fires apparently were set by others, said state Police Lt. Gary Sloper, who declined to give details, including how many suspects there are and whether any of the suspects acted in concert.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Accident kills Topeka worker

TOPEKA — A construction worker on his second day on the job died of injuries suffered Tuesday when a backhoe ran over him in the back yard of a house under construction.

Co-workers said Billy Eugene Long, 52, of Topeka was run over after he had stopped the machine from rolling toward a nearby trench, which was occupied by another workman.

Long died at 1:07 p.m. at St. Francis Hospital and Medical Center after suffering massive head injuries in the 9:18 a.m. accident, authorities said.

Long was trying to start the backhoe with a screwdriver because the starter didn't work, plumbers at the site said. Police said the backhoe was in gear when Long got it started.

Family files suit after mishap

WICHITA — A 7-year-old boy, whose legs were severed in a train accident in 1987, and his family have filed suit against the Wichita school district, the city and Union Pacific Railroad.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday on behalf of Jeremy Honeycutt, alleged that the defendants knew the railroad crossing where Jeremy was injured on March 5, 1987, was hazardous but took no action to improve its safety. The suit also accused the city and school district of negligence for not setting up school safety patrols to protect children at the crossing.

Union Pacific spokesman John Bromley declined comment on the lawsuit, which asks for more than $10,000 in damages from each defendant. City officials also would not discuss the lawsuit, and lawyers for the school district could not be reached for comment.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "Little Shop of Horrors" at 8 p.m. today and Friday in Nichols Theatre.

PICK UP your ICAT T-shirt from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Union this week.

TODAY

FRENCH TABLE will meet at 11:45 a.m. in Union stateroom 1.

PARACHUTE CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 206.

FOODS AND NUTRITION Interest Group will meet at 5:15 p.m. Students from various nutritional fields will discuss their summer internships.

SOCIETY OF MANUFACTURING Engineers will meet at 7 p.m. in Durland 129.

DEMONSTRATION INTERVIEW open to all majors will be at 7:30 p.m. in Durland 173.

CAMPUS CRUSADE for Christ will meet at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 131.

SAILING CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

FORESTRY AND PARK Resources Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Call 228.

AMERICAN SOCIETY of Civil Engineers will meet at 7:40 p.m. in Throckmorton 132.

ICTHUS CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

AGRICULTURE REPS will meet at 6 p.m. in Calvin 211.

STUDENT GOVERNING ASSOCIATION Leadership Workshop will be at 6 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room. Everyone is welcome.

SGA OFFICE OPEN HOUSE will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on first floor Union for anyone interested in Student Government.

AG AMBASSADORS will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137. Yearbook pictures will follow.

HORTICULTURAL THERAPY Club will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 18A.

U-LEARN VOLUNTEER SIGN-UP and Information Display table will be set up from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Union main floor.

NEW SIGMA NU Little Sisters will meet at 7 p.m. at the Sigma Nu house.

ALPHA PI MU will meet at 7 p.m. in Durland library.

MEXICAN AMERICAN Council of Students will meet at 6 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

EATING DISORDER Support Group will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 205.

PRSSA will meet at 6:30 p.m. at the Union information desk.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Faculty sponsor political debate

The American Association of University Professors and the Faculty Senate will sponsor a forum featuring candidates for the Kansas Legislature at 3:30 p.m. today in Union 207.

Speaking at the forum will be 22nd District State Senate candidates Lana Oleen and Rod Olsen; 66th District Kansas House candidates Ivan Sand and Katha Hurt; and 67th District Kansas House candidates Joe Knopp and Sheila Hochhauser.

KSU ECONOMICS CLUB
PRESENTS:
Micheal Lawrence
BOSKIN SUMMERS
Chief Economic Advisors to 1988 Presidential Candidates
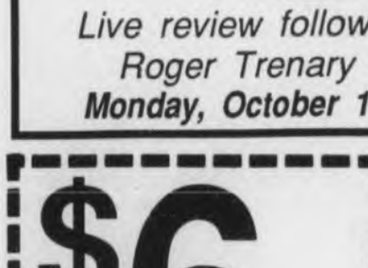
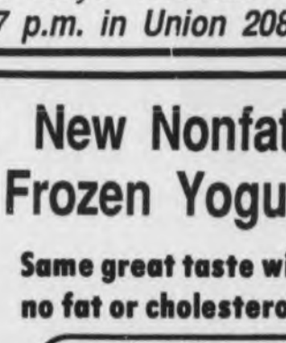
BUSH & DUKAKIS
ON TAPE
Live review following led by professors Roger Trenary and Lloyd Thomas
Monday, October 17, 7 p.m. in Union 208

MORTAR BOARD
Congratulations!
KELLI EBERT
Recipient of the 1988 Mortar Board Scholarship



Parkside
CONOCO & U-HAUL
Fall Special
•lube •oil change •oil filter
•check antifreeze •check belts/hoses •up to 5 qts. oil
Get your car ready for winter
for $13.95 by Appt.
537-1201 1026 Poyntz Ave.



$6 Hair Cuts
•A full-service salon
•Men's & Women's Haircuts
Hair Affair
465 E. Poyntz
Near Food 4 Less 776-5488
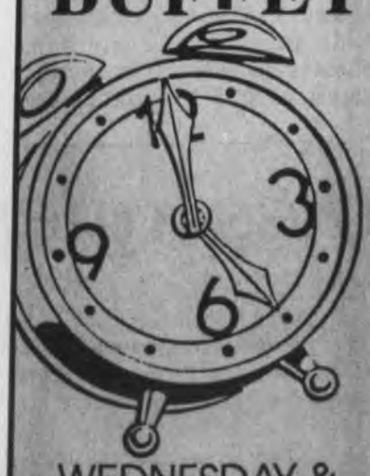
exp. 11/30/88

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan



BROTHERS In Aggieville
99¢ Night
TONIGHT
Pitchers • Kamis
Wells • Pizza
All for only 99¢ each!
A new light show, expanded dance floor, & 99¢ drinks.
Don't miss out on the fun tonight!
1120 Moro•Aggieville 537•9511

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
OLD MILWAUKEE LIGHT NITE
$1.99 Pitchers
"It just doesn't get any better than this"
No Dress Code
No Cover Charge
—Your Discount Beer Barn—
Go North on Tuttle Creek Blvd., then right on Barnes Rd.
You can't miss it.
"The Finest Little Tavern By a Dam Site"
Rt. 7 537-3133

TERRIFIC THURSDAY

99¢ well drinks
50¢ kamikaze shots
$1.50 BBAMB
5:00-11:00, burgers, burgers & more burgers!
PLUS
Backroom Dancing
KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
18 to enter, 21 to drink
619 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-9794

IMPORT BEER NIGHT

•50¢ off all Imports
LAST CHANCE 1215 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
HOME OF THE AROUND the WORLD BEER CLUB
Aggieville, U.S.A.

R•O•Y•A•L
Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Boyd– Oct. 13
Clovia– Oct. 13
Edwards– Oct. 13
P•U•R•P•L•E

The Station
HAPPY HOUR BUFFET

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
5:00-7:00pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET: $1
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

The Station
THURSDAY 99¢ NIGHT

•99¢ WELLS
•99¢ DRAWS
•99¢ GRILLE ITEMS
•$1.19 BIG C's
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

Union recreation program offers many trips

By Amy Bullock
Collegian Reporter

One of the philosophies of the Outdoor Recreation Committee is that the wilderness serves as an excellent educational setting for those who are self-motivated to learn skills for outdoor recreation.

The K-State Union Program Council started the Outdoor Recreation branch in 1971.

Since that time the committee has offered many trips for the outdoor enthusiast.

"Our most popular trip has been the Grand Canyon backpacking trip, which we take over spring break. We always get a real good response from this trip," said Jim Phalen, chairman for the Outdoor Recreation Committee.

Other trips provided by the committee include biking, mini-rappeling, canoeing, and a rock climbing and rappeling trip.

James Knostman, senior in civil engineering, participated in the rock climbing and rappeling trip.

"I had a great time. For the beginner rock climber, it was a wonderful way to get accustomed to the equipment in a relaxed and fun setting," Knostman said.

Most trips are on the weekends and have about 20 participants.

The Grand Canyon trip, Phalen said, attracts a large number of people.

"Last year for the trip we had about 35 people go along. It is a great trip and the people that take advantage of this trip really have a good time." he said.

For each trip, a coordinator from the committee is selected. The coordinator makes all the necessary arrangements, and goes on the trip to ensure that all plans go smoothly.

The coordinator, however, is not the leader of the group.

"There is no appointed leader for these trips. We hold the philosophy that since it is a group of people, that decisions should be made as a group, not individually," Phalen said.

The trips are designed to allow the beginner to advance.

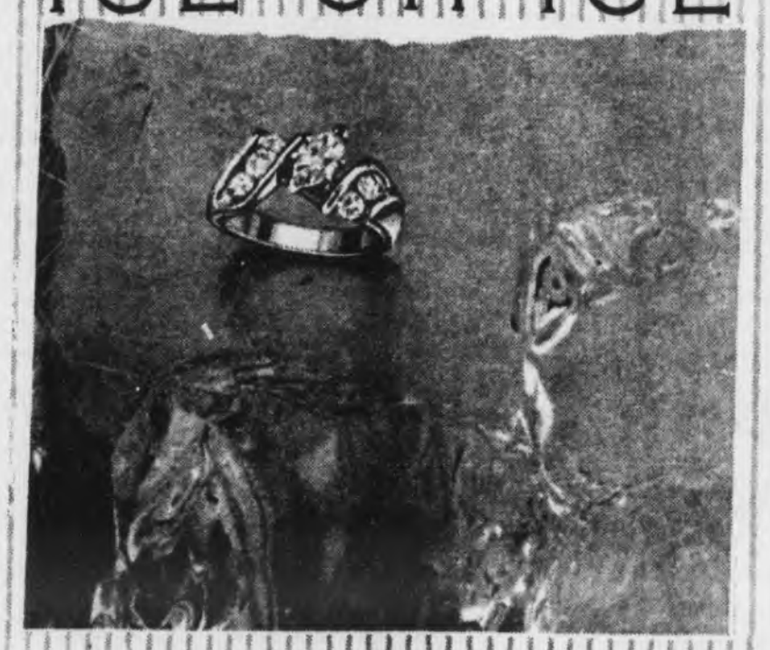
"We plan our trips from a beginner's standpoint, so for a while the more advanced people may be bored, but by the end of the trip, everyone is at the same level," Phalen said.

On most of the trips the participants camp outside. The fee the participant pays varies depending where the trip is and what it entails. The fee pays for meals, camping permits, cooking gear, and whatever maps or tools may be required. Participants are expected to bring their own bedding and pay for their own transportation.

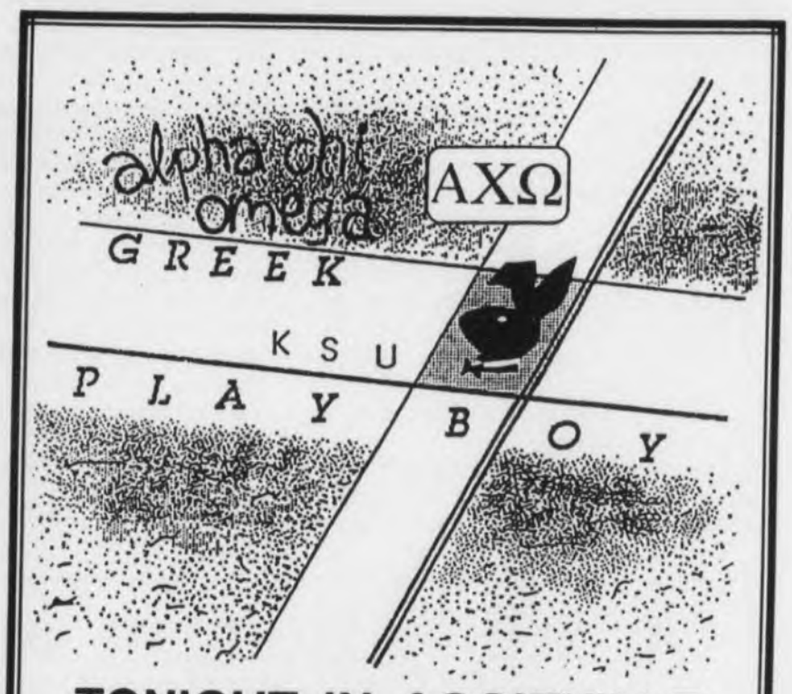
"It really is a cheap form of fun and should be taken advantage of by students," Phalen said.

On Oct. 15 and 16 backpackers will have the opportunity to experience the brilliant colors of fall in the Ozarks.

Cave explorers will have the chance to investigate the underworld caves of the Ozarks on Nov. 12 and 13.



For more imformation concerning upcoming trips contact the Activities Center in the Union.



Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Get involved in Student Government
Student Body President
Student Senate
Student Board
Filing forms available in SGA office
Due Oct. 18, 1988 5 p.m.
☑Vote on Nov. 12 Bring Fee Card
SGA Office—Union Ground Floor 532-6541
SGA

TEE 'ZERS
CUSTOM TEES & SCREEN PRINTING
Fall for Fleece Sale!!!

CALL FOR A QUOTE TODAY!
AS LOW AS $8.50 each* INCLUDES 1 COLOR SCREEN PRINT!!!
776-5621
MANHATTAN'S PERSONAL SERVICE SCREEN PRINTING
WE'LL COME TO YOU, AT YOUR CONVENIENCE
*S.S. While minimum order 20, colored sweats 25¢ more each, 35¢ per additional color

HOLIDAYSTYLE
ICE ON ICE

TELL HIM A LITTLE ICE IS ALL IT TAKES TO MELT YOUR HEART.
Pour on the ice. Coolly elegant diamond jewelry that's guaranteed to melt your heart. Ask the man in your life to come in and see our selection of exquisite diamonds from the Ice on Ice Collection. They're sure to have temperatures rising.
Diensberg's Holiday Jewelers
A DIAMOND IS FOREVER.
Across from the Courthouse Plaza Downtown, Manhattan
425 POYNTZ MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

TONIGHT IN AGGIEVILLE
AT 8 P.M.
BUSHWACKERS
· THE · FUNDRINKERY
Special thanks to our sponsors
POWER FM 94.5
Bushwacker's
Body by Schliebe
Mayer Liquor
Southern Sun
The Apple Tree
Wildcat Spirit
Campbell's Distributors
KG Men's Store
Varney's
Sip-n-Dip
EeGees
Ballard's
Everyone's Welcome

"Her loveliness I never knew until she smiled at me."
Henry Hartley
Smile enhancement by the professionals
Teeth cleaning from $25
SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Hygiene Department 913-537-8823

How to make a hit.

The American Express® Card is a hit virtually anywhere you shop, from Los Angeles to London. Whether you're buying books, baseball tickets or brunch. So during college and after, it's the perfect way to pay for just about everything you'll want.
How to get the Card now.
College is the first sign of success. And because we believe in your potential, we've made it easier for students of this school to get the American Express Card right now—even without a job or a credit history. So whether you're an underclassman, senior or grad student, look into our automatic approval offers. For details pick up an application on campus. Or call 1-800-THE-CARD and ask for a student application.
The American Express Card. Don't Leave School Without It.℠
©1988 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc

America deserves safe nuclear development

No nukes! No nukes!

It's a common phrase, once attributed mostly to liberals and hippies, but now becoming more common as people in this country and around the world are becoming more concerned about the nuclear arsenals that are being created in the United States and other countries.

They are almost always concerned that the worst possible case will occur. Either one nuclear weapon will go off accidentally, triggering an accidental war and messing up the atmosphere, or all of them will go off at the same time, blowing us all up.

Either way, there would be a major explosion that would probably turn the earth into a big parking lot. There are other problems, however, with nuclear weapons. Although these problems are not nearly as spectacular, they are happening right now and are changing people's lives.

I'm not talking about dramatic major explosions. I'm talking about the myriad of problems besetting U.S. nuclear weapons plants, making them unsafe to operate and a health hazard to the entire country.

Just last Saturday, the Department of Energy shut down the Rocky Flats Plant near Boulder, Colo., due to an accident that contaminated several employees. And this isn't the only plant with problems. Since August, three reactors at the Savannah River Plant in South Carolina have been shut down due to safety concerns. With these two plants shutdown, this country has only 13 other production, research and waste plants to handle all its nuclear weapon production.

The problem is, these other plants, still in operation, are just as riddled with problems. Representatives from the Energy Department have claimed that the severe deficiencies in equipment, employee training, management and safety that were found in the two plants that were shut down are widespread in the U.S. nuclear weapons industry.

At the Rocky Flats Plant, two employees were contaminated with radioactivity when they unwittingly walked into a unmarked

Commentary

CATHERINE DOUD
Collegian Columnist

room where there was plutonium-contaminated equipment. Meanwhile, investigations have shown that intelligence agents from Soviet bloc countries have had no problems gaining access to secret, high-level nuclear weapons labs at Los Alamos, Sandia, and Lawrence Livermore.

Not only are nuclear weapons plants unsafe for employees, but spies can come and go as they please. I suppose we can only hope that they also are contaminated.

So now what? Plants that are making nuclear weapons — devices that must be as safe and foolproof as possible to ensure the safety of the world — are shown to be unsafe.

Great. Now we all feel very secure. You have to wonder how many nuclear weapons have been produced by these plants that may be substandard due to plant inefficiencies.

Twenty-two different studies have been conducted on the safety features and conditions at the weapon facility plants, and they have found inattentiveness to safety, inability to maintain equipment properly, problems with plant managers, inadequate safety systems, poor employee training and failure to follow the Energy Department's own codes of operations.

However, these 13 other nuclear plants continue to operate despite known inadequacies in their safety.

This will affect all of us. If the companies that make the most potentially dangerous weapons in the world cannot do it competently, we should all be concerned. We can't afford to wait until there is a major accident, explosion or leak. People are already being injured by these plants, and it will only get worse unless something is done.

Shutting down the two plants with major problems is a start. But it shouldn't stop there. The problems are spread throughout the entire industry. And this is an industry where safety is vital.

Nuclear weapons are a product that we can do without for an indefinite time. What's the hurry? We have enough to blow up the world several times right now. The Energy Department should stand behind its studies of nuclear facility inadequacies and shut down plants until they meet reasonable standards.

A private industry which has well-documented violations should expect some action by the federal government, especially when it is endangering the lives of us all.

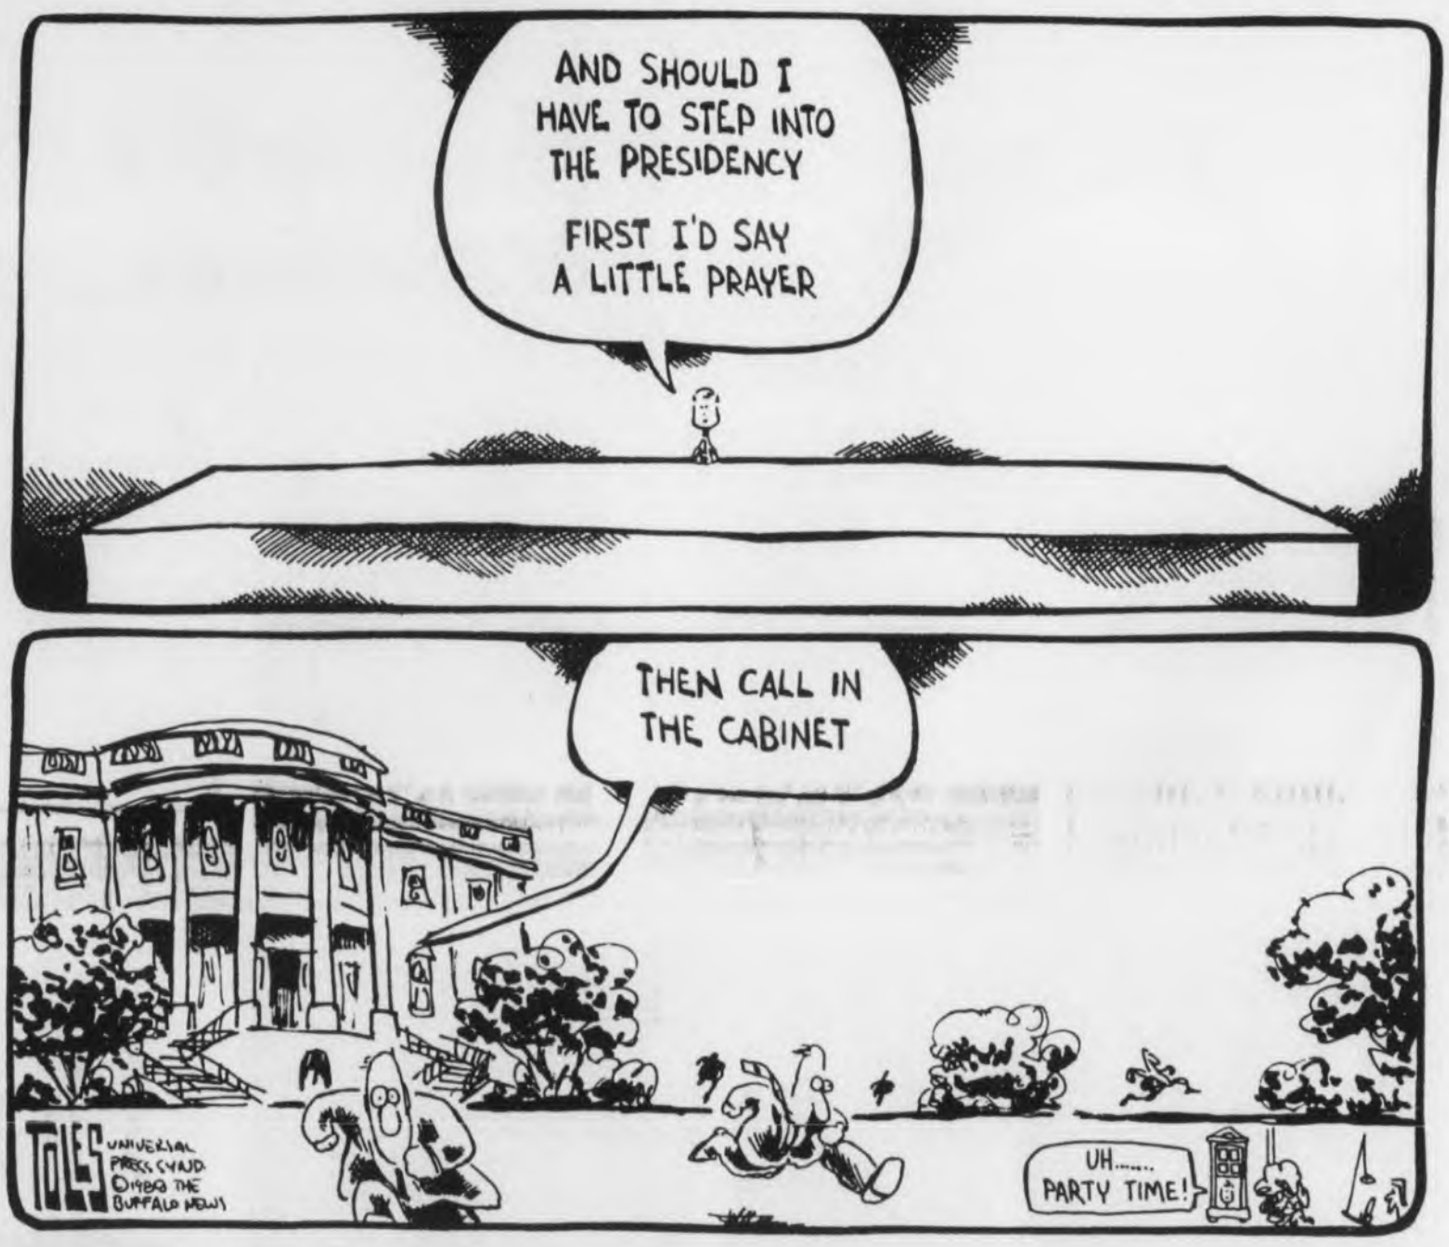
Dukakis, Reagan agree on Central America

Over the course of the past eight years, most of the American public has consistently opposed the Reagan administration's harassment of Nicaragua. This has included its covert and not-so covert support of death squads in El Salvador and Guatemala, its bullying presence in Honduras and its indifference and even hostility toward the peace plan of Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez.

But despite the American public's opposition to a failed, unjust, militaristic and clearly idiotic policy, Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis seems content to "stay the course" in Central America.

While originally calling for no more aid to the CIA-owned and operated Contras in Nicaragua, Dukakis now favors a $27 million "humanitarian" aid package. Taking his cue from Ronald Reagan, Dukakis has yet to explain how aid to terrorists, rapists and all-purpose thugs can be considered "humanitarian."

And although Dukakis claims the "humanitarian" aid package demonstrates that the Democrats "want to give the Arias peace plan a chance to work," he conveniently ignores that such "humanitarian" aid actually violates the Arias peace plan. Sounds like more of the same old Reagan doctrine.



Further echoing the past eight years of Reagan, Dukakis announced he has no plans to cut off aid to the Salvadoran military — despite its history of close links, and even overlapping membership, with paramilitary forces, also known as death squads.

As Angela Sanbrano, executive director of the Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador said, "We don't see any difference between Dukakis's and Bush's positions on El Salvador."

That Dukakis has cozied-up to the far right and the friends of Reagan in Central America is evident. His reasons remain to be determined. A key, however, would seem to be Dukakis' running mate Lloyd Bentsen, a long-time Contra cheerleader.

The gap between Dukakis' and Bentsen's positions on Central America has been closed, not by Bentsen's stepping into line with reality, but by Dukakis' alienating a large portion the public. The result is two candidates with strikingly similar stances on Central America in the '88 election.

Indeed, will the real Republican candidate please stand up?

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

UNSIGNED EDITORIALS represent the consensus opinion of the Collegian's editorial board. Opinion columns do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian management, Student Publications, Inc. or the newspaper staff in general.

Letters

Housing important

Editor,

In the Oct. 5 Collegian, an article by Alan Wilds introduced Home Programs, Inc. and informed us about the Housing Forum Oct. 15 at the First United Methodist Church. I want to urge your participation.

Recently, the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, at the urging of K-State administrators, organized a task force to study the housing issue for students. This is a wonderful idea; however, the task force is composed only of the members of the financial community, with bankers, builders, and contractors represented. The committee is chaired by Rick Mann of Kansas State Bank.

The Housing Forum has been organized to create an open dialogue about housing-related problems in Manhattan. It includes the financial community, builders, residents of neighborhoods around the city, city planners, city code enforcement personnel, students, politicans, ministers, and others concerned about the quality of life in Manhattan. The Housing Forum was organized and is chaired by Stormy Kennedy of the East Manhattan Neighborhood Association and the HOME program.

The neighborhoods which surround K-State on three sides are important to everyone in Manhattan. Parking problems at the university become problems for university neighborhoods, and also for everyone who drives to work at K-State and lives elsewhere in the city.

Additional multi-unit apartment complexes recently have been built on the north side of Anderson Avenue between Denison Avenue and Sunset Avenue. The south side of Anderson between 17th Street and Sunset is a likely target for future construction as well. If this happens, the resulting parking and traffic problems will not only be problems for residents of this area, but also for anyone who uses Anderson to get to and from work.

Almost everyone has witnessed a near-accident at the corner of 14th and Anderson or 14th and Laramie Street since the "convenience" store and Burger King have been built. The litter in this area has increased dramatically as well. Imagine the problems if this kind of development is allowed to continue west of Aggieville and south of Manhattan Christian College.

Planning is necessary and change is inevitable. If there is no citizen input, however, it will be done by those who have a financial interest in the area around campus, but whose hearts and homes are located somewhere else in the city. It is in the best interests of the University and its students to protect the neighborhoods in its perimeter and to help see that housing codes are enforced by the city. It is also in the best interests of everyone in Manhattan who use the streets adjacent to campus to get to and from work. A variety of ideas is necessary to find the best solution. Please come and share yours with the Housing Forum.

The Housing Forum is Oct. 15 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the First Methodist Church, 612 Poyntz.

Charles Stroh
Head, Department of Art

Keep off the grass

Editor,

As I have walked by several of the recently reseeded areas on campus this past week, I have been disappointed to see that people have already been walking and riding their bicycles through them. For whatever their reasons may be, this isn't good.

Freshly seeded areas should be free of any type of traffic for at least several weeks (preferably until next spring or even longer) until the grass has a chance to become well established. Premature use of these areas either by walking on or riding over them, damages the grass plants and compacts the soil, both of which reduce the ability of the grass to become established, and in many cases kills it. This gives us an area that looks bad and becomes a muddy mess when wet, which is exactly what we had before. The effort of reseeding the area becomes a complete waste of a lot of time and money.

This can be easily prevented, however, by using the sidewalk, and not cutting across these areas just to save a little extra walking. The grounds department has been working hard to get things on this campus looking green again. We ought to respect that and not mess up what they have done.

Cameron Rees
junior in horticulture

Chemicals used

Editor,

Stick to the Facts. Chemical weapons are among the worst things mankind ever created to commit genocide. By realizing the dangers that might arise by using these chemical weapons nearly all nations adapted the Geneva Protocol in 1925 which prohibits the use of poison in the event of war.

As a response on the U.S. Senate measure that condemns Iraq for using poisonous gas against the Kurdish minority in Iraq, letter writer Mahmoud Arif claimed these facts as baseless and not able to be proved (Collegian, Sept. 29). I strongly disagree with that opinion and want to state besides the well-known facts a non-American proof. All the specialists and doctors who tried to help those Kurdish victims in hospitals in Europe, especially in West Germany and Switzerland, said they were injured by the use of chemical weapons.

If you have seen those burned crops and if you remember Iraq's poison-gas blitz last March in the village of Halabja where an estimated 4,000 Kurds died, you can understand the U.S. Senate's quick decision in that point.

Or think of what Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz told a group of U.S. congressmen two years ago: "I must tell you that if we had nuclear weapons we would probably have used them." (Newsweek, Sept. 19, 1988). According to that quotation, the poor Kurdish civilians surviving were lucky guys.

Christof Ebert
senior in computer science

Computer theft unsolved

By Amy Bullock
Collegian Reporter

Waiting seems to be the name of the game for Virgil Wallentine, head of the Department of Computing and Information Sciences, after three personal computers and keyboards, a monitor, and a printer were stolen from Fairchild Hall last week.

The loss of the equipment only added to the problem of limited access to personal computers.

"There is absolutely nothing we can do but wait in this situation," said Wallentine. "We hope to get the computers replaced soon, but we don't know when the money will be available to us."

Thomas Isenhour, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, has checked into replacing the computers.

"We've asked a higher administration about the matter, but have not gotten a response as of yet," Isenhour said.

The stolen equipment is valued at more than $5,000. It was not insured, Wallentine said, because state money cannot be spent on insurance policies for universities.

"We had them locked down with steel cables and, for six years, that had proven to be enough insurance," Wallentine said.

Richard Herrman, K-State Police investigator, said there are no leads in the case.

"We don't have anything to go on as of now, but the serial numbers of the stolen equipment have been entered into the National Crime Information Computer in Washington, D.C.," Herrman said.

For example, Herrman said that if computers were recovered in a raid, those computers' serial numbers would be entered into the Washington, D.C. computer to see if the equipment was stolen from K-State.

The problem of limited access is being dealt with by bringing personal computers in from other places.

"We are trying to give exams on schedule, so in order to do that, we have to come up with computers from other sources," Wallentine said.

Lisa Carter, junior in apparel and textile marketing, is a student in Introduction to Personal Computers and has found the lack of computers frustrating.

"It was really an inconvenience last week, because we had to take our quizzes downstairs, where people work on their assignments," she said.

Kansas leaders remain divided on university open admissions

By Matt Bunker
Collegian Reporter

Kansas business leaders are divided on the question of open admissions to state universities, according to a survey of members of the Kansas Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The survey, conducted by Central Research Corporation, found no consensus among KCCI members who were asked if Kansas should adopt a qualified admissions policy or retain the current open admissions policy.

"A small majority (51 percent) of responding members think Kansas should adopt a qualified admissions policy, while nearly as many (48 percent) think the current open admissions policy should be retained," according to KCCI's report.

About 50 percent said all Regents universities should have the same standards if a qualified admissions policy is adopted. Forty-three percent said that certain universities within the Regents system should have higher standards than others.

The survey also asked respondents to give the Regents system a grade for its overall performance in preparing students for adult living and productive work. KCCI members gave the system a 2.64 on a 4-point scale — about a B minus.

Scott Sewell, director of public affairs for the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce, said the local organization's official position during the last legislative session was in favor of open admissions at Regents institutions.

The KCCI has recently formed an Education Committee to look into the question. Ed Doherty, Hutchinson businessman, was appointed the committee's co-chairman.

The committee, however, is not ready to take an official position on the issue of admissions, Doherty said.

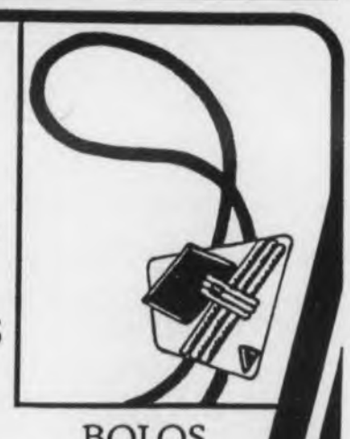
"Ultimately, we will have to come to some kind of position on that matter," he said.

Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian
Classifieds

QUALITY NATURAL FOODS
from your local co-op store
811 Colorado
539-4811
People's Grocery Cooperative

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.
Confidential pregnancy testing • Safe, affordable abortion services • Birth control • Tubal ligation • Gyn exams • Testing and treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Providing quality health care to women since 1974. Insurance, VISA & MasterCard accepted.
Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe) Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free (except KS) 1-800-227-1918



LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
Insulated Overalls & Coveralls
Coats, Jackets & Sweatshirts
Manhattan's Largest Dealer of Carlatt
E. Hwy. 24 (2¼ miles east of the Mall)
Mon.-Sat. 9-5:30 Thurs. 9-8:30 Sun. 1-5
776-6715

KSU Credit Union
will be closed Friday, Oct. 14 and reopen Monday, Oct. 17 in temporary offices at Leisure Hall, Room 6B.
This 60-day move is necessary while our Anderson Hall office is renovated.
KSU Credit Union
6B Leisure Hall
Weekdays, 9 a.m.-4 p.m
532-6274

PURPLE PASSION PAD
SLIGHTLY USED.
OTHER HALLOWEEN & UNUSUAL ITEMS AT AIRPORT FLEA MARKET
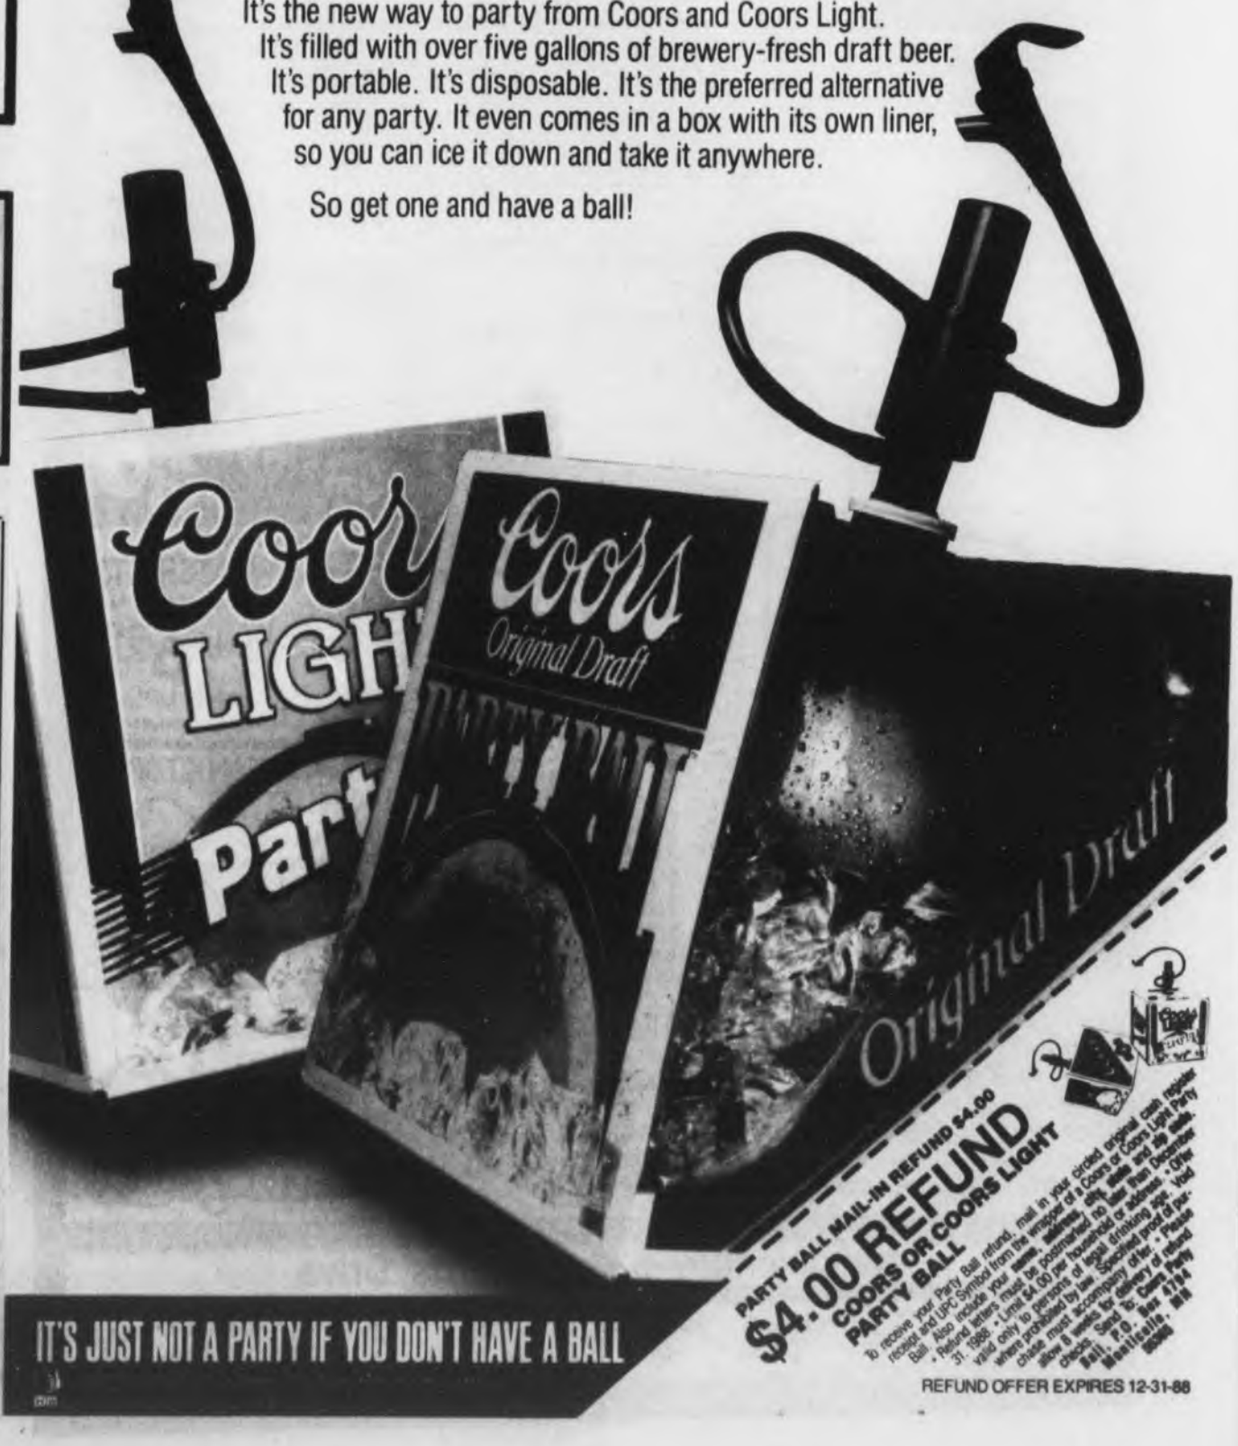
MANHATTAN, KS
OPEN SATURDAY
8 a.m. to 4 p.m.
SUNDAY
10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
PRIDE CO. 776-6906

Baseball Playoffs



Check your local listings for game times
•Draft Beer
•Hot Dogs
•Peanuts
UNIVERSITY INN
17th & Anderson Ave. • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

EXPRESS YOURSELF WITH FUSED GLASS IN HOT NEW DESIGNS AND COLORS
PINS & EARRINGS $26.50

BOLOS $32.25
GLASS IMPRESSIONS
1128 Laramie - Down The Hall
In The Handi-Corner
Tues. - Fri. 11-6· Sat. 10-4
539-4610
GIFT WRAP NOW AVAILABLE

BUSHWACKERS
THE FUNDRINKERY
THURS.
Alpha Chi
Greek Playboy
•$2.75 Pitchers
•$1.50 Wells
KAT 95.3fm KSKT RADIO
Def Leppard Kick-off Party &
Love Bites Costume Contest-9 p.m.
•FREE Admission w/costume
•TWO (2) Front row seats & Back stage passes for Best Love Bites Costume
531 N. Manhattan

Peoples Heritage
Federal Savings
Our lobby will be closed Saturday, October 15, due to our annual meeting. Drive up window will remain open 8am-12 Noon Saturday, Oct. 15.
We will also remain open until 6:00pm Friday, Oct. 14 for your convenience.
2710 Anderson / Manhattan, KS 66502 / 913-537-0550

Alpha Gamma Delta
Criterium Bike Race
for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation
Sunday, Oct. 23, 1988 1-5:30 p.m., Manhattan, KS
Information: Call Alpha Gamma Delta at (913) 776-1770

NEW
THE PARTY BALL™
A PORTABLE, DISPOSABLE KEG ALTERNATIVE
It's the new way to party from Coors and Coors Light. It's filled with over five gallons of brewery-fresh draft beer. It's portable. It's disposable. It's the preferred alternative for any party. It even comes in a box with its own liner, so you can ice it down and take it anywhere.
So get one and have a ball!

IT'S JUST NOT A PARTY IF YOU DON'T HAVE A BALL
PARTY BALL MAIL-IN REFUND $4.00
$4.00 REFUND
COORS OR COORS LIGHT PARTY BALL
To receive your Party Ball refund, mail in your circled original cash register receipt and UPC Symbol from the wrapper of a Coors or Coors Light Party Ball. Also include your name, address, city, state and zip code. • Refund valid only to persons of legal drinking age. • Offer valid for Party Balls purchased between 10/1/88 and 12/31/88. • Refund letters must be postmarked no later than December 31, 1988. • Limit $4.00 per household or address. • Offer where prohibited by law. Specified proof of purchase must accompany offer. • Please allow 8 weeks for delivery of refund check. Send to: Coors Party Ball, P.O. Box 4194 Westfield, MA 01086
REFUND OFFER EXPIRES 12-31-88

Working for K-State means...

A K-State Heritage.
• Joe was raised on a farm south of Chapman and experienced first hand the value of KSU's Extension Service for all Kansans.
• Joe is proud of his family's tradition of K-State graduates. His mother is a 1951 graduate of KSU. His father returned to KSU in 1966-70 to receive a Vocational Agriculture degree. Joe and Nancy, along with their 11 sisters, brothers and spouses, attended KSU.
• Joe served as KSU Student Body President in 1973-74.
• Joe helped establish the Associated Students of Kansas in 1974 which has become a powerful voice in Topeka for faculty salaries and improved quality of higher education.
Voter Registration Deadline—Oct. 18th
Re-Elect Joe Knopp
A leader for K-State.
Political ad paid for by Committee to Re-Elect Joe Knopp, Sharon O'Neal Treasurer

Menu offered before plays

By Melissa Paul
Collegian Reporter

If you're a steak and potatoes person, this menu won't whet your appetite:

Rosemary linguine with caramelized onions and walnuts, sauteed cherry tomatoes with shallots and herbs, capers and olive salad, kale and potato soup with red chili, and poached pears in vanilla syrup with maple mousse.

These are a few of the dishes in a gourmet vegetarian dinner being served by the Union Food Service as a thematic complement to the K-State Players' production of "Little Shop of Horrors," a musical based on the 1960 film about a monstrous plant that feeds on human blood.

The dinner series is titled Avant La Piece.

The dinner will be available before the production from 6 to 7:15 p.m. on Oct. 21 and 22 in the Union Bluemont Room. Tickets may be purchased at the Union Food Service Office for $8.50 each.

Marci Mauller, professor of theater and public relations director for K-State Players, said the Union Food Service tries to create an enjoyable atmosphere with thematic background music and food.

"They are absolutely wonderful," said Nancy Twiss, academic adviser for the College of Arts and Sciences. "My husband and I often attend the dinners. Those who haven't attended these dinners don't know what they're missing."

Malley Sisson, Food Service director, said the service is interested in the dinner's experimental value, not its cost.

"It's a challenge for us," she said. "It lets campus people know we're serving things other than just hamburgers."

She said it also allows the Union to increase its recipe files so it can offer more in its catering services.

Sisson said attendance has dropped over the years since the program began in 1980.

In previous years the productions were in McCain Auditorium, and there was up to 800 people attending the production each night and 80 to 100 people attending the dinners.

Now the productions are in Nichols Theatre, which only seats 340, of which 20 to 30 attend the dinner.

"Little Shop of Horrors" is the first of three plays for which the dinners will be offered.

Other Avant La Piece dates are Nov. 18 and 19 with "Angels Fall" and Feb. 17 and 18 with "Carmen." Menus are yet to be announced.

Urban schools may lose funds with new reappraisal formula

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Lawmakers agreed Wednesday the current statewide property reappraisal will result in a loss of state aid for urban schools unless the aid formula is rewritten, but how much of a loss became the topic of considerable dispute at a committee hearing.

"All that urban property is going up in value," Sen. Phil Martin, D-Pittsburg, told the Special Committee on School Finance. "If we do nothing to the school finance formula, urban schools will lose (state aid) and rural schools will gain. You can't keep that peanut under the thimble forever."

At the request of Martin, a former state property valuation director, the Department of Education did a computer analysis that showed Wichita schools could lose up to $13 million in state aid as a result of the current reappraisal, scheduled for completion by Jan. 1, 1989.

The committee is studying possible changes in the School District Equalization Act, which is designed to funnel a larger amount of state money into poorer districts and less into wealthier ones.

The Legislature is expected to rewrite the school aid formula during the 1989 session because of property valuation shifts created by reappraisal, the first in more than 20 years.

A school district's wealth is based partly on property values within the district. An increase in property values would result in an increase in a district's overall wealth and reduce its state aid under the current formula.

Sen. Fred Kerr, R-Pratt, who is chairman of the special committee, disputed Martin's claim that Wichita would lose up to $13 million in school aid. He said the assumptions used in the computer analysis were flawed because the value attached to empty lots was too high.

PRE-SEASON SKIWEAR SALE
save 20% on all new skiwear by Obermeyer•Tyrolia•Edelweiss•Europa•Inside Edge•Gerry Ski Jackets Knit Hats Goggles
Sweaters Underwear Gloves
Wind Pants Ski Bibs And More!
Use our easy 60-day layaway for your new ski outfit
—SALE ENDS SUNDAY—
OPEN
Monday-Thursday 10-8
Friday & Saturday 10-6
Sunday 1-5
AGGIE SKI & SPORT
537-9105
1212 Moro, Aggieville

1800 Claflin
776-4111
CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1983
See us for Group Discounts
"The Aggieville Alternative"
Thurs. & Fri.: Live Band
FAST FORWARD
Sat.: $Dollar Days$
$1 Pitchers
Open Sunday at Noon-with sports on the Big Screen TV
Tues.: Pool Tournament at 8:00

Over 20,000 name brand T-Shirts, Tank Tops and Sweatshirts must be sold
Cash and Checks Only
ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR-SPORTING GOODS
LIQUIDATION
Save 40-60% off retail
HUNDREDS OF ITEMS AT COST OR BELOW!
Corona HEAVYWEIGHT T-SHIRTS REG. $17.95 ONLY 6.99
HEAVYWEIGHT REG. SWEATSHIRTS $26 ONLY 9.99
PRO & COLLEGE TEAM SWEATSHIRTS & T-SHIRTS ONLY 4.99-10.99 • CELTICS • BEARS • REDSKINS • OVER 40 COLLEGES
WEIGHTLIFTING GLOVES & BELTS GLOVES REG. $16-$18 NOW 7.99 BELTS REG. $26 NOW 16.99
SUNGLASSES OVER 25 DIFFERENT STYLES VALUES FROM $8-$14 ONLY 3.99 PR.
ASSORTED COLORS STYLES & SIZES
Polo KNIT SPORT SHIRTS • OXFORD DRESS SHIRTS • SWEATERS • JEANS • DRESS PANTS • VALUES FROM $35-$60 ONLY 14.99 AND UP!
JUMBO OVERSIZED T-SHIRTS REG. $12-$14 • GUESS • MICKEY MOUSE • COCA COLA • ONLY 6.99
REG. $14.00-$32.00 BEACHWEAR T-SHIRTS • BEACH SHIRTS & DRESSES NOW ONLY $5.99 AND UP!
2000 PR. ATHLETIC FOOTWEAR MUST GO!
T-SHIRTS TANKTOPS REG. $14.00-$16.00 NOW ONLY $5.99-6.99
SWEATPANTS • HEAVYWEIGHT • ASST'D STYLES ONLY 6.99 AND UP! • COLLEGES • PRO TEAMS • NAME BRANDS • PLAIN • ETC.
HEAVYWEIGHT SWEATSHIRTS VALUES FROM $12-$24 ONLY 6.99 AND UP! ASSORTED COLORS, STYLES
OVER 2000 PAIRS OF ATHLETIC SHOES TENNIS • RACQUETBALL • JOGGING • AEROBIC • BASKETBALL • RUNNING • ONLY $7.99 AND UP! • PONY • PUMA • NEW BALANCE • LA GEAR • SAUCONY • CONVERSE • MANY OTHERS VALUES FROM $18-$60
SOCKS • TUBE • CREW • ROLLOVERS VALUES $2-$4 99¢ & UP! 6 PR. PACK REG. $10-$12 ONLY 4.99
DESIGNER TANKTOPS & T-SHIRTS • PUMA & SONS • SPEEDO • BEVERLY HILLS POLICE DEPT. • CALIFORNIA BEACH CO. • GOTCHA • JAMS • TAC SHOP ONLY $4.99 AND UP! OVER 20 DIFFERENT STYLES REG. $12-$16
VUARNET SUNGLASSES OF FRANCE T-SHIRTS • TANKTOPS ONLY 7.99 REG. $14-$18 SWEATSHIRTS NOW 9.99
NAME BRAND ATHLETIC AND RUNNING SHORTS • COLLEGES • NAME BRANDS VALUES FROM $9-$14 ONLY 3.99-5.99
NAME BRAND LONG SLEEVE T-SHIRTS & BASEBALL SLEEVES COLLEGES • NAME BRANDS VALUES FROM $10-$14 ONLY 4.99-6.99
Holiday Inn—530 Richards Drive
One Day Only
Thursday, Oct. 13th
10 a.m.-8 p.m.
One Day Only

NEED TO GET YOUR MESSAGE OUT?
Selling your bicycle?
Need a job?
Buying a sofa?
Need a roommate?
the Collegian Classifieds
Kedzie 103 Phone 532-6555
Deadline-noon the day before publication

Sheila HOCHHAUSER
I WILL BE AT THE CANDIDATES' FORUM TODAY TO DISCUSS:
THE MARGIN OF EXCELLENCE. I support 100% funding of the Regents' recommendations. Funding for the Margin this year at only 83% was inadequate.
WASHBURN. I will strenuously oppose any attempt to fund Washburn through the Regents. Adding Washburn to the Regents system will cut into already scarce funds for Kansas State University.
LONGEVITY AND PHASE III. I will work hard for pay changes that are fair for classified employees. Longevity pay and Phase III offer fair ways to compensate classified employees for hard work and loyalty.
FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE
Because your representative should work for you.
Adv. paid for by Sheila Hochhauser for State Representative, Phil Becker, Treasurer, 1851 Virginia Dr., Manhattan.

The dungeons, the dragons, THE GAME

An angel is among the many miniatures available in gaming.

"I picked up a piece of obscure but valuable information this weekend: Never trust an orc. They're big and stupid, but more importantly, they're just plain evil.

"I discovered this while playing Dungeons and Dragons, a popular role-playing game. My character, Alf the Fighter, led me on a journey of imagination through an abandoned dungeon. Luckily, Alf wasn't alone. He was assisted by Rantil the Ranger and Liphit the Thief, as well as an assortment of magicians, barbarians and a palladin."

Royal Dowdy, owner of The Master Gamer in Aggieville, said role-playing games originated from war games played with miniature soldiers and tanks. Many of the games were battle simulations, fought with the same maneuvers used by real armies.

Dungeons and Dragons, the most popular role-playing game, was the first game of its type when it was invented in 1972 by Gary Gygax and Dave Arneson, Dowdy said.

The "D & D craze" began in 1979, he said.

"It was popular because it took these factual games and added the fantastic. Now, it's the standard role game," he said.

In role-playing games, the players form their characters' personalities. The characters are put through adventures with the help of a guide. In D & D, the guide is called the Dungeon Master.

Without a game board, the players have a virtually unlimited choice of actions. The outcome of game situations is determined by rolling dice.

A typical role-playing game starts with a group of characters exploring a site created by the Dungeon Master. If the players meet enemies, they must decide if they want to attack and, if they attack, who will do the fighting. If they attack, the players are faced with many possible moves, including retreating, surrendering, changing weapons and casting magic spells.

The winner of the fight is determined by rolling dice.

The Master Gamer sells the materials needed for basic game playing: a Dungeon Master's manual, a players' guide, dice and a book of monsters. Dowdy said he also carries accessories, including battle modules, miniatures and Advanced Dungeon and Dragons manuals.

"The basic materials needed for a game will cost about $15, but we sell a lot of extras," Dowdy said. "It's just fluff, but sometimes fluff is nice to have."

Dowdy, who has been role-playing since 1977, said the players are as important as the game.

"It's not the system you use when playing, but the people you play with. (Role-playing games) are good camaraderie games. They really help you meet people," he said.

Avid game players in Manhattan frequently drop by the Master Gamer to check a board used by players looking for other people wanting to play the game, Dowdy said.

"Most of the people on the board are 15 to 25 years old, because this type of game attracts younger people," he said.

Every Sunday night, a group of about eight players, mostly K-State students, meet to play D & D.

They play at Laura Tuttle and Karen Swank's house, sophomores in pre-veterinary medicine. The two met at a D & D game in Kansas City.

As the group's Dungeon Master, Tuttle spends five to six hours a week creating the game situations for the weekly meetings, which can last as long as five hours, she said.

"It's very time-consuming, but the (Dungeon Master) has complete control. I can make things happen to the players and create my own worlds with my imagination," Tuttle said.

Tuttle said the game is a "great way to relieve stress. I can do things in the game I wouldn't think of doing in real life.

"It has nothing to do with reality — it's an outlet for creativity."

The game also requires the players to be creative. Often Tuttle does not anticipate the players' responses to her challenges, she said.

"It's amazing. Our group is made of science majors, and normally they don't have a creative outlet. I've been surprised with some of the creative things they've pulled on me," Tuttle said. "This game gives them a chance to see another part of themselves they don't deal with much," she said.

"It's a good aggression-release game," Dowdy said. "It also helps with solving problems and getting along with people. The better you get along with your co-players, the better your character will do in the game."

Dowdy said role-playing games have been widely criticized. The criticism is unjust, Dowdy said, because D & D is just a game, and any abuses come from the players.

"(Role-playing games) are just like any other games, but players spend a lot of time with these games. They get involved, and don't treat their priorities right. A player is abusing the game when (the player) puts off homework or other important duties," Dowdy said.

"The game is wonderful if you have the time, but you're abusing the game when you play instead of doing something important," Tuttle said.

Fred Newton, director of the counseling center, said it is possible that some players might have trouble distinguishing the game from reality.

"Certain personalities might get confused with their role character and reality. I'm not aware of any cases, but this type of intense game could cause this to happen," Newton said.

Michael Roach, freshman in mechanical engineering, said D & D is "just a game. Many people try to say it's religious-oriented, and that players are worshipping different deities that are represented in the game. This isn't true, of course. It's just for fun."

Steve Nolan, senior in civil engineering and mechanical engineering, played D & D and has heard students criticize the game.

"They were in a Bible study group and were talking about the evils of the game. I asked them if they had read about the game, talked to a person who played it or even played it themselves. They said they hadn't and agreed to watch a game.

"They admitted they couldn't find anything wrong with the game, but still refused to accept it because of what they had heard about it. They still thought it was against their religious beliefs," Nolan said.

Tuttle said the game is based on having a good time.

"Our games have nothing to do with any kind of worship," Tuttle said. "We get weird at times, but it's all in the course of having a good time.

"The game is so different from other games — there are no winners, no losers and no end to the game. It's up to the player to define what the game limits are," said Rich Courtney, graduate in computer science.

Rob Dougherty, who travels from Fort Riley to attend Tuttle's games, said D & D is like a book because one person writes it, but many people can enjoy it.

"It's also a group-storytelling. We can use our collective imaginations to come up with one story. We all affect the outcome," Dougherty said.

Pamela Paresky, freshman undecided, and Craig Goodman, freshman in fine arts, gather in early renaissance-type outfits. Role-players don't play in costumes, but for certain games medieval miniatures are used to represent the players.

Mike Bean, Manhattan, rolls the dice during a game played in the Master Gamer.

Royal Dowdy, part owner of the Master Gamer, sets up a display in the front window. Dowdy is part owner with his wife Minida.

Story by Chris Koger
Photos by Brad Camp

Candidate in favor of educational help

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is part three of a series on the candidates for the Kansas Legislature.

Although she is running against Republican House Majority Leader Joe Knopp, 67th District Democratic candidate Sheila Hochhauser said she is confident of her chances of winning.

Her strategy has been to emphasize Knopp's record.

Knopp voted against funding for the Margin of Excellence plan and for increased state control over funding for Washburn, a move Hochhauser said is one of the major steps toward making Washburn part of the Regents system.

Also, Hochhauser said Knopp was one of 23 representatives in the Kansas House who voted for a $3 billion highway "pork barrel" program.

"We need to be asking what (Knopp's) majority leadership has meant to our district," she said. "People are really starting to pay attention to his record ... and saying, 'This person is not voting in line with our interests.'

"What we need to look at is what is going to help this district and who is going to help this district. We must overlook party labels and claims of leadership," Hochhauser said.

Hochhauser said she is against the affiliation of Washburn with the regents system.

"Adding Washburn will clearly dilute whatever state funding is available," she said. "It is clearly a matter of finances."

Hochhauser quoted a recent poll that said Kansans view education as the No. 1 priority in the state. She said a good economy depends on good education.

With a strong "infrastructure" in mind, Hochhauser said she supports the MOE and using the state windfall tax for property tax relief so that local schools will benefit.

"In line with education, we need to look at childcare," Hochhauser said. "Kansas has ignored that issue."

Having the state throw a lot of money at the childcare problem won't necessarily solve it, she said, adding that employers, as well as the state, should be required to deal with the issue.

"I think we should look at employers as another kind of benefit that employees can use," Hochhauser said. She said a childcare program may eventually be included as part of the benefits from which employees can choose.

Healthcare is another major issue Hochhauser said is facing the state.

Hochhauser is concerned about the availability of care for people she calls "medically indigent," or those who make just enough money not to qualify for Medicaid, yet not enough to pay for insurance or healthcare expenses.

Kansas population change noted

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than two thirds of Kansas counties have lost population so far this decade, with the biggest declines coming in the northern and western portions of the state, the Census Bureau said Wednesday.

In a new report, the government found that only 32 counties experienced population growth from 1980 through the lastest estimates of July 1987. Two counties remained relatively unchanged but 71 suffered losses.

Finney County in western Kansas, home to Garden City and a vigorous meatpacking industry, earned the honors as the fastest-growing county in the state so far this decade, increasing 27.5 percent. Its population rose by about 6,600, reaching 30,400 as of July 1987.

Johnson County, in the Kansas City metropolitan area, ranked second with 23.4 percent growth. Its population increased 63,100, for a total of 333,400 in 1987.

The two were among only five counties in the state experiencing population growth exceeding 10 percent during the 1980s. The others were Leavenworth County, 18 percent; Kearny County, which is just west of Finney County, 16.4 percent; and Douglas County, home of Lawrence and the University of Kansas, 11 percent.

Eight counties have lost 10 percent or more of their population, with all of them in northern or western Kansas.

Rush County suffered the largest percentage decline, 13.4 percent. Its population dropped about 600 from 1980, reaching 3,900 in 1987.

The other counties and their percentage losses were: Lincoln, 13.3 percent; Washington, 12.8 percent; Jewell, 11.4 percent; Rawlins, 11.0 percent; Sherman, 10.2 percent; Osborne, 10.1 percent; and Woodson, 10.0 percent.

Helga Upmeier, a researcher at KU's Institute for Public Policy and Business Research, said in an interview that the shrinking populations in the rural Kansas counties reflected a trend of "outmigration" of young people to cities or other states.

Consultants recommend ideas for trash

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The state must take steps now to avoid serious problems with the disposal of household garbage that plague other communities across the nation, a Kansas health official and a consultant told legislators Wednesday.

Gary Hulett, undersecretary of health and environment, and William E. Franklin, whose Prairie Village firm, Franklin Associates, is a consultant for the federal Environmental Protection Agency, said the state has an opportunity to plan for the future before a crisis develops.

However, their recommendations fell short of some of the measures being considered in other states, such as bans on materials that present a disposal problem or taxing certain products.

"We have a generation of old landfills which will require closure in the near future, and in the next few years many local officials will be making decisions that will determine the course of solid waste management in our state for the next two decades," Hulett told the Special Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Franklin said: "Kansas is fortunate. The municipal solid waste situation is growing in importance but is not yet urgent. There is time to plan."

The discussions come at a time of increasing concern over how local communities will dispose of household garbage in the future. The EPA has proposed stricter regulations for the management of landfills, regulations Franklin said could easily double the cost of using them for cities and counties.

"There is going to be a real burden and significant requirement placed on these communties," Franklin said.

Franklin said recycling should become a bigger part of communties' efforts for disposing of household garbage. He estimated that Kansas communities currently recycle about 10 percent of their garbage.

45 Years Serving America's Children
Support the March of Dimes

WINTER PARK COLORADO
$179* from
JANUARY 2-7 • LODGING LIFTS • PARTY • MORE!
Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS * 1989 *
WINTER PARK WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Fully equipped condominium lodging for 6 days/5 nights • Full 4 day lift ticket good for all Winter Park Resort mountains with additional days available at reduced rates • Poolside Welcome Party with complimentary beverages • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/base shuttle service • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.
TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: VAIL/BEAVER CREEK, KEYSTONE AND STEAMBOAT
sunchase tours

CRAZY DAYS

The Far Side
20% off
Mugs, Calendars & cards
All day Thursday
537-8025 1314 Westloop

WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER

ROSES 99¢ each
Cash & Carry
537-2845
1346 Westloop Place
WESTLOOP FLORAL

Fashion Shop Beauty Salon
CRAZY DAYS
Diane Von Furstenberg Denim Skirts
$24.95 reg. $49.00
Cotton Sweaters
$19.99 reg. price $45.00
Thursday, October 13

Fashion Shop Beauty Salon
HAIR CUT $5.00 with coupon
539-2921
WestLoop
Styling for Men and Women
Walk-ins Welcome
1129 Westloop — on the west side

alpha chi omega
ΑΧΩ GREEK
KSU
PLAY BOY
Tonight's the Night!
The Greek Playboy will be Chosen tonight at 8 p.m. at BUSHWACKERS · THE · FUNDRINKERY
in Aggieville
COME JOIN THE FUN
Proceeds go to Alpha Chi Omega Foundation which supports Cystic Fibrosis VOTE TODAY IN THE UNION

THE CLOTHES TREE
50% OFF
Selected Fall...
•Blouses •Skirts •Dresses
•Pants •Sweaters •Pykette Separates CRAZY DAZE COUPON
$10.00 off any $30.00 Purchase
Regular Priced Merchandise—Excluding jewelry
Thursday, Oct. 13 only
1150 Westloop
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat.
OPEN SUNDAYS 1:00-5:00
Affordable Fashion Sizes 4-54
OPEN TIL 8:00 THIS THURSDAY

Kitchens Plus
MANHATTAN'S "FUN" PLACE TO SHOP!!
CRAZY DAYS MADNESS
COUPON
ONE DAY ONLY—THURSDAY—OCT. 13th
20% OFF
All regular priced merchandise except 1988 Christmas merchandise and our Wizard of Oz Jack-in-the-Boxes
COUPON
1110 WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER—537-4046

"GRAB YOUR COAT"... Cold weather's coming!
WOOL TOP COATS:
In grey herringbone or taupe. Single-breasted traditional styling. $325
TRENCH COATS
Khaki doubled breasted and belted. Cotton outershell; button-out full jacket wool liner, removable wool collar. $185
Locally Owned
20% off on all Outerwear
Thursday only
BORCK Brothers
1160 Westloop Place (913) 537-8636
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. til 8:30 Thurs.

Finney proposes more aid for loans

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — State Treasurer Joan Finney proposed Wednesday that the state Pooled Money Investment Board put another $15 million into its program that helps Kansas banks provide low-interest loans to farmers and small businesses who need economic assistance.

Finney, chairwoman of the PMIB, said she would ask the board's other two members, Commerce Secretary Harland Priddle and Topeka businessman Clayton McMurray, to approve the new $15 million investment of state funds in the program at a meeting Thursday afternoon in her office.

McMurray has never supported the program, saying it costs the state money in reduced interest rates it gets on its investment, and arguing that as a matter of policy the Legislature or the governor should be making the decision to use state funds in this manner. He said he usually abstains from voting when the issue comes up.

Priddle supported the last PMIB offering, but was out of Topeka today and not available for comment on Finney's latest proposal.

The last investment, involving $22.5 million in state funds, was made Sept. 1, 1986, and expired Sept. 1 this year.

Finney had placed a new offering on the PMIB's agenda last spring, then postponed the proposal in order to see if the economy improved enough that the loans weren't needed.

"After visiting with a lot of people out there, I concluded this program still is needed," she said Wednesday.

She called the PMIB loan program "a grassroots approach to economic development," and labeled the state's other economic development efforts "a dismal failure." She was particularly critical of Kansas Venture Capital, saying it has provided only $1.1 million in loans and all to three Johnson County businesses.

Firm to pay $115 million for fraud

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Sundstrand Corp. has agreed to plead guilty to federal fraud charges and pay a $115 million settlement for overbilling the Pentagon for airplane parts over five years, federal prosecutors said Wednesday.

U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas said the settlement includes "tens of millions of dollars" in penalties against the Rockford-based aerospace contractor.

"You have a company that set out to defraud the government," he said at a news conference. "The only way that type of activity can be deterred is through swift legal action."

Valukas would not estimate the cost of Sundstrand's actions to the government.

A further investigation of individuals at Sundstrand will be completed in two or three months, he said, noting the plea agreement calls for the company to cooperate in that probe.

Sundstrand spokesman Claude Vernam said he could not immediately comment on the plea agreement.

Sundstrand makes flight-data equipment, engine start-up systems and other electronic equipment for military and commercial aircraft.

The Defense Department accounts for 42 percent of the company's $1.4 billion in annual sales.

"Sundstrand has provided a good-quality product for a long period of time. Unfortunately, we've been paying too much for it," Francis Holland, regional commander of Defense Contract Administration Services, said at the news conference.

Sundstrand may be barred from further contracts with the Defense Department pending an investigation, spokesman Larry Wilson of the department's Defense Logistics Agency said from Washington.

Sundstrand has agreed to plead guilty to a four-count criminal information produced by a federal grand jury in Rockford.

Intramural Volleyball Officials Clinics

all those interested must attend the following:

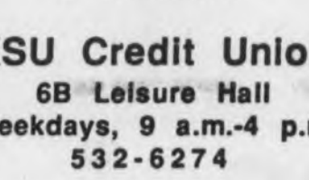
1) Sun., Oct. 16 6:30 p.m. Union 207
2) Mon., Oct. 17 6:30 p.m. Rec Complex Multipurpose Rm.

COSTUME ALLEY
OPENS OCT. 15

Now located next to Brothers & upstairs

Lots of weird things to dress up in!

KSU Credit Union
will be closed Friday, Oct. 14 and reopen Monday, Oct. 17 in temporary offices at Leisure Hall, Room 6B.



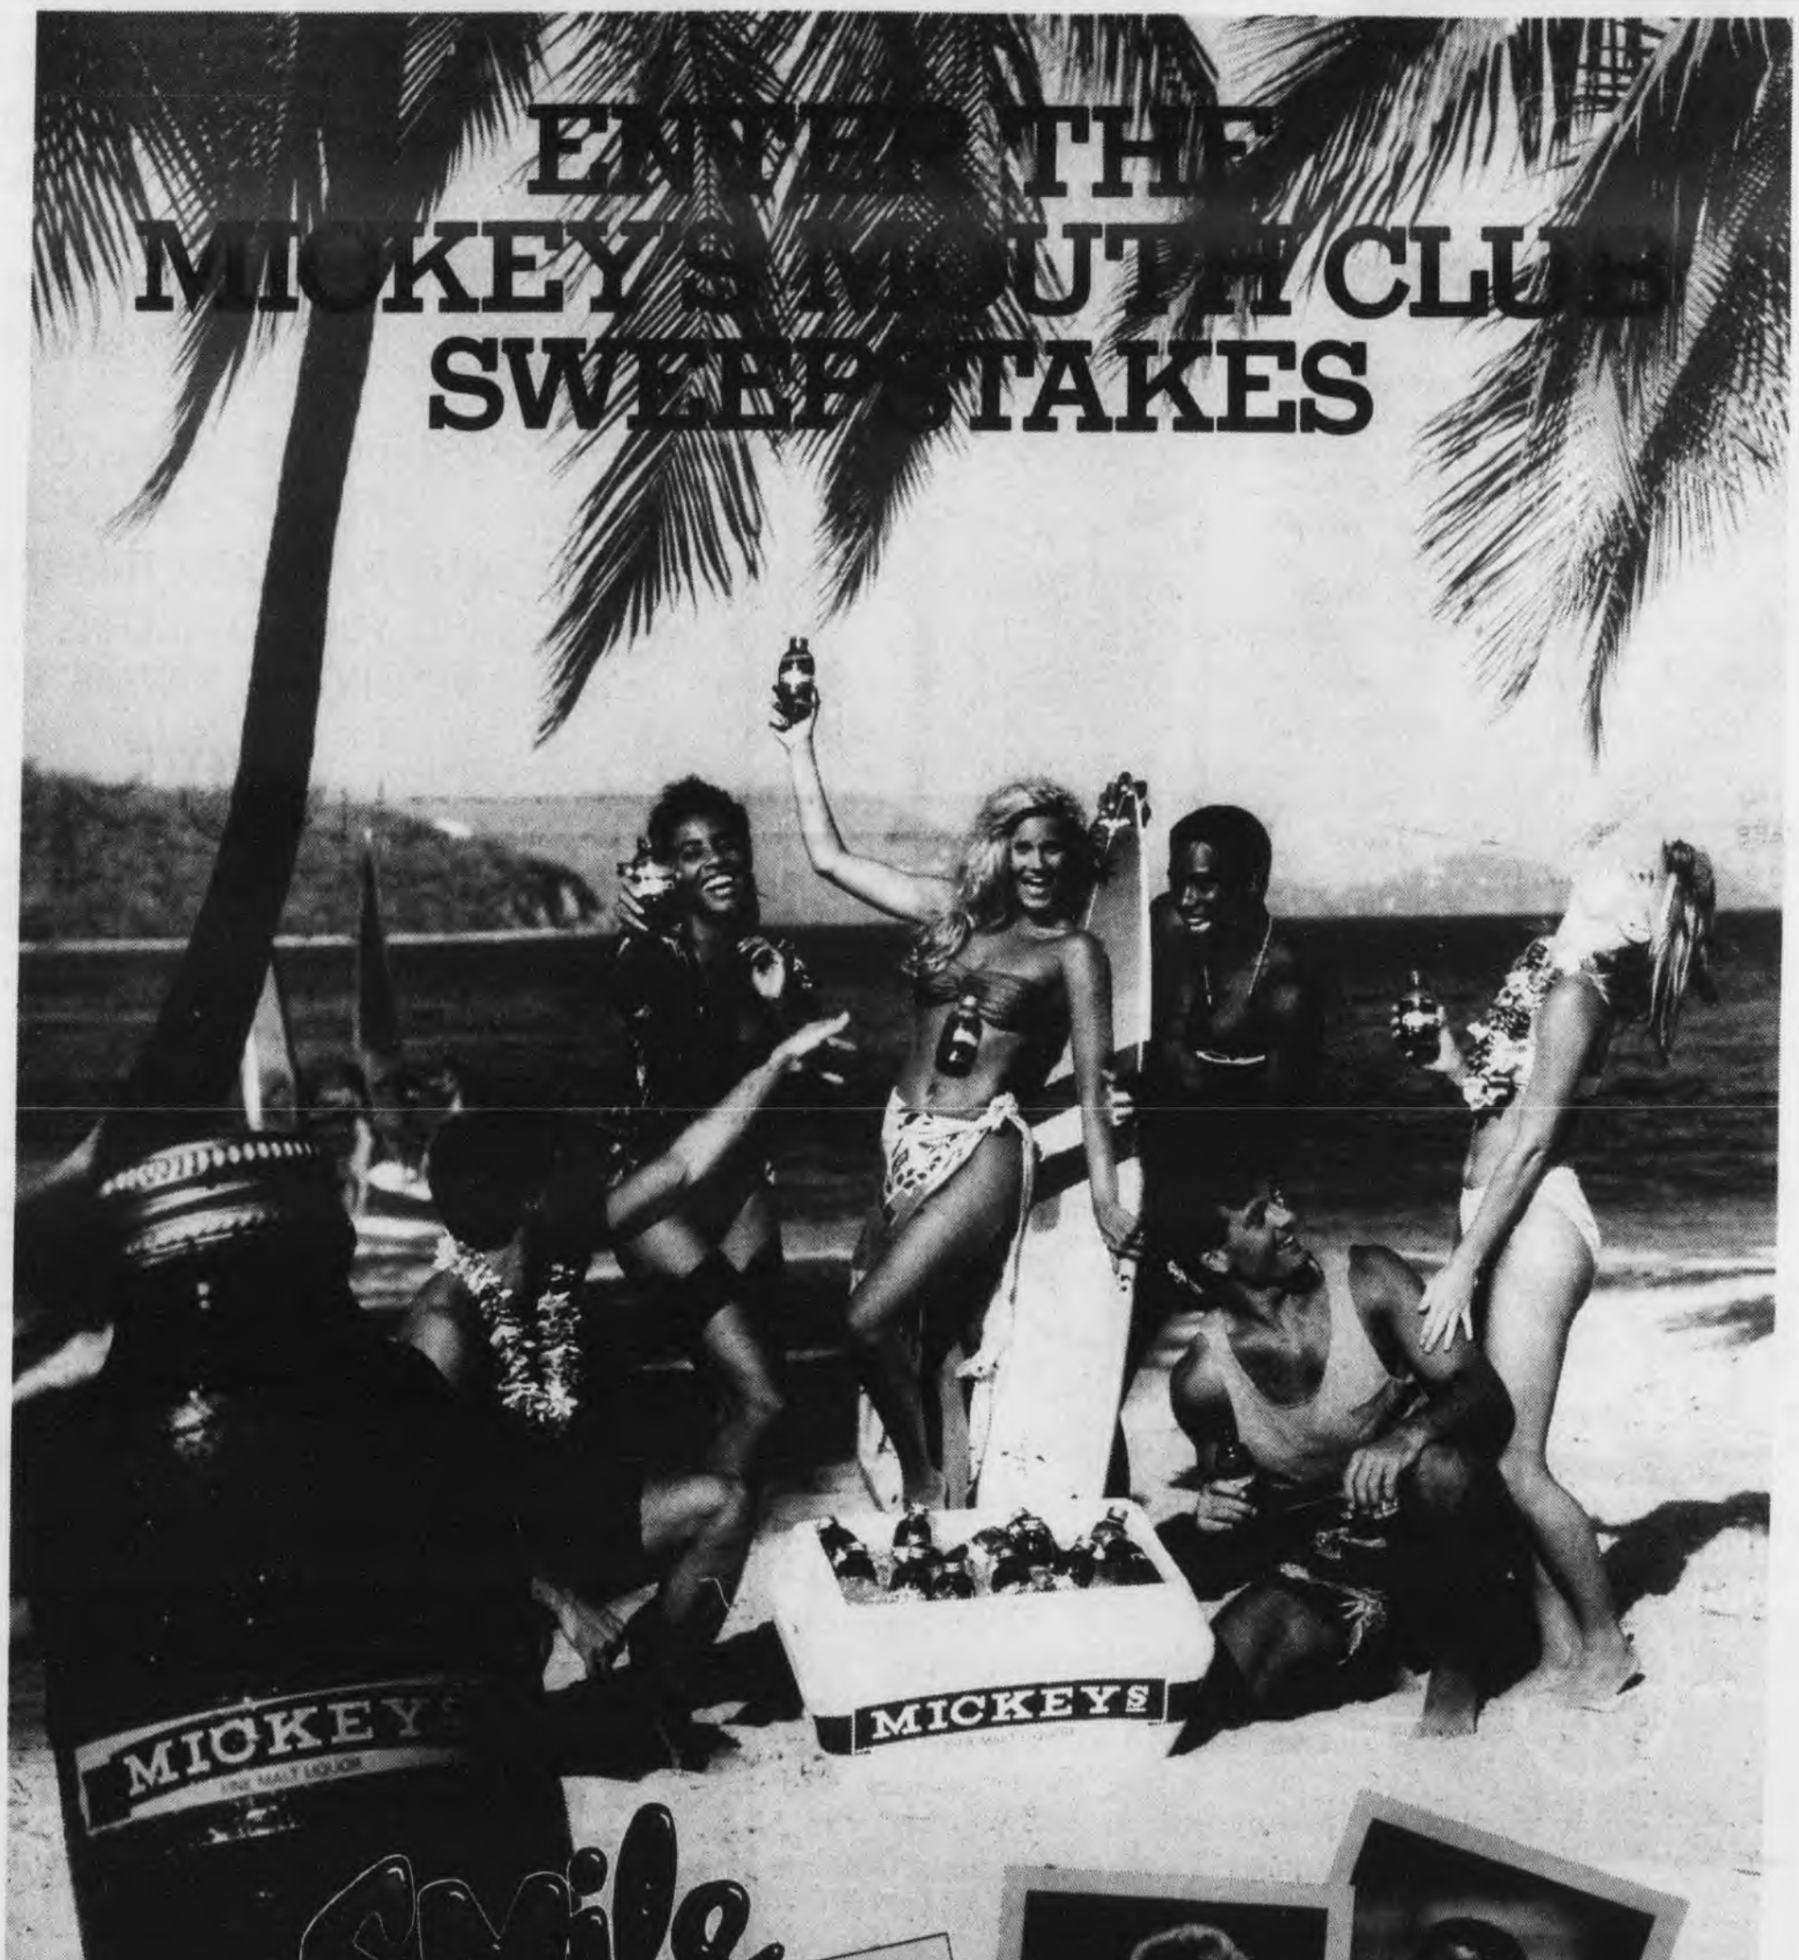
This 60-day move is necessary while our Anderson Hall office is renovated.

KSU Credit Union
6B Leisure Hall
Weekdays, 9 a.m.-4 p.m
532-6274

McCain auditorium

Mark Peskanov, Violin
Rita Sloan, Piano

Tomorrow
October 14, 8 p.m.



Warm playing, a fiery personality, and down-to-earth musical intelligence have earned Mark Peskanov praise from American audiences and critics since 1973, when he emigrated from the USSR. A Juilliard graduate, Mr. Peskanov has received an Avery Fisher Career Grant, the first Isaac Stern Award, and the first Frederick R. Mann Young Artist Award. Lawrence resident Rita Sloan is also a graduate of Juilliard, where she studied with the legendary Rosina Lhevinne. Join them for a program of masterworks by Mozart, Prokofiev, Brahms, and the Sarasate Carmen Fantasy.

"A violinist of sensitivity as well as formidable technique." --Cleveland Plain Dealer

General Public: $12
Senior Citizen: $10
Student / Child: $8
Orchestra seating only.

Charge tickets to Mastercard or VISA at 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5:00 p.m. weekdays.

Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and Manhattan Arts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at 537-4400.

College females prone to eating disorders

By Eva Craig
Collegian Reporter

More than 2,000 female K-Staters are affected by eating disorders characterized by abnormal eating behaviors, including anorexia nervosa and bulimia.

"These statistics are comparable to national averages for college campuses," said Cindy Burke, Lafene Student Health Center educator.

Estimates of how many of the 2,000 women are anorexic or bulimic cannot be made, she said.

Of all bulimics and anorexics, 87 to 95 percent are female, according to a Lafene health education pamphlet.

Males are not as concerned with having a perfect body and are not as likely to fear food and its effects on the body, Burke said.

Societal conditioning has a lot to do with the problem, she said. Anorexia is a self-imposed starvation that is a "very secretive behavior," Burke said.

"Often times the anorexic, as well as their family members, will deny the problem," she said. "Some bulimics will admit their behavior, but they too are difficult to discover."

Burke said those afflicted with an eating disorder may consume large amounts of food, often in the company of others, but always maintain or lose weight.

This is accomplished by purging — vomiting — after eating or excessive use of laxatives or diuretics.

"Anorexics and bulimics don't realize the health risks of their behavior and that's scary," Burke said.

Between 10 and 15 percent of all anorexics will die of heart failure, infections, hypoglycemia or starvation, but about 50 percent can be cured. Bulimics can develop digestive problems, liver damage, hormone imbalances, tooth decay and many other physical changes, according to two health education brochures available at Lafene.

A major problem with both behaviors is a snowball effect that often occurs in living groups. People see someone losing weight and they begin binge-purge or starvation behaviors, Burke said.

Theresa Youngworth, junior in family life and human development, is a member of the eating disorder support group and a recovered bulimic.

"After six years and extensive therapy, I am symptom-free," she said.

The group, which started three years ago, focuses on support for bulimics and anorexics.

"We're here to support and to talk to people with disorders, not to cure them," Youngworth said.

The support group is open to anyone in the community, and meets every Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Union.

University Services at Lafene is scheduling a new therapy group for bulimics this semester.

Dorothy Sarrand, the clinical psychologist in charge of the program, said it will be structured for the first semester toward a small group of bulimics.

The group will meet for seven weeks and will focus on self-image, anxiety, "food-fantasies" and other characteristics common to bulimics, Sarrand said.

Although the current group is filled, Sarrand said she believes future groups will be larger and encourages bulimics seeking therapy to inquire about the program.

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

Collegian Classifieds
Cheap, but Effective

99¢ CHEESEBURGERS
All You Want
Tonight Only
The Chef
111 S. 4th

WHEN IT'S IMPORTANT TO K-STATE
ROD OLSEN WILL BE THERE

I WILL . . . lead the fight against Washburn!

. . . fight for full funding of the Margin of Excellence

. . . work for fair pay and full benefits for classified employees

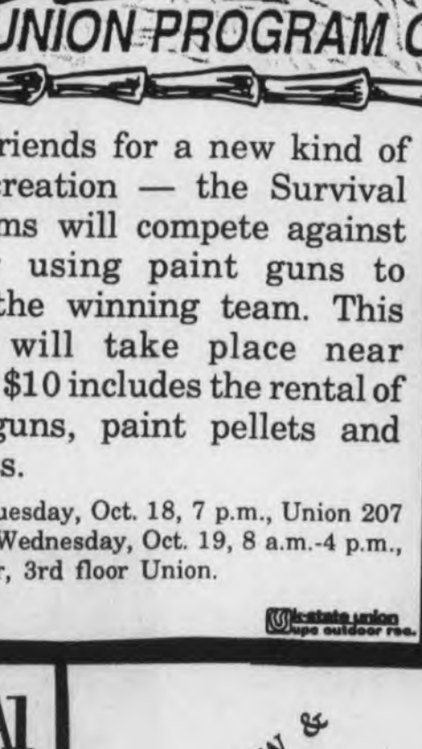
. . . support initiatives of the Associated Students of Kansas to increase educational opportunities for students and help families meet future educational expenses.

I OWE NO POLITICAL FAVORS TO ANY ONE PERSON OR PARTY IN TOPEKA!
I HAVE WALKED THIS DISTRICT;
I HAVE HEARD YOUR CONCERNS. I WILL WORK FOR YOU IN THE KANSAS SENATE.

VOTE
Rod Olsen
★★STATE SENATE★★

Rod Olsen for Senate, Dick Green, Riley County Treasurer
Paid for by Committee to Elect Rod Olsen.

SPERRY TOP-SIDER®
Authentic Original



Sizes to 13
Narrow & Medium

foley's shoes
at
The Stevensons Clothing Company
Established 1920
1342 Westloop Place

Cottonwood Racquet Club
Weight Room
½ off Initiation Fee Until Oct. 25
•Best free weights in town plus universal machines
•Open 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily for your convenience
•Come in and look us over
Cottonwood Racquet Club
3615 Claflin
Claflin at Hudson
776-6060

NEW MUGS FROM HALLMARK

Conversational messages convey a personal shared feeling. Perfect for a special friend.
$5.95 each.

Hallmark

k-state union bookstore

© 1987 HALLMARK CARDS, INC.

THE UPC ADVENTURE
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE

Survival Game Adventure
October 30

Join your friends for a new kind of outdoor recreation — the Survival Game! Teams will compete against each other using paint guns to determine the winning team. This adventure will take place near Manhattan. $10 includes the rental of the paint guns, paint pellets and refreshments.

Info. meeting: Tuesday, Oct. 18, 7 p.m., Union 207
Sign-up begins: Wednesday, Oct. 19, 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Activities Center, 3rd floor Union.

k-state union upc outdoor rec.

DO YOU KNOW YOU CAN GET THE INT'L STUDENT I.D. ON CAMPUS?

Traveling abroad? Get your International Student ID in the Activities Center, K-State Union, 3rd floor, 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday-Friday. Cost is only $10 and it's good through December 31, 1989! Save on airfare, tickets, hotels, and lots more.

the MOVIES

JUZO ITAMI'S THE FUNERAL ...A DEADLY COMEDY.

WRITTEN AND DIRECTED BY JUZO ITAMI
STARRING NOBUKO MIYAMOTO AND TSUTOMU YAMAZAKI PRODUCED BY ITAMI PRODUCTIONS & NEW CENTURY PRODUCTIONS

This is a story about three days in which a married couple, an actor and an actress, must preside over a traditional Japanese funeral for a member of the family. Their confusion and perplexity over the complex demands from the situation is both comic and moving. (In Japanese with English subtitles.)

TODAY, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall. $1.75 with KSU ID.

TOMORROW & SATURDAY! The winner of 9 Academy Awards!

THE LAST EMPEROR
A True Story

This is the story of Pu Yi, who was crowned Emperor of China in 1908 at the age of three and ended up, 60 years later, a humble gardner of Peking. The film takes you through six decades of turmoil and revolution in China through the eyes of one man. Rated PG. October 14 & 15, 6:00 and 9:00 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.75 with KSU ID.

Disney's triumphant musical masterpiece returns with unforgettable songs, exuberant dances, and a dazzling combination of live action and animated effects. Winner of five Academy Awards including Best Original Musical Score. Rated G.

Saturday
2 p.m.
Sunday
2 & 7 p.m.
Forum Hall
$1.50
with KSU ID

Re-released by BUENA VISTA DISTRIBUTION CO., INC. ©Walt Disney Productions

k-state union upc feature films

'Cat tennis team wins with 1 senior

By Mike Rouse
Sports Writer

Most coaches would be worried if they had only one senior starter, but Steve Bietau has K-State's tennis team off to a successful start.

At the 'Husker Invitational Saturday in Lincoln, Neb., the Wildcats had three people place against competition that included Minnesota, Arkansas, Colorado, Texas Tech, Iowa, Nebraska and Wichita State. And at the Collegiate Women's Tennis Invitational at Salina in late September, K-State had a winning record in every division but one.

Bietau said the team's performance at Nebraska was "one of the best ever."

"The tournament helped the team's confidence and it will definitely push us in the right direction," he said.

The lone senior on the squad is Annika Emtell, who has been playing No. 6 singles. Bietau said she can handle the leadership role.

"She is our only senior, she is very mature, and is a bright individual," he said.

Emtell, a native of Djursholm, Sweden, is coming off a first-place finish at the 'Husker Invitational.

"She is very experienced and knows how to respond to that kind of role. She is where we will be looking at first (for leadership)," Bietau said.

What also has helped the team is the fact that Bietau lost only one starter from last year, Sigrid Ivarsson, to graduation.

"Anytime you lose an experienced player, it has to hurt your team," Bietau said. "But we have had people jump up and play No. 2 and No. 3, so we are pleased with their performance."

Some of K-State's top returning players are Thresa Burcham, Marijke Nel and Valerie Rive'. Bietau said the returning players should benefit from their experience, and will help K-State improve its sixth-place finish in the Big Eight Conference tournament last year.

"They will have higher expectations and their confidence will be a lot higher," he said.

■ See TENNIS, Page 14

Staff/Joe Freeman

K-State tennis coach Steve Bietau talks to the tennis team before a recent practice. This year's team has only one returning letter winner.

Staff/Joe Freeman

Mistee Bitner, a sophomore starter, strains as she returns the ball during a recent practice. K-State is depending on returning letter winners such as Bitner to carry the team this season.

K-State to receive award

By The Collegian Staff

The Big Eight Conference's sportsmanship award for basketball has been awarded to K-State for the second consecutive year.

"I'm awfully proud of the award," coach Lon Kruger said. "The award represents the entire basketball program — the players, coaches, fans, and the University as a whole.

"Anytime you can defend a sportsmanship, or any other award, it makes the award more significant," he said.

A trophy will be presented to representatives of the student body, fans, cheerleaders, band, players, and coaches Friday night during "Midnight Madness" at Bramlage Coliseum.

The award, for the 1987-88 season, was announced in May at Colorado Springs during the Big Eight's annual meeting.

Big Eight officials vote on the award, judging each Big Eight team and coaching staff primarily on their decorum during the past season.

Other key elements the officials consider are the actions of the school's fans, spirit squad, and band.

"It is one thing to be a winner, (and) it is another thing to win and exude the kind of class that Lon Kruger's program has," said K-State athletic director Steve Miller. "This is the kind of award that we can take pride in, not only as an athletic department, but as an entire University."

K-State has won a Big Eight sportsmanship award four times.

Wildcat volleyball team loses 9th straight match

By The Collegian Staff

Same song, ninth verse.

K-State's volleyball team lost its ninth consecutive match Wednesday night in Columbia, Mo., as the Wildcats dropped a four-game decision to Missouri, 15-9, 11-15, 16-14, 15-8.

K-State's latest defeat resembles its last two losses last weekend to Iowa State and Drake.

At Iowa State, the 'Cats were up 2-1 and lost a two-point decision in game four before falling in five. At Drake, K-State had a big lead in the fourth game and lost it, along with the game, defeated in five games.

Against the Tigers, the match was tied at one game apiece and K-State had a 13-9 lead in game three with the serve. Missouri came back to win the game, 16-14.

"It's kind of the same old story," coach Scott Nelson said.

"We had a chance to take control of the match and suddenly the pressure switches to us. We had four unforced errors in game three when we had a chance to win."

K-State did unveil a new attack Wednesday as the 'Cats employed a 6-2 offense — six attackers and two setters.

"There was some miscommunication, but overall we played the new offense fairly well," Nelson said.

Tami Tibbetts led K-State with 13 kills. Lynda Harshbarger added 11 and Valarie Kastens had 10. Kastens was K-State's nominee for Big Eight Conference player of the week.

Leslie Kull led K-State in digs with 20. Harshbarger had 15 and Kristin Martin had 15.

Hershiser blanks Mets as Dodgers nab pennant

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Dodgers won the National League pennant Wednesday night by beating the favored New York Mets 6-0 in Game 7 behind Orel Hershiser's five-hitter, completing one of the greatest turnarounds in major league history.

The Dodgers will host Game 1 of the 85th World Series Saturday against Oakland in a rematch of the 1974 Series won by the Athletics in five games.

NL Playoffs: LA 6, New York 0

Hershiser, who finished the season with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings, started Games 1 and 3 without getting a decision and saved Game 4. Of the 65 innings pitched by the Dodgers, Hershiser accounting for 24 2-3.

He broke the major league playoff mark of 22 2-3 innings, set in 1986 by Boston's Roger Clemens. The old NL playoff mark was 18 innings by Mike Scott of Houston, also in 1986.

It is the Dodgers' ninth pennant since moving to Los Angeles in 1958 and their first since 1981, when they went on to beat the New York Yankees in the World Series.

The Dodgers scored first in six of the seven games against the Mets and made things easy for Hershiser by scoring a run in the first off loser Ron Darling. Los Angeles then chased him with five runs in the second as New York made three sloppy fielding plays.

The Dodgers finished the regular season 94-67, a 43-game improvement over last year's 73-89 record. Only six times previously has an NL team finished 15 games or more below .500 one season, and rallied to finish 20 games or more above .500 the next. The Dodgers were also 73-89 in 1986.

Ironically, the Mets were 73-89 in 1968 and went on to win the World Series in five games against Baltimore a year later.

Hershiser had five strikeouts, two walks and two hit batsmen in pitching the third shutout in a series-deciding game in playoff history. Catfish Hunter of Oakland beat Baltimore 3-0 in the final game of the 1973 AL playoffs and Danny Cox of St. Louis shut out San Francisco 6-0 last year in the NL playoffs.

Darling pitched one-plus innings, allowing six runs, four earned, and six hits.

File/Greg Vogel

Former K-State standout forward Mitch Richmond signed a five-year contract with the NBA's Golden State Warriors Tuesday worth a reported $600,000 annually.

Richmond signs with Warriors

By Staff and Wire Reports

OAKLAND, Calif. — K-State's Mitch Richmond, the top draft pick of the Golden State Warriors, has signed a five-year contract with the team, reportedly for about $600,000 a year.

Richmond, a 6-foot-5 guard who recently played for the U.S. Olympic team, could not be reached for comment. He was en route to join the Warriors as they prepare for preseason games today and Friday against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Richmond, 23, was acquired by the Warriors as the fifth overall selection in last June's National Basketball Association Draft.

Golden State officials said that an agreement was reached with Richmond on a five-year pact, but they would not release details of the contract in keeping with "club policy."

However, in Tuesday's edition of the San Fransisco Chronicle, a source told the newspaper that Richmond's salary was "in the ballpark of around $600,000 a year."

"He's reporting to our camp in great physical shape after playing for the U.S. Olympic team," coach Don Nelson said. "Even though he's got some catching up to do, everyone in the organization is excited to have him join our team because he's such a gifted athlete and a solid young man."

Richmond has missed four days of drills, but Nelson said he is not worried.

"If he were to miss another week, it would be hard," he said. "This way, it's not going to be terrible."

Another ex-Big Eight Conference standout, Kansas' Danny Manning, has yet to sign with the Los Angeles Clippers. Manning, the first pick overall in the NBA draft, has already missed a week of training camp.

"We've got some dramatic differences," Ron Grinker, Manning's Cincinnati-based agent told the Wichita Eagle-Beacon Wednesday.

The Clippers' lone offer was $6 million for four years. That's well short of the record rookie deal given to Patrick Ewing in 1985. Ewing signed a contract with the New York Knicks that paid him $33.5 million for 10 years. Plus, he was given a $5 million, interest-free loan.

"The value of that loan is worth in excess of what the Clippers have offered Danny."

K-State cancer biologists researching chemotherapy

By Lisa Pfannenstiel
Collegian Reporter

Three K-State cancer biologists are looking for the key link that makes chemotherapy ineffective for some cancer patients.

Melvin Center, Stephen Chapes and Larry Takemoto, of the Center of Basic Cancer Research in the Division of Biology, were granted $500,000 from Bristol Myers company to conduct a study of the protein that reduces the effect of chemotherapy.

Center outlined the principles behind the research.

"Workers have found that drug resistance in the treatment of many cases is related to the inability of drugs to accumulate inside the cell," Center said. "In a resistant cell, the drug will enter the cell and then be pumped out. Whereas in a sensitive cell — a cell that can be treated with chemotherapy — the drug stays in the cell and kills the cell, which kills the cancer."

The K-State research project intends to determine how and why the drug is pumped out of the cell, he said.

A protein found in some cells serves as a drug-pump in many experimental systems. The protein is called the P-glycoprotein. High levels of the P-glycoprotein have been identified in the resistant cells, Center said.

If the researchers can understand how the protein works, then strategies and approaches can be developed to test a drug to activate the protein in the cell and convert a resistant cell into one that is sensitive, he said.

"(Finding out) what makes the cancer cell resistant to cheomotherapeutic agents is our objective."
—Melvin Center cancer researcher

The grant will provide funding for the preparation of antibodies that are directed to specific sites on the P-glycoprotein. The antibodies could then be used to map the functional regions of the protein. If the specific site could be identified on the P-glycoprotein molecule, a researcher could inactivate the protein.

The three K-State cancer biologists are performing their experiments on rabbits. The biologists begin by synthesizing peptides in the lab identical to peptides in the P-glycoprotein. Each peptide is injected into a different rabbit. Blood tests are taken from the rabbits to obtain the antibodies that the rabbits make against each peptide. From the blood analysis, the biologists might be able to identify the drug-binding site using the site-specific antibodies, which would be one step closer to stopping drug resistance in chemotherapy, Center said.

The biologists have recognized 18 drug-binding sites in the three months of grant research, and they will continue the research until the goals are reached.

"(Finding out) what makes the cancer cell resistant to cheomotherapeutic agents is our objective," Center said. He said the research goal was three-fold — determining how the protein works, pinpointing the functional regions of the protein that resist chemotherapy, and using the information to overcome the resistance.

Resistance of chemotherapy treatment is present in all types of cancer, Center said. Initially people seem to respond to the drugs, but resistance develops with treatment.

"Adult leukemia is one example that is very difficult to cure," he said. "The majority of the patients will not be cured of this disease because they are resistant to the chemotherapy used to treat the cancer. Fifteen percent of the patients with this disease have — at the time of detection — already become resistant to many of the drugs that they need to use.

"(The resistance) gets worse. After a year of treatment, 65 percent of the remaining adult leukemia population become resistant."

In addition, when a person develops a resistance to one drug, in many cases a cross-resistance develops to many other structurally-different drugs, he said.

"This cross-resistance is the most difficult problem researchers face," Center said.

He said that the P-glycoprotein that acts as the drug-pump in resistant cells is apparently present in certain normal tissues. For example, P-glycoprotein is found in the tissues of the kidney, colon and adrenal glands, which make these tissues automatically resistant to chemotherapy treatment.

Surgery is one of the alternative treatments, with the use of chemotherapy to kill the few remaining cells, Center said. Bone marrow transplant is another alternative.

"If the chemotherapy doesn't work on a tumor or cancer growth, usually the treatment is designed to keep the patient more comfortable," said Dr. Robert C. Tout, director of Lafene Student Health Center. "There isn't a great deal more that can be done as a cure for the cancer."

Several students on campus use the Lafene services for cancer treatment, Tout said.

Lafene works with four cancer patients through occasional treatment, medication refills and blood testing to evaluate the patient's progress, he said. The blood tests are sent to the patient's oncologist to determine the effect of the medication.

For informative, comprehensive coverage of ELECTION '88, read the Collegian

Get Personal
in Collegian Classifieds

CPI photo finish
one hour photo
Save 50%
on 4x6 color processing & prints
Each picture is the best it can be or we reprint it free... now!
NO LIMIT ON ROLLS!
4x6 color prints in one hour MH023
50% off
No limit on number of rolls discounted with this coupon. Print length varies with film size. C41 in lab process only, not combinable with other processing and print offers.
Coupon good through Dec. 10, 1988
CPI photo finish
color enlargements in one hour MH023
33 1/3% off
Free Custom Cropping! 5x7, 8x10, 8x12 and 11x14 from 35mm and 126 negatives. (5x7 is only size available from 110 and disc.) Not combinable with other enlargement offers.
Coupon good through Dec. 10, 1988
CPI photo finish
one hour services: photo finishing • enlargements • reprints • double prints
also available: wallet photos • instant color passport photos • video transfer • copies from prints • cameras and accessories • film
Manhattan Town Center
main entrance by food court

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present
little SHOP of HORRORS

Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

The Wash Palace
3216 Kimball—Candlewood
For Complete Cleaning, Alteration and Repair Service
- Coin Laundry
- On the spot FREE Garment Pressing
- Laundry Drop-off Service
- Professional Dry Cleaning & Alterations
- Drive-up window and door
- Bargain Laundry Center w/large capacity washers
- Complete Shoe and Leather Cleaning and Repair
- Big Screen TV
- Pool Table
- Snacks

Coming soon: The Wash Palace Car Wash
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m. 537-9833

ROAD SCHOLAR

SUPERSPORT™

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN — WITH THE NEW BATTERY-DRIVEN SUPERSPORT™ — TO TAKE YOU FROM COLLEGE TO CAREER.

Small, lightweight, flexible and economical. Ideal for spreadsheets, word processing and more. That's the new SupersPort from Zenith Data Systems — today's leader in battery-operated portables.

FLEXIBLE COURSE SCHEDULE. Whatever your agenda, the SupersPort's modular configuration easily adapts to your computing style. With a detachable battery for easier portability. An AC adapter/recharger that plugs into any outlet. MS-DOS® to run virtually all PC/XT compatible software. And 640K RAM — expandable to 1.64MB with EMS. Plus the SupersPort comes in your choice of dual 3.5" 720K floppy drive or 20MB hard disk models. For flexible desktop performance anywhere on campus.

CARRY SOME GREAT HOURS THIS TERM. Hours of battery power, that is. For greater productivity everywhere your studies take you. Thanks to Zenith's comprehensive Intelligent Power Management — a system that lets you control how your battery power is consumed. So you won't waste valuable energy on components and peripherals not in use.

EASY COLLEGE READING. The easiest. After all, the SupersPort features Zenith's renowned dazzling backlit Supertwist LCD screen for crisp text and superior readability. And its CRT-size display is one-third larger than most competing portables for enhanced viewing. The screen even tilts back 180-degrees so it lies flat to accommodate a desktop monitor.

Dual 3.5" 720K
Floppy Drive Model
Suggested Retail Price: $2,399
Special Student Price: $1,439

20MB Hard Disk Model
Suggested Retail Price: $3,599
Special Student Price: $2,219

TO CATCH THE NEW SUPERSPORT PORTABLE PC AT A SPECIAL PRICE, VISIT YOUR ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CAMPUS OPEN HOUSE;

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCT. 24 & 25
9A.M. to 4 P.M.
CONTACT YOUR LOCAL
STUDENT REPRESENTATIVE
JAN ELSASSER
537-6807 or
THE BOOKSTORE 532-6583

ZENITH data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

PC/XT is a registered trademark of IBM Corp. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp. Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one portable personal computer per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems Form No. 1392

Nominees neglect health care issues

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Michael Dukakis has made a promise of universal health insurance a centerpiece of his presidential campaign, and George Bush wants to expand Medicaid coverage for the poor.

But both candidates have shied away from detailed prescriptions for a host of other intractable medical problems that will confront the next president, from the AIDS crisis to long-term care to the soaring costs of Medicare.

"Health care is an issue that most Americans are very concerned about, and the candidates have not spent a lot of time on it," said John Rother, legislative director for the American Association of Retired Persons.

Although neither Bush nor Dukakis has owned up to it, the $87 billion Medicare program — which provides health insurance for 28 million elderly and 3 million disabled workers — is almost certain to be a prime target for deficit-reduction in the next Congress.

Physicians' fees under Medicare have risen at a 15 percent annual clip, and Congress is already studying ways to move away from the traditional method of reimbursing doctors for whatever their customary charges are.

"They've been rather quiet about what they would do with Medicare. Our concern on Medicare is that you can't keep ratcheting that program down and expect access for the elderly to continue," said Jack Owen, executive vice president of the American Hospital Association.

But health analyst Jack Meyer said, "The next administration, if they're serious about budget control, has to put health care on the table."

Americans spent $497 billion on health care in 1987, or 11.2 percent of the gross national product, a far larger share of GNP than any other industrialized country.

Still, 37 million Americans have no health insurance, most of them in families with someone in the workforce. They are not old enough for Medicare nor, in most cases, poor enough for Medicaid.

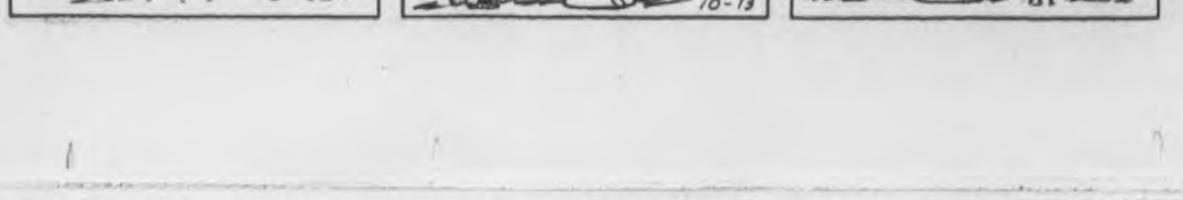
The ranks of the uninsured have grown rapidly over the past decade as insurance premiums surged in step with medical charges and as jobs with extensive fringe benefits disappeared in industries such as manufacturing.

Hospitals and physicians once shifted the cost of caring for the uninsured onto those who could pay. But in recent years, both the government and third-party insurers such as Blue Cross have balked at shouldering that burden.

"The paying patients are driving much harder bargains," said Meyer, president of a research firm called New Directions for Policy. "It's much harder to bury these costs in somebody else's bill."

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed



Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs -skincare -glamor -nails -gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

99¢ LOADED NACHO BUFFET
Cotton Club
drink specials

418 Poyntz
KEMPO KARATE CLASSES
9 yrs. in Manhattan
Instr.: Ty Callahan
Certification:
U.S. Dept. of Justice 1983
USKF 1984
776-2450

College of Human Ecology
Activities Carnival
Wed., Oct. 12-Thurs., Oct. 13
9:00-2:30
Hoffman Lounge, Justin Hall

99¢ slices every Thursday
PYRAMID PIZZA

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings & Drumsticks
Buy 1 Set, Get a 2nd Set ½ Price
327 Poyntz 776-7983

FIREWOOD
Seasoned Mixed Firewood
$50 Truck Load
Split and Delivered
Call 539-3835 after 5 p.m.

VW OWNERS! Save one-half on labor costs on repairs. J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388, seven miles east.

Randy Stonehill Phil Keaggy
Keaggy Stonehill Band
Thursday 7:30 M.H.S.
Tickets $8 in advance
$10 at door
at YFC
MCC
Christian Books and Gifts
Info. 539-4844

AVIATION CADET PROGRAM
Do you want to fly? Pilot training, ages 19-24 with 60 semester hours for our naval aviation cadet program. Must be a U.S. citizen and physically qualified with a 2.5 plus G.P.A. Call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

EeGee's Restaurant & Ice Creamery
THURSDAY
Eegee's Nacho Night
$2.99
Beer of the Day—99¢
12th & Laramie•Aggieville

WHAT OCCUPATION does Eddie Haskell have today? If you know the answer to this question, call Dominoe's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order. 539-0561.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1973 DODGE cornet, 78,000 miles, have to see to appreciate, $700. 537-8950 after 5p.m.

1981 FORD Fairmont Futura, two-door, sunroof, air conditioning, AM/FM cassette, $1,500 or best offer, must sell. 539-0397.

1982 CAMARO, power steering, power brakes, four-speed transmission, stereo, 50,000, $5,800. 776-0382.

1983 CHEVY Slv. Silverado, dually 6.2 liter diesel, great shape. Priced to sell, 1-594-2332 or 537-0845.

1978 PLYMOUTH Horizon four-door, four-speed, air conditioning, 539-7439. Ask for Troy.

CAN YOU buy jeeps, cars, 4x4s seized in drug raids for under $100? Call for facts today (602)837-3401.

8 Computers

COMMODORE 64 disk drive, $200 worth of software, $200. Call Dave after 4p.m. 537-4136.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, Juniors: Train in the summer to become a Marine Corps Officer after graduation. Aviation available. Call collect (913)841-1821.

HEADSTART TEACHER, immediate opening for the 1988- 1989 school year. Degree in early childhood education or CDA (Child Development Associate) required. Nine month position, six hours per day. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, Kansas 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

MCDONALD'S IS now hiring for all day shifts between the hours of 5a.m. to 4p.m. We offer a starting wage of $3.50 per hour with frequent raises. We also offer meal benefits, uniforms and flexible hours. Please apply in person at 815 N. Third Street.

NEED CASH? Earn $250- $350 dollars each semester, by working two- four hours each week, posting and maintaining take-one posters. We give recommendations. Great for the marketing fields also. Call 1-800-821-1543.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

RESORT HOTELS, cruiselines, airlines and amusement parks now accepting applications for summer jobs, internships and career positions. For more information and an application; write National Collegiate Recreation Service, PO Box 8074, Hilton Head SC 29938.

SCHOOL BUS drivers 1988- 1989 school year. $4.75/ hour, must be 21 years of age, have a good driving record and complete a training program. Bus driving experience not required. Part-time: 6:30-8:30a.m. and 2:40- 4:30p.m. Job description available and apply to: USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED for musical homeless project, all fields of study, even your personal contacts can make a difference. Contact Odeis Taylor, 776-4036.

11 Garage and Yard Sales

CHEAP! 327 Moro, Saturday, Oct. 15, 7:30a.m.-12:30p.m. Lamp/table, bookshelf, two chairs, truck fenders, weight bench, motorcycle cover, records, sprinkler hose. Dozens of books- bestseller to how-to. Lots of household miscellaneous. Miss' clothing.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

THREE-BEDROOM PHELPS house, three blocks west of campus, available November. $450/ month. 539-3672.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: ONE wedding band in Throckmorton Hall 132 at 11:30a.m. Monday. Claim at Waters 311 with description.

FOUND: RADIO- controlled airplane, north of football field. Call 532-6115, days.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

FOR SALE: Apartment washer/ dryer. Best offer by Oct. 15. Call 537-8238 after 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overboots, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

STEREO COMPONENTS for sale. Yamaha R-3 receiver, $125. Boston Acoustics A60 speakers, $100 for pair. Call Kelley at 776-9576.

STUDENT DESK, office desk, swivel desk chairs, couch, dinette, chest, beds, bar, misc. furniture. 776-9705.

TECHNICS TURNTABLE. Best offer over $35. No cover. Works great. 537-9218.

18 Personals

BRENT & KURT, Thanks for dinner, we feel like yeastballs. Sara & Katrina.

BUGHEINZ- WE'LL reach those goals of ours. Make sure you springboard off that ideal Sue.

COOKIE: I know, I know- but I am going to return it- because I need real sleep. Buns.

DOC- THANKS for a great weekend in OKC. I love you very much. J.J.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

HEIFER- HAPPY (belated) Birthday! But is it 21 or 12? Remember what paybacks are! We love you- well, sometimes. From: the rest of "Them."

JENNY, IS there a Scott! in your life now (or just in your diary?) An Interested Idiot.

MICHAEL- DO you remember what today is? Wouldn't you agree? I love you, ponkin! Geralyn.

MIKE: I believe that wishes come true; you came into my life when I wished for you. Love, Ed.

SAE MARK- Tonight everyone will know, Bushwacker's is the place to go. Greek Playboy '88 is the place to be, to see the Hot playboy from SAE! Good Luck -AX Anne.

SARA, TODAY is Thursday, but don't you fret, you'll have the prettiest tin grin yet.

THETA SHELLY- Happy 20th Birthday. Sorry it's late. Love, Big Bro.

U WORK at mall/ I'll recognize you at work next time/ ? on ring/ U ecphorize me/ I'll honor your reply/ Class together TU 9:30.

WOMEN OF K-State, Party till you're Def. Ask friends for details.

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

ACFA REGISTERED Blue Smoke Persian kittens. Wholesale price. Call Jennifer, 532-6161 (days), and 539-6748 (evenings).

FREE, FREE, free: Three kittens eight weeks old. Call 537-4384.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

joli styling salon
GRAND OPENING
Hex-Tanning
10 Sessions $27.50
offer expires Oct. 22
539-1177 1106 Laramie

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

GARAGE FOR rent, 1131 Vattier, one block from campus. $35 per month. Call Professor McGuire, 776-5682.

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

FOR ALL word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

LASERPRINTED AND Typeset resumes are 10% off with coupon from KAT magazine. Graphics Plus, 607 N. 11th, Aggieville. 539-6027.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE, NON-SMOKER wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Reasonable price. Call 537-2973, 1002 Gardenway.

NEEDED: FEMALE to take my place at an apartment. Own bedroom, $160/ month, one block from Justin Hall. Call Karen at 539-2733. If I'm not home, please leave message on machine and I'll call back.

ROOMMATE WANTED to share two-bedroom apartment with two other people. $116 month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments, 1005 Bluemont. 537-1878.

24 Situation Wanted

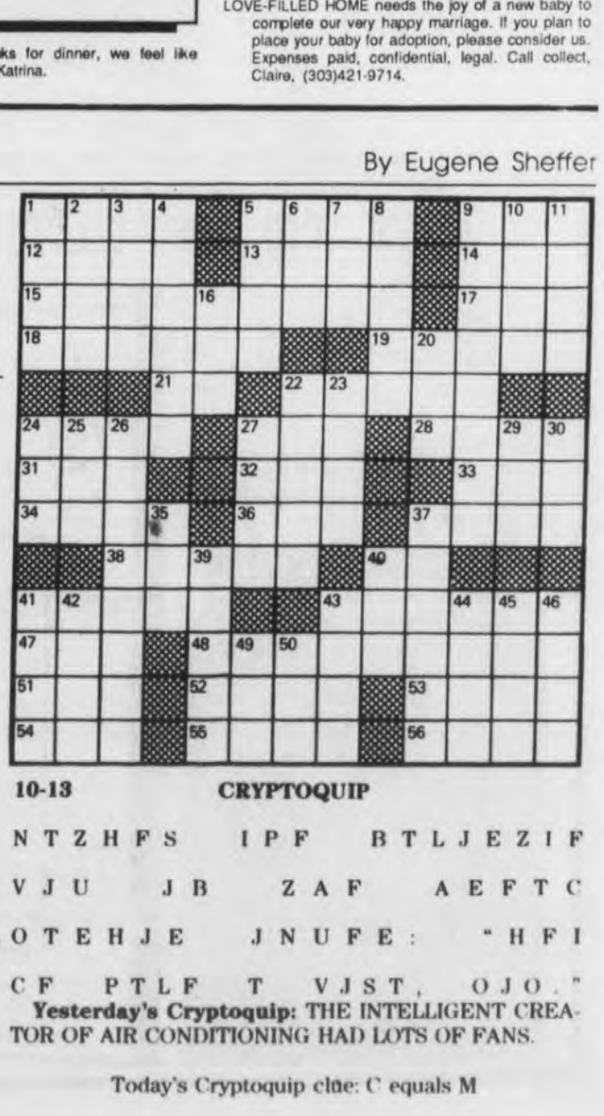
WANT TO trade Def Leppard ticket near stage for ticket on aisle between sections 17 and 18 near row 25. 537-8883.

28 Adoption

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Morse unit
5 Mid-easterner
9 Kitten cry
12 Reverberate
13 Trig function
14 With 55 Across, cornered
15 Vacation mementos
17 Tooth-paste choice
18 Curly-topped doll
19 Art stand
21 Former
22 Court contest
24 German river
27 Blend
28 Pulls
31 Yoko —
32 Pub choice
33 Additionally
34 Love too much
36 Loony
37 Invites 38 Lucifer
40 Article
41 Skier Phil
43 Texan team
47 Past
48 Some rocket launches
51 "— Yourself Go"
52 Football ploy
53 Radiate
54 Ending for host or heir
55 See 14 Across
56 Army dining

DOWN
1 Editor's base
2 Teen's bane
3 "Pygmalion" author
4 "Colors" director
5 Tennis star Arthur
6 Southern resort
7 Hill dweller
8 Plague
9 "Wanted" poster pictures
10 Fencing need
11 Berlin landmark
16 Die roll
20 Play part
22 Italian city
23 Vetoed
24 Reel's partner
25 Numero —
26 Showy fellows
27 "I Remember — "
29 Stir-frying aid
30 Mayday call
35 Corn helping 37 Patriot's hymn
39 Lure
40 Ninny
41 Like bulls
42 Eons
43 Chip in a chip
44 Italian city
45 Singer Redding
46 Speedy planes
49 " — Town"
50 "My — and Only"

Solution time: 23 mins.

Y	O	G	A		H	U	T		O	K	I	E
A	T	E	N		A	N	I		R	I	S	K
K	I	N	G	C	R	A	B		I	N	E	E
S	C	A	L	E	D		E	L	O	G	E	S
		E	R	E		T	A	L	K
B	O	K		E	N	S		P	E	O	N	Y
A	R	I	D		S	O	B		S	N	E	E
G	E	N	E	T		T	A	M		G	E	T
		G	L	E	E		R	I	B
R	U	P	E	E	S		O	N	A	G	E	R
A	L	I	T		K	I	N	G	S	I	Z	E
T	U	N	E		E	W	E		A	G	R	A
S	A	S	S		R	O	T		L	I	A	R

Yesterday's answer 10-13

10-13 CRYPTOQUIP

N T Z H F S I P F B T L J E Z I F V J U J B Z A F A E F T C O T E H J E J N U F E : " H F I C F P T L F T V J S T , O J O ."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: THE INTELLIGENT CREATOR OF AIR CONDITIONING HAD LOTS OF FANS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals M

Contra

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

had gone to Capitol Hill to consult with congressional leaders about the Contra aid amendment that provides a process by which the president could seek to gain the release of the stockpiled weapons.

"The consensus of the leadership was that we were better off to wait until the next session of Congress to consider the military release," Fitzwater said, "and the reason was that we have not had a new attack by the Sandinistas."

But the spokesman added: "We also told them that, of course, if the Sandinistas launched some kind of new attack against the Contras, the president undoubtedly would consider a new request and that would involve a new session of Congress."

Senate approves bioscience funding

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Legislation giving congressional backing to a proposed $7 million bioscience research center at the University of Kansas was approved by the Senate on Wednesday and sent to President Reagan to be signed into law.

The measure authorizes federal spending of $6.5 million for the bioscience and high technology center proposed at the school's campus in Lawrence.

Under the congressional budget process, a separate appropriations bill will be needed to provide the money for the project and that is not expected until next year, said Dave Bartel, administrative assistant for Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan.

The so-called authorizing legislation was pushed through this year as a way of clearing the way for future congressional action and establishing the KU center as a priority for federal financing, Bartel said.

The legislation approves the Kansas center as well as a number of other university research projects across the country.

Debate

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

blican advantage since last week's vice presidential debate.

Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle, the subject of anonymous criticism from senior Bush advisers since that debate, said as he set out on his daily rounds that if he finds out who was talking, "I think there will be staff changes."

Quayle uttered a seeming declaration of independence after saying his campaign appearances had been so tightly scripted by Bush advisers that he was told when he could wave as he got off his campaign plane.

"That's all been thrown away," he said. "I am my own handler, and if you have any questions, ask me." He said he would take advice from Bush's aides "under consideration."

Democrat Lloyd Bentsen had a ready retort for that idea. "That may be his pitch, but I'll bet it's thrown George Bush a real curve ball," he said of his vice presidential rival. The Texas senator campaigned through Missouri and Arkansas, where he said the Republicans "refuse to stand up for the American economy."

Bush's breakfast with Republican supporter Gates came as the vice president worked hard to make crime a key issue. In speeches throughout the country, he has sharply criticized Dukakis' record on crime, citing a Massachusetts prison program under which a murderer escaped while on furlough and attacked a Maryland couple. Some Democratic strategists say the issue is particularly effective against Dukakis in California, the nation's largest state.

Bush said he believes he is in a stronger position politically than before the first residential debate on Sept. 25 and added that his goal for Thursday night is to have the voters understand "what my heartbeat is, what I really care about."

As for Dukakis, Walter F. Mondale, the losing 1984 Democratic presidential candidate, said the 1988 nominee should loosen up in front of the television cameras.

Tennis

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

But the team is still young. Five of the Wildcats had not played collegiate tennis before this year.

"We want to get them comfortable and let them get an understanding of the program," Bietau said.

Sara Hancock, Helen Schildknecht and Tracy Parker all saw their first collegiate action last weekend. Hancock and Schildknecht played at junior colleges last year and Parker is a true freshman.

"Helen and Sara have done a very good job of making the transition to the college level," Bietau said.

Establishing reliable doubles teams is something Bietau would like to accomplish before the fall season ends.

Bietau said the depth and quality of the team is something that the squad has already improved.

"We are more competitve throughout the whole lineup and in doubles," he said.

COUPONS TO CLIP

New Location — kinko's the copy center — 1329 Anderson
1329 Anderson
coupon
2½¢ per copy
8½x11/20 No. white/auto fed originals
present coupon at time of purchase
Open 24 Hours
Offer Expires 10/31/88
coupon

LARGE PIZZA ONLY 5.99
with one topping
dine in or free home delivery
with this coupon
offer good through Oct. 31
Dougout
"premium pizza at a cardboard pizza price"
523 South 17th
537-1484

IMPRESSIONS
25% OFF
Perm reg. $40
Cut & Style reg. $15
Haircut reg. $10
411 Poyntz
Lower Level•DOWNTOWN
Call: 537-1337
expires 10/31/88

Amigos
The BEST Is Under Our Hat
Aggieville
Manhattan Town Center Mall
Bring A Friend!
SUNDAE
From our Sundae Bar
Expires 10/16/88
Buy one get one FREE
SAVE 99¢

A 13" Single Topping Pizza $6.50
OR
2 13" Single Topping Pizzas $10.50
Fast, Free and Friendly Delivery
Expires 10-20-88
PYRAMID PIZZA
539-4888
"We Pile It On!"

DINE IN ONLY
"We Pile It On!" PYRAMID PIZZA located in Aggieville
A Large 16"-Single Topping Pizza
$6.99
Pitchers of beer or soda
99¢
Offer good thru Saturday

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM EXPRESS
1116 Moro
537-0886
This coupon good for
SWEET n' SOUR PORK over rice
$1.99
not good with any other special or promo.
—expires Oct. 19, 1988—
FREE DELIVERY • 11 A.M.-1 A.M.

JOYCE'S HAIR TAMERS
539-TAME (8263)
2026 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Perms
Gals—$25 and up
Guys—$28
Partials—$20
*All perms include cut and style
Exp. date 10/31/88

Sub & Stuff Sandwich Shop
CHEESE FRIES!
49¢ plus tax
WITH THIS COUPON
Not valid with other offers.
Expires 12-15-88. Not valid on delivery.

776-5577 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

A KEY TO EFFECTIVE EDUCATION . . .
Lana Oleen
REPUBLICAN • KANSAS SENATE
1631 Fairchild Avenue, Manhattan, KS 66502

. . . AN EDUCATOR IN THE SENATE
•Administrators Outstanding Educator Award
•Chairman-Kansas Family & Children Trust Fund
•Coordinator for State-wide Job Corps Awareness Campaign
•Legislative Liaison for State Department of Human Resources
Lana Oleen for Kansas Senate, Kent Glasscock, chairman

Compatibility Defined
IBM-Com•pat'i•bil'i•ty adv. 1. Capable of existing together in harmony. 2. Able to use most common software; usu. of the business/research world. 3. Growth & flexibility. 4. Hyundai 16TE.
HYUNDAI
Introducing the Super 16TE PC-compatible.
Introducing a new level of IBM-compatibility, speed (10Mhz) and flexibility (5 expansion slots). Each Hyundai includes 640K memory, a "101" keyboard, full software (wp, spreadsheet, database), orientation, support and an 18 month warranty. Best of all- its backed by $20 billion Hyundai Corporation and your local Connecting Point Computer Center in Westloop Shop.Center.
Retail KSU Price.* Disc.
☐ Super 16TE $1045. $735. 30%
Sample Systems:
☐ 2 drive, amber monitor 1095.
☐ 2 drive, color monitor 1299.
☐ 30Mb, amber monitor 1495.
☐ 30Mb, color monitor 1699.
* Based upon full system purchase. IBM is a reg. tm of IBM Corp.

KSU's "Seoul" Authorized Hyundai Dealer
ConnectingPoint COMPUTER CENTER
1115 Westloop Shop. Ctr
539-0801
Attention KSU Apple Purchasers:
Connecting Point's "Apple Team" has contracted to support KSU departmental and personal purchases. Call us for assistance in selecting systems, software solutions and ordering your Mac. Connecting Point has a full line of Apple "Add-Ons" from disks to software to cases to drives.

Live to Dance

The K-State dance program survives despite funding problems. This year marks the 10th year of the K-State dance program. See Page 7.

Weather

Sunny today with the high 80 to 85. Gusty southwest winds 15 to 25 mph. Clear tonight with the low in mid-50s. Sunny Saturday with the high in lower 80s.

...ip

...ch-
...ith a perfect 6-0 record. See Page 9.

Friday
October 14, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 39

Kansas State
Collegian

Forum focuses on local issues

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

Candidates running for the Kansas Legislature debated issues directly affecting K-State in a forum Thursday sponsored by the Faculty Senate and the American Association of University Professors.

About 50 people heard arguments by House 66th District opponents Katha Hurt, Democrat, and incumbent Ivan Sand, Republican; 67th District opponents Sheila Hochhauser, Democrat, and incumbent Joe Knopp, Republican; and 22nd District Senate opponents Lana Oleen, Republican, and Rod Olsen, Democrat.

The candidates were given three minutes to answer questions about the Margin of Excellence plan, the affiliation of Washburn University with the Kansas Board of Regents system, and problems with the universities' operating budgets and building maintenance funds.

On the question of the Margin of Excellence plan, nearly all candidates voiced support for continued funding. Both Hurt and Hochhauser supported the idea of using some of the $300 million tax windfall money to fund the remaining 13 percent of MOE not approved last year.

Knopp called MOE a "bold" plan, but said this year's election could be compared to yelling "segregation" during an election in the South — whoever yells it the loudest will win. Knopp said the same could be applied to MOE.

"We need to understand who has the commitment (to the district)," he said. "(Hochhauser's) commitment is about as thick as the state paper it's written on."

Knopp voted against MOE last year, but he pointed to his efforts to form the student lobbying group, Associated Students of Kansas, while himself a student at K-State. That group is now lobbying for the MOE plan.

Hochhauser said she did not consider MOE bold at all, only average, and called the 83 percent of funding that was granted for the plan last year inadequate.

"There is wide sentiment that because (Knopp) is from Manhattan, if he would have pushed for 100 percent of funding, the Margin of Excellence would have gotten 100 percent," she said.

On the issue of the affiliation of Washburn, all candidates but Knopp rejected the idea.

"I do support having control over all higher education, including community colleges," Knopp said, arguing that Washburn's enrollment was a threat to the regents institutions and that affiliating the university would help prevent duplication of programs between Kansas colleges and universities.

Rod Olsen said the whole Washburn proposition made "no sense," and that the Legislature needs to "take the muzzle off" regents institutions and let them define their own roles.

"We need to look at the future and 'Just Say No' to Washburn," Olsen said.

Oleen rejected a suggestion by Olsen that her ties to Topeka and work with Hayden might mean eventually compromising her commitment to the district in order to "return favors."

"I stand committed against Washburn," she said.

The candidates' views varied

■ See FORUM, Page 14

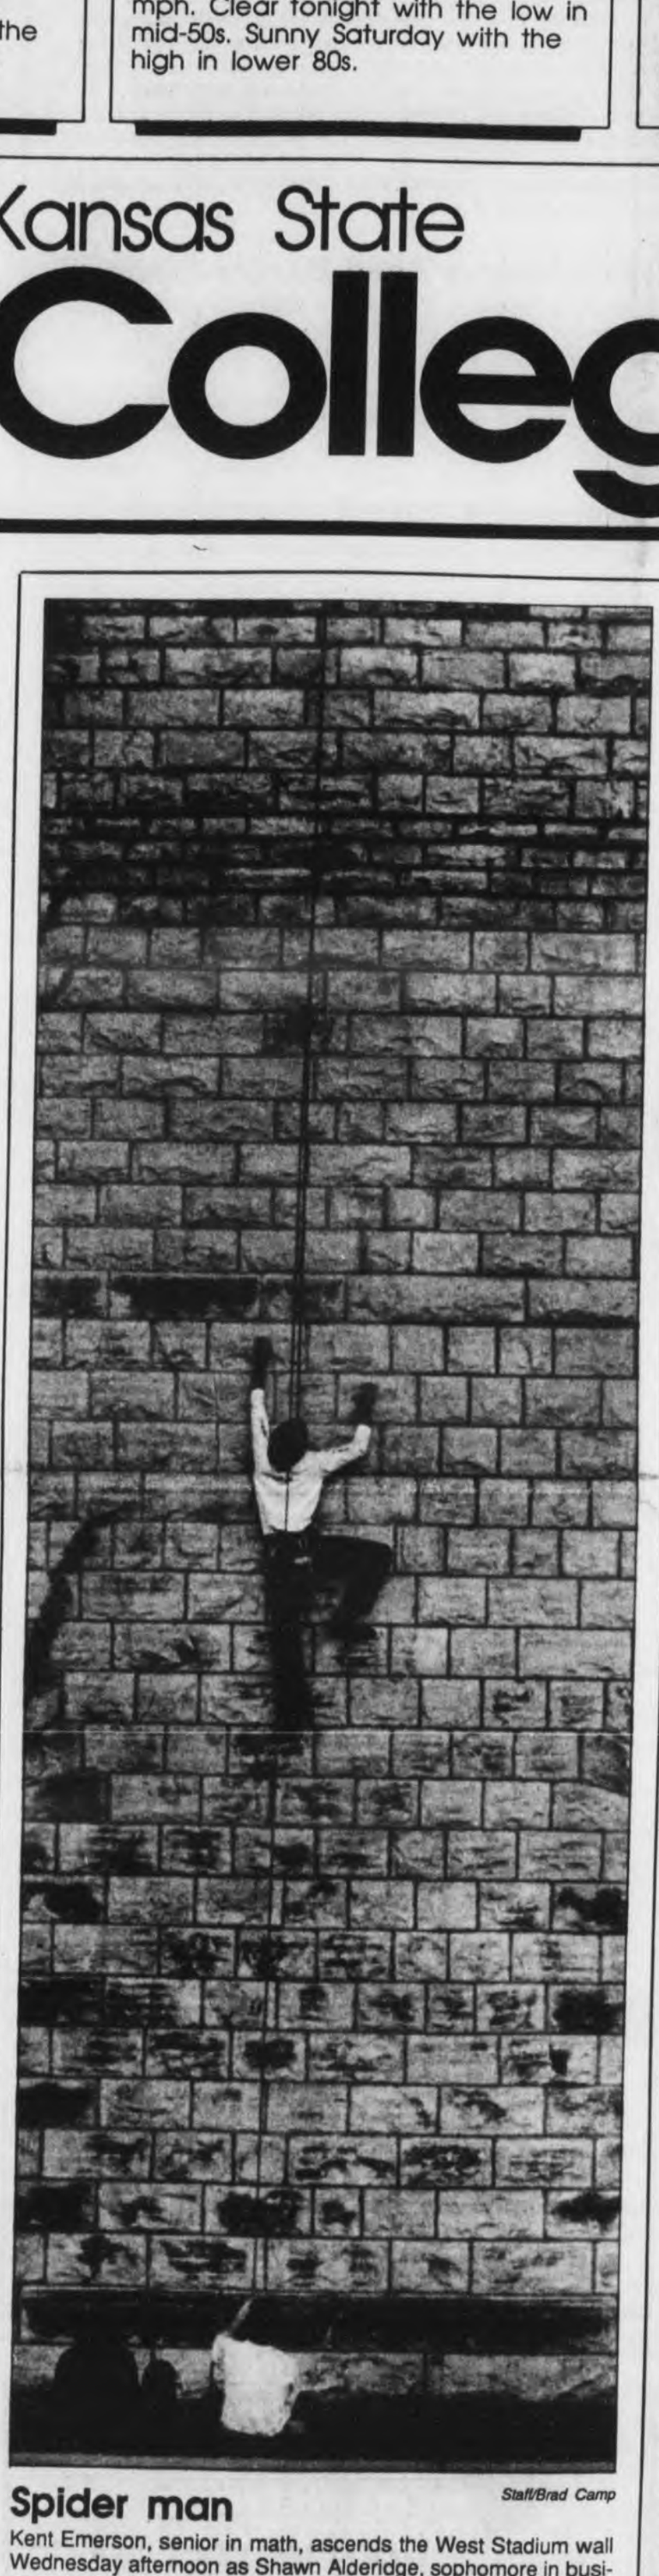
Gas leak fixed; cleanup begins

By Brian Hummell
Staff Writer

A gas leak that has kept University Amoco closed for gas service since Tuesday night has been fixed, and the station could open as early as today. However, the amount of time it will take to clean the area affected by the gasoline is not yet known, said Mary Jane Stell, of the Kansas Department of Health and Environment.

"The draining of the gas could be completed by tonight," Stell said on Thursday. "The actual cleanup, depending on how far the gas has spread, could take much longer."

Larry Reese, deputy fire chief, said the leak occurred in a pipe at the point where it joins a dispenser. The amount of gas leaked and when the leak began had not been determined, he said.



"We're trenching to contain what's in the ground and trenching to stop any infiltration of gas into the sewer," Reese said.

The fire department will continue to flush the sewer lines as long as there are readings of gas in the sewer, he said.

Traffic will continue to be restricted to two lanes on Anderson Avenue by the station until the trenches outside the station are covered, Reese said.

The Amoco Corporation has hired a consulting firm, Environmental Technology Incorporated, to run the cleanup operation.

David Prater, owner of University Amoco, said the station is losing "$3,000 or better, every 24 hours" it is closed.

Spider man Staff/Brad Camp

Kent Emerson, senior in math, ascends the West Stadium wall Wednesday afternoon as Shawn Alderidge, sophomore in business, holds the rope. The stadium wall is often used by climbers.

Senate rejects impeachment

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter
and Scott Miller
Special Projects Editor

In two precedent-setting decisions, Student Senate voted Thursday night not to impeach Senators Adam Ruskin, veterinary medicine, and Rattan Nath, graduate student in physics.

Although the decisions conflicted with a Student Governing Association by-law, which was recently declared unconstitutional, they set a precedent for future nonfeasance impeachment considerations.

On Monday, Student Tribunal ruled that senators were required to make two visitations per semester to campus groups, thus invalidating an earlier opinion from Doug Folk, student senate chairman. Folk's decision last semester allowed senators to make all four visitations this semester.

Nath, who was charged with nonfeasance for violating a Student Senate attendance policy, called the meeting a "sham of a proceeding" and said Senate had ignored the ruling from Student Tribunal.

After the meeting, Folk recognized a need for change in the rules and said Senate would probably make them "workable."

Earlier in the evening, Senate voted not to consider a bill that would have recognized grounds for impeaching 17 senators who had accumulated more than three absences, the limit set by the Student Government by-laws.

Nath's absences were an accumulation of two unexcused absences and seven unexcused tardies. Senate attendance policy states that three unexcused tardies count as one unexcused absence.

Ruskin had several unexcused absences due to time commitments demanded by his major.

Veterinary medicine senators have previously had similar attendance records, Folk said.

During debate, Folk stepped down from his chair position to speak against impeaching Nath. While calling Nath's methods "abrasive," and "condescending," Folk said the central issues were whether impeaching Nath would serve Nath's constituency and whether it would serve Senate.

"I will grant that Rattan's views ... are totally unacceptable. I will also grant that Rattan can be passively abrasive and condescending. But that's not the issue," Folk said.

Nath stated he felt committee reports were not important and did not feel that he was missing anything by not being at the beginning of meetings.

A written statement from Senator

■ See SENATE, Page 14

Athletic fee proposal not added to agenda

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

Student Senate rejected attempts to add the Finance Committee's version of a proposed student athletic fee to the agenda Thursday.

The action means the earliest possible date Senate can approve a fee referendum will be Oct. 27, five days before student government elections.

The 13-to-30 vote did not reflect concerns that senators would not have time to compose a well-worded referendum and that students would not have time to study it before the elections.

The Senate Executive Committee will have to decide Monday which of two proposed athletic fee bills will be put on the agenda for the committee's meeting Tuesday. They include the one by Finance Committee, which is supported by the KSU Athletic Department, and the one presented by Sen. Bernie Giefer, graduate student in chemical engineering.

Athletic Director Steve Miller said the bill proposed by Giefer wouldn't serve or meet the needs of the athletic department.

"The most important issue is the athletic department is not going to accept (Giefer's) bill," he said. "The longer we wait, the more difficult it will be (for the finance committee's bill to go to referendum).

"All we want to have is for the students to have an opportunity to vote."

Sen. Becky Griebat, senior in education, questioned the wording of the Finance Committee's version of the bill and asked for data sheets regarding the athletic department's budget and asked who would collect the data sheets.

"The whole thing is vague as to where it's going," she said. "There's no details in this bill."

Sen. Rattan Nath, graduate student in physics, questioned the reasoning and intent of the Finance Committee for trying to put its bill on the agenda when Giefer's bill was sent to the Executive Committee at last week's Senate meeting. Nath said the same should be done for the Finance Committee's version.

Nath said Miller flatly rejected Giefer's version. Nath also opposed the efforts of the athletic department and the Finance Committee to force the bill onto the agenda over Giefer's version.

"What is the purpose of the Student Senate? We are not supposed to be dictated to by them," Nath said.

Dukakis, Bush debate in final showdown

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — George Bush pointed to arms control, defense and the death penalty Thursday night to punctuate his campaign-long description of Michael Dukakis as a liberal. Dukakis, seeking a debate-night breakthrough, rejected labels in favor of a "vision of America" and portrayed Bush as an apostle of the status quo.

The two White House rivals also clashed over Social Security in their second and final debate of the race. Bush vowed he'd never cut the federal pension program, no matter what Dukakis said. The Democrat cited unsuccessful Reagan administration efforts to do just that, and said, "I'm sure you'll try to do it again."

Bush was looking to pad a lead in the public opinion polls as the two rivals met on the campus of UCLA. Dukakis went into the encounter looking for a breakthrough to turn the race in his favor in the final weeks.

On Social Security, on the environment, on ethics in government, Dukakis said repeatedly, "I don't know which George Bush I'm listening to" and accused him of shifting positions.

Dukakis said the campaign would turn on the issues if Bush would "get rid of the labels. ... Mr. Bush has used the label 'liberal' at least 10 times."

Bush strongly defended his vice presidential running mate, Dan Quayle, and said "he could do the job" if tragedy thrust him into the Oval Office. Dukakis replied that Bush had said the selection would "tell all...and it sure did."

The high-stakes debate 26 days before the election blended political hardball with poignant moments when first Bush, then Dukakis, recalled the death of their own children, many years ago.

Bush said that as president he would have no conservative litmus test for Supreme Court justices, and wouldn't choose judges who would try to legislate from the bench. He then noted that Dukakis once called himself a "progressive liberal Democrat" in order to get primary votes. He said President Reagan had made outstanding Supreme Court appointments.

Said Dukakis: "If the vice president of the United States thinks that Robert Bork was an outstanding appointment that is a very good reason for voting for Mike Dukakis on the 8th of November." Bork's controversial nomination was defeated by the Senate. Dukakis said he has appointed 130 judges in Massachusetts based on ability and not because they are liberal or conservative. Bush has never appointed a judge, he noted.

Neither man refrained from speaking directly to his rival, even though the ground rules supposedly left no room for it.

Bush said Dukakis had raided Massachusetts state pension funds to balance the budget, and Dukakis shot back, "You're dead wrong, George."

Bush used his closing statement to stress his Republican National Convention vision of a "kinder, gentler nation."

Dukakis, advised to project a more likeable image, did just that. Asked if he must be liked in order to be a good leader, Dukakis said he won the Democratic nomination over 51 separate contests.

Bush replied that the issue in the campaign wasn't "likeability or loveability" but rather a "question of values."

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

U.S. consul taken hostage

VERACRUZ, Mexico — A gun-wielding man complaining of mistreatment by Mexican authorities stormed into the U.S. Consulate Thursday and took the consul hostage, officials said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman William Graves said Edwin Culp "is being held by a Mexican national. We have notified Mexican authorities and they have been in touch with the individual who is in Mr. Culp's office."

Culp is not a foreign service officer but a civilian consular agent serving as consul, Graves said.

The building housing the consulate was surrounded by about 50 federal, state and local police officers late Thursday night, according to Jose Antonio Herrera, night editor of El Dictamen.

A federal judicial police spokesman in Veracruz said Cmdr. Isidro Landa Mendoza was at the consulate. The spokesman could not provide details on the status of negotiations.

U.S. Embassy duty officer Robert Hugins said the man who seized Culp was identified as Francisco Delfin Perez of Cordoba, which is near Veracruz.

Graves said by telephone that the man had "some particular complaint against state authorities in Veracruz. I really don't know the details of his problem."

The Excelsior news service said Delfin Perez was demanding that authorities release his brother from prison.

Hugins said Mexican authorities were in charge of the situation. The consular office is located in a building in downtown Veracruz, and the consulate is in the building's lower floor.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

House rejects KU project

WASHINGTON — Kansas' two senators were more than a bit chagrined on Thursday after the House rejected a proposal to give congressional go-ahead to a host of educational projects, including a $7 million research center at the University of Kansas.

Republican Sens. Bob Dole and Nancy Kassebaum had announced a day earlier that the measure was going to President Reagan and had cleared its final legislative hurdle by winning Senate approval on a voice vote.

Dave Bartel, administrative assistant to Kassebaum, said the Senate offices had made a mistake in tracking the legislation and wrongly thought it had already moved through the House.

In fact, the House voted 256-131 on Thursday against even debating the measure, which authorized about $60 million in federal spending on education and research projects across the country.

The bill called for $6.5 million for a proposed bioscience research center at KU. University officials have estimated the total cost of the project at $7 million.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Ditch collapses, killing man

WICHITA — An Independence man was killed Thursday when the ditch he was digging collapsed, authorities said.

Clayton Almon, 24, was pronounced dead on arrival at HCA Wesley Medical Center at 3:10 p.m., the hospital said.

Almon, who was working in the 8-foot ditch west of Wichita, had been buried for about 15 minutes before he was taken to the hospital by helicopter, police said.

Garnett girl killed in crash

GARNETT — The president of the Garnett High School freshman class was killed Wednesday when a four-wheel-drive vehicle in which she was riding overturned on a county road.

The Anderson County Sheriff's Department said Tracy Delores Ahring, 14, of Harris, was killed after she apparently was thrown through a sun roof. The vehicle overturned twice and landed on Ahring.

Two other girls returning from high school volleyball practice with Miss Ahring were injured.

Body found near Baxter Springs

BAXTER SPRINGS, Kan. — The body of a man in his late 20s or early 30s was found Thursday along a Cherokee County road near Baxter Springs, and authorities were investigating the death as a homicide.

A passer-by spotted the body around 3:45 p.m., police said. The body of the white male had visibile wounds and carried no identification, police said.

Lawrence rated unstressful

LAWRENCE — Lawrence has passed the stress test of Psychology Today with flying colors — and there were immediately those ready to take the credit for it, exploit it or explain it.

Mayor Bob Schumm thought the report ranking Lawrence No. 20 out of 286 metropolitan areas was great for the university city.

"Of course I will take credit for it," he said with tongue in cheek. "Ever since I was elected two years ago, I could feel Lawrence becoming a less stressful place to live."

Schumm said some people might find Lawrence less stressful than others. "I think it depends on one's enterprise or career, as well as political status," he said.

Gary Toebben, president of the Lawrence Chamber of Commerce, indicated the chamber plans to capitalize on the report, which rated cities on such things as crime, suicide, alcoholism and divorce.

"It is a specific indication of the quality of life in a community," he said. "Every community in America says its quality of life is great, and sometimes it's difficult to document it with facts and statistics. Now we can indicate that, according to Psychology Today, Lawrence is one of the 20 least stressful places in America."

Barbara Smith, clinical director at Bert Nash Community Mental Health Center in Lawrence, said news of the stress report published in the November issue of Psychology Today was "interesting."

KU suicides not related

LAWRENCE — The suicides of two University of Kansas students this week appear to be isolated cases, according to Lt. Jeanne Longaker of the university police.

Authorities said there were no links between the deaths of Soren Iskjaer, 26, a junior from Denmark, and Glenn Franklin, 20, a junior from Chicago.

Iskjaer hanged himself with an electrical cord behind a home near Stanley in rural Johnson County on Sunday. He left no note, but police reports indicate he had been taking medication for depression, said Lt. Jim Brown of the Johnson County sheriff's department.

Franklin was found Tuesday, hanging from a tree near his fraternity house in Lawrence. He left a note for his parents.

David Ambler, vice chancellor of student affairs, said the university periodically has programs on suicide prevention and regularly encourages students to use available counseling services.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

FILING FORMS are available for Student Body President, Student Senate and Board of Student Publications in the SGA Office. Forms are due by 5 p.m. Tuesday.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT Cancer Research Awards applications are now available in the Center for Basic Research office in Ackert 234. All students in health-related degree programs are eligible to apply. Deadline is Dec. 5.

TODAY

K-STATE PLAYERS will present "Little Shop of Horrors" at 8 p.m. in Nichols Theatre.

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Francisco Mojarro at 2:45 p.m. in Throckmorton 124. The topic is "Analysis of the Effects of Water, Nitrogen and Weather on Wheat Growth, Grain and Biomass Production and Light Use Efficiency."

GYMNASTICS CLUB will meet at 8 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

SATURDAY

WORLD CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Little Theatre.

K-STATE PLAYERS will perform "Little Shop of Horrors" at 2 and 8 p.m. in Nichols Theatre.

SUNDAY

ALPHA GAMMA RHO Little Sisters will meet at 8 p.m. at the AGR house.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA Little Sisters will meet at 9:30 p.m. at the Lambda Chi house. Please take checkbooks.

GYMNASTICS CLUB will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

K-LAIRES SQUARE DANCE Club will meet at 6 p.m. in the Union K, S, and U ballrooms.

SILVER WINGS will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

DELT DARLINGS will meet at 7 p.m. at the Delt house.

MONDAY

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAM will hold a Mini-Grant workshop with Dr. Bert Biles from 3 to 5 p.m. in Union 207.

KSSSLHA BAKE SALE will be from 8 a.m. to noon in front of Leasure Hall.

ALPHA MU ALPHA yearbook pictures will be taken at 8:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

MARKETING CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room. Yearbook pictures will follow.

CAMPUS GIRL SCOUTS yearbook pictures will be taken at 6:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

WOMEN IN COMMUNICATIONS INC.: Forum on Pay Equity will be at 7:30 p.m. at Pottorf Hall in Cico Park.

COLLEGE REPUBLICANS will meet at 8 p.m. in the Union Little Theatre.

TAU BETA PI will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Durland 152. Officer elections will follow.

K-STATE POLICE

Wednesday

■ The burglary of a student parking permit from a vehicle on campus was reported.

Thursday

■ A wheel lock was placed on a green Volkswagen Rabbit in stall 113 of lot A-4.

■ A wallet was reported lost in Eisenhower Hall.

■ A wallet was reported lost in Aggieville.

■ A wheel lock was placed on a vehicle parked in stall 139 of lot A-26. The wheel lock was later removed.

■ A criminal damage to property report was filed about the scratching of a car in lot B-3.

■ A student parking permit was reported lost at an unknown location.

■ A wheel lock was placed on a vehicle parked in a handicapped stall in lot A-4. The wheel lock was later removed.

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

KSU Credit Union will be closed Friday, Oct. 14 and reopen Monday, Oct. 17 in temporary offices at Leisure Hall, Room 6B.

This 60-day move is necessary while our Anderson Hall office is renovated.

KSU Credit Union
6B Leisure Hall
Weekdays, 9 a.m.-4 p.m
532-6274

BUSHWACKERS · THE FUNDRINKERY ·
Tonight KKAY 94.1 announces
Def Leppard Kick-Off Party & Love Bites Costume Contest
1st Prize
2 front row tickets and backstage passes.
2nd Prize
2 concert tickets
3rd Prize
Def Leppard albums
Judging 1 a.m.
Comedy Invasion
Next Mon. & Tues. & Wednesday
Kenny Rogerson
•Bushwacker Favorite
•2 Lettermah Appearances
•Seen on MTV this month
531 N. Manhattan

OKTOBERFEST ACCESSORIZING
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15

a select group of:
• SCARVES, 35% OFF
• WATCHES, 40% OFF
• JEWELRY, 50% OFF
plus :
• ALL NEW FALL BELTS, 25% OFF
• free beverages & sweets
• scarf tying seminar, 3pm
Accessories On The Park
Mon.-Sat.: 10:00-6:00, Thur.: 10:00-8:30, Sun.: 1:00-5:00
708 North Manhattan Avenue, Aggieville 537-0707

776-5577 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

FREE ADMISSION COUPON

The Station
FREE ADMISSION
FRIDAY, OCT. 14
SATURDAY, OCT. 15
...OUR WAY OF SAYING "HAVE A GREAT WEEKEND!" 1115 Moro Street, Aggieville, 776-0030

BROTHERS In Aggieville

Don't let your dollars go down with the ship!
Visit our beer garden today from 4 - 7 pm for our FREE BBQ Hamburgers!
Vote for your favorite Label Girls through Wed., Sept. 28---the night of the final competition. Every vote counts in determining who will be the spokesmodels for BROTHERS and the KING OF BEERS.
•18 TO ENTER–21 TO DRINK•
1120 Moro•Aggieville 537-9511

The Station
TERRIFIC TGIF BUFFET

ALL YOU CAN EAT
$1!
• Baron Of Beef
• Chicken Wings
• Hot & Cold Pasta
• Relish Tray
• Fruit Tray
• Chips & Dip
• Cheese & Crackers
You have to eat it to believe it!
1115 MORO—BAR 776-0030

The Station
NEW!
ALL YOU CAN EAT SHRIMP PEEL

EVERY FRIDAY NIGHT
$7.99
ALL YOU CAN EAT
INCLUDING POTATO, SALAD BAR & LOADS OF SHRIMP!!
1115 Moro—Restaurant 776-0030

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Forensics tourney to be here

The K-State Forensics Team will participate in the Sunflower Swing Tournament this weekend. The annual tournament, conducted by Bethel College and K-State, gives both schools the chance to compete in and conduct a tournament in the same weekend. Ten K-Staters will travel to Bethel today to compete, and will return Saturday afternoon to help with the K-State Larry Woods Memorial Tournament. Craig Brown, instructor of speech and forensics coach, said he expects at least 20 schools to attend the tournament at K-State.

Registration to end Tuesday

K-Staters who have not yet registered to vote must do so by Tuesday to be eligible to vote in the national presidential election Nov. 8. Anyone who is at least 18 years of age on the day of the election, a citizen of the United States and a resident of Kansas may register and vote. Students may register using their Riley County address between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. today, Monday or Tuesday in the Student Government Services office.

Fraternity donates $1,500

The Sigma Nu fraternity presented a check for $1,500 to the local Red Cross chapter Thursday. Robert W. Schoeff, professor of grain science and industry and chairman of the Riley County chapter of Red Cross, accepted the check on behalf of the organization. The Sigma Nus raised the money through fraternity and sorority pledge games competition conducted earlier this semester.

Election rule changes made

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student government election season is approaching and some changes have been made in the voting procedures and campaign regulations.

Eva Chatterjee, elections committee chairwoman, said a change was made in the number of voting places.

There will be two places to vote in addition to the Union: in the front entrance of Cardwell Hall and the old study room in Derby Food Center, she said.

Polls will open at 7:30 a.m. and close at 6:30 p.m.

This year voters must present both their K-State ID and fee card to vote Nov. 1 and 2, she said.

"There will be no exceptions," Chatterjee said. The fee cards will be validated so it will not be possible to vote at more than one place.

This will also be required for voting if there are run-off elections on Nov. 9.

In past years, the only requirement was a K-State ID, she said.

Campaign regulation changes now prohibit posting campaign materials on bushes or trash cans.

"We've always discouraged it, but now it's a rule," Chatterjee said.

Candidates can begin posting materials at 5 p.m., Oct. 25.

This year the elections committee will not release election results until all posters and fliers for candidates for Board of Student Publications and Senate are taken down.

The deadline for filing for student government elections is 5 p.m. on Tuesday.

Season tickets to go on sale today

Campers' wait ends

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

The wait is over. K-State basketball season tickets will go on sale at 8:30 this morning.

Students who camped out for tickets said having tickets for Wildcat basketball games is worth the wait.

"I'm excited to get my tickets," said Roger Brunton, sophomore in park resource management. Brunton is a camper who spent at least four hours with the Bob Uecker Club, the first group in line, and will purchase the first 40 tickets this morning.

The Bob Uecker Club pitched its tent Sept. 12, starting the 1988 campout.

Mark Kennedy, sophomore in physical education, said he hasn't lost his enthusiasm.

"We've got to back the 'Cats," said Kennedy, a camper for the group XTC, which has had the 17th place in line since Oct. 5, when the second round of the campout began.

Rich Meyer, junior in accounting, said he's ready to get out of line and into Bramlage Coliseum.

"Two weeks of this is too much," said Meyer, a camper for Sigma Phi Epsilon, which has the 37th place in line. The Sig Ep's plan to buy 80 tickets.

"Everyone in our group who wanted a ticket had to spend at least four hours in line," Meyer said.

Steve Beatte, junior in architectural engineering, said he wants a good seat.

"I'm trying to get as close to the basketball court as possible, but just knowing I'll have a ticket made camping out worth it," he said. Beatte spent about 20 hours camping for his group, RHO RHO RHO.

Members of ICAT — I Contributed a Twenty — purchased their tickets Thursday. All members of ICAT were guaranteed reserved seating. Each ICAT member was able to purchase six tickets, but only for other members of the club.

Students who are not members of ICAT can purchase non-reserved or reserved seats on a first-come, first-serve basis and may purchase 20 tickets apiece.

All ticket buyers must have a check and a student fee card for each ticket they want to buy. Tickets are $38.50 and sales will go on all day today.

COUPON
50% OFF
SOFTIE COOKIEWICH
Bring this coupon in to receive 50% off an softie Cookiewich™ available in a variety of frozen yogurt flavors and cookie combinations.
Limit two cookies per coupon.

Celebrate Octoberfest with a delicious frozen yogurt treat!
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
OPEN: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily-Noon 11 p.m. Sundays
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Coupon expires Oct. 31, 1988
Coupon

KEYSTONE COLORADO
$156* from

JANUARY 2-7 • LODGING • LIFTS PARTY • BREAKFASTS • MORE!
Sunchase 7TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS 1989
KEYSTONE WINTER SKI BREAK INCLUSIONS:
• Hotel lodging for 6 days/5 nights • Full day three mountain lift ticket for 4 days with additional days available at reduced rates • Daily continental breakfast at the Comfort Inn • Welcome Poolside Party with complimentary beverages • One year American Ski Association SkiAmericard membership and Pocket Directory ($20.00 value) • All taxes for package inclusions • Accommodation/base shuttle service • Upon arrival a Sunchase "goodie bag" full of local information, restaurant and bar guide and participating corporate sponsor product samples.
TOLL FREE INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911
or contact our local Sunchase campus representative or your favorite travel agency
ALSO AVAILABLE: STEAMBOAT, WINTER PARK AND VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
sunchase tours

Presents
Rolando Blackman & the Dallas Mavericks
vs.
the San Antonio Spurs

Live NBA Action
at
BRAMLAGE COLISEUM
7:30 p.m.
Friday, October 21
Tickets $15.50 & $10.50
Bramlage Coliseum, K-State Union, ITR Office, Ft. Riley
Middle Earth Records, Junction City
Budget Records & Tapes, Topeka
Phone (913) 532-7606
Visa & Mastercard Accepted
$2 off $10.50 tickets with Student I.D.

7th Annual
1988 Lil' SISTER OLYMPICS

Mon. 9-11 p.m.—
Sign-in at Brother's
Wed. 9-11 p.m.
Fluffy Rabbit, Brother's Pizza Eating
Fri. 4-7 p.m.—
Ideal Greek Walk-through
Free Hamburgers, Brother's
Sat. 9 a.m.-Noon—
Final Day Games in South End of Ahearn
JOIN US WITH COORS AT BROTHER'S IN AGGIEVILLE MONDAY, WEDNESDAY & FRIDAY
SPONSORED BY
Coors, Pyramid Pizza, Sunflower Graphics, KSKT 95.5fm Radio, Brothers

1800 Claflin
776-4111
CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR Established 1983
"The Aggieville Alternative"
See us for Group Discounts
Friday: Live Band
FAST FORWARD
Sat.: $Dollar Days$
$1 Pitchers
Open Sunday at Noon-with sports on the Big Screen TV
Tues.: Pool Tournament at 8:00

Compatibility Defined
IBM-Com•pat'i•bil'i•ty adv. 1. Capable of existing together in harmony. 2. Able to use most common software; usu. of the business/research world. 3. Growth & flexibility. 4. Hyundai 16TE.

HYUNDAI
Introducing the Super 16TE PC-compatible.
Introducing a new level of IBM-compatibility, speed (10Mhz) and flexibility (5 expansion slots). Each Hyundai includes 640K memory, a "101" keyboard, full software (wp, spreadsheet, database), orientation, support and an 18 month warranty. Best of all- its backed by $20 billion Hyundai Corporation and your local Connecting Point Computer Center in Westloop Shop.Center.

	Retail	KSU Price.	Disc.
☐ Super 16TE	$ 1045.	$ 735.*	30%

Sample Systems:
☐ 2 drive, amber monitor 1095.
☐ 2 drive, color monitor 1299.
☐ 30Mb, amber monitor 1495.
☐ 30Mb, color monitor 1699.
* Based upon full system purchase. IBM is a reg. tm of IBM Corp.
KSU's "Seoul" Authorized Hyundai Dealer
ConnectingPoint COMPUTER CENTER
1115 Westloop Shop. Ctr
539-0801
Attention KSU Apple Purchasers:
Connecting Point's "Apple Team" has contracted to support KSU departmental and personal purchases. Call us for assistance in selecting systems, software solutions and ordering your Mac. Connecting Point has a full line of Apple "Add-Ons" from disks to software to cases to drives.

Old Textbook Sale
UP TO 80% OFF!
BOOKS AS LOW AS 49¢
•Hundreds of new & used textbooks
•Various fields of study
•Some previously used at K-State
•Some from other universities
•Old editions
•Wholesaler overstock
Don't pass up this great opportunity to add to your personal library at a fraction of the regular cost!
9-9 Mon.-Sat.
Varney's BOOK STORE IN AGGIEVILLE
12-5 Sun.

Editorial

Childishness in Senate disgraces the group

It started out as rhetoric. Last week, Rattan Nath, graduate senator and one of many student senators with too many absences, co-sponsored a bill to have himself and 22 other senators impeached on the grounds they were not doing their jobs.

In essence, he was sending a message to the entire Student Senate to follow its own rules. As it turned out, no one was really sure of Senate absence rules.

It turned into a cat-fight. Senators who may have been in favor of Nath's impeachment bill turned tail and ran when they saw that 22 other names had been added. Personal snipes and unprofessional actions ensued.

Some remaining supporters of Nath's impeachment bill took on what was described by more than one senator as a "malicious attitude" in order to drive home their point.

In response, Scott Darger, business senator, entered another bill which would have removed Brenda Halinski, education senator and one of the co-sponsors of Nath's bill, from her position as a secretary in Student Government Services office.

At last week's meeting, Senate gave preliminary approval to bills impeaching Nath and Adam Ruskin, veterinary medicine senator, which were to be considered Thursday.

Between last week's meeting and Thursday night's meeting, many senators were approached by their constituents who just wanted to know what was happening in the forum in which the senators represent them.

Last night, the senators began where they left off last week. Senators made personal comments in Shakespearan stage whispers when someone from "the opposition" spoke. One senator even clapped slow and obnoxiously, when an "enemy" was corrected.

The forum to which they were elected to represent the students — not to mention spend student money — had become a sandbox for the senators to throw grit at one another. In reality, they were belittling themselves and their forum.

Student Senate Chairman Doug Folk realized this. As he has done so often in the past, he candidly spoke his mind. Verbally spanking the childish senators, he pointed out that there was a misunderstanding about the absence rules, which was brought out by Nath's impeachment bill. He also told them the obvious: the issues and policies are more important than personal grudges.

After the reprimand, there was an obvious change in attitudes. The grudges were still present, but saved for after-meeting gossip.

Give a high five to Folk for saying what needed to be said. Give a high five to Nath for being brave enough to do what his constituents ask — putting himself on the line.

But hold back on that high five for the Senate. High fives, along with respect, must be earned.

Forum could make local housing better

After students' first or second year at K-State, many decide to live somewhere other than within the residence hall or greek housing systems. They may rent apartments, houses or trailer homes. Everyone enjoys the independent environment, but some discover problems involved with living off campus.

The problems mainly involve landlord/tenant relationships, but can also entail substandard housing or city infra-structure, such as parking problems, poor street lighting and uncontrolled intersections.

Landlord/tenant conflicts could stem from misunderstandings about security deposits, privacy rights and maintenance repairs. Conflicts are more frequent when students are unaware of their rights and what landlords are required to provide.

After problems occur, some students make their way to the Consumer Relations Board on campus to seek information and help. This is a smart move — the board is a great place to start.

But the board can't help prevent problems; it can only help solve them. Students need to educate themselves on landlord/tenant laws and their individual landlords' policies.

Informed students could communicate any neighborhood problems to the city so solutions could be investigated.

Individuals have various means of becoming well-informed on city housing policies and landlords' requirements or limitations. A perfect opportunity to become educated on off-campus housing is the public housing forum from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Saturday at the First United Methodist Church.

Speakers at the forum will discuss relevant housing issues such as unsafe housing and weatherization. Representatives of the K-State Department of Housing, the city, the state, Fort Riley and Manhattan Christian College will be present at the forum.

But more importantly, the end of the forum will be open to public comment.

Instead of going to the Consumer Relations Board to complain about past events, students should attend the forum to educate themselves and to communicate with community representatives.

Diploma needed for survival

College no longer key to getting ahead

Commentary

KARLA REDELSHEIMER
Collegian Columnist

She quit? Why would someone decide to quit college with only one semester left before she graduates?" I remember asking about a senior who did not return to school after winter break during my freshman year.

I couldn't imagine a reason strong enough to make someone want to trash three-and-a-half years of tuition, tests and tension. As a naive freshman, prison and death were the only two answers I could come up with.

All sorts of memories ran through my head. Flashbacks of older people — veterans of life — telling horror stories and giving advice about seeking higher education.

"A college diploma shows an employer you're willing to stick with something longer than you have to — that you're striving to become a better person," my high school English teacher always said in a booming voice.

He followed up his statement with a dramatic story of a student who dropped out of high school to help his uncle start a business and make a "quick buck."

About three months later, my English teacher stopped by a fast-food joint for a hamburger where he was reunited with his former student. The student's business venture hadn't worked out and he was now sweeping up a parking lot after his friends who stayed in high school.

A Chicago taxi driver once took advantage of rush-hour traffic to lecture me on the virtues of seeking a college education. He told me that knowledge is the most valuable thing a man can have because no one can ever take it away.

Although both men meant well, their statements would hardly persuade anyone who's burned out on school to stick with it, simply because both statements don't acknowledge a fact of life — money.

Most of us came to college with the notion that if we work hard enough and make decent grades, somehow we'll be rewarded with a great career and best of all, a high paying job (a.k.a. The American Dream). But something disturbing has started happening — most college graduates aren't better off than their parents (which is the very pillar of The American Dream).

"A college degree is like a condom with a hole — it gives you a false sense of security," was etched into a desk that I happened to be sitting in last semester. The statement made me laugh, yet I wondered if I was crazy for being at that desk trying to earn a diploma.

What in the hell was I doing listening to some professor ramble on about truth tables? I don't need all this stress. I could just quit school, move to large city and become a garbage man — I've always heard they make more money than a lot of teachers. Yes, it's always great fun to kick around that crazy question: "What if I had done (fill in the blank)?" The possibilities are endless.

Well, I decided against making that particular career move. An insider told me the field of trash disposal is tough to break into.

A recent article in Time magazine put my fears to rest. It reassured me that there is a purpose to having a college degree and that I wasn't wasting my time.

Today a college diploma, which once guaranteed a ticket to the high life, is now necessary just to remain a member of the middle class. One economist calculates that in the early 1970s a 30-year-old male college graduate could expect to earn at least 15 percent more than a 30-year-old with a high school diploma. In 1986, the gap had grown to 49 percent.

Out of the 50 top-paying jobs (according to "The Jobs Rated Almanac"), 41 are held by people with college degrees. The message here is that unless you were lucky enough to have been born with athletic or musical talent, stay in school.

So the next time you find yourself second-guessing your choice to go to college, take a deep breath, go jogging, take a 20-minute break (or whatever) and get back to your books. Not only will a college diploma broaden your horizons, but it might just keep you above the poverty line.

As for the young woman who quit college with only one semester to go, she's decided to come back and finish her degree after having five jobs in the past three years.

Letters

Letter agreed upon

Editor,

Mark Reams' letter on Wednesday really astounded me. His attempt at condemnation was in very poor taste and accomplished nothing.

First, Reams announced that a paper is not the place to complain or express concern about how the football team is run. Where then? The games are a little tough because everyone is either screaming or a little drunk. And besides, did you know it is a federal law for a paper to provide room for a public forum? (Yes, even a college newspaper.) And I'd have to bet that the letters section of the Collegian serves in that fashion.

And golly-gee-whiz, isn't the paper a great place to get your opinions to a large group of people easily? I wonder if that's what the whole idea is?

Secondly, Reams seems really emphatic about going to the football games to support the team, seeing how he mentions it in back-to-back paragraphs. I have some astounding news. John Kirkland (who also happens to be my roommate) has attended all the home games so far this season, as have I. As for supporting the team, Kirkland and I both have people attending the Nebraska game — another guy on the floor is bringing 31 people — and five people here are members of ICAT. NO! — this is the answer to your question before you ask it — none of the ICAT members down here joined for basketball tickets. We're all getting them, but not through ICAT.

Finally, I must admit that while not being overly intelligent, you are correct about the membership of the Goodnow basement, it does number more than 13. However, those whose names were not on the letter agreed with it, but just didn't get around to signing. However, on the off-chance you don't believe this, I had all those who did agree sign this one.

Michael Rohrer
junior in journalism
and mass communications and 31 others

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555
Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Iran won't make deal

Individuals unauthorized

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Iran has told the United States it is not interested in dealing with unauthorized individuals over the release of American hostages, a top diplomat said Thursday.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy said the Iranian message had been part of communications between the two countries conducted through Switzerland and other countries that have diplomatic ties to Iran.

The United States has not authorized any individuals to strike deals with Iran over the release of the hostages, held by pro-Iranian militants in Lebanon, he said.

"We have made sure through those same channels I referred to that the government of Iran has received that same message, and they realize our position and they affirm they are not interested in dealing with private citizens and unauthorized individuals," Murphy said in testimony before the House subcommittee on Europe and the Middle East.

Murphy did not say when that communication took place.

Former Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said earlier this month that an emissary for Vice President George Bush had negotiated the release from Lebanon of Mithileshwar Singh, a U.S. resident from India. Secretary of State George Shultz last week denied that and other reports about negotiations with Iran.

Murphy said the United States has repeatedly made clear to Iran that the continued detention of Americans in Lebanon would preclude any improvement in relations between the two countries.

"There will be no deals made for their release," he said. "They must be returned forthwith."

Asked about reports that the hostages may be held by Palestinian groups, Murphy said the United States did not have any evidence that the Americans are in the hands of anyone but Lebanese faithful.

Reagan signs welfare overhaul; first since Great Depression

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan on Thursday signed the first major overhaul of the nation's welfare system since it was created in the Great Depression. He said the new law is a "message of hope" to those mired in a life of dependency and destitution.

But that message to welfare recipients, said the president, also contains a demand from the citizens who pay the bills: "That you will do your share in taking responsibility for your life and for the lives of the children you bring into this world."

Reagan said the best part of the new welfare plan is that it actually poses "an alternative to life on welfare."

"For too long the federal government, with the best of intentions, has usurped the responsiblity that appropriately lies with parents," said Reagan at the signing ceremony in the Rose Garden. "In so doing, it has reinforced dependency and separated welfare recipients from the mainstream of society."

The legislation contains the most sweeping revision of the nation's principal welfare program — Aid to Families with Dependent Children — since it was created in 1935.

Under the agreement reached after two years of legislative struggle, the government has pledged to provide training and support systems to destitute parents if they take steps to become independent.

Each state must operate a Jobs Opportunities and Basic Skills (JOBS) program to educate, train and find employment for the AFDC recipients. Over seven years, states will be entitled to recieve $6.8 billion in federal matching funds to pay for employment and training activities.

The president touted the measure's work and education requirements, as well as its provisions increasing pressure on absentee parents to pay child support.

Also present for the signing was the chief architect of the bill, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

"I've been waiting 20 years for this day," said the exultant senator following the ceremony. He added that he hoped its features would take hold fully by the end of the century.

Under the complex piece of legislation, various programs have differing starting dates.

Under the bill, states are required for the first time to offer people on welfare a broad variety of education, training and work programs.

Mothers of young children are required to participate. They retain medical coverage for a year after they find a job, and they will be far more likely to get child support payments.

For the first time, the federal government will require all states to pay cash benefits to two-parent welfare families. Only 27 do so now.

Starting in 1994, one adult in each two-parent welfare household must participate in a job search and, if it fails, work 16 hours a week in a state-organized work activity. A young parent may work instead toward a high school diploma.

All states will be required to provide at least some cash benefits to families with unemployed fathers living at home.

Non-custodial fathers will face new pressure for child support payments.

Employee leader opposes state worker benefit cuts

From Staff and Wire Reports

The leader of a state employee association reacted sharply last week to a suggestion by lawmakers that benefits for state workers be reduced.

"Kansas state employees have been told for years that their low salaries were offset by a good benefits plan," said Charles Dodson, executive director of the Kansas Association of Public Employees. "In truth, employees' salaries remain low and now their benefits are deteriorating."

Rep. Bill Bunten, R-Topeka, and Sen. Gus Bogina, R-Shawnee, suggested at a Legislative Budget Committee meeting that reducing benefits could be the solution to the problem of sharply rising premiums for health insurance for state employees.

At K-State, about 1,850 classified employees would be affected, not including professors whose benefits would be cut.

"We are horrified," said Cornelia Flora, professor of sociology and president of Faculty Senate. "Last year benefits were cut — and to cut them more would be to undermine the small gains we've made in the Margin of Excellence plan.

K-State professors rank in the fourth percentile in salary comparisons nationwide. Benefits are also in the fourth percentile, so with further cuts the University may receive fewer applications, Flora said.

"There were no specific cuts given in the report," Dodson said. "There probably need to be increased deductibles or increased co-payments.

"Cutting health insurance benefits, however, is not necessary at this time," he said. "We are in this shape (because) in the past, the state has done little research into the program."

Dodson called for Gov. Mike Hayden to relieve the three-member Health Care Commission of the responsibility of designing insurance programs for state workers.

The current commission is composed of Shelby Smith, Kansas Director of Administration; Bob Harter, Kansas Department of Social Rehabilitation Services; and Fletcher Bell, Kansas Commissioner of Insurance.

Instead, the governor should appoint a blue-ribbon committee of health care providers, insurance professionals, labor leaders and legislators of both parties to develop a comprehensive and affordable benefits program for state employees, Dodson said.

"We need people who live under the program to serve on the committee," he said. "It has been reported that state workers use their health care benefits far more than other groups of comparable size.

"We need to find the cause for this. Be it work-related problems or lifestyle, we need to find the cause of the overuse," he said.

In a letter to Hayden, Dodson said the current Health Care Commission members "lack sufficent expertise to perform their job adequately."

Health insurance is a major part of the state employee benefits package, said Frieda Beat, an office assistant in K-State's Personnel Services.

"State workers will have a negative attitude if the proposed cuts are implemented," Beat said. "Family health insurance is a major part of employees' salaries."

"The Kansas Association of Public Employees, KAPE, is the union of state workers. Although it is an option for K-State employees to belong, not all do," she said.

Insurance is partially a salary benefit, said Anne Foster, Student Publications Inc. office specialist and wife of a state employee.

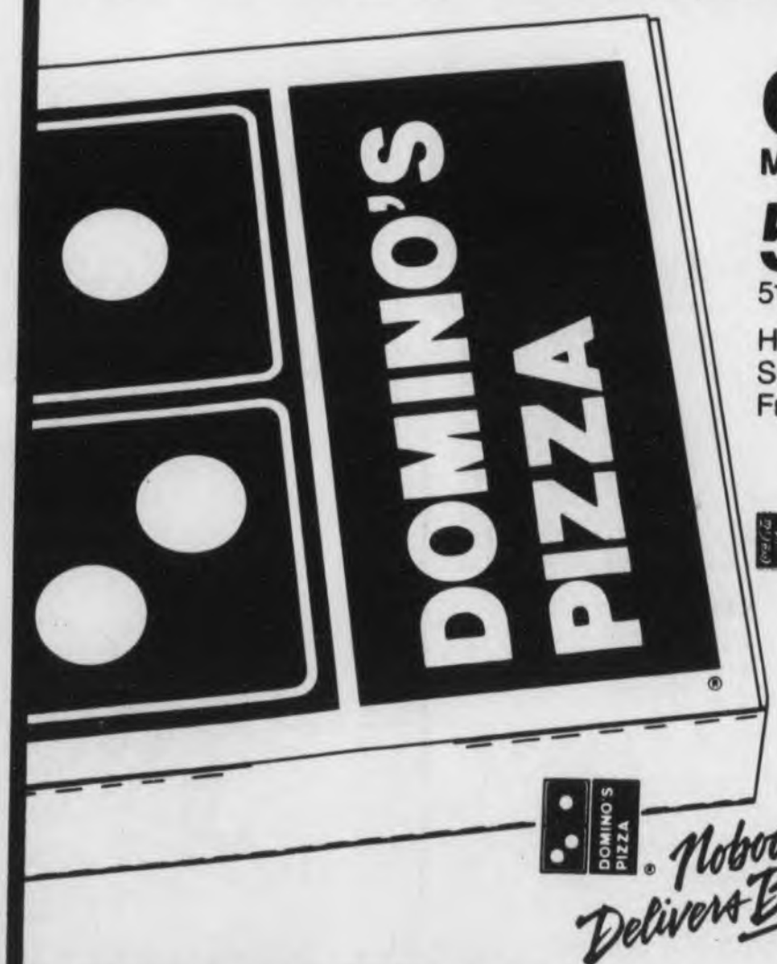
"Part of most employees' insurance is paid by the employees themselves, and the other part by the state as a salary benefit," she said. "Our insurance has had a monetary value of several thousand dollars over the past year. Taking that out would be a major salary cut."

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

COMMONWEALTH THEATRES
MOVIE INFORMATION 539-1291
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4094

CAMPUS
HEART OF AGGIEVILLE
STEALING HOME PG-13
TODAY AT 7:00 AND 9:00
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 3:00 AND 5:00
CAMPUS SEATS $1

WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center
ALIEN NATION R
TODAY AT 4:35—7:05—9:30
MATINEE SAT. & SUN. AT 2:05
ACCUSED R
TODAY AT 4:35—7:05—9:30
MATINEE SAT. & SUN. AT 2:05
KANSAS R
TODAY AT 4:30—7:10—9:35
MATINEE SAT. & SUN. AT 2:00
PUNCHLINE R
TODAY AT 4:20—7:00—9:35
MATINEE SAT. & SUN. AT 1:50
GORILLAS IN THE MIST PG-13
TODAY AT 4:20—7:00—9:40
MATINEE SAT. & SUN. AT 1:50
DIE HARD R
TODAY AT 4:20—7:00—9:40
MATINEE SAT. & SUN. AT 1:45



FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)

Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa
Park Place apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951

FLOWERS
AGGIEVILLE FLOWERS
6 roses for $6
cash and carry 12th & Laramie
537-9549 M-S 10-5

Amigos
The BEST Is Under Our Hat
Aggieville
Manhattan Town Center Mall
Bring A Friend!
SUNDAE
From our Sundae Bar
Expires 10/16/88
Buy one get one FREE
SAVE 99¢

SCORE FOR CHARITY 1988
Flag Football
Phi Delta Theta
Oct. 14, 15, 16.
Tournament Party — 8:00 Tonight at the "Phi Lodge" featuring: Living Room Carpet Blues Band
Sunday's Games to be held on the astroturf of KSU Stadium.
Free Pizza for everyone at 12:30 Saturday at the "Old Stadium".
We would like to extend our extreme gratitude to all participating teams.
TKE•THE LOST BOYS•THE ORIGINAL PHI WACKA JACKA•ΔΤΔ•
ΣΝ•ΑΤΩ•ΣΦΕ•ΣΧ•ΑΚΑΚ•ΣΑΕ•ΘΞ•ΒΘΠ•FIJI•ΠΚΑ•ΦΚΘ
ΑΔΠ•ΚΚΓ•ΔΔΔ•ΑΞΔ•ΑΓΔ•ΑΧΩ•ΠΒΦ•ΓΦΒ•ΣΣΣ•ΧΩ
ALL PROCEEDS GO TO ALS

A BOLD STATEMENT.

Call us!
Manhattan
539-0561
517 N. 12th Street
Hours:
Sun.-Thurs. 4pm-1am
Fri.-Sat. 4pm-2am
Coke Available, 12 oz. cans – 50c each. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area. © 1988 Domino's Pizza, Inc.
Nobody Delivers Better℠

$3.99 Special!
Get one 10" 1 topping pizza for ONLY $3.99!
Additional toppings only 50¢ each. Price does not include sales tax. Not good with any offers or coupons. Expires 10/13/88.
Name
Address

Menu
PEPPERONI, MUSHROOMS, GROUND BEEF, SAUSAGE, BACON, BLACK OLIVES, ONIONS, HAM, GREEN PEPPER, PINEAPPLE, GREEN CHILIES, JALAPENOS, EXTRA THICK CRUST, EXTRA CHEESE

	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE *	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI * *	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA™ * * *	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

* DELUXE — 5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.
* * VEGI — 5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.
* * * EXTRAVAGANZZA * — A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

Peskanov to bring 'fiery' violin style to McCain

By Mary Gomez
Collegian Reporter

Mark Peskanov, an award-winning violinist, will perform at 8 tonight in McCain Auditorium.

Peskanov has been described by The New York Times as "A powerful player and expert musician with temperament and a virtuoso flair."

A native of the Soviet Union, Peskanov immigrated to the United States in 1973.

Peskanov is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music, where he studied with native Kansan Dorothy De Lay.

"De Lay taught Itzhak Perlman, who has performed in McCain also," said Richard Martin, director of McCain. "Perlman is probably the most known violinist of his time."

Martin said that Perlman may perform again in McCain in a few years but that Martin and the McCain Development Board wanted to introduce a new artist this year.

Peskanov is a very charismatic and fiery musician, Martin said.

The Chicago Tribune described Peskanov as "... a sensational soloist. His tone was sweet, his intonation true, his bow arm fluent, his left hand technique splendid ... most impressive ..."

Martin said Peskanov has won several awards.

"Peskanov is a young violinist who has won three major awards, two of them in one year," he said.

In 1985, Peskanov received an Avery Fisher Career Grant and the first Isaac Stern Award given at Carnegie Hall. He has also received the Frederick R. Mann Young Artist Award.

After reading good reviews about Peskanov, Martin researched the violinist and contacted Peskanov's manager.

"We really wanted to share this opportunity with the people in this area," Martin said. "He is a big-league artist."

Peskanov performs a full schedule of recitals and has appeared with the Baltimore, Cincinnati, Detroit, Houston, San Francisco and Toronto symphonies, the London Philharmonic and the Minnesota Orchestra, Martin said.

Peskanov's program will consist of: Mozart, Sonata in D Major; Prokofiev, Sonata in F minor; Brahms, Sonata in A Major; and Sarasate, "Carmen Fantasy."

The concert will feature pianist Rita Sloan, also a Juilliard graduate, who performs recitals and chamber music on radio and television and appears as a soloist with orchestras internationally.

Martin said the program Peskanov has chosen is not an easy one.

"He's chosen works that are very difficult, both technically and intellectually, which will make for a more thrilling performance," he said.

Tickets for the performance may be purchased at the McCain Box Office at $8 for students and children, $10 for senior citizens and $12 for the general public.

SALE—SALE—SALE—SALE
Taco Burgers—2 for $1
(reg. 80¢ each)
Chili Burrito—$1.77
burrito covered w/chili, topped w/cheese—chips
(reg. $2.20)
Offer good Oct. 12-17
Sun.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-11 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-12 a.m.
TACO HUT
"Where good friends get together"
2809 Claflin Rd. 539-2091

BROTHERS In Aggieville
FREE BBQ HAMBURGERS
IT'S BBQ TIME
Today 4 - 7 p.m.
enjoy BBQ burgers hot off the grille while relaxing inside with your favorite tunes.
Friday & Saturday Nights
Free prizes given away at 1:30 a.m.
T-shirts • Cash • Boxers • Door Passes • Hats
Posters • And More!
•18 TO ENTER–21 TO DRINK•
1120 Moro•Aggieville 537-9511

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB
BAKE SALE

Oktoberfest
Aggieville
Saturday, October 15

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM Restaurant
539-8888 1304 Westloop
Sunday Buffet
11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
$5.95
Children under 5 free
crab ragoon
crispy wonton
hot n' sour soup
fried rice
sweet n' sour pork
vegtable delight
pork egg foo young
hot braised chicken
shrimp with lobster sauce
chicken chow mein
spicy tangy beef
FREE DELIVERY 11 a.m.-1 a.m.

JACK IS BACK

Save 10% to 50%
October 15-22, 1988
SPELLbinders inc.
INNOVATIVE INTERIORS
ART APPAREL
Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Ave. •Manhattan
539-7657• Monday - Saturday: 10:00-5:00

ΑΤΩ
Opens its Doors... as Part of the Greek Open House!
Sunday, October 16.
1:30-5:30
Tickets $2.00 per person.
Tickets Available at Kite's,
The Manhattan Town Center Mall
& Kansas State Bank.

What is a
MINI-GRANT?
It is a unique opportunity to become involved in a community project of interest and concern to you.
Some ideas for your project might be:
☆Mother's Day Out in a child care cooperative ☆Community Forums on issues of public concern
☆Health Education
☆Senior Citizen visits/projects
☆Community Theatre and many, many more . . .
A MINI-GRANT Workshop
3-5 p.m. Monday, Oct. 17 in Union 207
By Dr. Bert Biles, Assistant Dean for Sponsored Programs will tell you more about writing your grant and getting your project under way.
Call Helene Higbee at 532-6900 for more information.
$500 Mini-Grants will be awarded during the first funding cycle.
Mini-Grant projects selected will be announced Dec. 1.
☆Open to all K-State Students☆
Learning by Serving
Funded by the Community Service Program
College of Arts and Sciences

ΑΧΩ
Alpha Chi Omega
would like to thank all the houses that helped make Greek Playboy such a great success.
Fraternities:
Acacia
Alpha Gamma Rho
Alpha Kappa Lambda
Alpha Tau Omega
Beta Sigma Psi
Beta Theta Pi
Delta Sigma Phi
Delta Tau Delta
Delta Upsilon
FarmHouse
Kappa Sigma
Lambda Chi Alpha
Phi Delta Theta
Phi Gamma Delta
Phi Kappa Tau
Phi Kappa Theta
Pi Kappa Alpha
Pi Kappa Phi
Sigma Alpha Epsilon
Sigma Chi
Sigma Nu
Sigma Phi Epsilon
Tau Kappa Epsilon
Triangle
Sororities:
Alpha Delta Pi
Alpha Gamma Delta
Alpha Xi Delta
Chi Omega
Delta Delta Delta
Gamma Phi Beta
Kappa Alpha Theta
Kappa Delta
Kappa Kappa Gamma
Pi Beta Phi
Sigma Sigma Sigma
POWER FM 94.5

Now Your College I.D. Gives You An Instant Discount At Hardee's on College Night

Every Sunday
Aggieville & Village Plaza
Just grab your college I.D. card and hurry over to Hardee's. You'll get 10% off the regular price of any food purchase when you show your college I.D. on College Night. Good food. Great deal. Don't miss it! (And don't forget your I.D.!)
© 1988. Hardee's Food Systems, Inc.
Hardee's

Fall Bulb SPECIAL
Buy 10, Get 3 Free!

Plant imported Holland bulbs NOW and delight in the dazzling array of nature's magic next Spring . . . Crocus, Tulip, Daffodil, Hyacinth and many other fine quality bulbs.
Our experienced staff will be glad to advise you on selections from our excellent bulb stock.
Sale prices effective through October 23, 1988.
Hurry, while supplies last!
It's Fall. Think Spring!
Horticultural Services
• Garden Center •
Mon-Sat 8-6 Fri 8-7:30 Sun 10-6
776-5764
2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

Entertainment Friday

NOW SHOWING

K-State Union

The Last Emperor
6 and 9:00, Friday and Saturday.
Forum Hall.

Mary Poppins
Saturday, 2 p.m. and
Sunday, 2 and 7 p.m.
Forum Hall.

Campus Theater

Stealing Home
Daily, 7 and 9.
Matinee 3 and 5, Saturday,
and Sunday.

Westloop Cinema 6

Kansas
Daily 4:30, 7:10
and 9:35. Matinee 2:00,
Saturday and Sunday.

Gorillas in the Mist
Daily 4:20, 7 and 9:40.
Matinee 1:50, Saturday
and Sunday.

Accused
Daily 4:35, 7:05
and 9:30. Matinee
2:05 Saturday and Sunday.

Alien Nation
Daily 4:35, 7:05
and 9:30. Matinee 2:05
Saturday and Sunday.

Punchline
Daily 4:25, 7
and 9:35. Matinee 1:50,
Saturday and Sunday.

Die Hard
Daily 4:20, 7
and 9:40. Matinee
1:45 Saturday and Sunday.

Seth Childs Cinema

Young Guns
Daily 7:15 and 9:40.
Matinee 2:20 and 4:45,
Saturday and Sunday.

Messenger of Death
Daily 7:10 and 9:30.
Matinee 2:25 and 4:45,
Saturday and Sunday.

Coming To America
Daily 7:15 and 9:35.
Matinee 2:15 and 4:35,
Saturday and Sunday.

Dead Ringers
Daily 7:15 and 9:40.
Matinee 2:05 and 4:30,
Saturday and Sunday.

Cocktail
Daily 7:10 and 9:30.
Matinee 2:00 and 4:35,
Saturday and Sunday.

Big
Daily 7:25 and 9:35.
Matinee 2:10 and 4:30,
Saturday and Sunday.

Theater

Little Shop of Horrors
Musical based on the 1960 horror film by Roger Corman. The play runs through Sunday and
Oct. 18 - 22, Nichols
Theater 8 p.m.
Tickets are available at Nichols Theatre Box Office and are $6 for students and seniors, and $7 for general admission.

Music

Mark Perkanov
Violinist from the Soviet Union. McCain
Auditorium, 8 p.m.
Tickets are $8 for students and can be purchased at the McCain
Box Office (see precede.)

Central States Marching Band Festival
Bands from 10 area
high schools will perform.
KSU Stadium, 1:30 p.m.,
Saturday. Awards will be presented at 4 p.m.
Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

Corina Sanders, junior in political science, practices during Ballet II class Thursday in Ahearn Field House. Ahearn is home to K-State's dance program and Wildcat athletics.

Despite funding problems Dance survives at K-State

Ahearn Field House: For many students the name conjures up images of physical education classes and Wildcat basketball games — but that is just on the ground floor.

Go up several flights of stairs, and there is an entirely different world of student activity.

There, students in toe shoes and leotards take the floor.

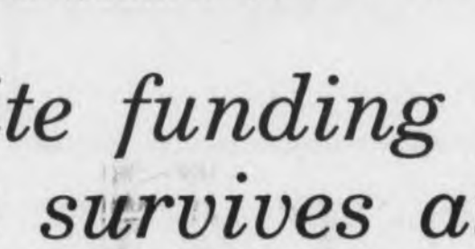
Not only is Ahearn home to sports, but also to the fine art of dance.

The K-State dance program is partially housed in Ahearn and Nichols Hall.

Due to a decision in 1986 by the Kansas Board of Regents, the dance program was removed from the Department of Physical Education, Dance and Leisure Studies and placed within the Department of Speech.

This move combined speech, theater and dance into one program.

Therefore, those wishing to become dance students will major in speech, but with an emphasis in dance.



"I believe the Regents moved us (the dance program) in order to combine programs and conserve money," said Judy Quirk, assistant professor of speech. "They felt that it (dance) was better suited within the theater program.

"When the change occurred, none of the curriculum was cut," Quirk said. "The program actually got stronger and the courses are (now) better suited for the performing arts. The department head (of speech) and the faculty have been incredibly helpful and supportive."

This year marks the 10th year of the K-State dance program and the ninth year that Luke Kahlich has been the director.

Kahlich made changes that emphasize the well-rounded dancer, Quirk said. The program is based on a philosophy of liberal arts, not just technique.

Each year the faculty and students produce two concerts at McCain Auditorium. Also, one concert a year is solely produced by the students.

The dance students also attend the American College Dance Festival and the Kansas Dance Festival and have recently performed in the local Flint Hills Festival.

Despite the fact that those in dance are able to participate in these activities, funding for the program is very tight.

"We do our own publicity, mailings, costumes and sets," Quirk said. "It places a lot of stress on the students. They are busy, like everyone, and don't always have time to do it all on their own time. However, I think the students here will come out with a better backing than other places."

"Student government has increased our funding this year to $5000 for the dance program," said Luke Kahlich, professor of speech and director of the dance program.

"Our biggest problem is that we cannot get an artist in residence," he said.

Artists in residence are professionals who take one-year positions in order to expose students to the professional world.

"This year we couldn't get anyone to take a one-year position because of the lack of funds," Kahlich said.

"KU groups all of its fine arts — music, theater, dance — together. I think it makes it easier. I think it would help (if K-State's fine arts would be grouped)," Quirk said.

At one point last year K-State was going to group the programs together and call them the performing arts, but it would have taken too many changes to complete, she said.

"We do really well with what we have, but we can't do anything very elaborate," Quirk said.

Occasionally the dancers do get to profit from professional touring groups that come to perform on campus.

■ See DANCE, Page 14

Judy Quirk, assistant professor of speech, instructs students during dance class. She is one of two professors.

Amy Newton, senior in horticulture therapy, plays the bells, along with Woodrow Wilson Elementary school children, Thursday afternoon for the K-State dancers. The program is a part of ArtShare, designed to help educate elementary students in the arts.

Story by Nancy B. Chartrand

Photos by Jim Dietz and Brian Kratzer

Greek houses to give tours

Proceeds will help Vietnam War memorial

By Christina Doherty
Collegian Reporter

Manhattan residents will have the opportunity Sunday to tour many of K-State's greek houses in an effort to raise money for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial and to give the different houses community exposure.

"The purpose is to raise money for the Vietnam Veterans Memorial while heightening an awareness between the community, greek houses and the University," said Mike Cormaci, senior in agricultural economics and organizer of the greek open house tours.

Four sororities and four fraternities will be open for tours. They were chosen for their geographical locations and how well each functions internally as a living group.

"Money will be raised through $2 ticket sales that entitle you to go through each house," Cormaci said.

Each house will have different attractions, such as a barbecue at the Sigma Nu fraternity and a day-care center at the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority. Each house will also feature an information booth on its internal workings.

The idea for this type of event came from the Chamber of Commerce University Relations Education Committee, Cormaci said.

Organizers of the event said they have received a lot of community support.

Rick Mann, executive vice president of Kansas State Bank and former mayor, said he believes this will be a good chance for the citizens of Manhattan to see how the greek houses work from the inside, instead of just seeing a beautiful structure.

"The greek systems and houses work very hard for the Manhattan community," Mann said.

One of the community participants is the Manhattan Town Center, where tickets for this event may be purchased.

Cormaci, member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, became involved in this event through a project his fraternity was doing to support the Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

"I was gathering money from alumni (of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity) for the Leo Hadley fund when the Arnold Air Force Society asked me to become a member of the committee. While on the committee, I thought of getting the greek houses together to raise money," Cormaci said.

Members of the participating greek houses said this will also benefit their image to the Manhattan citizens.

"Our different committees will be there to talk to people to show them that we're not actually just parties and that we do more things," said Scott Cashman, junior in business and president of the Sigma Nu fraternity.

The groundbreaking dedication ceremony of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial will be Nov. 11, east of All-Faiths Chapel. Gov. Mike Hayden, the honorary chairman, will be in attendance.

Senator wants weapons ban

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., met Thursday with the secretary general of the United Nations and called for an international effort to prevent the use of chemical weapons.

In the meeting in New York, Kassebaum gave Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar a letter signed by 59 senators urging a "coordinated response by the international community" against chemical weaponry.

"Over the past decade, we have seen both the spread and use of chemical weapons gain increasing momentum," stated the letter.

"This is a problem of international dimension. It is critical that we move as a body of nations to rebuild the barrier to chemical weapons use and reassert the principle that chemical warfare is unacceptable," the senators said.

A copy of the letter, which was written by Kassebaum and Sens. William Cohen, R-Maine; Bill Bradley, D-N.J.; and Joseph Biden, D-Del., also was sent to President Reagan.

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Crum's beauty college
512 Poyntz Avenue
Manhattan, Kansas
66502
½ off Haircuts
—all services performed by supervised cosmetology students—
Expires 11/11/88

Sunday:
•Lunch buffet
11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.
•Nightly Menu
5 p.m.-9 p.m.
539-2651
Village Plaza Shopping Center
Keck's STEAK House EST. 1939

COSTUME ALLEY
OPENS OCT. 15
Now located next to Brothers & upstairs
Lots of weird things to dress up in!

Book Sale!
Friends of the Libraries
Kansas State University
Thursday, October 20, 1988
8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Farrell Library Lobby
Book donations will be accepted through Tuesday, October 18, and may be placed in boxes at these Manhattan locations:
Dillons in Westloop
Dillons next to Walmart
Super Food Barn in the Village Plaza
Food-4-Less
The Presale for members of Friends of the Libraries is Wednesday, October 19, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in 502B Farrell Library.
All proceeds will be used to supplement library resources.

THE Palace Cards & Gifts
SOFT, CUDDLY STUFFED ANIMALS ON SALE NOW!
by Avanti, Dakin, Gund, No. American Bear.
$10.00 off any animal $20.00—49.00
$25.00 off any animal $50.00—99.00
$50.00 off any animal $100.00 or more
EXCLUDING STICK-UPS
HURRY SALE ENDS OCT. 30, 1988
Mon.-Thurs. 8:30 to 8:30, Fri.-Sat. 8:30-5:30, Sun. 12:00-5:00
704 N. Manhattan Ave • 539-7654 • In Aggieville

HISTORY IN THE MAKING
TRANSFER THE TRADITION
Midnight Madness III
KSU
Be a part of the first basketball event in Bramlage Coliseum.
Activities start at 9:30 p.m. with a party at Ahearn Fieldhouse.
The party includes music from 97 FM, 87-88 Basketball highlights, free hot dogs and Pepsi to first 3,000 people.
At 10:30 p.m. Wildcat basketball team will lead the fans in a parade to Bramlage.
The party will continue at the Coliseum with Yell Practice, music by the K-State Band, and Radio highlights with Mitch Holthus from Voice of K-State Wildcats.
At 12:01 a.m., the FIRST basketball practice in Bramlage will Begin
THIS FRIDAY
Donations to the K-State Cheerleaders and Band will be accepted during this historic event.
Sponsored by 97 FM, WIBW 580 AM, Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. of Marysville, — Manhattan, John Murdock, Inc.-Chevrolet-Cadillac-Oldsmobile-GEO, and Ohse Meats.

TGIF
JOIN THE 34 YEAR TRADITION!
FREE TOSTADO BAR
5:00pm-7:00pm
18 to enter•21 to drink
KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
619 North 12th, Aggieville

SPAGHETTI SUNDAY
ALL YOU CAN EAT SPAGHETTI AND GARLIC BREAD!!
ONLY $3.25
SERVING 5-8 p.m.
Open Noon Sundays For Lunch, Too!
KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

Midnight Madness to start K-State's basketball season

By Kevin Kramer
Collegian Reporter

Called "history in the making," Midnight Madness III is the first basketball event in Bramlage Coliseum and will mark the opening of the 1988-89 K-State basketball season with the first practice tonight.

Midnight Madness III centers around the theme of "Transfer the Tradition," as Wildcat fans move the spirit and tradition of K-State basketball from Ahearn Field House to Bramlage, said Chris Peterson, assistant athletic director.

Tonight's activities are scheduled to begin at 9:30, following the K-State volleyball game against Iowa State University, with a party and pep rally at Ahearn. The party will include music from 97 FM, 1987-88 basketball highlights on a big-screen TV, and free hot dogs and Pepsi to the first 3,000 people in the door.

"It will be a once-in-a-lifetime party that students can tell their grandchildren about," said Bob Merten, KSU Athletic Department's director of special projects.

At 10:30 the Wildcat basketball team and head coach Lon Kruger will lead a parade of K-State cheerleaders, the marching band and basketball fans from Ahearn to Bramlage.

The party is scheduled to continue inside Bramlage with a yell practice and challenge, music by the K-State pep band, and radio highlights. Mitch Holthus, the voice of the K-State Wildcats, will act as master of ceremonies.

"The idea of the yell practice is to challenge the student body to equal the level of cheering established at Ahearn in Bramlage," Merten said. "We want to show that the sixth man — the crowd — will not be lost by going to a new facility."

A countdown to 12:01 a.m. will signal the end to waiting for the new season. Following introductions and opening words by Kruger, the basketball team will take to the floor, said Nancy Denning, coordinator for Midnight Madness.

"I'm excited about the opening of basketball," said Steve Miller, athletic director. "It's a rekindling of last year's spirit, which is especially important in the transfer of the tradition of K-State basketball."

Miller said he is very excited about being there during the beginning of a new era in K-State basketball.

Following Midnight Madness III, donations will be accepted for the traveling expenses of the K-State band and cheerleaders.

Midnight Madness III is sponsored by 97 FM, WIBW 580 AM, Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. of Marysville and Manhattan, John Murdock Inc., and Oshe Meats.

'Cat volleyball team to host ISU, Drake

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

You've got to give K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson credit. He is still optimistic, even though his team is in the midst of a nine-game losing streak.

Nelson said K-State's matches at 7:30 tonight against Iowa State and at noon Saturday against Drake — both in Ahearn Field House — give the 'Cats a shot at revenge against teams that have helped contribute to K-State dropping from 8-0 to 8-9 overall, including an 0-4 mark in the Big Eight Conference.

"In both games against Iowa State and Drake on the road, we had opportunities in the fourth game to win the match," Nelson said. "So I think we're looking at (today's) and Saturday's matches as opportunities to get back on track."

Both setbacks were painful for the 'Cats. K-State held a 2-1 lead in games in both matches, along with a lead in the fourth game, before falling victim to rallies at Ames and Des Moines.

The latest setback in the losing streak came Wednesday night at Missouri. Again, K-State held a lead, this time at 13-9 in a match tied at 1-1. K-State lost the third game 16-14 and then fell in game four.

"We have to put the pressure on the other team at that point in the match, not on ourselves," Nelson said after the Missouri loss. "We had four unforced errors at that point of

■ See VOLLEY, Page 14

Wildcats start 'Burma Road'

OU game first of 3 against ranked teams

By Tom Morris
Sports Editor

When K-State's football team played Oklahoma, Nebraska and Oklahoma State on consecutive Saturdays last season, Coach Stan Parrish termed it the "Bataan Death March."

As the Wildcats prepare for the same string of games starting Saturday with Oklahoma, Parrish has rephrased it "The Burma Road."

"All three of those teams are just as good (as they were last year), and we face a very difficult task," Parrish said. "We want to concern ourselves with ourselves. We want to do as many things as we can right and as hard as we can."

A good starting point would be slowing the wishbone offense. Last week Missouri was able to run at will against the Wildcats with the 'bone, but the Sooners have even further mastered the complex, three-back offense.

"We'll have to play a whole lot better than we did last week defensively. And we'll have to help our defense by controlling the ball on offense as well," Parrish said.

Oklahoma, a 42-point favorite, will be led Saturday by quarterback Charles Thompson. The 5-foot-10, 175-pound sophomore from Lawton, Okla., replaces projected starter Jamelle Holieway, who injured his right ankle against Texas.

Though Holieway leads the Big Eight Conference in passing efficiency, and is ninth in total offense, his loss isn't earth-shattering news for Parrish or OU coach Barry Switzer.

"(Thompson) had some plays in the ball game against Texas that Jamelle couldn't have made because of his speed," Switzer said.

"Thompson beat Nebraska last year," Parrish added. "I think their chance to win the Big Eight (Conference race) rests with Thompson. Holieway is obviously not the player he was a year ago."

K-State Wildcats vs. Oklahoma Sooners

Game Time: 1:30 p.m. Saturday.
Place: Oklahoma Memorial Stadium (75,004).
TV: None. Radio: Wildcat Radio Network (KMAN 1350 AM).
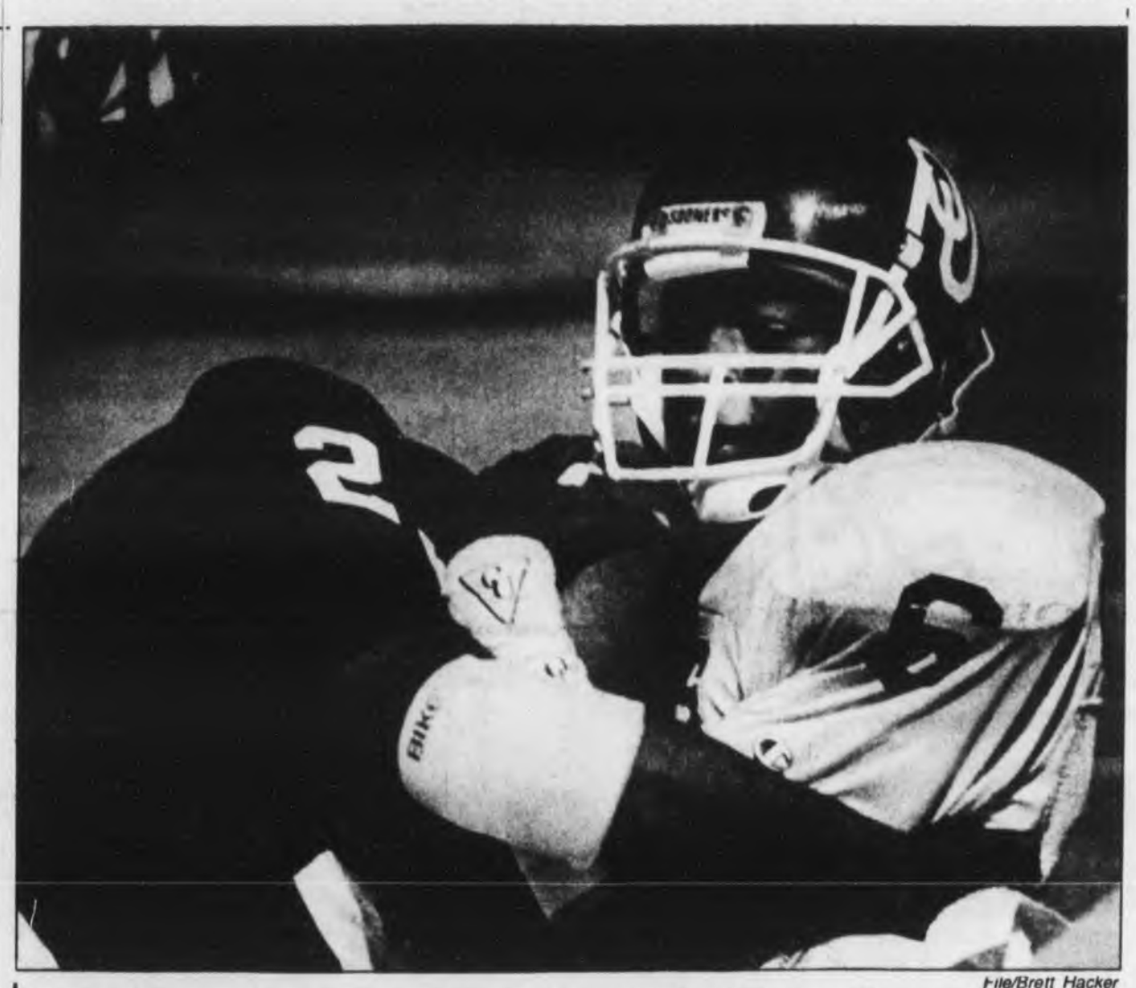
Season Records: K-State 0-5; Oklahoma 4-1.
Series Record: Oklahoma leads 58-11-4.
Notes: Oklahoma has won the last 17 meetings ... K-State wide receiver Greg Washington has caught a touchdown in four consecutive games ... Oklahoma has scored in 11 straight quarters against the Wildcats and 14 of the last 15 ... the Sooners haven't kicked a field goal this season ... Since 1945, OU is 37-3-2 the week after the annual matchup with Texas.



For the first time in many seasons, Oklahoma doesn't top the Big Eight statistics in rushing and total offense. The Sooners are second in rushing, with an average of 280 yards per game, and are fifth in total offense with 370 yards an outing. Of course, Oklahoma is last in passing, attempting just 44 passes in five games, and is fourth in scoring offense.

Again, it's not a reason for Switzer to become alarmed.

"It's only because they're young," Parrish said. "I think as time goes on, they're going to be (at the top of the statistics) at the end of the year. They're getting better each week. Barring a major upset, I think they're going to be 9-1 going into the final game of the season (against Nebraska)."

Defense, though, is the Sooners' strength this season. They top the Big Eight stats in pass defense (96.2 yards per game), total defense (263.8) and scoring defense (10.6 points per game).

K-State's redshirt-freshman quarterback Paul Watson, who was injured in the Wildcats' 52-21 loss to Missouri last week, won't travel with the team to Norman. Watson, who deeply bruised his shoulder and hasn't practiced this week, relinquishes the reins to Carl Straw. Freshman Matt Garber will be the No. 3 quarterback behind backup Chris Cobb.

File/Brett Hacker

Oklahoma's sophomore quarterback Charles Thompson is sacked in last year's game against the Wildcats. Against K-State Saturday, Thompson is replacing injured starter Jamelle Holieway.

Big Eight Conference Standings

	Big 8	Pct.	Total	Pct.
Oklahoma State	1-0	1.000	4-0	1.000
Nebraska	1-0	1.000	5-1	.833
Oklahoma	1-0	1.000	4-1	.800
Missouri	1-0	1.000	2-2-1	.500
Colorado	0-1	.000	4-1	.800
Iowa State	0-1	.000	2-3	.400
K-State	0-1	.000	0-5	.000
Kansas	0-1	.000	0-5	.000

Games This Week
(All Times Central)
Colorado at Kansas, 12:10 p.m.
Iowa State at Missouri, 1:30 p.m.
K-State at Oklahoma, 1:30 p.m.
Oklahoma State at Nebraska, 1:30 p.m.

File/Jeff Stead

Keith Tate tries to hold on to the ball while trying to tag out a base runner. The Wildcats' fall season ends Saturday against Creighton. Many younger players will get their first look at what the competition will be like in the spring, head coach Mike Clark said.

Baseball team to finish fall season

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

K-State's baseball team heads into its final matchup of the fall season with a perfect 6-0 record. All of the victories have come against junior college competition.

"It's been pretty good for us so far," said K-State coach Mike Clark. "It's tough to know exactly how good we are because I'm not exactly sure how good (the junior colleges) are. I spend most of my time trying to evaluate our talent and not trying to evaluate how (the junior colleges) play."

Against Creighton, the Wildcats' final opponent of the fall season, many of K-State's younger players will get their first look at what competition will be like in the spring.

"The Creighton game will be a good evaluation tool," Clark said. "We will get a good look at some of the youth on our squad and see just what kind of major college baseball potential they have.

"I'm not going to throw any of my more experienced pitchers in the Creighton series because I don't want them to get a good look at us. We have to play Creighton in the spring."

Heading into the final game, K-State looks better in certain areas and worse in others compared to last year's squad, Clark said. The team can pitch and field, but the hitting has been spotty.

"Last year we thought pitching and defense would be our strengths. Our pitching was inconsistent, and hitting was the key to our success last year. It's hard to tell what will happen between now and next spring. I can't ask any more from my players; they are really working their tails off," Clark said.

"We are really pleased with the pitching. That is what we were mainly concerned with going into the season. We didn't want to have the fiasco we had last year during our Big Eight schedule," he added.

K-State is coming off of a 34-win season, one short of the school record. Clark said the squad possesses some talented, younger players.

"We did a good job of recruiting last year," Clark said. "Our recruiting class is just tremendous. This freshman class is just outstanding. It will be an excellent class to build a program with."

K-State harriers to face tough test

By Chris Hays
Sports Writer

The K-State men's and women's cross country teams will face their toughest test of the young season Saturday at the Cal Poly Invitational, in San Luis Obispo, Calif.

"(The meet) is one of the best invitationals in the country and there will be a lot of good competition," Coach John Capriotti said.

Among the 28-team field in K-State's third meet of the year, Capriotti lists Nebraska, UCLA, California-Berkeley, Cal Poly, San Diego State, Cal Davis and Cal Irvine as the most competitive.

"There are going to be so many teams there that they had to split the men's competition into two separate races," Capriotti said. "There will be a lot of good running clubs there that are older and have a lot of experience."

K-State will be represented in the men's division by seniors Rob Hays and Brian Zwahlen; juniors Pat Hessini, David Keller and Roger Koester; sophomores Jan Jonsson and David Warders and freshman Ron Smith.

Hessini has been the Wildcats' top runner this season. He captured individual honors at the Emporia State Invitational. Only one runner making the trip this weekend ran at Saturday's Southwest Missouri State Distance Classic. Koester, who will run unattached Saturday, finished 14th in that meet. Capriotti held out the rest of his top runners for training purposes.

"It's going to be very interesting to see how we do," Capriotti said. "Berkeley is very good and UCLA is really good, so we're going to have our hands full. We need to be ready to go."

The K-State women's team goes into Saturday's meet unbeaten and untested so far this season. It captured the top nine spots to win the Emporia State Invitational and then took six of the top 11 places at Southwest Missouri State to help secure its second team title in as many tries.

The women harriers are led by freshman Janet Haskin and junior Angie Barry. The tandem took first and second places, respectively, at Emporia and then finished second and third at Southwest Missouri.

The rest of the women this weekend will be freshmen Janet Treiber and Jennifer Hillier and juniors Becky Ives, Marge Eddy and Jenny Faunce. K-State has three freshmen running in the top five and no seniors on the squad.

"Our freshmen have done a really good job. They have been up there with the leaders all year," Capriotti said. "We have also received some good leadership from our most experienced runner, Angie Barry.

"The whole team has been working real hard. We lost our best runner (Laura Haggerty) at the beginning of the year and you always have to wonder if you can recover, but these girls have refused to give up. I have to tip my hat to this group."

The Cal Poly meet may have an even bigger impact on the women's season than the men's.

This year, in order to advance to

■ See CROSS, Page 14

Baseball set for its war by the shore

Series fever grips California

By The Associated Press

Baseball fever gripped the Golden State Thursday after the Los Angeles Dodgers earned the right to meet the Oakland Athletics in an all-California World Series.

But some fans turned Dodger blue when it came to buying tickets: prime seats cost $800 from scalpers.

But north and south, fans were eager for the Saturday opener of the series, which has been referred to as The Golden State Series, The Interstate 5 Series and the California Series.

The match-up was set Wednesday night after the Dodgers beat the New York Mets 6-0 to win the seven-game National League playoffs. The A's had swept the Boston Red Sox in four games for the American League title.

In a wave of regional jingoism, the North-South battlelines were redefined in a flurry of ticket-buying and the wearing of colors — Dodger blue and A's green-and-gold.

Gertrude Stein's reflection on Oakland resurfaced among Southern Californians: "There is no there, there."

In Oakland, the stereotypical Los Angeles image emerged — a vacuous, laid-back, celebrity-laden populous choking in smog and giddy about convertibles, suntans and tofu.

But Oakland and Los Angeles fans alike displayed a fickle streak.

The San Francisco Giants Dugout, a boutique off that cosmopolitan city's Union Square, was doing a brisk business catering to converted A's fans.

Best sellers were A's T-shirts and caps. But fans generally overlooked a $15 man's tie that looks like an A's bat, even though "they're pretty cool," said assistant manager Jolene Means.

For its part, Los Angeles is accustomed to winners. It has the back-to-back National Basketball Association champion Los Angeles Lakers and two college football teams — UCLA and Southern California — ranked in the Top 5 in the nation. Almost unnoticed due to Dodger frenzy are the undefeated Wayne Gretzky-led Los Angeles Kings, now referred to as the Gretz-Kings.

Prognosticators are giving Oakland the Series edge. But the Mets also had the oddsmakers on their side.

The Athletics are rested and healthy. The Dodgers are tired and hurting. Pitcher Orel Hershiser made it through nine innings to shut out the Mets 6-0 Wednesday night, but it took an injection of steroids to get hamstring-lame Kirk Gibson back in Games 6 and 7. It is not illegal in baseball to use steroids.

"I predict the Dodgers in six games," said Los Angeles fan Ron Polk. "Oakland is the most powerful team in baseball, but the Dodgers have (Manager) Tommy Lasorda. He can create magic with a baseball team."

World Series fever dimmed early Thursday, however, when more than 100 fans who waited hours in line at the Dodgers' ticket office learned that tickets were available only by telephone.

"You can tell the Dodgers they lost a lot of fans," said Brooks Davis, 25, of Redlands.

"The whole season we sit there and support 'em and then they do this to us," said Joey Newton, who had been there since 2 a.m.

Newspaper ads Thursday gave baseball fans an opportunity to see the series in person.

Lasorda fields 'dream team'

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Tommy Lasorda's "dream team" has left the New York Mets with a winter of chilly nightmares.

The Mets may have had the best numbers and best players on the field for Game 7 of the National League playoffs, but the Los Angeles Dodgers had Orel Hershiser.

Hershiser pitched a five-hitter and beat the Mets 6-0 Wednesday night to put the Dodgers into the World Series against Oakland starting Saturday.

"This is a dream team," said Lasorda, who won his fourth pennant as manager of the Dodgers. "Nobody thought we would be here in spring training. They said the Dodgers were through."

But it was the mighty Mets who were through when the Dodgers scored five runs in the second inning to take a 6-0 lead. The Mets made two physical errors and one mental miscue as they self-destructed in the second.

"When you give Hershiser six runs, he gets tougher," Mets rookie third baseman Gregg Jefferies said. "He is a great pitcher, and with that many early runs he becomes that much tougher."

Hershiser, who finished the season with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings, started Games 1 and 3 without getting a decision, then got the save in Game 4.

He pitched 24 2-3 innings in the series to set a playoff record.

"I pitched in four games, but I only had a win and a save, and two other games I started we lost," Hershiser, the series' MVP, said. "There are an awful lot of other contributors on this club. And I have to recognize guys like Tim Belcher, guys like (Kirk) Gibson and (Mike) Marshall, (Steve) Sax and (Mike) Scioscia."

The Dodgers finished 73-89 in 1986 and '87, and their turnaround is one of the greatest in major league history.

"I pitched the same way in '86 and '87, but I was just a .500 pitcher,," Hershiser said. "But if you put a ballclub behind a pretty decent pitcher, you can put some numbers on the board."

The Dodgers won this series by putting the numbers on the board faster than the Mets.

During the regular season the Mets dominated the Dodgers by winning 10 of 11 games and outscoring them 49-18. In seven of the 11 games, the Mets scored first. But it was a different story in the playoffs.

"The difference in this series was that they got the lead in six of the seven games," Mets catcher Gary Carter said. "That was it. It made it tough to come back every time out."

Comebacks, however, were the Mets' trademark during the season, winning 19 games in their final at-bat. But this was a comeback the Mets could not make, not against Hershiser.

FREE CATALOG
of Government Books
Send for your copy today!
Free Catalog
Box 37000
Washington DC 20013-7000

Weekend Special
Come visit our Pet Department

White Clouds 75¢ reg. $1.00
Purple Paradise $4.00 reg. $6.00
Close Out on TFH Fish Books (complete stock) $3.50 reg. $5.95
Green Singer Finches $45 a pair reg. $60 a pair
Goffin Cockatoo $269.00 each
Lop-Ear Rabbits (standard) $9.95 reg. $19.95
Colorful fish and pets give pleasure and beauty (While Supplies Last)
Guinea Pigs (baby) $5.98 reg. $7.98

GREEN THUMB
PLANTS — PETS
Serving Manhattan Over 30 Years
1105 Waters—539-4751
ACROSS FROM ALCO
GARDEN CENTER

R•O•Y•A•L

Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Edwards– Oct. 14
Ford– Oct. 14
Goodnow– Oct. 17-19
Haymaker– Oct. 19-21

P•U•R•P•L•E

In Our Food Shop

Busch Beer, 12 pack..... $4.69
Old Milwaukee & Old Milwaukee Light, 12 pack..... $3.99
New Coke, Sprite, & Cherry Coke, 2 liter..... 79¢

Put your food items on your credit card — Amoco, Visa, or Mastercard.

AMOCO Westside Amoco 3001 Anderson 539-4331

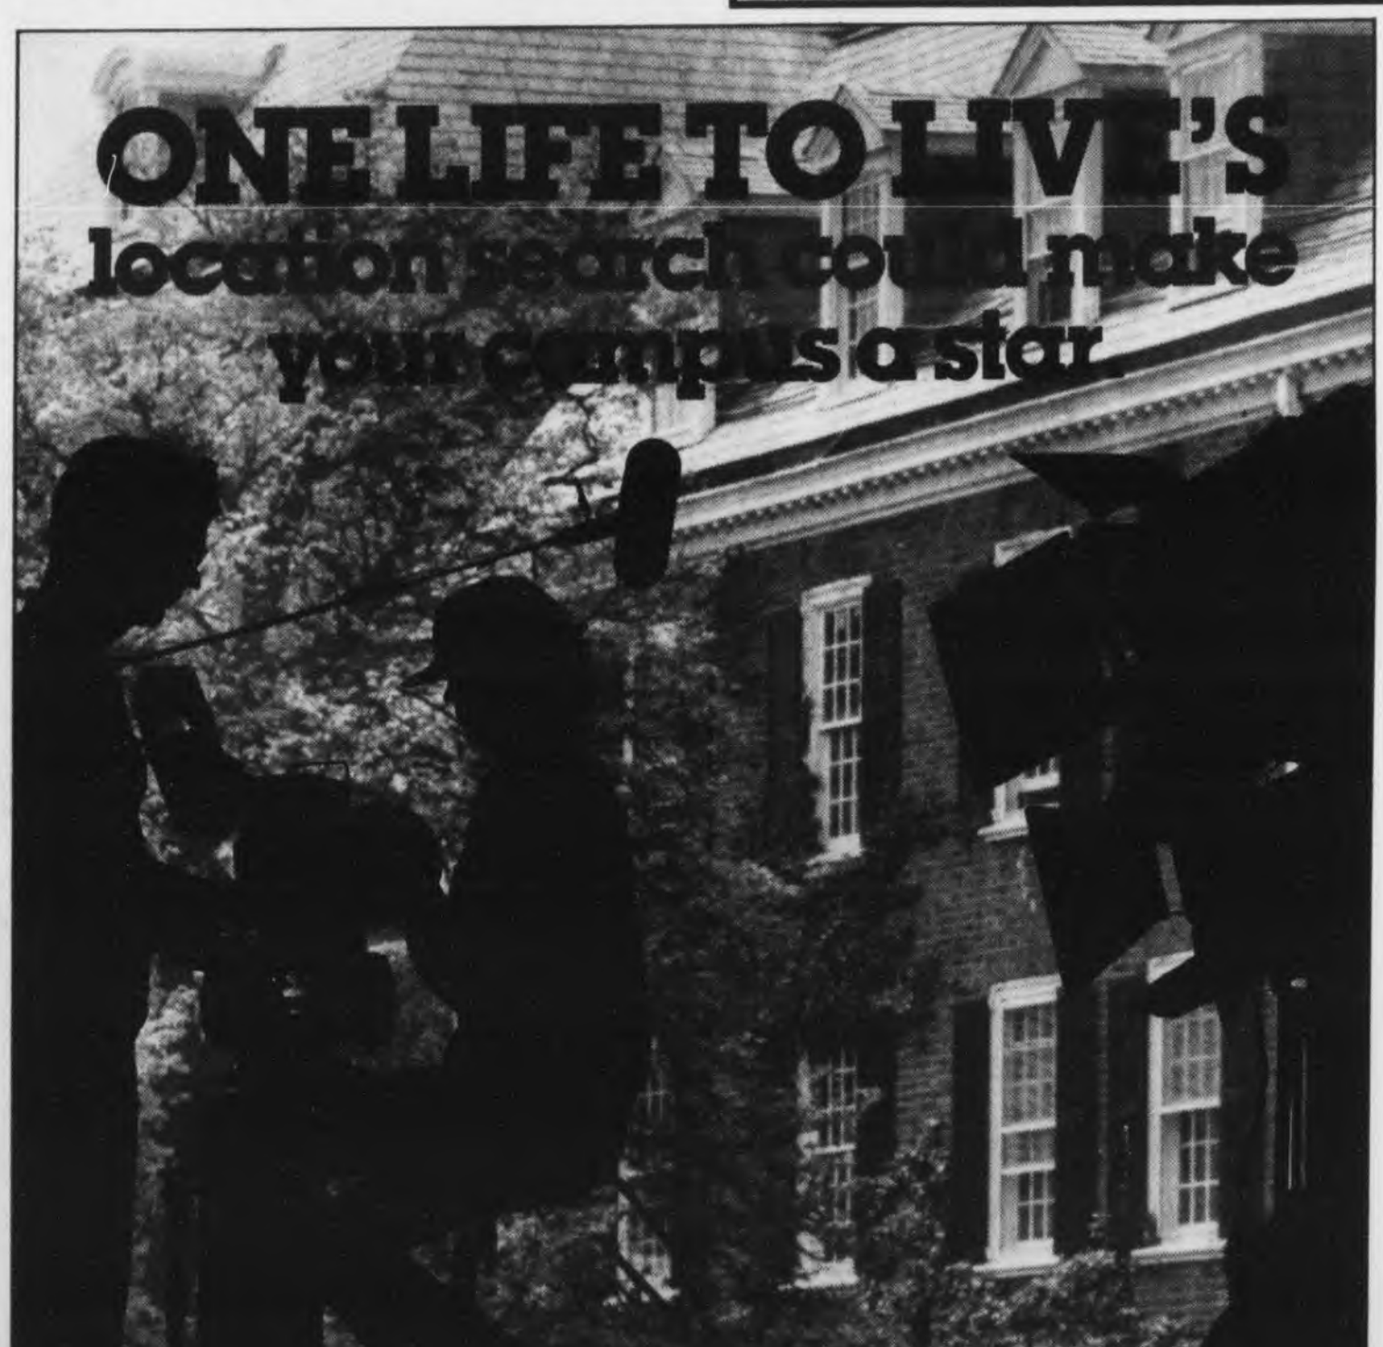
We're outstanding in our field and you're invited to join us during our final



Fall Field Day

October 15
10-6 Saturday

Fall is the ideal time to plant and our plant professionals will gladly help you choose your favorite shade and ornamental trees from our Growing Field. Bring the entire family to Fall Field Days and discover why Fall is for Planting!

Growing Field located 7 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24 then 2 mi. north on the Flush Rd.

Horticultural Services
• Garden Center •
Mon.-Sat. 8-6 Friday 8:00-7:30 Sun. 10-6
776-5764
2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

Help ONE LIFE TO LIVE find a college campus to shoot several exciting episodes of its soap-within-a-soap "Fraternity Row." If you're a college student, write and tell us why your campus would be the perfect location for "Fraternity Row."

If possible, enclose a couple of photographs of your school's exterior and mail to: Location Search, P.O. Box 795, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. (Sorry, we can't return them.) We must hear from you by November 18, 1988, so write today!

abc

SGA sponsors workshop

By Melissa Paul
Collegian Reporter

Student Governing Association sponsored a workshop Thursday for those interested in running for Student Senate.

David Ramsey, graduate assistant to the dean of Student Life, spoke about the importance of becoming involved in student government. About 35 students attended the meeting in the Union Big Eight Room.

"There's no greater honor than to be elected by your peers to represent them," Ramsey said.

With the help of the audience, Ramsey outlined the benefits of student government for the individuals involved, other students and the University.

"Some people believe leaders are born; others believe leaders are made," Ramsey said. "I believe it's a combination of the two."

He said a person has to take what they learn and do something innovative with it — be a leader, not a manager.

Sam Ory, sophomore in political science, said students involved will benefit from the communication skills acquired.

"If you're going to get anything done, you're going to have to know how to communicate," he said.

Ramsey said, "The greatest determinator of your success after college is the activities you're involved in during college."

Someone involved in student government will benefit in personal as well as professional ways. Self-esteem and friends are two attributes gained by the active student, he said.

Student activities also aid other students and the University by creating positive changes; improving student, faculty and administration relationships; representing the students' concerns, and creating a more productive and enthusiastic atmosphere, Ramsey said.

He summed up the administration's and faculty's view of the student as the most important thing on campus and the purpose of their work.

Doug Folk, Student Senate chairman, spoke of the many different opportunities there are for the student to get involved other than being a senator.

"You've got a lot of different options within these (three) branches (of government) to get involved," he said. "If you don't get what you want the first time, I guarantee there's a place for you in student government."

Ten area bands to play at halftime Saturday

By The Collegian Staff

Ten area high school bands will perform their halftime routines at the Central States Marching Band Festival Saturday in KSU Stadium.

The festival will begin at 1:30 p.m. and will conclude after the presentation of plaques at 4 p.m.

"Fliers were sent out to Kansas school bands, announcing the festival," said Stanley Finck, assistant professor of music and director of bands. "The groups who were interested applied and were later chosen to participate."

Each band will be evaluated by five judges — three who will rate the overall performance, one who will rate each color guard and one who will judge each percussion section.

Each band will be scored on a scale of one to five, with five being the lowest.

The three bands receiving the highest scores will be awarded plaques.

"The bands that participate in the festival will gain an exceptional educational experience. Each group will be given an evaluation by each of the judges and a video of its performance with comments," Finck said.

Later the bands can use these evaluations to improve their performances.

Midwest teams to attend school, receive livestock judging training

By Guy Peverley
Collegian Reporter

Junior college and university livestock teams from throughout the Midwest will be on campus Saturday for the 30th Annual Midwest Livestock Training School at Weber Arena.

One hundred twenty-five individuals will participate, representing nine jucos and three universities. The jucos are in Kansas, and the universities will represent Kansas and Oklahoma, said Dave Nichols, K-State livestock judging team coach and associate professor of animal sciences and industry.

The teams judge four classes of beef cattle, sheep and swine, Nichols said. The team members rank the four animals in each class from best to worst.

Each team member will also give eight sets of oral reason, which means oral justification for the rank given to each class, Nichols said.

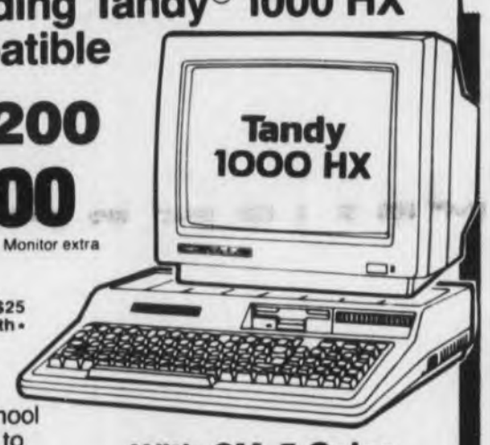
The purpose of the training school is to "present a contest-like atmosphere," Nichols said. Students have the chance to brush up on their judging skills, without having the pressure of a national contest.

"(The school) gives the students an opportunity to go through the format of a contest," said Miles McKee, professor of animal sciences and industry. "The more judging experience a student has, the more confidence a student will establish."

K-State's judging team will compete in the training school, Nichols said, adding that it will mainly help the team with its oral reasons. It allows team members to give reasons to different people, other than coaches.

Nichols and McKee said the training school is a good recruiting tool for K-State. Juco team members can see what K-State has to offer while also meeting faculty.

Get involved in
Student Government
Student Body President
Student Senate
Board of Student Publications
Filing forms available in SGA office
Due Oct. 18, 1988 5 p.m.
☑Vote on Nov. 1 or 2 Bring Fee Card
SGA Office—
Union Ground Floor 532-6541
SGA



Crum's beauty college
512 Poyntz Ave.
Manhattan, Kansas
66502
⅓ off Perm &
Haircoloring or highlighting
—all services performed by supervised cosmetology students—
Expires 11/11/88

MAYER
RETAIL LIQUOR

"Home of Maddie and Dillon"
SEE US TONIGHT
before or after
MIDNIGHT MADNESS
Plenty of Cold Kegs in Stock
521 N. 12th 539-5269
1 Block South of Kite's—Next to Southern Sun

Budweiser®
LONG NECK 12-PACKS TO GO
ON SALE NOW!

Radio Shack ASSOCIATE STORE
Apply for Your Own Radio Shack ValuePlus® Credit Card!
SUPER SALE

Fast-Loading Tandy® 1000 HX PC Compatible
Save $200
499.00 Monitor extra
Reg. 699.00 Low As $25 Per Month•
Sale ends 12/31/88

Ideal for home or school because it's so easy to use! Built-in MS-DOS® loads automatically without diskettes. Has 3½", 720K disk drive and 256K RAM. Includes Personal DeskMate™ 2. #25-1053
With CM-5 Color Monitor, Only $798.95
Reg. Separate Items 998.95 #25-1053/1043
MS-DOS/Reg. TM Microsoft Corp.

Sale! Color Computer 3™
Save $70 129.95 TV extra
By Tandy
Reg. 199.95

Easily attaches to your TV! 128K RAM and Extended BASIC. #26-3334 Low As $15 Per Month•
Sale Ends 12/31/88

Triple-Mode Dot-Matrix Printer
DMP 132 By Tandy
Save $110 269.95
Reg. 379.95
Low As $15 Per Month•

Graphics, word and data-processing modes. 120 cps. #26-2814
PC Compatible

Full-Featured HQ VHS Camcorder
Model 100 MovieCorder™ By Realistic
Save $200
1099.00
Reg. 1299.00
Low As $55 Per Month•

- Infrared Auto-Focusing
- Variable-Speed Shutter
- 6-1 Power Zoom Lens With Macro Focusing

Low-Light (7 Lux) Recording
Capture those special memories—just point and shoot—the camera does the rest. With hardcase, shoulder strap, A/V cable, rechargeable battery and AC adapter/charger. #16-801

LCD Color TV
PocketVision™-22 By Realistic

Save $40
159.95 Reg. 199.95
Low As $15 Per Month•
Direct-view screen, up/down auto-search tuning. #16-159 Batteries extra 20-Ch. Scanner

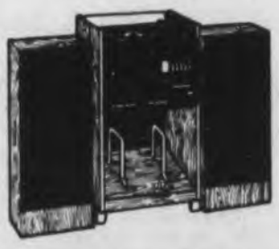
PRO-2011 By Realistic

Save $80 99.95
Reg. 179.95
Low As $15 Per Month•
No crystals to buy! Hear police, fire, more. #20-118



Walkie-Talkie
TRC-218 By Realistic

40% Off
29.95
Reg. 49.95
3 channels, 2 watts. #21-1638
Batteries, crystals extra

Mobile CB Radio
TRC-474 By Realistic

Save $60 79.95
Reg. 139.95
Never drive alone again! Emergency Channel 9 priority switch. #21-1539

Dual-Cassette Stereo Rack Systems

Amazing Low Price!
System 100 By Realistic

Save $60
159.95 Reg. 219.95
Low As $15 Per Month•
AM/FM stereo, 2-speed turntable. Matching 27⅛"-high speakers. Audio rack. #13-1228

100-Watt Power!
System 1000 By Realistic

Save $150
499.95 Reg. 649.95
Low As $25 Per Month•
100 watts per channel, minimum rms into 8 ohms from 40-20,000 Hz, with no more than 0.9% THD
Digital AM/FM tuner, phono, EQ, 3-way 36½"-high speakers. #13-1232
Shown with optional CD.

100-Note-Memory Electronic Keyboard
Concertmate®-350 By Realistic
25% Off
29.95 Reg. 39.95

- Four Preset Tones
- Ten Built-In Rhythms

Super starter for young musicians! 29 keys. Built-in speaker. #42-4008 Batteries extra

Radio Shack Associate Store
2609 Anderson in Anderson Square 539-6151
Weekdays 9-6 Saturday 9-5 Closed Sunday

Landon set term's tone by handling scandal

By Kelly Campbell
Collegian Reporter

Editor's note: One year ago, Alf Landon died at the age 100. This article chronicles the Kansas bond scandal, which Landon had to deal with as the governor of Kansas. Robert Smith Radar's book, "The Great Kansas Bond Scandal," supplied much of the information.

Gov. Alf Landon was in office little more than six months when the Kansas bond scandal shook Kansans out of the summer doldrums in 1933.

While Landon was touring the state in July, he stopped in Emporia to visit Warren and Mabel Finney, close friends of his. The Finney family was one of the most influential families in Kansas.

The Finney family owned banks in Neosho Falls and Emporia, as well as some small telephone companies. It was also involved in community civic, social and religious activities.

Ronald Finney, Warren's son, was one of the state's most powerful bond and securities brokers.

As Landon made his way back to Topeka, the United States district attorney was substantiating some distressing discoveries. He was to inform the governor on Monday that Kansas had some bogus bonds on its hands.

Landon did not know that the district attorney was going to implicate his friend's family in a scandal that would cost the state thousands of dollars.

The attorney told Landon that he had found about $150,000 of worthless municipal bonds in the National Bank of Topeka. The bonds were loaned to Ronald Finney as collateral.

The federal examiners found identical bonds in the state treasury for the state's School Fund Commission. Close inspection revealed that Finney's bonds in the Topeka Bank were forgeries.

Landon was shocked at the news. He had worked hard putting Kansas on a sound financial basis during the Depression, and now the state's attorney alleged the governor's work was being threatened by his close friend's son.

Landon directed the Shawnee County attorney to arrest and start prosecution of young Finney. He then ordered Tom Boyd, state treasurer, to permit federal investigators to enter the treasury vault to check other bonds held by the School Fund Commission.

Boyd said the request would have to be presented to the School Board commissioners for their approval since the board's bonds were in question.

In his book, "The Great Kansas Bond Scandal," Robert Smith Rader said Landon told Boyd, "That won't be necessary. I am issuing the order now, and if you cannot see your way clear to grant it, I shall put the school fund under martial law."

Boyd then allowed the officials to enter the vault.

Finney, accompanied by his father, turned himself in to the county attorney's office in Topeka the following day. He had no comment to make about the charges.

In the meantime, federal investigators continued to uncover forged municipal bonds. The total of the forgeries was more than $658,000. Some were in a Chicago brokerage firm, and others were put up as security for public funds in three banks owned by Warren Finney around Emporia.

The duplicate bonds were so like the originals that several state officials were immediately implicated in the scandal: Tom Boyd, state treasurer; Will J. French, state auditor; and Roland Boynton, attorney general.

Investigators found that Finney cultivated a close friendship with Treasurer Boyd and was permitted complete freedom in the state treasury. Boyd instructed employees to give Finney access to the state's vault when he wanted. Clerks would also cash checks for large sums of money and hold them for long periods of time for Finney, which amounted to a loan from the state to a private individual.

When the federal inspectors discovered the first bogus bonds, the Topeka bank told Finney to remove them. He did so with the help of Boyd, who allowed Finney to make a substantial, unauthorized withdrawal from the treasury vault.

As a result, Boyd was charged with two counts of illegal removal of $260,000 in bonds.

Charges considered against French included use of the auditor's seal on the forged bonds, but he pleaded innocent of any wrongdoing. He said any assistance Finney received from his office had been given without his knowledge.

Boynton said he knew nothing of the forged bonds, and he did not assist Finney.

Impeachment charges were introduced in the House on Nov. 2. After lengthy debate, the House voted to impeach both Boynton and French.

Just as Kansans thought things might settle down, Warren Finney, Ronald's father, was arrested for embezzlement of $75,474 from his Fidelity State and Savings Bank in Emporia. The elder Finney had manipulated bank funds for his own profit.

Ronald Finney was able to succeed in his criminal activity for almost three years because of his knowledge of the bond-issuance procedures and his ability to cultivate relationships with people who were in prominent positions.

Finney was generous with campaign contributions for aspiring politicians. He made it a habit to leave candy and flowers for the secretaries of those officials in positions of power. He worked with a great sense of urgency, preventing those suspicious of him from looking too closely at what he did. He also provided housing for people who were able to pay back the favor.

Because of his access to the state's treasury vault, he was able to study bond transcripts. He found he could get duplicates printed by claiming the bonds were to be exchanged for a higher or lower interest rate, or that the mayor had inadvertently signed them on the wrong line.

Both the Great Seal of the State of Kansas and a local district or county seal were on municipal bonds. Finney had fake local and county seals produced, but, for the Great Seal of the State of Kansas, he used the genuine seal from the auditor's office.

Leland Caldwell, Finney's secretary, was able to forge signatures well enough to fool state officials. Once Finney had the newly printed bonds, Caldwell would sign for the officials, including the names of the attorney general and the state auditor.

The bonds Finney and his cohorts produced appeared to be the real thing. Finney figured the signatures and seals would not be examined carefully. Even when investigators carefully examined the bonds, they had a difficult time telling the real bonds from the bogus ones.

The investigators found that $1.35 million in bogus municipal bonds had been generated by Finney. Kansans were concerned that the influential Finney would escape punishment because of his family's friendship with the governor. But Landon assured citizens that the guilty would be punished.

Ronald Finney pleaded guilty, with the agreement that he would receive a sentence of no more than 15 years, but the deal fell through, and he was sentenced to 31 to 635 years at the State Penitentiary at Lansing.

Caldwell, the signature expert, was sentenced to 40 to 840 years at the penitentiary. Treasurer Boyd was sentenced to four to 10 years.

French and Boynton were impeached, but were acquitted. Boynton never again ran for public office. French ran in 1934, but was defeated.

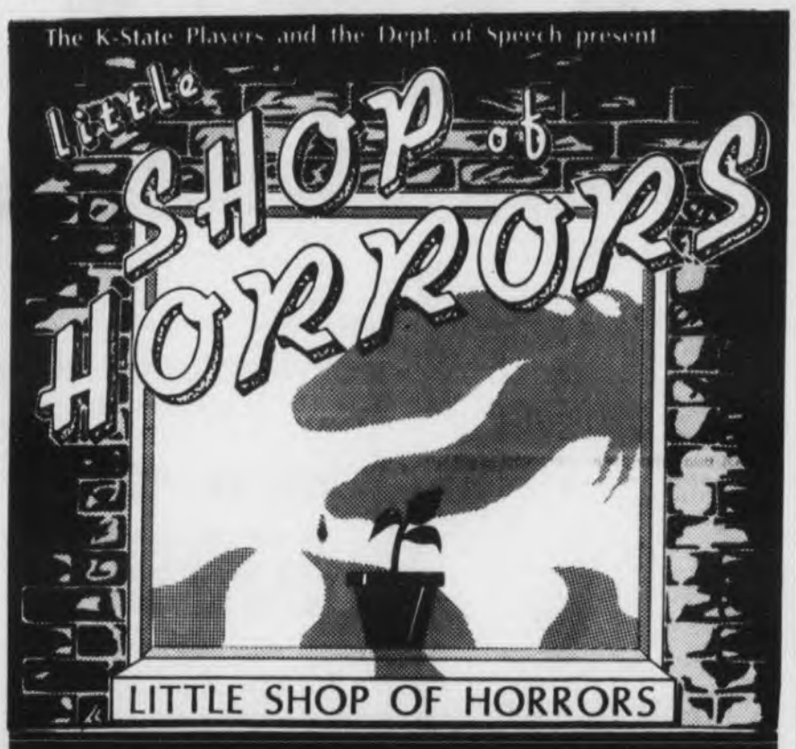
Warren Finney was found guilty of embezzlement and fought unsuccessfully to overturn the conviction. Rather than live his life in jail, the elder Finney committed suicide.

Homer Socolofsky, K-State professor of history and contributor to Rader's book, said luck was on Landon's side. Landon had been in office for a short time when the bond scandal broke.

"He did the proper thing, and set the tone of his administration," he said.

Boyd would live the rest of his life trying to rationalize the scandal, Socolofsky said.

"Tom Boyd was very bitter to the end of his days. He never did accept responsibility," he said.



Ronald Finney spent 12 years in jail before being pardoned. He was forbidden to participate in securities, he said.

UNITED ARTISTS
$2.50 PER PERSON
SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 p.m.
UA SETH CHILDS 6
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD. 776-9836
MESSENGER OF DEATH R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
COMING TO AMERICA R
Daily 7:15, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:15, 4:35
YOUNG GUNS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:45
DEAD RINGERS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:05, 4:30
COCKTAIL R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:35
BIG PG
Daily 7:25, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:30

Putt-Putt Golf
Open Fri., Sat. & Sun.
Afternoons & Evenings
Through October

D & S Resume and Typing Service
•Reasonable Rates
•Speedy Service
539-5074

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present

Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

Religious Directory

GRACE BAPTIST CHURCH
Worship 10:30 a.m.
Collegian class
Sunday School 9:15 a.m.
Dr. Judd Swihart
& Gordon Hibbard, teachers
Students Welcome
776-0424 2901 Dickens Ave.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
801 Leavenworth 537-0518
Worship 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Church School 9:30 a.m.
•College Outreach
(Tuesday, K-State Union)
•Weekday Programs for Youth
•Nursery available
Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Phillip S. Gittings III

UNITED PENTECOSTAL CHURCH
Sunday School 10:00 a.m.
Worship Service 11:00 a.m.
Evangelical Service Sun. 7:00 p.m.
Youth Service Tues. 7:30 p.m.
700 Vattier, 776-8717 or 537-0384

The Assembly
Manhattan's Best Assembly of God
Sunday Praise Hours
10:15 a.m. and 6 p.m.
•Sunday School—9 a.m.
•Collegiate Bible Class
•Transportation available
Office 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.
Mike Wall, Pastor 537-7967
MINISTRY FOR THE DEAF

STUDENTS WELCOME!
COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Worship Service
2221 College Heights Rd.
537-7744

Trinity Presbyterian Church
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
•Nursery Provided
•Handicap Accessible
•Rides Available
Pastor James Cramer
1110 College Ave. 539-3921

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 a.m. Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services
John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
Invites you ...
WORSHIP, SUNDAY 11 a.m.
Danforth Chapel (campus)
Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m.
Sunday - Lutheran Student Center
Don Fallon, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4451
Come share the Spirit!

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1509 Wreath Ave. 539-8462
Shabbat Services 8 p.m. Fri.
Religious School 9:30 Sun.
Rides available
sponsor B'nai B'rith Hillel at K-State
Campus Adviser,
David Margolies, 532-6154

First Church of the Nazarene
"Stepping out in faith ... Reaching out in love."
Morning Worship—10:50
Evening Praise—6:00
Sunday School—9:45
College Class—9:30
Pastor K. Ray McDowell 539-6376 (home)
1000 Fremont 539-2851 (church)
•Nursery Available

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
Worship Saturday 6 p.m.
Sunday 8 and 10:45 a.m.
—Bible Class—
Sunday 9:30 a.m.
Student fellowship 5 p.m.
in the K-State Union
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

First Baptist Church
Sunday Worship 11 a.m.
Church School 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd. 539-8691

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH
WORSHIP 8 & 10:30 a.m.
Randy Sly, Pastor
For information on College Class
call church office
SUN. EVE. WORSHIP 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd and 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups) 6 p.m.
2nd and 4th Sundays
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ
115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan
S.W. corner 14th & Anderson
Steve Ratliff, Pastor
Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
776-2086 Nursery Provided 776-0259

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079

Christian Campus Ministry
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Classes 9:30 a.m.
& Wed. 7:30 p.m.
Andy Miller—Campus Minister
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

St. Isidore's
Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday - 5 p.m.
Daily Mass 10 p.m.
(except Fridays)
711 Denison 539-7496

UNITARIAN-UNIVERSALIST FELLOWSHIP of MANHATTAN
10:45 a.m. Service & Sunday School
Nursery provided, everyone welcome
On K-18, ½ mile east of K-177
For info: call 537-2349

University Christian
2800 Claflin 776-5440
8:30-11 a.m. Worship
9:45 a.m. Sunday School
6:30 p.m. Eve. Service
Accessible To Handicapped Students Welcome

DIAL-A-PRAYER
(913) 762-4837
762-2287
Someone there to pray with you.
24 hours

Unity Church of Manhattan
Sunday Service 11 a.m.
Study group 6:30 p.m. Sun.
1221 Thurston, UFM House
539-8416

Crestview Christian Church
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Collegiate Sunday School 9:30
776-3798
4761 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

First Congregational Church
United Church of Christ
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
700 Poyntz 537-7006
Dr. Robert L. Carlson, Pastor

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Sunday School—9:40 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

Collegian Classified Advertising

CLASSIFIED AD FORMS

Write your ad in the form provided below, and mail it in, along with the correct payment, to STUDENT PUBLICATIONS, INC., KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 103, KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY, MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66506. You can also stop by Kedzie 103 to place your ad or call 532-6555. Student Publications now accepts MasterCard and Visa. (Minimum charge of $5.)

The DEADLINE for Classified Ads is NOON the day before publication; NOON Friday for Monday's publication. Deadline for cancellation is NOON the day before publication.

CLASSIFIED AD POLICY

* Only the FIRST TWO words of each ad will be in all caps; all other words will be in caps/lower, except initials.
* No abbreviations, please.
* No last names or phone numbers will be printed in the Personals section.
* Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.
* Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.
* If mailed ads do not arrive by the Noon deadline, they will be placed in the next day's paper.
* Ads which are incorrectly calculated will be run only for amount paid.
* The Collegian reserves the right to edit or reject any advertisement at any time.

Classified Ad Rates

Words/Day	1	2	3	4	5	Extra Days
1-15	2.50	3.50	4.25	4.75	5.00	1.00
16	2.70	3.75	4.55	5.10	5.40	1.05
17	2.90	4.00	4.85	5.45	5.80	1.10
18	3.10	4.25	5.15	5.80	6.20	1.15
19	3.30	4.50	5.45	6.15	6.60	1.20
20	3.50	4.75	5.75	6.50	7.00	1.25
21	3.70	5.00	6.05	6.85	7.40	1.30
22	3.90	5.25	6.35	7.20	7.80	1.35
23	4.10	5.50	6.65	7.55	8.20	1.40
24	4.30	5.75	6.95	7.90	8.60	1.45
25	4.50	6.00	7.25	8.25	9.00	1.50
26	4.70	6.25	7.55	8.60	9.40	1.55
27	4.90	6.50	7.85	8.95	9.80	1.60
28	5.10	6.75	8.15	9.30	10.20	1.65
29	5.30	7.00	8.45	9.65	10.60	1.70
30	5.50	7.25	8.75	10.00	11.00	1.75
Over 30 words (per word)	20¢	25¢	30¢	35¢	40¢

Classified Categories

01 Announcements
02 Apartments for Rent—Furnished
03 Apartments for Rent—Unfurnished
04 Automobiles for Sale
05 Automobile Rentals
06 Card of Thanks
07 Child Care
08 Computers
09 Employment
10 Financial Services
11 Garage and Yard Sales
12 Houses and Mobile Homes for Rent
13 Houses and Mobile Homes for Sale
14 Lost and Found
15 Miscellaneous Merchandise
16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale
17 Musical Instruments
18 Personals
19 Pets and Pet Supplies
20 Professional Services
21 Rentals
22 Resume/Typing Services
23 Roommate Wanted
24 Situation Wanted
25 Sporting/Recreational Equipment
26 Sublease
27 Welcome
28 Other _____

Classified Mail Order Form

Name _____ Phone no. _____

Address _____ Student ID # _____

1 _____	2 _____	3 _____	4 _____	5 _____
6 _____	7 _____	8 _____	9 _____	10 _____
11 _____	12 _____	13 _____	14 _____	15 _____
16 _____	17 _____	18 _____	19 _____	20 _____
21 _____	22 _____	23 _____	24 _____	25 _____
26 _____	27 _____	28 _____	29 _____	30 _____

Date ad begins _____ Amount paid _____

Total days in paper _____ Category _____

Toddler doing great

By The Associated Press

MIDLAND, Texas — Jessica McClure, the toddler who cried and softly sang a nursery rhyme while trapped 58 hours in an abandoned well, shows little sign of her ordeal one year after her daring rescue, her doctor says.

And Midlanders are still proud of how their community responded to the little girl's plight while the nation watched and waited.

Jessica, now 2½, lost her right little toe and the tip of her big toe because of her ordeal. She walks normally and doesn't seem to suffer from emotional problems such as nightmares or phobias, said orthopedic surgeon Charles Younger.

"She's a pretty extroverted, personable child," Younger said. "I think she's an intelligent child. Obviously, when she was 1½ and she was singing 'Winnie-the-Pooh' in the well, I think a lot of people thought she wouldn't be able to do that."

Two groups of volunteers have negotiated movie rights to the story of Jessica's rescue.

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE
American Heart Association

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs -skincare -glamor -nails -gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

BLUEMONT BICYCLE Club Meeting and Picnic Ride. Sunday, Oct. 16th, 3p.m. at UFM House, 1221 Thurston. We will ride to Long's Park, 17th and Yuma and eat at 5p.m. Please bring $2 for food. In case of rain meet at 5p.m. in the conference room at UFM House.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

SPRING BREAK/ Party at Padre. For the Best Party Locations and Properties, call Now! $25 deposit per person before Oct. 28 reserves your condominium. 1-800-258-9191.

TONIGHT'S THE night, the party to end all parties. Come party till you're Def at the Party Dome above Brother's.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

WHAT OCCUPATION does Eddie Haskell have today? If you know the answer to this question, call Dominoe's and you'll receive a free topping on your pizza order. 539-0561.

EeGee's Restaurant & Ice Creamery
FRIDAY
Pounder Night
1 Pound Burger, 1 Pound of Fries, 1 Pitcher of Coke
Split any way you like.
$9.99
12th & Laramie•Aggieville

Bobby T's
Don't Forget Bobby T's Late Night Breakfast
Friday & Saturday
Candlewood 539-1571

Chicken & Spaghetti
The Chef 114 S. 4th
all you can eat $3.95

99¢
Cotton Club
hors d'oeuvre buffet
417 Poyntz 4-7 p.m.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE ONE-BEDROOM. Nicely decorated. Campus location. Washer and dryer. No pets. $265 plus deposit. 539-1465.

LARGE TWO-BEDROOM available in Westloop area. $315 unfurnished, $355 furnished. Balcony, beige carpet throughout. 776-9124.

NICE ONE-BEDROOM in Lee/ Hunting area. Available now. $340. 776-3804.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1973 DODGE cornet, 78,000 miles, have to see to appreciate, $700. 537-8950 after 5p.m.

1978 CHEVY Malibu. Very good condition. Dependable, $1,500 or best offer. 1-494-2831 after 6p.m.

1979 Z28, excellent condition, new performance engine. $2,800. 537-3818.

1981 FORD Fairmont Futura, two-door, sunroof, air conditioning, AM/FM cassette, $1,500 or best offer, must sell. 539-0397.

1981 PORSCHE 924, excellent condition, $5,800. 537-3818.

1982 CAMARO, power steering, power brakes, four-speed transmission, stereo, 50,000, $5,800. 776-0382.

1983 CHEVY Slv. Silverado, dually 6.2 liter diesel, great shape. Priced to sell, 1-594-2332 or 537-0845.

1978 PLYMOUTH Horizon four-door, four-speed, air conditioning, 539-7439. Ask for Troy.

8 Computers

COMMODORE 64 disk drive, $200 worth of software, $200. Call Dave after 4p.m. 537-4136.

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

CASHIER POSITION available. Lunch or dinner shifts. Apply in person, 606 N. 12th, the Lone Star Cafe. Ask for Michael.

EXPERIENCED AEROBIC instructor. Call 776-6469 for appointment.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, Juniors: Train in the summer to become a Marine Corps Officer after graduation. Aviation available. Call collect (913)841-1821.

HEADSTART TEACHER, immediate opening for the 1988- 1989 school year. Degree in early childhood education or CDA (Child Development Associate) required. Nine month position, six hours per day. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, Kansas 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

MCDONALD'S IS now hiring for all day shifts between the hours of 5a.m. to 4p.m. We offer a starting wage of $3.50 per hour with frequent raises. We also offer meal benefits, uniforms and flexible hours. Please apply in person at 815 N. Third Street.

NEED CASH? Earn $250- $350 dollars each semester, by working two- four hours each week, posting and maintaining take-one posters. We give recommendations. Great for the marketing fields also. Call 1-800-821-1543.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART-TIME AGRICULTURAL laborers. Apply in person, Nelson Poultry Farms, 2¼ miles east, Highway 24. 776-9401.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

SCHOOL BUS drivers 1988- 1989 school year. $4.75/ hour, must be 21 years of age, have a good driving record and complete a training program. Bus driving experience not required. Part-time: 6:30-8:30a.m. and 2:40- 4:30p.m. Job description available and apply to: USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED for musical homeless project, all fields of study, even your personal contacts can make a difference. Contact Odeis Taylor, 776-4036.

NAVY MANAGEMENT
Math, Engineering and Physical Science Majors with 3.3 GPA, earn $1,000 per month during junior and senior years plus $4,000 upon entry. Find out more about the Navy's Engineer Officer Candidate Program, call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

11 Garage and Yard Sales

CHEAP! 327 Moro, Saturday, Oct. 15, 7:30a.m.-12:30p.m. Lamp/table, bookshelf, two chairs, truck fenders, weight bench, motorcycle cover, records, sprinkler hose. Dozens of books- bestseller to how-to. Lots of household miscellaneous. Miss' clothing.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

THREE-BEDROOM PHELPS house, three blocks west of campus, available November. $450/ month. 539-3672.

Have story or photo ideas? CALL 532-6556

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: ONE wedding band in Throckmorton Hall 132 at 11:30a.m. Monday. Claim at Waters 311 with description.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

FOR SALE: Apartment washer/ dryer. Best offer by Oct. 15. Call 537-8238 after 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

PEAVEY GUITAR amp. 150 watts. Good condition, $180. 539-6562.

STEREO COMPONENTS for sale. Yamaha R-3 receiver, $125. Boston Acoustics A60 speakers, $100 for pair. Call Kelley at 776-9576.

TECHNICS TURNTABLE. Best offer over $35. No cover. Works great. 537-9218.

Hayes House of Music
Guitar Strings & Drumsticks
Buy 1 Set, Get a 2nd Set ½ Price
327 Poyntz 776-7983

HOUSTON STREET BALLROOM
Wedding Receptions
Dances, Parties
539-1234

Buck A Bag!
Dollar a bag outside sale Inside 50% off all clothes (including coats & sweaters) 15% off all jewelry, shoes, hats & furniture; Albums 3 for a Dollar; 45's 5 for a Dollar
Friday & Sat. 10-5
431 South 5th
Grandma's Trunk Thrift Shop

SOUTHERN SUN
THE TANNING SALON
Keep your tan glowing with us
776-8060
519 N. 12th

18 Personals

AGR DATES: Greg, Steve, Doug, Pat and Neil, Curtis, Tim and Jon, Bill, Ron, Eric, Tim, Ron, Robbie, Brian, Matt- Our entire weekend is booked; Because of the AGR's we've hooked. As cowboys and Indians we will be wild; And at the yard party we'll get real riled. Tonight the pig roast will fill our tummys; then tomorrow by the bon fire we'll snuggle like bunnys. The yard party will be a time we'll never forget; But Rouletter will be the best party yet. Love, your KD dates: Darilyn, Gayla, Mindy, Brenda, Lora, Shawnie, Cindy, Danny, Julie, Paulette, Cami, Anne, Diane, Suzanne.

AZD ANGELA, Happy 20th. Don't have too much fun. Love, G.D.

CHI-O REP Kay, Welcome back! This weekend will be action packed. This time it's trip number two. Kappa Alpha is ready for you. We're all psyched to have you here. Maybe Jen Bon Jovi will reappear. Have a good weekend! Love, Chi-O's.

CHRISTI AND Susan. An evening filled with food, dancing and B-ball: who could ask for more? We'll have a blast at the DSP Fall Formal. Dan and Cliff. P.S. No ghost stories.

CLOVER SIS Trisha, I'm glad that you're now a part of the crazy Squirrel family. Remember though, that you get in trouble if you think. Love ya, TaLana.

ERIN- IF I had a spine, I would ask you out. Since I don't, could you please ask me out? Ack!- Spineless.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

HEY, BOB, Our pledge may have "sloppy seconds," but it beats dating Rosy Palm like you. Cody and Pepper.

JENNY, IS there a Scotti in your life now (or just in your diary?) An Interested Idiot.

KKG LORA- This summer was great. Let's do it again sometime. I hope you have an awesome 21 birthday. L&L Niki.

(RING BEARER) L.P.- Thank you so much for Saturday night. It was very special to me, And so are you! Luv, Always, P.C.

SCOOTER, GUESSING colors, streaking, staying over, it's all been fun. We've been together for years more than one. It's the big three and you've been great to me. I've come to know you, like you and love you.... always, SFT.

SIGMA NU Pledge Todd: To be 19 is great; for 21, you gotta wait! Happy Birthday. We love you! Mom, Dad and Seth.

SMURTHIES- TIME for Barn Party, c'mon y'all, grab a partner- Let's have a ball!

SUZY HOMEMAKER- Twas the night before your 20th, and cometh to the dwelling a wild and wooly crew, where the beer done flowed and the stomachs done blew. We know how drunk and obnoxious you got last night, but the question is, do you? Buck A. Rew, T "Punchy" Cow, Miss Rodeo and Eastern Slope'r.

TIDBITS (AKA Todd)- Happy 22nd, old man! Hope my hands are always busy! XOXO, Michelle. P.S. Life needs to be complicated now and then, don't you think?

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

COMPLETE TYPING/ Data Processing: papers, theses, dissertations, etc. 75¢/ page, 5¢/ copy. Call 537-8701.

FAST TURNAROUND for all your word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

LASERPRINTED AND Typeset resumes are 10% off with coupon from KAT magazine. Graphics Plus, 607 N. 11th, Aggieville. 539-6027.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

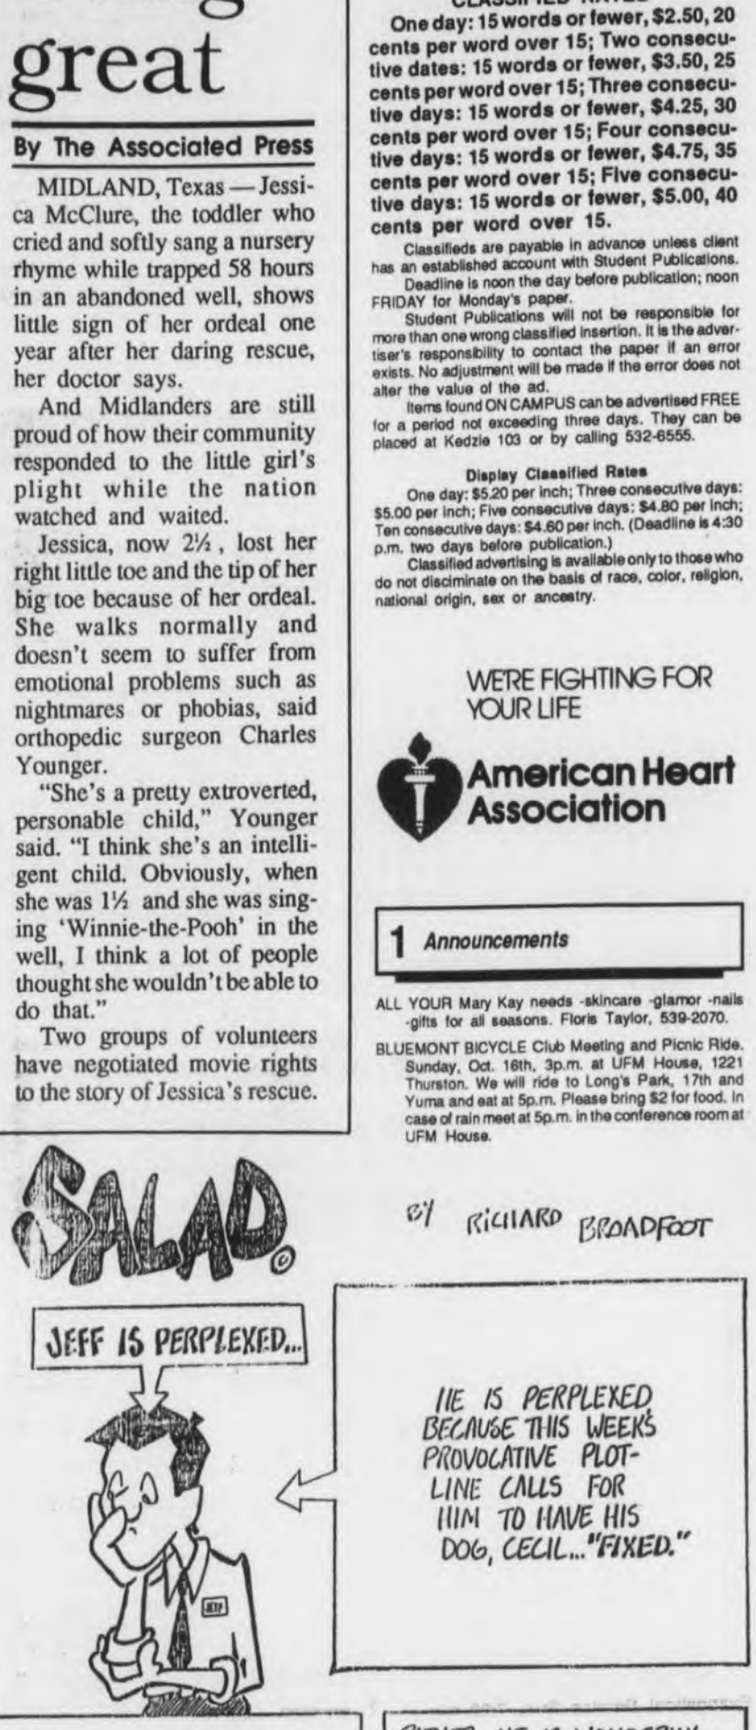
23 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE, NON-SMOKER wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Reasonable price. Call 537-2973, 1002 Gardenway.

NEEDED: FEMALE to take my place at an apartment. Own bedroom, $160/ month, one block from Justin Hall. Call Karen at 539-2733. If I'm not home, please leave message on machine and I'll call back.

ROOMMATE WANTED to share two-bedroom apartment with two other people. $116 month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments, 1005 Bluemont. 537-1878.

24 Situation Wanted



WANT TO trade Def Leppard ticket near stage for ticket on aisle between sections 17 and 18 near row 25. 537-8883.

28 Adoption

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)421-9714.

29 Basketball Tickets

CAMPERS: I will buy two b-ball tickets. Call 532-5426.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Backtalk: slang
4 Vipers
8 Acting group
12 Eggs, to Caesar
13 Ayatollah's predecessor
14 Bard's river
15 Hacienda head
17 Take it easy
18 Shoe part
19 Owl's question
21 Jet follower
22 Ravel work
26 Gray, in a way
29 Tom Hanks movie
30 Moving day sight
31 Cuts off
32 Dickensian nickname
33 Compassion
34 Survey question
35 NFL player
36 Wire's kin
37 Bullfighter
39 Dull routine
40 Obi-Wan, familiarly
41 Breakfast dish
45 Rara —
48 Tijuana topper
50 Astronaut Slayton
51 Spoken
52 Evergreen
53 Yoked beasts
54 Hawaiian geese
55 Film that featured 22 Across

DOWN
1 Actress Singer
2 "The Terrible"
3 Bad reviews
4 Scarlett's love
5 Paper unit
6 Golfing goal
7 Tinseltown's industry
8 Seasonal song
9 Blvd.'s kin
10 Distress call
11 Explosive stuff
16 Expenses
20 Greedy one
23 Good's opposer
24 Velocity, for one
25 Chalcedony variety
26 Chair board
27 Company symbol
28 Mimic
29 Greet the villain
32 "Death Wish" star
33 Noted gatekeeper
35 Postopposer
36 Trip
38 "Barnaby Jones" star
39 Director Polanski
42 Departed
43 Part of HOMES
44 Shredded
45 Bother
46 Annoy
47 Likable candidate
49 Mine output

Solution time: 25 mins.

D	A	S	H		A	R	A	B		M	E	W
E	C	H	O		S	I	N	E		U	P	A
S	N	A	P	S	H	O	T	S		G	E	L
K	E	W	P	I	E		E	A	S	E	L
		E	X		M	A	T	C	H
R	U	H	R		M	I	X		T	O	W	S
O	N	O			A	L	E			T	O	O
D	O	T	E		M	A	D		A	S	K	S
		S	A	T	A	N		A	N
M	A	H	R	E			A	S	T	R	O	S
A	G	O		M	O	O	N	S	H	O	T	S
L	E	T		P	U	N	T		E	M	I	T
E	S	S		T	R	E	E		M	E	S	S

Yesterday's answer 10-14

CRYPTOQUIP

10-14

W E N W E C Z X J T S Q G X D ' Z E Q F H Z E Q C F G S V T G X F H F X T D Q X M G E D X T M : N S G W T J D S V X D .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WAILED THE FAVORITE SON OF ICE CREAM PARLOR OWNER: "LET ME HAVE A SODA, POP."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: F equals L

Senate

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Joni Hays, graduate student in the College of Education, and one of the bill's sponsors said, "The fact that senators were willing to hear two bills last week that called for the impeachment of two student senators and were unwilling to hear (the new bill) is hypocritical at the least and may even be considered a case of malfeasance.

"It seems Senate is willing to abide by the letter of the law, providing it's applied to certain individuals."

Scott Darger, College of Business senator and one of the senators mentioned in the bill, said the other 16 senators and senate officers were not aware that they were in violation of SGA by-laws, whereas Rattan was. "Doug (Folk) is the one that ruled we did not have to make visitations. We had no idea that we were in violation of anything."

"Some of you may be upset by what happened here, but I am impressed," said David Ramsey, Student Senate adviser. "I saw some great examinations of yourselves and of the democratic process. It was a lengthy learning process but one of the purposes of Senate is to provide that learning process."

The decision not to impeach Nath, came after an attempt by Mary Jo Lampe, College of Human Ecology senator, to postpone the bill indefinitely. The motion failed in a 19-22 vote.

Mike Wooten, College of Engineering senator, also attempted to move the meeting into executive session. The motion failed.

Forum

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

much more regarding regents universities' operating budgets and building maintenance funds.

Sand said he didn't think the building activities had suffered much in the past and didn't feel they would suffer much in the future.

Hurt, his opponent, suggested shifting the spending priorities of the state to education as a solution for many of the education problems. She said numerous studies done in the United States have indicated that people will pay more taxes if they know the money is going to education.

Knopp said he was under the impression that the Democratic candidates were running against the governor, "instead of against us." He said because of his experience in the Kansas House of Representatives and because of his position as House majority leader he would be able to "trade favors with Mike Hayden."

"I have disagreed with the governor ... but I am also loyal to the governor," he said. "If my loyalty is not there, then I lose my political importance."

Hochhauser said the Legislature needs to face the economic realities of Kansas and "respect the integrity of the legislative building fund."

She said she would consider supporting an automatic transfer of money to the state building fund and questioned whether the state mill levy is adequate for its purpose. If not, Hochhauser said she may even consider raising that mill levy.

Dance

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

When time and schedules allow, these performers give master classes to the dance students.

Master classes are classes given in the area in which a performer has a particular strength.

"The dancers here are getting to be better trained, and are developing a sense of professionalism," Quirk said. "They are going out on their own and doing programs such as ArtShare."

ArtShare, a program created by Kahlich, is designed to help educate elementary students in the arts.

Once a week for three weeks dance students visit both the Woodrow Wilson and Eugene Field Schools to present lecture/demonstrations, performances and class sessions to third-grade students.

"The students here are incredibly dedicated and responsible," Quirk said. "You could trust them with your life."

While those in the program are doing well, Quirk said it is difficult to recruit dance students to K-State.

There are 12 to 15 students with a concentration in dance enrolled in the speech department.

Quirk said they have done more recruiting this year, but it is hard to attract people to K-State for dance.

"It is hard to bring people in because we are not close to a major city," she said. "We get the majority of our students from those who just took a class because they were interested and decided to stay with the program."

Attracting men into the dance program is another problem.

"It is hard to get men (into the dance program,)" Quirk said. Four years ago there were about nine men enrolled; now there are only about three, she said.

Having the theater program mixed with the speech department has brought in more male dancers, she said.

"Now the theater majors have to take some dance classes, which is important because it is hard to be just a singer or actor or dancer," Quirk said. "Whether you perform or teach, you need a wide range to do it."

Volley

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

the game, and it cost us a chance to win.

"There was a little confusion on who had what responsibilities, but I expected that to happen anyway. That will just gradually improve daily and match to match," he said.

Nelson attributes the loss of several key matches to failing to come through in the pinch.

"We're putting in good effort, which we need to be doing, and we're going to try to take advantage of the opportunities a little better," Nelson said. "We're seeing some matches slip by, but I think that's good because at least we're competing.

"We've played some really good teams and played them tough and we lost, like at Nebraska. In a couple of matches we just didn't have a real good effort, which is a first for this team. Our intensity level has been high, we just need to correct some unforced errors in situations where we can win the game and the match," he said.

Valerie Kastens, K- State's middle hitter, is having a consistent season for the 'Cats. Her attack percentage of .277 was sixth in the Big Eight and she was second with a blocking average of 1.28 per game. The senior also ranked third with an average of .482 service aces per game.

"Valerie is doing a real consistent job in attacking for us," Nelson said. "Being in the position she's in, with hitting quick sets, she's really tied to our ability to pass consistently."

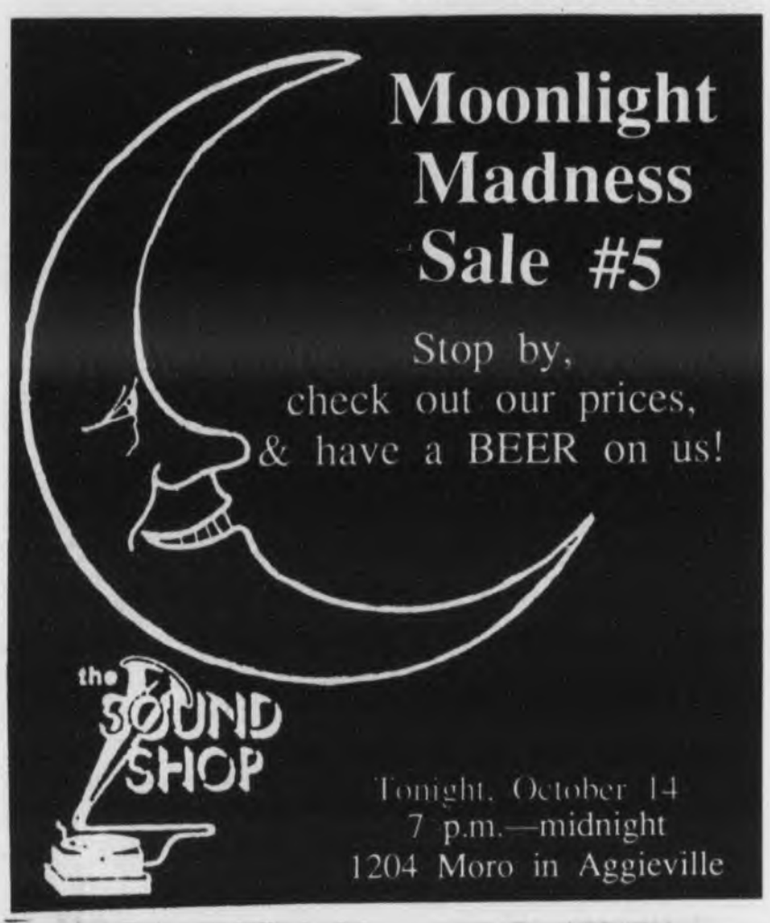
Lynda Harshbarger leads the conference with a .741 service ace average.

"She's doing a real good job giving us tough serves and even the ones that aren't aces are pretty tough to handle," Nelson said. "That allows our defense to set up a little more easily."

Cross

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

the NCAA Cross Country Championships, which are Nov. 21 in Ames, Iowa, a women's team has to either win its district or hope to receive one of the six at-large berths. The men have no at-large berths.



"This will be very important for our girls," Capriotti said. "In October, the committee sits down and takes a look at who you ran against. So if we don't win our district and have a bad race against good competition like this weekend, I'd say our chances of going to nationals are very slim."

Among the competition for the women will be Cal Berkeley which is one of the top five teams in the nation, UCLA, which is in the top 20, and the host team Cal Poly, which has won the NCAA Division II title the last seven years in a row.

"This meet will mark the start to a real big series of meets for us," Capriotti said. "I guess you can say that we're now getting down to the nitty-gritty — so to speak."

The Cal Poly meet will also be a homecoming of sorts for Capriotti. That is where he logged a very successful collegiate career as Cal Poly won two NCAA Division II track and cross country titles.

As a senior, Capriotti was captain of the cross country team and was coached by current K-State Athletic Director Steve Miller. That year (1978), Capriotti took fifth place at nationals and his team garnered four of the top six spots to take the title.

SUNDAY STUDENT SPECIALS

CHICKEN FRIED STEAK DINNER
$4.49
Mushroom or Cream Gravy
Includes choice of Potato plus Toast, Salad, Hot Food and Dessert Bar

++++

SALAD, HOT FOOD AND DESSERT BAR
$3.79
Show your Student ID Card and request the Student Special of your choice!

Breakfast Buffet Sat./Sun. 6-10:30 a.m.
100 Bluemont
SIRLOIN STOCKADE®

ROAD SCHOLAR

SUPERSPORT™

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN — WITH THE NEW BATTERY-DRIVEN SUPERSPORT™ — TO TAKE YOU FROM COLLEGE TO CAREER.

Small, lightweight, flexible and economical. Ideal for spreadsheets, word processing and more. That's the new SupersPort from Zenith Data Systems — today's leader in battery-operated portables.

FLEXIBLE COURSE SCHEDULE. Whatever your agenda, the SupersPort's modular configuration easily adapts to your computing style. With a detachable battery for easier portability. An AC adapter/recharger that plugs into any outlet. MS-DOS® to run virtually all PC/XT compatible software. And 640K RAM — expandable to 1.64MB with EMS. Plus the SupersPort comes in your choice of dual 3.5" 720K floppy drive or 20MB hard disk models. For flexible desktop performance anywhere on campus.

CARRY SOME GREAT HOURS THIS TERM. Hours of battery power, that is. For greater productivity everywhere your studies take you. Thanks to Zenith's comprehensive Intelligent Power Management — a system that lets you control how your battery power is consumed. So you won't waste valuable energy on components and peripherals not in use.

EASY COLLEGE READING. The easiest. After all, the SupersPort features Zenith's renowned dazzling backlit Supertwist LCD screen for crisp text and superior readability. And its CRT-size display is one-third larger than most competing portables for enhanced viewing. The screen even tilts back 180-degrees so it lies flat to accommodate a desktop monitor.

Dual 3.5" 720K
Floppy Drive Model
Suggested Retail Price: $2,399
Special Student Price: $1,439

20MB Hard Disk Model
Suggested Retail Price: $3,599
Special Student Price: $2,219

TO CATCH THE NEW SUPERSPORT PORTABLE PC AT A SPECIAL PRICE, VISIT YOUR ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS CAMPUS OPEN HOUSE;

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCT. 24 & 25
9A.M. to 4 P.M.
CONTACT YOUR LOCAL
STUDENT REPRESENTATIVE
JAN ELSASSER
537-6807 or
THE BOOKSTORE 532-6583

Zenith data systems
THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

PC/XT is a registered trademark of IBM Corp. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corp. Special pricing offer good only on purchases directly through Zenith Contact(s) listed above by students, faculty and staff for their own use. No other discounts apply. Limit one portable personal computer per individual in any 12-month period. Prices subject to change without notice.
© 1988, Zenith Data Systems Form No. 1392

Running Wild

The Wildcats were run over by Oklahoma, which rushed for 768 yards, an NCAA record. The 'Cats lost 70-24. See Page 6.

Weather

Partly cloudy today with the high in the mid-70s. Clear tonight with the low in the low to mid-40s. Mostly sunny Tuesday with the high around 70.

5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

ing streak when it defeated Iowa State University and Drake University this weekend. See Page 7.

Monday
October 17, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 40

Kansas State
Collegian

Staff photos/Greg Vogel

Brian Smith, center, senior in landscape architecture, cheers along with 8,000 other fans during "Midnight Madness III" as the 'Cats kicked off the 1988 basketball season by holding the first practice Saturday morning at 12:01 a.m.

Flora receives faculty award

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Staff Writer

If rural peoples are to survive in a global economy, they must diversify, said the recipient of the 1988 Distinguished Graduate Faculty Member Award.

Cornelia Flora, professor of sociology, anthropology and social work, presented the lecture "Rural Peoples in a Global Economy" as part of the award ceremonies Friday.

Rural peoples are defined too narrowly, Flora said. The cut-off point between rural and urban peoples is arbitrarily set and often does not consider the fact that rural people "are a wide variety of people who do a wide variety of things."

In many cases there is a greater difference between two or more rural county areas than between rural and urban areas. Therefore, the ability of rural communities to organize appropriate defenses against cyclical economic change varies greatly, Flora said.

"The notion of risk is an incredibly important one for rural peoples everywhere."

The solution, she said, is enterprise diversification. The realization of the traditional notion of the self-sufficient family farm has been, in fact, extremely rare.

"The multiple-enterprise survival strategy is typical, and one we need to study and understand," Flora said.

Farms are becoming increasingly vertically integrated, as in industry, in order to insure the predictability of income. But a hallmark of agriculture has been exactly the opposite — the unpredictability of income.

Now, Flora said, the division of labor in agriculture will shift to "task decision," with management making the production decisions and labor conducting the actual tasks.

"There will be fewer decisions made on the farm and more made by farm management firms," Flora said. "Land ownership no longer guarantees the farmer is his or her own boss."

The result will be "de-skilling" of farm production and the increased specialization of farm labor, as in industrial production. Another result may be the upgrading of services but also major changes in local organization because of the increased use of capital.

This solution means anti-rural biases toward centralized bureacratic rule, and removes viable decision-making from the rural level, she said.

With other extractive rural industries, the same thing applies. The timber industry, for example, is in a recovery stage from recession, but the jobs have not returned. More capital and less labor is being used, Flora said.

A solution to rural problems is more difficult to identify than the problem, Flora said. Any solution that will work must be locally generated, yet based on the demands of the national and international macro structure and not on the local micro structure.

The micro solutions must apply to macro problems, she said. If not, rural areas could become ghettos.

The complications go further when one considers the effect of the world market on rural people. More problems arose with the de-industrialization of rural America, when production and factories shifted to Third World countries.

"It's easy to make policies regarding capital movement because it's so easy to measure," she said. "It's harder to measure the effect on people."

That effect was never felt so much by rural peoples until after the boom and inflation of the 1970s was cut off abruptly with the reduction of interest rates, Flora said. The decreasing rate of inflation triggered the recession of 1980-82. The trend of high-priced land and commodities was reversed.

Along with it, prices dropped and the ability of rural peoples globally to pay back debts dramatically decreased. One consequence was increased debt, and the countries had to have more exports, but couldn't compete on the world markets. As a result, developing countries had to export and exploit their resources more, Flora said.

By 1988, for the rural United States, the solution has been a "huge infusion of federal dollars." Agricultural exports increased, but with enormous subsidies, Flora said, and now a complex and costly farm program is in place and farmers see definite conflict. International agriculture seems a threat rather than a virtue, she said.

Fans mark new era in Bramlage

By Brian Hummell
Staff Writer

Midnight Madness III proved to be more of a test for Bramlage Coliseum than for the men's basketball team.

And, by most accounts, Bramlage passed with flying colors.

"The night was a tremendous success," said Troy Lubbers, student body president. "The goal of the evening was to usher in a new era of 'Cats basketball without losing the traditions of the past. The numbers and enthusiasm of the crowd proved that the tradition lives on."

About 1,200 fans began the night's activities at Ahearn Field House and were treated to free hot dogs and soft drinks. The crowd then carried out the theme of "Transfer the Tradition" with a march to Bramlage, led by the men's basketball team, the cheerleaders and the marching band.

"(The parade) is fun and exciting, and gets people psyched for the season," said Rhonda Jarrett, senior in elementary education. "It's kind of sad to be moving out of Ahearn, but at the same time it's exciting."

The doors to Bramlage opened at 11 p.m., and most of the fans got their first look inside as they ran down the aisles to get court-side seats.

1,200 fans listen to the K-State Band and watch the cheerleaders perform Friday evening at Ahearn Field House.

Lubbers and Lauren O'Connor, member of the ICAT advisory board, dedicated the student section with a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

"It was so thrilling to watch the people pour in. The feeling and atmosphere were great," O'Connor said. "If you weren't there, you missed out on a lot."

■ See MADNESS, Page 11

Leaders discuss housing

By Alan Wilds
Collegian Reporter

Neighborhood social issues highlighted Saturday's Home Program's Housing Forum, which was designed to educate Manhattan area residents on all aspects of local housing.

Speakers from several organizations explained their involvement in housing issues and presented their concerns about various problems to the Home Program's board. The program's goal is to summarize and rank the problems and then to recommend solutions to the city.

Employees at the Manhattan Emergency Shelter are involved with housing when individuals are either evicted or have no place to stay, said Kathy Rankin, director of the shelter.

"Not only do we provide (people) with shelter, but we also help them find homes that are safe and at low cost," Rankin said. The shelter works with landlords and helps to purchase food.

"Housing is not a privilege, it is a right — everyone should have a place to call home," she said.

The Crisis Center deals with providing temporary housing for battered women and children. Director Kim Blubaugh said the center usually deals with women who must leave marriages and live on their own income.

"The length of stay varies from about seven days to two or three months," Blubaugh said. Difficulties arise when young, poorly educated mothers with children try to find employment that will cover living expenses.

"It is extraordinary to find affordable, quality housing in these situations," Blubaugh said.

Safety and maintenance of housing was addressed by Mel Borst of Borst Restoration.

"Rent in the City of Manhattan does not necessarily pay for safe living conditions," Borst said.

Borst's company has found many life-threatening hazards while providing maintenance for customers, he said. Borst cited as examples missing gas pressure valves, gas meters located dangerously close to the street, weak porch structures and faulty electric circuits.

Manhattan provides assistance and public housing for individuals and families with low incomes. The city owns 262 public housing units which are rented to qualified tenants, said Ron Hammond, director of the Manhattan Housing Authority.

"The stock of public housing is in good shape," he said.

The Rev. John Stoneking said churches across the country have become more involved in housing since the federal government decreased its involvement in public housing.

"There are people out there who did have housing, but do not now," Stoneking said, adding the government wanted to shift the responsibili-

■ See FORUM, Page 10

Jetliner crashes in Rome; 28 passengers feared dead

By The Associated Press

ROME — A Uganda Airlines Boeing 707 jetliner with 51 people aboard crashed early today in heavy fog short of the runway of Rome's main Leonardo da Vinci airport. Police said 28 people were feared dead.

Twenty-three people survived Flight 775 from London's Gatwick Airport to Entebbe, Uganda, via Rome, said Carlo Iovinella, director of the airport police.

Iovinella said 44 passengers and a crew of seven were aboard the jetliner that crashed at 12:31 a.m. (7:31 p.m. EDT Sunday).

The aircraft skimmed the tops of some trees, then crashed, broke into pieces and burst into flames about a half-mile west of the runway, police said. The airport is 15 miles southwest of Rome.

The charred hulk of the airliner lay smoking in a muddy field early Monday while firefighters raked through the debris. Two bodies covered with sheets lay near the shattered aircraft. Seat cushions, boxes, a makeup case and a twisted doll were scattered nearby in the mud.

The front of the jetliner was a charred skeleton of a plane. The fuselage was snapped where it joined with the wings and the cockpit section was broken into hundreds of pieces. The airline's distinctive red and yellow strips along the scorched fuselage could barely be seen.

Iovinella said 23 survivors had been taken to nearby hospitals and that the rest of the people aboard were believed to be dead. Most of the injured were taken to Rome's Sant'Eugenio Hospital; others went to San Camillo Hospital.

Police said they did not immediately know the nationalities of the dead and injured. The Italian news agency ANSA said most of the injured were believed to be Ugandan citizens.

Iovinella said the cause of the crash had not been determined. But the entire area along the Tyrrhenian Coast near the airport had been shrouded in a heavy fog.

"It was definitely the fog," said one police officer, speaking on condition of anonymity, when asked about a possible cause of the crash.

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Stephan to lobby for victims

TOPEKA — The state's top law enforcement official said he will push for passage of a "victims' bill of rights" during the 1989 Legislature.

Attorney General Robert T. Stephan told a task force he established Friday that it's time Kansas joined the 44 other states that have such provisions in their laws or constitutions. He said the state's criminal justice system can be a "second victimization" for many crime victims.

The Victims' Rights Task Force also heard testimony from victims of crime, including a northeast Kansas woman whose stepson shot her and her husband and killed their son.

"Most of us never think of being victims of crime, but statistics show it happens to all of us," Stephan told the task force. "The victims, in my mind, are the reason we have a criminal justice system."

The task force is holding hearings to discuss ways in which the state's criminal justice system can help crime victims more.

Its goal is to give victims more input into the prosecution of their cases and sentencing. The task force also may consider ways to increase compensation for victims.

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

25 injured in earthquake

KILLINI, Greece — An earthquake struck western Greece Sunday afternoon and government officials said at least 25 people were injured as buildings collapsed and landslides ripped down the mountain slopes.

The Environment Ministry advised people not to return to hundreds of damaged buildings.

State television said about 30 tremors of lesser magnitude rumbled through the same region throughout the afternoon.

"As far as we know a total of 25 people were slightly injured by the quake," government spokesman Sotiris Kostopoulos said. "The state apparatus is on full alert and all the necessary material, such as tents and drugs, have been sent to the area."

The quake measured 6 on the Richter scale, according to the Athens Seismological Institute.

It said the initial quake occurred at 2:34 p.m. and the center was 150 miles west of Athens in the Ionian sea between Killini and the resort island of Zakinthos.

"People panicked tremendously and rushed out into the streets as soon as it happened, " said Aleka Markoyiannaki, a local government official.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

Calf goes Republican

ANGLETON, Texas — A rancher is touting a new 6-month-old calf as being "100 percent Republican."

Tom Garrett said his calf got a lot of attention when it was entered in the Brazoria County Fair in early October. The calf has a red splotch on its right side resembling the profile of Abraham Lincoln.

Garrett, a staunch Republican, said he gets numerous requests daily from residents who want to see the likeness for themselves.

"They all see the resemblance right away," Garrett said.

U.S. eases Philippine debt

WASHINGTON — The United States has agreed to pay the Philippines $481 million annually and back a bond program to help ease the country's foreign debt as part of a lease agreement for U.S. military bases, Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus said Sunday.

Secretary of State George Shultz and Manglapus planned to sign the pact today. In Manila, Philippine President Corazon Aquino announced the expected signing, but provided no details.

A U.S.-Philippines working group picked away at the details of the agreement on Saturday and again on Sunday. While some technical points remained to be resolved, the signing ceremony tentatively was set for this afternoon.

"We still continue to be hopeful to conclude the negotiations," said Alex Almasov, a State Department press officer.

Manglapus, in a telephone interview, said Aquino had given the "go signal" for the pact, but he said some issues were still being discussed. "There is still time to move things around," he said.

Manglapus provided some specific details of the two-year agreement.

The cash payments would be a big increase over the current $180 million in U.S. military and economic aid attached to the bases, but only a slight boost over the amount of U.S. aid channelled to Manila since Aquino came to power in 1986. The amount is less than half that sought by the Philippines when talks began in April.

Boaters plunge 40 feet

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Two boaters distracted by the colors of the fall foliage shot over a 40-foot dam into the rushing overflow below, where they were rescued by two fishermen, authorities said.

"They should have been killed, but were lucky," said Deputy Bill Chandler of the Hennepin County Sheriff's Department. "A lot of that had to do with two fisherman on the shore below the dam who went in with their boat and rescued them. They're heroes in my book."

Don Oestreich, 57, of St. Louis Park walked away relatively unscathed Saturday; Bernice Johnson, 58, of Minneapolis suffered bumps and bruises and received four stitches on her forehead.

"Don was driving and I was riding backwards because of the wind, and the colors were gorgeous," Johnson said. "And when we noticed the (warning) signs it was just too late.

"I think the first thing I thought was, 'This is it.' My life might have flashed before me, but I didn't have any time to think about it — there was too much noise and water."

Oestreich's 16-foot aluminum boat remained upright.

Woman gets second chance

GOULD, Ark. — A racial slur uttered in frustration nearly ended Lois Bostic's 27-year career in education. Then her black students stepped in, taught their elders a lesson in tolerance, and saved Bostic's job.

Bostic, who is in her first year here teaching both elementary and high school students, said her troubles began Sept. 27 as she taught her seventh class of the day on using the library at Gould Elementary.

As she recalls it, the 20 sixth-graders in the class weren't paying attention and were growing increasingly rowdy.

In an effort to settle them down, she told the students, all of them black: "I think you're trying to make me think you're a bunch of poor, dumb niggers, and I don't think that."

Bostic, 50, said she immediately realized the inappropriateness of the word.

"We were ready to forgive and go on," said senior Angela Matthews, 17, one of six students who initiated, typed and distributed petitions in support of the white librarian. "Anybody ought to get a second chance."

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

FILING FORMS are available for Student Body President, Student Senate and Board of Student Publications in the SGA Office. Forms are due by 5 p.m. Tuesday.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT Cancer Research Awards applications are now available in the Center for Basic Research office in Ackert 234. All students in health-related degree programs are eligible to apply. Deadline is Dec. 5.

TODAY

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAM will conduct a Mini-Grant workshop with Dr. Bert Biles from 3 to 5 p.m. in Union 207.

KSUSLHA BAKE SALE will be from 8 a.m. to noon in front of Leasure Hall. A meeting will be at 7 p.m. in Union 203.

ALPHA MU ALPHA yearbook pictures will be taken at 8:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

MARKETING CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room. Yearbook pictures will follow.

CAMPUS GIRL SCOUTS yearbook pictures will be taken at 6:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

WOMEN IN COMMUNICATIONS INC. Forum on Pay Equity will be at 7:30 p.m. in Pottorf Hall, Cico Park.

COLLEGE REPUBLICANS will meet at 8 p.m. in Union Little Theatre.

TAU BETA PI will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Durland 152. Officer elections will follow.

ASSOCIATON OF COLLEGIATE Entrepreneurs will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

PHI KAPPA PHI Honor Society will meet at 4 p.m. in Union 213.

GYMNASTICS CLUB will meet at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

BUSINESS COUNCIL will meet at 4 p.m. in Union 208. Officers meet at 3:30 p.m.

COE AMBASSADORS will take yearbook pictures at 4:30 p.m. in Bluemont Media Room.

OMICRON DELTA EPSILON will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 208

ECONOMICS CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 208.

K-STATE POLICE

Friday

- A wheel lock was placed on a maroon and white Oldsmobile four-door parked in lot A-26. The lock was later removed.
- A wheel lock was placed on a yellow Chevy pickup parked in lot A-7.
- A student parking permit was lost off campus.
- A checkbook and money worth $50 was reported stolen in Farrell Library.
- Two non-injury, hit-and-run accidents occurred in lot D-1W. Damages were less than $500 each.

Saturday

- Trouble with a subject at a residence hall was reported.
- Criminal damage to a vehicle parked in lot D-2 was reported.
- The burglary theft of a radar detector from a vehicle in lot A-29 was reported.

Sunday

- A motorcycle tag was reported stolen.
- Computer equipment was reported stolen from Shellenberger Hall. Equipment was a hard card.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Rec Complex extends hours

Beginning today, the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex will remain open until midnight on Sunday through Thursday nights. In the early fall and late spring, the Rec Complex is open only until 11 p.m. on Sunday through Thursday because people have more of a chance to exercise outdoors, said Raydon Robel, director of Recreational Services. Cooler weather and the onset of the intramural volleyball season will bring more exercisers indoors, he said.

The Rec Complex will continue to open at 6 a.m. Monday through Friday. On Saturday, the Rec Complex will be open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., and on Sunday from noon to midnight.

2 FER MONDAYS
All regular priced meals are 2 for 1 with any reg. priced beverage purchase.
Mondays 5 to 9 p.m.
Free putt putt passes Mondays only
with this coupon
The Chef
111 S. 4th

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

Celebrate K-State
125 Years
HOMECOMING '88

LARGE PIZZA ONLY 5.99
with one topping
dine in or free home delivery
with this coupon
offer good through Oct. 31
"premium pizza at a cardboard pizza price"
523 South 17th
537-1484
Pougeot's

WEEKEND NEWS REPORTER
All New All Hit! KMKF 101.7
Weekend news reporter wanted for Radio Stations KMAN-KMKF, Manhattan. Previous writing experience required. Hours: Saturday 8 a.m.-1 p.m.; Sunday 8-10 a.m.
Contact Jeff Wichman, 2414 Casement Road. EOE.
KMAN 1350

ATTENTION STUDENTS
Are you suffering from any neck or back pain?
CONSIGLI CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC
Is now offering a FREE CHIROPRACTIC EXAMINATION (a $30 value) for STUDENTS ONLY!
This examination includes Spinal, Orthopedic, & Neurological testing.
Call now for an appointment.
776-1850
Linda D. Consigli, D.C.
1325 Anderson Ave.

HOMECOMING
EVALUATION MEETING
Monday, Oct. 17, 9 p.m.
Big Eight Room
Everyone welcome!!

R•O•Y•A•L
Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Edwards– Oct. 14
Ford– Oct. 14
Goodnow– Oct. 17-19
Haymaker– Oct. 19-21
P•U•R•P•L•E

BELT BONANZA
OCTOBER 17 - OCTOBER 21
30% OFF, all new fall belts
FALL '88 BELT LOOKS:
• smooth leathers
• croco, lizard, snake
• pebble grain
• pant belts with interesting buckles
• chanel-inspired chain belts
• contrast stitching
• passementerie touches
• suede
• deep, rich colors
- Accessories Magazine
Accessories on the Park
Mon.-Sat.: 10:00-6:00, Thur,: 10:00-8:30, Sun.: 1:00-5:00
708 North Manhattan Avenue, Aggieville 537-0707

BUSHWACKERS • THE • FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday
at 9
This week
Kenny Rogerson
Kenny is a Bushwacker's favorite. You may have seen him on MTV, HBO, or Late Night with David Letterman. He is a must for comedy fans and is being held over a 3rd night due to his popularity. He is proclaimed by Jack Carpenter, of the Manhattan Mercury, as our no. 1 comedian. Don't miss the laughs.
Reservations recommended but not necessary.
Steak & Shrimp $3.95
539-4321 531 N. Manhattan 539-9727

Weather shield brainchild of K-State students

By Amy Bullock
Collegian Reporter

Developing and marketing a product has been a challenge and an accomplishment for two K-Staters, after a healthy dose of thought, guidance and patience.

Vince Kalbach, 1987 senior in management and Brett Schmitt, senior in marketing, found that inventing a product and going into business for themselves could prove a success.

The product, which is now patent pending, is called a weather shield. The weather shield protects a vehicle's windshield from sleet, ice and snow.

The shield is made of a plastic called polyethelene and is designed to lay flat across the outside of a windshield, protecting it. The product is held in place by two attachments — one on each end of the shield.

Kalbach and Schmitt decided on the plastic polyethelene for a number of reasons.

After studying various plastics, they decided to use polyethelene because it is a stable material that retains its properties in harsh weather. Also, it does not absorb moisture and can withstand a wide range of temperatures, Kalbach said.

Polyethelene is a good material for this purpose, said Dennis White, assistant professor in clothing, textiles, and interior design.

"Polyethelene is a very impermeable, light and durable plastic," White said. It also is used to wrap food products that will be frozen, to make milk containers and some kinds of pipes.

"I would say it would be a very good protector for the context in which it is being used," White said.

Production of the weather shields is done at Big Lakes Developmental Center, an educational and occupational center for mentally and physically disabled individuals.

Big Lakes has a service that provides labor and production for individuals and businesses. The workers are taught how to develop and package the product while being supervised on their progress.

The service is great for people like Kalbach and Schmitt, said Mike Brodersen, productions manager at Big Lakes.

"We've always worked for ourselves and we are both basically independent, so that is probably one of the main motivational factors of going into business for ourselves."
—Brett Schmitt inventor

"Here are young businessmen with a good idea and no place to go. That is what our services are for. We have the facilities and labor.

"We benefit them by providing an inexpensive service," Brodersen said, "and they are helping us by giving our individuals an opportunity to have valuable training for the real working world."

After inventing the product, Kalbach and Schmitt needed help deciding on the design and handling business aspects such as marketing.

They sought the guidance of Fred Rice, director of the Small Business Development Center. The center provides free counseling for people who want to start a business or for people who want to expand upon a good idea.

"Vince and Brett came to me with a lot of ideas and I thought the weather shield had the best marketable possibilities. We just had to make sure all aspects were covered — that means everything from the patent to the packaging.

"It may seem like a simple product, but there are many steps involved in it," Rice said.

Talking with Rice helped Kalbach and Schmitt develop another purpose for the weather shield.

"I suggested a logo idea," Rice said. "We talked about perhaps selling the weather shields to businesses and the business could then advertise on the front of the weather shields. The finished product would then have whatever particular logo the business wanted printed on the front.

"We decided to go with a silkscreen print and we worked out a way to present the product so that it could be of benefit for businesses," he said.

After examining all aspects of the weather shield, Kalbach and Schmitt were ready to present their product to local businesses.

"We offer the product as bulk amount. For instance, we've set a minimum order of 100, so smaller businesses can afford them. But for bigger companies, it is more advantageous to buy a larger quantity because the unit price goes down with larger orders. The price varies with amount ordered and type of print desired," Kalbach said.

Kalbach and Schmitt found success on their first outing, for several area businesses expressed interest in the weather shield.

"On our first sales presentation we got an order, so that was a confidence booster," Schmitt said.

Gary Sealey, general manager at Dick Edwards Ford Lincoln car dealership, found the weather shield to be advantageous in several ways.

"We'll use it for various purposes," Sealey said. "We have one lot that has highway exposure, so we'll use them for those cars.

"We will also use them for our own personal use. It beats having to scrape ice off your windshield. It's a real practical idea," he said.

Kalbach and Schmitt are continuing to market their weather shield, not only locally, but also regionally.

"We're applying for a license to print university logos, so we hope that expands the marketing of our product.

"We've always worked for ourselves and we are both basically independent, so that is probably one of the main motivational factors of going into business for ourselves," Schmitt said.

"We wanted to develop a product that would be both beneficial for ourselves and for others," he said.

Seminar discusses space experiment

By The Collegian Staff

K-State's hopes of sponsoring an experiment aboard a space shuttle flight were reflected upon Friday in a seminar presented to the Division of Biology.

Dr. Edward W. Voss, professor of immunology at the University of Illinois, discussed the effects of prolonged weightlessness on humoral immunity during a seminar in Ackert Hall.

"One of K-State's ambitions is to fly a biological experiment on a shuttle mission," said John Iandolo, professor of biology and host for the lecture.

"We can learn from Dr. Voss what he went through to get the experiment approved, in the hope that we also will gain approval from NASA for an experiment."

The seminar was sponsored by Bioserve Space Technologies, a division of K-State biology.

Voss received his doctorate degree from Indiana University in 1966 and has been a faculty member at the University of Illinois since 1967. Voss' research interests focus on antibody structure, antibody function and immune reactions.

Voss has had an experiment carried aboard a shuttle flight.

The experiment flew on the shuttle Columbia from Nov. 28 to Dec. 8, 1983. There were 70 experiments on board, representing the work of 100 American and European scientists. Voss' experiment was on the effect of prolonged weightlessness on the immune system of astronauts.

The astronauts gave blood samples 30 days, seven days, and one day prior to the mission. They then tested themselves while in space. On their return, they were tested immediately and again eight and 12 days later.

The results of the experiment were disappointing to some of the researchers.

Alcohol Awareness Week begins

By Becky Jones
Collegian Reporter

In 1987, 49 people between the ages of 18 and 25 were killed in alcohol-related accidents in Kansas.

To symbolize these deaths, 49 balloons will be released, one every 30 seconds, beginning at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday between Seaton Hall and the Union as part of National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, which began Sunday and will continue through Saturday.

All regents institutions will be releasing 49 balloons at the same time Wednesday.

Bill Arck, director of Alcohol and Other Drug Education Services, said Alcohol Awareness Week is observed at college campuses across the country, and its purpose is to "provide information and education, then allow students to make decisions about their own lives.

"I feel it's not to teach people not to drink," Arck said. "I think they support responsible use or the concept of choice."

A number of events have been planned for Alcohol Awareness Week, which is in its fifth year nationwide and at K-State.

Kelli Nichols, Department of Housing programmer, said the Kansas State University Association of Residence Halls is sponsoring 13 programs this week, with at least one in every residence hall.

"They range from educational to social programs," Nichols said.

The programs include presentations by Arck, an Alcohol Beverage Control agent, and local bar owners and employees. Non-alcoholic beverages will be served at dances and presentations throughout the week.

Alcohol Awareness Week will end with an All-University Casino Night from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday at Chameleons, a non-alcoholic bar in Aggieville. Students will be admitted free with a K-State ID. Prizes donated by various Manhattan merchants will be auctioned throughout the evening. Students may purchase the prizes with play money acquired during the casino games.

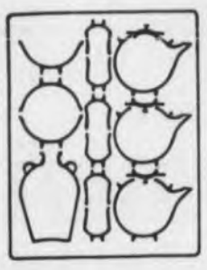
Another part of Alcohol Awareness Week will be the mailing of pamphlets to all K-State students. The pamphlets are designed to promote awareness of alcohol and other drug issues, and combine the elements of success in college with responsible use or non-use of alcohol, Arck said.

Forum to lay groundwork for convocation

By The Collegian Staff

A pre-convocation forum discussing the history, nature and control of the AIDS virus will be at 7:30 tonight in Union 212. K-State faculty members will sit on the panel to discuss the topic and give background for Wednesday's convocation.

Peg Wherry, off-campus programs coordinator for the Division of Continuing Education, heads the convocation series.



"The purpose (of the forum) is to provide background on the issue to be addressed in the convocation lecture," Wherry said.

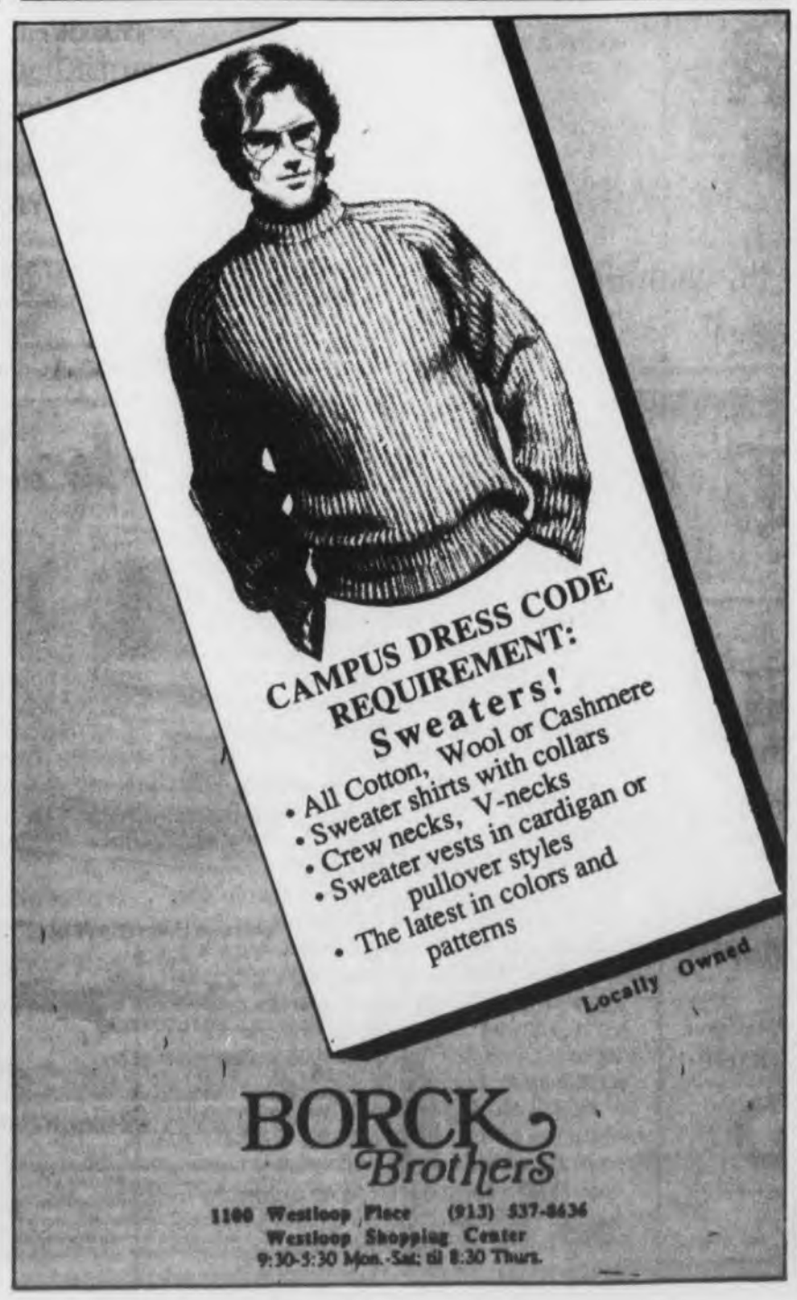
The pre-convocation forums are an excellent way to expand the impact of the lecture, she said, adding that those who intend to attend the lecture should also attend the forum.

The convocation, titled "The Global Pattern of AIDS," is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in McCain Auditorium. The speaker is Dr. William Heyward, chief of international activities, AIDS program for the Centers for Disease Control.

The panelists and their topics are: Terry Johnson, head of the Division of Biology, Fundamental Nature of AIDS; Thomas Ryan, physician at Lafene Student Health Center, Obstacles to Control of AIDS; Sue Zschoche, assistant professor of history, A Brief History of Epidemic and The Social Crisis of AIDS; and Harold Orbach, associate professor of sociology, anthropology and social work, Sociology of the AIDS Virus.

STUDIO POTTERS SALE
SPONSORED BY THE U.F.M. POTTERS GUILD

EXHIBITORS
Jerri Griffin Terry Rempel Sara Rempel
Ester Ikeda Gene Sievers
October 18 & 19, Tues. & Wed.
9 a.m.-5 p.m.
UNION MAIN LEVEL



Attention Seniors:
Tired of having a very basic resume? At Heirloom Portraits we have just the thing to spruce up that resume at an affordable price.
Be a part of the growing individuals that put together not only an exceptional resume, but enhances the business stature by complimenting the paper with a beautiful color portrait.
All it takes is a telephone call to set up an appointment.
776-1175
Heirloom Portraits Village Plaza Shopping Center

K-STATE MARKETING CLUB Meeting Tonight
7 p.m.
Union Big 8
Hallmark Cards
—All Majors Welcome—
—Pictures After Meeting—
AMERICAN MARKETING ASSOCIATION

FREE PIZZA!
BUY ONE & GET ONE FREE
Specify Original "Golden Braided" or new "Thin Style" Crust

SPECIAL COUPON
PYRAMID PIZZA®
MONDAY MANIA
Buy Any PYRAMID PIZZA & Get The Second Pizza (of equal value) FREE!
Good Mondays Only
Delivery–
Fast, Friendly & Free!
539-4888
12th & Moro
Aggieville, USA
PYRAMID PIZZA™
We Pile It On!
© 1987 Pyramid Pizza, Inc.

BORCK Brothers
1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-8636
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. til 8:30 Thurs.

Falsetto's PIZZA
When K-Staters ask the question "who do we call for great tasting Italian pizza?" the answer is always Falsetto's Pizza. We have a tradition with K-State for serving authentic Italian pizza which people keep coming back for. So, when your stomach tells you that it's time for pizza, give Falsetto's a call.
WE'LL GET IT TO YOUR DORM IN LESS THAN 30 MINUTES OR YOU GET
$3 OFF
with this coupon.
expires Nov. 1st.
WE DELIVER THE BEST FOR LESS.
1127 Moro in Aggieville 539-3830

Noise permit lacks purpose, concern for neighbors

Noise, it would appear, has become a bigger issue in Manhattan this year than the presidential elections. Since the beginning of the school year, a number of fraternities have been ticketed following complaints about excessively loud music.

Many of the fraternities, as part of their pre-party preparations, obtained amplified music permits from the Riley County Police Department, believing that these permits would take care of any complaints that might arise. The permits did not. This is because the permits are flawed in a very serious way and so are people's perceptions about what the permit is and does.

To understand the fatal flaw with the amplified music permits, one must look at what it is not. First, it is not a search warrant, as many people believe. According to Les Bieler, assistant director of the RCPD, the permits give the police no extra latitude in entering and searching a residence. Bieler said that officers can enter a residence only if the officers are responding to a number of complaints from neighbors or if the music emanating from the house is obviously too loud.

If officers two or three blocks away from a party can hear music, the officers have the right to go on the premises and demand that the music be turned down. The officers may not search for other violations but may deal with anything that happens in front of them. If, for example, officers enter a residence to have the stereo turned down and see people doing lines of cocaine, they have the right to arrest those involved. Otherwise, they don't have the right to search the house to see if anyone is using drugs. They may only react to what they see.

The second thing the permit is not is a permit. It does not allow you to have loud music. According to the "permit" itself: "The volume (of a stereo system) must be turned down to a level that will entertain your guests, but will not be an intrusion or disturbing to your neighbors. In the event of complaint, the volume will be turned down at the request of any police officer responding to a 'reasonable' complaint." In other words, the police will react to a complaint about a residence that has a "permit" in the same manner as they would to a complaint about a residence that does not have one. The "permit" gives the police no extra rights and it gives the party-goers none.

It is more of a gesture of good will on the partiers' part that shows they are trying to be responsible. The police might give a little leeway if residents have a "permit", but they don't have to. Similarly, if people don't get a permit, police can shut down the party for being too loud, but Bieler said they usually don't unless they keep receiving complaints.

Commentary

DWAYNE LIVELY
Collegian Columnist

This is the "permit's" greatest flaw. It does not permit you to do anything. Many fraternities have obtained the "permit," believing it allowed them to have loud bands or loud stereo music at a party and they have been ticketed.

The most recent example of this was the Sigma Nu party a couple of weeks ago. Scott Cashman, the Sigma Nu president, said he obtained a "permit" and had his members contact the fraternity's neighbors and let them know about the upcoming party. Despite this effort, the police said they still received seven complaints, considered this a reasonable number of complaints, gave the Sigma Nu's two warnings, and eventually shut down the party around 9 p.m. Cashman and his fraternity brothers apparently did all they could to be responsible, but Cashman was ticketed nonetheless.

To cure all this confusion, something must be done about the permit itself. The RCPD is not attempting to suppress partying or to put a choke hold on fraternities. They are trying to protect neighborhoods from becoming unliveable for some residents. As Bieler said, "50 watts of power (for a stereo amplifier) used to be big. Now it's 600 watts." That is part of the problem. Stereos are much more powerful these days, but the "permit" itself is also part of the problem. It must either be changed to actually allow the bearer to have loud music until a certain time (no one should be allowed to have loud music all night) or the "permit" should be done away with.

The establishment of a maximum decibel level for parties, as has been suggested in Manhattan City Commission meetings, would be helpful, but it would not deal directly with the complaints of the neighbors. Each of us, after all, has our own "threshhold of pain." What is loud to the Sigma Nu's or the City Commission may be utterly excruciating to the fraternity's neighbors.

Complaints would still be made, but they would not be acted upon if the noise level fell even a decibel below the maximum. Neighbors and fraternities would be left at odds and the neighbors would be forced to resort to drawing up petitions to have the fraternities kicked out of their neighborhoods in order to get some peace and quiet. I don't think anyone wants this, especially the fraternities, but no one wants to ban all parties, either.

In order to prevent the "noise issue" from escalating into all-out war, fraternities, since they seem to have caught the brunt of the complaints and would catch even more if events get out of hand, must sit down with their neighbors and establish "neighborhood noise permits" of sorts. Telling your neighbors you are going to have a loud party is one thing, but finding out what they consider to be loud is another.

Fraternities and neighbors could agree on establishing neighborhood quiet hours and find ways to enforce them that would involve the police only in extreme circumstances. The police, after all, should be free to protect the city from serious crimes, not tied up with neighborhood squabbles that could easily be settled without them.

Federal minimum wage remains inadequate

Workers earning the $3.35 per hour minimum wage need to write a thank-you note to their representatives in Washington.

A bill that would have raised the wage by 40 cents per year for the next three years was killed by a Republican-backed filibuster earlier this month. It is too expensive for employers to pay workers 40 cents more an hour this year, they said.

Employers have been paying a $3.35 minimum wage for more than seven years, the longest period of time the wage has not been increased since it was implemented in 1938.

As if to add insult to injury to workers surviving on $3.35 an hour, those opposed the bill said they would not consider an increase unless a "subminimum" wage was tied to the bill. They would like to give employers the option of paying new employees 80 percent of the minimum wage for the employee's first 90 days. They rationalized that new jobs would be created, ones where employees in training would not receive full pay.

Following that logic, workers should not eat or pay rent while they are being trained.

The problem with "subminimum" wage and the current minimum wage is that both are deficient. Life cannot be maintained on $3.35 an hour. The minimum wage's buying power is the same as it was 30 years ago. In different terms, people working at minimum wage have about one-third the buying power of the average worker in manufacturing.

People cannot live on the minimum wage. Congress needs to realize that and stop playing politics with people's incomes, especially when those people cannot afford to play games.

Tests done for student benefit

Diseases can often persist undetected

In the Sept. 29 issue of the Collegian an editorial appeared criticizing Lafene Student Health Center for performing unnecessary screening tests for sexually transmitted diseases on clients of the Lafemme Clinic. It is the opinion of the Lafene Staff that this editorial was misleading and for the most part incorrect.

Chlamydia infection, incorrectly identified in an earlier Collegian article as "the clap," is the most common sexually transmitted disease in the United States with three to four million cases occurring yearly. Risk factors for sexually transmitted diseases including chlamydia are age, number of partners, number of partners your partners have had (and the number of partners their partners have had etc.) and failure to use condoms consistently.

Men and women below 30 years of age are at greatest risk. The infection often causes symptoms in men such as burning with urination and/or discharge and infrequently results in serious complications. Women, on the other hand, usually have no symptoms 80 percent of the time and if not treated, are at high risk of serious complications such as an infection of the uterus or Fallopian tubes, an ectopic or tubal pregnancy, and infertility. Health costs due to chlamydia amount to more than $1 billion annually.

The well-woman exam is an assessment of physical health and includes blood pressure measurement, breast and pelvic exams, and tests for anemia and urinary problems. Since the vast majority of women seen in the Lafemme Clinic for yearly exams have been sexually active, screening for gonorrhea has been done routinely for more than 10 years. Prior to the 1987-88 school year, excessive costs allowed chlamydia testing for only those women felt to be at risk, based on examination findings.

Of the small number of women tested, about one in five had chlamydia. The Lafene staff, however, knowing that many women with chlamydia show no signs of infection, felt that yearly screening for chlamydia in the college age group was as important as a yearly Pap smear. To provide this important service at a reasonable price, a nationwide search was made for a reputable, accredited laboratory (Rhema Laboratories) which offered a sensitive chlamydia test at the reduced price of $15. Performing the tests at Lafene was considered, but we could neither match the cost nor the sensitivity of the test offered by Rhema. We realize that cost is a major factor for students and, although the price of the first yearly exam is now slightly higher, follow-up yearly exams are less expensive.

Reader Comment

MEDICAL STAFF
Lafene Student Health Center

During the past school year, about 1,100 tests have been done in the Lafene Clinic with 98 reported in asymptomatic women (8.9 percent positive) who had no suspicion of infection. Another way of looking at this is to say that a chlamydia test is as likely to be positive in a woman at risk as a throat culture is to be positive for strep throat in a person with a sore throat. Unfortunately, unlike strep, chlamydia causes no symptoms to indicate its presence.

In summary, we perform this test because the vast majority of our clients are at risk; as a group of women are at greatest risk of serious complications due to chlamydia infection and are unlikely to have symptoms prior to the onset of these complications which would cause them to seek testing. Rhema Lab offered us the best deal for your money, and there has been no significant increase in charges as a result of this testing.

The editorial did make two valid points. Women who are not now and have never been sexually active are not at risk and should let us know at the time of exam that they do not need these tests. Secondly, the Lafene staff is concerned that testing is not offered routinely to men since chlamydia as well as several other sexually transmitted diseases can be asymptomatic in men also. For the past year we have been searching for a feasible way to provide a Men's Clinic which would include this as one of its functions.

It is hoped that this editorial will serve as an impetus to make this a reality. In the meantime, we encourage all sexually active men, as well as women who have yearly exams done elsewhere which do not include chlamydia testing, to take responsibility to your health, as well as your partner's, and to make a confidential appointment with the physician of your choice at Lafene.

Editor's Note: This article was written by Dr. Thomas F. Ryan and Dr. Paula J. Davis, physicians at Lafene Student Health Center, in cooperation with the rest of the medical staff.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Karen Allen, Robert R. Short
FEATURES EDITOR ..... Christine Doll
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Scott Miller
AGRI/BUSINESS EDITOR ..... Paula Selby
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Nancy Chartrand
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Michael Nichols
COPY EDITORS ..... Nancy Downing, Ann Iseman, Mark Schreiner
SENIOR STAFF WRITERS ..... Susan L'Ecuyer, Erwin Seba
STAFF WRITERS ..... Paul Branson, Richard Broadfoot, Audra Dietz, Becky Ives, Brian Hummell, Steve Walker
SPORTS WRITERS ..... Russ Ewy, Chris Hays, Micheal May, Melissa Payne, Mike Rouse, Chris Wilhelm
SPORTS COLUMNISTS ..... Tom Perrin, David Svoboda
COLUMNISTS ..... Catherine Doud, Dwayne Lively, Sheikh Faisal Razzaq, Karla Redelsheimer, Mark Schmeller
REVIEWERS ..... Bradley Atchison, Carrie Miller
CARTOONIST ..... Richard Broadfoot
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Julia March
STAFF ASSISTANT ..... Jennifer Lippold
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Chris Assaf, Brad Camp, Jim Dietz, Joe Freeman, Brett Hacker, Jeff Stead, Greg Vogel
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Richard Broadfoot, Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Mark Schmeller, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Robert R. Short, Janet Swanson

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Todd Schultz
DISPLAY SALES REPRESENTATIVES ..... Brenda Birt, Brian Howell, Denise Lambert, Tammy McCreary, Michelle Slavik, Jennifer White, Brent Windsor
OFFICE/CLASSIFIED AD ASSISTANTS ..... Kim Beyer, Tomari Quinn, Christa South
GRAPHIC ARTISTS ..... Dave Casper, Kendell McMinimy
PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Jennifer Quist

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR ..... David L. Adams
ACTING DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Charlie Fair
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Shelly Potter
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Schmidt
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555
Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

Sabotage ruled in airplane crash

By The Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Sabotage or another criminal act caused a plane crash that killed President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq, the U.S. ambassador and 28 others, said a report released Sunday by a U.S.-Pakistan investigation team.

The 365-page report ruled out mechanical failure in the Aug. 17 crash of the Hercules C-130 transport plane, said Pakistan air force Cmdr. Abbas Mirza, who gave a 27-page summary to reporters at a hastily called news conference.

"The board believes that the accident was most probably caused through the perpetration of a criminal act or sabotage," said the summary by the 10-member U.S.-Pakistan team.

The summary did not blame any person or group for the crash but called for a separate criminal investigation.

In Washington, U.S. State Department spokeswoman Nancy Beck said U.S. officials received a copy of the report and "we are studying it." She made no further comment.

Mirza, who led the four Pakistani representatives and six U.S. Air Force officers on the team, said they found no conclusive evidence to determine the method of sabotage.

All 30 aboard were killed, including U.S. Ambassador Arnold Raphel; a U.S. defense adviser, Brig. Gen. Herbert M. Wassom; and five top Pakistani generals.

Mirza said investigators sifting through the debris found chemicals often used in explosives but no remnants of a detonator, which would have indicated a small explosion aboard the plane.

He said the phrase "criminal act" referred to the possibility that the pilot or co-pilot could have disrupted cockpit controls intentionally, causing the crash in an open field.

Because there was no voice recorder aboard the aircraft, he said, it was impossible to determine what the crew said before the crash.

"After a thorough analysis of the available evidence, the board has been unable to substantiate a technical reason for the accident," the summary said.

"In the absence of the technical reason, the only other possible cause of the accident is the occurrence of a criminal act or sabotage leading to the loss of aircraft control and the (crash)," it said.

Phosphorous was found on mango seeds found in the wreckage, the report said. Earlier reports speculated that an explosive device was hidden in a box of mangos offered as a gift and placed aboard at the last minute.

Mirza made no comment on the theory.

Violence continues; 5 die in South Africa

By The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Five black men were killed in a series of attacks, including four in violence-plagued townships outside Pietermaritzburg, police said Sunday.

Two men were killed and 11 men and women suffered burn injuries when attackers threw gas bombs at a home in the Mpumalanga township near the southeastern city of Pietermaritzburg, police said.

In the same township, police found the body of a man who had been stabbed to death. Police also found a man who had been fatally stabbed in the nearby township of Hammersdale.

In Soweto, the main township outside Johannesburg, a man was shot dead, police said.

All the attacks were listed in the police report, which describes incidents the previous 24 hours, but the report provided no additional details.

The townships outside Pietermaritzburg have been the site of the worst black-on-black faction fighting in South Africa in recent years. At least 600 people have been killed in black-on-black fighting the last two years, according to most estimates.

Afghans report 2 Americans killed

By The Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Official Afghan radio reported Sunday that two Americans helping Afghan rebels were killed in fighting in Afghanistan. A Western diplomat cast doubt on the report.

Meanwhile, the official Soviet news agency Tass said 40 Afghan rebels were killed or wounded in another firefight Saturday with Afghan government troops in southern Afghanistan.

Radio Kabul, in a broadcast monitored in Islamabad, said two Americans and two Pakistani officers were killed Saturday during a government attack on Moslem guerrilla positions near Gardez city, about 60 miles southeast of the Afghan capital, Kabul. It did not identify the Americans.

A Western diplomat in Islamabad said: "There is no U.S. citizen in Afghanistan on official business."

The diplomat, speaking on condition of anonymity, said he had heard nothing of an American citizen being killed inside the war-torn country.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Nancy Beck also said she knew nothing of the report and said she could not even say whether any Americans were in Afghanistan.

In recent years, three Americans have been killed in Afghanistan — Lee Shapiro, Jim Landiloff and Charles Thornton, a reporter for the Arizona Republic newspaper. Details on the first two were not immediately available.

The Pakistani government had no immediate comment on the latest report.

Radio Kabul said the Afghan army offensive was in retaliation for repeated rocket attacks on Gardez. It said 1,592 rockets blasted Gardez in the past 25 days, killing 31 people and injuring another 42.

In a dispatch from Kabul, Tass reported 40 guerrilla casualties and said three armed insurgents were taken prisoner during a battle in Qandahar province near the Pakistan border.

Bakhtar, the official news agency of Afghanistan's Marxist government, reported a shootout between rival Moslem rebel factions who clashed over how to split up war booty in Laghman province near Kabul, Tass said.

accents & images, inc.
1112 Laramie
537-9024
20% OFF ALL FRAMED PICTURES IN STOCK
Posters, Prints
Custom Framing

IMPRESSIONS
25% OFF
Perm reg. $40
Cut & Style reg. $15
Haircut reg. $10
411 Poyntz
Lower Level•DOWNTOWN
Call: 537-1332
expires 10/31/88

MONDAY IS SLAB NIGHT
SLAB OF RIBS $9
($3.00 OFF REGULAR PRICE!)
genuine hickory smoked BBQ ribs and mounds of our homemade fries
(feeds 2-4). 5-10pm
PLUS $1 ALL DOMESTIC LONGNECKS

LAST CHANCE
1213 Moro Street, Aggieiville, 776-6451

2-Fer Lunch
Get 2 All-U-Can Eat Pizza & Salad Lunch Buffets or Only $5.50 Plus Tax
M-F Only 11 A.M.-2 P.M.
SHOWBIZ PIZZA PLACE
Not good with any other offer or special 519 Richards Dr.
776-1170
Offer Expires 11/30/88

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.
Confidential pregnancy testing • Safe, affordable abortion services • Birth control • Tubal ligation • Gyn exams • Testing and treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Providing quality health care to women since 1974.
Insurance, VISA & MasterCard accepted.
Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe)
Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free (except KS) 1-800-227-1918

Early Fall Sweater SALE
NOW in progress
Save up to 50%
The Perfect Gift
Woody's ladies
1225 Moro
Aggieville

Get involved in Student Government
Student Body President
Student Senate
Board of Student Publications
Filing forms available in SGA office
Due Oct. 18, 1988 5 p.m.
Vote on Nov. 1 or 2 Bring Fee Card
SGA Office—
Union Ground Floor 532-6541
SGA

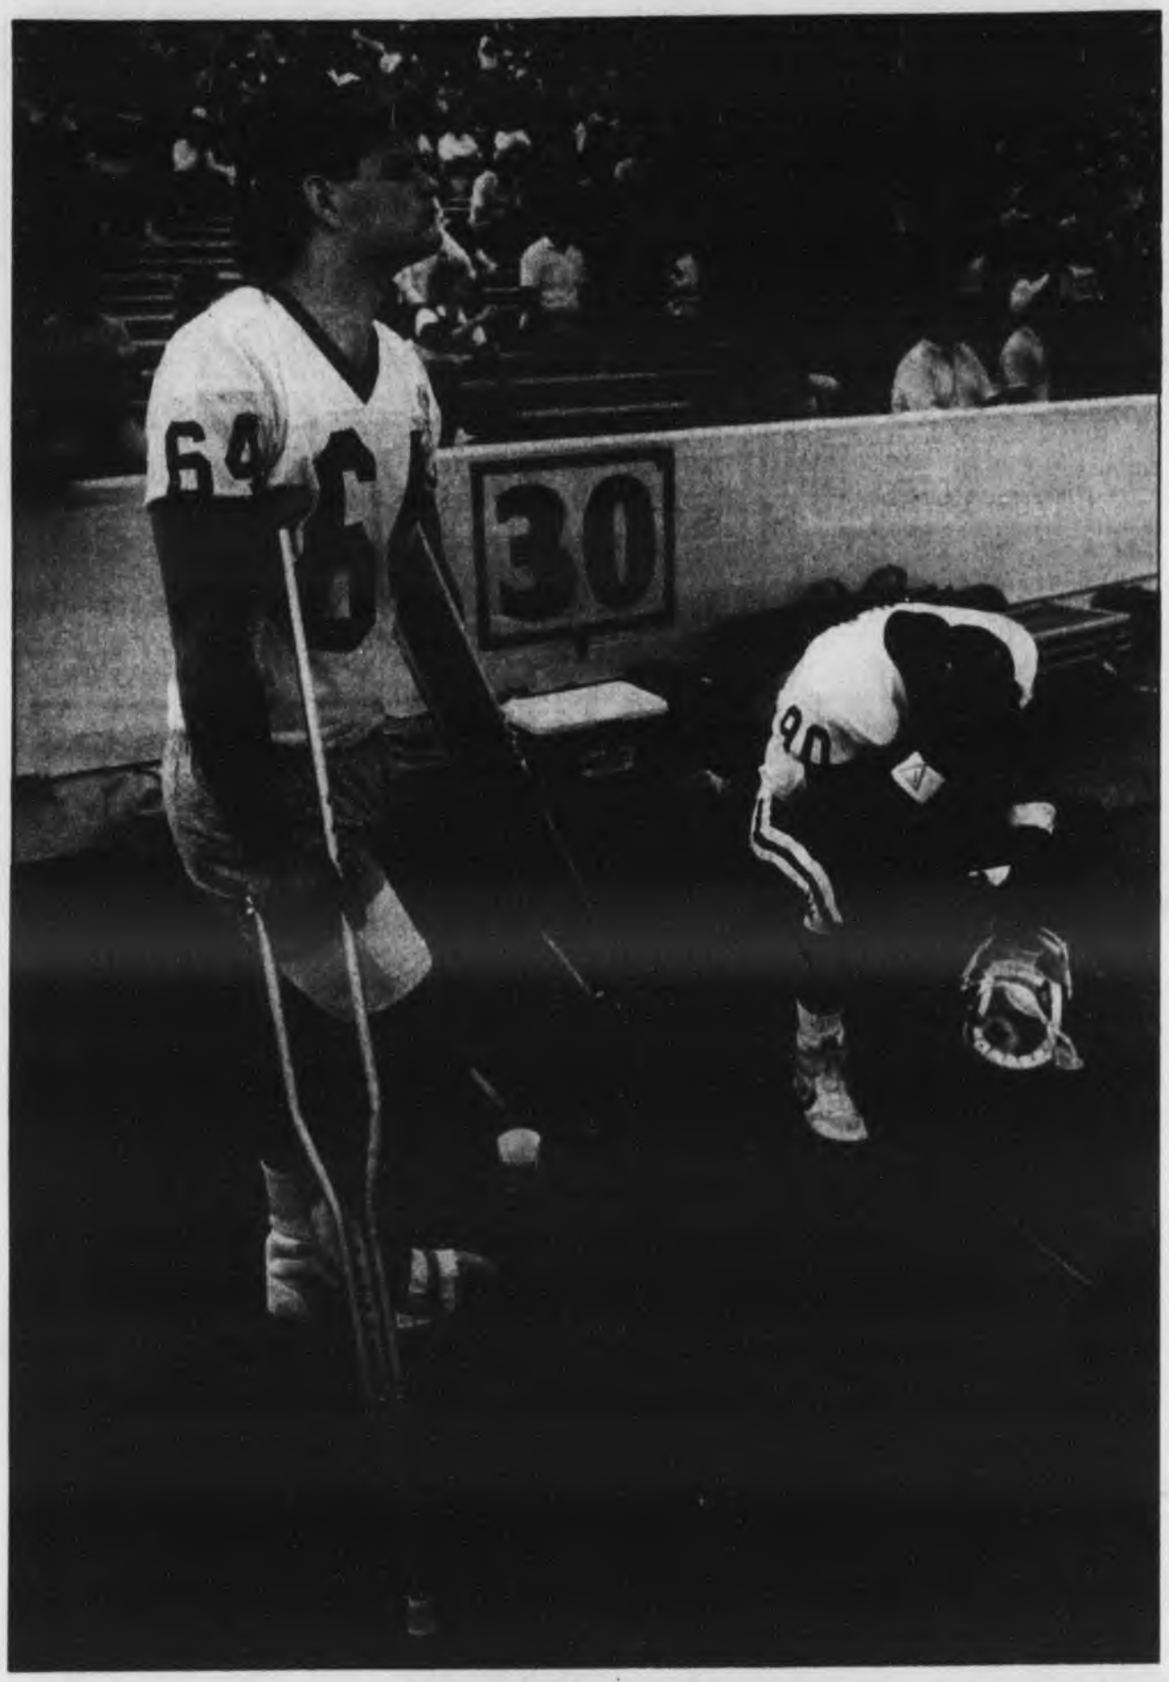
776-5577 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

Alpha Gamma Delta
Criterium Bike Race
for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation
Sunday, Oct. 23, 1988 1-5:30 p.m., Manhattan, KS
Information: Call Alpha Gamma Delta at (913) 776-1770

NEED TO GET YOUR MESSAGE OUT?

Selling your bicycle?

Need a job?



Buying a sofa?

Need a roommate?
the Collegian Classifieds
Kedzie 103 Phone 532-6555
Deadline-noon the day before publication

BRAMLAGE COLISEUM

THURSDAY OCTOBER 20
7:30 PM • $16.00
ALL SEATS RESERVED
L.A. Guns
ON SALE NOW
Tickets available at Bramlage Coliseum Box Office, Middle Earth Records (in Junction City), ITTR Office (at Fort Riley), Mother Earth Records and Budget Tapes & Records (in Topeka), the University of Kansas Student Union (in Lawrence) or charge by phone (913) 532-7606.
Tickets may be subject to a service charge.
A CONTEMPORARY PRESENTATION

SportsMonday

ABOVE: K-State offensive tackle Russ Stange watches the game from the sideline after he was injured in Saturday's 70-24 loss to the Oklahoma Sooners. The Sooners overwhelmed the 'Cats by setting a new NCAA rushing record of 768 yards. The old mark, also held by Oklahoma, was set in 1980 against Colorado and was 10 yards shorter than Saturday's record. RIGHT: K-State quarterback Carl Straw is sacked by Oklahoma defensive tackle Tom Backes. Straw completed 27 passes for 336 yards.

OU sets NCAA record during 70-24 victory

By Tom Morris
Sports Editor

NORMAN, Okla. — Sooners' coach Barry Switzer spent most of the afternoon wondering how other college teams around the country were faring, while K-State coach Stan Parrish was searching for a painkiller.

That's how varied the two opinions were Saturday when Oklahoma set a NCAA rushing record en route to a 70-24 whipping of the Wildcats in Owen Stadium.

Switzer knew well in advance his squad could manhandle K-State.

"We spent most of the afternoon listening to scores around the country," Switzer said.

Of particular interest to Switzer and the Sooners was Nebraska's defeat of Oklahoma State, and Notre Dame's defeating No. 1-ranked Miami.

"I'd love to play Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl," Oklahoma junior tackle Mark VanKiersback said. "We're happy because we won't have to play Miami to win the national championship. With some of the teams losing today — Oklahoma State, Miami and South Carolina — we should move up in the polls."

After the Sooners scored 35 points in the first half, Parrish said he was hoping the score would stay away from 100.

"The first quarter was like a trip to the dentist for four root canals with no Novocaine," Parrish said. "We were shook beyond belief. They're just like they always are. We had people in position, and they just ran around us."

In the game, OU set a NCAA record with 768 yards rushing. It erased the old mark of 758, set by the Sooners against Colorado in 1980. Oklahoma also set a school mark with 38 earned first downs, which broke the old record of 37, set against K-State in 1971.

OU's 829 yards of total offense was second best in the school's history — the record is 875 against Colorado eight years ago — and it was the highest ever against K-State. The previous high was 785 in 1971.

Halfback Eric Mitchel paced OU's track meet with 161 yards rushing. The 6-foot-1, 205-pound senior carried the ball just six times and had two touchdowns.

"Every game I play is a confidence builder," Mitchel said. "Everytime I step on the field I think I can do that. I give a lot of credit to my linemen, and to Jesus Christ."

Sophomore quarterback Charles Thompson also cemented his status as starting quarterback over the injured Jamelle Holieway. Thompson had 124 yards rushing on 10 carries, rushing for two touchdowns and passing for another, all in the first half.

Staff Photos/Greg Vogel

The Sooners' Chris Cabbiness stretches for a ball as K-State's Tyreese Herds attempts to break up the pass.

"I'm looking for the chance to take control of this team, be the leading quarterback and just do the things it takes to win," Thompson said. "When you rush for 768 yards, you don't have to say much about the offensive performance. That sort of statistic speaks for itself."

But the 'Cats set some standards of their own.

Carl Straw's 89-yard touchdown pass to Greg Washington in the third quarter was the longest ever against OU. The old mark of 87 was set by Oklahoma State in 1949.

"The first quarter was like a trip to the dentist for four root canals with no novacaine. We were shook beyond belief. They're just like they always are. We had people in position, and they just ran around us."

—Stan Parrish, K-State football coach

Washington, who had eight receptions for 146 yards, tied the schools' series record for most catches in a game and also tied a K-State record for most touchdown receptions in a season with six. Washington now has caught a touchdown pass in five straight games.

K-State's 24 points were also the most it has scored against OU in 17 years.

"We were not going to lay down," Washington said. "Coach Parrish told us to come out and win the second half and I think we did. That (24 points) is really good. I'm happy to be a part of this offensive squad."

After K-State had touched the ball only once, Oklahoma was ahead 14-0. The 'Cats watched while Thompson led his team to five first-quarter touchdowns, capped by his 77-yard scoring run.

While Oklahoma fans and players grudgingly came back for the second half, the 'Cats were poised for an ambush. Straw, playing for the injured Paul Watson, completed 22 of 29 passes for 228 yards and three touchdowns in the second half.

In the game, Straw completed 27 of 41 attempts for 336 yards, which was remarkable, considering how he began. On K-State's first two possessions, Straw threw an interception and fumbled a snap.

"Straw didn't know where he was at all," Parrish said. "He was shook."

Anytime a team makes an annual appearance in the top 20 such as Oklahoma, it's custom to ask the opposition to rate the team.

And just like last year when the Wildcats were downed by Oklahoma, K-State's players predicted the Sooners would be defeated before the season ends.

"They weren't as strong as last year," Washington said. "Nebraska will get them."

"They didn't have the caliber of players they had last year, or the year before that or the year before that," added junior linebacker Maurice Henry.

STATISTIC	KSU	OU
First Downs	21	38
Rushing Yards	72	768
Passing Yards	347	61
Return Yards	15	62
Att.-Comp.-Int.	44-28-2	14-6-2
Total Yards	419	829
Fumbles-Lost	3-3	4-1
Penalties	5-40	14-105
K-STATE	0 0 7 17—24
OKLAHOMA	35 14 7 14—70

RUSHING — K-State, Dillon 6-57, S. Jones 7-29, Pickett 10-24, Dulan 1-(-1) Straw 6-(-37); Oklahoma, Mitchel 6-161, Thompson 10-123, Stafford 10-83, Melson 10-61, Perry 5-58, Gaddis 3-55, Fisher 6-46, Milburn 1-41, Anderson 6-38, Bell 6-36, Muti 1-34, Stell 4-35, Cooper 1-16, Holieway 2-(-19).

PASSING — K-State, Straw 41-27-2-336, Cobb 3-1-0-11; Oklahoma, Thompson 3-1-0-3, Holieway 9-5-1-58, Nelson 2-0-1-0.

RECEIVING — K-State, Dillon 3-36, L. Jones 2-20, Friedrich 5-40, Dulan 4-17, Washington 8-146, Hernandez 3-63, Tolbert 1-6, Austin 2-19; Oklahoma, Cooper 2-19, Stafford 1(-2), Guess 1-11, Perry 2-33.

A — 73,800.

Bengals lose first game to Patriots

By The Associated Press

The passing of Boomer Esiason was the main ingredient in Cincinnati's 6-0 start. It also was the main reason the Bengals no longer are undefeated.

Esiason, the league's leading passer, was picked off five times — he had only three interceptions in the winning streak — and New England used a time-consuming ground attack to upset the Bengals 27-21 Sunday. The Patriots' victory meant every NFL team has lost at least once.

With four first-half interceptions and two second-half touchdowns by Reggie Dupard, the Patriots, 3-4, made the big plays. Cincinnati couldn't overcome its mistakes.

In the first half, New England caught twice as many passes from Esiason as it did from its own passer, Doug Flutie, who completed two of four.

"Any time you turn the ball over as much as we did today," Esiason said, "I don't care how bad the team is that you're playing, they're going to beat you."

The Patriots, walloped by Green Bay 45-3 last week, ran for 158 yards. In one week, they went from losing to the last team without a victory this season to beating the last undefeated team in the NFL.

"We used the run because it was something we needed," Flutie said. "We tried for ball control to keep Boomer on the sidelines."

In other games, it was Indianapolis 35, Tampa Bay 31; Washington 33, Phoenix 17; Cleveland 19, Philadelphia 3; Chicago 17, Dallas 7; the New York Giants 30, Detroit 10; Green Bay 34, Minnesota 14; Houston 34, Pittsburgh 14.

In late games, Miami beat San Diego 31-28; San Francisco took the Los Angeles Rams 24-21 to tie an NFL record with 11 straight road victories; New Orleans edged Seattle 20-19; and Denver defeated Atlanta 30-14.

Buffalo visits the New York Jets tonight.

Dolphins 31, Chargers 28

At Miami, the Dolphins won their third in a row as Dan Marino won a passing duel with Mark Malone. Marino had his first 300-yard passing game of the season and hit Mark Duper with a 51-yard pass to set up the winning touchdown.

Miami, 4-3, rallied from a 28-17 fourth-quarter deficit to hand San Diego, 2-5, its third consecutive loss.

49ers 24, Rams 21

Roger Craig had the finest day of his pro career and the best by an NFL runner this year, rushing for 190 yards and three touchdowns. Craig carried 22 times and scored on runs of 46, two and 16 yards, with the 16-yarder early in the fourth quarter bringing the 49ers back from a 21-17 deficit.

The 49ers, 5-2, haven't lost away from San Francisco since the second game of last season. The winning streak, which includes seven last season and four this year, matches the mark of the Los Angeles Chargers-San Diego Chargers in 1960-61 in the AFL.

The Rams, also 5-2 and one game behind first-place New Orleans, got three TD passes from Jim Everett.

Saints 20, Seahawks 19

New Orleans, like San Francisco, is hot away from home. The Saints won their ninth straight road game as Gene Atkins blocked a field goal and Dave Waymer ran 58 yards with it for a touchdown.

Jackson runs over Kansas City, 27-17

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Sports fans in Kansas City have learned to expect the unexpected from Bo Jackson, but Mike Shanahan is still learning.

"Bo really suprised me," the Los Angeles coach said Sunday after Jackson made his 1988 NFL debut by gaining 70 yards and scoring a touchdown in the Raiders' 27-17 victory over the Chiefs.

After hitting 25 home runs and batting .246 as an outfielder for the Kansas City Royals, Jackson reported to the Raiders only last Wednesday for what he has termed his "hobby."

"He came in in excellent shape and really kind of surprised me," Shanahan said. "He looked like he got stronger as the game went on."

The Chiefs' biggest crowd in 16 years packed Arrowhead Stadium for Jackson's second Kansas City homecoming as a Raider.

"For not putting on pads for a year, I'm kind of stiff," said Jackson, who had several Royals teammates with him in the locker-room.

If there was a turning point, it came in the fourth period just after the Chiefs had closed to 14-10. A fumbled punt gave the Raiders the ball on the Kansas City 11, and led to a quick, cheap touchdown.

Dodgers down A's, take 2-0 Series lead

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Orel Hershiser did it all, holding Oakland's big bashers to three hits and getting three himself Sunday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Athletics 6-0 and took a stunning 2-0 lead in the World Series.

Hershiser's super season, which ended with a record 59 consecutive shutout innings, got even better with his most incredible performance of the year. He became the first pitcher to get three hits — including two doubles — in a World Series game since 1924 and the first ever to throw shutouts in both the playoffs and the World Series. He even threw in a fine fielding play.

World Series: LA 6, Oakland 0

The Dodger Bulldog, who has worked almost half his team's innings in the postseason, now has allowed just three earned runs in his last 92 innings.

Mike Marshall contributed a three-run homer and a triple as the Dodgers again did everything right against the heavily favored Athletics. This time, Los Angeles didn't need miracle man Kirk Gibson, who won Game 1 with a two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth but did not play Sunday because of hamstring and ligament damage.

Gibson's status remained day-to-day going into Game 3 Tuesday night in Oakland when Bob Welch opposed Los Angeles' John Tudor. Of 38 teams that have won the first two games in the World Series, 28 have gone on to win the championship.

The victory marked the 12th consecutive game the home team has won in the World Series. But the Dodgers didn't require the home-field advantage; they had Hershiser.

Baseball's most dominant pitcher showed baseball's winningest team something it hadn't seen. Only Dave Parker could solve Hershiser, getting three singles, but twice Mark McGwire followed by grounding into double plays, and Hershiser evened that one by striking him out to end the game.

K-State places teams in top 5 at Cal-Poly meet

From Staff and Wire Reports

Before Coach John Capriotti and his cross country teams left Thursday for Saturday's Cal Poly Invitational in San Luis Obispo, Calif., he said he would be pleased with two fifth-place finishes.

Instead, in both teams' toughest meet of the young season, he got a third-place finish from the men and a fifth-place showing from the women. But Capriotti thinks his squads are capable of doing a lot better.

"No one on our men's team had an exceptional race. A few ran okay, but some didn't run well at all. I've got to be encouraged though, because we can get better in every position. We have a top 20 team, but there are some good teams in our conference."

—John Capriotti, cross country coach

"No one on our men's team had an exceptional race," Capriotti said. "A few ran OK, but some didn't run well at all. I've got to be encouraged though, because we can get better in every position. We have a top-20 team, but there are some good teams in our conference."

The men were led by Pat Hessini (25:14) who placed 14th. David Keller (25:17) and David Warders (25:21) took 20th and 21st, respectively. Following them were Jan Jonssan, at 35th (25:35), Rob Hays, at 36th (25:38), Ron Smith, at 40th (25:51), and Roger Koester, at 71st (26:14). Brian Zwahlen, who was running in his first meet this season, as were Warders and Jonssan, did not finish the five-mile course.

For the women, freshman Janet Haskin continued to shine. She finished the 5,000 meters in third place with a time of 17:36. She finished behind only Sammie Rash of Nebraska (17:28) and Karen Keller of the Reebok Aggies (17:29). In fact, she even made a move to catch Rash.

Also turning in solid performances were Angie Barry, who finished 18th (18:16) and Janet Treiber, who came in 20th (18:17). Jenny Faunce finished 48th (18:46) and rounding out the scoring were Becky Ives, in 60th place (19:02), Marge Eddy, 68th (19:10) and Jennifer Hillier, 70th (19:18).

"We ran real well," Capriotti said of the women. "Our first three runners did good. Jenny ran respectful, but the others had an off day, and we didn't get much help. We competed well everywhere else. I think we're a little better than I originally thought."

K-State will have two weeks off before the Big Eight Cross Country championships Oct. 29 at Stillwater, Okla.

MEN'S TEAM RESULTS

Reebok Aggies 83, Nebraska 105, K-State 126, Fresno State 143, Cal Poly 147, UCLA 155, Running Express 155, California-Irvine 166, Southern California 183, Cal Poly-Pomona 264, Cal State-Los Angeles 327, Cal-Riverside 363, Cal State-Hayward 412, Occidental 490.

WOMEN'S TEAM RESULTS

UCLA 93, Nebraska 94, Cal-Berkley 106, Cal Poly 142, K-State 149, Fresno State 205, Running Express 207, Reebok Aggies 246, Rice 255, Cal-Irvine 260, Cal State-Los Angeles 329, Cal-Davis, Occidental 419, San Diego State 477.

Wildcats snap losing streak

By Mike Rouse
Sports Writer

K-State's volleyball team got the monkey off its back this weekend, breaking a nine-match losing streak with consecutive victories over Iowa State University and Drake University.

The Wildcats started the weekend by beating Iowa State Friday night in Ahearn Field House in four games, 17-15, 15-12, 13-15, 15-11.

Coach Scott Nelson said the team finally maintained its intensity for the entire match instead of shying away toward the end.

"We needed to prove to ourselves that we could step up and win a match."

—Scott Nelson volleyball coach

"We needed to prove to ourselves that we could step up and win a match," Nelson said. "We have been in a lot of matches this year but have stepped back when they made a run at us. Tonight we didn't do that."

Nelson also called Friday's victory "a good team win."

"We need to rely on the team's need instead of the individual's need."

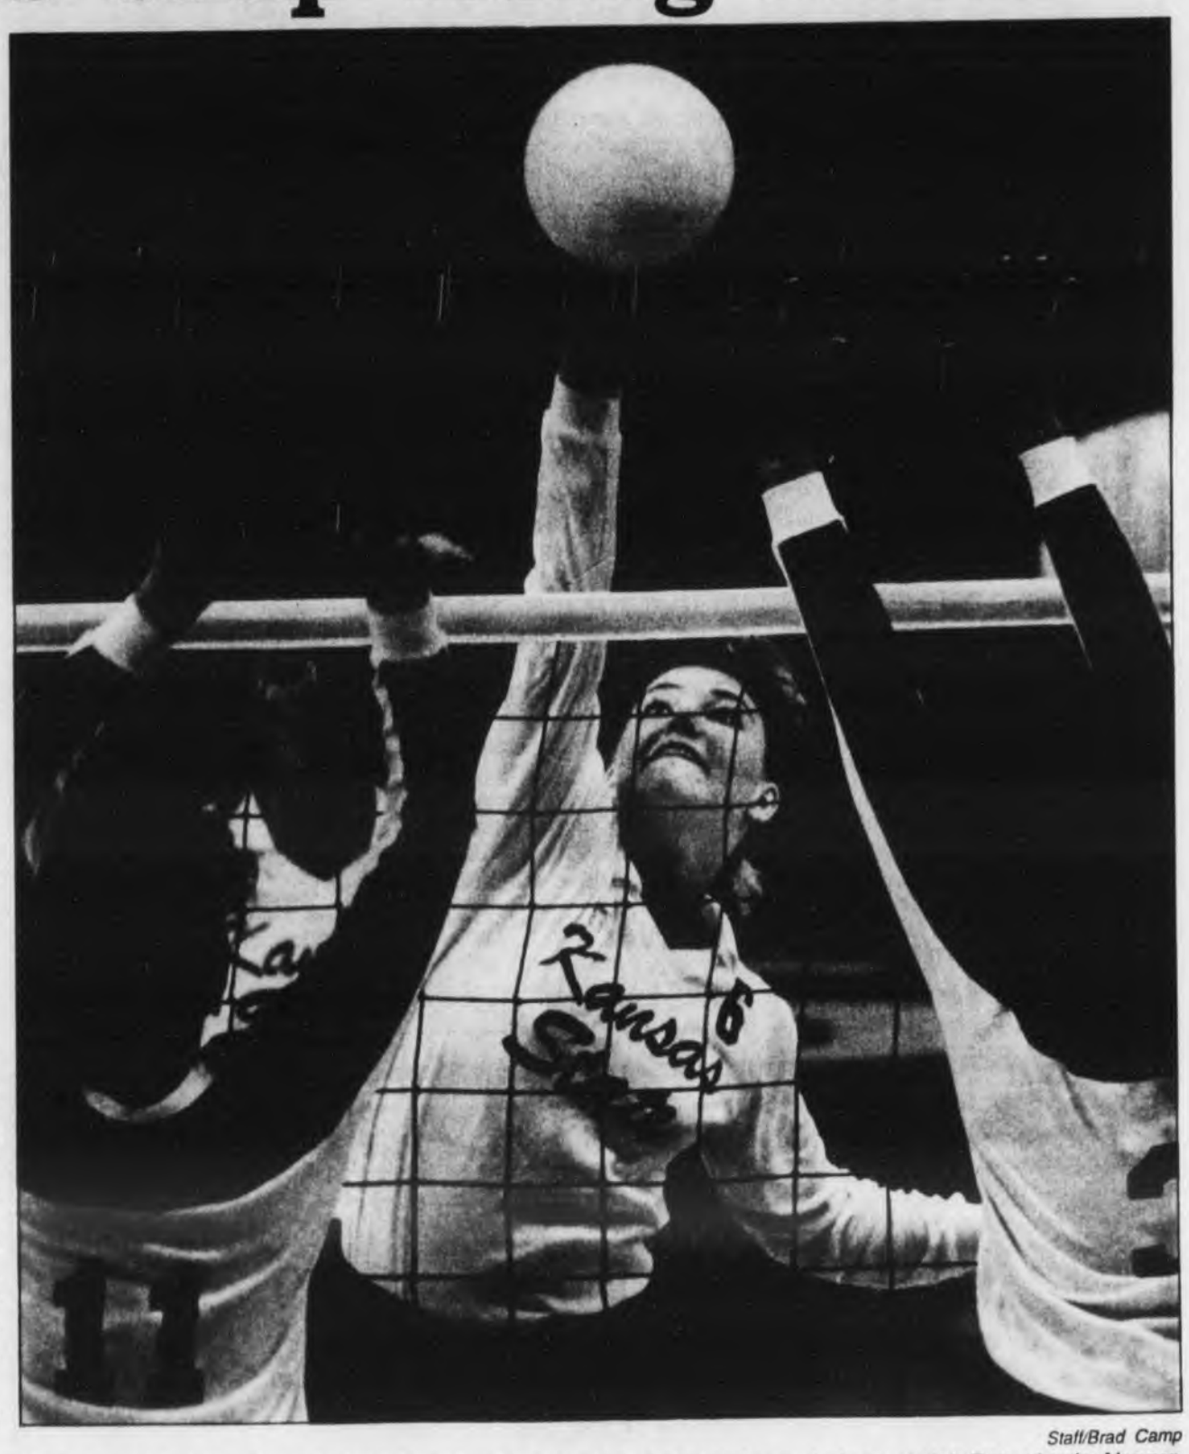
Lynda Harshbarger led the team with 13 kills against the Cyclones. Amy Dodson had 11 digs and made some key plays down the stretch.

"Amy gave herself a burst of effort, sprinted out there and stopped one or two balls," Nelson said.

Shawnee Call had 11 kills and Valerie Kastens had 10 for the 'Cats.

Against Drake on Saturday, the 'Cats needed only a little more than an hour to dispose of the Bulldogs in straight sets, 15-9, 15-8, 15-11.

K-State's win came just 14 hours after Friday night's match.



"It is always hard to a comeback from an emotionally-invested match, but I think that we also carried the emotion over into Saturday," Nelson said.

Harshbarger led the team in kills with 10 and also added six digs.

"Lynda has been playing real solid, but she will have more success if our other attackers have more success," Nelson said. "When we put out a more balanced attack and we have a lot of people contributing, it goes to everyone's advantage."

In Saturday's win, Mary Kinsey broke a school record for career serving aces with 169. She had four for the weekend. Call also broke during the weekend the school records for career kills (1,217) and career digs (1,055). Call had 15 kills and 18 digs in the two matches.

The victories boosted K-State to 10-9 overall and 1-4 in the Big Eight Conference. The 'Cats will travel to Oklahoma Friday for a conference match.

Staff/Brad Camp

K-State middle hitter Amy Dodson spikes the ball into the Drake defense during a match Saturday in Ahearn Field House. The Wildcats defeated the Bulldogs in straight sets, 15-9, 15-8 and 15-11.

K-State's baseball squad shows hint of excitement

Count me among those who can't wait to get out to Frank Myers Field for the spring 1989 season to watch Coach Mike Clark's K-State baseball team.

If you're a fan of Earl Weaver's "sit back and wait for the three-run homer" philosophy, Frank Myers isn't the place for you next spring.

Not to say that this team doesn't have any power, but if you're expecting to see a murderer's row in purple and white, you're likely to be sadly disappointed.

If, however, you like the brand of baseball of Whitey Herzog's Kansas City and St. Louis teams, you'll love what Clark's team will show you.

"This team is a lot like the Cardinals. We're going to have to scrape for everything we can get," Clark said after Sunday's game against Kansas City Kansas Community College, which closed the fall campaign. "We can't sit back with the Oklahoma States and the Oklahomas and bang it out with them and expect to have a chance. We're going to run, run, run."

For assistant coach Phil Morgan, who is in his first year with the team, the fall campaign was a learning experience. What he discovered is his new team was perfectly suited to play the brand of baseball he enjoys most.

"I came in here not knowing what we had, but when I became more and more familiar with our guys, it was apparent we had the kind of team I'm very comfortable with," Morgan said. "We're going to manufacture a lot of runs.

"It's a different style of play than what K-State fans might be used to. We're going to steal bases, hit-and-run, and might even use the bunt occasionally."

All of those things will be keys in the spring, Clark said. They're likely to be big keys for a team that struggled to out-hit anyone in the fall.

"I really don't think we out-hit that many people this fall, and I really don't expect us to next spring, either," Clark said. "We're going to have to get good pitching and play outstanding defense to beat people. I think you're going to see us win a lot of games 5-4 when a perfect hit-and-run drives in the winning run in a tight game.

Svoboda on Sports

DAVID SVOBODA
Sports Columnist

"That's exciting baseball for the fans to watch. It's a bit tough on a coach, but it's exciting."

Excitement is something the 'Cats are likely to provide plenty of in 1989. With the return of Rusty Ringgenberg from a back injury that sidelined him all of last year, K-State's outfield is extremely quick. Clark referred to the outfield as "phenomenal" defensively, and a strong outfield defense is a key to K-State making a run at a first-division finish in the Big Eight.

Another key is on the pitcher's mound. The mound is the home of one of K-State's most vocal, free-spirited performers in pitcher Jeff Peterson. Peterson threw for the first time this fall Sunday, and responded with four innings of one-hit, shutout baseball.

If Peterson is on, the 'Cats will be tough for anyone to beat every time he takes the mound.

Another thing that encouraged Clark, especially with his emphasis on pitching and defense, was the fact that K-State committed just two errors in 27 innings over the weekend.

That performance came with many young players seeing a great deal of playing time. That bodes well for the future, Clark and Morgan agree.

"In the games against Creighton, we wanted our young kids in particular to get an idea of what they were going to be coming up against in the spring and where they need to be competitive at that level," Morgan said. "We've shown great improvement to that end.

"I don't think we're where we need to be yet, but we can be a very good club in the spring."

"We've got a good, raw team," Clark added. "Our success is going to be something we earn."

Clark's unit might just do that in the spring, especially if the morale is as good as it was Sunday afternoon. At the end of Bill Barnard's three-run, inside-the-park homer against KCCC, an ambulance left The St. Mary Hospital, lights flashing and sirens blaring.

Several of Clark's players, and Clark himself, were heard shouting, "Over here, over here," and, "He's the guy who needs help," as Barnard got up out of his slide at the plate. Clark said that's typical of what's gone on this fall, and if it's the case in the spring, it should be a fun campaign.

With the addition of bleachers that were removed from Ahearn Field House, Frank Myers will accomodate a great many more fans this next spring. Those fans should be treated to some of the most exciting baseball they've seen here in years.

Clark's young team may not bowl people over, but baseball purists will love what they're likely to see.

Flag football champions crowned

By Brian Hummell
Staff Writer and Chris Hays
Sports Writer

Just because the Wildcats were on the road this weekend to play the University of Oklahoma doesn't mean football was absent from the University.

The Phi Delta Theta fraternity had its "Score for Charity: Do It for Lou" benefit football tournament this past weekend to raise money to fight Lou Gehrig's disease. The weekend also marked the crowning of the all-University flag football champion.

In the intramural flag football finals Sunday, Tau Kappa Epsilon defeated Phi Wacka Jacka, 28-12.

The TKEs scored on their first possession with a seven-play drive that was capped by a five-yard touchdown pass. TKE also scored on its other two first-half possessions while holding Phi Wacka Jacka scoreless, leading 20-0 at halftime.

Phi Wacka Jacka came back with a seven-play touchdown drive of its own to start the second half. But, after holding the TKEs for one series, Phi Wacka Jacka threw an interception that the TKEs returned for a touchdown.

"Our offense controlled the ball and hit the open man," said Kelly Johnson, senior in marketing and offensive captain for the TKEs. "We know we can score if we're playing right."

Greg Morgan, senior in secondary education and defensive captain, said the game marked the TKEs' best defensive game of the season.

Phi Wacka Jacka had won the independent division and had beat the residence hall division champions Marlatt 1, 50-18, in order to face the fraternity division champion.

The co-rec championship was also decided Sunday as R.T. Sions beat the Blackshirts, 24-0. The Too Tough, the independent division champions, beat the sorority champions, Alpha Delta Pi, Thursday.

"Score for Charity" coordinator Brad Kvasnicka, junior in pre-professional business administration, said expenses for the event were still being tallied Sunday night. But the Phi Delts hope to raise about $2,000 to fight amyotrophic lateral sclerosis.

The championship games were played Sunday at KSU Stadium. In the men's division, Theta Xi took the title by defeating the Lost Boys, an independent team. Alpha Delta Pi defeated Kappa Kappa Gamma to claim the women's championship.

Collegian/David Watson

Darryl Rowley, member of the Lost Boys, pulls the flag of the Phi Wacka Jacka quarterback during the semifinals of the Phi Delta Theta Flag Football Tournament this weekend. The Lost Boys won the game 21-20.

Sports Briefly

Baseball team ends season

K-State's baseball team ended its fall season with a split of a doubleheader against Creighton University Saturday and a single-game win over Kansas City Kansas Community College Sunday at Frank Myers Field.

The Wildcats, using a split squad Saturday against the Blue Jays, dropped the opener 7-4 before winning the second game in dramatic fashion, 3-2.

In Sunday's win over KCKCC, senior Jeff Peterson threw for the first time this fall and responded with four innings of one-hit, shutout ball. Junior Bill Barnard led the K-State offense, hitting a three-run, inside-the-park homer to lead the 'Cats to the 9-5 triumph.

Pregame steak fry planned

K-State's track and field teams will sponsor a steak fry Saturday before the Nebraska football game. The all-you-can-eat steak fry will be from 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. at the north end of KSU Stadium. The $25 ticket covers all the steak and beer that is desired. Proceeds from the steak fry will go directly to the K-State track and field programs.

Reservations may be made by calling the K-State track office at 532-6567. Tickets are also available the day of the steak fry or by contacting any K-State track athlete or by visiting the track and field office in Ahearn.

Tyson to fight in January

NEW YORK — Mike Tyson is now scheduled to defend the heavyweight title against Frank Bruno of Britain on Jan. 14, instead of Dec. 17, at a site to be determined, Bill Cayton, Tyson's manager said Sunday.

Bruno was scheduled to fly from London to New York on Monday and hold a news conference.

Republican Knopp confident about re-election to House

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

Editor's note: This is part four of a series on the candidates for the Kansas Legislature.

Ask Republican and House Majority Leader Joe Knopp to describe his chances of being re-elected to the state House of Representatives from the 67th District, and he will give you a one-word answer: "Excellent."

"The people of this district know that I grew up in Kansas," Knopp said. "I know the importance of K-State to this state. I understand this campus."

He said he also believes the experience he has gained in the Legislature will be beneficial for him in his re-election efforts and for the district.

"Being effective in the Legislature depends upon the respect and confidence of your peers," Knopp said. "In my eight years in the Legislature, I have consistently grown and developed and have earned the confidence and respect of my colleagues."

That much, he said, is evidenced by his service as House Majority Leader for the past two years. He said people sometimes expect him to do miracles because of his position, but he said being House Majority Leader doesn't mean he can "dictate" to other legislators.

Knopp said this is the case with his Democratic opponent, Sheila Hochhauser, "who wants to be very parochial, or who likes to ask, 'What have you done for me lately?'"

Looking to the next legislative session, Knopp said he supports and has always supported full funding for the Kansas Board of Regents budget. He said the regents received 98 percent of everything they asked for last year, a figure which he said includes the first year's funding of the Margin of Excellence.

"Knowing what K-State means to this state, I'm going to be supporting full funding (again)," he said.

Knopp also said he believes a bill for a state highway program will be an issue again in the Legislature, and he said he will "certainly" support it.

"If Kansans won't invest in themselves, then nobody will," he said. "To me, it's an essential part of the economic development of the State of Kansas."

Knopp said he believes it will get more support in the Legislature this year, but is not certain if it will get the support it needs to pass.

He does, however, oppose any of the $300 million state windfall tax money going to that area. Instead, he said the money ought to be used for higher education programs and the construction of a prison, among other things.

On the issue of prison overcrowding in Kansas, Knopp said he has never been "a fan" of building prisons, but said that at least one more prison may be needed.

He said he would favor a system that would allow judges to work with parole officers. Judges should have viable alternatives to incarcerating non-violent offenders and sound means should be available to the state to reduce the number of people in prisons, he said.

Knopp said he is opposed to the death penalty, but could support one that would only apply to contract killers, multiple or mass murderers and murderers of hostages, witnesses or prison guards.

Peace 'difficult' for Angola

By The Associated Press

JAMBA, Angola — Angolan rebel leader Jonas Savimbi says peace negotiations to remove Cuban soldiers from Angola and establish independence for South-West Africa are at a difficult but irreversible stage.

"I don't see how the process can be interrupted. It can only be expedited. I don't see how the clock can be turned back," Savimbi said Friday in an interview at a supply camp for his National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, known as UNITA.

Under a U.S.-mediated peace accord among Angola, Cuba and South Africa, more than 50,000 Cuban troops supporting Angola's Marxist regime are expected to withdraw within two years.

Savimbi said all but 5,000 troops should pull out in the first year.

The four nations also have been negotiating the withdrawal of South African troops from South-West Africa, also known as Namibia, which is to gain its independence.

The discussions — which have excluded UNITA — are to resume in about a week in Brazzaville, Congo, to meet a Nov. 1 target date for implementing a U.N. independence plan for Namibia.

Savimbi said he has conferred separately with both U.S. and South African representatives.

Savimbi moves elusively through the bush, rarely spending more than one night in a place. He was interviewed by The Associated Press in a thatched house at dawn.

Reporters were driven by UNITA escorts to supply camp Luangundo B from Jamba, UNITA's grass-hut headquarters in southeastern Angola, in 18 hours of bone-crunching travel in an open truck.

CONGRATULATIONS
1988 Greek Playboy
Sean Buffum ΦKT
All-around House Winner
ΠΚΑ
Mr. Legs Contest Winner
Tracy Bollig TKE
Modeling Interview Winner
Todd Dugan ΔΤΔ
POWER FM 94.5

Yoli Style Salon Tanning · Manicures
539-1177
1106 Laramie
Aggieville
GRAND OPENING
$5 off Cut & Style
$2 off French Manicure
prices effective thru Sat., Oct. 22
REGISTER TO WIN
haircuts
1 perm
manicures
tanning sessions
Walk-ins always welcome

UNITED ARTISTS
$2.50 PER PERSON
SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 p.m.
UA SETH CHILDS 6
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD. 776-8686
MESSENGER OF DEATH R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
COMING TO AMERICA R
Daily 7:15, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:15, 4:35
YOUNG GUNS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:45
DEAD RINGERS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:05, 4:30
COCKTAIL R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:35
BIG PG
Daily 7:25, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:30

WINTERIZATION SPECIAL
TIME TO WINTERIZE

$49.95
All Cars and Light Trucks
1) Flush Complete Cooling and Heating System
2) Replace with Fresh Anti-Freeze Mixture
3) Test System to 30 Degrees Below Zero
4) Check Heater Water Control Valve
5) Check Heater Control Cables & Blower Motor
6) Check Radiator Hoses & Heater Hoses
7) Check All Drive Belts
8) Replace Windshield Washer Solution/Deicer Solution
9) Check Windshield Washer & Wiper Operation
10) Inspect Windshield Wiper Blades
11) Test Complete System for Proper Operation
PLUS PLUS PLUS PLUS
FREE 2 Westloop Cinema Theatre Tickets
with the purchase of a Winterization Special and a copy of this ad.
TOYOTA QUALITY
WHO COULD ASK FOR ANYTHING MORE!
MANHATTAN HONDA mazda TOYOTA
2828 Amherst Ave.
Seth Childs At Amherst
Manhattan 539-7441

7th Annual ΠΚΑ 1988 Lil' SISTER OLYMPICS
Mon. 9-11 p.m.— Sign-in at Brother's
Wed. 9-11 p.m. Fluffy Rabbit, Brother's Pizza Eating
Fri. 4-7 p.m.— Ideal Greek Walk-through Free Hamburgers, Brother's
Sat. 9 a.m.-Noon— Final Day Games in South End of Ahearn
JOIN US WITH COORS AT BROTHER'S IN AGGIEVILLE MONDAY, WEDNESDAY & FRIDAY
SPONSORED BY
Coors · Pyramid Ales · Sunflower Graphics · KSKT Radio 95.3 fm · Brothers in Aggieville

NON-Trivial PURSUIT
National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1988
1. Nationally, what percentage of drownings are alcohol related?
2. How many cans and bottles of beer can be produced every 24 hours, by Anheuser Busch, St. Louis, Mo.?
3. The life expectancy of alcoholic males is years shorter than the average male population.
4. For every $1 you spend for car insurance, how much goes to pay for damages done by a drunk driver?
5. How much beer, wine, or liquor can safely be consumed by a pregnant woman?
Answers: (1) 69% (2) 15.4 Million (3) 12 (4) 25¢ (5) NONE
All University Casino Night
Saturday, Oct. 22, 1988, 8 p.m.-Midnight
at Chameleons
FREE ADMISSION with KSU ID
Funded by City of Manhattan Special Alcohol Program Fund
Alcohol & Other Drug Education Service

Old Textbook Sale
UP TO 80% OFF!
BOOKS AS LOW AS 49¢
•Hundreds of new & used textbooks
•Various fields of study
•Some previously used at K-State
•Some from other universities
•Old editions
•Wholesaler overstock
Don't pass up this great opportunity to add to your personal library at a fraction of the regular cost!
Varney's BOOK STORE IN AGGIEVILLE
9-9 MON.-SAT.
12-5 SUN.

Strait 'touches' crowd at Saturday's concert

By Heather Huntington
Collegian Reporter

George Strait took time to reach out and touch everyone — at least those who were crowded in front of the stage following his performance Saturday evening.

Strait and his eight-man Ace in the Hole Band played to a crowd of more than 5,000 in Bramlage Coliseum, said Charlie Thomas, director of the coliseum.

"My favorite part of the concert was when he reached down to touch everyone, because I got to touch him," said Lisa Anderson, George Strait fan and junior in business administration.

According to Kathy Mattea, who opened for the concert, Strait is the "Mark Harmon of country music."

"Everyone goo goo's and ga ga's over Mark Harmon because he's so good-looking. Everyone goo goo's and ga ga's over George Strait the same way," Anderson said.

However, Strait's rugged good looks weren't the only crowd pleasers.

Using his powerful country voice, Strait belted out some of his fans' favorite songs.

"If You Ain't Lovin' You Ain't Livin," "Baby Blue," and "All My Ex's Live in Texas" were among some of the audience's favorites.

In addition to his own hit songs, Strait sang a few old country classics like "The Fireman" and "Take Me Back to Tulsa."

Strait's performance lasted 1½ hours, including a short encore when he sang, "Does Fort Worth Ever Cross Your Mind" and "Jambalia."

Mattea thrilled the audience by singing her hit song, "Eighteen Wheels and a Dozen Roses."

Strait will also be performing in Kansas City and has recently finished a performance in Wichita, Thomas said.

Although Strait has given several concerts in the area, Thomas said he felt the show drew a good crowd.

"The promoters were happy," he said.

The crowd seemed equally satisfied with the performance.

"I'll keep going to George Strait concerts as long as he keeps playing in the area," said Anderson, who has already been to four of his concerts.

Forum to focus on rural changes

By The Collegian Staff

Life's only consistency is change itself. How to face those changes will be the focus of the annual joint conference of the K-State Cooperative Extension Service and the Kansas agricultural experiment station Tuesday through Thursday in the Union.

More than 100 displays and posters emphasizing the conference's theme, "Showcase of Excellence," will be open for viewing Tuesday and Wednesday in the Union Ballroom.

The displays will be one of the most interesting parts of the conference for people on campus because they show some of the research underway at K-State, said Walter Woods, dean of the College of Agriculture.

John Patrick Jordan, administrator of the Cooperative State Research Service, will begin the conference at 1:10 p.m. Tuesday in the Union Forum Hall after President Jon Wefald's opening comments.

"Jordan's outlook on agriculture and rural America will set the stage for discussions on the role of Extension and the Experiment Station in meeting the needs of the state," Woods said.

The joint conference will end at noon Wednesday, but the Extension conference will continue until noon on Friday, he said.

IT'S HOMESTYLE!
BURGER FULL MEAL DEAL™

Dairy Queen brazier
$1.69 reg. $2.19
Offer good Mon., Oct 17 thru Fri., Oct. 21
1015 N. 3rd, Manhattan
776-4117

The Kansas Senate does not have an educator . . . Lana Oleen can address the tough educational issues for our district.

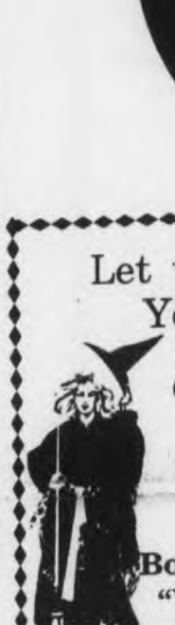
•KANSAS MASTER TEACHER
•Guest lecturer for K.S.U. classes
•Communications Director for State Dept. of Human Resources

Lana Oleen
KANSAS SENATE

Paid for by
Lana Oleen for Kansas State Senate
Kent Glasscock, chairman

KANSAS
STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK
SADD
Meeting:
October 18
Tuesday
8:30 p.m.
Union 204
776-3251

Mon., Wed., Fri.



CYNTHIA, top designer with 5 years experience. Specializes in long hair, and men's styling.
For introduction CYNTHIA is offering 50% off (reg. $18) a cut with style through Oct. 21st
Call CYNTHIA for your personal appointment.
776-8830
TINA'S Studio 32 FOR HAIR
Candlewood Shopping Center

The Station
STADIUM NIGHT MONDAY

$1 STADIUM BEERS
(24 oz!)
GAME ON 7 FT. TV
Jets
vs.
Bills
tonite!
Remember Taco Tuesday Tomorrow!

Let us DESIGN & MAKE-UP Your Halloween Costume

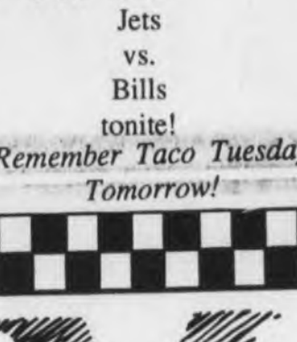
SCE SKIN CARE ESSENTIALS
&
Designer Boutique



Both Located on South Fourth
"We will sew & make your Halloween parties fun!"
Call: 537-9070 or 539-2622

JACK IS BACK

Save 10% to 50%
October 15-22, 1988
SPELLbinders inc.
INNOVATIVE INTERIORS
ART APPAREL
Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Ave. •Manhattan
539-7657• Monday - Saturday: 10:00-5:00

McCain auditorium
Vienna Choir Boys
Sunday, October 23
4:00 p.m.

The world's most beloved choir hasn't inspired delight since 1498 simply because they wear sailor suits and are adorable. They can sing! And sing they do: sacred and secular music, Austrian and American folksongs, even an operetta. Come, hear them, and find out why they've been captivating American audiences for 36 years.

"Full rich sound, superb intonation, and impeccable ensemble.... They put on a heckuva good show."
--Louisville Times

General Public: $15, 13, 10
Senior Citizens: $12, 10, 8
Student/Child: $10, 8, 5

Charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA at (913) 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5p.m. weekdays.

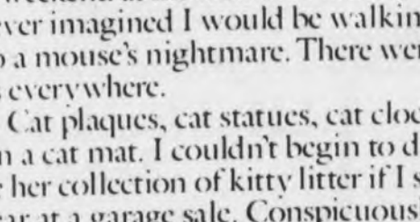
Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and ManhattanArts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at (913) 537-4400.

This program is presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

LADIES
Truckload
SHOE SALE

Over 4,000 pairs as low as $9.97
Save up to 75% OFF

Now thru 22nd only.
Open: Mon.-Sat. 9-6, Thur. till 8:30, Sun. 1-5
Brown's SHOE FIT COMPANY
311 Poyntz, Downtown



A103
Art and reason

When Mark and I decided to spend the weekend at his mother's house, I never imagined I would be walking into a mouse's nightmare. There were cats everywhere.

Cat plaques, cat statues, cat clocks, even a cat mat. I couldn't begin to duplicate her collection of kitty litter if I spent a year at a garage sale. Conspicuously absent, however, was a real cat. Strange, I thought, and began to fear that a weekend with cat woman could be a lot less than purr-fect.

But then she came home, and Mark introduced her. She was dressed surprisingly well—no leopard pants. In fact, you could say she was the cat's meow, but I'd rather not.

She offered me a cup of Dutch Chocolate Mint. Now that was something I could relate to. Then she brought it out in the most beautiful, distinctly unfeline china I'd ever seen. As we sipped, I found out that Mrs. Campbell has my same weakness for chocolate, loves the theater as much as I do, but, incredibly, never saw "Cats." So Mark and I are taking her next month.

General Foods' International Coffees.
Share the feeling.

GENERAL FOODS

50 arrested after homecoming riot

By The Associated Press

ST. CLOUD, Minn. — Hundreds of rioting students burned furniture and clashed with police in a second night of homecoming weekend violence that resulted in 50 arrests by officers clad in riot gear, police said Sunday.

At least six people, including a police officer and a person found in a trash carrier, were treated at a hospital for minor injuries suffered Saturday night and early Sunday, said hospital nursing supervisor Patricia Anderson.

As many as 1,500 people, including many St. Cloud State University students, were involved in the rioting in a four-block area on Friday and Saturday nights, Assistant Police Chief Jim Moline said.

Students set off firecrackers and some played the Beatles' song "Revolution" on a stereo as police swept through the crowd, estimated at about 700 people Saturday night. Other people tore down street signs and jumped on cars, or threw beer bottles and pieces of lumber.

About 60 officers, including some from the State Patrol and neighboring counties, shot tear gas to disperse the crowd and made 46 arrests, most on misdemeanor charges of unlawful conduct or criminal damage to property, Moline said.

After a lull of a few hours, 150 officers were sent in early Sunday to break up crowds of 150 to 200 people, some of whom had set fire to furniture and a trash carrier that had been dragged into the street, Moline said.

"It's like a battle between the police and the students," said Karen Jacobs, the managing editor of the student newspaper, the University Chronicle, who watched the disturbance from her dormitory room.

The riots broke out in the midst of homecoming celebrations by the school's 16,400 students. Witnesses said the problems began when officers tried to break up loud parties and fights.

Moline said that in his 31 years on the police force, the weekend's violence could be topped only by demonstrations against the Vietnam War in the 1960s.

Student Randy Ridenour, 23, of Minneapolis said officers backed off several times Saturday night to avoid a potentially disastrous confrontation.

"It was mob mentality," he said.

Many people had been drinking heavily and were enjoying the havoc, he said. "A lot of kids thought they were being cool and funny. The students were acting stupid."

Dukakis gearing for final comeback

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Democrats found inspiration Sunday in the Los Angeles Dodgers' win in the first game of the World Series, saying that Michael Dukakis can still pull off a come-from-behind victory over Republican George Bush in the remaining three weeks of the presidential campaign.

"I think we're going to be like the Dodgers last night," said Dukakis running mate Lloyd Bentsen. "It looked like they were down and out, and all of a sudden they hit a home run and won it. I think we can do that in the next 24 days."

Bush, alert to that possibility, said that despite polls that show him widening his lead over Dukakis, "we're going to keep on with our original game plan, keep working hard, keep traveling to key states... keep moving forward."

"All I know is to just drive down to the wire," the vice president said.

Dukakis acknowledged in Boston that he is entering the last leg of the long campaign as an underdog, but advised Republicans not to pop champagne corks too early because "we're going to be the ones celebrating on election night."

He said he will continue fighting for the values he believes in. He said Bush, as vice president, "sat on the sidelines for eight years while America got beaten in world markets, while they mortgaged our children's future to a mountain of debt, and a piece of America was being sold off every day at bargain basement prices."

The World Series analogy was used by several Democrats.

"It's an extremely close race," said Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley."

"You're going to see Mike Dukakis come on like Kirk Gibson in the bottom of the ninth inning last night in that game with two outs ... he could barely walk around the base path, but he knocked a home run to win the game," Gore said.

The Dodgers beat the Oakland Athletics, 5-4, in that first game of the Series.

Congress trying to finish drug, tax bills

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The 100th Congress, running behind schedule, is trying to finish work this week on election-year bills dealing with drugs and taxes so members can return home to campaign.

Some legislators were so itchy to leave town that on Friday they sported buttons reading, "Free the 100th."

"I certainly would hope we wouldn't have to stay beyond Wednesday. But nobody can predict that," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.

Congress originally aimed to quit Sept. 30, but bogged down in a fight over the anti-drug package. The Senate finally passed its $2.6 billion version on Friday.

The bill calls for the death penalty for drug traffickers who murder, funnels more money to treatment programs and creates a new, Cabinet-level drug "czar" to coordinate the federal government's anti-drug effort.

"This has taken more time than we expected, but it was very complicated and a lot of issues had to be considered," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., one of the chief authors of the anti-drug package.

The House passed its drug bill Sept. 22. Senators hope House members will accept some version of the Senate legislation rather than appointing a House-Senate conference committee.

"If we have a conference, we'll be here until Thanksgiving," said Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H. "We wrote our bill with an eye toward language the House might accept."

Election-year demands from voters to do something about drugs have driven the bill, Rudman said. "People want us to respond, they want leadership from the Congress."

Also unfinished is a compromise tax bill, but House-Senate negotiations broke off in disagreement Friday, imperiling chances of reaching a plan both chambers can accept.

The measure includes a package of corrections to the landmark 1986 tax law, some new tax cuts along with other tax increases to offset the reductions, and a taxpayer "bill of rights" for persons facing Internal Revenue Service enforcement actions.

The House plan raises taxes between $7 billion and $7.5 billion over the next three years.

Begin Graduate School in January '89

Psychology

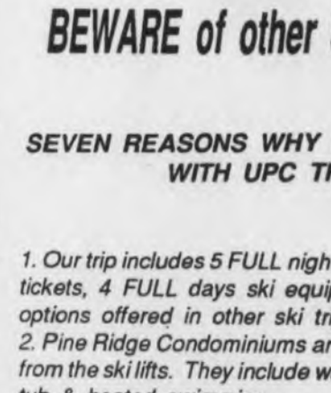
• Master of Arts
• Doctor of Psychology
• Innovative • Applied • Clinical • Small Classes
• Hospital Affiliations • Clinical Training Facilities On Premises
• Afternoon & Evening Classes • North Central Accredited
• Full & Parttime Programs • Handicapped Accessibility
• Equal Opportunity Educational Facility

Forest Institute of Professional Psychology
1322 South Campbell • Springfield, MO 65807
417-881-7955

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment NOW!
Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10
Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You
8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

Everyone wins INSTANTLY in
JOSTENS ULTIMATE GOLD GIVEAWAY
Win your college ring FREE or win savings up to $100! Order your college ring NOW
JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING™
Mon.-Wed. Oct. 17-19 10am-4pm
k-state union bookstore

All Seasons MOTEL
1501 TUTTLE CREEK BLVD.
MANHATTAN, KANSAS 66502
(913) 539-5391
Student Special
Peace and quiet to study or just get away
$13 Single $18 Double
Day Rate 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.—$10
(offer good Sun.-Thurs., on availability)
Student I.D. Required
Call for reservations 539-5391



THE UPC ADVENTURE
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE

BEWARE of other Ski Packages!

SEVEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD SKI WITH UPC TRAVEL:

1. Our trip includes 5 FULL nights lodging, 4 FULL days lift tickets, 4 FULL days ski equipment rental. The same options offered in other ski trips will cost you more.
2. Pine Ridge Condominiums are located just blocks away from the ski lifts. They include washer & dryer facilities, hot tub & heated swimming.
3. A staff sponsor from the K-State Union will be on-site in Breckenridge. You won't have to count on just a travel agent rep who has numerous other schools and groups to take care of.
4. We accept Mastercard and Visa.
5. We have a 30-year reputation of running great trips for K-State Students.
6. We have no hidden costs!
7. Our package is better than the others because we are concerned with trip participant needs. We are not here to make a profit.

PRICES: $231-without ski equipment rental
$263 package with 4-day ski equipment rental

SIGN-UP NOW!
•8 a.m.-4 p.m., Mon.-Fri., Activities Center on 3rd floor of the Union.
•Only a few spaces left!

k-state union upc travel

All The King's Men

Academy Award for Best Film, Best Actor, Best Supporting Actress– 1949, Best Film– New York Film Critics– 1949.
Academy Award Nominations for Best Supporting Actor, Best Director.

Wednesday, Oct. 19, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Thursday, Oct. 20, 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre, 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall
Admission $1.75, KSU ID Required
Unrated

Upcoming Kaleidoscope Films This Semester:

Oct. 26 & 27– Wish You Were Here (England)
Nov. 2 & 3– Walkabout (Australia)
Nov. 9 & 10– Wise Blood
Nov. 16 & 17– Days & Nights in the Forest (India)
Nov. 19 & 20– Aristocats
Nov. 30 & Dec. 1– Working Girls
Dec. 10 & 11– Miracle On 34th Street

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

Save $1 on the Coors Light Comedy Commandos by purchasing a ticket to the Chuck Wagon Buffet, 6-7:30 p.m., Oct. 28, or the Parents' Day Buffet held from 5-7 p.m., Sat., Oct. 29. Call 532-6591 for more information. Deadline for reservations, Fri., Oct. 21.

McCain Auditorium
October 28, 1988, 8:00 p.m.
Tickets go on sale October 17
at K-State Union Activities Center and the McCain box office
All seats $2.00

Survival Game Adventure
October 30

k-state union upc outdoor rec.

Adventure Includes:
gun rental
paint pellets refreshments
Cost: $10
Information Meeting: Tuesday, Oct. 18, 7 p.m., Union Room 207
Sign-up Begins: Wednesday, Oct 19, 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Activities Center, 3rd floor Union. This adventure will take place at Hunter's Island, near Manhattan and will be conducted with teams of five members.

In conjunction with the Coors Light Comedy Commandos on Oct. 28, there will be a joke contest in cooperation with Bushwacker's to promote the event. The joke contest will be held on Wednesday, 10:45 p.m.-Midnight, Oct. 26 & Thursday, 9-10 p.m., Oct. 27 at Bushwacker's. Prizes will be awarded for finalists & winner.

k-state union upc eclectic entertainment

Just for Laughs

Pick up applications at Bushwacker's in Aggieville or in the Activities Center in the Union, or call 532-6571.

Forum

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

ty to local authorities, who then needed assistance from churches.

Combined efforts of the city and local churches have developed food pantries and utility assistance and emergency shelters. Stoneking said these services are needed because he believes the housing problem will not disappear.

"We are going to have housing and utility problems for the foreseeable future," Stoneking said.

Energy conservation is an important way for homeowners to stabilize their economic situation, said Don Oden, Kansas Corporation Commission representative.

Two programs can help homeowners or tenants improve their efficiency — The Kansas Conservation Bank and the Audit for Conservation Today (ACT).

The Conservation Bank is a fund that replaces old, energy consuming appliances, such as furnaces and air conditioners, with new ones, Oden said. The program is financed by oil overcharge money from Exxon.

At the consumer's request, ACT provides information on how to cut costs and save money on appliances.

"The ACT is the most effective method of efficiency that I have seen," Oden said.

Although the programs help, they do not get as much use as they should, he said, possibly because people are unaware that they could be conserving more energy.

The Home Program's next step will be a forum for contractors and builders on Nov. 12, said Ron Zerrer, program director. After the forum, the Home Programs panel will assess the information gathered and make recommendations to the city.

Madness

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Mitch Holthus, Voice of the Wildcats, challenged the crowd to get as loud as an Ahearn crowd. On the third try, the crowd of about 8,000 received a '10' rating from Athletic Director Steve Miller.

President Jon Wefald said the Bramlage era is off to a good start.

"I'm convinced we'll be able to transfer the spirit and tradition and the dedication of our fans," he said.

The players and coaches were equally optimistic about the future of Bramlage.

"It can get fairly noisy in here, so it's exciting," said Lon Kruger, men's basketball coach. "We have 6,000 student season tickets as the cornerstone, so it's going to be loud, and it's going to be good."

"With our fans, it's about the same," said Carlos Diggins, senior guard-forward. "The fans make the gym, and I guess they proved that tonight. It's still just as loud."

Senior forward Mark Dobbins said, "It felt good out there. It felt like K-State. It was great."

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs -skincare -glamor -nails -gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

HURRY! AVAILABLE space for KSU skiers is filling fast on Sunchase Tours seventh annual January collegiate winter ski breaks to Steamboat, Vail, Winter Park and Keystone, Colorado. Trips include lodging, lifts, parties and picnics for five, six or seven days from only $156! Round-trip flights and group charter bus transportation available. Call toll-free 1-800-321-5911 for more information and reservations Today!

In Memory of Gary Chase

Your style of life and love through smiles and humor has and will continue to inspire us all. We miss you greatly.

AVIATION CADET PROGRAM

Do you want to fly? Pilot training, ages 19-24 with 60 semester hours for our naval aviation cadet program. Must be a U.S. citizen and physically qualified with a 2.5 plus G.P.A. Call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

HOUSTON STREET BALLROOM
Wedding Receptions
Dances, Parties
539-1234

BRAS•BRAS•BRAS

32A 32B 32C 32D 32DD
34A 34B 34C 34D 34DD
36A 36B 36C 36D 36DD
38A 38B 38C 38D 38DD

We have your size!

Patricia's
UNDERCOVER
Lingerie
1224 Moro Aggieville

Bobby T's
Restaurant and Fundriskery

Monday Night is pasta night at Bobby T's spaghetti or lasagna
w/salad & garlic bread
$2.99
all you can eat
3240 Kimball-Candlewood
539-1571

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

SPRING BREAK/ Party at Padre. For the Best Party Locations and Properties, call Now! $25 deposit per person before Oct. 28 reserves your condominium. 1-800-258-9191.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE TWO-BEDROOM available in Westloop area. $315 unfurnished, $355 furnished. Balcony, beige carpet throughout. 776-9124.

NICE ONE-BEDROOM in Lee/ Hunting area. Available now. $340. 776-3804.

VERY NICE, quiet, clean one-bedroom apartment for non-smoking adult. Paid heat/ air and more. Lease. $240. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1977 CHEVY Malibu, two-door, looks like new, nice wheels, Alpine speakers, must see. 539-8108, Dave.

1978 CHEVY Malibu. Very good condition. Dependable, $1,500 or best offer. 1-494-2831 after 6p.m.

1979 MERCURY Cougar, auto transmission, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, $1,000 or best offer. 776-3772.

1979 Z28, excellent condition, new performance engine. $2,800. 537-3818.

1981 MONTE Carlo, V-6, 73,000 miles, two-door, air conditioning, cruise control, AM/FM stereo, excellent condition, $2,700. 537-3721.

1981 PORSCHE 924, excellent condition, $5,800. 537-3818.

1983 CHEVY Siv. Silverado, dually 6.2 liter diesel, great shape. Priced to sell, 1-594-2332 or 537-0845.

1978 PLYMOUTH Horizon four-door, four-speed, air conditioning, 539-7439. Ask for Troy.

8 Computers

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4⅓ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

GE LINE conditioner- noise suppressor 91L series. Controls high and low voltage, $350. 776-9461 or 1-800-432-0036. Protect your computer.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6658

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

CASHIER POSITION available. Lunch or dinner shifts. Apply in person, 606 N. 12th, the Lone Star Cafe. Ask for Michael.

EXPERIENCED AEROBIC instructor. Call 776-6469 for appointment.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, Juniors: Train in the summer to become a Marine Corps Officer after graduation. Aviation available. Call collect (913)841-1821.

HEADSTART TEACHER, immediate opening for the 1988- 1989 school year. Degree in early childhood education or CDA (Child Development Associate) required. Nine month position, six hours per day. Apply to USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, Kansas 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

NANNIES NEEDED on East Coast, $150 to $275 per week, free room and board, good families and home. No fee. Call Nannie Network, Inc. 1-800-US-NANNY.

NEED CASH? Earn $250- $350 dollars each semester, by working two- four hours each week, posting and maintaining take-one posters. We give recommendations. Great for the marketing fields also. Call 1-800-821-1543.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART-TIME AGRICULTURAL laborers. Apply in person, Nelson Poultry Farms, 2¼ miles east, Highway 24. 776-9401.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

SCHOOL BUS drivers 1988- 1989 school year. $4.75/ hour, must be 21 years of age, have a good driving record and complete a training program. Bus driving experience not required. Part-time: 6:30-8:30a.m. and 2:40- 4:30p.m. Job description available and apply to: USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. (913)537-2400. EOE.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED for musical homeless project, all fields of study, even your personal contacts can make a difference. Contact Odeis Taylor, 776-4036.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

B & L THRIFT SHOP
Offering Halloween costumes, hats, & wigs.
539-1717
Old Town Mall 523 S. 17th

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1986 SUZUKI FA50, new condition- $300. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

17 Musical Instruments

GUITARS/ AMPS for sale!! Aria Pro II- $250, Aria 3/4 scale acoustic- best offer, Kramer bass- $150, Stienburger style bass- $200, Marlboro practice amp- $70, Fender bassman 60 watt amp- $200. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

Hayes House of Music
776-7983 327 Poyntz
Fender Squire Strat
with soft shell case
$299

18 Personals

ALPHA OF Clovia Pam P.- Saturday was C-NC. The day was perfect. The sky was blue. And that night was The time to party because you turned 22. Hope it was a good one! Leann, Mel, Trudy and Sally.

ALPHA OF Clovia TaLana, Saturday was the night to party hard at C-N-C. But, you'll party even harder tonight when you are 23. Happy Birthday! Leann, Mel and Trisha.

ATTENTION KSU: The Marlatt Basement (the Misfits) have been beaten down. By the first floor. Martial Law has been declared!

CLOVIA FOOTBALL Team- Thanks for great football season and the surprise Sunday. Wait till Volleyball! Love, your coaches.

JOHN- THE first time I saw you I knew in my heart that I could not part. Homecoming was just the beginning, with BB, YLH, and just dancing. You were good-looking, shy, and not looking for romancing. Time went on and we drew near. Days, weeks, and now we're a year! Happy Anniversary! Love- Cheryn.

DOUG- HAPPY Anniversary! This year's been the greatest! I Love You (no matter what)! Peg.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

JLK- HAPPY Anniversary! Here's to: Swannie's, lemon shrimp, red Granabla, Daytona, sand crabs, crayons, fishing ponds, rainy camping, Huey Lewis, and your smiling face. Love ya lots! EAF.

MIKE- I went out with her for six weeks, she pomped and bodybuilt all night with a Lambda Chi. Who is she?

SAE "CONCEITED A--hole": Thursday nite's ride was interesting! You owe us one... or more. SLH Women.

THE PEROXIDE Queen who works at Varney's- It's given you brain damage. Take up aerobics.

TO EDDIE: Feliz Cumpleanos, siempre te amare'. With all my love, Glory.

WSH- HOPE you are having fun going horror shopping. You're doing a great job. Your shortest fan- SKA.

20 Professional Services

KEMPO KARATE CLASSES
9 yrs. in Manhattan
Instr.: Ty Callahan
Certification:
U.S. Dept. of Justice 1983
USKF 1984
776-2450

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

Resumé Service
Resumes — Cover Letters
Data Sheets
343 Colorado
Call 537–7294
9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

COMPLETE TYPING/ Data Processing: papers, theses, dissertations, etc, 75¢/ page, 5¢/ copy. Call 537-8701.

FAST TURNAROUND for all your word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, theses, dissertations. All your typing requirements, reasonable rates, expert typist. Call 539-5422.

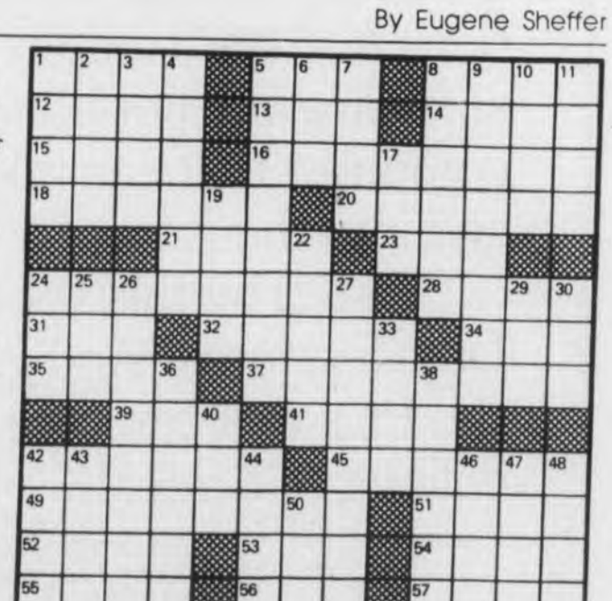
TYPING, PAPERS, reports, theses or dissertations on computer. Call Bertha or Peggie, 532-5950, evenings 776-8337.

23 Roommate Wanted

NEEDED: FEMALE to take my place at an apartment. Own bedroom, $160/ month, one block from Justin Hall. Call Karen at 539-2733. If I'm not home, please leave message on machine and I'll call back.

28 Adoption

A CHILDLESS loving couple wishes to adopt white newborn. We will provide a warm wonderful and loving home. We are committed to being the best parents possible. Legal and confidential. Please call collect, Kelly and Ramiro, (201)376-0894.



LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)422-1297.

29 Basketball Tickets

CAMPERS: I will buy two b-ball tickets. Call 532-5426.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Strikers' cry, perhaps
5 Baby-sitter's "handful"?
8 Baked dishes
12 Lively dance
13 And not
14 Shot, shells, etc.
15 Grand-parental
16 State of increasing confusion
18 Cross out
20 Travels by car
21 Tuneful Scruggs
23 Ending for zip
24 Run from danger
28 Pack
31 Onassis
32 Young haddock
34 Ending for amp
35 Prima donna
37 Made to measure
39 Flightless bird
41 Word from Julia Child
42 Having bristles
45 Eludes
49 Pass over a sieve: milling
51 Alaska city
52 Old-time slave
53 Tina's ex-husband
54 Stubborn courage
55 Scores, in cribbage
56 Guided
57 Morays

DOWN
1 Salt-water fish
2 Sheltered inlet
3 Soviet sea
4 Whalebone
5 Function reciprocally
6 Extinct bird
7 Stiffly formal
8 Punches: slang
9 Bilingual businessman?
10 Arab ruler
11 " — and . Lovers"
17 Cut off branches
19 Makes lace
22 Turkish coins
24 Little boy
25 Swiss canton
26 Bridge repair job
27 Dallied
29 Mine output
30 Married
33 Caesar's 554
36 Soap plants
38 — pekoe
40 Service org.
42 Degree
43 Comfort
44 Wicked
46 French painter
47 Author Ludwig
48 Sound stages
50 Piece out

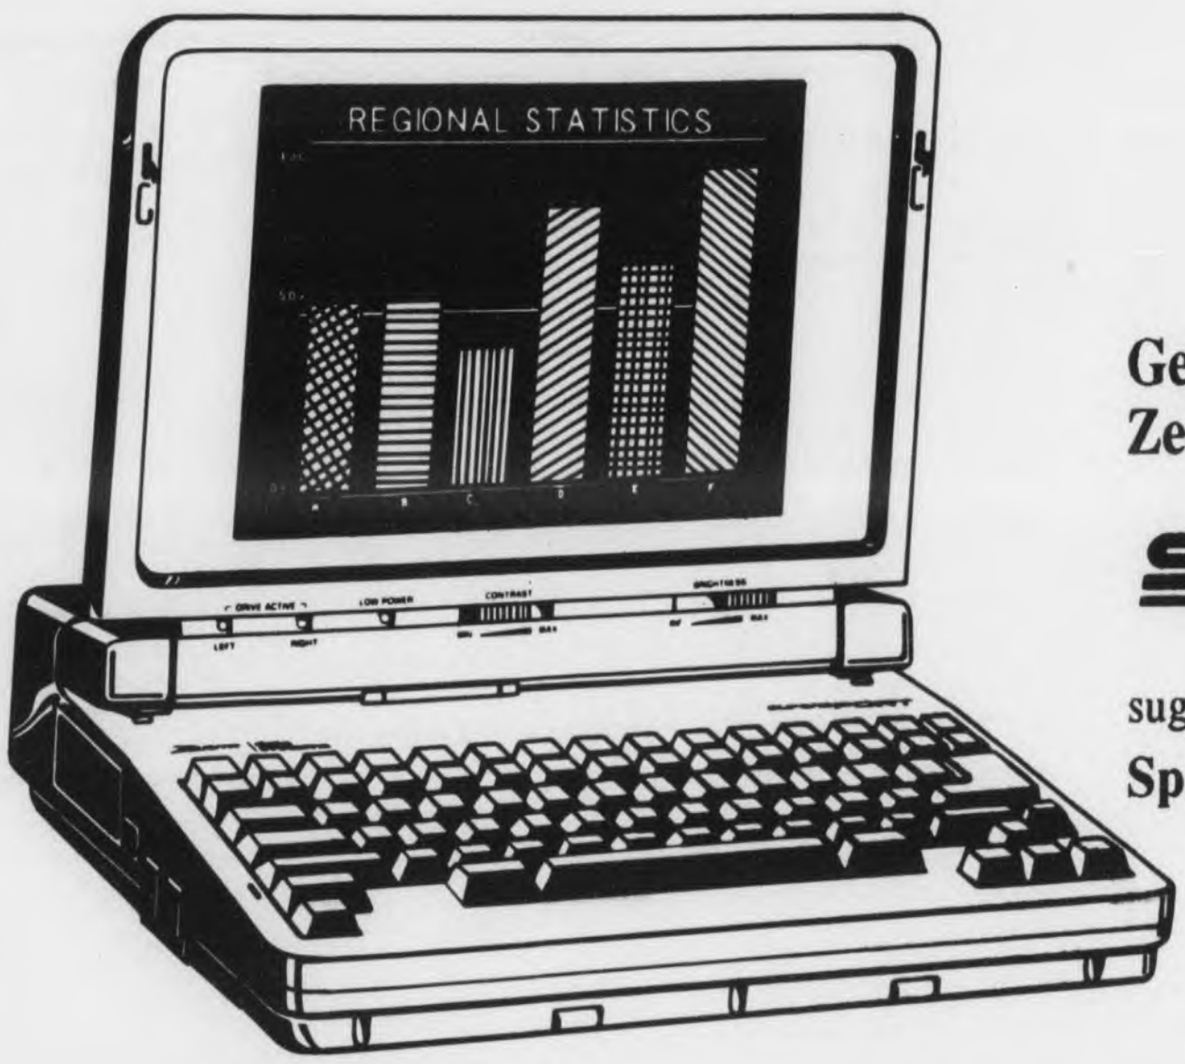
Solution time: 22 mins.

L	I	P		A	S	P	S		C	A	S	T
O	V	A		S	H	A	H		A	V	O	N
R	A	N	C	H	E	R	O		R	E	S	T
I	N	S	O	L	E		W	H	O
			S	E	T		B	O	L	E	R	O
S	L	A	T	Y		B	I	G		V	A	N
L	O	P	S		B	O	Z		P	I	T	Y
A	G	E		P	R	O		T	E	L	E	X
T	O	R	E	R	O		R	U	T
		B	E	N		O	M	E	L	E	T
A	V	I	S		S	O	M	B	R	E	R	O
D	E	K	E		O	R	A	L		F	I	R
O	X	E	N		N	E	N	E		T	E	N

Yesterday's answer 10-17

10-17

CRYPTOQUIP



K - T V Q L A S N J H S H V J A K - Y D V H J A U N H Z Z Y A S H V D L V D A J L : " H N V X A X A T Q O W W U H J Z H O N L . "

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: HOW HOUSEPAINTER'S ONLY SON ULTIMATELY LEARNED TO READ: WITH A PRIMER.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals T

You Want The Best PC Values on Campus?

DONE

Get Terrific Student Pricing At The Zenith Data Systems Open House

SUPERSPORT™

suggested retail price: $2399

Special Student Price: $1439

The Zenith Data Systems Supersport™

Great news! Zenith Data Systems is headed your way with a special campus extravaganza! It's your chance to enjoy unbelievable student values on Zenith Data Systems' family of personal computers and monitors. From laptops... to desktops... to super-advanced systems. All complete with PC compatibility and MS-DOS.®

As your Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact, we'll give you a full demonstration. And we'll match you up with the right software and peripherals. To give you a computer that can take you through school and into the future!

So stop by this special event from Zenith Data Systems. And get fantastic values on the PCs that can take you all the way from college to career!

Stop by the Zenith Data Systems special campus celebration at:

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCTOBER 24 & 25
9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Contact your local Student Representative
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
The Bookstore 532-6583

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON•

© 1987, Zenith Data Systems

A New Tradition

Take an early look into the 1988-89 men's and women's basketball teams. See insert.

Weather

Mostly sunny and cooler today, high mid-to upper 60s. Northerly wind 10 to 15 mph. Partly cloudy tonight, low 40. Mostly cloudy Wednesday with a 30 percent chance for showers.

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn; Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
66612

rugby is a "social sport." See Page 7.

Tuesday
October 18, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 41

Kansas State
Collegian

Staff/Joe Freeman

Donald Rathbone, dean of the College of Engineering, talks to more than 200 engineering students Monday in Durland Hall about a proposed $10 per-credit-hour fee for engineering classes. The increase could go into effect as early as next semester and would be used to maintain or buy equipment for engineering labs.

Proposal concerns students

By Becky Ives
Staff Writer

In front of a standing-room only crowd in Paslay Lecture Hall, Donald Rathbone, dean of the College of Engineering, answered questions Monday concerning the proposed fee for engineering classes.

"I now know the meaning of the saying 'money talks,'" Rathbone said to the crowd of about 200 students in the Durland Hall lecture room. He said the last time a meeting was held concerning the proposal, only a few students showed up.

"We have tried for probably 100 years to get monies for equipment on an on-going basis, and have had zero success with it. KU has had no success, nor has Wichita State.

"I take second base to no one on our undergraduate program, but we are going to peak and start going downhill unless something is done," Rathbone said.

The proposal is a $10 per-credit-hour fee for all engineering classes, which Rathbone said would amount to an average of $610 for those enrolled in a four-year engineering program. It is a blanket proposal that includes all courses, which means that students would pay the fee when enrolling in an engineering class, regardless of their majors.

This money would be used to help maintain the equipment in the engineering labor-

■ See FEE, Page 10

Part of tuition to aid student organizations

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

The Educational Opportunity Fund Committee has begun the first step in the allocation process of the fund, collected from a portion of tuition to be used to aid student organizations.

The EOF committee is taking applications for budget requests for next year.

All departments, units and organizations of the University are eligible to apply, said Troy Lubbers, chairman of the committee. Application deadline is 5 p.m., Oct. 26. Applications are available in the Student Governing Association office in the Union.

The fund, which was approved by the Board of Regents in May, guaranteed a one percent reduction in the planned six percent tuition increase for the 1989-90 school year.

The fund calls for the return of that one percent to each of the regents institutions. The money is to help finance student organizations, increasing availability of educational opportunities, said Tom Schellhardt, assistant vice president of administration and finance.

"You could say it is money ... dedicated to ... opportunities for students," Schellhardt said.

The EOF committee will determine which organizations receive money to increase those 'educational opportunities,' he said.

Full-time undergraduate students at regents doctoral universities — K-State, University of Kansas and Wichita State University — pay $550 in tuition, plus additional fees determined by each university according to its needs.

K-State students paid $681.40 total tuition this fall.

Regents were considering raising tuition six percent in April for the 1989-90 school year. The approval of the EOF in May lowered that tuition increase to 5 percent, and gives the remaining one percent to the fund.

K-State tuition will be raised to $578, and additional fees will be determined by the University. A separate fee of $6 will also be added for the EOF.

K-State does not yet know the exact amount of money it will receive. Schellhardt said the estimated tuition and fees revenue for fiscal year 1990 is $25 million, $250,000 of which would be administered by the EOF committee.

Student Senate recently approved the EOF committee and allocation procedures.

Lubbers said allocations will be decided by mid-November and will be presented to Senate for approval.

All grants are for the 1989-90 school year and are not to replace existing University support for financial aid or student services, he said.

Guidelines established by the committee determined that initial screening of groups will take place at the application stage, and only a selected group will move to the hearing stage.

Military bases guaranteed

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Philippines concluded an agreement Monday to guarantee U.S. military use of strategic air and naval bases in the Southeast Asian country through 1991 in exchange for $962 million in American aid.

That represents an increase of $258 million in economic and military assistance as part of a complicated arrangement that permits the Philippines to use "a substantial portion" to reduce its debt and bars American soldiers who test positive for AIDs from serving in the country.

Another key provision of the agreement, which was released as Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus signed the pact, maintains the U.S. policy of not disclosing whether ships or planes stopping at the bases or passing through carry nuclear weapons.

"These transits, overflights or visits will be conducted in accordance with existing procedures, which may be changed or modified, as necessary, by mutual agreement of both parties," the memorandum said.

However, the Philippines government has the power to prohibit storing nuclear, chemical or other non-conventional weaponry on its territory.

The nuclear issue was one of the key items that had to be settled before the United States could be assured continued use of Clark Air Base, Subic Bay Naval Base and four lesser installations.

The accord also deeds to the Philippines all permanent facilities and improvements on buildings at the bases. The two governments pledged, meanwhile, to take steps to ensure a smooth transition of the bases to Philippine control if the United States decides in the future to abandon them.

In a ceremony in the State Department's Treaty Room, Manglapus said "our people will accept it as an agreement in keeping with the expectations of our people, not only in the matter of compensation but also of national dignity."

A U.S. statement said the United States hoped to begin talks with the Philippines government on use beyond 1991 "in not too distant future."

1,000 demonstrate at Pentagon

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — About 1,000 demonstrators created a commuter nightmare Monday but failed to achieve their goal of blockading the Pentagon during a boisterous protest of American policies toward El Salvador.

Authorities said about 240 men and women were arrested. There were scattered episodes of fisticuffs between police and demonstrators.

The demonstration, sponsored by a coalition of a half-dozen peace groups, began at 4 a.m. CDT and extended into early afternoon. The protesters succeeded in forcing Defense Department workers to abandon the huge parking lot south of the Pentagon — which normally accomodates 3,700 cars — and to run a human guantlet through selected entrances to get to their offices.

"But they didn't shut down the building; they just created a lot of inconvenience and long walks," said Glenn Flood, a Pentagon spokesman.

Police, including one officer who was attacked by protesters, arrested several people early when they sat in a road to block a military bus from entering the parking lot.

One demonstrator sprayed red paint across the front of a bus. Protesters then pushed one Defense Protective Service officer to the ground when he tried to arrest the demonstrator and beat the officer before other officers rescued him.

Other protesters went to a grassy area used as a helicopter field outside the Pentagon, where they planted crosses bearing the names of people who have died in El Salvador.

The demonstrators oppose U.S. aid to the Salvadoran government, which has been engaged in a war against leftist guerrillas since 1980. An estimated 60,000 people have died in that conflict, which has produced continuing allegations of "death squad" killings by policemen and soldiers.

The United States considers El Salvador one of its closest allies in Central America. During the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, the Salvadoran government received $85 million in military assistance and $185 million in economic aid. Some 55 U.S. military advisers, the limit set by Congress, are normally assigned to El Salvador to help train the Salvadoran army.

Faculty discusses AIDS virus traits

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

"Scientific research is always initialized by unscientific ways of thinking," said Harold Orbach. "The way we approach an issue depends on who is the victim."

Orbach, associate professor of sociology, anthropology, and social work, said it took the death of Rock Hudson before the government in the United States would recognize AIDS as a world health problem.

From the point of view of sociology, AIDS is a matter of social control. How modern society organizes to deal with an issue is usually based on scientific justification, he said.

Orbach and three others addressed an audience of about 50 people Monday on the issue of AIDS at a pre-convocation forum designed to provide background for the upcoming University Convocation by William Heyward, chief of internationl activities, AIDS program for the Centers of Disease Control.

Terry Johnson, head of the Division of Biology, said AIDS patients do not die from the disease. Rather, AIDS attacks the immune system, making the patients more susceptible to "opportunistic organisms," such as yeasts and bacteria that are normally present in the body, but whose effects are hindered by the immune system.

"People don't die of AIDS, they die of the opportunistic organisms," he said.

Two strains of the AIDS virus — HIV I and HIV II — are known to exist, but Johnson said they cannot be studied effectively outside a host, and, therefore, developing a vaccine is difficult.

"The viruses can't reproduce in a test tube, but once they gain entrance into the cell, they parasitize," he said. Johnson said the AIDS virus specifically attacks the T4 helper cells that are the "conductor" component of the immune system, throwing the patient's immune system "into chaos."

One major problem researchers hope will not happen is the development of even more strains of the AIDS virus that won't be susceptible to whatever cure may be developed, in much the same way cold viruses work against cures.

"We hope this won't happen, but that's a possibility of what we're looking at," he said.

Tom Ryan, physician at Lafene Student Health Center, outlined a number of methods to control the spread of AIDS. He said for an agent to be effective against the virus, it must somehow kill the infectious agent without killing the host cell. Finding such an agent is difficult because the DNA of the AIDS virus combines with the DNA of the host cell, Ryan said.

Ryan said another hindrance is that the AIDS virus is constantly changing its

■ See AIDS, Page 9

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Ugandan plane crash kills 30

ROME — The pilot of a Uganda Airlines jetliner tried at least twice to land in thick fog before it crashed into houses and trees early Monday, killing 30 of the 52 people aboard, officials and passengers said.

Authorities said the fog and a possible misunderstanding between the pilot and the control tower at Leonardo da Vinci Airport may have caused the crash, which also injured the 22 others aboard the Boeing 707.

Many of the injured were in critical condition with burns, fractures and shock. Wreckage was strewn for half a mile. Only one of the seven crew members, the steward, survived.

Among the survivors was a British passenger who said he and his wife, holding their 8-month-old son, jumped from the wreckage moments before it went up in flames.

The jet missed the runway by several hundred yards. It tore through a wooden house, clipped a garage, demolished a brick house under construction and plowed through the parking lot of a car rental agency, destroying 75 cars, authorities said.

Only one injury was reported on the ground in the town of Fiumicino, 21 miles southwest of Rome. An occupant of the wooden house, Carlo Satta, 30, was hit on the nose by a beam as he slept in bed.

The majority of those aboard were Ugandans. The British Embassy in Rome said the passenger list included the names of seven or eight Britons, including a dual national. Two Nigerians were listed among the injured.

Coup attempt unsuccessful

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The military government said Monday it had foiled an attempted coup against President Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril by two military officers.

Radio Soleil said "several soldiers were wounded" and 30 soldiers were arrested in the coup attempt early Sunday. It gave no further details.

Government spokesman Frantz Lubin said the coup was led by Sgt. Patrick Frantz Bochard, who headed a government lottery, and former Col. Samuel Jeremie, who escaped from prison following the Sept. 17 coup that brought Avril to power.

"Certain other officers have been discharged," Lubin said. "They had maneuvered to stage a coup against the military government of Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril."

On Sept. 17, rank-and-file soldiers ousted Haitian ruler Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy and installed Avril as president.

Lubin said he had no further information on the circumstances surrounding the coup attempt.

On Monday, Avril presided over ceremonies celebrating Haiti's independence from France in 1804 at the National Palace.

A half-mile away, about 6,000 people took part in the fourth day of demonstrations protesting a Roman Catholic church order for an activist priest, the Rev. Jean Bertrand Aristide, to leave Haiti.

The popular priest was to leave the country Monday, but it could not be determined whether he had complied with the order.

Joint project possible

MOSCOW — NASA officials are discussing possibly installing U.S. scientific instruments on a Soviet spacecraft as part of a joint superpower project to monitor damage to the Earth's ozone layer, Tass said Monday.

The Soviet news agency quoted the head of a Soviet delegation to recent superpower talks on space, Albert Chernikov, as saying the discussions in Moscow dealt with the launching of a U.S.-made spectrometer on the Soviet Meteor-3 satellite in 1990-91.

In Washington, Charles Redmond, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, confirmed on Monday that a NASA official is now in the Soviet Union for discussions on placing a spectrometer on a Soviet satellite to monitor the ozone layer.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

State given custody of youths

OREGON CITY, Ore. — State officials Monday were granted custody of 55 hungry children taken from a farmhouse where an 8-year-old girl allegedly was beaten to death by staff members of a California religious center.

The girl, the daughter of Ecclesia Athletic Association founder Eldridge Broussard Jr., was taken to a fire station Friday by four adults connected with Broussard's group. She was already dead.

Dayna Lorea Broussard had been beaten and whipped severely, state Medical Examiner Dr. Larry Lewman said.

Some of the other children bore marks and scars, said Bart Wilson, Clackamas County branch manager of the state Children's Service Division.

"We're led to believe that abuse had occurred," Wilson said. "It's our recommendation that these children remain in protective custody, at least for a period of time."

Clackamas County Circuit Judge Patrick Gilroy agreed, granting custody of the youngsters to the state Children's Services Division on grounds of neglect and improper care.

The children, ranging in age from 1½ months to 16 years, were sleeping on pillows on the floor of the sparsely furnished four-bedroom house, Wilson said. They were placed in state juvenile centers and foster homes over the weekend.

"They were quite hungry when they arrived. It seems that they only had a tomato apiece on Friday," said Bill Carey, acting director of client services for the state Children's Services Division.

Chairman of U.S. English quits

PHOENIX — The chairman of a group that wants English to be the nation's official language stepped down Monday after a memo he wrote contributed to the resignations of former White House aide Linda Chavez and Walter Cronkite.

The controversy has "come to center more around me in the last week or 10 days," said John Tanton, a co-founder of U.S. English. He said resigning as chairman would give him time to fight the accusations.

Chavez announced her resignation earlier in the day, saying she was quitting because she had been told that some major contributors to U.S. English advocated unusual views on population and immigration control including advocacy of forced sterilization.

"To me it is just not consistent with the views I hold," she said.

Cronkite, the veteran CBS newsman, resigned from an advisory board to U.S. English on Oct. 6 after learning of the Tanton memo, and Chavez had told The Associated Press that she might follow suit if Tanton did not step down at a weekend board meeting.

The board decided to look at the matter further, however, and Chavez said Monday that, after hearing about the contributors, "I don't feel that I wish to wait until other details are worked out."

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Reagan gives Bush advantage

OVERLAND PARK — George Bush is being propelled toward the presidency by the popularity of President Reagan, a growing economy and the feeling that Democrat Michael Dukakis is too liberal, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Monday.

"I think it's over for Dukakis," Dole said at a GOP reception in Overland Park. "It's the economy, it's Ronald Reagan and it's the weakness of Dukakis," he said.

Dole, who dropped out of the Republican presidential race after early primary losses to Bush, said the vice president's acceptance speech at the GOP convention in New Orleans started the momentum in his favor.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

FILING FORMS are available for Student Body President, Student Senate and Board of Student Publications in the SGA Office. Forms are due by 5 p.m. today.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT Cancer Research Awards applications are now available in the Center for Basic Research office in Ackert 234. All students in health-related degree programs are eligible to apply. Deadline is Dec. 5.

K-STATE PLAYERS will perform "Little Shop of Horrors" at 8 p.m. today through Saturday in Nichols Theatre.

TODAY

STUDENT SENATE will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room.

SEMINAR FOR FACULTY members preparing their first proposal will be at 3:30 p.m. in Denison 224.

WOMEN OVER 50 Support Group will meet at 12:15 p.m. in Union 202.

GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 212. Yearbook pictures will follow.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Williams Auditorium in Umberger Hall. Yearbook pictures will be taken at 6:30 p.m.

AMATEUR RADIO Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 204.

ENGINEERING AMBASSADOR Executive will meet at 6:15 p.m. in Durland 152.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 213.

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Bakhella Mohamed at 2 p.m. in Waters 03G. The topic is: "Identification and Classification of Moroccan Wheats."

STUDENTS AGAINST DRUNK DRIVING will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Union 204.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA will meet at 7 p.m. in Willard 218.

LEADERSHIP WORKSHOP titled "Conducting an Effective Meeting" will be from 4 to 5 p.m. in Bluemont 122. The workshop, subtitled "Why am I so Alone in My Struggle to Have My Own Way?" is open to the public.

POULTRY SCIENCE Club will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Call 226.

GERMAN TABLE will meet at 12:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

SIGMA DELTA PI will meet at 4 p.m. in Union 208.

SPURS SOPHOMORE HONORARY yearbook pictures will be taken at 8:25 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

MORTAR BOARD will meet at 9:30 p.m. in Justin lobby.

STUDENT DIETETIC Association will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Justin 150.

GRADUATE SCHOOL has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Michael G. Barricklow at 10:30 p.m. in Bluemont 368. The topic is: "An Analysis of Economic Impasse Equity and the Perceptions of the Parties Engaged in Kansas Public School Negotiations."

PHYSICAL THERAPY Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 208.

WEDNESDAY

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES Board will meet at 3:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

PRE-VET CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201.

GYMNASTICS CLUB will meet at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

PARACHUTE CLUB will meet at 8 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

MUSLIM COMMUNITY Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room.

K-STATE POLICE

Sunday

■ An orange Camaro was disabled in lot A-15. The vehicle was to be removed by 10 a.m. Monday.

Monday

■ A freezer alarm at 166 Weber sounded. The alarm was a malfunction.

■ Two suspects entered King Hall.

■ Several criminal damage to property and theft reports were taken at Seaton Hall.

■ A non-injury accident occurred in lot A-2. Damage was reported at less than $500.

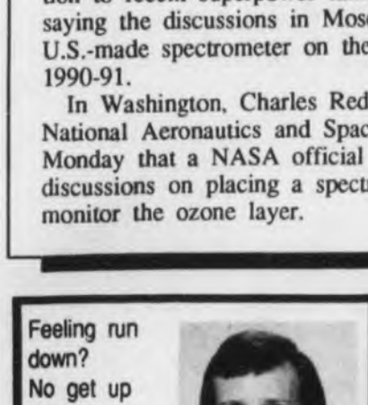
■ A student parking permit was reported stolen.

■ A theft report was filed at Goodnow Hall.

■ The theft of a student parking permit was reported.

■ Theft of stereo equipment and a radar detector was reported from a vehicle in lot C-2.

■ A wallet lost in an unknown Manhattan location was reported.



Correction

Due to a sports writer's error in Monday's Collegian, University of Oklahoma junior tackle Mark VanKeirsbilck's name was misspelled.

FREE CATALOG
of Government Books
Send for your copy today!

Feeling run down? No get up and go?
FEEL GOOD AGAIN!!

Call today 537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
Chiropractor
3252 Kimball Avenue

The Station
DOCTOR SHOT NIGHT TUESDAY

ALL SHOTS $1
OVER 35 SHOTS!
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

TUESDAY BIG CHANCE DRAWS
(24 ounces!!)

24 OUNCE DRAWS $1.49
LAST CHANCE
1213 Moro St., Aggieville 776-6451

TKE "Blue" team vs. TKE "Red" team

"Blue" team		"Red" team
Kristin Warlop	Sara Weixelman	Trish Thompson	Kathy Lyon
Mary Beth Gilliam	Kathleen Baker	Gretchen Downey	Tahnee Smith
Rachele Novak	Heidi Hellwig	Deva Featherston	Tracy Bleczinski
Karen Allen	Ester Olson	Julie Stevenson	Julie Henshaw
Nikki Oliver	Sam Raymon	Sandy Ransopher	Kathy Hail
Dena Wagner	Melinda Sterling	Sherry Smith	Julie Van Doren
Jennifer Allen	Dara Dawes	Angie Dominick	Darilyn Ellis
Chris Tuley	Angie Smith	Lisa Raham	Julie Thomas
Lana Czarnecki	Jamie Benkelman	Holly Francis	Cindy Blanchett

Halftime spectacular—Crowning of Miss Puff
8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18—Griffith Park
Sponsored by: KITE'S BAR AND GRILL, POWER FM 94.5, Falsetto's 539-3830

The Kansas Senate does not have an educator . . . Lana Oleen can address the tough educational issues for our district.
•KANSAS MASTER TEACHER
•Guest lecturer for K.S.U. classes
•Communications Director for State Dept. of Human Resources

Lana Oleen
KANSAS SENATE
Paid for by
Lana Oleen for Kansas State Senate
Kent Glasscock, chairman

LARGE PIZZA ONLY 5.99
with one topping
dine in or free home delivery
with this coupon
offer good through Oct. 31
"premium pizza at a cardboard pizza price"
Pengo's
523 South 17th
537-1484

R•O•Y•A•L

Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Goodnow– Oct. 17-19
Haymaker– Oct. 19-21

P•U•R•P•L•E

McCain show to feature jazz greats

By Christina Doherty
Collegian Reporter

Jazz greats Marilyn Maye and Matt Betton will appear together for a special event concert at 8 p.m. this evening in McCain Auditorium.

This event, which will honor Betton, was created by Robert Steinbauer, former head of the music department and assistant to the dean for visual and performing arts.

"He conceived the idea of a concert to celebrate the K-State 125th anniversary that would involve a distinguished alumnus, Matt Betton," said Richard Martin, director of McCain.

Betton is one of the founding fathers of the National Association of Jazz Educators. Betton was the executive director of the NAJE for the first 18 years after its establishment in 1968.

Betton believes the main objective of the NAJE is to perpetuate jazz music.

"Our goal has been reached to a certain extent, but there are still a lot of kids who still need to hear jazz," Betton said.

Betton began his career in music at age 12.

"I was in junior high in Kansas City, Kan., and I had played with a saxophone my parents had given me," Betton said.

Betton said he believes he became hooked on jazz when he heard dixieland jazz being played at a high school assembly.

"It's a very exciting and creative form of music," Betton said.

He gives his mother credit for his career in the music industry.

"I give her credit, bless her heart, because she really got me started in music," Betton said.

Betton began college at the University of Kansas but couldn't afford to continue after the first year. He then decided to attend K-State, where he received his degree in music.

Betton plays the saxophone and clarinet, but composing and arranging music for his group and others has become his career.

Betton has also owned a music store, called Betton's Family Music Center, in Manhattan for 16 years.

Although the monetary rewards of being a musician have not been exceptional, Betton has continued with it.

"What kept me in jazz music, I think, perhaps was the joy of pleasing people with music," Betton said.

Betton and Maye have been paired to perform together not only because of their talent, but also because the two have a special history of their own.

"At Meadows Club Ballroom in Topeka, which was a very popular place in the early '40s, once or twice an evening when we played up there we were fortunate enough to have a little 12-year-old girl sing a few numbers with us. Her name was Marilyn Maye. She was really good," Betton said.

Martin said each was a phenomenon.

Martin believes that Betton has done a great deal for jazz by making people aware of it through his work in NAJE.

"The music scene is constantly changing and it's terribly important to look at the roots because you can't understand the present without the past," Martin said.

The concert is a special event and is not on the regular subscription series. It is supported by a grant from the Kansas Farm Bureau services.

All tickets are $10 for reserved seating.

Bar owner injured, in stable condition

By Theresa Luling
Collegian Reporter

An owner of Brothers bar was injured Friday while intervening in a fight which was taking place in front of his business.

Ward Morgan, Manhattan, a co-owner of Brothers, is listed in stable condition at The St. Mary Hospital after having surgery to remove his ruptured spleen.

"It's really nothing big," said Perry Streit, manager of Brothers, when asked to comment on the incident.

"We are not going to give out any information concerning the incident," he said.

Other employees contacted refrained from making any comments about the fight. In an employees' meeting "we were told not to say anything," said Chris Kemp, junior in political science and an employee of Brother's.

Edward T. Washington, freshman in sociology, was charged with battery in connection with the fight.

Washington said he was waiting inside for a friend to enter Brothers when the doorman and his friend got into what looked like an argument. Then the doorman and his friend stepped outside.

"I went outside and saw my friend, the doorman, and a bunch of other people in a big circle," Washington said.

Theft of cartridge second this year

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

The third in a series of computer thefts occurred Sunday when a computer access cartridge was stolen from the Department of Grain Science in Shellenberger Hall, according to K-State Police reports.

The cartridge — a hard card — was taken from Shellenberger 215. The cartridge was worth about $550, according to campus police, and was the second hard card to be reported stolen from the hall this semester.

An earlier theft of a hard card occurred in August, campus police said. Two other departments on campus have reported thefts of computer equipment this semester, with losses totaling more than $10,000.

"There are no suspects at this time," said Richard Herrman, campus police investigator.

Three personal computers with keyboards, a monitor and a printer were stolen from Fairchild Hall two weeks ago. The equipment was worth about $8,000, according to campus police reports.

The KSU Athletic Department also reported theft of equipment when a computer worth about $4,000 was stolen from the football office earlier this month, campus police said.

None of the stolen equipment was insured since the state does not provide funds to insure University equipment, Herrman said.

It is too early to tell if the three thefts are related, he said.

"We need to find out if the hard card stolen from Shellenberger can be plugged into the computers stolen from Fairchild," Herrman said.

Whoever stole the hard card had to work at it, Herrman said.

Campus police have not started an investigation.

Posters to display agricultural research

By The Collegian Staff

More than 100 posters and displays will give students and faculty members insight into the agricultural research and Extension programs underway at K-State.

The poster session from 9:15 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Ballroom is part of the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service's annual conference taking place today through Thursday.

"(The session) is a great opportunity for students, faculty and staff to see what others in the whole system are doing," said Kurt Feltner, associate director of the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The purpose of the session is to inform the public and other scientists about the Experiment Station and Extension Service's efforts and accomplishments, Feltner said.

The posters will portray "really wide-ranging" topics, he said, from animal and crop improvement, marketing, economics and commodities to people-oriented 4-H programs.

A total of 115 posters will be displayed; 84 of those will be of research and 31 of Extension programs, Feltner said. Some are photographs, some diagrams and others data summaries.

The displays will also cover rural community and family problems, factors affecting farmland prices, and weather information systems. A poster on basic virus antibodies is an example of fundamental research to be displayed in the session, Feltner said.

BROTHERS
In Aggieville
ALTERNATIVE MUSIC NIGHT
9 p.m.-2 a.m.
New Order • The Cure
Echo and the Bunnymen
Depeche Mode • Cummunards
Erasure • Caberet Voltaire
$1.50 WELLS
1120 Moro 18 To Enter•21 To Drink 537-9511

776-5577 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present
little SHOP of HORRORS
LITTLE SHOP OF HORRORS
Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

TAN—TAN—TAN
$20
10-30 minute sessions
Wolff System Beds
3236 Kimball
776-1750
SCHLIEBE
WORKOUT CENTERS

Keep District 66 Growing!
Re-Elect
State Representative
IVAN SAND
Tuesday, November 8
Paid for the by Committee to Re-Elect Ivan Sand, Jim Gordon, Treasurer

FIRST TIME in history of KSU
the Muslim Community Assoc.
PRESENTS:
SUNNAH:
THE SECOND LEGISLATIVE OF ISLAM
by HAMED GHAZALI
Third Lecture in a series of lectures designed for NON-MUSLIMS
7:30 p.m.
Wed., Oct. 19, 1988
Big Eight Room, K-State Union
Refreshments served

Everyone wins INSTANTLY in
JOSTENS
ULTIMATE GOLD GIVEAWAY
Win your college ring FREE or win savings up to $100!
Order your college ring NOW
JOSTENS
AMERICA'S COLLEGE RING
Mon.-Wed. Oct. 17-19 10am-4pm
k-state union bookstore

ESTABLISHED 1920
THE Stevensons CLOTHING COMPANY
GOOD LOOKING PANTS DONT HAVE TO COST YOU AN ARM AND A LEG... or a wing and feather!
Enjoy the look and feel of comfort-- popular DUCKHEAD PANTS in 100% cotton
Khaki, Black, Olive or Navy
Sizes 28 - 42
Starting at $25
1342 WESTLOOP PLACE • WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
MANHATTAN, KANSAS (913) 539-8081

Paul Mitchell
STUDENT HAIRCARE SAVINGS!
COUPON SAVINGS
$1 OFF STUDENT CUT Reg. $8 MasterCuts family haircutters
$1 OFF STUDENT CUT Reg. $8 MasterCuts family haircutters
$5 OFF ANY PERM MasterCuts family haircutters
MasterCuts family haircutters
Manhattan Town Center 776-0606

To succeed in politics, lie about taxes

Commentary

MARK SCHMELLER

Collegian Columnist

Everyone knows the old saying about the two great eventualities of life — death and taxes. Nonetheless, a third eventuality has emerged lately — lies about taxes by presidential candidates. Most of the lies are pretty obvious, like George Bush's "read my lips" refusal to raise taxes and Mike Dukakis' insistence that he won't have to.

I love a good, bald-faced, well-executed lie as much as anyone, but I must admit that many of the tax lies spouted by Bush and Dukakis are the sort of subtle half-truths that you might miss the first time around. But I encourage everyone to listen carefully to the ever-increasing amount of artful issue-dodging and keep these things in mind:

■ The Reagan tax cuts didn't cut taxes. The 1981 Kemp-Roth tax cut did lower income tax rates. But, as the authors, as well as Reagan and Bush, probably knew, inflation would soon push most people into a higher tax bracket. As a result, most people ended up paying about the same rates, albeit in a higher tax bracket. Those in the lower- and middle-income tax brackets ended up paying more. A Brookings Institution study showed that, between 1980 and 1985, the percentage of income going for taxes shrunk only for the richest 20 percent of American families.

■ Income taxes are just half the picture. There are many other ways to raise taxes, and Congress and the Reagan administration has found them. A 1983 Social Security payroll tax increase was one of the largest tax hikes in history. It is interesting that the FICA payroll tax applies only to salaries below $43,000, and that a miscalculation in the tax increase led to a $50 billion surplus in the Social Security trust fund. The $50 billion is just sitting there, being applied against the federal deficit, but not being used to pay it off.

Tricks like this point to a common strategy of the Reagan administration — using the money the government has to counter the debt it runs up by spending money it doesn't have. Under the guidance of Elizabeth Dole, the Department of Transportation sat on billions of dollars while domestic air traffic became increasingly worse. Why? Because Dole promised to help the administration by not spending the money and allowing it to be applied against the deficit.

Another way the federal government has managed to shift numbers around is by cutting federal revenue sharing to the states. With revenue sharing, the federal government sends money to the states to help them finance programs and internal improvements. Over the past eight years, such sharing has been cut in order to lower federal spending. As a result, state governments have had to raise taxes in many cases.

■ Better tax collection won't do it all. Michael Dukakis would like to say so, but he can't really believe it. All the taxes not collected since 1972 amount to a whopping $1.6 trillion. But that's not enough, considering $1.6 trillion is only about 60 percent of the federal debt.

More importantly, the crazed army of fascist IRS auditors that Bush claims Dukakis will create couldn't collect all the money. Some $830 billion of the unpaid taxes belong to small businesses and farmers, most of it through small amounts of unreported income. If Dukakis thinks he can audit every farmer in America who sells pumpkins by the side of the road, he's a bigger fool than I thought.

■ Tax rates, not the tax burden, tell the true story. Bush likes to note that the tax burden per person in Massachusetts has risen at the second-highest rate in the nation while Dukakis was governor. That's true, but it is only half the picture. Tax rates in Massachusetts aren't all that high, ranking 35th among the states. But personal income has risen faster in Massachusetts than in any other state. As people make more money, they pay more taxes.

This is how Bush can claim that the rich are paying more taxes and the poor are paying less as his justification for more higher-bracket tax cuts. Granted, the richest five percent of Americans do pay 11 percent more in taxes than they did in 1977, but they also have 20 percent more income (and 24.2 percent of all the money made in America) than they made 11 years ago.

The telling, and indeed the only important figure, is that their tax rate, the fraction of income paid in taxes, has been cut by 8 percent. Meanwhile, up to 80 percent of the rest of us ended up with higher income tax rates. Many may have ended up paying less money, but that was only because many made less money.

■ Trickle-down bull. Bush and Reagan have spent the last eight years justifying their rich-folk tax breaks by arguing it will stimulate the economy and eventually pull everyone up. And for eight years, the Donald Trumps of the nation have gotten richer and the poor who have gotten poorer have been kicked out into the streets. The distribution of income in this country is the most uneven it has been since they began measuring it in the late 1940s, and recent trends show an even greater disparity developing.

After eight years of prosperity among the nation's richest, one would think it's about time for the nation's poorest to get their pulling-up and their trickling-down of wealth. But it hasn't happened yet, and it seems unlikely to happen soon. Yet no one has really asked Bush to justify his economic philosophy with some results, or to show when it's going to work. Maybe someone should.

■ In the final analysis, taxes aren't that important. Bush is telling the truth when he claims that government revenues have risen, but I don't know why he'd want to admit it. If the government has managed to take in more money and still has racked up bigger debts, something is fundamentally wrong. Higher taxes may help somewhat. Soaking the rich may also help. The real problem is pretty obvious — we are spending too much. Both candidates have wishy-washy solutions to the problem, and nobody really seems interested in it anyway. It's not quite as exciting as patriotism, Jane Fonda's navel, Dan Quayle's intellect (or lack thereof) and rotting fish.

Nonetheless, the idea of the United States having the biggest national debt in the world is unsettling. After all, we know what happens to big businesses when they drown in debt — Donald Trump buys them out.

Senate may continue impeachment games

When Student Senate meets tonight, one of the items on the agenda should be a bill, sponsored by the Executive Committee, which calls for the impeachment of more than 20 senators for apparent violations of attendance policies. In sponsoring and considering this bill, Senate has raised a number of interesting questions with important implications for the future.

First, it seems unlikely that any of those involved will be impeached, especially after last week's outing, during which several senators hassled two of their colleagues before eventually deciding not to impeach them.

What also seems unlikely is that the stars of tonight's show will undergo anything resembling last week's proceedings. Opinion does not seem as united that these senators have violated the rules — however questionable those rules have been shown to be.

Second, and more importantly, with less than a month left before new senators are elected, one wonders why these questions are just now getting aired. Where was the Senate leadership when all these alleged violations were taking place? If these bills are to set an example, where were the bills of impeachment when the example they may have set would make a difference?

Indeed, last week, when Senate voted down a bill to recognize 24 people as eligible for impeachment, one of the reasons given for voting the bill down was that it would not actually impeach them, but only recognize them as eligible for impeachment. Several senators, some of whose names were on the list of impeachable people, said they would have voted for the bill if only it had some teeth.

But if that were really the case, then why didn't a few of those partisans of justice introduce their own bills to consider impeachment?

Perhaps they were too busy rescheduling Senate for tonight, so senators could attend the Def Leppard concert on Thursday night, during the regularly scheduled meeting time.

Other Perspectives

"I do not take a single newspaper, nor read one a month, and I feel myself infinitely the happier for it."

— Thomas Jefferson

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

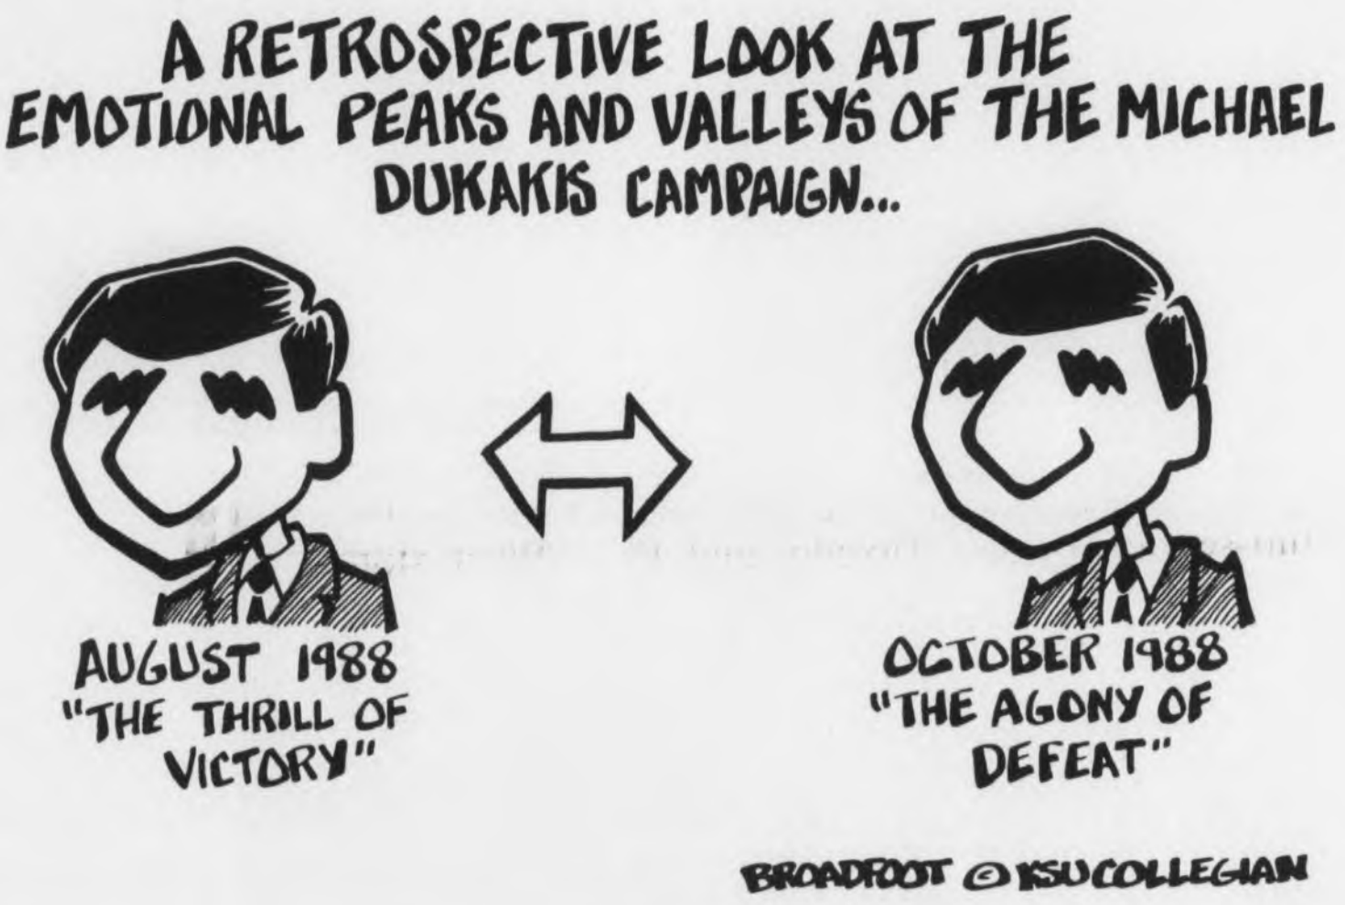
EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.



Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Letters

Head coach blues

Editor,

I heard the evening newscast Oct. 3 that Stan Parrish had resigned as the K-State football coach. This announcement did not really catch me by surprise. I have heard this news before and I expect to hear it again. Honestly, my patience is wearing thin, but it is not so much with the coaches.

The K-State football program is a difficult program with which to work. If there would have been only one or two coaches with losing records, that would be one thing. The problem, however, is as old as K-State football itself. K-State football might be described as having a self-esteem problem. I do not really know why anybody would want to apply for the K-State football coach's position, considering the commitment of the K-State supporters to correct the situation.

I believe that alumni support, much of it financial, is central to university athletics. This arrangement has always bewildered me. Why is it that alumni seem to give more to universities with top-notch athletic teams? How soon the alumni forget that it was academics that got them their good-paying jobs in the first place.

I, too, would like to watch good athletic competitions in which K-State wins. On the other hand, I would rather watch a growing program instead of seeing the whole process start over every few years. It is a shame that college athletics are no longer sport but big business.

I started following K-State football when Vince "we gonna win" Gibson was at the helm. Since then, I have followed Ellis Rainsberger, Jim Dickey and now Parrish. Each time a new football coach is hired, I hear claims that K-State has hired the best coach that money could buy. Each time that I hear this, I feel even more strongly that unrealistic expectations are being continually made of the new football coach.

I do not claim to be an expert on the mechanics of football, and I do not pretend to know what has gone on behind the scenes during Parrish's tenure in Manhattan. From what I can tell, this year's team is young and improving. In my opinion, the team's statistics are moving in a positive direction. With some more maturity, and it may not be all that much longer, they will be winners.

I believe that there are some people who should do some real soul-searching, make a decision and follow through with it. Either pick a football coach, give him the tools that he needs and stand behind him while he builds the program or else drop the football program entirely and get out of the Big Eight Conference.

Kenneth Stoss
Class of 1977

Clarify fee

Editor,

Once more, students will have a chance to help support the KSU Athletic Department, whether we want to or not, through the athletic fee. It is hoped this proposal will not pass the Student Senate. Please don't misunderstand me. I am not saying that this fee is not needed, but wouldn't an increase in health fees be better for the students on this campus rather than money to help non-revenue sports offer more scholarships?

The proposed athletic fee outlined in the Sept. 5 Collegian alluded to sport clubs being allocated a portion of this fee. Which clubs are being talked about? Is it possible that the rugby team, often ranked as one of the best in the United States, will be financially sponsored by the athletic department?

What about the soccer, rowing, water-ski and rodeo teams? Can they expect support from the athletic department? If the athletic department is suggesting that it will support club sports, why the sudden change of policy? Before too much is said, perhaps Athletic Director Steve Miller could clarify the athletic department's position on sports clubs.

Supporting an athletic fee is a great idea. An even better idea is increasing the student health fee to help maintain the services for students at Lafene. Most likely there will be enrollment fee increases in the coming years, so why not have them benefit the entire student body?

Kurt D. Becker
senior in bakery science

Voting questionable

Editor,

Funding for K-State, especially for the Margin of Excellence, is an issue in the local race for state representative which should concern all of us. Both Sheila Hochhauser and Joe Knopp say they favor the MOE, but in the last legislative session, Rep. Knopp voted against full funding because he said it included "extravagant expenditures." He voted to fund only 83 percent of the Regents' request, a vote which cost this University $635,630 — $340,000 in salaries and $295,630 in program improvements.

This includes $35,000 cut from the funds for Lower Division Instruction, primarily in math and English composition programs, and $115,000 cut from much-needed support for computer engineering faculty and facilities. Programs to improve the economic health of Kansas agriculture were cut $65,000, forcing the elimination of funds for a Wheat Genetics Resource Center and for projects on dryland cropping. Funding totalling $47,250 was cut from programs providing direct service for economic development, and another $33,380 from funds for the Science Education Center, computing services, the library and other programs.

I think Knopp is wrong in calling these programs extravagant, and I am concerned that he will cut other such "extravagances" from the next two phases of the MOE if he is re-elected. That wouldn't just cut to the bone, that would cut to the heart.

Melvin Center
professor of biology

The Collegian encourages Letters to the Editor, which should be delivered to Kedzie 116.

Company will train students to become blackjack dealers

By Nancy Prosser
Collegian Reporter

Casino Concepts has a proposition for would-be blackjack dealers looking for some extra cash.

The company is willing to train people to deal blackjack and give them their first job, all for one night of work a week at the Hat Creek Company Saloon in Junction City.

Casino Concepts is a Texas-based company that operates 11 blackjack tables in taverns and hotels across the United States, said Anne Adams, Kansas City manager for Casino Concepts.

Training consists of eight hours of supervised practice and one hour of "live" training at the bar. Dealers will earn $4.50 an hour plus tips. Adams said most dealers make about $8 an hour, depending on tips and their personalities.

Dealers do not serve drinks so the bar does not require them to be 21.

"We provide a non-threatening social atmosphere for people, especially traveling businessmen, to have a good time," Adams said. "Since our service caters to the business crowd, we want dealers who are well-versed and can talk to people. College students usually are our best bet."

Most of the dealers are college students who want part-time jobs with flexible hours, she said.

"We train our dealers to be professional blackjack dealers. They could move from our tables right to tables in Las Vegas," she said.

"The blackjack games are identical to the Las Vegas game in every way but one: There is no gambling," Adams said. "There is a minimum buy-in of $10. The player is then given $2,000 in chips."

Players may remain in the game until they lose all their chips, but no monetary awards are given out, she said.

"It's sort of like putting a quarter in a video machine. If you win, you get to keep playing," Adams said.

"We are licensed under live video. The point of playing the game is for fun," she said. "The customer pays to play, but can only win a good time."

'Virus' destroys programs

By Stuart Puls
Collegian Reporter

A virus is spreading across the nation, but it is not biological and it does not attack humans — it is a computer virus.

Computer viruses are programs designed to infect an existing program and change it or destroy it completely. There are different kinds of viruses, said Virgil Wallentine, head of the Department of Computing and Information Sciences.

"Some viruses are 'dated' viruses. They are prepared to infect a program at a certain time and date, and then end. Others may just continually run and spread throughout the whole system," Wallentine said.

The penalties for writing a computer virus vary, said Dorothy Thompson, associate University attorney.

"It depends on the circumstances. There is really no clear-cut penalty if you're caught," Thompson said.

Some charges an offender could face would be misuse of public facilities, violation of government property and vandalism.

There are no cases of a virus infecting a system at K-State, although one may exist undetected.

"There have been no clear-cut cases here at school, but there is no way to tell if there might be a virus out there right now," Wallentine said.

A virus looks for a structured program to infect, and, if a program hasn't already been infected, the virus will grow. A virus uses the host system to travel around and infect programs.

There are two ways to transmit a virus. One is by copying a program which already contains the virus. This is often done by personal computer owners. The other way is through a national network, such as one used by many universities to link to a national data base, Wallentine said.

If that central data base becomes infected, the virus has the potential to spread to any university that taps into the data base. Thus a virus has the potential to spread throughout the country in seconds.

"It is unclear how to prevent a virus from infecting a program," Wallentine said.

Once a system has been infected, the only way to rid it of the virus is to shut the machine off and reinstall uninfected software. Often the software has to be replaced. This can cost a lot of time and money.

Systems may be inoculated against known viruses. Most viruses, however, can't be detected until it is too late.

"It is hard to protect a system from a virus. You don't know if it has been infected until it is usually too late, and then there is nothing you can do," Wallentine said.

Another way to slow down a virus is to encrypt, or encode, a program. Only by using a key could someone run the program. But coded material is still vulnerable to determined viruses.

"It all boils down to the people. They are the ones who can stop the viruses — by not starting one," Wallentine said.

Have story or photo ideas? CALL 532-6556

2 boys commit suicide

By The Associated Press

SOUTH MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Two 15-year-old boys despondent at being separated when one of their families moved away took their lives together during a weekend reunion, sharing a hunting rifle that each fired at his own head, police said Monday.

The bodies of the two — Michael J. Kruczkowski of South Milwaukee and William A. Bollis, who had recently moved to Malone — were found Sunday evening by Kruczkowski's mother in the attic of the boy's home.

"They were best of friends and they had been separated," Police Chief Erick A. Slamka said. "One family moved to a rural community. That's about it. The kid from up north had come down to visit for the weekend, and it was when the father came to pick him up that the bodies were discovered."

Both boys were killed by single shots to the head, and the wounds of both appeared to be self-inflicted, the chief said.

"This is gruesome to watch it happen to your friend, then doing it to yourself," Slamka said.

According to the medical examiner's report, the boys left two printed notes addressed to their parents.

One of the notes said the two boys had decided to end their lives because they could no longer be separated from their friends and each other, the report said. The second note instructed the parents to listen to a tape recording they had made to explain their decision.

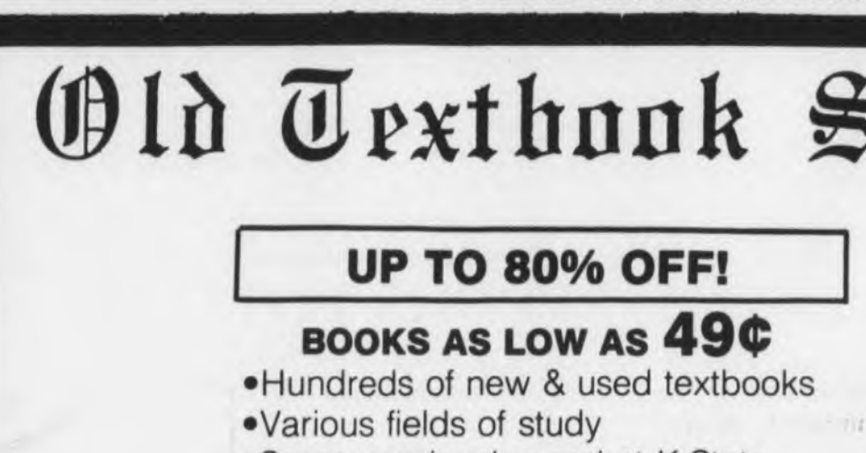
Police declined to release the words of the notes or tape, which Slamka said ran no more than a minute.

The bodies were discovered after Bollis' father came to the home and met Kruczkowski's mother. She went to the attic of the wood-frame house, where her son lived with his father, and found the bodies, Slamka said.

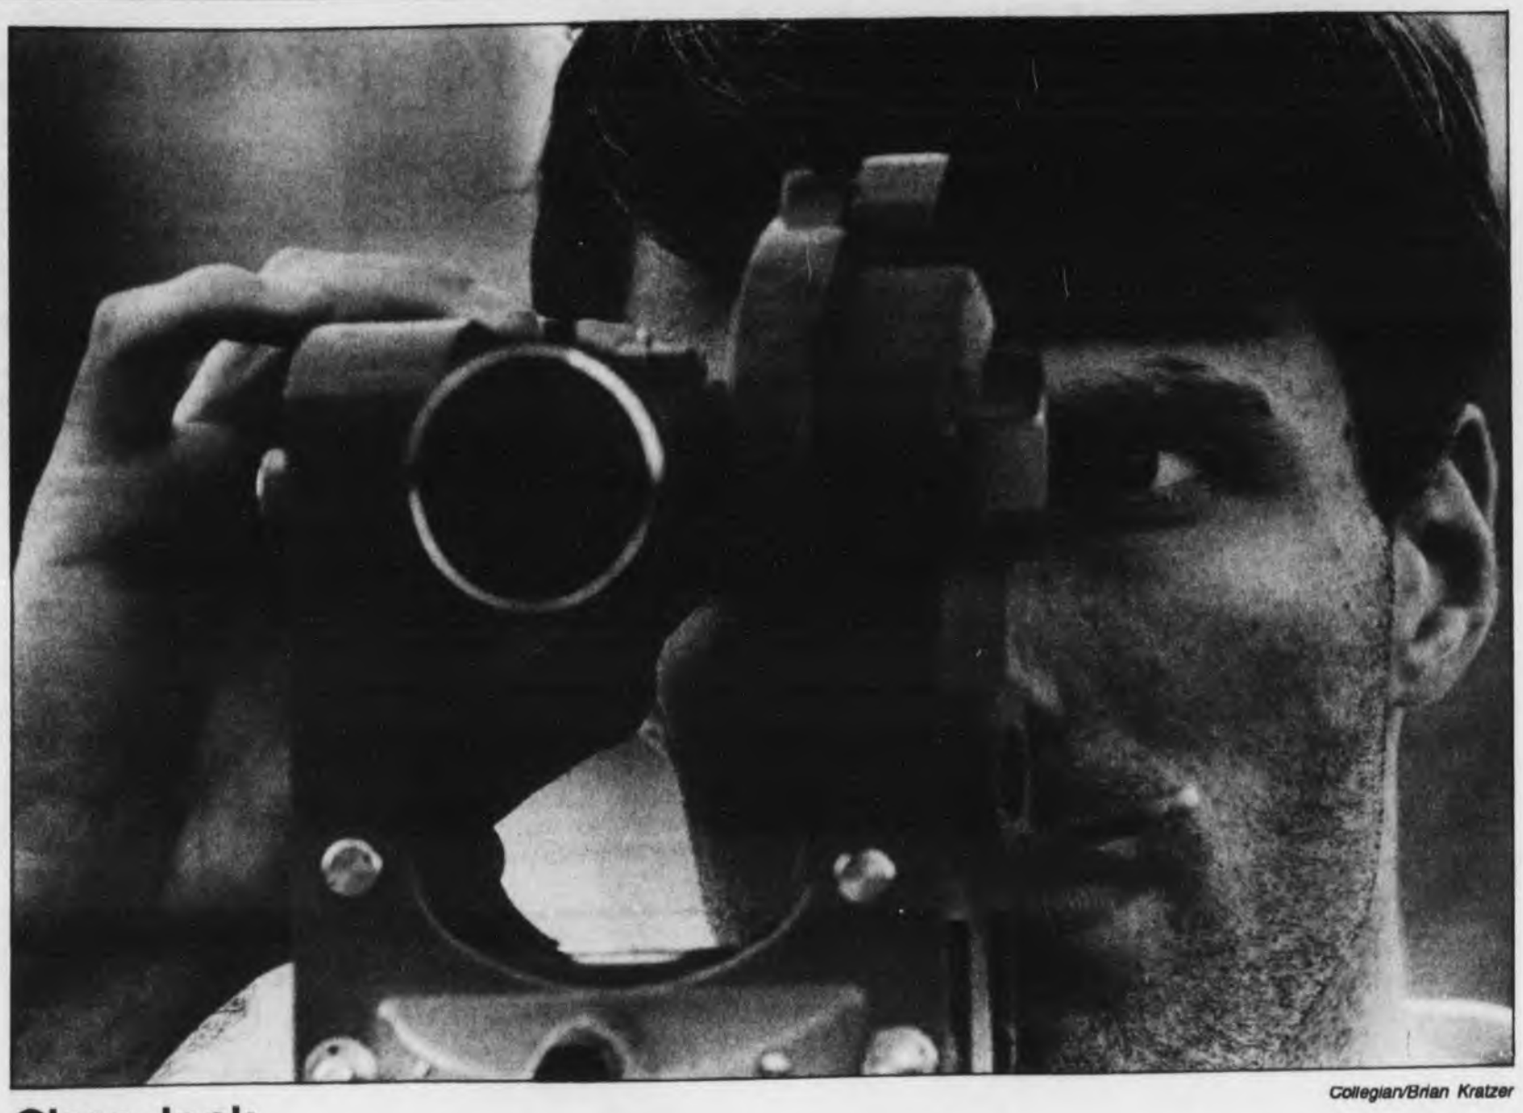
The mother told police she did not hear gunshots.

The .30-06-caliber rifle was owned by the Kruczkowski's father, who also had other rifles in the home.

Slamka, a 25-year veteran of the South Milwaukee department, added: "I can't recall a multiple suicide, a double suicide. From time to time we have gunshot suicides and young people are involved. Each time it's especially tragic, and in the event of a double suicide, it multiplies the loss and the concern you have for these people," he said.



FREE CATALOG
of Government Books
Send for your copy today!
Free Catalog
Box 37000
Washington DC 20013-7000



Let us DESIGN & MAKE-UP
Your Halloween Costume
SCE SKIN CARE ESSENTIALS
&
Designer Boutique
Both Located on South Fourth
"We will sew & make your Halloween parties fun!"
Call: 537-9070 or 539-2622

BELIEVE IT!
CHRISTINE'S HAS GOTTEN EVEN BETTER!
Announcing the opening of a bigger and better full-service Bridal, Tuxedo, and Party-Wear store.
CHRISTINE'S THE WEDDING COMPANY
Now at a NEW LOCATION!
—1223 Moro—
776-7287
Mon.-Fri. 10-5:30
Thursday till 8 p.m.

Old Textbook Sale
UP TO 80% OFF!
BOOKS AS LOW AS 49¢
•Hundreds of new & used textbooks
•Various fields of study
•Some previously used at K-State
•Some from other universities
•Old editions
•Wholesaler overstock
Don't pass up this great opportunity to add to your personal library at a fraction of the regular cost!
9-9 Mon.-Sat.
Varney's BOOK STORE IN AGGIEVILLE
12-5 Sun.

CHECK US OUT!
Come in and check us out! At Village Inn, we want your expectations to meet ours. Next time you visit Village Inn look us over and see if we make the grade!
VILLAGE INN SCORE CARD
Food ☑Excellent
Service ☑Excellent
Cleanliness ☑Excellent
Server Courtesy ☑Excellent
Tell Us How We Did!
Village Inn Pancake House Restaurant
©1988 Village Inn Corporation
204 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Manhattan

We've put our brand on an entire industry by giving our professionals the freedom to make their mark.
We're an American company that works.
Through an enthusiasm for new ideas and bold strategies, IBP has become the world's uncontested leader of the fresh meat processing industry. Our sales of nearly $8 billion last year represent more than our astonishing volume of beef and pork products and their consistent quality. It represents the success of incorporating the exciting, diverse and innovative thinking of IBP people whose backgrounds span a broad range of disciplines.
At IBP, our philosophy is to look to the next frontier of our business and operations — a place where there are no barriers to fresh achievements. Heightened challenge awaiting promising professionals in the following areas is matched by the potential of a future filled with significant personal accomplishment: • SALES/ MARKETING • PRODUCTION MANAGEMENT • PROCUREMENT • QUALITY CONTROL • ACCOUNTING
MEET WITH IBP REPRESENTATIVES ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1ST AT HOLTZ HALL
Our representatives will extend you a hearty hand and tell you about the opportunities IBP offers at locations across the nation. For more information on exciting career opportunities with IBP, contact the Placement Center or write: College Relations Representative, IBP, Inc., P.O. Box 8000, Sioux City, Iowa 51102.
ibp®
An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

Collegian/Brian Kratzer

Close look

Brian Grigsby, junior in construction science, looks through a theodolite on the east lawn of Durland Hall. Grigsby, who was in his Elementary Survey Engineering Lab, was working on a trig- determination of height of the power plant stack.

Aluminum thievery, not a local problem

By Angela J. Smith
Collegian Reporter

Although the Wall Street Journal recently reported a growing nationwide wave of aluminum theft, K-State and Manhattan officials said Manhattan has been spared from the thievery.

In California, about $200,000 worth of aluminum guard rails and highway signs have been taken. In Seattle, aluminum bunks from a ship-repair facility and 7,000 pounds of ingots were stolen. The Wall Street Journal article said these examples are typical of the growing nationwide problem of aluminum stealing.

According to the Journal, one reason for the theft of aluminum is that the daily market price of aluminum has tripled since 1986.

Howard Wilson, co-owner of Can-Man Recycling, said his prices have not tripled, but have doubled since 1986.

"In 1986, we were paying 18 cents a pound for aluminum," Wilson said. Can-Man Recycling currently pays 40 cents a pound.

Neither Howard nor JoAnn Wilson, co-owner of Can-Man Recycling, said any cases of stolen aluminum have been reported to them.

"Aluminum stealing has not happened here as far as we know, but we have heard of it happening in Oklahoma," Howard Wilson said.

"Right now we are paying 40 cents a pound for aluminum," JoAnn Wilson said. "(For amounts) over 100 pounds we pay 45 cents. However, the price fluctuates with the market."

Roy Doughty, K-State police officer, said he has not heard any reports of aluminum thefts.

"We have not had any cases of any big pieces of aluminum stolen," Doughty said.

"I don't know of any cases of aluminum theft ever happening in Manhattan," said K.W. Padgett, Riley County police department sergeant.

A trash sack full of aluminum products, depending on the market value of aluminum, can yield from $2.40 to $3.20, JoAnn Wilson said.

Recycling of aluminum is an important business to some K-State students.

Elizabeth Vogel, senior in family life and community service, said she saves cans for environmental reasons.

"I feel recycling cans is a small way we all can help keep our environment clean," Vogel said.

1 in 6 colleges requires languages

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Only one of six four-year colleges in the United States requires that all students getting degrees study a foreign language, the American Council on Education reported Monday.

The same proportion has raised its foreign language requirement over the past five years.

Foreign language requirements in other countries are considerably heavier. It takes seven years of English to graduate from an Israeli high school, for example.

A study by Charles J. Andersen Jr., senior research associate for the council, found that about one in eight of the colleges, 13 percent, requires some foreign language study of all applicants. One in 12 increased its requirement between 1982 and 1987.

There was much less interest in languages among two-year community colleges, which are more oriented toward getting jobs for their graduates. Only 1 percent required any foreign language study as a condition of entrance and only about 13 percent required any further instruction for the associate degrees they usually grant.

The survey was based on replies from nearly 400 of more than 3,200 institutions listed by the U.S. Department of Education.

JOYCE'S HAIR TAMERS
539-TAME 2026 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
HAIRCUTS
Guys—$7.50
Gals—$10.50
includes shampoo & style

KANSAS
STUDENTS AGAINST DRIVING DRUNK
SADD
Meeting: October 18 Tuesday
8:30 p.m. Union 204
776-3251

ATTENTION STUDENTS
Are you suffering from any neck or back pain?
CONSIGLI CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC
is now offering a FREE CHIROPRACTIC EXAMINATION (a $30 value) for STUDENTS ONLY!
This examination includes Spinal, Orthopedic, & Neurological testing.
Call now for an appointment.
776-1850
Linda D. Consigli, D.C.
1325 Anderson Ave.

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

STUDIO POTTERS SALE
SPONSORED BY THE U.F.M. POTTERS GUILD
EXHIBITORS
Jerri Griffin Terry Rempel Sara Rempel
Ester Ikeda Gene Sievers
October 18 & 19, Tues. & Wed.
9 a.m.-5 p.m.
UNION MAIN LEVEL

Joli STYLE SALON Tanning Manicures
539-1177
1106 Laramie
Aggieville
GRAND OPENING
$5 off Cut & Style
$2 off French Manicure
prices effective thru Sat., Oct. 22
REGISTER TO WIN
haircuts
1 perm
manicures
tanning sessions
Walk-ins always welcome

1214½ Moro-Aggieville
539-9920

Mr. GG's
Hair styling for Men & Women
PERM SPECIAL!
$10 off regular perm with Karen
(5 years experience)
Coupon expires 10-31-88

WEEKEND NEWS REPORTER
All New All Hit KMKF 101.7
Weekend news reporter wanted for Radio Stations KMAN-KMKF, Manhattan. Previous writing experience required. Hours: Saturday 8 a.m.-1 p.m.; Sunday 8-10 a.m.
Contact Jeff Wichman, 2414 Casement Road. EOE.
KMAN 1350

BUSHWACKER'S THE FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday at 9
This week
Kenny Rogerson
Kenny is a Bushwacker's favorite. You may have seen him on MTV, HBO, or Late Night with David Letterman. He is a must for comedy fans and is being held over a 3rd night due to his popularity. He is proclaimed by Jack Carpenter, of the Manhattan Mercury, as our no. 1 comedian. Don't miss the laughs.
Reservations recommended but not necessary.
Steak & Shrimp $3.95
539-4321 531 N. Manhattan 539-9727

NON-Trivial PURSUIT
National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1988
1. What is the #1 cause of death in the military today?
2. When a person has been drinking an alcoholic beverage, how much alcohol does the body "burn up" every hour?
3. The first U.S. brewery was built in what year?
4. The No. 1 cause of death for Americans 1-35 years old is.
5. Approximately, how many KSU students were arrested for D.U.I. in Riley County in 1987?
Answers: (1) drunk driving (2) ½ ounce (3) 1637 (4) motor vehicle accidents (5) 100
All University Casino Night
Saturday, Oct. 22, 1988, 8 p.m.-Midnight
at Chameleons (in Aggieville)
FREE ADMISSION with KSU ID
Funded by City of Manhattan Special Alcohol Program Fund
ALCOHOL & OTHER DRUG EDUCATION SERVICE

NEED TO GET YOUR MESSAGE OUT?

Selling your bicycle?

Need a job?

Buying a sofa?

Need a roommate?
the Collegian Classifieds
Kedzie 103 Phone 532-6555
Deadline-noon the day before publication

Academic plan of SEC draws ire of Big 8 coaches

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Southeastern Conference can expect no help from Tom Osborne or Barry Switzer at next January's NCAA convention.

The SEC has said it will try to make it illegal to give scholarships to high school graduates who do not meet the minimum freshman academic requirements under Proposition 48. Currently, such youngsters can get scholarships but have to sit out their freshman year without playing or practicing.

"I think it would probably help us from a selfish standpoint," said Nebraska's Osborne at the Big Eight's weekly teleconference Monday. "We've only had a total of two Proposition 48 players in three years. There are certain areas of the country where there is a larger percantage of Proposition 48 people than at Nebraska and the Central United States.

"Some schools are benefitting more from the present rule. But I really believe the fundamental part of athletics is to give young people an opportunity. I would be very much opposed to doing away with the Proposition 48 loophole for somebody who just doesn't happen to test well. I think we're damaging these kids if we don't give them a chance."

"I think it's a terrible idea," Switzer said. "Why should a kid who makes 14 on a test not be allowed to come to Division I-A? It doesn't make sense. When I look back at the history of our squad, the kids we've graduated before Proposition 48 came about, and the kids who got their degree and are now successful ... No, I wouldn't support that at all."

Switzer's triple option offense, despite injuries to quarterback Jamelle Holieway and others, seems to be shifting on its customary late-season gear.

"The offense is getting closer," Switzer said. "I think we're coming into a pretty good unit right now for the stretch run. I think we've been a pretty good defensive football team. As I look around the country at scores last week, there may not be a lot of good defensive teams."

The next chore for the Oklahoma defense will be Colorado, and most particularly running back Eric Bieniemy. He and Oklahoma State's Barry Sanders are having the most spectacular seasons in the conference.

"It just proves you don't have to be tall to be a great running back," Switzer said. "Both are very talented."

Nebraska's road assignment this week is at K-State, which gave up 70 points to Oklahoma last week but scored 24 — mostly in the fourth quarter against the people sitting on the farthest end of the Sooner bench.

"We got off to a horrible start against a very good team, which is the formula for getting really pasted," said K-State Coach Stan Parrish. "We went into the second half trying to establish something in the way of small goals, particularly offensively, and I thought we played awful well in the second half."

Considering the rugged schedule he faces this month, Parrish has talked about setting small goals and looking for small victories.

"With Oklahoma, Nebraska and OSU coming up three weeks in a row, it's the only sane way to approach it," he said. "I know we got beat badly, but there are still some things on film our kids could take to practice Monday. Half our team were first-year guys and they were very nervous."

Staff/Joe Freeman

Dan Blea tries to get his pass off before his opponent from Topeka can drive him to the ground in Saturday's match at Swope Park in Kansas City, Mo. The team finished with 3 wins and 2 losses in the weekend tournament.

An alternative lifestyle

K-State Rugby team plays, parties hard

By Janet Swanson
News Editor

Rugby may not look like it, but it's a "social sport."

At least the members on the K-State Rugby team say it is.

"We're a club. To be a part of it, you have to take part in the social activities," said Dan Morrison, prop and graduate student in biochemistry.

"No matter what happens on the field — that's on the field. No hard feelings are created," Morrison said. "You shake hands and get together later as friends."

Dave Farris, lock and senior in political science, said he took up rugby a year and a half ago to have fun.

"It was a chance to hurt some people and have a good time. It's (the team) like a family," he said.

Tim Dugan, hooker and senior in economics, said the 45 members on the team's roster are a special group.

"We live an alternative lifestyle. We party hard, but we play hard too," Dugan said.

The game officially consists of two 40-minute halves, except in tournaments, when halves are 20 minutes. In rugby circles, however, an informal third half is known to exist, Dugan said.

"That's when we get together after the games," he said.

It's this comaraderie that sets rugby apart from other sports, said Greg Barnes, flyhalf and K-State graduate.

"I'm rarely at a loss for words, but I am when it comes to rugby," he said. "We have the ultimate fraternal organization."

Barnes, who has played for 15 years, said the only reason to play rugby is for the enjoyment of it.

"You have to really search yourself for an answer as to why you play, because everybody asks why," he said. "Your friends and parents, they all ask why you put yourself through it.

"I saw one of the best slogans explaining the game. It said, 'Rugby because,' and that's true."

Players say the game is not as bad as its rough-and-tumble appearance.

Kevin Wagner, fullback and senior in marketing, has played rugby for three years. During high school, he played football.

"I've had less-serious injuries playing (rugby than football). I've had more bruises, scrapes and bumps. But it's not as bad as it looks," Wagner said. "It looks much worse from the sidelines."

Barnes said it's easy to spot a rugby player on Mondays.

"If you see a guy walking across campus with no skin on his face, then you know that he's a rugby player," he said.

Wagner said he changed sports because football demanded too much of a time commitment.

"I decided that this was a way to keep in shape and have fun. This is a social sport," he said.

Morrison said he decided to start playing rugby the day he was watching TV and saw what his stomach really looked like.

"It's a way of life — of doing things," he said.

Rugby, which could be considered a combination of soccer and football, is still an amateur sport in the United States, Barnes said.

"The thing about it is that Americans are just beginning to play while players in the European countries are ready to retire," he said.

Dan Blea, coach and 1984 graduate, said the game is still in its developmental stages in the United States. K-State organized its first team in 1971.

"We have probably one of the strongest teams in the nation," Blea said.

During the past eight years, the squad has been ranked nationally. The lowest ranking the team ever received during that time, Barnes said, is 16th. This year, the squad is 12-3-1.

"Nobody can play their 'B' team against us," said Barnes. "We may be the poor kids on the block, but we can play against anyone."

The only funding the team receives is $96 each year from the Student Senate. In addition, members pay dues of $35 each semester.

This, Dugan said, only covers administrative expenses.

"We have to spend a lot of money out of our pocket. All of our travel expenses and everything we pay," he said.

Although this may be a drawback for some, Wagner said it brings the team closer together.

What would help the team, Wagner said, is to be allowed to play on a University field.

The team's only home matches will be 12:30 p.m. Saturday at Gorman Park against Topeka RFC, Pittsburg State RFC and Wichita RFC.

Staff/Joe Freeman

Kevin Wimbley drives his way over a Topeka player during a match in Kansas City. This year the K-State Rugby team is 12-3-1.

A's pitcher Welch to face former team

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — As a 21-year-old rookie, Bob Welch struck out Reggie Jackson to win Game 2 of the 1978 World Series for Los Angeles. His challenge this time is to beat the Dodgers.

Los Angeles carries a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series into the Oakland Coliseum for Game 3 Tuesday night after beating the Oakland Athletics in the first two games at Dodger Stadium.

Kirk Gibson hit a dramatic two-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning for a 5-4 victory in Game 1 and Orel Hershiser pitched a three-hitter to beat the A's 6-0 Sunday.

Welch, who pitched for the Dodgers for 10 years, will be opposed by left-hander John Tudor.

"I have lots of friends on the Dodgers and I was rooting for them to win the playoffs against the (New York) Mets," Welch said. "I know them and they know me, so I don't think there's any advantage there."

Welch went to Oakland in a three-team deal last winter that also involved the Mets. The Dodgers ended up with relievers Jay Howell and Jesse Orosco and shortstop Alfredo Griffin.

"One of the things you want to do when you trade is make a deal that helps both clubs," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "We were last in hitting last season, last in fielding and we needed to help our bullpen.

"We hated to trade Bobby Welch. But we helped our bullpen and Alfredo Griffin helped Steve Sax at second. He solidified our infield defense."

Welch was 17-9 for the A's with a 3.64 earned-run average and struck out 158 in 244 2-3 innings. The 17 victories represented a career high for Welch.

"I told the A's when we traded them Welch that we had just traded them the AL West title," Lasorda said.

Tudor is making his sixth World Series start. He is 3-2 with a 4.03 ERA.

UCLA takes over top spot in poll

By The Associated Press

The UCLA Bruins are the No. 1 team in college football for the first time in 21 years, followed by Notre Dame, Southern California and defending national champion Miami.

Notre Dame's 31-30 victory over Miami knocked the Hurricanes from the top spot after a six-week stay. The Fighting Irish, meanwhile, moved up from fourth place last week to their highest ranking since they were No. 1 on Sept. 14, 1981.

UCLA, 6-0 after a 38-21 victory over California, received 33 of 60 first-place votes and 1,169 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The Bruins had been ranked No. 2 for five weeks.

The last time UCLA was No. 1 was on Nov. 13, 1967, when the Bruins had a 7-0-1 record. But UCLA lost its next two games and finished 7-2-1.

"I actually feel it's too early to determine who the best team in the country is," UCLA coach Terry Donahue said Monday. "We're just over 50 percent done with our schedule, and how do you judge anything on 50 percent?

"It just doesn't make sense, but it'll all come out in the end. It's not time for Christmas yet."

Notre Dame, also 6-0, received 22 first-place votes and 1,142 points. The remaining five first-place ballots went to Southern Cal, 6-0, which defeated Washington 28-27 and received 1,091 points in holding onto third place.

The rankings are bound to change later in the season, since UCLA meets Southern Cal on Nov. 19 and USC plays Notre Dame the following week.

Miami, 4-1, received 1,001 points in dropping from first to fourth.

Nebraska jumped from seventh to fifth with 879 points following a 63-42 triumph over 10th-ranked Oklahoma State. West Virginia remained sixth with 974 points after an open date and Florida State slipped from fifth to seventh with 872 points despite a 45-21 victory over East Carolina.

Oklahoma's 70-24 rout of K-State pushed the Sooners from ninth to eighth with 777 points while South Carolina fell from eighth to 18th by losing to Georgia Tech 34-0.

Clemson, No. 11 a week ago, moved up to ninth with 700 points by defeating previously unbeaten Duke 49-17. Auburn rounded out the Top Ten, climbing from 12th to 10th with 656 points after a 42-0 trouncing of Akron.

The Second Ten consists of Georgia, Wyoming, Arkansas, Indiana, Oklahoma State, LSU, Washington, South Carolina, Syracuse and Michigan.

Last week, it was Clemson, Auburn, Georgia, Wyoming, Michigan, Washington, Arkansas, Indiana, LSU and Florida.

1.	UCLA (33)	6-0-0	1,169	2
2.	Notre Dame (22)	6-0-0	1,142	4
3.	USC (5)	6-0-0	1,091	3
4.	Miami	4-1-0	1,001	1
5.	Nebraska	6-1-0	879	7
6.	West Va.	6-0-0	874	6
7.	Florida St.	6-1-0	872	5
8.	Oklahoma	5-1-0	777	9
9.	Clemson	5-1-0	700	11
10.	Auburn	5-1-0	656	12
11.	Georgia	5-1-0	544	13
12.	Wyoming	7-0-0	525	14
13.	Arkansas	6-0-0	440	17
14.	Indiana	5-0-1	396	18
15.	Okla. St.	4-1-0	344	10
16.	LSU	4-2-0	230	19
17.	Washington	4-2-0	227	16
18.	South Carolina	6-1-0	211	8
19.	Syracuse	5-1-0	120	—
20.	Michigan	3-2-1	117	15

Others receiving votes: Alabama 84, Oregon 59, Brigham Young 46, Colorado 15, NC State 13, Texas-El Paso 13, Southern Mississippi 12, Hawaii 8, Illinois 6, Washington State 6, Penn State 5, Air Force 4, Rutgers 3, Florida 3, Arizona 2, Iowa 2, Duke 1, Houston 1, Pitt 1, Texas A&M 1.

Sports Briefly

Tickets left for NU game

K-State officials have announced that general admission tickets will be sold for Saturday's football game with Nebraska in KSU Stadium. Ticket prices will be $8 for adults and $4.00 for high school students or younger. The tickets will be good for the general admission section only. Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m.

Tennis team falters at OSU

The K-State women's tennis team faced some of its toughest competition this season at the Oklahoma State Invitational in Stillwater this past weekend.

Although the Wildcats made some important gains, head coach Steve Bietau wasn't as pleased with his team as he has been during the past couple of weeks, as none of the Wildcats got past the second round.

"I was a little disappointed at the level we played at," he said. "We didn't continue to improve as we have throughout the fall and the results will bear that out."

But Bietau said the progress some members of the team are making is going to pay off.

State representative Sand seeks re-election to House

By Jenny Reschke
Collegian Reporter

Editor's note: This is part five in a series on the candidates for the Kansas Legislature.

Although State Representative Ivan Sand's first political experience was not originally his own idea, this Riley County Republican has spent more than 25 years in public service.

Sand, who is seeking re-election for his 66th District seat in the State House of Representatives, said he entered politics because he was persuaded by county Republicans to run for county commissioner.

"They wanted somebody young to run, since the older incumbent was stepping down," he said.

Sand was elected to the Riley County Commission and served several terms.

Other political experiences included serving on various school unification and consolidation boards and the original Tuttle Creek Project board.

Although this farmer and rancher who spent many years governing local education was once enrolled at K-State, he never obtained a college degree.

"Those were hard times back then," he said.

Twelve years ago, when the 66th District incumbent for the House of Representatives did not seek re-election, Sand decided to run and was elected.

In his 12 years in the Kansas Legislature, he has served on the Commercial and Financial Institutions Committee, the Pensions and Investments Committee, and numerous interim committees.

In seeking re-election, Sand said he is "70 years old and proud of it."

His firm views on two controversial issues facing Kansas lawmakers demonstrate his political attitudes.

On the consideration of Washburn University joining the Kansas Board of Regents System, Sand said he "always has opposed it and always will."

"I don't think we should be asked to bail out Washburn. (Washburn) copied K-State's and KU's programs," he said.

Sand said he sees the reapportionment issue as one of the bigger problems the Legislature is confronting.

"I don't know if there will be changes or not, but I don't think the census-taking method is right," he said.

AIDS ads focus on condoms

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal officials on Monday unveiled a new wave of television spots and print advertisements designed to further the nation's fight against the AIDS epidemic.

Unlike last year's campaign, none of the television spots uses the word condom. But one, in which a young man is shown putting on a sock, requires little imagination to make the connection.

"If I told you I could save my life just by putting on my socks, you wouldn't take me seriously," says the man, sitting in a chair.

"Because life is never that simple," he adds.

"But watch ..."

There are a few seconds of silence as he slips a sock onto his foot.

"Okay, you're right," the man says. "That wouldn't really save my life. But there's something just as simple that could."

Questioned at a news conference about the absence of what a reporter called "the C word" in the new television spots, Dr. James Mason, director of the Centers for Disease Control, which oversaw development of the ad campaign said the reason was simple.

"We had a great deal of difficulty getting the television stations to use that," he said, referring to one of the 1987 spots that specifically mentioned condoms. "That one was selectively avoided by the television stations."

Mason said designers of the 1987 ad campaign thought they were being careful to produce television spots that would not be offensive to audiences even though some of them did discuss condoms.

However, he said they found "there was another level of screening" at networks and local TV stations that resulted in the condom spots rarely being seen by a general audience.

Mason and several other officials declined to respond when asked whether they thought the television stations were enagaging in irresponsible behavior, from a public health standpoint, in declining to run condom spots.

Finally, Stephanie Lee-Miller, the administration's top public relations official in the Health and Human Services Department, took the microphone.

"I'll answer it," she said. "No, they're not engaging in responsible behavior."

She asked reporters to "challenge the networks" rather than the health department.

The printed material for the new push does deal directly with condoms, including a sample newspaper ad that says: "If He Won't Wear A Condom, Call For Help" and provides space for a local telephone number.

Attention Seniors:

Tired of having a very basic resume? At Heirloom Portraits we have just the thing to spruce up that resume at an affordable price.

Be a part of the growing individuals that put together not only an exceptional resume, but enhances the business stature by complimenting the paper with a beautiful color portrait.

All it takes is a telephone call to set up an appointment.

776-1175

Heirloom Portraits Village Plaza Shopping Center

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment NOW!

Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10

Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You

8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

Book Sale!

Friends of the Libraries
Kansas State University

Thursday, October 20, 1988
8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Farrell Library Lobby

Book donations will be accepted through Tuesday, October 18, and may be placed in boxes at these Manhattan locations:

Dillons in Westloop
Dillons next to Walmart
Super Food Barn in the Village Plaza
Food-4-Less

The Presale for members of Friends of the Libraries is Wednesday, October 19, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in 502B Farrell Library.

All proceeds will be used to supplement library resources.

The Wash Palace
3216 Kimball—Candlewood
For Complete Cleaning, Alteration and Repair Service

- Coin Laundry
- On the spot FREE Garment Pressing
- Laundry Drop-off Service
- Professional Dry Cleaning & Alterations
- Drive-up window and door
- Bargain Laundry Center w/large capacity washers
- Complete Shoe and Leather Cleaning and Repair
- Big Screen TV
- Pool Table
- Snacks

Coming soon: The Wash Palace Car Wash
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m. 537-9833

R • O • Y • A • L

LAPTOPS & TRANSPORTABLES ARE FINALLY AFFORDABLE

WE'LL BEAT ANY VERIFIED ADVERTISED PRICE!

SHARP
PC-4502 - $999

- Lightweight single unit design
- 80180 compatible - 7.16 MHz
- Dual 3 1/2" 720 K Floppy Drives
- 640 K RAM expandable to 1.6 Mb
- Illuminated Supertwist LCD Display with EL Backlight

Lowest Prices in the Industry

PC 4521 - $1599
Same as 4502 except 20 Mb Hard Drive and Single 5 1/4" Floppy Drive

PC 7221 - $2495
- 20 Mb Hard Drive
- 80286 processor - 10 MHz
- 5 1/4" 1.2 Mb Floppy Drive
- 640 K RAM
- Expansion Slot
- Serial Port & Parallel Port
- Detachable Keyboard with 102 Keys
- Built in Adapter for RGB Color or Monochrome CRT

PC 7202 - $1875
Same as 7221 except 2, 5 1/4" Floppy Drives and no Hard Drive

100% Satisfaction Guaranty - Instant Replacement Policy
Full Manufacture's Warranty Plus 30 days 100% Satisfaction Guarantee. If you are not completely satisfied with the products, simply call to return within 30 days.

Computer Products Corp.
4657 MacArthur Lane, Boulder CO 80301 • (303) 442-6767

-ORDERS ONLY-
1-800-338-4273

Portraits for the Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., 1:30-5:30 p.m.
Sept. 6 through Nov. 11
K-State Union Room 209

Acacia — Sept. 6
Alpha Chi Omega — Sept. 6-7
Alpha Delta Pi — Sept. 7-8
Alpha Gamma Delta — Sept. 8
Alpha Gamma Rho — Sept. 8-9
Alpha Kappa Lambda — Sept. 9
Alpha Tau Omega — Sept. 9, 12
Alpha Xi Delta — Sept. 12-13
Beta Sigma Psi — Sept. 13
Beta Theta Pi — Sept. 14
Chi Omega — Sept 14-15
Delta Delta Delta — Sept. 15-16
Delta Sigma Phi — Sept. 16, 19
Delta Tau Delta — Sept. 19-20
Delta Upsilon — Sept. 20
FarmHouse — Sept. 20-21
Gamma Phi Beta — Sept. 21-22
Kappa Alpha Theta — Sept. 22-23
Kappa Delta — Sept. 23, 26
Kappa Kappa Gamma — Sept. 26-27
Kappa Sigma — Sept. 27-28
Lambda Chi Alpha — Sept. 28
Phi Delta Theta — Sept. 29
Phi Gamma Delta — Sept. 29-30
Phi Kappa Tau — Sept. 30
Phi Kappa Theta — Sept. 30, Oct. 3
Pi Beta Phi — Oct. 3-4
Pi Kappa Alpha — Oct. 4-5
Pi Kappa Phi — Oct. 5
Sigma Alpha Epsilon — Oct. 5-6
Sigma Chi — Oct. 6
Sigma Nu — Oct. 6-7
Sigma Phi Epsilon — Oct. 7, 10
Sigma Sigma Sigma — Oct. 10
Tau Kappa Epsilon — Oct 10-11
Theta Xi — Oct. 11
Triangle — Oct. 11-12
Boyd — Oct. 12-13
Clovia — Oct. 13
Edwards — Oct. 13-14
Ford — Oct. 14
Goodnow — Oct. 17-19
Haymaker — Oct. 19-21
Mariatt — Oct. 21-25
Moore — Oct. 25-26
Putnam — Oct. 26
Smith — Oct. 26
Smurthwaite — Oct. 27
West — Oct. 27-28
Off Campus (includes Jardine) — Oct. 31 - Nov. 11

Yearbook Associates is the official photographic portrait service for the 1989 Royal Purple. It is important to make your appointment as soon as possible so you won't be left out of the yearbook. There will be sign-up sheets available at the greek houses and residence halls soon after school starts. If you are a member of a sorority or fraternity, but live in a residence hall or apartment, please have your picture taken with your sorority or fraternity. Beginning Sept. 6, appointments may be made in Union 209 by calling 539-5229, 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Cost of the sitting fee for color proofs is $3.50 and may be paid in Kedzie Hall 103.

Please Bring Fee Card or Student I.D.

Yearbook Associates

P • U • R • P • L • E

AIDS

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

"identifiers" — those characteristics of the virus which enable an antibody to recognize and to destroy the virus. Also, he said there is no appropriate animal model available to test any vaccines that may be developed.

One of the major problems regarding the spread of the disease arises with the fact that the actual time between infection and he first signs of the infection may be as long as eight or nine years, he said.

"With the eight- to nine-year latency period and with the number now affected, even if the disease will have been arrested, we would still see AIDS cases rise in the next few years," he said.

AIDS is spread by sexual intercourse, infected blood transfusions, infected mothers to their children and infected needles of drug users.

"But the major risk factor boils down to the number of sex partners," Ryan said. "The greater the number of partners, the greater the number of exposures.

"The keys to controlling AIDS are already in our hands, but there is a gap between education and action."

A tendency to blame the victims for their diseases is a part of the social crisis of AIDS. Sue Zschoche, assistant professor of history, said disease has never been merely biological, but has "always been interpreted in a cultural and social context."

"I think what we want to say is that we want to be rational about this," she said. "Unfortunately, the problem is never that simple ... because, clearly, we are not at all rational."

Zschoche said almost every epidemic in history produced fear, panic and a lashing out at a scapegoat group.

"The desire has been to find scapegoats, quarantine them and put them out-of-sight, out-of-mind," she said. "(Epidemics) show us how close we live to the breakpoint of the social contract ... how far a society can go before it loses its veneer of civilization."

She said this is demonstrated by the abuse against people with AIDS, and with the disease being much more slower-acting than epidemics in the past, Zschoche said the potential for abuse is much more substantial. Because it is a slow-acting, however, she said today's culture should be able to take the time to examine its values.

Fee

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

atories and to help keep the labs equipped with up-to-date material.

Rathbone spoke to the students for 25 minutes before answering questions for 35 minutes. He said the forum was held to get student response to the proposed fee.

"How (the Board of Regents) go on it, is how the students react. If the students do not want the fee, then the board will perhaps not agree to it," Rathbone said.

Rathbone told the students that another idea was discussed during his luncheon Monday with the engineering student council. An alternative idea would be to have a flat tuition increase for all engineering students, instead of a credit-hour fee. The flat tuition increase would be near $75 a semester, which would average out to be the same as a $10 per-credit-hour fee.

A concern of the students during the questioning was that some of the engineering majors use the lab equipment more than others.

An example given was that electrical engineers need 60 credit hours in the college of engineering, while architectural engineers need 90 credit hours. And although the electrical engineers would pay less, they use the lab equipment more.

Rathbone's response was that the fine points of the proposal are not yet worked out, and that would be a point to take into consideration.

"It is up to you," Rathbone told the students, "we can either have an engineering program that goes downhill, and is a poor engineering program — or we can get a better engineering program."

Rathbone said he learned from the student input that the tuition increase was a viable alternative to the fee, and it would also be necessary to look into the different hour requirements in the programs.

"I have to give Dean Rathbone a lot of credit," said Doug Folk, senior in electrical engineering. "Other deans might have tried to get this passed without student input."

Greg Weisenborn, senior in electrical engineering, said he was still unsure about the fee.

"I think (the forum) let a lot of people know what is going on, but I still don't think (the fee) is a good idea," Weisenborn said. "I think the concept is good, but it is not workable yet. It seems that a lot of people don't like it."

Another suggestion made by some of the students was to use alumni money for equipment maintenance, but Rathbone rejected the idea because he said the money was already earmarked for scholarships.

"Ninety percent of the alumni money goes into scholarships." Rathbone said. "I have the best scholarship program — bar none. We want to maintain an excellent scholarship program."

Get Personal in Collegian Classifieds

Have story or photo ideas? CALL 532-6556

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

ClassAds

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not disciminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

Bobby J's
Restaurant and Fundrinkery
4 FREE Chicken or Beef Tacos (reg. 49¢ ea.) w/ the purchase of a Carafe of Margaritas for $7.50
Tuesday, 5 to 9 p.m.
Candlewood 539-1571

NAVY MANAGEMENT
Math, Engineering and Physical Science Majors with 3.3 GPA earn $1,000 per month during junior and senior years plus $4,000 upon entry. Find out more about the Navy's Engineer Officer Candidate Program, call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs -skincare -glamor -nails -gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

Vote [X] Common Sense Uncommon Leadership

Lana Oleen
REPUBLICAN • KANSAS SENATE

Lana Oleen for Kansas Senate
Kent Glasscock, Chairman

The Chef 111 S. 4th
"Rib-It" TONIGHT all you can eat $3.95 Bar-B-Q RIBS

The KSU PARACHUTE CLUB
will be having its photo taken for the Royal Purple. All past and current KSU members are encouraged to attend!
Wed., October 19
8 p.m. Fairchild 202

Learn to SKYDIVE with the KSU Parachute Club.
Train Friday,
Jump Saturday,
Tell your parents Sunday!
This is the last class of the semester, so call now!
Call 537-1787
ASK for MIKE

Cotton Club 418 Poyntz
99¢ TACO BUFFET 4-7 p.m.
2 Fer 1 Drinks

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE TWO-BEDROOM available in Westloop area. $315 unfurnished, $355 furnished. Balcony, beige carpet throughout. 776-9124.

NICE ONE-BEDROOM in Lee/ Hunting area. Available now. $340. 776-3804.

VERY NICE, quiet, clean one-bedroom apartment for non-smoking adult. Paid heat/ air and more. Lease. $240. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1977 CHEVY Malibu, two-door, looks like new, nice wheels, Alpine speakers, must see. 539-8108, Dave.

1978 CHEVY Malibu. Very good condition. Dependable, $1,500 or best offer. 1-494-2831 after 6p.m.

1979 MERCURY Cougar, auto transmission, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, $1,000 or best offer. 776-3772.

1979 Z28, excellent condition, new performance engine. $2,800. 537-3818.

1981 MONTE Carlo, V-6, 73,000 miles, two-door, air conditioning, cruise control, AM/FM stereo, excellent condition, $2,700. 537-3721.

1981 PORSCHE 924, excellent condition, $5,800. 537-3818.

1983 CHEVY Slv. Silverado, dually 6.2 liter diesel, great shape. Priced to sell, 1-594-2332 or 537-0845.

8 Computers

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

GE LINE conditioner- noise suppressor 91L series. Controls high and low voltage, $350. 776-9461 or 1-800-432-0036. Protect your computer.

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

CASHIER POSITION available. Lunch or dinner shifts. Apply in person, 606 N. 12th, the Lone Star Cafe. Ask for Michael.

EXPERIENCED AEROBIC instructor. Call 776-6469 for appointment.

FREE SPRING Break vacation in Cancun! Become a College Tours Representative on your campus and get a free trip. Nothing to buy, we provide everything you need. It's easy. Call 1-800-727-0005.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, Juniors: Train in the summer to become a Marine Corps Officer after graduation. Aviation available. Call collect (913)841-1821.

NANNIES NEEDED on East Coast, $150 to $275 per week, free room and board, good families and home. No fee. Call Nannie Network, Inc. 1-800-US-NANNY.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PART-TIME AGRICULTURAL laborers. Apply in person, Nelson Poultry Farms, 2½ miles east, Highway 24. 776-9401.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED for musical homeless project, all fields of study, even your personal contacts can make a difference. Contact Odeis Taylor, 776-4036.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

GOVERNMENT HOMES from $1. "U Repair." Also tax delinquent property. Call (805)644-9533 ext. 263 for information.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Manhattan 913-776-6650

COLOR TELEVISION, living room set, bar, bar stools, dinette, desk, chest, bed, couch, misc. 776-9705.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1986 SUZUKI FA50, new condition- $300. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

17 Musical Instruments

GUITARS/ AMPS for sale!! Aria Pro II- $250, Aria 3/4 scale acoustic- best offer, Kramer bass- $150, Stienburger style bass- $200, Marlboro practice amp- $70, Fender bassman 60 watt amp- $200. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

PEAVY GUITAR, 50-watt amp, Ibenez flanger, accessories. Paid over $500, sell all for $250. 532-4868.

Hayes House of Music
776-7983 327 Poyntz
Fender Squire Strat with soft shell case
$299

18 Personals

CLOVIA FOOTBALL Team- Thanks for great football season and the surprise Sunday. Wait till Volleyball! Love, your coaches.

DINO- WE tripped it to ASU, next stop- Winter Park with the crew! You totally can't mix the broiled dinners. Janice says free drinks for everyone since I won. How was the eagles and especially Sig Ep Mark? Beware of Doritos and the dreaded beeps. Do you think it was a cop? I wanna a beemer for $2000. Lester.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

HEATHER AND Missy. Thanks a lot for the rides. The occupant really cheered me up! Jean.

JENNY, IS there a Scotty in your life now (or is he just in your diary)? An Interested Idiot.

BIRTHDAY DUDES- Db, tall cool one; and TA. Chili feed, tonight.

SHANNON R.- Hope you have a happy 21st, 'cause tonight's the night to quench your thirst. -S.D.K.M.S.

WSH- HOPE you are having fun going horror shopping. You're doing a great job. Your shortest fan- SKA.

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

AKC REGISTERED black Lab puppies. Championship bloodlines. Call 776-7547.

20 Professional Services

NEW BULB SPECIAL
5 SESSIONS $10
Manhattan's Largest Tanning Salon
"Connect with the Best"
SUN CONNECTION
1126 Laramie 776-2426

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

ALL TYPING needs $1/ page. Daisy wheel printer, Spell Checker. Ask for Mr. Bear, 539-7561.

Résumé Service
Resumes — Cover Letters
Data Sheets
343 Colorado
Call 537-7294
9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

COMPLETE TYPING/ Data Processing: papers, theses, dissertations, etc. 75¢/ page, 5¢/ copy. Call 537-8701.

FAST TURNAROUND for all your word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, theses, dissertations. All your typing requirements, reasonable rates, expert typist. Call 539-5422.

23 Roommate Wanted

NEXT SEMESTER need a female, non-smoker to take my place. Own bedroom. $160/ month, one-third utilities. One block from campus and Aggieville. Call Tina at 539-6984 or leave message.

WANTED: MALE or female roommate to share nice, two-bedroom apartment with two girls. Own bedroom. Immediately. $116/ month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments. 537-1878.

WANTED: TWO roommates, male or female. Own rooms, three-room apartment at 1200 Bluemont, next to Aggieville, one block from campus. $130 a month plus utilities. Call 537-3679.

28 Adoption

A CHILDLESS loving couple wishes to adopt white newborn. We will provide a warm wonderful and loving home. We are committed to being the best parents possible. Legal and confidential. Please call collect, Kelly and Ramiro, (201)376-0894.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)422-1297.

29 Basketball Tickets

CAMPERS: I will buy two b-ball tickets. Call 532-5426.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

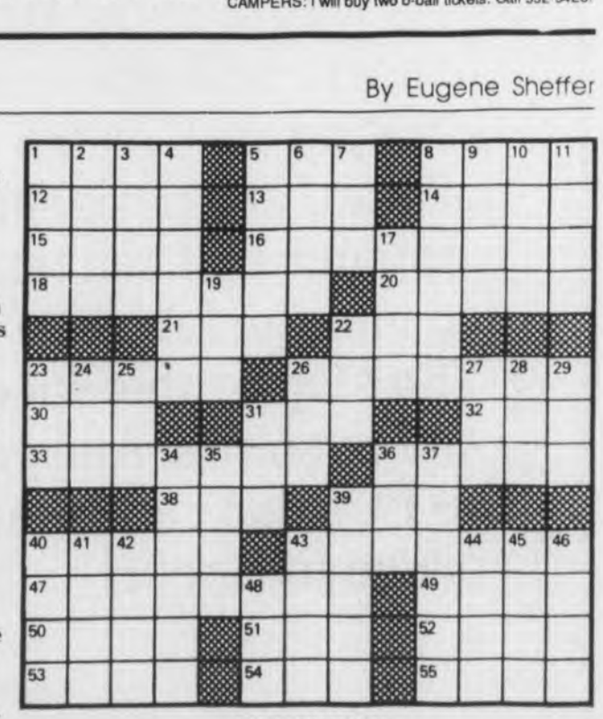
By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Wanders idly
5 Half a French dance?
8 River to the Moselle
12 Diva's rendition
13 Violinist Kavafian
14 Alms box
15 Cole follower
16 Plural marriage
18 Closed plane figure
20 Really mean people
21 Lunch ending?
22 Personal question?
23 Role for Pat Morita
26 Shea or Mile High
30 Group of seals
31 New Guinea town
32 Cool — cucumber
33 Make-shift
36 Thrashed
38 Dust cloth
39 Give a bad review
40 Hollywood doorstop?
43 Chemical compound
47 Greek historian
49 Legal document
50 Wings
51 Crude metal
52 Part of A.D.
53 Afford
54 Composer Rorem
55 Bring forth young

DOWN
1 Pant
2 Singer Guthrie
3 Clock face
4 Fictional Tom
5 Table bird
6 Presently
7 Nothing
8 Drooped
9 Sandarac tree
10 Peak
11 Bolger and Milland
17 Hindu discipline
19 Tibetan gazelle
22 Raided the refrigerator?
23 Harvest goddess
24 — Springs
25 Fuss
26 Weaken
27 Singer Janis
28 — up (consume)
29 It precedes cap or house
31 Straggle
34 Made supplication
35 Clothing
36 White House nickname
37 " — the Wind Blows"
39 Baffled
40 Gem stone
41 Catch of the day, maybe
42 "The — of the Cave Bear"
43 Unmixed
44 White-tailed eagle
45 Historic ship
46 James Bond's school
48 Ending for corrupt

Solution time: 22 mins.

S	C	A	B		I	M	P		P	I	E	S
H	O	R	A		N	O	R		A	M	M	O
A	V	A	L		T	A	I	L	S	P	I	N
D	E	L	E	T	E		M	O	T	O	R	S
			E	A	R	L		P	E	R
T	U	R	N	T	A	I	L		S	T	O	W
A	R	I		S	C	R	O	D		E	R	E
D	I	V	A		T	A	I	L	O	R	E	D
		E	M	U		S	T	I	R
S	E	T	O	S	E		E	V	A	D	E	S
T	A	I	L	O	V	E	R		N	O	M	E
E	S	N	E		I	K	E		G	R	I	T
P	E	G	S		L	E	D		E	E	L	S

Yesterday's answer 10-18

CRYPTOQUIP

10-18

D J Y M T F P H E M G S H E N L C P H C S B T S J N Y C G G J Y G N E B U N H E : " D C C A F H B E U L J Y B A . "

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: X-RAY TECHNICIAN EXPLAINED HIS SPECIAL TALENT: "I HAVE VERY GOOD INSIGHT."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals P

You Want The Best PC Values on Campus?

Get Terrific Student Pricing At The Zenith Data Systems Open House

SUPERSPORT™

suggested retail price: $2399

Special Student Price: $1439

The Zenith Data Systems Supersport™

Great news! Zenith Data Systems is headed your way with a special campus extravaganza! It's your chance to enjoy unbelievable student values on Zenith Data Systems' family of personal computers and monitors. From laptops... to desktops... to super-advanced systems. All complete with PC compatibility and MS-DOS.®

As your Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact, we'll give you a full demonstration. And we'll match you up with the right software and peripherals. To give you a computer that can take you through school and into the future!

So stop by this special event from Zenith Data Systems. And get fantastic values on the PCs that can take you all the way from college to career!

Stop by the Zenith Data Systems special campus celebration at:

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCTOBER 24 & 25
9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Contact your local Student Representative
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
k-state union bookstore 532-6583

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

© 1987, Zenith Data Systems

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are no
ial) to make a
thank you,"
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts a
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an ard, the college
ws and to

ment Ad
tment of mpanies

Michel
ronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange
Cosima I
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta
"A lot o
the open ab
Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't dra
whole life.'
The selec
cials is qui
other home
president of ciation, saic
selects the p minister the
Ramakris
dent in phys
by personal idential a debates. Ra
India, said
vior during childish, ve
"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakris
India Stude

Ir
to

By

WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine non in e
ers in Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned
A U.S ciated P
for-hosta

Transferring the tradition

Northern Bound:

The Lady Cats look north for help by forming a connection with the state of Minnesota.

New Season:

The Wildcats lose four starters, placing more pressure on junior guard Steve Henson.

Freeman

ing Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
job is to nform the ckom said
ime and is
e campus

rt security
e campus

forcement,
cility," he
eople who iles are no
upt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are no
ial) to make
thank you,"
man of the
"What m
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts a trying to glo

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an ard, the college
ws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated

ment Ad
ment of npanies

Michel
ronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange Cosima
ogy, said
extent to w sonally att
"A lot o
the open at Hadidi,
Jordan an political
"don't dra
whole life
The sele
cials is qu
other hom president c ciation, sai
selects the minister th
Ramakr
dent in phy
by persona
idential
debates. R
India, said
vior durin
childish,
"When
'You're n
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakr
India Stud

Ir
to

WA reporte erate
U.S. g
the nir non in ers in Acc
throug bells"
of Sta said n turned
A U ciated for-ho

Transferring the Tradition

A Collegian Supplement
Oct. 18, 1988

Editor:
Chad Sanborn
Sports Editor:
Tom Morris
Photo Editor:
John LaBarge Production:
David Svoboda
Janet Swanson
Advertising Manager:
Catherine Doud
Sports Writers:
Chris Wilhelm
Chris Hays

On The Cover:
Men's basketball coach Lon Kruger and women's basketball coach Matilda Mossman make the transition from Ahearn Field House to the newly constructed Bramlage Coliseum this season. Photo by Brett Hacker.

File/Christopher T. Assaf

Tough look
Missouri's Tracy Ellis tries to stop Stacey Boyle from shooting last season. Boyle should start at center this year.

Budweiser®
LONG NECK 12-PACKS TO GO
NOW ON SALE!

Planning on Going Home for the Holidays!

Call
KANSAS STATE TRAVEL AGENCY
And Save . . . Save . . . Save
Two Locations
West Manhattan
1228 Westloop
and Downtown
226 Poyntz
537-2451

Freeman

ing Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
anagement
e job is to inform the ckom said
ime and is
e campus

rt security
e campus

forcement,
cility," he
eople who
iles are no
upt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-
eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are no
ial) to make a
thank you,"
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts a
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an ard, the college
ws and to ment Ad
tment of mpanies
Michel
ronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange
Cosima I
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta
"A lot o
the open ab
Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't dra
whole life."
The selec
cials is qui
other home
president of ciation, said
selects the p
minister the
Ramakris
dent in phys
by personal
idential a
debates. Ra
India, said
vior during childish, ve
"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakris
India Stude

Ir
to

By

WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine
non in e
ers in Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned
A U.S ciated P
for-hostu

ARE HIGH PRICES AND FAST TALKING SALESMEN AT OUR COMPETITION MAKING YOU ILL?

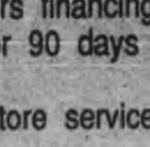
THEN COME TO CONDE'S WHERE WE'VE GOT . . .

The Best for Less!

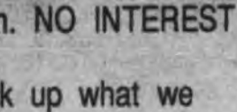
Why are we the best for less?

1. Value for value we won't be undersold! Price flexibility to meet any situation.
2. Conde's offers financing or layaway. Also for a limited time we offer 90 days same as cash. NO INTEREST CHARGE.
3. Conde's in-store service dept. to back up what we sell.
4. Conde's offers FREE Delivery of TV, VCR, or STEREO—seven days a week.
5. Conde's reputation for reliability serving the Manhattan area for over 46 years.

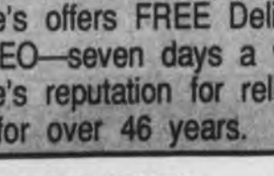
ALL COMPONENTS ON SALE!



KENWOOD EQ $68

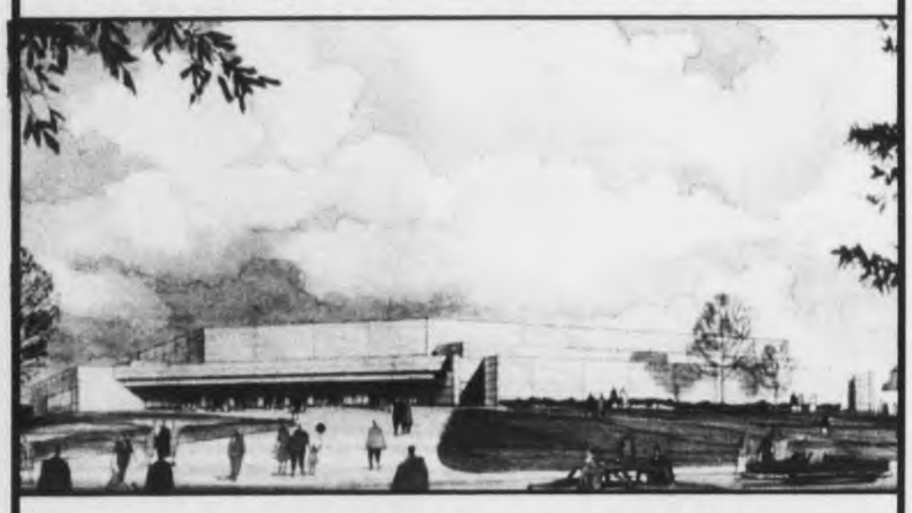


$77 Each
• Polypropylene woofer
• Polycell tweeter
• All Infinity speakers on sale now!
Infinity. RS 1000



Every TV on sale!
Mitsubishi CS 1946
remote control TV
MITSUBISHI
$299
•125 channel cable ready
•on screen time & channel
•sleep timer
•Multi-Function Remote

Every CD Player on sale!
RCA-CD 180
Compact Disc Player
•Hitachi Built
•3 beam laser
•15 track programability
•2 year warranty
RCA
$138 Includes free Laserline Disc Storage Unit



RCA 19" XL100 COLOR TV
*UHF/VHF TUNING *AUTOMATIC COLOR
$199
FXR425E

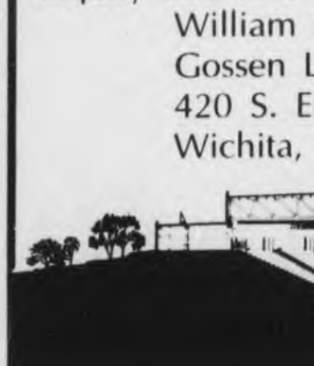
ALL KENWOOD AUDIO COMPONENTS ON SALE
Save up to 25% on Receivers
Save up to 40% on Turntables

LIMITED TO STORE STOCK
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
Monday Thursday 10 AM 8 PM
Friday & Saturday 10 AM 6:30 PM
Sunday 1 5 PM
It's A Whole New World At
CONDES
QUALITY PLUGGED IN...
AUDIO • VIDEO • TV
776-4704
407 Poyntz
Downtown Manhattan
MasterCard VISA DISCOVER

Fred Bramlage Coliseum • Kansas State University

ARCHITECTURAL STUDENTS

Gossen Living Associates, P.A., architects of the Fred Bramlage Coliseum, has internship and employment openings for exceptional individuals. Send letter of inquiry and resume to:



William B. Livingston, AIA
Gossen Livingston Associates, P.A.
420 S. Emporia
Wichita, KS 67202

KSNT·27 Presents

The return of Rolando Blackman with
The Dallas Mavericks vs. The San Antonio Spurs

LIVE NBA ACTION

BRAMLAGE COLISEUM
FRIDAY NIGHT
7:35 p.m.

Special $2.00 Student Discount
Present your K-State I.D. at Bramlage Coliseum Box Office for $2.00 off a $10.50 ticket.

Limit one ticket per student I.D.

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are no
ial) to make a
thank you,"
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts a
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an
ard, the college
bylaws and to

ment Ad
ment of npanies

Michel
onomy;
terinary
enior in philoso-
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated

Henson's role likely to change this year

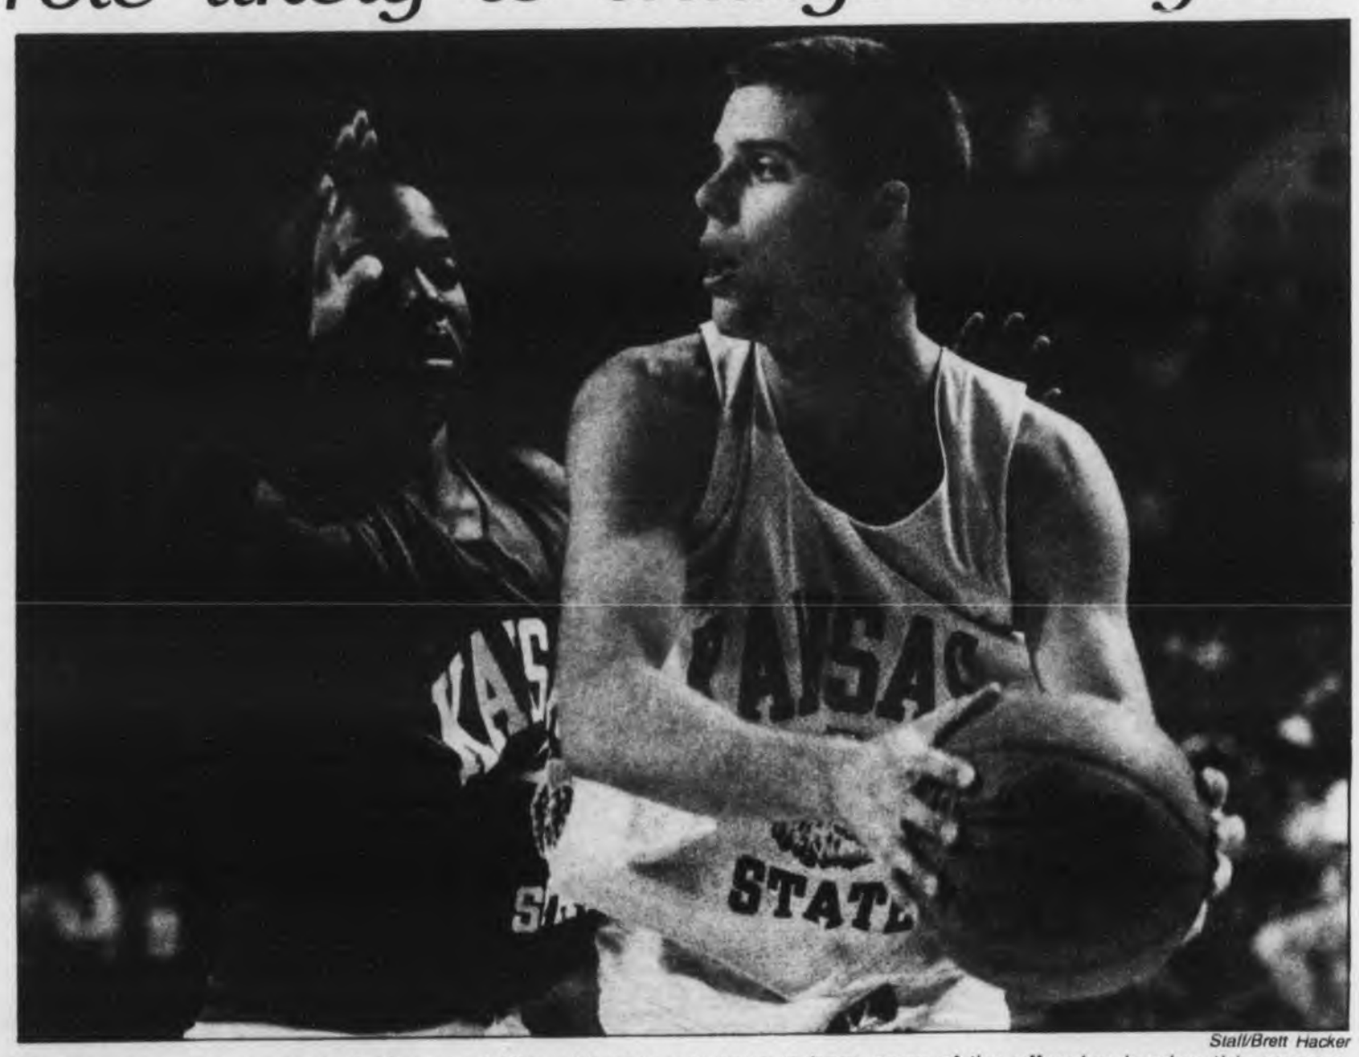
By Chris Hays
Sports Writer

Like every other year on the K-State campus, the mid-October conversation has started to focus on the Wildcat basketball team. This year's main question: "Is K-State going to be any good after the loss of four starters who averaged nearly 50 points a game last year?"

The next question that consistently follows: "Is point guard Steve Henson going to be called upon to provide more offense than he has had to in his first two years?"

The answer: "Most likely."

But no one knows for sure just how much offense the junior from McPherson will have to contribute.



Following last year's venture into the Midwest Regional semifinals and the heartbreaking loss to eventual national champion Kansas, the one thing that Coach Lon Kruger asked of Henson was to work on his shot off-the-dribble during the summer.

So does that mean the nation's best free throw shooter (92.5 percent) and the Big Eight record holder for consecutive free throws (48) is going to start putting up more field goals?

"Oh, I think so. We'll be expecting more from him," Kruger said. "And I also think that he'll handle it pretty well. He's capable of providing us with some more offense and he'll definitely have the opportunity."

"We haven't really talked about it that

■ See HENSON, Page 20

Staff/Brett Hacker

With the loss of four starters, junior guard Steve Henson will have to bear more of the offensive burden this season.

Briggs
Jeep
Eagle

Eagle Premier

4WD Jeep Cherokee Limited

We Specialize In Service

All makes & models • Prompt & efficient • Includes rides back to work, home or school

Your Full Service Car and Truck Dealer
★New & Pre-owned Cars & Trucks
★Parts & Sales Departments
★Service Department servicing all makes & models of cars and light trucks
★Chrysler Credit Financing & Bank Financing
★Rental Cars

★★ Sales Staff ★★
Scott Wilkens
Bruce Holladay
Jeff Tauschek
Rose Brown
Charley Cooke, bus. mgr.
Roger Hammerschmidt, gen. mgr.

Briggs Jeep-Eagle, Inc.

776-7799 Across the viaduct south on Hwy. 177, 1/2 mile south of Town Center Mall 612 Pillsbury Dr.

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are no
ial) to make a
thank you,"
man of the
"What m
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts a
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an
ard, the college
bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated

ment Ad
ment of npanies

Michel
onomy;
terinary
enior in philoso-
English.

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange.
Cosima I
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta
"A lot of
the open ab
Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't drag whole life."
The selec
cials is qui
other home
president of ciation, said
selects the p
minister the
Ramakris
dent in phys
by personal
idential a
debates. Ra India, said I
vior during childish, ve
"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakris
India Stude

Ir
to

By

WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine
non in e
ers in Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned d
A U.S ciated P
for-hostu

COLLEGIAN BASKETBALL TABLOID, Tuesday, October 18, 1988 5

Minnesota connection helps Lady Cats

By Chris Hays
Sports Writer

Former K-State men's basketball coach Jack Hartman had the Brooklyn, N.Y., connection with Curtis Redding and Rolando Blackman.

Current coach Lon Kruger used the Moberly (Mo.) Junior College connection to land Mitch Richmond, Charles Bledsoe, Fred McCoy and assistant coach Dana Altman.

And now, Lady Cat head coach Matilda Mossman seems to have the Minnesota connection working for her.

Mossman has landed three talented recruits from Minnesota in the last three years. Juniors Amy Davidson and Janet Madsen and freshman Mary Jo Miller left the land of 10,000 lakes for the flint hills of Manhattan. But why?

"I came down here because I like the style of basketball," said Madsen, a 5-foot-9 forward. "In Minnesota, they play more of a slow-paced type of game. I like the fast-break type of game that is played here."

"At first, I wanted to stay home and go to the University of Minnesota," said Miller, who was named Miss Basketball in her home state last season. "But then I made my recruiting visit down here, (and I) really liked the players and the coaches and I changed my mind."

And why has Mossman been focusing her recruiting on Minnesota talent?

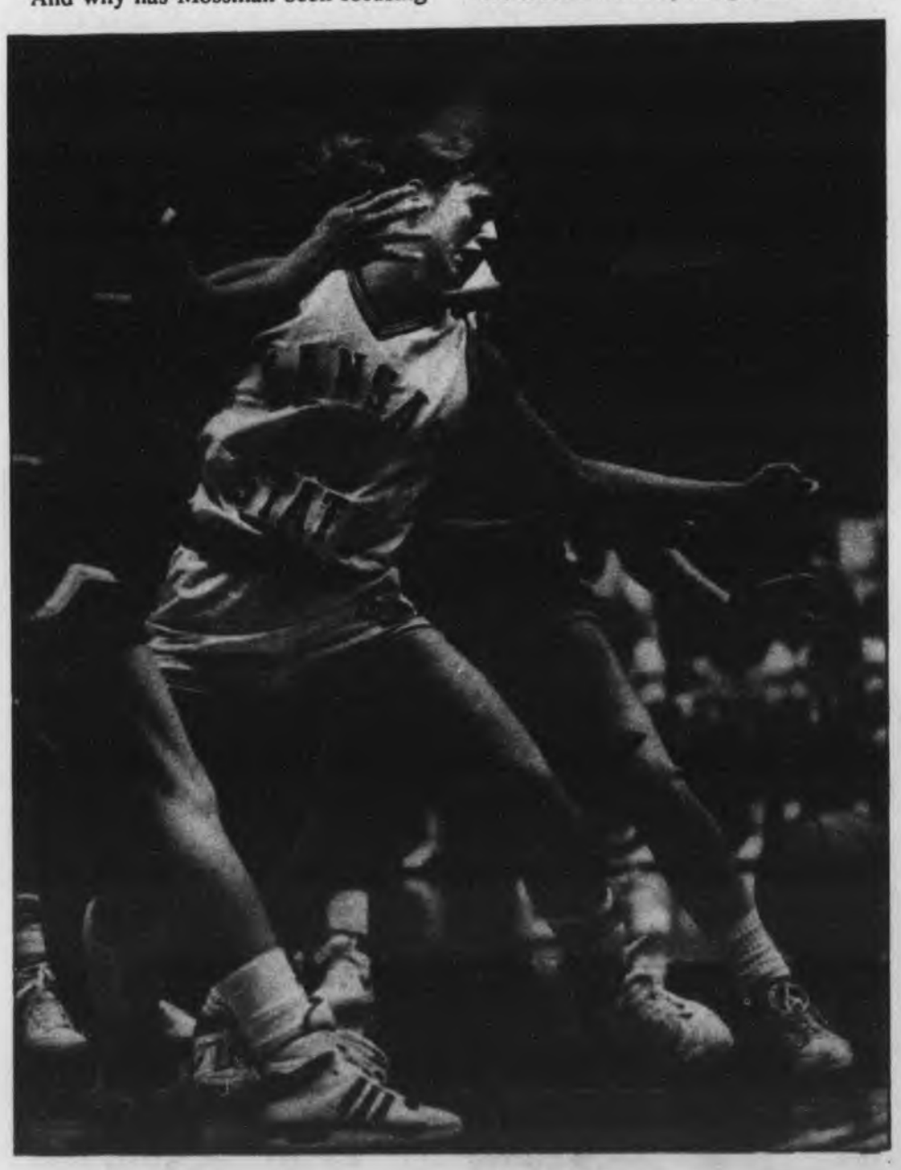
"The No. 1 reason why we look north is that Minnesota has only one major university and, when that program is not very good, the talented players almost have to leave the state," Mossman said. "That was our reason initially, but now we have some connections, which makes it a lot easier."

And maybe it was those connections that helped persuade Miller to come to K-State. The 5-foot-5 point guard was recruited nationally by more than 100 schools and had narrowed her choices to Colorado, Minnesota and K-State before she made her decision.

That decision was largely influenced by the presence of two other Minnesotans already on the Lady Cat roster. Also, the fact that K-State president Jon Wefald is a former president of Miller's home-town university, Southwest State in Marshall, Minn., probably didn't hurt Mossman's recruiting efforts.

"When (Miller) came for her recruiting visit, I think we showed her a pretty good time. We just took her to wherever Coach Mossman's itinerary said," Madsen said. "We also told her that she should come here so we could be the 'Minnesota triplets' instead of twins."

"We expect to get those kind of people. If you go in expecting to get them, then you most likely will win out," Mossman said. "We'll continue to try and get the best kids in Kansas and then go into a state where there is only one (NCAA) Division I school and try to get the best talent from there."



Davidson said it was the way that Mossman stuck with her that brought her to K-State.

"I was impressed with the way she stayed with the players that she wanted," said Davidson, a 5-foot-9 guard. "If you were on her recruiting list, then she stuck with you all the way."

File/Greg Vogel

Amy Davidson started 10 games last year and will add depth for the 'Cats.

File/Greg Vogel

Junior forward Janet Madsen led the Lady Cats with an average of 12 points per game last season, but was lost for the final four games due to a knee injury. Madsen's knee is at full strength this year, according to coach Matilda Mossman.

Lady Cat Profiles

Below is a profile of the K-State women's basketball team with a quote from coach Matilda Mossman on each player.

KRISTIE BAHNER: 5-foot-11 sophomore forward/center. Averaged 5.0 points and 3.8 rebounds per game last season. Took over as starting center near season's end, but then had a bout with mononucleosis and also suffered a broken nose, causing her to miss the final three games of the regular season. "She was a pleasant surprise for us last season. She has shown even more improvement over the summer."

STACEY BOYLE: 6-foot-1 senior center. Averaged 7.3 points and 4.2 rebounds per game last season. Scored a career-high 20 points against Wichita State. Averaged 27 points and 11 rebounds at Dodge City Community College and was named to the Kodak All-America team. "She is finally more settled in her environment now. She is a person that we are expecting to score in double figures."

AMY DAVIDSON: 5-foot-9 junior guard. Averaged 6.0 points and 2.2 assists per game last year. Had career-high 20 points against Pan American. Led the Lady Cats in free throw percentage (73 percent). Has strong defensive skills. "She has gotten stronger and a lot more confident in herself. She knows the system and we expect her to be a major contributor."

ELYSE FUNK: 5-foot-5 junior guard. Averaged 5.4 points per game last year and led the Lady Cats in assists, dealing out 96 (3.4 per game). Started all but four games at point guard. Scored career-high 16 points against Drake. "Another year of experience has definitely helped Elyse and she provides us with strong leadership potential at the point position."

JENNIFER GREBING: 6-foot-2 sophomore center. Averaged nearly two points and two rebounds per game last year while seeing only limited playing time. Averaged 19 points and 10 rebounds her senior year at Perryville, and helped her team to a second-place finish in the Missouri state tournament. All-State pick her senior year. "She has shown a lot more confidence in herself and I think that she is ready to go up against Big Eight opponents. She has made a tremendous improvement over last year."

NADIRA HAZIM: 5-foot-8 sophomore guard. Averaged 11.4 points and 3.6 assists per game last year. Scored 25 points and grabbed 15 rebounds against Pan American, both career highs. Led the team in steals with 67. Tied for second on the all-time Lady Cat freshman scoring list with 318 points. "She has great natural ability and she is always a threat to score from anywhere on the floor. She always plays within herself."

STEPHANIE LANE: 6-foot-4 junior center. Averaged 3.6 points and 4.5 rebounds per game last year. Started one game last year. Had career-high 13 points against Pan American and had 12 against Kansas. Grabbed career-high 10 rebounds against Creighton. "(Stephanie) has started playing much more aggressively and she is becoming a more dominant post player. She has also shown tremendous improvement."

JANET MADSEN: 5-foot-9 junior forward. Averaged a team-high 12 points and 4.5 rebounds per game last year. Was named honorable mention All-Big Eight. Had a career-high 23 points against Arizona State. Injured knee and missed last three games last year, but will be ready to go. "Janet's knee is back to full strength and she has not shown any decrease in speed or quickness. We're counting heavily on her leadership."

RITA MATTEUCCI: 5-foot-11 junior forward. Averaged seven points and 5.2 rebounds per game last year. Started 12 games last season. Led the team in blocked shots with 11. "She is probably the smartest player on the court for us. She anticipates everything and she provides leadership from

■ See PROFILES, Page 15

Freeman

ing Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
job is to nform the ckom said
ime and is
e campus

rt security
e campus

forcement,
cility," he
eople who
iles are no
upt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-
eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are no
ial) to make a
thank you,'
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts a
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an
ard, the college
bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated

Ad
it of nies

chel
my;
nary or in loso-
lish.

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange
Cosima I
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta
"A lot o
the open ab
Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't dra
whole life."
The selec
cials is qui
other home
president of ciation, said
selects the p
minister the
Ramakris
dent in phys
by personal
idential a
debates. Ra
India, said
vior during childish, ve
"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakris
India Stude

Ir
to

By WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine
non in e
ers in Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned
A U.S ciated P
for-hosti

Women shoot for upper division

By Chris Hays
Sports Writer

Young but mildly experienced describes this year's K-State women's basketball team.

Coach Matilda Mossman has just one senior returning, along with five juniors and four sophomores. Add to that two junior college transfers and two freshmen, and it appears that Mossman has a team for the future.

But what about the 1988-89 campaign?

"It's great that most of our players were able to get quality playing time last year," Mossman said. "But what I feel most comfortable with is the fact that we saw a definite improvement from the first practice to the last game. They all blended together and improved tremendously."

K-State finished last season at 8-20, the worst record ever for a Lady Cats basketball squad, but the experience that Mossman's younger players gained should have a big impact this year.

Many times last season, Mossman's lineup included three freshmen and two sophomores — not an ideal way to go against national powers such as Louisiana Tech and Louisiana State University (which the Lady Cats upset, 73-61) or perennial Big Eight Conference power Nebraska.

Junior Janet Madsen and two sophomores, Nadira Hazim and Diana Miller, led the Lady Cats in scoring last season. Madsen, a forward, averaged 12 points a game, but was lost for the final four games due to a knee injury. Mossman said Madsen's knee has fully healed.

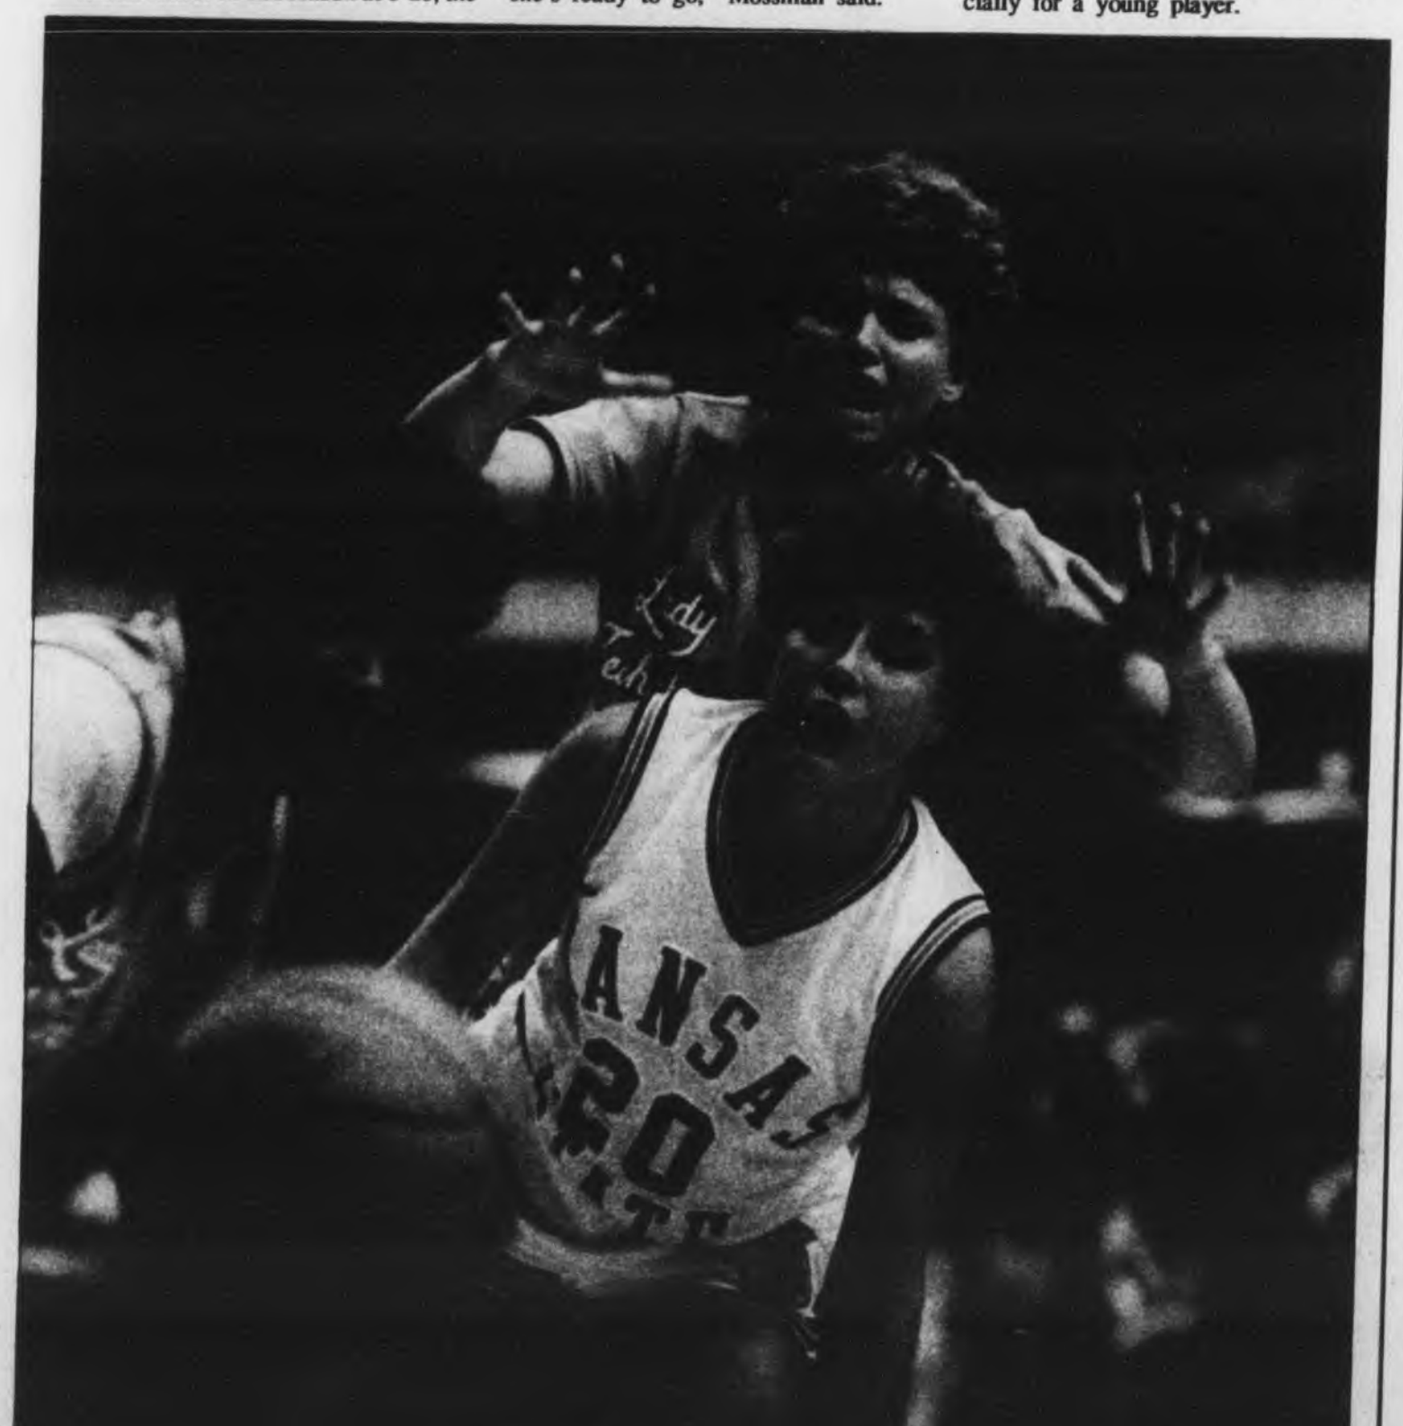
"She will still have to wear a brace, but she's ready to go," Mossman said.

Hazim averaged 11.4 points a game from her point guard spot and the Lady Cats could see even more offense from her this season, since Mossman plans to move Hazim to the off-guard position — a position which Mossman says is ideal for her.

"The two-guard spot is a more natural position for Nadira," Mossman said. "Her playing point guard really took away from her offensive output, but with her playing the two-guard spot, she should help out the entire team a lot more."

Last year at the Big Eight Tournament, Hazim put on an impressive show against Nebraska in a losing cause. After her 20-point performance, Nebraska coach Angela Beck referred to Hazim as the next Maurtice Ivey.

Ivey was last year's Big Eight player of the year, so that's a high expectation, especially for a young player.



"That's quite a compliment," Mossman said. "They have the same athletic skills, but Maurtice played a lot more physical than Nadira. She would hurt you more inside, but Nadira can hurt you outside and she plays a little bit more under control than Maurtice."

Enabling Hazim to make the move to the off-guard spot was the signing of high school All-American Mary Jo Miller. Miller, from Marshall, Minn., averaged 26 points a game for state champion Tracy-Milroy High School.

Since her basketball career began in seventh grade, Miller's teams are 126-9. The 5-foot-5 Miller will give the Lady Cats much-needed depth at point guard and will switch off with junior Elyse Funk, who started 24 games last season.

"Of the newcomers, Mary Jo and Arnet-

■ See LADY CATS, Page 15

Junior Elyse Funk, who started 24 games last season for K-State, will switch off with high school All-American Mary Jo Miller at the point guard position. She averaged five points a game last season and led the Lady Cats in assists.

File Photo, Kansas

WOMEN'S 1988-89 BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

Nov. 25-26 McCall Pattern Classic (K-State, Texas A&M, Montana and Colorado State)
Nov. 29 vs. UMKC
Dec. 2-3 at Minnesota Dial Classic
Dec. 6 vs. Central Missouri State
Dec. 8 vs. Oral Roberts
Dec. 10 at Creighton
Dec. 19 at Southwest Missouri State
Dec. 29 vs. Wichita State
Jan. 3-5 at Florida International Tournament
Jan. 11 vs. Oklahoma State
Jan. 14 vs. Colorado
Jan. 18 at Missouri
Jan. 21 vs. Nebraska
Jan. 25 vs. Iowa State
Jan. 28 at Kansas
Feb. 1 at Oklahoma
Feb. 4 vs. Missouri
Feb. 8 at Iowa State
Feb. 11 at Nebraska
Feb. 15 at Colorado
Feb. 18 vs. Kansas
Feb. 22 vs. Oklahoma
Feb. 26 at Oklahoma State
Mar. 4-6 Big Eight Tournament

Freeman

ing Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
e job is to nform the ckom said
ime and is
e campus

rt security
e campus

forcement,
cility," he
eople who
les are no
upt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-
eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make
thank you,'
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an oard, the college
e bylaws and to

ment Ad
tment of mpanies

Michel
ronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange
Cosima
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta
"A lot o
the open ab
Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't dra
whole life.
The selec
cials is qui
other hom
president of ciation, said
selects the p
minister the
Ramakris
dent in phys
by personal
idential a
debates. Ra
India, said
vior during childish, ve
"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakris
India Stude

Ir
to

By WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine
non in e
ers in Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned
A U.S ciated P
for-hostu

COLLEGIAN BASKETBALL TABLOID, Tuesday, October 18, 1988 7

Men's squad facing loss of top scorers; 7 newcomers listed

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

The 1988-89 K-State men's basketball team will have almost an entirely new look. The team lost four starters from last year's squad, which finished 25-9, including top-scorer Mitch Richmond and top-rebounder Charles Bledsoe.

The 'Cats return six lettermen off a squad that advanced to the final of the NCAA Midwest Regional last season, and a lone starter, 6-foot-1 guard Steve Henson. The team has also added four players from the junior college ranks, one true freshman and two players returning from redshirt seasons last year.

"We lost the kind of scorers and shooters off last year's team who are hard to replace," Coach Lon Kruger said. "(Our returnees) have an important role in carrying on the attitude that was prevalent last year. They're a group that has to work hard and rely on one another. They realize that fact, and are proud of it."

This season's squad will be without 64.6 percent of last year's scoring punch and 57.4 percent of its rebounding. The 'Cats will also be without the services of last year's highest percentage field-goal shooter, Ron Meyer, and their best three-point shooter, Will Scott.

"There won't be a lot of preconceived notions as to how this team has to play," Kruger said. "With the new players coming in, and with the returning players taking on new roles, I believe the team has to have a chance to develop a personality. We want to be smart and fundamentally sound, but those are goals that we have every year.

"We will need to be fundamentally sound to be successful."

While last season's squad had its successes, Kruger will try not to let those accomplishments put too much pressure on this year's team.

"We have to guard against each of the players wanting to step in and hit a home-run type of thing," Kruger said. "But, I think we also have to promote that each of them individually has to work a little harder, and then maybe collectively they can pick up the slack in the losses from last year.

"You like the fact that they all want to step forward; that's healthy. But I think also, you have to be careful that you don't ask them to do more than they are able to do comfortably."

While K-State is looking for players to step forward and take charge of the team, the team's schedule requires that they do so quickly. Four of the Wildcats' first five games will be against teams that participated in last year's NCAA tournament.

In all, the 'Cats will meet 10 teams that participated in the NCAA tournament last

■ See WILDCATS, Page 8

Staff/Greg Vogel
John Rettiger pulls downs a rebound as Reggie Britt flies over his back.

K-State basketball coach Lon Kruger gives advice to Carlos Diggins during a game against Creighton last season.

Men's 1988-89 Basketball Schedule

Nov. 26 vs Purdue.
Nov. 30 vs. Utah State.
Dec. 3 at Oregon State
Dec. 7 vs. Baylor
Dec. 10 vs. Vanderbilt
Dec. 17 at UMKC
Dec. 19 at Akron
Dec. 22 vs. Missouri-St. Louis
Jan. 3 at Southwest Missouri St.
Jan. 5 vs.Texas-Arlington
Jan. 7 at Minnesota
Jan. 14 vs. Kansas
Jan. 16 vs. Southern Utah St.
Jan. 18 vs. Colorado
Jan. 21 at Nebraska
Jan. 25 at Oklahoma State
Jan. 28 at Kansas
Feb. 1 vs. Oklahoma
Feb. 4 at Missouri
Feb. 9 vs. Iowa State
Feb. 11 vs. Nebraska
Feb. 15 at Colorado
Feb. 19 at Wichita State
Feb. 22 at Oklahoma
Feb. 25 vs. Oklahoma State
Mar. 1 vs. Missouri
Mar. 4 at Iowa State
Mar. 10-12 Big Eight Tournament

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpo

"We are not doi
ial) to make a n
thank you,'
man of the

"What n
Staters serv
time to ho

Other se

"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college

ws and to

ment Ad
tment of mpanies

Michel
ronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange

Cosima
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta

"A lot o
the open ab

Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't dra
whole life.

The selec
cials is qui
other home
president of ciation, saic
selects the p
minister the

Ramakris
dent in phys
by personal
idential a
debates. Ra
India, said
vior during childish, ve

"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.

Ramakris
India Stude

Ir
to

By

WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine
non in e
ers in

Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned d

A U.S ciated P
for-hosti

Freeman

ing Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
e job is to nform the ckom said
ime and is
e campus

rt security
e campus

forcement,
cility," he
eople who
les are no
upt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-
l eight stu-
work per
Page 12

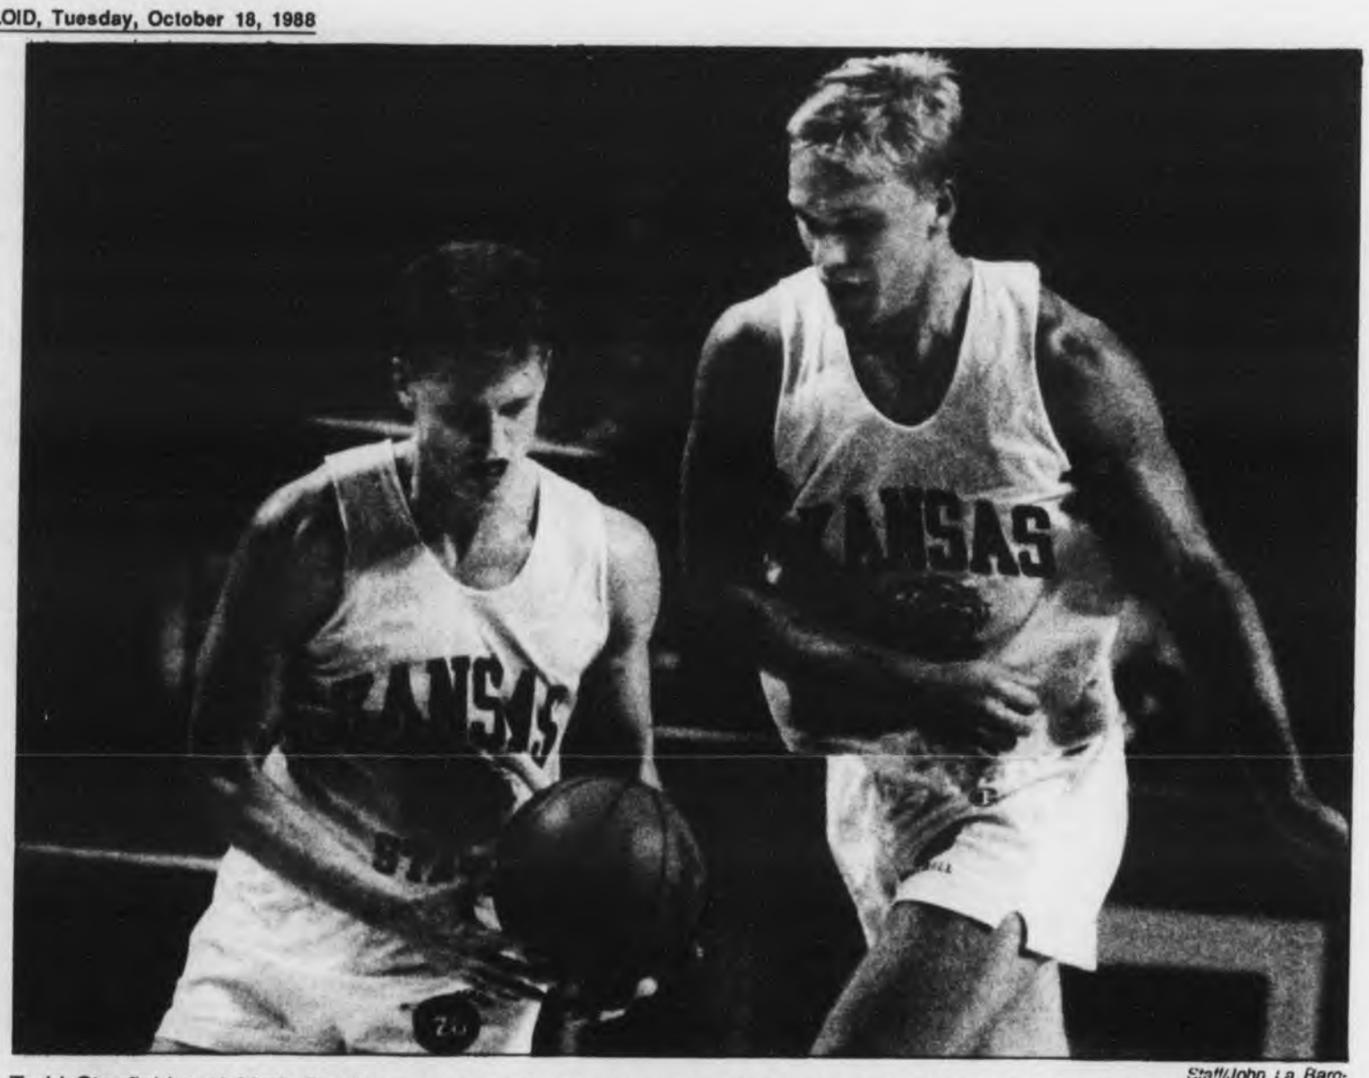
Wildcats

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

year. Six non-conference teams and four conference foes, including defending national champion Kansas.

"(Our schedule) is very, very challenging," Kruger said. "The home schedule kicks off with what should be an interesting rematch with Purdue. The road schedule has teams like Minnesota, Oregon State, Akron, Southwest Missouri State and Wichita State, so we'll have our hands full."

K-State's early practices, while spirited, haven't revealed any earth-shattering surprises.



"(The first few practices) have been what you might expect," Kruger said. "The interest is there and the desire is there. Obviously, early we are working on the very basics and fundamentals, establishing the basics both defensively and offensively.

"Our early practices have been good. They are enthusiastic and upbeat. It's the time of year that we kind of look forward to. One of the things I like about this club ... when you talk about the individuals, I can almost start the same way on each of them. They are long on the intangibles: work habits, attitude, desire to play well, unselfishness, team-first type of thoughts."

While Kruger is hoping the leadership of his returning players will continue, his younger players might get their chances early.

"Our first-year players, both the junior college and the high school kids, will have more of an opportunity to have an impact than if they were coming onto a veteran team with a lot of experienced players returning," Kruger said. "The first-year players are going to have to step in and contribute right away if we are to make some strides and have a chance at being successful.

"As far as making up for the losses of last year's squad, this team might need to manufacture points in terms of executing well and taking advantage of things created by our defense," Kruger said.

Staff/John La Barge

Todd Stanfield and Mark Dobbins move the ball up the court during Midnight Madness in Fred Bramlage Coliseum.

File/Jim Dietz

Basketball coach Lon Kruger has led K-State to a pair of 20-win seasons. Last year, the Wildcats made the final eight in the NCAA postseason tournament.

Wildcat Profiles

Below is a profile of the K-State men's basketball team with comments from coach Lon Kruger on each player.

MARK DOBBINS: 6-foot-5 senior forward. Lettered three times, averaged 2.8 points and 2.6 rebounds per game last season. "Mark had an outstanding year last year. He is very long on the intangibles. Good attitude and work habits. Unselfish. Very team-oriented. May be expected to be a little more aggressive offensively this year."

FRED McCOY: 6-foot-7 senior center. Lettered once, averaged 9.6 points and 5.1 rebounds per game last season. "Fred had some very good moments last year. He had some big numbers, both rebounding and scoring. He has the potential to be a good scorer for us. We are looking for Fred to be more consistent and I think that he is capable of accomplishing that this year."

CARLOS DIGGINS: 6-foot-4 senior guard. Lettered once, averaged 2.0 points and 1.2 rebounds per game last season. "Carlos backed up Mitch Richmond last year. We didn't really get a true look at Carlos Diggins last year. Very competitive, intense, team-oriented individual. Opportunity is there for him to step forward this season and be a big part of this ball club."

STEVE HENSON: 6-foot-1 junior guard. Lettered twice, averaged 9.1 points and 2.4 rebounds per game last season. "Definitely a team leader. Set standard of work habit of the team by the work regimen that he follows. We will need Steve to do everything that he did last year, plus be a little more aggressive offensively. I know the opportunities to score are going to increase for him and I think he can handle it."

LANCE SIMMONS: 6-5 junior forward. Lettered twice, averaged 6.5 points and 3.6 rebounds per game in the 'Cats 86-87 campaign. Sat out last year with a knee injury. "Broke his knee cap last April. Not at 100 percent yet. He's at about 77-78 percent strength, and when he hits 90 percent, they are going to let him join us full-time in practice. We project that to be about the second to third week in November."

TONY MASSOP: 6-8 junior forward/center. Averaged 10.3 points and 8.0 rebounds per game in 86-87 for California State-Sacramento. Sat out last year at K-State. "Tony is a hardship redshirt from last year from Sacramento State. He wants very badly to contribute to our club. He is very intense. He will probably play center or big forward for us."

REGGIE BRITT: 6-6 junior forward. Averaged 12.4 points and 7.0 rebounds per game last year at Coffeyville Community College. "Reggie wants very badly to do well. It will be very important to see how well he makes the transition from Coffeyville. If effort and desire are the criteria, he will do very well."

LAKEITH HUMPHREY: 6-1 junior guard. Averaged 16.9 points and 2.7 rebounds per game last year at Barton County Community College. "Very good competitor. He can play either the point guard or the off guard. He's a good penetrator. He makes shots for others. It is difficult to effectively press against him because he is a speedy left-hander."

■ See PROFILES, Page 18

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a n
thank you,'
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

ment Ad
stment of mpanies

Michel
gronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for man
K-State, th
bit strange
Cosima
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta
"A lot o
the open ab
Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't dra
whole life.
The selec
cials is qui
other home
president of ciation, saic
selects the p
minister the
Ramakris
dent in phys
by personal
idential a
debates. Ra
India, said
vior during childish, ve
"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakris
India Stude

Ir
to

By

WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine
non in e
ers in Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned d
A U.S ciated P
for-hosta

Returning Lady Cats Staff/Jim Dietz

Juniors Stephanie Lane and Amy Davidson hope to have more to cheer about this year than they did last year.

All Seasons MOTEL
Manhattan
1501 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
(913) 539-5391
Special Rate Headquarters
KSU Special Rates For:
•Students •Faculty
•Alumni •Staff
•Parents •Guests
•All sports activities
We support the KSU Sports Program
WELCOME PARENTS & GUESTS
GO! WILDCATS!

539-5303
One number brings out the best at KSU
Now, at KSU, there's just one number to remember for fast delivery of pizza that's every bit as good as one you'd go out for.
Godfather's Pizza. Now you don't have to settle for anything less, anymore.
1118 Laramie
Aggieville

Lunch Buffet only $2.99
Present this coupon and receive ONE all you care to eat lunch buffet for only $2.99. Regularly $3.99 per person!
Monday-Friday, lunch time only.
Valid for up to 4 people
Valid on dine in only. Not valid with any other discount offers
Expires 11-11-88 KSU

$7.99 Large or $5.99 Medium
Present this coupon and receive a large single topping Original pizza for only $7.99 or a medium for only $5.99.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer
Limited delivery area
Add $1 for delivery
Expires 11-11-88 KSU

Large Super Combo only $9.99
Present this coupon and receive a large Original Super Combo pizza for only $9.99.
Weighs over 5 lbs.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer
Limited delivery area
Add $1 for delivery
Expires 11-11-88 KSU

Two Large Pepperoni Pizzas only $9.99
Present this coupon and receive TWO large pepperoni pizzas for only $9.99.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer
Limited delivery area
Add $1 for delivery
Expires 11-11-88 KSU

Freeman
ing Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
job is to nform the ckom said
ime and is
e campus

rt security
e campus

forcement,
cility," he
eople who
les are no
upt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-
l eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn; Newspaper Se:t'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to thank man

"W

State

time

Ot

"R

peopl

Barth

trying

P

S

Th seem but fo

K-Sta

bit st

Co

ogy,

exten

sonall

"A

the op

Ha

Jorda

politi

"don'

whole

The

cials

other presid

ciatio selects minist

Ran

dent in by per identi

debate

India,

vior d

childis

"Wh

'You'r

Quayl

said.

Ram

India S

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

to the bylaws and to

ment Ad
stment of ompanies

Michel
gronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

ing Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
job is to nform the ckom said
ime and is ne campus

rt security
e campus

orcement,
cility," he
eople who
les are no
upt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-
eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Campout finally ends as first basketball tickets go on sale

Story by Audra Dietz Photos by Brett Hacker

At last, the doors of Ahearn Field House were opened and students came out of their tents to stand in line for basketball season tickets.

"We wanted to buy the first tickets in (Fred) Bramlage Coliseum," said Brian Shank, freshman in pre-optometry and a member of the "Bob Uecker Club."

Shank's club was the first of 105 groups that bought basketball tickets Thursday. There were 5,934 student tickets up for grabs when the doors opened at 8 a.m. The 740 non-reserved seats were sold out by 8:30. That left 4,414 reserved seats, according to the athletic ticket sales office.

The Bob Uecker Club bought the first 40 tickets in the student non-reserved section.

"I think any seat in that section is probably better than anything in the reserved section," Shank said.

Mike Wootton, senior in industrial engineering and a camper for a group called "The Dungeon," bought the last 28 non-reserved tickets. Wootton said he was glad his group had camped out.

"It's all going to be worth it," he said.

Two-hundred and fifty tickets were left Monday and were sold out by 3 p.m. said ticket officials.

Members of ICAT (I Contributed a Twenty) purchased 740 reserved tickets Thursday.

The Bob Uecker Club started the traditional campout on Sept. 12, more than a month before tickets went on sale. In less than a week, the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee ruled it was too early for students to start camping and sent everyone home.

Shank said his club started camping early because it was organized and ready to go.

"We heard rumors that other groups were going to start camping, and we were ready, so we went ahead and pitched our tent."

In about 15 minutes, four other groups had also pitched their tents.

"If we hadn't started camping, other people would have done it in a few days."

Shank said organization was the key to keeping the first place in line.

"We had a schedule of our campout times already made before we started."

The second round of the campout started Oct. 5. The Athletic Ticket Sales Committee gave the signal to bring back the tents by flying a purple flag above Anderson Hall.

Many of the campers said the shortened campout was a good idea.

"A week and a half isn't so bad. Camping out would have been a pain after a month," said Doug Cramer, freshman in pre-professional business administration and a camper for Kappa Sigma.

"Two weeks is too long," said Rich Meyer, sophomore in pre-professional business administration and a camper for Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Students spent 10 days on Ahearn's front lawn, but many campers said they didn't skip classes during the campout.

The Bob Uecker Club and the group "XTC" each had 40 people, and members said it was easy to plan campout times around class schedules.

"I didn't miss any classes," said Mark Kennedy, sophomore in physical education and camper for XTC. "We were organized. If we weren't waiting in line we would go check in on people."

"We had pretty responsible people in our group. We didn't do all that much studying, but we were able to schedule people to camp out around their classes," Shank said.

Steve Beatte, sophomore in architectural engineering and a camper for RHO RHO RHO, said members of his class didn't miss any classes because of the campout. Members of The Dungeon also made it to their classes, Wootton said.

"We all did pretty well; no one skipped classes to camp out. I spent about 20 hours in the tent, and I just slept and studied," he said.

Dreaming of basketball season wasn't enough to keep campers busy while they waited in line. They not only had to think of ways to keep warm, but of ways to pass time.

Playing catch and socializing wasn't even enough for some campers. A smoke-bomb and water-balloon fight broke out during the last week of the campout and several tents were damaged. XTC's Kennedy was caught in the battle.

"I was in my tent studying when a water balloon with a smoke bomb in it hit our tent and burned a hole in it. Then we had wet sleeping bags and pillows, so it was a pretty cold night," he said.

Other campers found more civil ways to kill time.

"When you stay for three or four hours it can get boring. I just took a nap or I played catch," said Roger Brunton, freshman in park resources management and a member of the Bob Uecker Club.

Beatte said camping out was a good way to meet people.

"I didn't get to study as much as I thought. We just played hackey-sac and talked to

■ See CAMPOUT, Page 18

Julie Habiger, sophomore in pre-profession

David Teter, sophomore in pre-professional business adminstration, and Jim Foote, senior in agricultural economics, wait to buy tickets Friday morning.

Kent and Brian Shank, of the Bob Uecke sleep Friday morning in front of their tent outside Ahearn Field House, for 38 years the home of K-State basketball.

Tent city seen from the K-State Union roof shows campers preparing for their last night's stay Thursday.

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a n
thank you,'
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

ment Ad
stment of mpanies

Michel
gronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Freeman

ng Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
job is to nform the ckom said
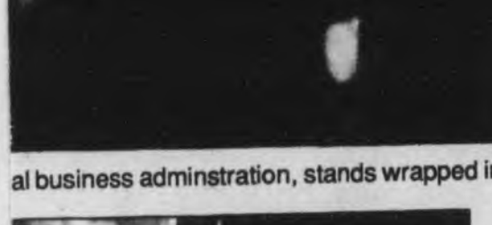
me and is
e campus



rt security
e campus

orcement,
cility," he
eople who
les are no ipt, and by er paying

o the cam-
ers. Beck-
eight stu-
work per
Page 12

al business adminstration, stands wrapped in her sleeping bag in front of her tent Friday morning. Habiger camped out for Kappa Delta.

er Club, wait to buy tickets Friday morning.

Tent city seen from the K-State Union roof shows campers preparing for their last night's stay Thursday.

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

5-DIGIT 66612
164 Ø/Ø/Ø  1Ø
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
12Ø West 1Øth
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to thank man
"W
State
time
Oth
"R peopl
Barth
trying

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college [illegible] he bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

ument Ad
stment of ompanies

e Michel
gronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Freeman

ng Fri-
nts.

se

parking.
nagement
job is to nform the kom said
me and is
e campus

rt security
e campus

orcement,
cility," he
eople who
les are no
ipt, and by er paying the cam-

ers. Beck-
eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Bramlage brings new era; $17.2 million facility finally open

By K-State Sports Information

K-State is busting its buttons this fall over the opening of the new Fred Bramlage Coliseum. The structure, which opened, almost to the day, two years after ground was broken, signals a new era for athletics and entertainment at the University.

The multi-purpose facility, which will serve as the home for K-State's men's and women's basketball programs, seats 13,500 for basketball and more than 14,000 for concerts and shows.

The result of a combined fund-raising effort on the part of K-State students, alumni and the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics, the $17.2 million Coliseum gives K-State a showplace unlike any other in Kansas.

The entire seating configuration is below ground, creating a pit effect. The 13,500 permanent seats — consisting of chairbacks, bleachers and four handicapped seating areas — surround the floor in an oval, with the only break in the pattern coming from a service tunnel on the lower south end.

With all of the seating located below the main concourse, K-State fans accustomed to being "right on top of the action" at Wildcat games and other events at Ahearn Field House will no doubt be pleased with how close they are to the action in the new facility.

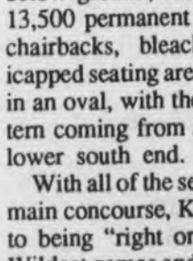
In addition to replacing Ahearn as the home of K-State basketball, the Coliseum's south annex houses many of the K-State athletic department offices, formerly in Ahearn. Among these offices are the athletic director's office, the athletic department business office, the sports information office, the men's basketball office, the women's basketball office, the men's and women's golf office and the baseball office.

The building's north annex is the home of the Wildcat Legends room, a kind of VIP lounge, complete with kitchen facilities and available for commercial as well as university functions. It was uniquely enhanced by a group of Kansas State basketball alumni known as the Wildcat Legends. Many of their contributions were spearheaded by former K-State All-American and athletic director Ernie Barrett. The room overlooks KSU Stadium.

The athletic department is the building's prime tenant, although the Coliseum staff, led by director Charlie Thomas, will be actively seeking to bring the best variety of entertainment to students, faculty and staff of K-State and the citizens in Manhattan and surrounding communities.

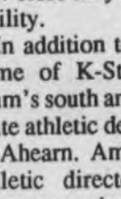
Whether it be a rock concert, a circus, a family ice show or a professional athletic contest, Bramlage will likely be host to a variety of activities.

Thomas, who leads a staff of 15 full-time employees, came to K-State from The Sun Dome at the University of South Florida in Tampa. Thomas has been in Manhattan for just more than a year, and the bulk of his time has been spent overseeing the completion and operation of the Coliseum.



Thomas is joined in facility management by Jim Muller, who serves as the building's assistant director. Muller, who formerly served in a variety of capacities at Kansas City's Kemper Arena, joined the Coliseum staff Aug. 1. Among his duties at Kemper was coordination of the NCAA Final Four last April.

The facility, which was named for its major alumni benefactor, Junction City businessman Fred Bramlage, was designed by Gossen Livingston Associates of Wichita. The project's general contractor was the J.E. Dunn Construction Co., of Tulsa and Kansas City (Mo.). Linder and Associates of Wichita served as the electrical contractor, and Young's Inc., of Topeka, served as the mechanical contractor.

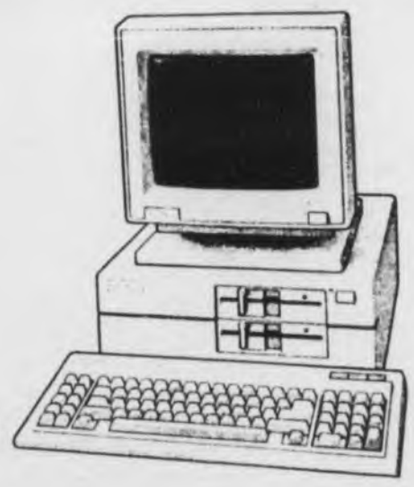


Also included was the paving of the parking lots that surround KSU Stadium and Bramlage. The construction, which was approved by the Board of Regents in April and will be paid through parking revenues, was the final touch that made the facility an impressive showcase for K-State and the Midwest.

Collegian Classifieds: Cheap, but effective

COLBERT RETAIL LIQUOR

•Wide Selection of Imported Beers
•Imported and Domestic Wines
•Beer Specials
•Case Discounts
•Cold Kegs Available



Mon.-Sat.
10 a.m.-11 a.m.
539-5757

Compatibility Defined

IBM-Com•pat'i•bil'i•ty adv. 1. Capable of existing together in harmony. 2. Able to use most common software; usu. of the business/research world. 3. Growth & flexibility. 4. Hyundai 16TE.

HYUNDAI

Introducing the Super 16TE PC-compatible.

Introducing a new level of IBM-compatibility, speed (10Mhz) and flexibility (5 expansion slots). Each Hyundai includes 640K memory, a "101" keyboard, full software (wp, spreadsheet, database), orientation, support and an 18 month warranty. Best of all- its backed by $20 billion Hyundai Corporation and Connecting Point Computer Center in Westloop Shopping Center.

	Retail	KSU Price.*	Disc.
❑ Super 16TE	$ 1045.	$ 735.	30%
❑ 2 drive, amber monitor		1095.
❑ 2 drive, color monitor		1299.
❑ 30Mb, amber monitor		1495.
❑ 30Mb, color monitor		1699.

KSU's "Seoul" Authorized Hyundai Dealer

ConnectingPoint COMPUTER CENTER
1115 Westloop Shopping Center
Manhattan, KS
843-7584

Attention Apple KSU Purchasers:

Connecting Point's "Apple Team" has contracted to support KSU department and personal Mac purchases. Call us for assistance in selecting systems, software solutions and ordering your Mac. Connecting Point now has a full line of Apple "Add-Ons" from disks to drives.

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a n
thank you,
man of th
"What Staters ser
time to h
Other s
"Regard
people wh
Barth, arts
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college

he bylaws and to

tment Ad
stment of ompanies

e Michel
gronomy;
eterinary
senior in philoso-
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

Mavs, Spurs to square-off Friday night

By The Collegian Staff

It will be history in the making at 7:35 p.m. Friday when the Dallas Mavericks and San Antonio Spurs take the court at 7:35 p.m. Friday in the newly constructed Fred Bramlage Coliseum.

The two National Basketball Association franchises — Dallas featuring one of K-State's all-time premier players, Rolando Blackman, and San Antonio, featuring last year's University of Kansas coach Larry Brown — will be playing the first basketball game ever in the 13,500-seat coliseum.

The game will mark a return home Blackman.

Blackman was a first-round draft choice of the Mavericks (ninth overall) in 1981, and has gone on to become one of the NBA's most respected guards. A three-time All-Star, Blackman helped lead the Mavericks to the Western Conference Finals in 1988 against the eventual World Champion Los Angeles Lakers.

See Rosters, Page 16

During his career at K-State, Blackman was a three-time unanimous All-Big Eight selection, and was the conference's player of the year his junior season. Following that season, he was accorded his first of two All-America honors and was a starter on the 1980 U.S. Olympic Team. Blackman remains the second-leading scorer in K-State history with 1,844 points in four seasons as a Wildcat.

"Coming back to Manhattan is going to be a fantastic feeling for me," Blackman said.

"I have some different feelings about coming back as a professional and playing in Bramlage Coliseum. Personally, I would rather it would be at Ahearn Field House, but coming to Manhattan is always a special time for me."

Blackman said there is no comparing the college and professional games.

"The level of enthusiasm of college basketball is more ... of a feeling of concern. There are team feelings I had at K-State. At the professional level, there is a team feeling, but it's more of a 'every man for himself' situation where you have to get out there and produce. It's not a situation where everyone wants to see everyone else succeed. In the NBA, it's a lot of fun, but it's business first."

K-State men's basketball coach Lon Kruger said Blackman's return is a great moment.

"Of course, when talking about Rolando Blackman, he's arguably perhaps the best player to have ever played at Kansas State," Kruger said.

OVER 1800 TITLES WITH MULTIPLE COPIES OF NEW RELEASES
HOME CINEMA
MAKE US YOUR VIDEO STORE!
Don't forget our Monday and Tuesday 99¢ days
Hours:
Mon.-Thurs. Noon-9 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri. Noon-10 p.m. Sun. Noon-7 p.m.
Village Plaza Shopping Center
537-1115

"Wildcat Spirit"
in
Aggieville
Largest selection of K-State t-shirts & gifts
KSU Sportswear
K-State Jackets
KSU Sweaters
Caps and much more
776-5461
716 N. Manhattan
9:30-8 Mon.-Thurs., Fri.-Sat. 9:30-5:30, Sun. 1-5

Get To Know Us!
527-9825
1140 Westloop Shopping Center
PIZZAZZ hair designs

"Mamma Mia!"
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFETS
• Famous Valentino's pizza
• Variety of Italian delicacies
• 100% pure beef
• Whole milk mozzarella cheese
• Authentic Italian spices
• Secret recipe sauces
• Produce delivered fresh daily
• Full table service
Luncheon Buffet
11:00-2:00
Mon.-Sun.
Manhattan's No. 1 Pizza
Evening Buffet
5-9 p.m.
7 days a week
–Delivery–Catering–
–Party Room–Carry Out
537-4350
3019 Anderson
In the Village Plaza Shopping Center
Valentino's
The Pizza Restaurant That Didn't Stop With Pizza

250 GUITARS
150 AMPS
(MANHATTAN, Topeka, Lawrence, Emporia)
Hayes House of Music
776-7983
327 Poyntz, Manhattan

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a n
thank you," s ma
"
Sta
tim
C
"
peo Bar tryi

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to

nent Ad
tment of mpanies

Michel
ronomy;
terinary
enior in philoso-
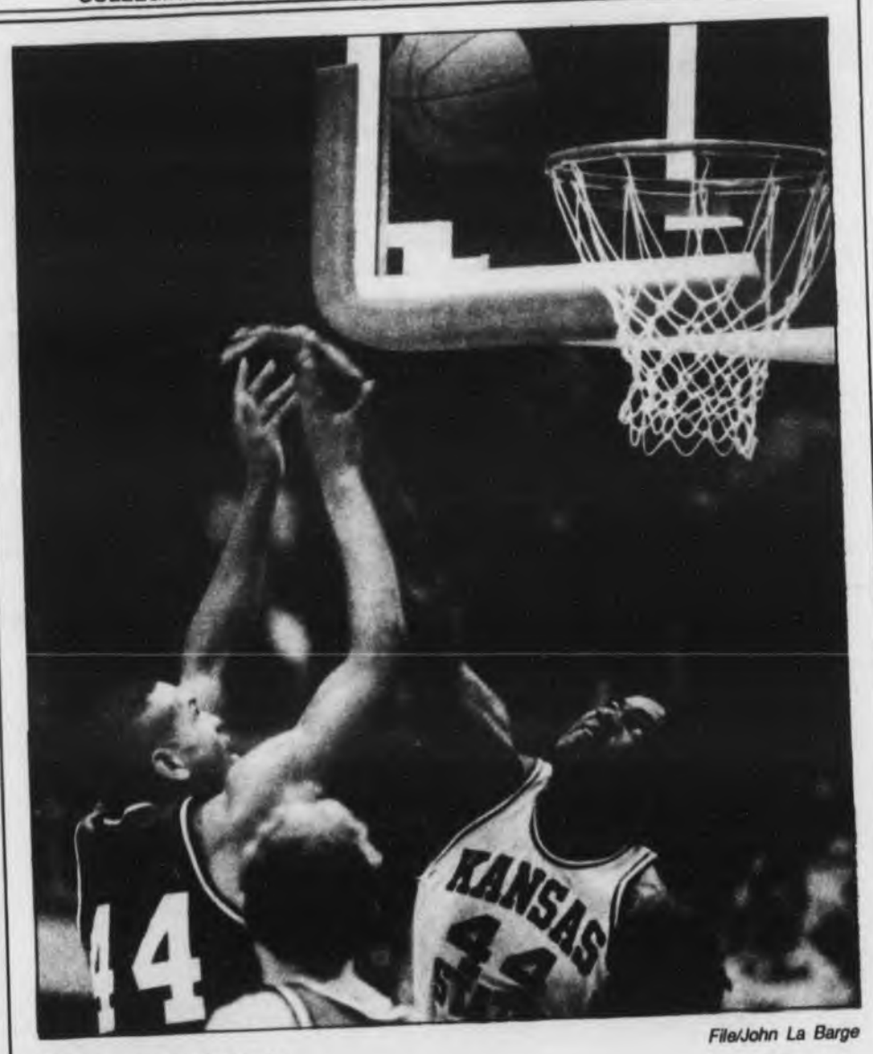
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter



impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

5

File/John La Barge

Top scorer
Fred McCoy, senior center, tries to block a shot by Northern Illinois' Donnell Thomas. McCoy averaged 9.6 points per game for the 'Cats last season.

If you're 50 or over:

HOW DO YOUR CHECKING BENEFITS COMPARE?

BIG DEAL

- Free checking for customers over 50

OUR DEAL

- Free checking for anyone over 50
- $100,000 Common Carrier Accidental Death Insurance . . . FREE
- Travel Bonuses
- National Discount Book
- Key Ring Registration . . . FREE
- Credit Card Protection
- Emergency Funds
- Newsletters

The list says it all. And it's yours free if you're 50 or over. Just maintain a $100 minimum account balance.

Unlimited check writing privileges are yours. So are savings on entertainment and travel, and home, car and personal services. Receive cash bonuses on the cost of airline travel, car rental and lodging.

Take advantage of key ring and credit card protection. $100,000 in common carrier accidental death insurance every time you travel by scheduled common carrier. And financial newsletters.

There really isn't any comparison. So come in today and ask for our checking account . . . the one with LOTS of benefits.

(If your balance drops below $100 minimum, a $12 monthly fee will be charged.)

Union National Bank & Trust Co.

Campbell's
Exceptional Gifts For All Occasions
China • Crystal • Silver
Pewter • Linens • Woods
Fashion Jewelry
Wedding Invitations
BRIDAL REGISTRY
5th & Poyntz DOWNTOWN 776-9067 1227 Moro AGGIEVILLE

Bobby J's '50 & '60s
Every Friday & Saturday:
'50s & '60s music with Live DJ
Mondays: Pasta Night
Spaghetti or Lasagna with salad & garlic bread—$2.99 all you can eat
Tuesdays: 4 FREE Chicken or Beef tacos with purchase of a carafe of Margaritas for $7.50
Wednesdays: Steak Night
16 oz. T-Bone $4.99 6 oz. Filet $3.39
Fridays & Saturdays: Late Night Breakfast
Candlewood Shopping Center 539-1571

Freeman

ng Fri-
its.

se

parking.
nagement
job is to nform the kom said
me and is
e campus

t security
e campus

orcement,
cility," he
eople who
les are no
pt, and by r paying the cam-

ers. Beck-
eight stu-
work per
Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a n
thank you," s
man of the
"What ma
Staters serve time to hon
Other sen
"Regardle
people who d
Barth, arts ar
trying to glor

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to

nent Ad
tment of mpanies

Michel
ronomy;
eterinary
enior in
philoso-
English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

Lady Cats

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

rice Cobb have the opportunity to make the biggest impact right away," Mossman said. "Arnetrice because of her junior college experience, and Mary Jo because she was a highly recruited point guard."

Cobb is a 5-foot-9 forward from Cowley County Community College in Arkansas City, where she averaged 10 points a game last season. She should be a strong complement for sharp-shooting forward Diana Miller, who averaged 10.1 points a game last year. Cobb should help prevent opponents from double-teaming Miller as they did last season.

Depth at forward has to make Mossman feel more at ease with her youngsters. Including Madsen, the Lady Cats return three forwards. The other two are junior Rita Matteucci and sophomore Kristie Bahner. All three started several games last season and may do the same this year. Freshman Leah Honeycutt could also provide some depth at forward.

If needed, Bahner can also play the post position. Senior Stacey Boyle should reclaim the starting center spot after a brief absence from the starting lineup toward the end of last season.

"Realistically, we have a shot at finishing fourth in the conference, with a third-place finish being superb."
—Matilda Mossman, Lady Cats' coach

Boyle entered last season as a highly touted recruit from Dodge City Community College, where she averaged 27 points and 11 rebounds a game. But Boyle's 7.3 points and 4.2 rebounds last year were somewhat disappointing, although Mossman says that people expected too much from Boyle.

"K-State was a totally new experience for her," Mossman said. "Even though she was a junior college transfer, K-State was her first real experience living away from home, and I also think she may have been a little over-confident. But we have plenty of reason to expect double figures from her this year. The team needs that."

Besides Bahner, sophomore Jennifer Grebing and junior Stephanie Lane will back up Boyle in the middle. Neither played much last season, so experience could be a problem at center.

Supplying more depth at guard will be junior Amy Davidson, who started 10 games last year, and freshman walk-on Dawn Stoehr.

"Realistically, we have a shot at finishing fourth in the conference, with a third-place finish being superb," Mossman said. "With the exception of Kansas, no team really lost that many people to graduation, so it will be a tough conference race again this year."

"We don't want to finish any lower than fourth and we would like to get third. We should be right up there," Madsen said.

And how about the future?

"Next year should be the year, and this year, if people take us lightly, we're going to surprise a lot of them," Madsen said.

"That's what we're shooting for — a first-place finish next year," Davidson said. "We want to go out with a bang."

The Lady Cats open the season with the McCall Pattern Classic Nov. 25 in Bramlage Coliseum. K-State will play Colorado State in the first round, and the next day the winner of the Montana-Eastern Illinois game.

File/Greg Vogel
Sophomore forward Diana Miller averaged 10.1 points a game last year.

Profiles

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5

a standpoint that she always knows what is going on."

DIANA MILLER: 5-foot-11 sophomore forward. Averaged 10.4 points and a team-high 7.0 rebounds per game last year. Started all but one game last year as a freshman. Was named honorable mention All-Big Eight. Fifth on the Lady Cats all-time freshman scoring list with 281 points. "She is our best long-range shooter. She's an ideal small forward because of her ability to shoot and her ability to rebound — a real workhorse."

ARNETRICE COBB: 5-foot-9 junior forward. Averaged 10 points and 4.8 rebounds per game at Cloud County Community College last year. Was named All-Region VI and All-Jayhawk Juco Conference. Was All-State selection at West Side. "Arnetrice is a player that can make things happen. She has great quickness and is a very powerful player."

MARY JO MILLER: 5-foot-5 freshman guard. Averaged 26 points and six assists per game last year for Minnesota state champion Tracy-Milroy. Was named Miss Basketball in Minnesota. Also named to the Converse high school All-America team. Her teams have compiled a career record of 126-9. "She is a true point guard who makes people around her much better. She can score or get the ball into the hands of others who can score."

LEAH HONEYCUTT: 5-foot-11 freshman forward. Averaged 17.5 points and 11.4 rebounds per game last year at Parkway West (Mo.) High School. Played in St. Louis metro high school all-star game and was also named All-District and All-Suburban West. "She's a great athlete who has all the physical tools."

DAWN STOEHR: 5-foot-4 freshman guard. Averaged 14 points and 4.3 assists per game at Plattemouth (Neb.) High School last year.

Amigos®
The BEST Is Under Our Hat
JUMP at this chance to take part in a great offer at Amigos.
RUN to Amigos with your ticket stub when K-State wins a home game and spend the $$$ amount of the winning score and WIN an order of Jr. Crispos!
Manhattan Town Center
Aggieville

(Example)
K-State 109
Oklahoma 75
Bring in your ticket Stub and purchase a minimum of $1.09 and receive a FREE order of Jr. Crispos

Dental Associates of Manhattan
1133 College Ave.
Bldg. D
Manhattan, KS 66502
(913) 539-7401
• 24 Hour Emergency Service
• Saturday and Evening Appointments
• Here to serve you when you're away from home
Drs. Hughes, Pettle, Lala, Fulton, and Strutz, D.D.S.

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn; Newspaper Se:t'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not
ial) to make a
thank you," s
man of the
"What ma
Staters serve
time to hon
Other sen
"Regardle
people who d
Barth, arts ar
trying to glor

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

Pre
str

By Colle

The pres
seem norm
but for many K-State, the
bit strange.
Cosima F
ogy, said s
extent to w
sonally atta
"A lot of
the open ab
Hadidi,
Jordan and political c
"don't dra
whole life.
The sele
cials is qu
other hom president o
ciation, sai
selects the minister th
Ramakri
dent in phy
by persona
idential
debates. R
India, said
vior durin
childish,
"When
'You're n
Quayle, I
said.
Ramak
India Stud

Ir tc

W report erate
U.S. the ni
non in ers in Ac
throu bells"
of St
said turne
A ciate
for-h vestment Ad

nvestment of companies
a.
are Michel
agronomy;
in veterinary n, senior in r in philoso-
in English.

t/Joe Freeman

touring Fri-
cents.

ase

itor parking.
d management
hose job is to
and inform the . Beckom said
the time and is
th the campus

-shirt security
d the campus

v enforcement,
e facility," he en people who se rules are no
disrupt, and by other paying

tly to the cam-
officers. Beck-
e and eight stu-
three work per
CE, Page 12

16 COLLEGIAN BASKETBALL TABLOID, Tuesday, October 18, 1988

Dallas Mavericks

No.	Player	Pos.	Ht.	Wt.	College	Yrs.
24	Mark Aguirre	F	6-6	221	DePaul '82	7
4	Steve Alford	G	6-2	185	Indiana '87	1
33	Uwe Blab	C	7-1	251	Indiana '85	3
22	Rolando Blackman	G	6-6	200	Kansas St. '81	7
31	Aaron Brandon	F	6-6	205	Alcorn St. '85	R
15	Brad Davis	G	6-3	180	Maryland '78	11
40	James Donaldson	C	7-2	278	Washington St. '79	8
21	Jim Farmer	G	6-4	203	Alabama '87	1
12	Derek Harper	G	6-4	206	Illinois '84	5
6	Jerry Johnson	G	5-11	165	Florida Southern '88	R
7	Bob McCann	F	6-6	245	Morehead St. '87	R
34	Dwight Moody	G	6-6	190	Northwestern St. '86	R
44	Sam Perkins	F-C	6-10	250	North Carolina'84	4
32	Detlef Schrempf	F-G	6-10	222	Washington '85	3
42	Roy Tarpley	F	7-0	256	Michigan '86	2
45	Jon Taylor	F-C	6-10	220	Arizona St. '86	I
20	Morlon Wiley	G	6-4	195	Long Beach St. '88	R
23	Bill Wennington	F-C	7-0	247	St. Johns '85	3

San Antonio Spurs

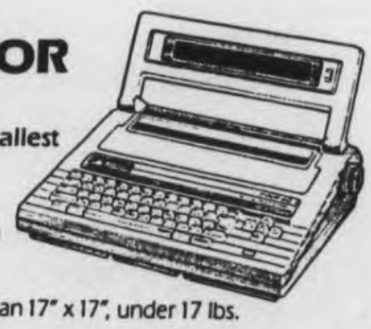
No.	Player	Pos.	Ht.	Wt.	College	Yrs.
33	Greg Anderson	F-C	6-10	230	Houston '87	1
40	Willie Anderson	G-F	6-7	190	Georgia '88	R
43	Frank Brickowski	C-F	6-10	240	Penn St. '81	4
22	Dallas Comegys	F	6-9	210	DePaul '87	1
24	Johnny Dawkins	G	6-2	165	Duke '86	2
1	Rod Foster	G	6-10	160	UCLA '83	3
10	David Greenwood	F	6-9	225	UCLA '79	9
23	Cedric Hunter	G	6-0	180	Kansas '86	R
35	Petur Gudmundsson	C	7-2	265	Washington '81	3
31	Shelton Jones	F	6-9	210	St. Johns '88	R
55	Albert King	G-F	6-6	210	Maryland '81	8
20	Pace Mannion	G	6-7	210	Utah '83	5
11	Vernon Maxwell	G	6-5	188	Florida '88	R
42	Chuck Nevitt	C	7-5	237	NC State '82	5
21	Alvin Robertson	G	6-4	190	Arkansas '84	4
50	David Robinson	C	7-1	235	Navy '87	I
54	Barry Sumpter	C	6-11	245	Austin Peay '88	R
41	Phil Zevenbergen	F	6-10	245	Washington '87	1

Imagine...
Never clean a contact lens again!

Introducing
ACUVUE
(etafilcon A)
Disposable Contact Lens
Johnson & Johnson
DISPOSALENS SYSTEM

Now available at:
DR. PAUL E. BULLOCK, O.D.
Doctor of Optometry
Financing Available
See your Eyecare Professional Annually
404 Humboldt Prof. Bldg.
Manhattan, Ks.
one block west of Town Center Mall
776-9461

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)



Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa

Park Place
apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913)539-2951

SMITH CORONA
TOMORROW'S TECHNOLOGY AT YOUR TOUCH.

PERSONAL WORD PROCESSOR
PWP 40
Our Biggest Idea Yet Is Also Our Smallest

$525.00

- Compact, new PWP 40 less than 17" x 17", under 17 lbs.

It's Easy To Use
- Adjustable 8 line by 80 character liquid crystal display.
- Menu-driven.
- Tutorial disk for step-by-step instructions.

Full Word Processing Capabilities
- 42,00 characters of memory.
- Built-in disk drive.
- DataDisk storage of 100,000 characters.
- Features include block move, copy, delete, and insert text, search and replace.
- Spell-Right™ 50,000 word electronic dictionary

Portability
- Built-in handle. • Fold down display. • Protective cover.

Choose from the fine family of Smith Corona typewriters and personal word processors.

ADVANCED BUSINESS SYSTEMS
(913) 539-7931
713 N. 12th
Manhattan, KS 66502

Come meet the winning team at Dick Edwards Ford!

Dick Edwards FORD MERCURY offers
- New & used car sales
- Service
- Body Shop
- Rental cars, trucks, vans

(located at W. Hwy. K18, 539-7341)

DICK EDWARDS
MANHATTAN ■ FORD L/M
East Hwy. 24, 2 miles east of K-Mart 776-4004

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a t
thank you,"
man of the
"What n
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

vestment Ad
nvestment of companies
a.
are Michel
agronomy;
in veterinary n, senior in r in philoso-
in English.

/Joe Freeman

touring Fri-
cents.

ase

itor parking.
d management
hose job is to nd inform the
. Beckom said
he time and is
th the campus

T-shirt security
d the campus

v enforcement,
ie facility," he
en people who se rules are no
disrupt, and by other paying

ntly to the cam-officers. Beck-
e and eight stu-
three work per
CE, Page 12

Pre
str

By Coll

The pre
seem norm
but for mar
K-State, th
bit strange Cosima
ogy, said
extent to v
sonally att
"A lot o
the open at Hadidi,
Jordan an political
"don't dra
whole life.
The sele
cials is qu
other hom
president o
ciation, sai
selects the minister th
Ramakri
dent in phy
by persona
idential
debates. R
India, said
vior during childish, v
"When
'You're no
Quayle, I
said.
Ramakri
India Studc

Ir
to

By

WAS reported
erate fo
U.S. go
the nine
non in e
ers in Accor
through bells" at
of State
said no"
turned d
A U.S ciated P
for-hosta

COTTONWOOD
RACQUET CLUB
TENNIS (Indoor and Outdoor)
Complete Adult & Jr. Program
(David Kossover—Head Pro)
•Leagues & Social events for all levels
•Group & Private Lesson Programs
WEIGHT ROOM
(Amy Fischer—weight training consultant)
Newly Remodeled
•Best Free weight equipment in town, as well as universal machines.
RACQUETBALL
2 excellent courts for raquetball, squash & wallyball
Open 7:30 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. daily
3615 Claflin Road 776-6060

Ben Franklin Crafts
"Better Quality for Less"
YES!
We carry quality art supplies - like Liquitex® acrylics, oils & mediums too. And at low prices.
WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
776-4910 M-F 9-9, Sat. 9-7, Sun. 1-6

Joe Ribeau-Owner
For Your Pre-game Parties
We have
•a wide selection of cold beers & coolers
•10% case discount
•cold kegs on request
•experienced sales staff to help plan your party
RIBEAU Retail Liquor
11th and Laramie
Aggieville Handi-corner

AL-BASHA الباشا
GREEK & MEDITERRANEAN FOOD
537-7533 1209 Laramie St.
50¢ off Gyros sandwich
offer expires 10/31/88
Buy 1 Gyro sand. & get 2nd at 1/2 price
offer expires 10/31/88
HOURS 11 a.m.-3 p.m., 4:30-9 p.m.
MOST DELICIOUS TREAT IN TOWN

Stroh's is spoken here.
"It Doesn't Get Any Better Than This!"®
© 1988 The Stroh Brewery Company Detroit MI 48207
On sale at participating retail stores now!

PYRAMID PIZZA
Aggieville U.S.A
ALL DAY DELIVERY
CATERING
DAILY LUNCH SPECIALS
CALL: 539-4888
2 13" pizzas & 2 qts. Coke
ONLY $9.50
Fast Free Friendly Delivery
PYRAMID PIZZA

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to mak
thank you,'
man of th
"What r
Staters ser
time to h
Other s
"Regard
people wh
Barth, arts trying to g

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to Education Council.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration of two senators for impeachment on the

Campout

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10

about 30 gallons of hot chili to relieve the campers from the cold.

"We did it to show our appreciation," Kruger said.

"It makes us feel good to see the campers out so early," said basketball player Reggie Britt, junior in social sciences.

The Wildcats don't hit the court until Nov. 26 when they take on Purdue in the season opener, but plans for next year's ticket sales are already underway. The Athletic Ticket Sales Committee met Monday night to discuss the ticket sale procedures.

Profiles

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

BILLY RAY SMITH: 6-5 junior forward. Averaged 13.5 points and 6.3 rebounds per game last year at Midland Community College. "Billy is very solid fundamentally. He is a very hard worker and a competitor. He could possibly be a three-point shooter for us. We don't have a lot of that this year."

TODD STANFIELD: 6-1 sophomore guard. Lettered once, averaged 0.4 points and 0.3 rebounds per game last year. "Made good strides. Good ball-handler and a good leader. He is very, very aggressive and tough. We need Todd to step up and compete for starting opportunities. We are not very deep at the guard spot. We only have three true guards."

JOHN RETTIGER: 6-9 freshman center. Averaged 1.0 points and 0.5 rebounds per game last year. Took medical hardship with a back problem after playing in only two games. "Jon was a redshirt freshman for us last year. He is a freshman, eligibility-wise, this year. Growing physically. He has grown two inches and put on 30 pounds since coming to K-State. Very intense competitor. Redshirt experience was real valuable for Jon. He grew both physically and emotionally. We need to get him some minutes of playing time. He needs to approach every practice with the attitude that he is fighting for a starting position."

JEFF MALHAM: 6-6 freshman guard/forward. Averaged 24.5 points and 11.5 rebounds per game during his senior season in high school at Broken Arrow, Okla. "Needs time. He's been working hard on improving his strength. He shoots the ball very well and he has good instincts. He's our only true freshman.

STEVE FRITZ: 6-4 junior guard. Played on Hutchinson Community College's national championship team last season. Fritz walked on earlier this year. He replaces Buster Glover on the roster, and is also a decathlete on K-State's track team. "He's a good ball-handler and we need all the guards we can get."

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

Steve's Floral
539-6227 302 Poyntz
Fresh Flowers
Silk Arrangements
Funerals, Weddings
Custom House, Dec.., Gifts
Christmas Shoppe
Gourmet Candy
Balloons

The "NEW" Apple Tree
Greek Gifts Gifts and Crafts
15% KSU Student I.D.
Paddles & Paddle Acc.
Free in Town Delivery
Special Orders are our Specialty.
M-S 9-5:30
2615 Anderson Thur. till 9, Sun. 1-5

UNIQUE CHRISTMAS GIFT
FACTORY CLOSEOUT
14K Gold Initial Rings ONLY $49.95
14K Gold Ring with Genuine Diamonds
Regularly Priced at $155
SAVE OVER $100
49.95 14K GOLD INITIAL RING
Layaway Plans Available
Diamond Connection
417 Poyntz Ave. (DOWNTOWN) 539-3225

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1983
"The Aggieville Alternative"
Charlie's PRESENTS
Live Bands every Thursday & Friday
Saturday: $ Dollar Days $
$1 PITCHERS
Come party with us before and after all home games.
•Now Open Sundays at noon.
w/pizza specials and sports
on the big screen TV
*Attention all pool sharks: Pool tournaments every Tuesday at 8 p.m.
1800 Claflin 776-4111

CAR OWNERS: DON'T TURN YOUR BACK ON WINTER
BE PREPARED FOR WINTER'S ICY BLAST
Winterize Your Car Now!
RADIATOR FLUSHES
$34.95
We offer these 12 car services for one low price
1. Change Oil Up to 5 qt.
2. Replace Oil Filter
3. Lubricate the Chassis
4. Fill Brake Fluid Reservoir
5. Fill Power Steering Reservoir
6. Fill Battery
7. Fill Differential
8. Fill Transmission
9. Fill Windshield Washer Reservoir
10. Check Air Filter
11. Check Wiper Blades
12. Vacuum Interior
S. of Holidome-2304 Sky Vue Lane-No Appointment Necessary.
WAYNE'S QUIK LUBE 539-5431

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a p thank you," sai man of the Vi
"What matte
Staters served a time to honor
Other senato
"Regardless
people who die
Barth, arts and trying to glorify

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said

be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration

estment Ad
nvestment of companies
a.
are Michel
agronomy;
in veterinary n, senior in in philoso-
in English.

Pres
stra

By M Colleg

The preside seem normal
but for many ir K-State, the e
bit strange.
Cosima Hac
ogy, said she extent to whic
sonally attack
"A lot of d
the open abou
Hadidi, wh
Jordan and political cam
"don't drag
whole life."
The selectic
cials is quite other homela president of t ciation, said t selects the prir minister then Ramakrishr
dent in physics
by personal at idential and debates. Ram India, said he vior during t childish, very
"When (L
'You're no Ja
Quayle, I wa
said.
Ramakrishr
India Student

Ira
to

By T

WASH reported erate for U.S. gove
the nine A non in excl
ers in Ch
Accordi
through in bells" at t
of State G
said no" a turned do
A U.S. ciated Pre for-hostag

CATCH ALL THE WILDCAT ACTION
WITH A NEW ZENITH T.V.
•Big Screens
•Stereo Televisions
•VCRs & Stereo VCRs
•Camcorders
ZENITH The quality goes in before the name goes on®
MIDWEST APPLIANCE HARDWARE SERVICES
624 TUTTLE CREEK BOULEVARD MANHATTAN, KANSAS
776-9454 next to Wal-Mart
SE2509H

776-5577 776-5577
Pizza Shuttle
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

THE Palace Cards & Gifts
HERE COMES BASKETBALL!
SEE OUR K-STATE T-SHIRTS AND SWEATSHIRTS
(ADULT AND KIDS SIZES)
GO K-STATE
704 N. MANHATTAN • IN AGGIEVILLE • 539-7654
MON-THURS. 8:30-8:30 • FRI-SAT. 8:30-5:30 • SUN. 12:00-5:00

STOP & SHOP
•Fountain Drinks
•Fast, Friendly Service
•Ice
•Soft Serve Ice Cream
•Groceries
•Frozen Yogurt
Conveniently located south of campus
Nichols
Anderson Avenue
University Inn
Step 2 Step
1455 Anderson
Anderson Village
537-2200

MAYER
RETAIL LIQUOR

COMPLETE SELECTION OF SPIRITS WINES, WINE COOLERS, AND BEERS, WITH SELECTION
ASSISTANCE AVAILABLE!!
521 North 12th, in Aggieville, 539-5269
Monday-Saturday: 9 a.m.-11 p.m.

SOUTHERN SUN
Now accepting Mastercard & VISA
THE TANNING SALON
WOLFF SYSTEM Sun CENTER
776-8060

/Joe Freeman

ouring Fri-
cents.

ase

itor parking.
d management
hose job is to nd inform the
. Beckom said
he time and is h the campus

-shirt security
d the campus

v enforcement,
ie facility," he
en people who se rules are no
disrupt, and by other paying

tly to the cam-
officers. Beck-and eight stu-
hree work per
CE, Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State
Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a point. We're doing this to say thank you," said Catherine Barnes, chairwoman of the

"What m
Staters serv
time to ho
Other se
"Regardl
people who
Barth, arts
trying to gl

ing the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to Education Council.

Senate also approved the Investment Ad the investment of with companies Africa.
ittee are Michel
t in agronomy;
lent in veterinary layton, senior in junior in philoso-nior in English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

In an attempt to follow unclearly written Student Government Constitution laws and impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said Senate is "required by the bylaws to consider senators for impeachment if they have be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration of two senators for impeachment on the basis of various unexplained and unex-

Pre
str

B
Co

The pr seem nor but for ma
K-State, t bit strang
Cosima
ogy, said
extent to sonally at
"A lot
the open a Hadidi,
Jordan a political
"don't d whole lif
The sel cials is q
other hor president ciation, s selects th minister t
Ramak
dent in ph
by persor
idential
debates.
India, sai
vior duri
childish,
"Wher
'You're Quayle,
said.
Ramak
India Stu

In
to

W report erate
U.S. the ni
non in ers in Ac
throu bells"
of St
said turne
A ciate
for-h

Henson

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4

much," Henson said. "I think the best thing for me to do is just concentrate on carrying out the same role that I have the past two years."

And that role has been to not shoot, but get the ball to one of the Wildcats' big guns. In his first two seasons, those big guns were Norris Coleman and Olympian Mitch Richmond.

When the 'Cats needed a bucket last season, everyone in the arena knew the ball was going to Richmond. But, with a little more offensive freedom and the absence of a bona fide scorer such as Richmond, Henson may be taking more shots than he has in the past.

Last year, Henson took just over five shots a game, sometimes going a whole half without attempting a field goal. And even though he averaged only nine points a game, Henson still earned the respect of his peers. In a poll of various players from the Big Eight Conference, Henson garnered enough votes to land him a spot on the conference's second team, an honor that can probably be fully attributed to Henson's all-out, gutsy style of play.

Two summers ago, Henson toured China with the Big Eight select team and the people of China, a country that values the work ethic, liked Henson's style of play so much that he was named the MVP of that tournament.

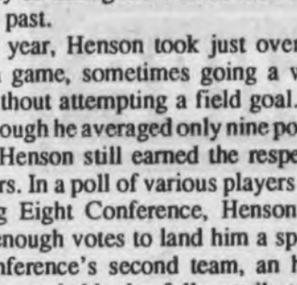
Henson also showed this summer that he can score when he needs to. Again traveling with the select team in Europe, Henson tallied 29 points in the championship game, though the effort came in a loss to the Czechoslavakian national team. So the offense is there, should the Wildcats need it.

"We have so many new people that we don't really know where the offense is going to come from," Henson said.

"We're obviously losing a lot, but they said the same thing when we lost Norris (Coleman) two years ago. I'm not really sure what will happen, but I'm sure that there's not anybody who will be able to take on Mitch's role."

"He's capable of providing us with some more offense and he'll definitely have the opportunity."

—Lon Kruger, men's basketball coach



This could be the season that Henson's role changes to the same type of role that Kruger played during his career with the Wildcats. Kruger and Henson have been compared numerous times since the Wildcats' floor leader signed with K-State.

So far, Henson has not done the scoring that Kruger did during his playing days. It's not that he can't, he just hasn't had to.

Kruger was twice named Big Eight player of the year and led the team in scoring from his point guard spot during his last season, averaging 17.6 points a game.

And should Henson start to become the offensive threat that his coach was, the thought of him being tabbed for the All-Big Eight first team may not be all that farfetched.

ATTENTION K-STATE BASKETBALL FANS!
You "Win" when the WILDCATS "WIN"!

When the Men's Kansas State Basketball team is victorious, we'll help with the treats!

Here's How It Works;
You'll receive the percent off your total purchase that matches the point spread. For instance, if the Wildcats win by 15 points, you'll receive a 15 percent discount. If they win by 30, it'll be 30 percent, etc.

Cheer the Wildcats on to victory and then come in to celebrate with us!

OFFER APPLIES TO HOME GAME DATES ONLY

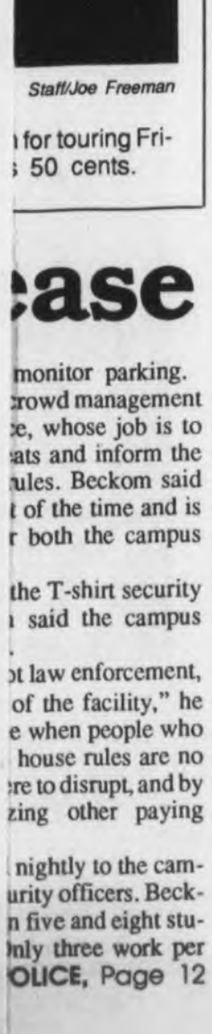
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Open: 11 a.m.–11 p.m. Daily
Noon–11 p.m. Sunday

Good Luck Kansas State University!
Loop Two K.S.U.!
CALL OUR TEAM WHEN YOU'RE WATCHING YOUR TEAM.

Call us!
Manhattan
539-0561
517 N. 12th Street

$3.99 Special!
Get a 10" small 1-topping pizza for ONLY $3.99!
Additional toppings only 50¢ each.
Not good with any other coupons or offers. Price does not include tax. Expires 10/31/88.
DOMINO'S PIZZA

Hours:
4pm-1am Sun.-Thurs.
4pm-2am Fri.-Sat.



Coke® available. 12 oz. cans 50c each. Our drivers carry less than $20.00. Limited delivery area.
® 1988 Domino's Pizza, Inc.

NO COUPON NECESSARY FOR THESE GREAT PRICES!

ADDITIONAL TOPPINGS:
PEPPERONI, SAUSAGE, MUSHROOMS, BLACK OLIVES, GROUND BEEF, ONIONS, BACON, HAM, GREEN PEPPERS, GREEN CHILIES, PINEAPPLE, JALAPENOS, EXTRA THICK CRUST, EXTRA CHEESE

MENU	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
CHEESE	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 ITEM	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 ITEMS	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 ITEMS	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 ITEMS	9.79	12.99	14.59
DELUXE *	9.79	12.99	14.59
VEGI 	9.79	12.99	14.59
EXTRAVAGANZZA™ 	10.74	14.24	15.99
EACH ADDITIONAL ITEM	.95	1.25	1.40

* DELUXE — 5 items for the price of 4. Pepperoni, Sausage, Mushrooms, Onions & Green Peppers.
 VEGI — 5 items for the price of 4. Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Black Olives & Extra Cheese.
 EXTRAVAGANZZA™ — A special blend of 9 items for the price of 5. Pepperoni, Ham, Ground Beef, Sausage, Black Olives, Green Peppers, Onions, Mushrooms & Extra Cheese.

Staff/Joe Freeman

for touring Fri-
50 cents.

ease

monitor parking.
crowd management
e, whose job is to ats and inform the ules. Beckom said of the time and is both the campus

the T-shirt security
said the campus

ot law enforcement,
of the facility," he e when people who house rules are no re to disrupt, and by zing other paying nightly to the camurity officers. Beck-n five and eight stunly three work per

OLICE, Page 12

Remembering the Crash

Today marks the first anniversary of Black Monday, when the stock market dropped 508 points. Many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue today. See Page 8.

Weather

Mostly cloudy today with the high 60 to 65. Cloudy with a 40 percent chance of light rain tonight with the low in the upper 40s.

New Sensation

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

country meets for K-State. See Page 9.

Wednesday
October 19, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 42

Kansas State Collegian

Senate debates purpose of memorial

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Student Senate allocated $7,051 to the KSU Vietnam Veterans Memorial after two hours of debate Thursday.

A senator and a student raised concern about the nature of the memorial.

Graduate Senator Rattan Nath, representing views of some constituents and veterans, said the memorial should be an "anti-war statement." But representatives from the Arnold Air Society said this was not the memorial's purpose.

"We are not doing this (building a memorial) to make a point. We're doing this to say thank you," said Catherine Barnes, chairwoman of the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"What matters is the fact that these K-Staters served and died in Vietnam and it is time to honor them," she said.

Other senators agreed.

"Regardless of the morality of the war, the people who died need a memorial," said Brad Barth, arts and sciences senator. "We are not trying to glorify war, but (we are) commending the people who died."

The memorial, to be built east of All-Faiths Chapel, will commemorate 38 K-State students who were killed in the Vietnam War as well as all those who served, said John Taglieri, adviser to the Vietnam Memorial committee.

"'Memorial' simply brings up memories. Different people are going to interpret this word in many ways," said Justin Sanders, graduate senator. "(This memorial) is for K-State students to think about."

Currently the only memorial to K-State Vietnam veterans is a plaque hanging in the Union.

In other business, Senate approved the reapportionment of its representation from each college.

Total number of senators increased from 49 to 53, an increase of four.

Representation from the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education and Human Ecology each increased by one due to increased enrollment indicated by 20th day enrollment figures, Sanders said.

Senate also approved Union Activities Board Constitution and Bylaws revisions, which were last revised in October 1984.

Revisions to Education College Council Constitution were also approved.

Melissa Blumel, education senator, said an assistant editor to the Chalkboard, the college newsletter, was added to the bylaws and to Education Council.

Senate also approved the Investment Ad Hoc Committee to research the investment of student monies associated with companies doing business in South Africa.

Members of the committee are Michel Cavigelli, graduate student in agronomy; Bernie Giefer, graduate student in veterinary medicine; Sally Howard Clayton, senior in humanities; Paige Nichols, junior in philosophy; and Scott Miller, senior in English.

Impeachment bylaws cause confusion

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

In an attempt to follow unclearly written Student Government Constitution laws and rules, Student Senate considered impeachment of 24 senators Thursday.

The K-State SGA Constitution requires that senators with three unexcused absences during one term of office be automatically considered for impeachment.

Although Graduate Senator Bernie Giefer objected to consideration of the separate impeachment bills, all three were considered but not passed.

Parliamentarian Justin Sanders said Senate is "required by the bylaws to consider senators for impeachment if they have three unexcused absences."

One bill, which led to the resignation of Arts and Sciences Senator Grant Shellenberger and Senate Treasurer Kurt Bush, required consideration of 21 senators on violation of Senate visitation policy.

Bush said in a letter read by Senate Chairman Doug Folk that he would rather be identified as a quitter than be associated with the impeachment actions of Senate.

The second bill required consideration of two senators for impeachment on the basis of various unexplained and unexcused absences.

The third bill called for consideration of an ex-officio member to be impeached also for absences.

A bill to impeach eight interns was introduced but not considered because they are not considered part of Senate, but "ex-

■ See IMPEACH, Page 13

Presidential race strange to some

By Matt Bunker
Collegian Reporter

The presidential campaign may seem normal for most Americans, but for many international students at K-State, the entire process seems a bit strange.

Cosima Hadidi, senior in psychology, said she was surprised by the extent to which candidates are personally attacked by their opponents.

"A lot of dirt is dragged out into the open about candidates," she said.

Hadidi, who is a citizen of both Jordan and West Germany, said political campaigns in Germany "don't drag out (the candidate's) whole life."

The selection of government officials is quite different in Hadidi's other homeland, Jordan. Hadidi, president of the Arab Student Association, said that in Jordan the king selects the prime minister. The prime minister then selects other ministers.

Ramakrishnan C.P., graduate student in physics, said he was surprised by personal attacks during the presidential and vice presidential debates. Ramakrishnan, a native of India, said he felt some of the behavior during the debates was "very childish, very naive."

"When (Lloyd) Bentsen said 'You're no Jack Kennedy' to (Dan) Quayle, I was very surprised," he said.

Ramakrishnan, president of the India Student Association, said there are no debates in India. As election time approaches, each party's leader gets an hour to speak on television. The leaders don't engage in personal attacks comparable to those in the United States, he said.

Costa Rican citizen Eduardo Arce-Diaz shared the view that personal attacks detract from presidential campaigns in this country. Arce-Diaz, graduate student in agricultural economics, said candidates often "behave like children and lose perspective."

That kind of approach "moves attention from the main issues to shallow things," he said.

Arce-Diaz said he was surprised at how different Republican and Democratic positions are in the United States. In Costa Rica, he said, there is "not so great a gap" between the two main parties.

"In Costa Rica, all parties agree that abortion is not good," he said.

The differences between party platforms in the United States make elections particularly important here, Arce-Diaz said. However, few people seem concerned, he said.

Arce-Diaz said low voter turnout rates in the United States demonstrate this lack of concern.

"It's a pity. This country has a very important role in the world," he said.

Pijau Hsieh, senior in journalism and mass communications, said elections in the United States are similar to those in his native Taiwan — with

■ See STRANGE, Page 12

Staff/Joe Freeman

House hanging

Jill Taylor, sophomore undecided, and Gary Spearow, freshman in architecture, finish hanging a piece of a plastic wall Tuesday night in Putnam Hall's haunted house. The house will be open for touring Friday and Saturday and Oct. 28-29. Admission is 50 cents.

Iran attempts deal to attain weapons

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — ABC News reported Tuesday night that Iran, desperate for weapons, secretly offered the U.S. government the freedom of four of the nine American hostages held in Lebanon in exchange for 16 U.S.-built jet fighters in Chile's arsenal.

According to ABC, the offer came through intermediaries and set off "alarm bells" at the State Department, Secretary of State George P. Shultz "emphatically said no" and the $170 million deal was turned down.

A U.S. official, reached by The Associated Press, confirmed that a weapons-for-hostages deal was proposed to the U.S. government. However, the official said: "We turned it off definitely, in Santiago, in Israel and here. It's one example of many in the last few years of people offering deals."

The official, who declined to be identified, said he did not "have anything on the specifics of this report."

Another U.S. official, who also demanded anonymity, said, "It is correct there was no deal nor was there any U.S. government interest. The United States did not and does not discuss deals for hostages."

According to the ABC story, the proposed swap had the endorsement of Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian parliament.

Police want staff increase

By Brian Hummell
Staff Writer

Although the K-State Police Department increased the size of its force by one in February, officials said another increase is needed to handle increased student enrollment.

The 20 officers on the campus police force are overworked, said Charles Beckom, campus police chief. And, he said, he does not see much help in the near future.

"The outlooks on personnel being added are very thin, but I can always hope and dream and pray," he said.

Beckom said the ideal number of officers "without overloading and burdening the officers," would be 26, plus an extra dispatcher and an investigating officer.

George Miller, vice president for administration and finance, said a request for additional members to the campus police has been made. The request, which would require additional funding, is at the administrative level and may be discussed as early as next week, he said.

"There is quite a variety of duties they must perform, and the officers think that additional personnel would help," Miller said. "This is all assuming the funds are available, but there are very limited funds for the whole University."

The addition of Bramlage Coliseum and its subsequent events, coupled with the officers' regular duties, have the officers on overtime.

"With a major event, it puts the officers in overtime status, sometimes working a 14- to 15-hour day," Beckom said.

He used the Def Leppard concert as an example.

"(Def Leppard) is a top-name band. They're the hottest thing going. But the mixture of crowd that type of concert draws puts a lot of our people in a bind," Beckom said.

Three officers will be working a regular shift while the other 17 will be working the concert, he said. The campus police must manage the crowd and monitor parking.

They are assisted with crowd management by a T-shirt security force, whose job is to help patrons find their seats and inform the patrons of the coliseum rules. Beckom said this approach works most of the time and is good public relations for both the campus police and the facility.

But in the times when the T-shirt security does not work, Beckom said the campus police need to be there.

"(T-shirt security) is not law enforcement, they are representatives of the facility," he said. "There comes a time when people who don't want to follow the house rules are no longer patrons, but are there to disrupt, and by doing so are jeopardizing other paying customers."

Some help is provided nightly to the campus police by civilian security officers. Beckom said there are between five and eight students filling this role. Only three work per

■ See POLICE, Page 12

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Students protest in Korea

SEOUL, South Korea — A man wearing a headband with anti-American slogans jumped from the fourth-floor window of a campus building Tuesday, and 400 students clashed with riot police in anti-government protests.

Officials at Seoul's Yonsei University said the man wrapped himself in a large South Korean national flag, shouted slogans against the United States and the government of President Roh Tae-woo, and then jumped.

They identified him as Kim Kyong-ku, 32, a laborer, and said he was hospitalized with two broken legs.

Ritualistic suicide is often used by radical students and dissidents in South Korea to dramatize their cause.

Elsewhere in the capital, about 400 students from Kyunghee and Konkuk universities hurled firebombs and rocks at riot police and shouted demands for withdrawal of 42,000 U.S. troops stationed in South Korea under a defense treaty, witnesses said.

They also demanded the arrest of former President Chun Doo-hwan for alleged corruption involving his seven-year administration.

Police reported no arrests or injuries in the two clashes, each of which lasted more than one hour. Police used tear gas to keep the students from marching into the streets and fighting was confined to school gates, witnesses said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Radical students say the United States supported Chun in militarily putting down the Kwangju revolt in 1980, the worst in modern South Korean history.

Israelis kill 2 youths

JERUSALEM — Israeli troops firing plastic bullets killed two Palestinians — a teen-ager and a 5-year-old boy — and wounded a U.S. journalist during clashes Tuesday in the occupied West Bank, Arab hospital officials said.

An army spokesman confirmed the deaths and said five people had plastic bullet wounds, including American photographer Neal Cassidy — the first foreign journalist shot in the 10-month Palestinian uprising over Israeli rule in the occupied lands.

Hospital officials said six people were wounded.

The 5-year-old boy died after he was hit with plastic bullets in the chest, stomach and left hand as he played in a schoolyard near his home, according to officials at Al Ittihad Hospital.

The child, identified as Deyaa Fayez, was shot when Israeli soldiers opened fire on a nearby group of stone-throwing Palestinians, Arab reporters said. The reporters and hospital officials spoke on condition of anonymity.

100 dead after plane crash

NEW DELHI, India — An Indian Airlines jetliner with 135 people on board crashed today and exploded in central India, the airline said. At least 100 people died, a spokeswoman said.

The jet slammed to the ground at 5:37 a.m. near the city of Ahmadabad, about 300 miles southwest of New Delhi, according to an airline spokeswoman, who declined to be identified.

The Boeing 737, flying to Ahmadabad from Bombay with 129 passengers and a crew of six, crashed attempting to land and exploded in flames, the spokeswoman said.

Authorities did not know immediately what caused the crash except that the plane was attempting to land in poor weather.

Ahmadabad is about 220 miles from the Pakistan border in Gujarat state.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

U.S. warns against trade

WASHINGTON — The State Department said Tuesday it would be "extremely concerned" if the Sudan accepted flood relief assistance from a Palestinian group in return for the release of suspected Palestinian terrorists in Sudanese custody.

Department spokesman Charles Redman said he could not confirm reports that Abu Nidal, whose group is held responsible for scores of terrorist attacks, has sent $4 million in flood relief to the Sudan.

But Redman said the United States "would be extremely concerned if any donation were accepted in return for the release or lenient sentencing of suspected terrorists.

"Such arrangements would be likely to encourage further terrorist attacks."

Men dangle from scaffolding

NEW YORK — Two construction workers, left dangling 140 feet above a Manhattan street when their scaffolding collapsed, were rescued unharmed Tuesday after 45 minutes in midair, the Fire Department said.

The men were working on a building at the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center when a motor on the scaffold gave out, dumping both men from the platform on the 15th floor, said Fire Chief Michael Loghran.

"When we arrived, the scaffold was hanging straight down and the workers were about 140 feet above the ground," said Loghran. The men were both suspended from safety ropes attached to the top of the building, he said.

Cat catches barn on fire

LEBANON, Ind. — A man who was starting a trash fire says he accidentally ignited his cat, which ran into his barn "like a ball of fire" and torched the structure.

Wendell Lane saved his cattle from the blaze Monday but apparently not the cat. The animal was not found after the fire, said Lane, who feared it did not survive.

"I was starting a trash fire out back and poured just a little bit of kerosene to get the fire going," he said. "Somehow our cat was in the trashpile. ... He took off like a ball of fire and headed straight for the open door of the barn."

Lane found the cat rolling in hay trying to put the flames out.

Lane tried to put out the fire with an extinguisher and a garden hose, said Fire Chief Patrick McGinley. When the flames got ahead of him, he took his cattle out and called the fire department.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Girl dies of gunshot wound

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A 13-year-old Kansas City boy accidentally shot and killed his 9-year-old sister with a rifle Monday at their home.

The girl, Sally LaFollette, was taken by helicopter to Children's Mercy Hospital, where she was pronounced dead from a gunshot wound to the right temple, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The boy called police at about 5:20 p.m. and said he had just shot his little sister, said Sgt. Gregory Mills of the Kansas City Police Department.

The accident occurred after the boy took the rifle out of its case to look at it. As he was returning it to the case, the gun fired, Mills said.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

K-STATE PLAYERS will perform "Little Shop of Horrors" at 8 p.m. today through Saturday in Nichols Theatre.

SIGN-UP to give blood for the Blood Mobile will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. all week in the Union by the notice board.

TODAY

UNIVERSITY ACTIVITIES Board will meet at 3:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

GYMNASTICS CLUB will meet at 9 p.m. in Natatorium 4.

PARACHUTE CLUB will meet at 8 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

MUSLIM COMMUNITY Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room.

ETA KAPPA NU yearbook pictures will be taken at 6:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

THURSDAY

PRE-VET CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Trotter 201.

ICTHUS will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

HORTICULTURE CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Waters Greenhouse.

K-STATE PLAYERS will meet at 4 p.m. in Nichols 008.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 207.

AG COUNCIL will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

K-STATE POLICE

Tuesday

- A lost student parking permit report was filed.
- A wallet was reported lost.
- A maroon Pontiac Grand Prix was towed from lot A-3 by Manhattan Wrecker.
- A faculty/staff parking permit was reported stolen.
- Boyd Hall will have a fire drill today around 8 p.m.
- A faulty fire alarm went off in Nichols Hall.
- A faculty/staff parking permit was reported lost or stolen.
- Two student parking permits were reported lost.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Book sale to aid Farrell

The annual Friends of the Libraries Book Sale will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday in Farrell Library's lobby.

Books are priced from 25 cents to $1, said Virginia M. Quiring, associate dean of library development services.

A special presale, open to members of Friends of the Libraries, will take place from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in Farrell 502B.

Books for the sale have been donated at donation boxes throughout Manhattan during the last month. Proceeds of the sale will be used to supplement library resources.

Quiring said 1989 K-State Historical Calendars will also be on sale at the event. The calendars, which also benefit Friends of the Libraries, will sell for $5.

Have story or photo ideas?
CALL 532-6556

Buy, Sell or Trade
in Collegian Classifieds

LARGE PIZZA ONLY 5.99
with one topping
dine in or free home delivery
with this coupon
offer good through Oct. 31
"premium pizza at a cardboard pizza price"
Pougeot's
523 South 17th
537-1484

Bobby T's
50 & 60s
SIGN UP NOW for the
Bobby T's Bus to the 1989
KSU-OU Football Game.
$29.88 Roundtrip
Ask for Details at Bar.
3240 Kimball 539-1571

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
Pitchers
$2.25
TONIGHT
ON TAP COORS LT, BUD, OLD MILW.
•NO DRESS CODE
•NO COVER CHARGE
THE FINEST LITTLE TAVERN BY A DAM SITE
Rt. 5 537-3133

BELT BONANZA
OCTOBER 17 - OCTOBER 21

30% OFF, all new fall belts
FALL '88 BELT LOOKS:
• smooth leathers
• croco, lizard, snake
• pebble grain
• pant belts with interesting buckles
• chanel-inspired chain belts
• contrast stitching
• passementerie touches
• suede
• deep, rich colors
- Accessories Magazine
Accessories on the Park
Mon.-Sat.: 10:00-6:00, Thur,: 10:00-8:30, Sun.: 1:00-5:00
708 North Manhattan Avenue, Aggieville 537-0707

BROTHERS
In Aggieville
7th Annual
ΠΚΑ Lil Sister Olympics
TONIGHT 9-11 p.m.
Pizza Eating and Fluffy Rabbit Contests
And the "Mystery Event"
$2 Long Island Iced Teas
Ideal Greek jars will be here for voting.
FRIDAY 4-7 p.m.
Ideal Greek Walkthrough, Hamburger Eating Contest, and Paper Airplane Relays
FREE BBQ Hamburgers 4-7 p.m.
Last chance to vote in Ideal Greek jars.
•18 TO ENTER-21 TO DRINK•
1120 Moro • Aggieville 537-9511

TONITE
DEF LEPPARD
PRE-CONCERT PARTY

• $1.99 PITCHERS
BACK BAR
• $1.99 LOVE BITES
• LISTEN TO:
THE SOUNDS OF DEF LEPPARD
• FREE
FUNNY MONEY FOR AUCTION
• GUEST DJ's:
PAIGE GANTZ & MARK LACY
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT...
KITE'S
BAR AND GRILLE
18 to enter 21 to drink - 619 N. 9th St., Aggieville, 539-9794

Heyward to present AIDS lectures today

By The Collegian Staff

Dr. William Heyward, chief of international activities in the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome program at the Centers for Disease Control, Atlanta, will present two lectures today.

Heyward will participate in the University Convocation Series at 10 a.m. in McCain Auditorium, speaking on "The Global Pattern of AIDS." His second lecture, scheduled for 4 p.m. in Ackert 221, will focus on "HIV-2 Infection in West Africa."

A question and answer session regarding his convocation will be at 1:30 p.m. in Union 207.

Heyward received his medical degree from the Medical College of Georgia and his master's in public health at The Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. He assumed leadership of the AIDS program in 1987.

Don Seedle, assistant professor of public health and chairman of the KSU Communicable Disease Committee, said Heyward is respected for the tremendous research he has completed.

"Dr. Heyward is recognized as an expert in the field of AIDS," Seedle said.

Slattery proposes Medicare hike

By Jenny Reschke
Collegian Reporter

"The integrity of this great nation's health care delivery system is in jeopardy and we need to face up to the fact that the Medicare payment system is partly to blame."

—Jim Slattery
U.S. representative

Legislation introduced last week by U.S. Rep. Jim Slattery would increase Medicare payments to hospitals when a patient receives treatment for more than one illness.

"I'm concerned that hospitals are often unfairly penalized for the severity of illness of the beneficiaries they serve. The purpose of my legislation is to allow hospitals to recapture the costs for services provided to patients who are admitted under one illness, but treated for other medical conditions," Slattery said in a prepared statement.

Under the current reimbursement system, a hospital is generally reimbursed for the cost of treating a Medicare beneficiary's original illness. In many cases, patients require additional treatment that is not absorbed by the hospital or passed on to other patients.

Manhattan hospitals would directly benefit from this program, said Celeste McAleese, Medicare clerk at Memorial Hospital.

"It has to help. Currently, Medicare pays under a Diagnostic Related Grouping, which means we're (the hospital) paid 'X' amount, say $500, for the diagnosed illness," McAleese said. "If the hospital bill turns out to be $2,000, we have to write off the $1,500 difference."

Slattery's press secretary, Ken Murphy, echoed McAleese's concern.

"Hospitals try to cover these losses by spreading the cost out among the other patients," he said.

Slattery's legislation is the direct result of a visit to the Clay County Hospital earlier this month. Officials at the hospital said the Medicare program's hospital payment should reflect the more expensive DRG for which the hospital provides treatment.

Murphy said because Congress is pushing for adjournment this week, this legislation will probably be referred to committee and dealt with by the 101st Congress.

"You've got to get your ideas into the hopper. Hopefully, the committee will schedule it for next year," Murphy said.

If the legislation proceeds to hearings, members of the Clay County Hospital staff may be asked to testify before committees, he said.

"One-third of the nation's 5,000 hospitals are currently operating from a deficit. Obviously, something is wrong," Slattery said.

"The integrity of this great nation's health care delivery system is in jeopardy and we need to face up to the fact that the Medicare payment system is partly to blame," he said.

K-State Police buy car

By The Collegian Staff

K-State Police have upgraded one piece of their hardware for this year with the purchase of a 1988 Ford LTD Crown Victoria.

The switch to a larger car, as opposed to the mid-size vehicles previously purchased by the department, was made for a number of reasons, said University Police Chief Charles Beckom.

Police vehicles at K-State operate in an environment similar to that of a large city, Beckom said. A larger car's electrical system was needed to sustain the wear and tear placed on a vehicle which is started an average of 12 times during an operating day.

"We're actually adding four and five years service to a starter in one year," Beckom said.

An increase in size was needed to better accommodate the radio equipment and lights and sirens of police vehicles, he said.

Each car carries a multi-unit radio system, including a public address system and two sets of radio equipment. Also, a control panel for lights and sirens is included in the vehicle, he said.

"That takes up quite a bit of room," Beckom said.

It compares to installing six citizen's band radios in one car, he said.

Officers are also more comfortable in the larger interior of the Crown Victoria. The officer is thus more alert and focused on observing his or her patrol area, Beckom said.

Since the new vehicle has a V-8 engine, it should run cooler than the front wheel drive V-6 cars currently used by police.

Beckom said the department has had problems with a higher rate of oil breakdown in the older vehicles.

Before purchasing the vehicle, funds had to be set aside from the police department's agency account solely for the purpose of buying the new car. A set of specifications had to be drawn up describing the attributes of the vehicle desired.

The request to purchase a vehicle must then be made to the office of the vice president for finance and operations.

If approved by the vice president's office, the request is then sent to the Board of Regents' office in Topeka. Once the regents' office approves the purchase of the vehicle and certifies that the funds are available in the agency account to make the purchase, the specifications are sent to the Departmant of Administration in Topeka.

The administration department certifies that the specifications are not drafted too narrowly to inhibit bidding competition on the vehicle.

Student housing project OK'd unanimously by commission

By Angela J. Smith
Collegian Reporter

Manhattan City Commission Tuesday unanimously passed a request for $9 million in taxable bonds for a student housing project at the intersection of Claflin Road and Westport Drive.

The request is "crucial" to the University due to the lack of housing available to students, said Chris Curtin, representative of Curtin-Bowman Developers, builders of the housing project.

"K-State has an acute problem of housing for its students," Curtin said.

Bob Krause, vice president of institutional advancement at K-State, said housing will be a big problem for the University next year.

"We need 500 to 600 spaces next fall for students," Krause said. "If the community does not provide housing, the students will make decisions to go elsewhere."

Commissioner Kent Glasscock said K-State has a crucial need for off-campus housing.

"K-State is in a crunch and needs housing," Glasscock said.

"I think the project is a good one and one the community and the University will benefit from," Mayor Dave Fiser said.

Curtin said his developing company has to make its apartments bigger to lure students farther away from campus.

"You can't build a skinny unit far from campus, because when times are bad, the students will gravitate toward the campus," he said.

Curtin said students want to be able to walk to class, and since the apartments to be built at Claflin and Westport are not within walking distance of campus, they would have to be "different" to attract tenants.

The bond was passed with agreement to notify the Riley County Commission and the Manhattan Unified School Board of Education of the decision.

45 Years Serving America's Children
Support the March of Dimes
BIRTH DEFECTS FOUNDATION

HICKORY CHEESEBURGER
The Chef 111 S. 4th
½ fries & Coke $2.49
Tonight Only 10/19/88

Manhattan SHOE REPAIR
25% OFF
Rubber Overshoes in stock
Sale Ends 11/1/88
Open Tues.-Fri. 8-5:30
Thurs. 8-8, Sat 8-4:30
401 Humboldt, 776-1193
Wash Palace, (Shoe Drop)
Candlewood

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

KSU GRAIN SCIENCE CLUB
FLOUR SALE
Wednesday 1-4 p.m.
Shellenberger 220
•White Flour •Whole Wheat Flour
•Rye Flour •Pancake Mix

The Station
THE GREAT AGGIEVILLE STEAK-OUT
WEDNESDAYS, 5-10 p.m.

16 oz. SIRLOIN $4.99 includes steak fries & texas toast
8 oz. SIRLOIN $2.69 includes steak fries & texas toast
1115 Moro Street, Aggieville telephone: 776-0030

Tonight
Live—In Concert
9:30 p.m.
JOHN HAMMOND
Internationally renowned blues performer & recording artist. Over 20 albums to his credit including a performance on the Grammy Award-winning album "Blues Explosion."
at
608 N. 12th
Tickets available at the door
Hibachi Hut
539-9906
Kitchen will close at 8:30

BUSHWACKERS • THE FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday at 9
TONIGHT
Kenny Rogerson
Kenny is a Bushwacker's favorite. You may have seen him on MTV, HBO, or Late Night with David Letterman. He is a must for comedy fans and is being held over a 3rd night due to his popularity. He is proclaimed by Jack Carpenter, of the Manhattan Mercury, as our no. 1 comedian. Don't miss the laughs.
Next Wed.: UPC Coors Light Comedy Commando Joke Contest Prelims
(immediately following Comedy Inv.)
Reservations recommended but not necessary
10 oz. Top Sirloin $3.95
5 to 9
539-4321 531 N. Manhattan 539-9727

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment NOW!
Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10
Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You
8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

Two Locations to Serve You Better
1443 Anderson (Across the street from Nichols Hall) M—Sat 7 a.m.—9:30 p.m. Sun 7 a.m.—8 p.m. 537-2426
211 S. Seth Childs (South of Seth Childs Theater) M—Sat 11 a.m.—8 p.m. Sun 12 p.m.—8 p.m. 537-2411
SUBS N SUCH
Home of the Kitchen Sink
DAILY SPECIAL
6" sub 1—12 or 5—17, Medium Drink with your choice of one of the following Nachos w/cheese, chili, or vegetable soup
$3.95
For Your Information: Navy submarine cooks prepared sub sandwiches as a convenient and nutritious meal. The sandwich inlcludes ingredients from each of the four food groups. So, make your mom proud by having a balanced meal at Subs-n-Such.

The Eyes Have It

. . . yours can too at our Optical Dispensary
Drs. Price, Young, Odle, and Horsch
Optometrists
537-1118 1119 Westloop Place

Editorial

New York rape case raises racial tension

Few would believe the circumstances of the 17th century Salem witch trials could be repeated in the 1980s.

In Salem, prominent community members were accused of being witches by children who scarcely realized the implications. In New York, a 15-year-old girl named Tawana Brawley claimed she was raped last Thanksgiving. She was found in a plastic bag with dog excrement and racial epithets covering her body. In subsequent investigations, she claimed to remember being taken to a remote area and being sexually abused by several men, one wearing a holster and a badge.

Nearly a year later, after an extensive investigation by a New York state grand jury, no evidence could be found that showed Brawley had been sexually molested. In addition, evidence was found to support that Brawley placed the feces on herself and wrote the racial slurs found on her body. The grand jury also cleared a local policeman and district attorney of accusations that they were involved.

There are many problems involved in the Brawley case, but most of them should not be blamed on her. They are the fault of her advisers: the Rev. Al Sharpton, and attorneys Alton Maddox and Vernon Mason.

This trio of so-called supporters have done nothing but ruin the case for Brawley. By stirring up emotion through making unsubstantiated comments and advising Brawley and her mother not to testify before the grand jury, Brawley's representatives seriously impeded justice.

Both Mason and Maddox have made questionable comments about evidence for the case and have made slanderous remarks. Mason said "five kinds of sperm" were found on Brawley's body. In the investigation, no sperm was found anywhere on her body. Maddox made ludicrous, unsubstantiated remarks as well, saying New York Attorney General Robert Abrams engaged in sexual acts in front of a picture of Brawley.

Brawley and her parents allowed themselves to be used by Sharpton, Mason and Maddox as pawns and became victims because of it. Truly, if anyone was the victim of this episode, it has been the American people. For we will have to deal with the heightened racial tension caused by Brawley's "advisers."

Other Perspectives

Homecoming...

Purdue. Red bricks. Parking lots. Dripping kegs. Flaming marshmellows. The World's Largest Bass Drum.

And 30,000 people who used to attend classes here, but came back anyway.

Welcome home, alumni.

Glad to see you. Glad to see Purdue grads get jobs. Glad to see Purdue grads who look relaxed and who are actually enthused about attending football games. Glad to see Purdue grads make a lot of money, drive nice cars and get married.

Glad to see living proof that this brick pile won't necessarily radon us to death.

We wonder about these things sometimes.

Homecoming is an event for alumni — the opportunity we have to appreciate the money you have sent the University and the jobs you will give us when we graduate.

On any other day, you are our parents who send us greeting cards we never read because we shredded that part accidentally in search of the $10 bill hidden in the third fold.

But today, we open our doors to greet you. Allow us to move out of your way when you tour the new buildings and remember the old. Allow us to hand you a penknife to scratch your name on a wall. Let us show you where the money you have given us through Purdue has gone.

Tour our abundant construction sites and take some orange fencing home with you.

And while you're here, don't mind the police. They don't particularly care if the RV has blood stains where the headlights used to be. They won't try to sniff your breath as you bellow at the ticket takers — they'll be too busy shooting at students attempting to park.

And one day, the police will allow us the same liberty and never once accuse us of exaggerating.

Welcome home, alumni.

— The Purdue Exponent
Sept. 30, 1988

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Names have historical origin

"What's in a name? That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet."
— William Shakespeare, Romeo and Juliet

Commentary

SHEIKH FAISAL RAZZAQ
Collegian Columnist

The first time I was called by my so-called last name was in the U.S. Consulate in Karachi, Pakistan. My first reaction was that someone was calling my father, and I did not know why he would be called for the visa interview. I soon figured out the situation that they were talking to me; and here I am in the land of last names, middle initials and first names.

I remember that lonely evening three years ago when I had to shatter my beautiful name into fragments, when the K-State admission application made me do so. I grabbed my passport and realized that just Faisal Razzaq appeared on it. Without wasting any time, I put my father's name (which is often referred to as surname in Pakistan) as the last name and my given name as the first name. The bone of contention was that "Sheikh" was left out in the cold.

The point I am trying to make is that different cultures use different nomenclature of names. In other cultures, these names might not fit into neatly defined components.

Further, the importance laid on the different components of a name varies from one part of the world to another. In America, the most important name is the last name, while in Germany the first names often take precedence over the last names. In Pakistan, almost exclusively, the most stressed and widely used name to address a person, officially or unofficially, is the first name. In England, both patterns are found.

All names, whether they are first or last, came about through evolution; they did not fall from the sky. In fact, there is a branch of science called onomastics that studies names in all their aspects.

The last names, or more appropriately family names, came into extensive use in the 11th century. So it is safe to say that first names were always used. It is interesting to note that there have historically been some strict laws pertaining to naming a person.

In the West, the first instance when people were given the complete freedom to choose their names was during the French Revolution. Such a provision was repealed in 1803 because people were using sloppy names. Therefore, the names were restricted to "names of persons known from ancient history" and "names used in various calendars." This law still stands in France although it is hard to imagine if it is at all followed.

In case you don't like your name it is comforting to know that in America a person has a right to use and change his or her name as the person pleases, except for fraudulent purposes.

Most names, first or last, have some meaning or association or a story behind them. Some are related to membership in a particular tribe in the past or at present, quite a few relate to different professions, others signify the origin of a person and still others relate to religious belief, status and ideas.

In Africa, children are often named on considerations like whether they were born in the morning, in the evening or at night. The weekday or the market day of the birth may be another consideration. Other factors could be if the child was the first child, first male or first female in the family and so on.

By far the most homogeneity in naming is found in the Moslem societies. You can almost be sure that the name of a person adhering to the faith of Islam pertains in some way to the religion. For example, I was named after the late King Faisal of Saudi Arabia. My surname, "Razzaq," describes the giving nature of the God. And as my father tells me, the name "Sheikh" was given to the people who vigorously spread the religion of Islam and were considered authorities on religion in the Indo-Pak Subcontinent (which is now divided into India, Pakistan, Bangladesh and Burma).

It is really difficult to grab a dictionary, look up a person's name and rightly conclude why that person is named as such. If I were to look up the meaning of the last name "Marsh" in a dictionary I would probably find something like a tract of soft, wet land. This might lead me to conclude that such a person lived in a swamp. In actuality such a person can be a legendary Australian wicket keeper in the game of cricket or a well-paid college professor living in a decent location. Similarly, literal meaning of the last name "Fair" might suggest such a person to be fair, while my experience might suggest otherwise.

Pliny the Younger, a Roman author and administrator from the first century A.D., said, "I have said everything when I have named a man." I wouldn't go as far as Pliny did, but there is some reason to believe that names are a part and a result of history. A study of a person's name in historical perspective is likely to make one more confident and more aware of where that person is coming from.

Today, names, especially first names, are taken less seriously, and even less so in America. There is nothing wrong with that. After all, human beings are becoming more like generic products where brand names don't make a difference anymore. Today you can make anything out of your name, call yourself William, Willie, Will or Bill. As Robert Schumann, a German romantic composer of the nineteenth century, beautifully said, "There are two very difficult things in the world. One is to make a name for oneself and the other to keep it."

Giving blood good for everyone

Commentary

CHARLENE NICHOLS
Guest Columnist

Can you feel the excitement mounting across campus, the community, in fact all of Wildcat land? Some people attribute it to Thursday's Def Leppard concert, others think it must have something to do with Rolando Blackman's return to our fair campus, while yet others give the credit to the upcoming student government elections. Many of us, however, realize the true source of the excitement. Next week the K-State Bloodmobile will be here.

Yes, it's once again time for the semi-annual vein drain. Before you put this column aside for Bloom County and the personals, please give me a chance to explain why I'm out for your blood.

Most people who have never given blood imagine the experience to be more traumatic than it really is. Statistics show that no more than 5 percent of all donors have adverse reactions. But since we in Manhattan aren't wimps, I firmly believe that our percentage is much less. On the other hand, if this were Lawrence....

Some potential donors have real fears about giving blood, mostly concerning AIDS. No matter what you might have read in the latest tabloid, it is impossible to contract AIDS through donating blood. Many precautions are taken to prevent the spread of AIDS through blood donations.

Each donor goes through a number of screenings before actually giving blood. If any potential donor has symptoms of AIDS or is in a high risk group, that person is not allowed to donate. Also, because each needle is broken and discarded after its inital use, the threat to the donor of contracting AIDS is negated.

Enough of the negative. Donating blood is a positive experience. It can even be fun. (I know, you're thinking, "Yeah, about as much fun as finding out your blind date is the bearded lady or male human octopus from the local circus.") Honestly, there are a lot of really great reasons for being a donor.

In a random sample a few weeks ago, I asked some K-Staters what they enjoy most about the vein drain. The following are the most common responses I received.

* I wanted to add another one of those little red pins to my collection.
* It gives me a reason to sleep.
* I can read the Enquirer at the canteen.
* It makes my grandmother proud.
* Being a pint low gives me a great excuse to act really stupid.
* I like needles.
* Everyone else does it.
* My parents and friends paid me.
* It's the only gold card I'm eligible for.

The most common response? I really like the free donuts and orange juice. I'll leave it to you to decide which of these or other reasonshas prompted campus VIPs such as the K-State cheerleaders; Willie the Wildcat; Student Body President Troy Lubbers; Student Senate Chairman Doug Folk; Associate Dean of Student Life Susan Scott; and Associate Vice President for Institutional Advancement Pat Bosco to help out the cause. Better yet, ask them in person when you see them at the drive. Or perhaps you would rather chat with our honorary chairman, Lon Kruger, about his commitment to the drive.

Some of you are probably thinking that if you could, you'd definitely donate but you can't because of medical reasons. Don't worry, we've got something for you, too. To make our operations run smoothly, we need at least 15 volunteers at all times. These volunteers are responsible for helping donors to the canteen, serving donors donuts and orange juice and other duties too numerous to mention. A lucky few even get to carry bags of blood.

If you are one of the many people who care enough to either donate or volunteer, stop by the table in the Union this week between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. to register. The Bloodmobile will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday through Friday next week in the Union.

Editor's Note: Charlene Nichols is student co-chairperson of the Bloodmobile.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. All letters are subject to editing on the basis of space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced typed pages, and the author will be notified if it will run in order to be photographed.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 103.

College spokesmen push state funding

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Spokesmen for the Sedgwick and Douglas County boards of commissioners and the head of a community college urged a legislative study committee Tuesday to support elimination of out-district tuition and replace it with increased state funding for the two-year schools.

Willie Martin of Sedgwick County and Chris McKenzie of Douglas County said charges levied on counties whose students attend community colleges in other counties have become an onerous burden for taxpayers in their counties. They said the state should fund the community colleges just as it funds the regents universities.

Larry Devane, president of Highland Community College in northwest Doniphan County, said the community colleges favor abolishing out-district tuition, with the important stipulation that the state replace the revenue "dollar for dollar."

They testified before the Legislative Educational Planning Committee, which is considering recommending changes in the funding of the state's 19 community colleges.

The state Board of Education, which supervises the community colleges, is proposing to the 1989 Legislature that out-district tuition be phased out over a five-year period and that the state replace the revenue from the general fund. The board estimates it will take an appropriation of $2.1 million in Fiscal Year 1990 to start the phaseout.

Presently, the colleges and Washburn University of Topeka are financed by a combination of tuition charged students, local property taxes, state aid paid on the basis of credit hours students take and out-district tuition paid by other counties whose students attend the schools.

Currently, home counties of students from outside the county where the community college is located must pay $24 per credit hour the student is enrolled in.

In the case of Sedgwick County, Martin told the committee, the out-district tuition charges amounted to $849,723 last year and the county had to budget $907,291 this year to pay the anticipated cost, a 6.8 percent increase.

McKenzie said Douglas County paid $135,090 in out-district tuition for its students in 1987, and projects the cost at $155,833 this year, an increase of 15 percent.

Both Martin and McKenzie said their boards of commissioners are concerned because community colleges offer courses in close proximity to their counties, seeking to lure students away from Wichita State University and the University of Kansas with the attraction of lower tuition rates.

Ads before movies more common

By Stephanie Morrill
Collegian Reporter

The lights dim and you start to settle down in your seat with a large tub of popcorn, anxiously awaiting the start of a movie. Instead, you are confronted with an advertisement.

Advertising before movies, as well as the use of brand-name products in movies, is a growing field, said a spokesman for Universal Studios.

"The advertisements that precede movies are set up through national accounts," said Bob Howard, manager of the Westloop 6 Cinema.

"The companies who wish to advertise this way choose certain theaters in various parts of the country in which to advertise their products or services," he said. "Next, they contact the theater's home office. The home office then decides whether or not to accept the account.

"Each advertisement usually runs four weeks before being replaced or renewed."

"It's just another form of advertising," said John Mallon, manager of Seth Child Cinemas. "If the company wants to pay, the product or service can be advertised."

Companies that decide to place their products in motion pictures are choosing still another type of advertising.

Producers are trying to present a contemporary lifestyle through the use of brand-name products. Since these products are found in everyday life, they help to enhance the reality of the movie, said the Universal spokesman.

Although the cost of placing a brand-name product in a motion picture can vary considerably, many times a company will waive the fee in lieu of the promotion.

Companies that wish to place their products in movies must contact a product relations agency.

"If the company wants to pay, the product or service can be advertised."

—John Mallon movie theater manager

These people will talk to producers who will try to get the product properly placed in a movie.

The cost of advertising before a movie is hard to determine, since the companies must go through the theater's home office, which many times is located in another part of the country, Mallon said.

"The advertisements are not typically local ads, but national ads, since they sold through national accounts," Howard said. "Last year, Jeep Eagle was a big account with us. This year Dr. Pepper is advertising here."

Complaints about these advertisements are rare, Howard said.

"Seven years ago, we had one customer complain. Our policy is to never interrupt, or break a show for an advertisement," he said.

Students' opinions about the showing of ads before or inadvertently during a movie varies.

"I go to the movies to see a show," said Kelly Barber, sophomore in education, "not to watch advertisements."

"I really don't mind the ads since we don't usually get to the show early enough to see them," said Mary Schmidt, senior in finance.

New plans to modernize economy

By The Associated Press

BONN, West Germany — West Germany hopes to launch major new economic initiatives in the Soviet Union to cash in on ambitious plans to overhaul its economy, officials said Tuesday.

A $1.6 billion West German credit to the Kremlin signed this week has buoyed optimism among businesses in this staunch NATO ally.

"We believe that West Germany can play a leading role in making modernization possible in the Soviet Union," said Reinhard Krause, an Economics Ministry spokesman.

West Germany has long enjoyed good economic relations with Moscow, and remains its biggest Western trading partner despite declines in recent years.

Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's economic reforms have fueled interest in establishing closer economic and political ties, Krause told The Associated Press.

Officials in Bonn see broadening opportunities for more joint ventures and for increased West German participation in the consumer and supply sectors.

West German firms are involved in 13 joint ventures in the Soviet Union, and 35 more are under negotiation.

Trade between West Germany and the Soviet Union dropped from $10.30 billion in 1986 to $8.30 billion in 1987.

Pregnant . . .

and don't know what to do?

CALL BIRTHRIGHT

They'll help you make the decisions you will have to make. Help that is free, confidential. Help that is as close as your phone.

Call any time.

Free pregnancy test, confidential help.

537-9180

Manhattan Milling Co.

Purina Cat Chow
20 lb. bag—$9.99
Purina Hi-Pro
50 lb. bag—$17.50
Purina Field & Farm
50 lb. bag—$14.25
Purina Dog Chow
50 lb. bag—$14.50
Purina Puppy Chow
40 lb. bag—$18

Manhattan Milling Co.
107 Pierre St. 776-5271

WINTERIZATION SPECIAL

TIME TO WINTERIZE

$49.95

All Cars and Light Trucks

1) Flush Complete Cooling and Heating System
2) Replace with Fresh Anti-Freeze Mixture
3) Test System to 30 Degrees Below Zero
4) Check Heater Water Control Valve
5) Check Heater Control Cables & Blower Motor
6) Check Radiator Hoses & Heater Hoses
7) Check All Drive Belts
8) Replace Windshield Washer Solution/Deicer Solution
9) Check Windshield Washer & Wiper Operation
10) Inspect Windshield Wiper Blades
11) Test Complete System for Proper Operation

PLUS PLUS PLUS PLUS

FREE 2 Westloop Cinema Theatre Tickets with the purchase of a Winterization Special and a copy of this ad.

TOYOTA QUALITY
WHO COULD ASK FOR ANYTHING MORE!

MANHATTAN HONDA mazda TOYOTA
2828 Amherst Ave.
Seth Childs At Amherst
Manhattan 539-7441

539-5303

One number brings out the best at KSU

Now, at KSU, there's just one number to remember for fast delivery of pizza that's every bit as good as one you'd go out for.

Godfather's Pizza.™ Now you don't have to settle for anything less, anymore.

1118 Laramie
Aggieville

Lunch Buffet only $2.99
Present this coupon and receive ONE all you care to eat lunch buffet for only $2.99. Regularly $3.99 per person!
Monday-Friday, lunch time only.
Valid for up to 4 people.
Valid on dine-in only. Not valid with any other discount offers.
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU

Two Large Pepperoni Pizzas only $9.99
Present this coupon and receive TWO large pepperoni pizzas for only $9.99.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer. Limited delivery area. Add $1 for delivery.
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU

NON-Trivial PURSUIT

National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1988

1. Anheuser Busch had a total gross sale, in 1987, of $ _____?
2. According to a recent survey, what percentage of KSU students drink alcoholic beverages?
3. How many young people, ages 18-25, were killed in alcohol related accidents on Kansas highways in 1987?
4. The alcohol content of Vicks NyQuil is _____ proof?
5. What percent of all alcoholics are women?

Answers: (1) 9 Billion (2) 94% (3) 49 (4) 50 (5) 33%

All University Casino Night
Saturday, Oct. 22, 1988, 8 p.m.-Midnight
at Chameleons (in Aggieville)
FREE ADMISSION with KSU ID

Funded by City of Manhattan Special Alcohol Program Fund

ALCOHOL & OTHER DRUG EDUCATION SERVICE

VANDERBILT'S

ROCKY MOUNTAIN CLOTHING

Rockys and Romance . . . a Perfect Pair

NEW SHIPMENT

SPECIAL GROUP

$19.99

Compare to $29.95

VISA MasterCard

DOWNTOWN WAMEGO (HWY 99)
OPEN DAILY 9-8 P.M., SUN. 12-5 P.M. • 456-9100

Panel deals with safety, consumers

By Kendra Gensemer
Collegian Reporter

Food safety and consumer confidence in the industry were the main issues of a panel discussion Tuesday at the Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service annual conference at K-State.

"This session has been titled 'Natural Feed and Food Production' but in reality we are talking about the issue of food and feed safety and consumer confidence in our food delivery system," said Keith Behnke, associate professor of grain science and industry.

The natural food concept has really stuck in consumers' minds because today's consumer is a lot more educated about the industry, Behnke said, which has lead to a "strain in confidence in food safety."

Most consumers get information about the food industry from the media, said Martha Stone, associate professor of foods and nutrition.

Behnke said it would be difficult to find any country in the world with a more tightly regulated or controlled food industry, yet consumer confidence is being eroded due to the way that "food safety issues have been blown out of proportion by the press."

Stone said the industry has a responsibility to educate consumers by distinguishing truths from misconceptions.

Consumers expect absolute safety in the food industry, she said. But "absolute food safety is impossible, for there is virtually no component of our food supply that is without some risk to some segment of the population."

To expect food to be "absolutely safe" is to expect a person to be "absolutely honest," Stone said.

Consumer Reports tried to define "natural," she said. It stated that "natural" could refer to the character of ingredients (no preservatives or no artificial additives) or it could refer to minimal processing.

If the food industry returned to traditional "all natural" food production methods, many negative consequences would result, Stone said.

Some of those effects would be decreased agricultural production, decreased food shelf-life, decreased seasonal food variety, increased cost, decreased convenience, less nutritional value and a decrease in safety of food supply.

"There is a strong consumer demand for response by industry to lower caloric content in food, cholesterol levels, sodium (levels) ... equal to a demand for industry to remain competitive," Strong said.

Educating consumers would allow industry to grow with technological developments instead of trying to meet demands that originate from misconceptions, she said.

"We have the safest food industry in the world. People just don't believe it," said Ann Domsch, Rawlins County Cooperative Extension agent.

Behnke said universities need to be more "proactive" rather than reactive in food and feed safety issues.

"We need to have a strategic plan in place," to deal with problems before they arise, he said.

Several states in the corn belt have dealt with the aflatoxin issue in this way and it has prevented the problem from getting "blown out of proportion," Behnke said.

Panel Moderator Dave Schafer, professor of animal sciences and industry, agreed with one panel member that safety is not necessarily decreasing — testing sensitivity is improving.

State signs medical contract for inmates

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The state Department of Corrections has signed a $23.3 million, three-year contract with a St. Louis firm for medical services for its inmates, the agency announced Tuesday.

Correctional Medical Services Inc. will provide medical, dental and mental health care for all of the state's more than 6,000 inmates. The company and the department had agreed to sign a contract in September but spent about a month negotiating its final details.

Inmates have complained about the quality of medical care in recent legal actions against the state. In 1987, the U.S. Department of Justice strongly criticized the care at Kansas State Penitentiary in Lansing.

"Corrections administrators across the country have been exploring the use of qualified medical management and service providers for years," said Corrections Secretary Roger Endell.

CMS currently provides services for about 54,000 inmates in 83 corrections institutions in 17 states.

Flora: Rural areas not favored by economy

By Susan L'Ecuyer
Senior Staff Writer

The solution to revitalizing rural Kansas communities appears to lie in self-development and entrepreneurial enterprise, said Jan Flora, professor of sociology, anthropology and social work.

The Center for Rural Initiatives is engaging in a study on self-development efforts and communities that have been successful with diversification, Flora said.

Flora and Charles Warren, president of Kansas Inc., participated in a panel discussion on "Rural Revitalization: Building Communities for the Next Generation" Tuesday at the annual Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service Conference.

Flora gave a report of the condition of small Kansas communities from 1979 to 1984. He said during that time, farmers in Kansas experienced a 30 percent decline in net farm income. By 1985, the federal farm program was providing more than 50 percent of total net farm income.

Although the 46 farming-dependent counties of Kansas experienced a drop in total income, the counties did not experience any large loss of population. Flora said the figures suggest those counties are becoming more diverse, although farming is still their major industry.

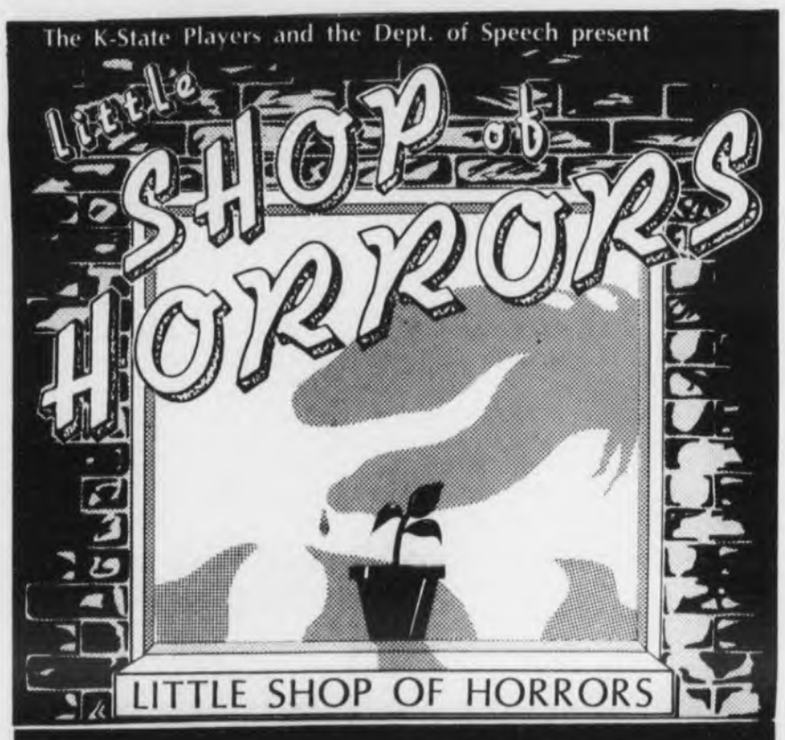
During the same period, Kansas communities experienced a shift in the rural manufacturing area, he said. While the size of many firms declined in several areas, the financial sector increased substantially.

Statistics also indicate an increase in the number of employees, but a decline in actual payroll, resulting in a "general decline in the quality of jobs," Flora said.

"The number of employees is going up faster than income," he said. "In manufacturing, the number of employees has declined even faster than payroll."

Transfer payments, which include old-age insurance (Social Security), medical and disability (Medicaid and Medicare) and income maintenance (welfare) increased 40 percent from 1979 to 1985. Flora said actual welfare payments decreased, but the other two increased, suggesting there are more older people in rural communities.

Warren said with the development of Kansas Inc., a partnership entity between the public and private sectors, the state's leadership hopes to confront the problem of rural communities and to guide economic development for the state as a whole.



"We're supposed to be a catalyst and a development group," he said.

One of the tasks of Kansas Inc. is to research different aspects of the rural problems, two of which are capital availability and the banking industry. Warren said these are major areas of concern for the organization.

"There is a lot of capital in the state, but it's leaving the state," he said. "Our banks are not loaning money." Rather, they are investing in such things as securities that take money out of the state.

Another area of concern is "service delivery," or a lack of awareness of community development programs and the subsequent need for technical assistance, Warren said.

Kansas Inc. targeted increasing state exports and attracting small manufacturers to the small communities as goals to revitalize the communities.

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present
Little SHOP of HORRORS

Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

R•O•Y•A•L
Portraits for Royal Purple
will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Goodnow– Oct. 17-19
Haymaker– Oct. 19-21
P•U•R•P•L•E

Disposable Contact Lenses
available at
Dr. Price, Young, Odle & Horsch
OPTOMETRISTS
537-1118 1119 Westloop Place

Manhattan Shoe Repair
25% OFF
Rubber Overshoes
in Stock
Sale ends Nov. 1, 1988
Hours 8:00 5:30 Tues.-Fri.
8:00-4:30 Sat.
8:00-8:00 Thurs.
Closed Sun. & Mon.
Drive-Up Conveinence
401 Humbodlt 776-1193

ARTS AND SCIENCES

STUDENT of the SEMESTER
Applications are now available in Eisenhower 113
Requirements and Qualifications:
Involvement in the College of Arts and Sciences, overall campus activities, GPA and a 200-word essay.
Due Friday, November 4
Tour the World of Arts & Sciences
KSU

LAST CHANCE
1112 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
776-0451
WEDNESDAY MEANS
$1.60
MARGARITAS
&
WELL DRINKS
ALL DAY & NIGHT!
★ ★
RELAX ON OUR FAMOUS
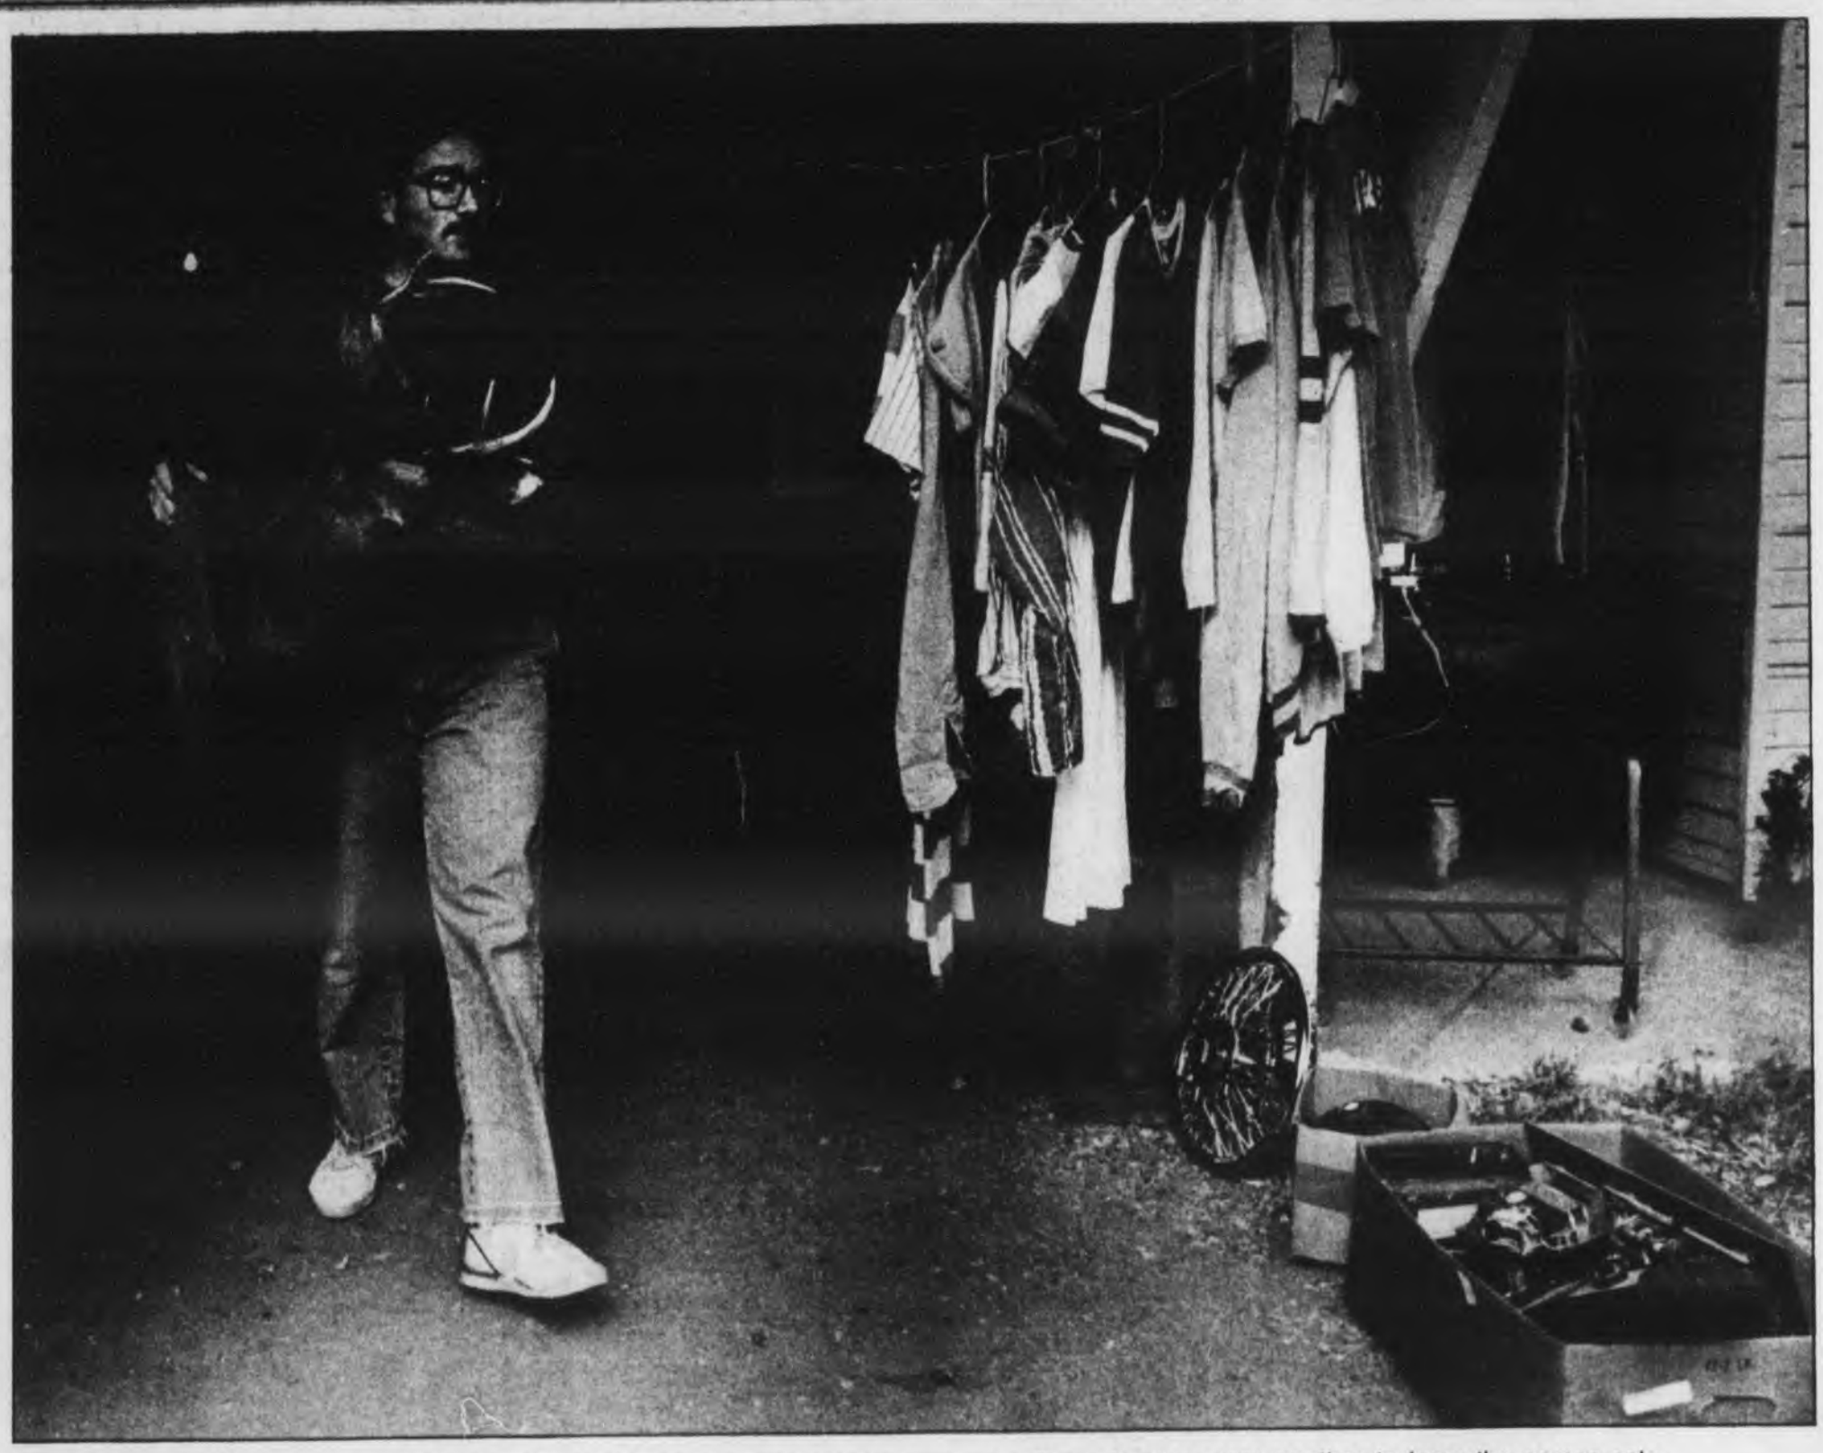
SANTA CLAUS PATIO!

McCain
auditorium
Vienna Choir Boys
Sunday, October 23
4:00 p.m.



The world's most beloved choir hasn't inspired delight since 1498 simply because they wear sailor suits and are adorable. They can sing! And sing they do: sacred and secular music, Austrian and American folksongs, even an operetta. Come, hear them, and find out why they've been captivating American audiences for 36 years.
"Full rich sound, superb intonation, and impeccable ensemble.... They put on a heckuva good show."
--Louisville Times
General Public: $15, 13, 10
Senior Citizens: $12, 10, 8
Student/Child: $10, 8, 5
Charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA at (913) 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5p.m. weekdays.
Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and ManhattanArts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at (913) 537-4400.
This program is presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

Falsetto's
PIZZA
When K-Staters ask the question "who do we call for great tasting Italian pizza?" the answer is always Falsetto's Pizza. We have a tradition with K-State for serving authentic Italian pizza which people keep coming back for. So, when your stomach tells you that it's time for pizza, give Falsetto's a call.
WE'LL GET IT TO YOUR DORM,
SORORITY, OR FRATERNITY
IN LESS THAN 30 MINUTES OR YOU GET
$3 OFF
with this coupon.
expires Nov. 1st.
WE DELIVER THE BEST
FOR LESS.
1127 Moro in Aggieville 539-3830

The Station
HAPPY HOUR BUFFET

WEDNESDAY &
THURSDAY
5:00-7:00pm
ALL YOU CAN
EAT BUFFET: $1
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

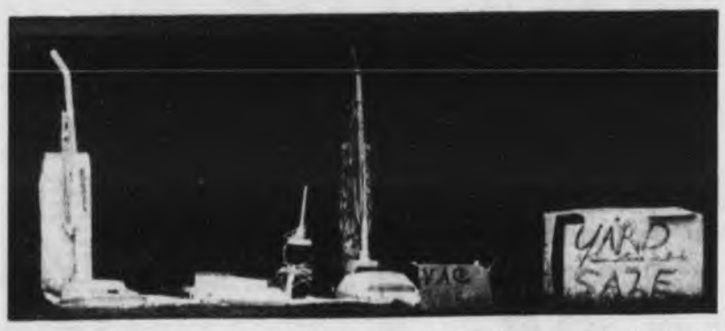
ESTABLISHED 1920
THE Stevensons CLOTHING COMPANY
PROBLEM:
"I need a suit for an interview but I can't afford to pay much."
SOLUTION:
Stevensons has appropriate interview suits starting at $195 in a wide variety of styles and colors. Our professional sales staff are trained as image consultants, to help you pick out the suit that's right for you.
We're Stevensons Clothing Company: the problem solvers.
1342 WESTLOOP PLACE • WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
MANHATTAN, KANSAS (913) 539-8081

Tony De Legge, of Manhattan, moves his mounted deer head to his yard for the garage sale. Three families went together to have the garage sale.

Garage sales

Students seem to accumulate a variety of things throughout their college careers. Things like homework, pens that don't work, textbooks that bookstores won't buy back, headaches, bills, grades, credit hours and lost weekends.

Some of these things can be thrown away and some have to be dealt with, but there are some things that are kept for no particular reason. These are the objects that slowly and suspiciously fill each person's living space and make it difficult to find the telephone directory.



These are the same things that evoke a sentimental feeling or stir an important memory. Like the baseball glove that was worn during that semi-spectacular catch made while in junior high. Or the Donny Osmond record collection that is reminiscent of the days when Ken went out with Barbie.

As people grow older, the objects that just couldn't be thrown away increase in number. Like a Ping-Pong table or that Twister game that used to come out for every slumber party.

After a few years of needless collecting, it suddenly seems as if there are more sentimental reminders lying around than pork chop bones at a family reunion. Soon those reminders begin a slow strangling of all useful space, a clogging of each person's very lifestyle. There is only one feasible solution for the procrastinating K-Stater — put off sorting the collectibles until after college.

That's fine and dandy, and it usually works. However, about the time a person is mortgaged to the gills for that first house, it becomes apparent that something must be done with all of those thought-stirring memoirs.

The stuff can't be given away. This is history, this is a life in a box, this is valuable merchandise! But it's now junk and in everyone's way, and it's looking more and more like a backyard bonfire would solve the problem nicely. Then those two words hit, the idea that should have been thought of in college when people were cheap enough to buy the stuff — and use it.

An assortment of vacuum cleaners and other items are in the front yard of a house on Bluemont Avenue, waiting for a buyer.

Garage Sale.

It's a great concept. People get to dispose of the junk without throwing it away, which somehow seems blasphemous.

There are many ways to organize such an event. Stack the stuff on the lawn one weekend and hope for the best, but that usually leaves the majority of the junk still in the garage. At least one K-Stater said the best thing to do is to band together with some friends who have the same problem and sell all the junk at once.

"There were three families involved at our garage sale," said Valeria Martin, junior in special education. "We don't hate doing garage sales except when it's slow, but on a $200 day it's not so bad."

"In one of our garage sales where we sold a saddle, we made $550," said Jan Hill, a Manhattan resident. "But usually we make around $200."

Besides all the advantages that come from selling unwanted items, people have a chance to purchase something useful or maybe even unusual.

"We've sold furniture, old clothes, stereos, a treadmill, baby beds and records," Hill said.

"This (sale) we just had, we tried to sell some deer heads," Martin said. "We were asking $35, but no one bought them."

Things that cannot be bought at garage sales, but can often be found there, are regulars. These are people who regularly go to garage sales looking for good deals or hard-to-find items.

"There are three couples I've seen coming to garage sales for years," Hill said. "There is one person who comes looking for records. We opened the sale at 7 a.m. and we had people there at 6:15 (a.m.) with flashlights."

A garage sale can be a profitable thing if merchants do a little planning. Thinking ahead and planning for every catastrophy will help it come off smoothly.

"No returns is my advice," Martin said. "Don't let them bring the stuff back. We were flipped out when someone brought a television back. Put up a little sign or something and it will save a lot of trouble."

So, if the memorabilia is piling up and the unused Monopoly games are getting in the way, it might be time to open the garage door and have a sale.

Valeria Martin, junior in special education, collects money from a shopper. Martin and her sister Pam De Legge went together for the sale.

De Legge stacks some of the old, used games and puzzles she and her sister have collected over the years.

Story by Steve Walker

Photos by John La Barge

'Black Monday' conditions same 1 year later

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

One year after Black Monday — Oct. 19, 1987 — when the Dow Jones Industrial Average of 30 industrial stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange dropped 508 points, many of the economic conditions which contributed to the crash still continue.

But the volatility in stock prices which contributed to Black Monday's selling panic, causing the sale of 604 million shares in that one trading day, does not appear to be present one year later.

The value of stocks is wrapped up with the perceptions of investors about the overall health of the economy, said Lloyd Thomas, professor of economics.

"I think there was sort of a realization last October that the stock market had gotten quite a bit ahead of itself," Thomas said. "It was overpriced.

"And at the same time, this buildup of debt, these huge deficits the federal government had been running, accompanied by our trade deficits with the rest of the world ... people started to perceive that's not a tenable situation ... there's going to be a crisis, there's going to be a problem," he said.

It is still difficult to pinpoint the exact cause of the crash, but one factor is clear, said Ali Fatemi, associate professor of finance.

"During the week preceding Oct. 19, there was a tremendous increase in volatility. Stock prices were up and down — and mostly down by percentages that were unheard of before," Fatemi said.

Three theories have been developed to explain the behavior of investors before, during and after the crash, he said.

In the first theory, investors, concerned by the high degree of volatility in stock prices, decided during the weekend before Black Monday to sell their stocks and place their money into stable investments.

"Therefore, there was a lot of stock for sale, not too many people wanted to buy, so we go to Oct. 19 and there is this tremendous decline in stock prices," Fatemi said.

A second theory attributes the crash to the actions of a few large investors who are prominent in the trading of portfolio insurance.

"Portfolio insurance is a fancy name for taking steps to protect the value of the stock portfolio in case the market moves against you.

"If you have a portfolio of stocks," Fatemi said, "you offset that portfolio with an investment in futures. If there is a decline in the value of the portfolio, there is a corresponding increase in the value of futures."

According to this theory, as the market declined, prominent investors began selling off stocks to move their money into the futures market, leading to a selling panic.

"The question arises, why would these people want to destroy the very same thing they strive to create — that is, wealth. In a matter of a few days, one-third of the value of all corporations, which stocks represent, was destroyed by the crash," Fatemi said.

The third theory states that the crash is explained by the near-panic conditions which existed on the market during Oct. 19 and 20.

"Some of that can be explained by the presence of rumors — unfounded rumors — that persisted or surfaced on the 19th and the 20th," Fatemi said.

Panic continued because traders did not have accurate information on which to base their trading decisions, he said.

Thomas said the speed of the decline in stock prices was due to institutional and technical changes made at the New York Stock Exchange.

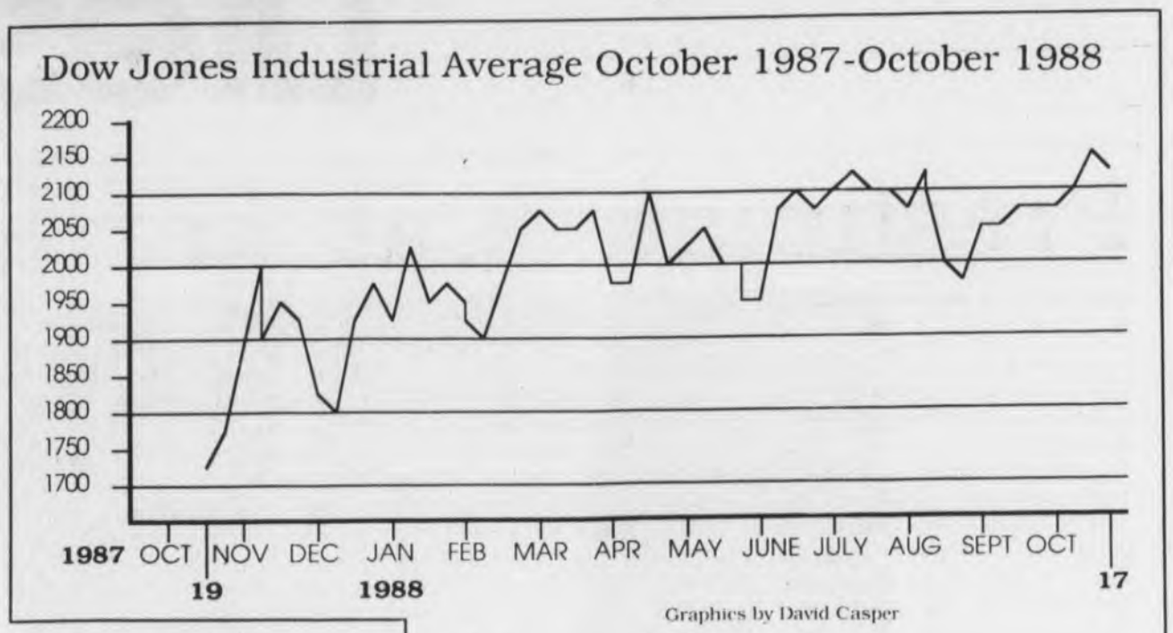
"The surprising thing is — in the past it has never corrected itself in one day. Usually it goes down over a period of months. This time it made its correction in one or two days," he said.

The crash of '87 differs from the crash of 1929 because of the different responses made by the government to the crash and in the months following it, Thomas said.

Following the crash of 1929, the United States, like other nations around the world, introduced protectionist legislation. Laws like the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act of 1930 prevented nations from replacing depressed domestic markets with foreign markets.

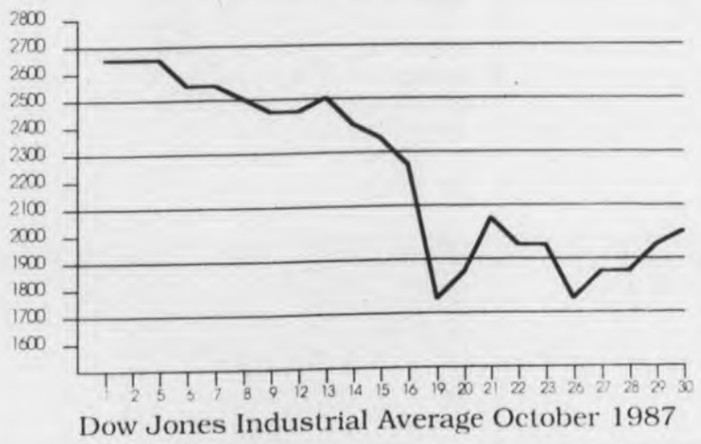
The stock market continued to decline from 1929 to 1933. Within four years, stocks had lost 90 percent of their value, Thomas said. Since last year's crash, a large amount of the value of stocks has been regained.

During the start of the Great Depression, the banks were subject to runs by customers, leading to a collapse of the banking system. The Federal Reserve System increased interest rates, thus limiting the size of the money supply, Thomas said.



But following Black Monday, "The Federal Reserve ... compensated for the stock market crash by being more stimulative, pumping money into the banks, bringing down interest rates, trying to head off a recession," Thomas said.

Also, due to the declining value of the dollar, the prices of American products overseas have declined, making them more competitive with foreign goods. This has allowed an expansion of the American export market, Thomas said.



In order to prevent a recurrence of the crash, the Presidential Task Force on Market Mechanisms, otherwise known as the Brady Commission for Chairman Nicholas Brady, released its report on the crash in January.

The most important of its four recommendations, Fatemi said, was a call for a single body, preferably the Federal Reserve System, to regulate the stock, futures and credit markets. Currently, each market is regulated

■ See CRASH, Page 13

Graphics by David Casper

Dow Jones Industrial Average October 1987

776-5577 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

Grace Baptist Church
Invites All International Students to a Potluck Dinner:
6:30 p.m., Friday, October 21
Pottorf Hall (CiCo Park)
Message by Bud Acord
Bus pickups will be made at:
6 p.m. at the Student Union front entrance
6:15 p.m. at the basketball court at Jardine

ON CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
BUSINESS-RELATED DEGREES
NW TRANSPORT, THE TOP RATED QUALITY SERVICE LTL FREIGHT CARRIER IN THE U.S., WITH 29 CONSECUTIVE YEARS OF PROFITABILITY AND REVENUES OF OVER 185 MILLION, IS SEEKING GRADUATES WITH BUSINESS-RELATED DEGREES. WE OFFER A STARTING SALARY OF 22K THAT QUICKLY RISES TO OVER 27K IN 12 MONTHS. ONE ASPECT OF OUR UNIQUE BENEFIT PACKAGE FEATURES 100 GALLONS OF FREE GASOLINE EACH MONTH. INITIAL ASSIGNMENT WILL BE IN DENVER, COLORADO, WITH RELOCATION AFTER ONE YEAR. TO LEARN MORE ABOUT NW OPERATIONS, PLEASE ATTEND OUR INFORMATION SESSION AT:
OCTOBER 27, 5 p.m.
K-STATE UNION, ROOM 213

You Can't Pay More than $44.95!
Complete Eyeglasses
SINGLE VISION $24.95
BIFOCALS $34.95
Our only Extras: Cox Coating (scratch guard)-$10 and Photo Grey Extra (lenses that darken)-$10.
Payless Optical Outlet
1210 Moro. Manhattan
537-1574
M-F 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

FIRST TIME in history of KSU
the Muslim Community Assoc.
PRESENTS:
SUNNAH:
THE SECOND LEGISLATIVE OF ISLAM
by HAMED GHAZALI
Third lecture in a series of lectures
designed for NON-MUSLIMS
7:30 p.m.
Wed., Oct. 19, 1988
Big Eight Room, K-State Union
Refreshments served

BELIEVE IT!
CHRISTINE'S HAS GOTTEN EVEN BETTER!
Announcing the opening of a bigger and better full-service Bridal, Tuxedo, and Party-Wear store.
CHRISTINE'S THE WEDDING COMPANY
Now at a NEW LOCATION!
—1223 Moro—
776-7387
Mon.-Fri. 10-5:30
Thursday till 8 p.m.

Draw on Your Talents
•Wanted: A Graphic Artist with MacIntosh skills to create graphs and graphics for the Collegian newspaper
Call 532-6555
for more information

Freshman 'Cat harrier makes big impact

By Chris Hays
Sports Writer

K-State cross country coach John Capriotti must think he is experiencing deja vu.

In May, Capriotti lost four-time track and cross country All-American Jacque Struckhoff to graduation, but suddenly it seems he has been blessed with a reincarnation of sorts in the form of former Onaga High School runner Janet Haskin.

"You couldn't find another runner who resembles Jacque so closely," Capriotti said. "It's kind of ironic. Janet came in when Jacque had just left — I don't know ... it's like someone blessed us with another one."

In her first three collegiate meets, Haskin finished first, second and third, respectively.

Haskin's most impressive performance was Saturday at the Cal Poly Invitational. She overcame all of the butterflies in her first big meet to finish third in the 180-runner field.

"I never thought that I even had a chance to get in the top 10 in a meet like that," Haskin said. "I knew I was running against some real good runners, and that was the biggest meet I have ever run in.

"It was quite a change from what I'm used to. Most of the meets I ran in high school had about 10 runners."

Haskin is not a typical suburban-America athlete. A native of Onaga, which is 45 miles northeast of Manhattan, Haskin was definitely not exposed to the competition that she has encountered in her first three meets as a K-State harrier. And, for that reason, Capriotti said he is all the more encouraged by her performances.

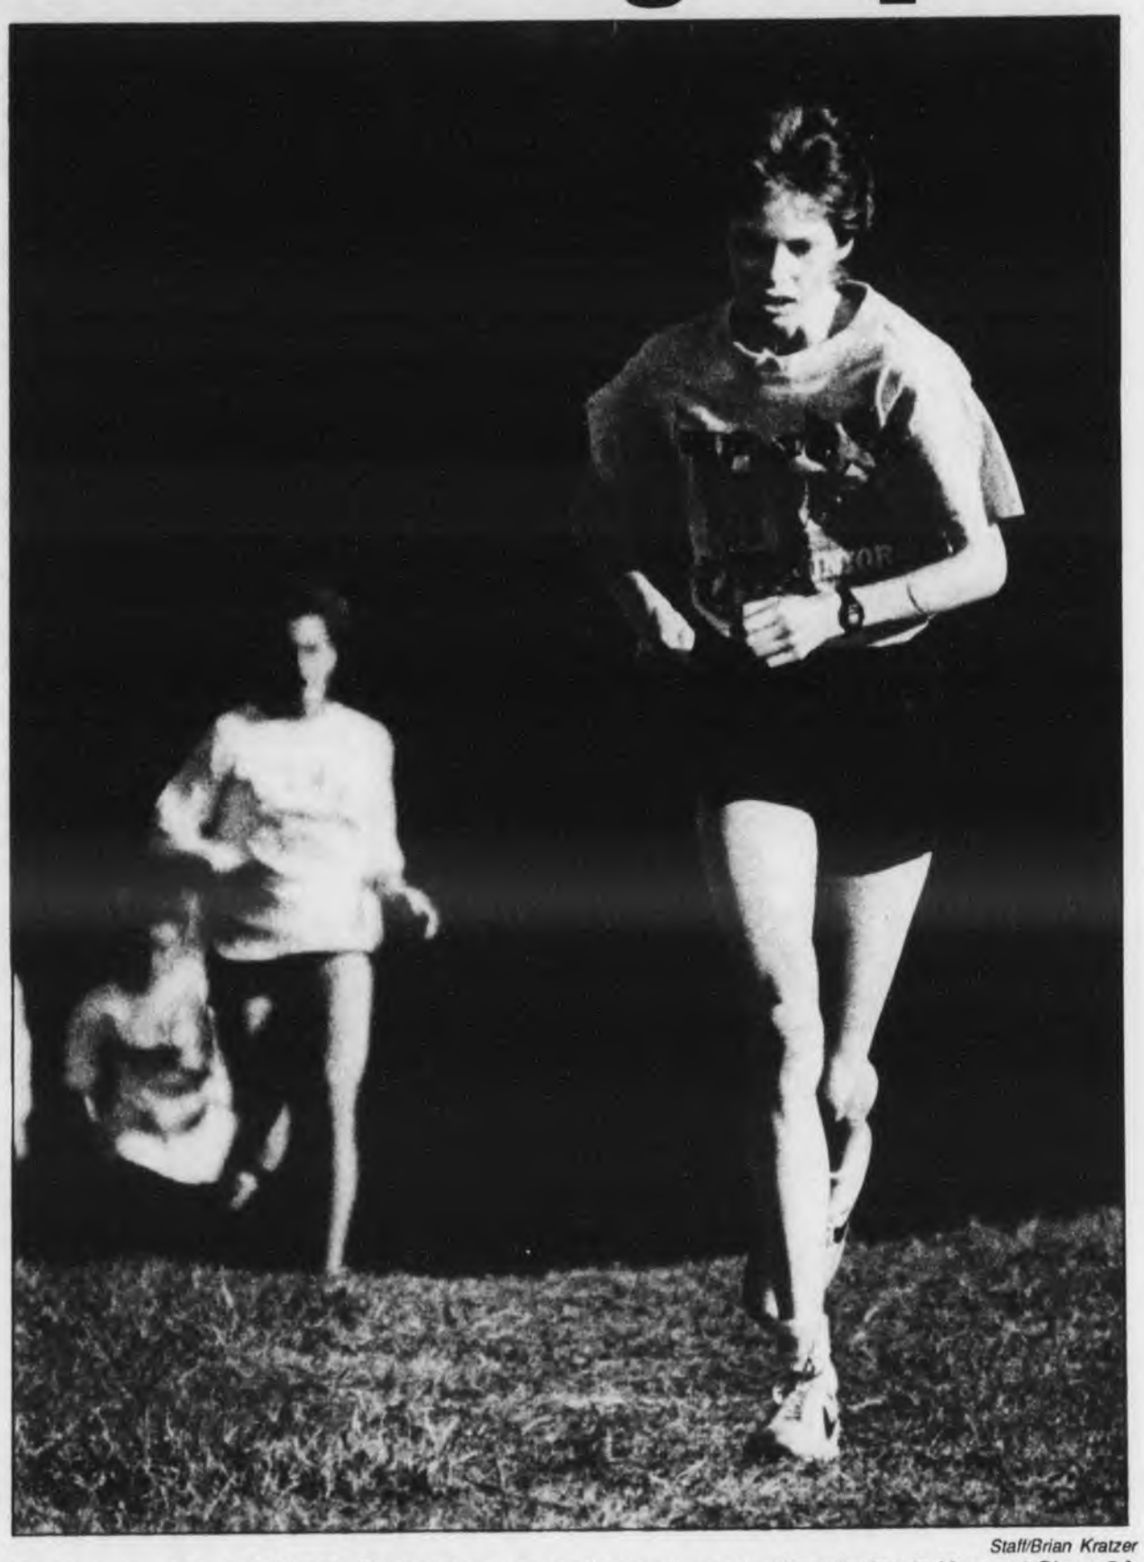
"I'm not surprised at all by her performances," Capriotti said of his No. 1 runner. "She had good times and that's why we recruited her really hard. But being from a small school like that makes her times even better because she really hasn't had any exposure to big-time competition."

"Sometimes I think I have only one gear."
—Janet Haskin, K-State harrier

It may be unfair to compare Haskin to an athlete such as Struckhoff, but it's hard not to, Capriotti said.

"It seems they have come out of the same mold," he said. "Janet really compares to Jacque. They have the same personality, they're both hard workers in the classroom and they're also really talented runners.

"(Janet) is such a great girl to coach. She wants to do anything we tell her just to get better. Sometimes, though, we have to hold her back. That's her one fault — she wants to hammer (go all out) every day in practice."



"Sometimes I think I have only one gear," Haskin said. "It's just hard to run easy after a hard day. You just think that you're not getting anything out of the workout."

Capriotti said he has big plans for Haskin. He also thinks that once he gets to know the freshman standout, he'll be able to relate better to her — which in turn means better results from both the running and coaching aspects.

"To sum it up, we have to take our time with her and not try to do it all in one year," Capriotti said. "She has a lot to learn, but there's no doubt she has the physical and psychological ability to be very successful."

Staff/Brian Kratzer
Freshman Janet Haskin, a standout performer from Onaga High School, is in her first year as a K-State cross country runner.

Staff/Brian Kratzer
Haskin runs up a hill at Warner Park during a one-mile practice run. After placing in Kansas' Class 2A cross country and track meets, Haskin has placed in the top three in her first three meets for K-State.

McGwire's late homer lifts A's past Dodgers

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Mark McGwire hit a solo home run with one out in the ninth inning as the Oakland Athletics finally broke through and beat Los Angeles 2-1 Tuesday night, cutting the Dodgers' lead in the World Series to 2-1.

McGwire fouled off three 2-2 pitches before lining a drive over the left-center field for his first hit in 10 World Series at-bats.

The blow came against Jay Howell, making his first appearance since his suspension for using pine tar in Game 3 of the National League playoffs. It was the first home run Howell had given up to a right-handed batter in 112 at-bats this season.

The Athletics managed just five hits, but McGwire's homer was the difference in a game in which Oakland's bullpen did the job.

The Athletics escaped a bases-loaded, no-outs jam in the sixth inning and Rick Honeycutt allowed one hit in the final two innings for the victory. Howell entered in the ninth and retired Jose Canseco on a popup before McGwire homered.

The Dodgers will pitch Tim Belcher in Game 4 Wednesday night against Dave Stewart in Game 4 Wednesday night, a rematch of opening-game starters.

The home team has now won 13 straight games in the World Series.

The Dodgers blew a chance to break the game open in the sixth when they loaded the bases with no outs but failed to score.

Danny Heep's double, John Shelby's single and a walk to Mike Davis finished Bob Welch, who had never lasted beyond 2 2-3 innings in four postseason starts.

The Oakland bullpen, the most effective in the majors this year, did its job. Left-hander Greg Cadaret stopped lefty Mike Scioscia on a foul popup and right-hander Gene Nelson got Jeff Hamilton on a force at the plate and Alfredo Griffin on a grounder to first.

Kirk Gibson, the Dodgers' pinch hitter deluxe in Game 1, was not employed this time, even though Los Angeles was at the bottom of its batting order.

The Dodgers' injury problems worsened as starting pitcher John Tudor and right fielder Mike Marshall each were forced from the game.

K-State's new football coach should be in office by Dec. 1

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

K-State Athletic Director Steve Miller is determined to have football coach Stan Parrish's replacement in the office no later than Dec. 1.

Miller believes the search for a quality coach to take on the K-State football program will not be difficult.

"I think it's going to be extremely easy to fill the position," Miller said. "First of all, we have a remarkable leg up on (other universities) because we are the first Division I school in the country to have an opening. Number two is we are going out and aggressively pursuing an individual. Number three is that coaches have enormous egos. Everyone thinks that they can go out and do it, and what better challenge is there in football than to be the head coach at K-State?"

A 12-member search committee will review applications until Nov. 7, before choosing several finalists by the 15th.

The committee, of which Miller is the chairman, includes members from the University as well as across the state. The members are: John Capriotti, K-State track and cross country coach; Bob Krause, vice president for institutional advancement; Troy Lubbers, student body president; Mary Molt, chairwoman of K-State's intercollegiate athletic council; Dr. Max Moss, K-State alumnus; Bob Snell, K-State faculty representative; Gary Spani, K-State All-American and retired Kansas City Chiefs football player; Veryl Switzer, associate athletic director and assistant vice president for student services; Dan Upson, K-State alumnus and Big Eight Conference Officials' Observer; Jack Vanier, K-State alumnus; and Paul VonNostran, president of Manhattan Steel and Pipe.

"(The committee) represents a diverse group across campus and the community," Lubbers said. "As a committee, we brought up a lot of different ideas about what we should look for in a coach. Basically at this stage of the game we're just setting up the criteria to be used, and then we'll start collecting names."

Parrish announced his resignation Oct. 3 after the Wildcats 31-28 Homecoming loss to Louisiana Tech. The first committee meeting on Oct. 11 focused on the basic guidelines that would be used to fill the position.

"I think when we sat down and went through the criteria ... we established several things, most of which are fairly obvious," Miller said.

"You obviously want someone in there with football expertise, you want someone who can communicate ideas, you want someone who is visible within the community.

"Many of those items are standard. What we want, that might be fractionally different, is that we think we are not as overly concerned about that football mentality, as far as 'Xs and Os,' as we are about that person being an outstanding recruiter, an outstanding communicator and a person with great rapport with the community, as well as throughout the state.

"We think that it is very hard to talk about what you're going to do to compete in the Big Eight Conference if you're experience is not of that caliber," he said.

"I think it is something that is very challenging and very positive, with the potential to have a great outcome. So, I'm very excited about that possibility," he added.

Even though Miller refuses to release any names, he did say there are some notable nominations.

"So far, of the people we have talked to, we have a candidate who has been stronger than the others at this point, but we are aggressively pursuing some others," Miller said.

Bramlage passes test; what about the 'Cats?

Mid-Week Commentary

TOM PERRIN
Sports Columnist

Any questions about the noise level in Bramlage Coliseum were answered during Friday night's "Midnight Madness" scrimmage. The place was plenty loud and has the potential to be the "pit" of the Big Eight Conference.

The next question is whether this year's K-State men's basketball team is going to give fans much of anything to cheer about. Four starters from last year are gone, but somehow I think the 'Cats are going to be OK. Maybe not 25-9 and second in the Big Eight, but still a solid team.

Point guard Steve Henson is a proven player, as are forwards Fred McCoy and Mark Dobbins. If forward Lance Simmons can come back from a knee injury as scheduled in about a month, it would give K-State four players with considerable Big Eight playing experience.

Outside those four, though, the 'Cats will be very, very green. As was the case in Coach Lon Kruger's first year at K-State, new junior college transfers will be counted upon heavily. At least one of the group of three transfers will probably end up starting, with the other two likely playing major roles.

Two years ago, Mitch Richmond, William Scott and Charles Bledsoe all stepped right into the starting lineup and the 'Cats started the season strong, looking nothing like a team that hadn't played much together. Henson was another new player during the 1986-87 season who represented a complete overhaul of the then sagging Wildcat program.

That a team with so little talent returning could finish 8-6 in the Big Eight and make it to the second round of the NCAA tournament is remarkable. Expecting this year's team to respond in a similar manner would be unfair.

In fact, expecting anything more than an average start from the 'Cats, who play NCAA tournament teams in four of their first five games, is asking a bit much.

Having Henson back as point guard to help the new players ease into their roles is a major asset for the 'Cats. If there's one position where experience really pays off, it's point guard. A point guard who knows the team's offensive scheme well and can be a coach of sorts on the floor is a plus.

Aside from Henson and Buster Glover, no other prospective guards have played much Division I basketball, if any. Glover definitely won't play for the rest of the semester and will only play in the second semester if he can perform to Kruger's satisfaction in the classroom. His ridiculous disappearance this summer was unfortunate, not only for his family, but for K-State as well.

Without Glover, either 6-foot-1 junior college transfer LaKeith Humphrey or 6-1 sophomore Todd Stanfield may start alongside Henson, unless a small forward changes positions.

Since K-State could be a bit thin at the forward position, the play of junior college transfers 6-6 Reggie Britt and 6-5 Billy Ray Smith will be important. One or both of them may need to be a double-figure scorer by the time the season ends, especially if Carlos Diggins' knee problem acts up. If Diggins is healthy, he could develop into a 12-plus points-per-game scorer.

Rebounding may be even more crucial to the 'Cats than scoring. Without a player over 6-9, rebounds are going to have to come from somewhere. At 6-8, transfer Tony Massop looked strong in the scrimmage, but he is yet another roster player who has never played Division I basketball.

How much the new players can contribute will be the main factor in K-State's success. Considering the way new players led the 'Cats to the NCAA two years ago, there's nothing wrong with high expectations. Just don't expect those good things until about halfway.

McCain ticket prices higher than peers'

KU's Hoch Auditorium allocated more than K-State arts council

By Steve Walker
Staff Writer

The McCain Series has brought fine orchestras, plays, musicians, bands and singers to K-State, but because of funding problems, ticket prices here are higher than at some peer institutions.

Student funds are allocated by the Student Senate to McCain through the Fine Arts Council.

The University of Kansas' Hoch Auditorium Series is allocated $84,656, compared to McCain's $2,912, according to KU and K-State Student Senate figures for 1988.

The average student ticket price in the orchestra section at Hoch Auditorium is $5, while the same ticket at McCain costs an average of $10.46.

Students subscribing to the entire 14-event McCain package could have purchased upper balcony tickets at 50 percent off until Aug. 26, making the average about $4 per ticket.

"Student Senate underwrites a large portion of the budget," said Richard Martin, director of McCain Auditorium. "More slices come out of the Student Senate support than might meet the eye."

There are many organizations in the Fine Arts Council that depend on that allotment, Martin said.

The $71,930 allocated to the Fine Arts Council goes to the Department of Art, the Department of Physical Education, the Dance Program, the College of Architecture and Design, Ebony Theatre, Minority Cultural Programs, choral/opera, band/orchestra, K-State Players, summer artists and summer repertory, as well as McCain.

"People want to see the best when they come to McCain and we have an obligation to bring these people here."
—Richard Martin director, McCain

"We (members of the Fine Arts Council) have to pull together," Martin said. "We hope to persuade Student Senate to fund us all, not just McCain, at a higher level."

The amount of money in the Fine Arts Council total budget is only a little more then it takes to finance an attraction at McCain, said Robert Kruh, adviser to the Fine Arts Council and assistant provost to the University.

"McCain attractions get more and more expensive and the ability and the willingness for students to pay for tickets is a problem," Kruh said.

"An orchestra that cost $15,000 to bring to K-State in 1980 now costs $60,000," Martin said. "A big name artist that used to cost $20,000 now costs $40,000."

"People want to see the best when they come to McCain and we have an obligation to bring these people here," Martin said.

The Fine Arts Council presents a proposed budget to the Student Senate Finance Committee, which then proposes modifications on the budget to the council.

After the council and the committee agree on a proposed budget, it goes before the Student Senate for the final vote.

"(The Fine Arts Council) needs to start a grass-roots awareness of their funding problem," said Troy Lubbers, Student Body President. "It's how you get a Rec Center or a Fine Arts Council in the first place. Someone perceived a problem and started public awareness and eventually got what was needed."

Martin said, "It is doubtful the money needed for McCain will come from the state or foundations. There may be some corporate support and I would like to see more student support."

Student concern about high ticket prices has been shown, said Mary Jo Lampe, Senate Operations Standing Committee Chairwoman.

"Usually a fee increase is looked upon negatively by the student body," Lampe said. "The movement needs to be instigated by an outside source like students (who are) concerned about McCain, the community, McCain or McCain supporters."

"People don't understand that we in the arts have worked hard for the past 2,000 years to keep the arts mysterious and magical," Martin said. "Maybe we haven't come out and told the hard reality that we need support too."

Fine Arts Council - Kansas State University

	$ Allocation 86-87	Proposed $ Allocation 87-88	Requested $ Allocation 88-89
Art	2,298	2,383	4,430
Arch./Design	2,298	2,383	4,000
Dance	2,298	2,383	5,000
Ebony Theatre	817	848	2,014
McCain	2,809	2,912	2,912
Minority Cultural	5,756	5,969	5,969
Choral/Opera	9,711	10,070	10,070
Band/Orchestra	8,402	8,713	8,712
K-State Players	19,475	20,196	20,196
Summer Artists	3,278	3,400	3,400
Summer Rep.	5,048	5,235	5,235
TOTAL	$62,190	$64,492	$71,938

by David Casper - Graphic Artist

JACK IS BACK

Save 10% to 50%
October 15-22, 1988

SPELLbinders inc.
INNOVATIVE INTERIORS
ART APPAREL
Candlewood Center • 3230 Kimball Ave. •Manhattan
539-7657• Monday - Saturday: 10:00-5:00

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)

Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa

Park Place
apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951

BAKERY SCIENCE CLUB
BAKE SALE

TODAY
Shellenberger Hall, Room 105
3:30-5:15 p.m.

7th Annual
ΠΚΑ
1988 Lil' SISTER OLYMPICS

Wed. 9-11 p.m.
Fluffy Rabbit, Brother's Pizza Eating
Fri. 4-7 p.m.—
Ideal Greek Walk-through
Free Hamburgers, Brother's
Sat. 9 a.m.-Noon—
Final Day Games in South End of Ahearn

SPONSORED BY
JOIN US WITH COORS AT BROTHER'S IN AGGIEVILLE MONDAY, WEDNESDAY & FRIDAY
Coors · Pyramid Pizza · Sunflower Graphics · KSKT 95.3 fm Radio · Brothers

WHEN IT'S IMPORTANT TO K-STATE
ROD OLSEN WILL BE THERE
I WILL . . . lead the fight against Washburn!
. . . fight for full funding of the Margin of Excellence
. . . work for fair pay and full benefits for classified employees
. . . support initiatives of the Associated Students of Kansas to increase educational opportunities for students and help families meet future educational expenses.

I OWE NO POLITICAL FAVORS TO ANY ONE PERSON OR PARTY IN TOPEKA!
I HAVE WALKED THIS DISTRICT;
I HAVE HEARD YOUR CONCERNS. I WILL WORK FOR YOU IN THE KANSAS SENATE.

VOTE
Rod Olsen
★★STATE SENATE★★
Rod Olsen for Senate, Dick Green, Riley County Treasurer
Paid for by Committee to Elect Rod Olsen.

Old Textbook Sale

UP TO 80% OFF!
BOOKS AS LOW AS 49¢
•Hundreds of new & used textbooks
•Various fields of study
•Some previously used at K-State
•Some from other universities
•Old editions
•Wholesaler overstock

Don't pass up this great opportunity to add to your personal library at a fraction of the regular cost!

9-9 Mon.-Sat.
Varney's Book Store in Aggieville
12-5 Sun.

Sports music improves exercise

By Amy Bullock
Collegian Reporter

Improving an individual's exercise program by matching it with music is the purpose of a musical pharmacy created by James Sundquist, founder and president of the Medical and Sports Music Institute.

In 1986, Sundquist developed the concept of matching music tempo to one's own body tempo. The Institute is located in Eugene, Oregon.

"We make audio tapes that are specifically designed to match any individual's personal tempo during any exercise," Sundquist said.

The tapes are designed for anyone. Clients range from heart patients to professional athletes, Sundquist said.

"Heart patients are often told to exercise, so we've developed a tape that can allow someone who is recovering from a heart attack to just exercise their heart at the rate it is supposed to and not over exert," he said.

Betsy Sloan, Manhattan High School's women's basketball coach, uses music occasionally when a drill may need a fast pace or when her players are tired.

"We have a fast break drill that is real quick and music in the backqround tends to get them pumped up. We also use music when we're tired. It wakes everyone up and gets us motivated," she said.

Sundquist said he finds music to be an inspiration and a motivator, and that the tapes are created to be a support system for people who are exercising and for professional athletes who are in training. Performances can be bettered or at least an optimal level can be achieved through the use of audio tapes.

Taralyn Boller, fitness director for Ahearn Fitness Program, said music can be beneficial to anyone's exercise program.

"Music makes exercising more creative, fun and spontaneous. People are motivated by music, but the most difficult part is finding and making tapes because the tempo does need to be just right," Boller said.

Sundquist agrees that tempo is the most important aspect.

"For example, if one is exercising at 138 heartbeats a minute, that would be their optimal level of exercise, so we then have tapes that match an individual's tempo and also musical taste," he said.

Boller finds that a strong base beat selected from the Top 40 list of pop music tends to be the best motivator for exercising.

"People are familiar with Top 40. They hear those songs on the radio, so it is easier to get involved in the exercising because they know the words. Lots of times in aerobics, people will put their own motions to songs and it can be really fun," she said.

If the person exercising finds the beat of the music is ahead of their progress, then they are not exerting themselves enough he said. However, the tapes also help one not to over exert themselves.

"We've added a pacemaker for exercises. It helps people stay with it if they know its helping them," Sundquist said.

DuPont error cited in July water leak

By The Associated Press

AIKEN, S.C. — Poorly trained personnel and inadequate safety procedures were blamed for a leak of 375,000 gallons of water contaminated by radiation at the Savannah River Plant, a published report said Tuesday.

Officials with the Du Pont Co., which operates the nuclear weapons facility for the Department of Energy, also said an oversight caused underreporting of the amount of radioactive contaminant in the water released into a creek on July 8, The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle and the Augusta Herald reported Tuesday.

The amount of radiation spilled into the water was too small to pose a health or safety threat, officials said.

According to a Sept. 21 Du Pont report, the water was contaminated by 17 millicuries of Cesium-137, a waste by-product known to cause cancer. The report, obtained by the newspapers last week, said the 17-millicuries figure was based on data collected through July 22.

But officials had continued to collect data through mid-September, and those numbers weren't in the report. On Monday, Du Pont officials said the water was contaminated by 26 millicuries of Cesium-137.

A millicurie is one-thousandth of a curie, the unit used to measure radioactivity.

The unusual occurrence report was completed July 25 and revised Sept. 16. SRP spokesman Clif Webb said "the revisions should, or could, have included the change. It was an oversight. The data was available but it was not used."

Webb said the change did not make any difference in terms of public safety or health. The report had to be completed within three weeks of the accident, Webb said, adding it was later revised as additional information became available.

Chemicals' effects on water discussed

By The Collegian Staff

Research correlating agriculture chemical exposure to cancer is of major public concern, according to a speaker at the panel discussion on ground water quality during the Agriculture Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service conference Tuesday.

"Exposure to agriculture chemicals, through such means as drinking water, is now being compared to radiation exposure," said panelist Paul Schwab, assistant professor of agronomy. "Public concern is shifting to ag chemicals and pesticide use, so people must be properly informed."

"We Kansans have a great propensity to affect our environment, including our ground water supply," said panelist Jim Koelliker, professor of civil engineering.

Agriculture is the largest user of potentially hazardous contaminants, he said. Most pesticides and volatile organics haven't been around long, so their effects on ground water supplies are just now being discovered.

Ground water is used by 80 percent of Kansans as drinking water, and 25 to 30 percent of that ground water is contaminated with nitrate. Nitrate is the most widely distributed contaminant in ground-water supplies and can be transmitted through fertilizer or common pesticides, Koelliker said.

Dick Black, member of the Water Quality Task Force, attributes the confusion about agriculture chemical and pesticide effects on ground water to the variety of different chemicals on the market.

California is regulating the use and storage of agriculture pesticides, Schwab said. The Kansas Farm Bureau suggests that periodic pH, nitrate and solvent tests be performed on ground water.

"Whatever results come from the research, people must be educated on the voluntary and involuntary risks involved," Black said.

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

Community S.A.V.E. program would like to thank the following people for their hard work and volunteering their services in Valley Falls on Saturday, Oct 15, 1988:

Paula Schaller	Karla Johnston
Lynn Koenig	Stephanie Tryda
Phillip Koenig	Gerhard Shipley
Jenny Reschke	Doug Reaser
Concha Walker	Barb Houser
Mohamed Hirad	Bob Houser
Rob George	Paul Klaus
Tamara Slocum	Pam Klaus
Steve Johnson

Baseball Playoffs

Check your local listings for game times

•Draft Beer
•Hot Dogs
•Peanuts

UNIVERSITY INN
17th & Anderson Ave. • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

222 N. 6th
3011 Anderson
539-3226 776-5202

Super Food Barn
OVER 20,000 DISCOUNT PRICES

Store Hours
7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
7 days a week

SPECIALS

Coors Beer $4.99
12 12-oz. cans

Coke ..... 89¢
2 ltr. bottle

Jeno's Pizza ..... 99¢
10 oz. package

Carnation Hot Cocoa Mix ..... 99¢
10 count pkg.

Chub Pack Ground Beef ..... 88¢/lb.
5 lb. pkg.

Get The EXTRA ADvantage

We, at Accessories on the Park, have found the Collegian to be very effective in advertising the latest in accessories to Kansas State University and other readers." — Jan Ray (at left)
with

Kansas State
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING

reaching over 18,000 people daily
"your key to the campus"

101 Kedzie 532-6560

R • O • Y • A • L

Portraits for the Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., 1:30-5:30 p.m.
Sept. 6 through Nov. 11
K-State Union Room 209

Acacia — Sept. 6
Alpha Chi Omega — Sept. 6-7
Alpha Delta Pi — Sept. 7-8
Alpha Gamma Delta — Sept. 8
Alpha Gamma Rho — Sept. 8-9
Alpha Kappa Lambda — Sept. 9
Alpha Tau Omega — Sept. 9, 12
Alpha Xi Delta — Sept. 12-13
Beta Sigma Psi — Sept. 13
Beta Theta Pi — Sept. 14
Chi Omega — Sept 14-15
Delta Delta Delta — Sept. 15-16
Delta Sigma Phi — Sept. 16, 19
Delta Tau Delta — Sept. 19-20
Delta Upsilon — Sept. 20
FarmHouse — Sept. 20-21
Gamma Phi Beta — Sept. 21-22
Kappa Alpha Theta — Sept. 22-23
Kappa Delta — Sept. 23, 26
Kappa Kappa Gamma — Sept. 26-27
Kappa Sigma — Sept. 27-28
Lambda Chi Alpha — Sept. 28
Phi Delta Theta — Sept. 29
Phi Gamma Delta — Sept. 29-30
Phi Kappa Tau — Sept. 30
Phi Kappa Theta — Sept. 30, Oct. 3
Pi Beta Phi — Oct. 3-4
Pi Kappa Alpha — Oct. 4-5
Pi Kappa Phi — Oct. 5
Sigma Alpha Epsilon — Oct. 5-6
Sigma Chi — Oct. 6
Sigma Nu — Oct. 6-7
Sigma Phi Epsilon — Oct. 7, 10
Sigma Sigma Sigma — Oct. 10
Tau Kappa Epsilon — Oct 10-11
Theta Xi — Oct. 11
Triangle — Oct. 11-12
Boyd — Oct. 12-13
Clovia — Oct. 13
Edwards — Oct. 13-14
Ford — Oct. 14
Goodnow — Oct. 17-19
Haymaker — Oct. 19-21
Marlatt — Oct. 21-25
Moore — Oct. 25-26
Putnam — Oct. 26
Smith — Oct. 26
Smurthwaite — Oct. 27
West — Oct. 27-28
Off Campus (includes Jardine) — Oct. 31 - Nov. 11

Yearbook Associates is the official photographic portrait service for the 1989 Royal Purple. It is important to make your appointment as soon as possible so you won't be left out of the yearbook. There will be sign-up sheets available at the greek houses and residence halls soon after school starts. If you are a member of a sorority or fraternity, but live in a residence hall or apartment, please have your picture taken with your sorority or fraternity. Beginning Sept. 6, appointments may be made in Union 209 by calling 539-5229, 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Cost of the sitting fee for color proofs is $3.50 and may be paid in Kedzie Hall 103.

Please Bring Fee Card or Student I.D.

Yearbook Associates

P • U • R • P • L • E

Ohio governor demands shut-down

Processing plant gives off radioactive pollution

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste demanded Tuesday that President Reagan shut down a government-owned uranium processing plant until something is done to stop the radioactive pollution it produces.

The U.S. Department of Energy admitted Friday at a congressional committee hearing in Washington that the government has known of dangerous environmental problems at the Feed Materials Production Center since it was established in 1951, Celeste said.

The governor said he wrote a letter to Reagan demanding that the plant, located in Fernald about 18 miles northwest of Cincinnati, be closed. The plant processes uranium for use in nuclear weapons, which are made elsewhere.

The letter demands that the Energy Department, which owns the plant, pay for an independent evaluation of plant employees and nearby residents to determine how their health has been affected.

The governor also said the department should treat and stabilize radioactive thorium at the plant; begin a final cleanup of radioactive waste stored in two deteriorating concrete silos; and start identifying the contents of 200,000 containers of waste that have accumulated as a result of what the governor said is the department's negligent management of the plant.

Celeste and Richard Shank, director of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, said they believe the plant has been better managed since Westinghouse Materials Co. of Ohio took over its operation in January 1986. But they said they are concerned about more than 30 years of radioactive emissions into the atmosphere and into the water table.

The Energy Department admitted in January 1985 that faulty exhaust air filters at the plant had allowed the release of at least 200,000 pounds of radioactive uranium oxide dust into the atmosphere during the past three decades, including at least 3,000 pounds from 1980 to 1985.

Five people who live near the plant then filed a $300 million, class-action lawsuit alleging that the former operator, National Lead Co., was negligent in failing to prevent the uranium releases and that the releases contaminated property and may have caused health and personal injuries.

The lawsuit is pending in U.S. District Court in Cincinnati.

The Energy Department prompted the new furor by admitting in court documents that government officials had been aware of potential environmental problems at the plant, but still directed National Lead managers to proceed with uranium processing.

The state sued the Energy Department in 1985, charging it with polluting the environment at the 1,050-acre site. That lawsuit also is pending in U.S. District Court.

Celeste said the state, which tried to negotiate with the Energy Department for a cleanup, received no cooperation until the lawsuit was filed.

James Reafsnyder, the Energy Department's site manager, declined comment Tuesday and referred queries to spokeswoman Gail Bradshaw in Washington. She was unavailable for calls.

Strange

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

one crucial difference. Taiwan has only one party, he said.

The Nationalist Party has been in power since its leaders traveled to Taiwan from mainland China, Hsieh said.

He said if he was given an opportunity to vote, he would vote for Michael Dukakis.

"He stands on the side of the workers," he said.

Hsieh said he has a negative impression of George Bush.

"I tend not to believe anything he says," he said.

Alireza Rahimi, graduate student in economics, said the current presidential race is "just another campaign — somebody has to be elected."

Rahimi, who came to the United States from Iran in 1974, said the major difference in this campaign is that the budget deficit is a major problem.

"The Republicans are very confused," Rahimi said. "How can you reduce the deficit with increasing spending without raising taxes?"

Rahimi said anyone who has studied basic economics knows it is impossible to reduce the deficit without raising taxes.

"In my view, the Republicans are just trying to protect the rich. The rich are getting richer, and the poor are getting poorer," he said.

Rahimi said one issue that hasn't been properly addressed in the campaign is the use of chemical weapons by Iraq.

"This is a humanitarian issue, not a political issue," he said.

No matter who is elected president, Rahimi said, it won't have much impact on U.S. policy in the Middle East. Zionists, a wealthy and powerful lobby in this country, have great influence and prevent the formulation of any solid Middle East policy, Rahimi said.

A Namibian student expressed concern that this year's election could affect the policies of South Africa, a country that controls Namibia.

Police

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

night on a 6 to 11 p.m. shift. Their responsibilities include inspecting labs to check for fire hazards and locking buildings.

Seven full-time security personnel patrol the 124 buildings on the campus, which covers 664 acres. These people work from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. and check the interior doors on buildings and unlock doors for public access.

These security positions are the extent of the help the campus police receive. Beckom said these people are not doing police work, which would conflict with Kansas law. He said the security personnel are provided with strict guidelines to follow when they come upon a crime.

Beckom said the quality work that the campus police are doing may be a hindrance to hiring more officers.

"Over a number of years, the department has become more professional and more interested in the public it serves, and it is doing an exceptional job," he said. "As is often the case, the job that is being done better than expected gets overlooked."

However, Beckom said, unless something is done about the situation, the performance of the campus police might not live up to expectations.

"We're reaching a point, with all of the activities and events that are taking place and our population growing, where it's going to catch up with us sooner or later," he said.

WEEKEND NEWS REPORTER

All New All Hit! KMKF 101.7

Weekend news reporter wanted for Radio Stations KMAN-KMKF, Manhattan. Previous writing experience required. Hours: Saturday 8 a.m.-1 p.m.; Sunday 8-10 a.m.

Contact Jeff Wichman, 2414 Casement Road. EOE.

KMAN 1350

QUALITY NATURAL FOODS

from your local co-op store

811 Colorado
539-4811

People's Grocery Cooperative

ATTENTION STUDENTS
Are you suffering from any neck or back pain?
CONSIGLI CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC
Is now offering a
FREE CHIROPRACTIC EXAMINATION
(a $30 value)
for STUDENTS ONLY!
This examination includes Spinal, Orthopedic, & Neurological testing.
Call now for an appointment.
776-1850
Linda D. Consigli, D.C.
1325 Anderson Ave.

GOODSON AUTO TRIM
Tailor Made Seat Covers
Tanneau Covers
Boat Covers
Window Tinting
Convertible Tops
Vinyl Tops
Complete Auto, Truck & Boat Upholstery
201 Sarber Lane
(behind Wal-Mart)
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 776-7679 Res. 776-7614

THE UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS SCHOOL OF LAW
in conjunction with the
K-STATE PRELAW CLUB
Presnts a program for students interested in pursuing a career in law.

Thursday, October 20, 7 p.m.
K-State Union, Room 206

Professor Stan Davis, KU law students and a Manhattan attorney will be available to discuss with you your law school plans and answer questions about prelaw education, the law school curriculum, the admissions process, financial aid, and job opportunities.

COMING SOON TO THE K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE!

SPECIAL AUTHOR APPEARANCES
BY THESE RENOWNED AUTHORS:

Dr. Stephen E. Ambrose and Dr. Ernest L. Boyer

Books by these distinguished authors are now available and on display.

k-state union bookstore

Bookstore Hours: Monday thru Thursday: 8 am - 8 pm. Friday: 8 am - 5 pm. Sat.: 9 am - 5 pm. Sunday: 12 pm - 5 pm.

THE UPC ADVENTURE
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

McCain Auditorium
October 28, 1988, 8:00 p.m.
Tickets go on sale October 17 at K-State Union Activities Center and the McCain box office
All seats $2.00

Save $1 off admission to the Coors Light Comedy Commandos by purchasing a ticket to the Wildcat Chuckwagon Buffet Oct. 28th, 6—7:30 p.m. or Parents Day Buffet Oct. 29th, 5—7 p.m. Please make reservations by October 21st. Call 532-6591 for more information.

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

Coors Light Comedy Commandos on Oct. 28th, will sponsor a joke contest with Bushwacker's in Aggieville to promote the Comedy Night. The Joke Contest will be on Wed., Oct. 26th, from 10:45 p.m. to Midnight and on Thursday, Oct. 27th, 9-10 p.m.
-Contestants get in free
-winner and finalists receive prizes
Pick up sign-up sheets at Bushwackers in Aggieville or the Activities Center, third floor Union. Call 532-6571 for more information.

k-state union upc eclectic entertainment

BIG BUSINESS

Mixed up at birth, two sets of twins finally meet their match.

Friday and Saturday, 7 & 9:30 p.m., Union Forum Hall. Admission $1.75 with K-State I.D.

BETTE MIDLER LILY TOMLIN and LILY TOMLIN BETTE MIDLER

PG

Save Your $!
Feature Films will be showing the following films this semester for only $1.75.
Oct. 28 & 29—Bull Durham
Nov. 4 & 5—Crocadile Dundee II
Nov. 11, 12, 13—Cocktail
Nov. 18 & 19—A Fish Called Wanda
Dec. 2 & 3—BIG
Dec. 6 & 10—Young Guns

k-state union upc feature films

The MUPPET MOVIE

Saturday 2 p.m. and Sunday 2 & 7 p.m., Union Forum Hall, $1.50 with K-State I.D.

All The King's Men

A triple Academy Award winning film based upon Robert Penn Warren's Pulitzer Prize novel. Based on the real life story of Governor Huey Long, Broderick Crawford plays "Willie Stark", an honest back-country politician whose rise to power ends up corrupting him. (Unrated, 144 min.)

Today and Tomorrow, 7:30 p.m.. Union Forum Hall. Tomorrow 3:30 p.m. Union Little Theatre. Admission is $1.75 with K-State I.D.

k-state union upc kaleidoscope

Survival Game Adventure

Trip includes:
gun rental
paint pellets refreshments

COST-$10

October 30

Sign up Today in the Activities Center, 8-4 p.m., 3rd floor Union.

WEDNESDAY NOON LIVE

. . . is a re-vamped "Nooner" style program that gives amateur performers of all kinds, campus exposure and stage experience. W.N.L. is held Wednesdays from 12-1 p.m. in the Union Courtyard and is sure to be a great way to spend your lunch hour. Applications are available in the Activities Center, 3rd floor Union. All talented members of the K-State community are urged to apply. For more information contact Monte or Aaron at 532-6571. Today's Wednesday Noon Live has been cancelled.

k-state union upc eclectic entertainment

Impeach

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

officio members of Senate Standing Committee," Sanders said.

A conflict arose because of unclearly written attendance policies and confusion in interpretation.

A Student Tribunal ruling last week declared senators must conduct two visitations to student organizations per semester.

Folk had originally excused senators from doing visitations last semester but the Tribunal's decision overruled.

This gave senators two unanticipated absences.

Sanders said consideration for impeachment was on the basis of nonfeasance — failure to fulfill responsibilities as senators.

"We have to ask ourselves ... is this person performing the duties of a senator? Would this person have done the visitations had they known (the bylaws)?" he said.

Crash

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

by a separate agency.

The Federal Reserve was recommended because it is "the body that's in charge of the nation's money supply, the nation's credit markets, the availability of credit," he said.

A few steps have been taken to place the markets under the authority of the Federal Reserve, Fatemi said.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan has shown little interest in expanding the system's authority.

American Heart Association

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not disciminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

SPRING BREAK/ Party at Padre. For the Best Party Locations and Properties, call Now! $25 deposit per person before Oct. 28 reserves your condominium. 1-800-258-9191.

The KSU PARACHUTE CLUB

will be having its photo taken for the Royal Purple. All past and current KSU members are encouraged to attend!

Wed., October 19

8 p.m. Fairchild 202

Collegian Classifieds Cheap, but Effective

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs -skincare -glamor -nails -gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

Have story or photo ideas? CALL 532-6556

99¢

COTTON CLUB Burger Buffet 4-7 p.m.

417 Poyntz 2 Fer 1 Drinks

Learn to SKYDIVE with the KSU Parachute Club. Train Friday, Jump Saturday, Tell your parents Sunday!

This is the last class of the semester, so call now!

Call 537-1787

ASK for MIKE

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Nice, affordable apartment, own room and one-half of utilities. Call 537-4649.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE TWO-BEDROOM available in Westloop area. $315 unfurnished, $355 furnished. Balcony, beige carpet throughout. 776-9124.

NICE ONE-BEDROOM in Lee/ Hunting area. Available now. $340. 776-3804.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. $235. Free Heating. Call Tim at 539-7975.

VERY NICE, quiet, clean one-bedroom apartment for non-smoking adult. Paid heat/ air and more. Lease. $240. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1977 CHEVY Malibu, two-door, looks like new, nice wheels, Alpine speakers, must see. 539-8108, Dave.

1978 CHEVY Malibu. Very good condition. Dependable, $1,500 or best offer. 1-494-2831 after 6p.m.

1979 MERCURY Cougar, auto transmission, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, $1,000 or best offer. 776-3772.

1979 Z28, excellent condition, new performance engine. $2,800. 537-3818.

1980 CITATION. Runs good, AM/FM cassette stereo, five-speed, new tires, good gas mileage, air conditioning. 776-5573 weekdays.

1981 MONTE Carlo, V-6, 73,000 miles, two-door, air conditioning, cruise control, AM/FM stereo, excellent condition, $2,700. 537-3721.

1981 PORSCHE 924, excellent condition, $5,800. 537-3818.

1983 CHEVY Slv. Silverado, dually 6.2 liter diesel, great shape. Priced to sell, 1-594-2332 or 537-0845.

8 Computers

COMMODORE AMIGA 1000. Great graphics computer with color monitor, extra drives, 512K RAM, and software. 776-9539 after 5p.m.

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

GE LINE conditioner- noise suppressor 91L series. Controls high and low voltage, $350. 776-9461 or 1-800-432-0036. Protect your computer.

ZENITH

PERSONAL COMPUTERS

Authorized Warranty Service

also servicing

•PC compatibles & printers

•Televisions & VCRs

MIDWEST SERVICES

624 Little Creek Blvd

Manhattan 913-776-6650

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

CASHIER POSITION available. Lunch or dinner shifts. Apply in person, 606 N. 12th, the Lone Star Cafe. Ask for Michael.

EXPERIENCED AEROBIC instructor. Call 776-6469 for appointment.

FREE SPRING Break vacation in Cancun! Become a College Tours Representative on your campus and get a free trip. Nothing to buy, we provide everything you need. It's easy. Call 1-800-727-0005.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, Juniors: Train in the summer to become a Marine Corps Officer after graduation. Aviation available. Call collect (913)841-1821.

HELP WANTED: Apply in person at Pinata. Ask for Kim. 1219 Bluemont.

LOOKING FOR a fraternity, sorority, student organization, or exceptional individuals that would like to potentially make $1,000 or more sponsoring quality ski and beach trips on campus. For further information call Mark at Great Destinations, Inc. 1-800-258-9191.

NANNIES NEEDED on East Coast, $150 to $275 per week, free room and board, good families and home. No fee. Call Nannie Network, Inc. 1-800-US-NANNY.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

THINKING OF taking some time off from school? We need Mother's Helpers. Household duties and childcare. Live in exciting New York City suburbs. Room, board and salary included. (203)622-4959 or (914)273-1626.

AVIATION CADET PROGRAM

Do you want to fly? Pilot training, ages 19-24 with 60 semester hours for our naval aviation cadet program. Must be a U.S. citizen and physically qualified with a 2.5 plus G.P.A. Call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

American Heart Association

1980 BELLAVISTA 14x70, three-bedroom, one and one-half bath, appliances, central air, skirted. $11,000. 776-0763.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

COLOR TELEVISION, living room set, bar, bar stools, dinette, desk, chest, bed, couch, misc. 776-9705.

EXQUISITE GOLD engagement ring and interlocking wedding band. Six diamonds surround a larger one, .23 ct. $350, or best offer. 1-632-3549.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

SPEAKERS FOR sale. Three-way satellite system. $275. Compare to $600. Also will custom build speakers/ subwoofers for home or car. Excellent quality. 539-7439, ask for Rodger.

NEW BULB SPECIAL

5 SESSIONS $10

Manhattan's Largest Tanning Salon

"Connect with the Best"

SUN CONNECTION

1126 Laramie 776-2426

HOUSTON STREET BALLROOM

Wedding Receptions Dances, Parties

539-1234

B & L THRIFT SHOP

Offering Halloween costumes, hats, & wigs

539-1717

Old Town Mall 523 S. 17th

Cottonwood Racquet Club

for all your Racquet Stringing Needs

(certified stringers)

3615 Claflin 776-6060

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1986 SUZUKI FA50, new condition- $300. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

MOUNTAIN BIKE- 1988 Specialized -Rock Hopper. Evenings, 539-8306.

17 Musical Instruments

GUITARS/ AMPS for sale!! Aria Pro II- $250, Aria 3/4 scale acoustic- best offer, Kramer bass- $150, Stienburger style bass- $200, Marlboro practice amp- $70, Fender bassman 60 watt amp- $200. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

PEAVY GUITAR, 50-watt amp, Ibenez flanger, accessories. Paid over $500, sell all for $250. 532-4868.

Hayes House of Music

776-7983 327 Poyntz

Martin-Sigma Accoustic Guitars ON SALE

18 Personals

BEANS, HAPPY Anniversary!! Thanks for a great year. So in love with you! Scott.

CHARLENE, HAPPY Birthday, again! Remember last year? Ha! Ha! Derek.

CLOVIA TRUDY T.: Are you available? Interested party sure would like to know.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

HAPPY 20TH, Jeff- Hey Hey Ho Ho, that's 4-H's in a row. Kind of sounds like a Cheer, huh, Bud? I love you -Me.

INTERESTED IDIOT: Scotty's named Chad, but I'm flattered. Thank you.

JENNY, IS there a Scotty in your life now (or is he just in your diary)? An Interested Idiot.

KAREN- YOU are a terrific roomie!! I'm sorry you got stuck with a C.B. Ha!

MARK F., Happy 21st Birthday. How about a few shots of tequila? Watch out for the plastic alligators.

PIKE TONY- Oct. 22. Party where you did last spring. J.

SN GOOBER: You made the party fun!! KD Turtlehead.

SUSAN: WACHERS, Merry Go Round, Jeff City, Mo. -Please consider a Coke date with an anonymous fun-loving guy. I will get in touch with you later in the week.

Collegian Classifieds Where K-State Shops

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

AKC REGISTERED black Lab puppies. Championship bloodlines. Call 776-7547.

LOVABLE FERRET needs home! Litter trained female. Spacious cage included $40. Call 539-4651, ask for Michelle.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

21 Rentals

NICE FURNISHED mobile home. One-bedroom, living room, kitchen, study room and bath. $185 plus utilities. Lease through June 16. One mile from campus. Call 539-4702.

22 Resume/Typing Services

ALL TYPING needs $1/ page. Daisy wheel printer, Spell Checker. Ask for Mr. Bear. 539-7561.

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

COMPLETE TYPING/ Data Processing: papers, theses, dissertations, etc. 75¢/ page, 5¢/ copy. Call 537-8701.

FAST TURNAROUND for all your word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, theses, dissertations. All your typing requirements, reasonable rates, expert typist. Call 539-5422.

Résumé Service

Resumes — Cover Letters

Data Sheets

343 Colorado

Call 537-7294

9 years in business — Permanent computer storage

23 Roommate Wanted

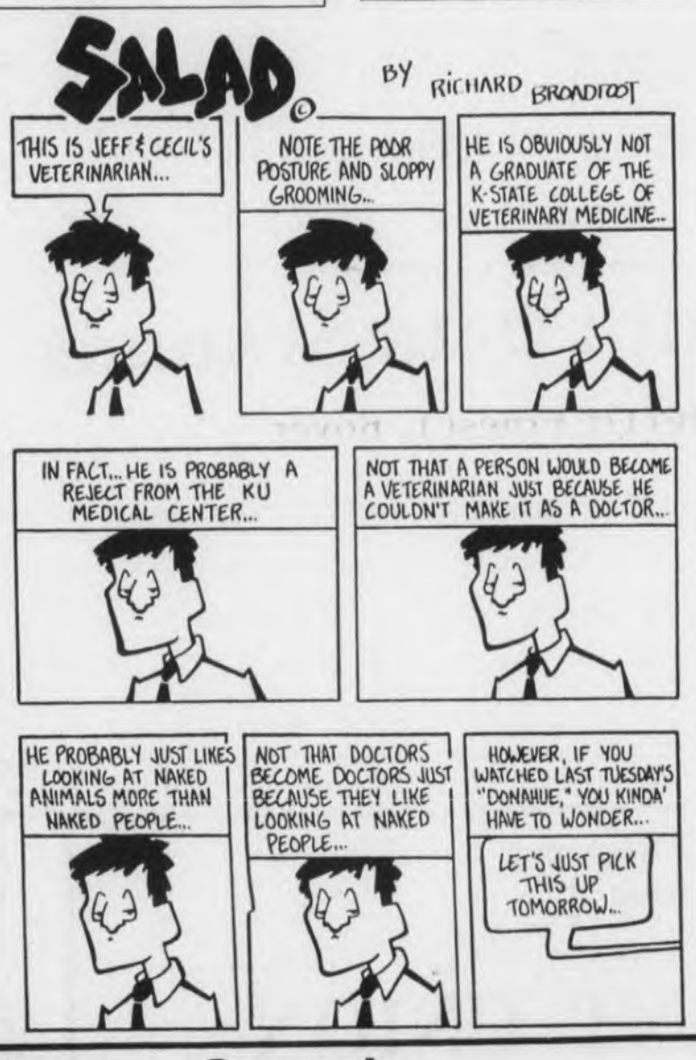
NEXT SEMESTER need a female, non-smoker to take my place. Own bedroom, $160/ month, one-third utilities. One block from campus and Aggieville. Call Tina at 539-6984 or leave message.

WANTED: MALE or female roommate to share nice, two-bedroom apartment with two girls. Own bedroom. Immediately. $116/ month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments. 537-1878.

WANTED: TWO roommates, male or female. Own rooms, three-room apartment at 1200 Bluemont, next to Aggieville, one block from campus. $130 a month plus utilities. Call 537-3679.

28 Adoption

A CHILDLESS loving couple wishes to adopt white newborn. We will provide a warm wonderful and loving home. We are committed to being the best parents possible. Legal and confidential. Please call collect, Kelly and Ramiro, (201)376-0894.



LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)422-1297.

29 Concert Tickets

DEF LEPPARD ticket for sale, section 19, row 16, seat 18. Close to stage! 776-4186.

DEF LEPPARD tickets: two second row, floor tickets for sale. Call Bob 532-3927.

SALAD © BY RICHARD BROADFOOT

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

By Jim Davis

Peanuts

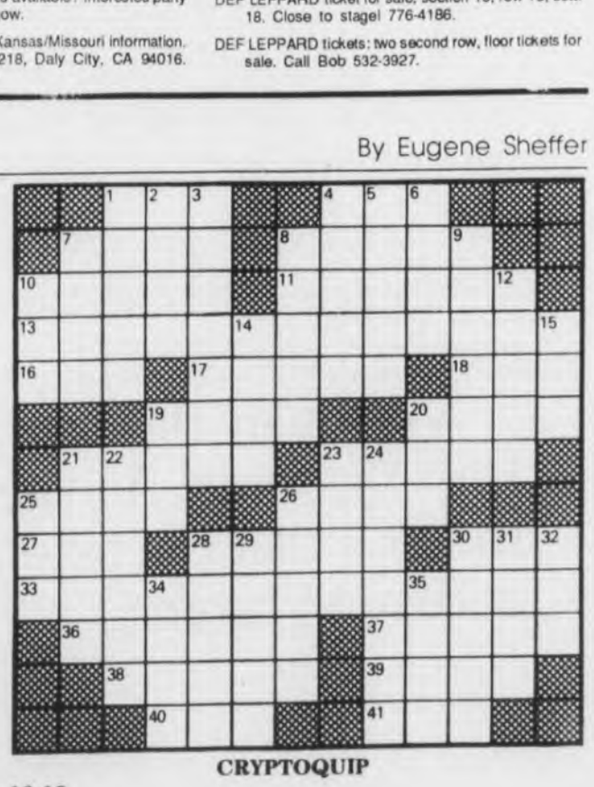
By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS

1 "A Bridge Too —"
4 Indian
7 Blue Nile's source
8 — Agnew
10 Lake and canal
11 Cylindrical and tapered
13 Tar Heel State
16 Pig's digs
17 Potential energy
18 Morsel for Dobbin
19 Macaws
20 Italian noble house
21 Chandelier pendant
23 One of the Lauders
25 Engendered
26 Captain Hook's crew member
27 Dawn goddess
28 Rich fabric
30 Pointless talk
33 Palmetto State
36 European gold coin
37 Role for Gary Burghoff
38 Drift
39 Level
40 — Amin
41 Sun. talk



DOWN

1 Tinker Bell, for one
2 Pickler's plant
3 Servings of bacon
4 Musical drama
5 Alpine region
6 City on the Oka
7 Jog
8 Bachelor party attendees
9 Of no use
10 Printer's measures
12 Growing out
14 Study at the last minute
15 Had a bite
19 Help
20 Nice season
21 Doubter's demand
22 Outcome
23 Arab chieftain
24 Spanish gentlemen
25 God of pleasure
26 Ending for band or grand
28 Fragment
29 Anatomical sacs
30 Horseman
31 — even keel
32 Sailor
34 Convex moldings
35 Wash

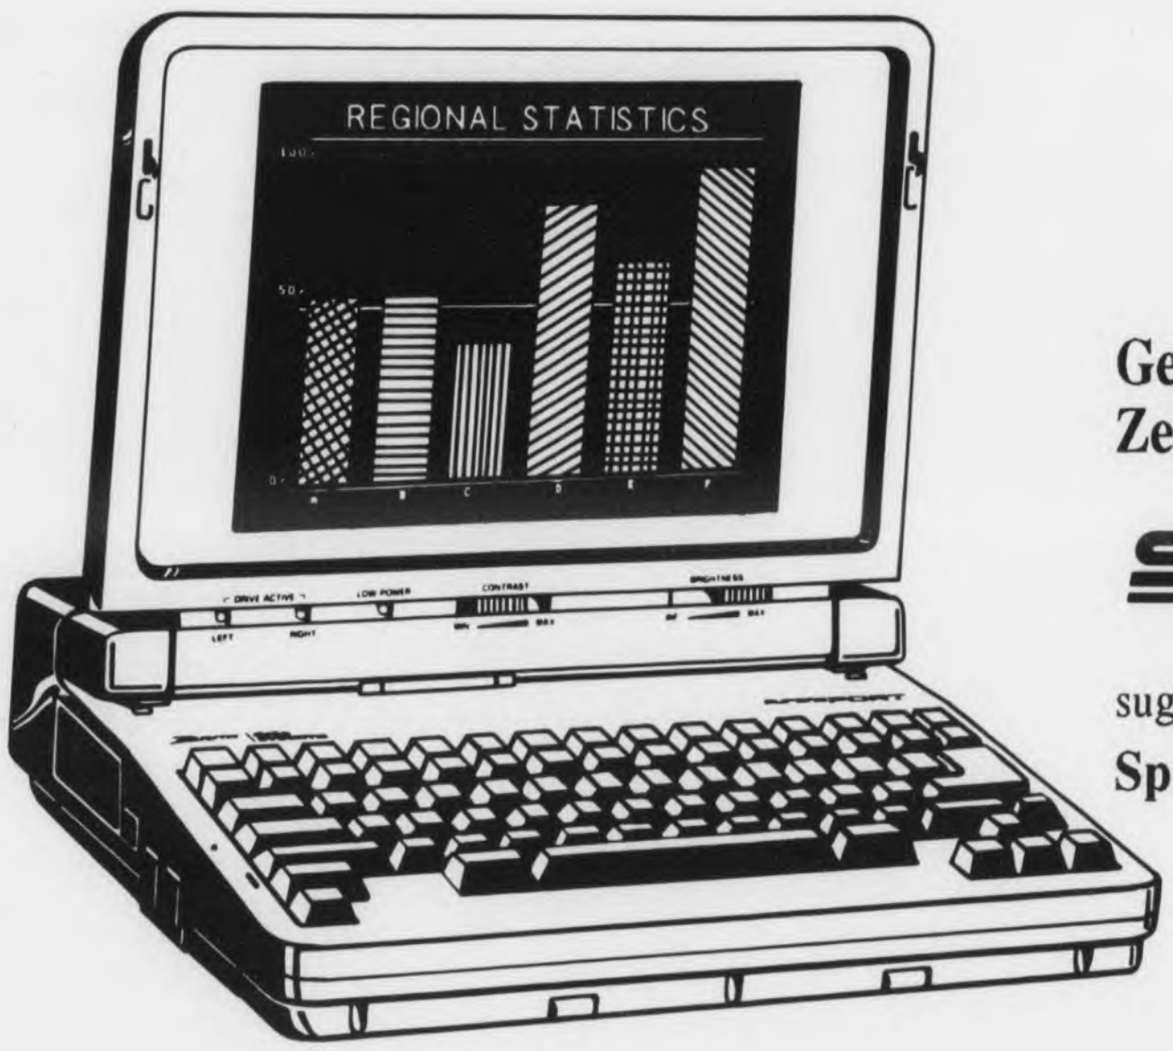
Solution time: 23 mins.

G	A	D	S		C	A	N		S	A	A	R
A	R	I	A		A	N	I		A	R	C	A
S	L	A	W		P	O	L	Y	G	A	M	Y
P	O	L	Y	G	O	N		O	G	R	E	S
			E	O	N		A	G	E
O	H	A	R	A		S	T	A	D	I	U	M
P	O	D			L	A	E			A	S	A
S	T	O	P	G	A	P		C	A	N	E	D
			R	A	G		P	A	N
O	S	C	A	R		P	O	L	Y	E	N	E
P	O	L	Y	B	I	U	S		W	R	I	T
A	L	A	E		O	R	E		A	N	N	O
L	E	N	D		N	E	D		Y	E	A	N

Yesterday's answer 10-19

CRYPTOQUIP

10-19



W F L F P N E O N O U W M P M X N O F X - N F O ' D D F U M F A W N L M P E F J J : " A E O ' P J N P P M X ! "

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: KINDLY WORDS FOR THE WOEFUL FITNESS INSTRUCTOR: "KEEP YOUR CHIN UP."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals V

You Want The Best PC Values on Campus?

Get Terrific Student Pricing At The Zenith Data Systems Open House

SUPERSPORT™

suggested retail price: $2399

Special Student Price: $1439

The Zenith Data Systems Supersport™

Great news! Zenith Data Systems is headed your way with a special campus extravaganza! It's your chance to enjoy unbelievable student values on Zenith Data Systems' family of personal computers and monitors. From laptops... to desktops... to super-advanced systems. All complete with PC compatibility and MS-DOS.®

As your Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact, we'll give you a full demonstration. And we'll match you up with the right software and peripherals. To give you a computer that can take you through school and into the future!

So stop by this special event from Zenith Data Systems. And get fantastic values on the PCs that can take you all the way from college to career!

Stop by the Zenith Data Systems special campus celebration at:

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCTOBER 24 & 25
9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Contact your local Student Representative
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
k-state union bookstore 532-6583

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON•

© 1987, Zenith Data Systems

Bible School

Since The Living Word Christian Church School began in 1982, it has housed its students in a renovated roller-skating rink. See Page 7.

Weather

Cloudy today with a 40 percent chance of showers, high in the low 60s. Mostly clear tonight with the low around 40.

5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS
66612

high at Oklahoma ... week. See Page 9.

Thursday
October 20, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 43

Kansas State Collegian

Officials to watch lottery

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A recent audit that criticized the management of the Kansas Lottery probably will cause the Legislature to watch its operations more closely, several lawmakers said Wednesday.

The legislators, members of a legislative committee that oversees the work of the state's auditing agency, said they think the Legislature will spend more time reviewing the lottery's proposed budgets and give the agency less discretion in its spending.

Although they acknowleged the lottery has been successful because of higher-than-expected sales, the lawmakers also made it clear they were not pleased with all of the agency's practices. The Legislative Post Audit Committee questioned Lottery Director Larry Montgomery for about two hours.

"Something is just not quite right," said Rep. Robert H. Miller, R-Wellington, the committee's vice chairman. "I think they did not touch base with the Legislature. We gave them a blank check because we didn't want to tie their hands. They did not reciprocate."

Rep. George Teagarden, D-LaCygne, said the lottery will have to be more accountable to the Legislature in the future. Teagarden sits on the House Appropriations subcommittee that reviews the lottery budget.

"I think they abused the latitude they were granted in the (lottery) legislation," Teagarden said. "I think lottery sales are going great. I am concerned about the lottery

■ See LOTTERY, Page 14

After the completion of a wire frame for a pumpkin 1½ weeks ago at 1837 Anderson Ave., the covering of the frame began Oct. 13.

The pumpkin is covered with more material on Friday, preparing it for a coat of a paint. The crew worked on covering the pumpkin when it was not raining.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Great Pumpkin, taking shape

Jeff Oddo, senior in construction science, works to complete a papier-mache pumpkin Wednesday afternoon in the doorway of his Manhattan residence. Oddo and his roommates came up with the idea for a Halloween party and for an entry in a contest sponsored by a local radio station. The pumpkin will be completed today.

Global AIDS policy focus of convocation speech

Problem worldwide

By Angela Smith
Collegian Reporter

"Currently, there are about 112,000 cases of AIDS reported by 140 countries," said William Heyward, chief of international activities in the AIDS program at the Centers for Disease Control, Atlanta. He addressed an audience of about 500 people at the University Convocation series Wednesday in McCain Auditorium on "The Global Pattern of AIDS."

"The accuracy of reporting the global number is a large underestimate, due to the number of cases being underdiagnosed, underreporting and the reluctance of some countries to report AIDS cases," Heyward said.

People are coming to grips with the global pattern of AIDS, Heyward said.

"The problem of AIDS is not only a problem of the U.S. or of Africa, but a problem of mankind," he said. "We truly have a global health problem that everyone can help with."

"Many cases of AIDS have been reported throughout the world, but a large number come from North America, Australia, Western Europe, and Central, Eastern and Southern Africa," Heyward said.

He discussed the extreme medical costs involved in treating AIDS patients.

"Industrial countries' medical costs for AIDS victims are $20,000 to $100,000, averaging $40,000. The cost of AIDS in 1991 is estimated at $8 to $16 billion," Heyward said.

"Unless there is a new treatment to protect HIV-infected persons from developing AIDS, we will be standing as helpless as a straw hut before a hurricane," he said.

Heyward said the prognosis for AIDS patients varies greatly.

"Fifty percent of AIDS patients die within 18 months of diagnosis and 80 percent within 36 months," he said.

In underdeveloped countries, survival time is even shorter, due to limited medical attention for patients, Heyward said.

"Since 1981, the AIDS issue has

■ See AIDS, Page 14

Collegian/David Mayes

William Heyward, chief of international activities in the AIDS program at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Concert security tight

Rowdier audience expected

By Christina Doherty
Collegian Reporter

As the 13,500 ticketholders for the Def Leppard concert await the arrival of the band, the security staff of Bramlage Coliseum prepares for the arrival of the concert audience.

Steve Rahn, senior in information systems and security supervisor at Bramlage, said the main difference in the security for this concert and others is that there will be 64 members of the staff working, compared with the 25 to 30 members who worked the past two concerts at Bramlage.

One of the reasons for the increase in staffing is the difference in the stage setup, Rahn said. Previous concerts required security only in front of the stage, but the stage for Def Leppard requires coverage from all sides of the stage.

"We've got a lot of high school people and (the audience) is all going to be students, not a lot of older people because of the noise level. Because of the general picture I saw from people camping out for tickets, I expect it to be rowdier than what we've had, but I think we'll be ready for it," Rahn said.

All of the members of the security staff are students. To prepare them for the concerts, the students attended an orientation meeting. Debriefing meetings are conducted before every concert during which job assignments are made.

"A lot of (security staff members) have previous experience from bars or concert experience from Kansas City or Wichita," Rahn said.

There will be two security members at each ticket gate. Their purpose is to make sure people don't bring banned items into the concert, Rahn said.

Items which are banned from the coliseum include bottles, cans, knap sacks, alcoholic beverages, liquid containers, controlled substances, bundles, recording devices and cameras.

"We can ask people to open their purses and empty their pockets (at the gates). If they refuse, they can be restrained from entering," Rahn said.

In addition to the Bramlage security staff, K-State Police will also be present, said Charlie Thomas, director of Bramlage.

Doug Brown, senior in life sciences and a member of the security staff, is expecting a significant difference between the crowds at previous Bramlage concerts and the Def Leppard crowd.

"The Beach Boys had a diverse crowd. About one-half were under 25 and about one-half were over 25. It was kind of a laid-back concert. Def Leppard is the first time any big-name, hard-rock band has come here, to our front door, and I think that fact has got a lot of people excited, especially younger-age people," Brown said.

Overall, Thomas said the security preparation for this concert is good.

"Prepare the best you can, because things are always going to happen that you don't foresee," Thomas said.

Tickets exclude 3 games

By Paul Branson
Staff Writer

Students who purchased season tickets for the men's basketball team's home games didn't purchase tickets for three of the games.

The games which take place over the holidays and, therefore, are not included in the price are against Purdue, Nov. 26; Missouri-St. Louis, Dec. 22; and Texas-Arlington, Jan. 5.

"In all fairness to the students, we didn't include those games since we felt most of the students would be home at that time," said Carol Adolph, administrative assistant with the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

She said tickets for the games would be available at the ticket office. Tickets for the Purdue game will be $5, and $3 for the Missouri-St. Louis and Texas-Arlington games.

Purdue was ranked in the top 10 for much of last year and was the top seed in the Midwest regional of the NCAA tournament. The game against Purdue will also be the first of the season.

Matt McMillen, field representative for Intercollegiate Athletics and adviser for ICAT, said he has heard very few complaints.

"I think the students understand why we didn't include those three games," McMillen said.

Randy Bartel, senior in architecture, said he missed not having the Purdue game on the season ticket.

"We've been talking about getting the Purdue ticket, but don't really care about the other two," he said.

Sheldon Mickey, senior in journalism and mass communications, said he thought the students should have been told earlier about the excluded games.

"There wasn't really any advance warning except for a rumor," he said. Mickey said he would camp out for tickets to the Purdue game.

"I'd really like to see Purdue," he said. "They are a good team. It's a shame they weren't included with the season ticket."

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Air crashes kill 164 in India

AHMADABAD, India — A Boeing 737 jetliner and another Indian passenger plane crashed in bad weather within two hours of each other Wednesday, and authorities said 164 people were believed killed.

The Indian Airlines jet was trying to land in heavy fog at the western city of Ahmadabad when it slammed into a tree, hit a power line and crashed. All but five of the 135 people aboard were killed, and three of the survivors were in serious condition with burns and broken bones.

About 1¼ hours later, a 30-year-old Fokker Friendship propeller plane leased by Indian Airlines to the domestic carrier Vayudoot hit the side of a hill in eastern India during a severe rainstorm, and all 34 people aboard were feared dead, officials said.

Indian Airlines Flight 131, was flying from Bombay with 129 passengers and six crewmembers when it crashed at 7:40 a.m. on its final approach to Ahmadabad airport, about 500 miles southwest of New Delhi.

Federal Aviation Minister Shiv Raj Patil said the death toll of 130 was the worst in the carrier's 26-year history. It was the airline's 16th major accident.

Soldiers die in car explosion

METULLA, Israel — A suicide car bomb exploded Wednesday near Israel's "Good Fence" border crossing in south Lebanon, killing seven Israeli soldiers and wounding eight others and two Lebanese civilians, the military command said.

In Beirut, the Islamic Resistance claimed responsibility. The same coalition of pro-Iranian fundamentalist groups claimed responsibility for a car bomb that wounded three Israelis in August.

The military wing of Hezbollah, the Party of God militia based in Beirut, also claimed responsibility, according to Middle East Television, a Christian-run station. Hezbollah belongs to Islamic Resistance.

The TV report, monitored in Metulla, said, "The car bomb tore apart a minibus full of soldiers."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and other Israeli leaders vowed to retaliate.

Maj. Gen. Yossi Peled, head of Israel's northern command, told a news conference the bomb exploded 300 yards north of the border at 1:25 p.m. (7:25 a.m. EDT) as two groups of army vehicles passed each other, one headed home and the other into Lebanon.

Peled said the blast was so powerful "nothing remained of the car bomb."

Strike claims 2 lives

GAZA CITY, Occupied Gaza Strip — Two Palestinians were reported killed and 10 wounded Wednesday as a general strike to protest Jewish settlements shut the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Despite the strike, a bus caravan of Israelis toured Gaza to demand Israel keep the seaside strip.

Shops and public transit were shut down and roads were blocked with stones and burning tires in response to a strike call by underground leaders who are backed by the Palestine Liberation Organization. Outlawed Palestinian flags flew from utility poles and mosques.

Israeli cars were stoned outside West Bank refugee camps near the Biblical city of Bethlehem and in Ramallah, north of Jerusalem. No injuries were reported.

Near the West Bank village of Beit Ummar, an Israeli police car crashed into an Arab vehicle, killing two Palestinians and injuring one, Israel radio said.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

Estranged husband kills wife

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — A district court judge was shot and killed Wednesday in her chambers by her estranged husband, an off-duty police officer, who fired at other officers before surrendering, police said.

District Judge Carol Irons, 40, the county's first female judge, was prounced dead moments after her husband went to her chambers to discuss personal matters, said Grand Rapids Police Chief William Hegarty.

"Judge Irons came out of her chambers bent over with her hands reaching for her throat, asking ... 'Please, help me,'" Hegarty said. Clarence Ratliff, 53, a 21-year veteran of the police force, followed her and fired at least two or three more shots.

Ratliff then barricaded himself in chambers, the police chief said, exchanging gunfire briefly with three police officers before surrendering.

Hegarty said it was unknown whether the weapon was Ratliff's police-issued revolver. Ratliff was not on duty and went to the court in street clothes. He was working as a night patrol officer and previously had been a detective, said the police chief.

Rolls-Royce declared nuisance

LOS ANGELES — The city of Beverly Hills succeeded Wednesday in having a $200,000 Rolls-Royce auto declared a public nuisance and barring its owner from parking it in the same Rodeo Drive spot for more than an hour at a time.

Five attorneys representing the city convinced Superior Court Judge Edward Kakita to issue a preliminary injunction against art gallery owner David Spellerberg and his 1954 Rolls.

"This is the first time a Rolls-Royce has been declared a public nuisance," Spellerberg said after the 15-minute hearing. "Only in Beverly Hills would this happen."

Spellerberg has parked the dark blue, chauffeur-driven car in the one-hour spot in front of his National Heritage Gallery of Fine Art for the past seven months. His driver stands by, pumping $15 in quarters into the meter each day.

"I just wanted to put glitter and glamour back on the street. We sure aren't getting that with a Pinto. But the city of Beverly Hills could care less," Spellerberg said. "Rodeo Drive just isn't what it used to be.

"We're paying $20,000 a month in rent and I can't even park my own car in front of my own gallery."

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Boy makes fatal train jump

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A boy was killed Tuesday night when he jumped from a 99-car freight train and was run over, police said.

Two other boys who also jumped from the train reported the accident, which occurred in downtown Kansas City.

The boys, described as being between 11 and 12, got on the train for a ride about 6:30 p.m., police said. Two of the boys jumped off as soon as the train picked up speed but the third, identified as 12-year-old Nith Vith, decided to wait until it was going faster.

When the third boy jumped, he was sucked under the train and killed immediately, police said.

Train crewmen apparently were unaware of the accident and the train was stopped near Odessa. The train proceeded to its scheduled desgination, Chicago, but crewmen were to meet with police when they return to Kansas City.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

K-STATE PLAYERS will perform "Little Shop of Horrors" at 8 p.m. today through Saturday in Nichols Theatre.

SIGN-UP to give blood for the Blood Mobile will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. all week in the Union by the notice board.

TODAY

ICTHUS will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

HORTICULTURE CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Waters Greenhouse.

K-STATE PLAYERS will meet at 4 p.m. in Nichols 8.

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 207.

AG COUNCIL will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

BRIEFLY ON THE CAMPUS

Regents visit Pittsburg State

Making its semester visit to a regents campus, the Kansas Board of Regents will gather today at Pittsburg State University for its October meeting.

"They make one of these campus visits every semester," said Bob Krause, vice president for institutional advancement. The regents were scheduled to tour the facilities at Pittsburg State Wednesday and then conduct their meeting today.

Discussing the agenda, Krause said action pertaining directly to K-State included the probable adoption of a continuing resolution authorizing insurance for Bramlage Coliseum.

"This resolution provides permanent insurance for Bramlage which allows us to hold all revenues in an approved local account. This facilitates cash flow for us," Krause said. "If the state held the money, we couldn't get an act to perform here."

The regents will review seven areas of study at K-State, including statistics, anthropology, dramatic arts, speech, music, art and computer science.

A report from the Council of Presidents will include an update on the current status of the transfer and articulation agreement between Kansas community colleges and regents institutions. Troy Lubbers, student body president, said the agreement discusses the number and type of general education hours a community college transfer student must have completed to enter a regents school.

Lubbers said the agreement will probably be sent back to the Council of Chief Academic Officers for continued negotiation.

Krause agreed.

"I think the transfer and articulation agreement will go down in flames and be sent back to COCAO," Krause said. "I'm not even sure the community college presidents know what to think of it."

Personnel director resigns

K-State's director of personnel services, Jerre Fercho, has resigned to assume the position of assistant to the vice president for administration and finance.

Vice President George Miller announced the resignation was effective Tuesday.

As assistant to the vice president for administration and finance, Fercho will be responsible for the development of specifications for payroll and personnel systems, Miller said.

Acting director of personnel services is Rosalind Fisher, assistant director for employee relations. Fisher will serve until a new director is found.

A search committee of six faculty members headed by Walter Woods, dean of the College of Agriculture, will serve until a new director can be selected.

No Pain,
No Gain???
NO WAY!!!!

Pain is a sign that something is wrong!
Call today 537-8305
Dr. Mark J. Hatesohl
Chiropractor
3252 Kimball Avenue

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

776-5577 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
OLD MILWAUKEE LIGHT NITE
$1.99 Pitchers
"It just doesn't get any better than this"
No Dress Code
No Cover Charge
—Your Discount Beer Barn—
Go North on Tuttle Creek Blvd., then right on Barnes Rd.
You can't miss it.
"The Finest Little Tavern By a Dam Site"
Rt. 7 537-3133

PURPLE PASSION PAD
SLIGHTLY USED.
OTHER HALLOWEEN & UNUSUAL ITEMS AT AIRPORT FLEA MARKET
MANHATTAN, KS
OPEN SATURDAY
8 a.m. to 4 p.m.
SUNDAY
10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
PRIDE CO. 776-6906

IMPORT BEER NIGHT

•50¢ off all Imports
LAST CHANCE
1215 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
HOME OF THE AROUND the WORLD BEER CLUB
Aggieville, U.S.A.

The Station
THURSDAY
99¢ NIGHT
99¢ 99¢
•99¢ WELLS
•99¢ DRAWS
•99¢ GRILLE ITEMS
•99¢ LONGNECKS
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

The Station
HAPPY HOUR BUFFET

WEDNESDAY & THURSDAY
5:00-7:00pm
ALL YOU CAN EAT BUFFET: $1
1115 Moro, Aggieville, 776-0030

KSNT·27 Presents
The return of Rolando Blackman with
The Dallas Mavericks vs. The San Antonio Spurs
LIVE NBA ACTION

BRAMLAGE COLISEUM
TOMORROW NIGHT
7:35 p.m.
$2.00 Student Discount
Present your K-State I.D. at Bramlage Coliseum Box Office for $2.00 off a $10.50 ticket.
Limit one ticket per student I.D.

BUSHWACKERS
• THE • FUNDRINKERY
THURS.
JOIN US AFTER DEF LEPPARD
for
$2.50 Pitchers
$1.75 Mixed Drinks
Grill Special
6 oz. Filet
$4.95
5 to 9
531 N. Manhattan

Feed dust reduced in experiments

By Julie Thompson
Collegian Reporter

Studies conducted at K-State suggest adding soybean oil or fat to feed grains to reduce excessive amounts of feed dust in livestock buildings.

Albert Heber, principal investigator and assistant professor of agricultural engineering, measured through an aerodynamic tester the concentration of dust at 11 area pig farms. He also evaluated workers for symptoms caused by exposure to feed dust.

Dust samples from each unit were collected eight times over a nine-month period. Particles from the samples were analyzed to determine their sources and size characteristics.

A feed's dust level depends on the type of grains used and on how finely each mixture has been ground, Heber said. Smaller particles remain in the air, while larger particles tend to settle.

From lab studies, Heber discovered that milo is dustier than corn and "(milo) is all we use in Kansas."

Because Iowa hog farmers use more corn than milo, it is logical to assume that Kansans see more dust per year in livestock buildings than Iowa farmers, he said.

After establishing that most of the dust came from the grain, Heber and the experiment station conducted a second test to find a solution to the highly concentrated dust.

The study found that applying animal fat or, preferably, soybean oil to pig feed would extensively reduce dust by "trapping" particles that would otherwise escape into the air, he said.

A company in Iowa has begun producing pelleted fat, he said.

"Animal fat is much harder to use because we have to heat it before adding it to the feed.

"Soybean oil is more efficient than animal fat," Heber said. "The selection of an additive or type of oil is dictated by the price. So in order to make the feed cost-efficient, less oil should be used."

Several swine producers in Kansas have reported positive results from a mixture of 99 percent feed and one percent soybean oil, he said. In the second study, the amount of oil added to mixtures varied from 0.5 percent to one percent.

"We have just gotten word from farmers that by adding 20 to 25 pounds (of pelleted) additives per ton, they visually noticed a difference," Heber said. "Hopefully, our research shows that we don't need to add (even) two or three percent oil to the mixture."

Although the pigs were not closely monitored for an increase or decrease in weight gain, the pigs should not show signs of any deficiency, said Robert Hines, professor of animal sciences and industry.

"Pigs can utilize the feed with no problems at all," Hines said.

Pigs in total confinement have more respiratory problems than pigs that are outside, Heber said.

"It's almost a trade-off. You bring the pigs outside and they develop more enteric (intestinal-related) diseases. You bring them inside and they have respiratory problems," he said.

Workers were also evaluated in the study. Aerial dust affected the workers on each farm, Heber said. Dust inhalation by humans caused respiratory symptoms and allergic reactions ranging from slight coughing to delayed fever and chills.

"The dust doesn't seem to hurt the pigs as much as it does the workers," he said.

Heber surveyed 12 workers in Kansas and said a researcher in agricultural medicine surveyed 2,500 workers in Iowa. Both found significant respiratory symptoms.

Of the Kansans surveyed, 67 percent said they experienced slight coughing while in the livestock building, which is the same percentage found by the Iowa survey.

Two of the 12 workers experienced delayed fever and chills and one worker had no symptoms at all. But one other worker "never quits coughing," Heber said.

The feed study was funded in part by a $9,000 grant from the National Pork Producers Council and was done in cooperation with K-State's Agricultural Experiment Station. The second study was completely funded by the station, Heber said.

K-State to study school demographics

By Susan E. Faler
Collegian Reporter

The Manhattan USD 383 Board of Education approved a proposal Wednesday for an educational consultant concerning the additional space, programs and equipment for the district.

The board accepted the proposal of Planning Advocates, Inc., for $54,000 or less, with the condition that the demographics for the study be conducted by K-State.

The study of demographics would consist of what Manhattan's future would entail, such as the population, the possible rate of an increase in population, and the possibility of an increase in population at Fort Riley.

The cost set for K-State to do the demographics was set at $5,000, but the board plans to further discuss the price with the University.

The names of those conducting the survey at K-State have not yet been released.

However, if Planning Advocates refuses to work with the board and K-State on this part of the plan, the board would look for another consultant for the district.

Board member Joleen Hill said she is not uneasy about the decision of using Planning Advocates as long as they agree the demographics be done by someone else.

"I have worried and tossed (the decision of consultants) around for a long time. I've been very concerned about the spending of our money in this district wisely," said Martha Miller, board member. "I divided the $54,000 by the 6,200 students and I come up with about $8 per student to pay for this."

Committee to discuss tuition savings, scholars

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The Legislative Educational Planning Committee will decide at its Nov. 16-17 meeting whether to endorse bills to implement the Board of Regents' proposed Minority Scholars Program and a tuition savings program for parents of college-bound students.

Concluding a two-day meeting Wednesday, the LEPC instructed its staff to prepare a draft bill for review that would implement the Minority Scholars Program, designed to get Kansas' academically talented minority students to attend college in this state.

The panel also asked its staff to identify policy options and suggest possible changes in a bill introduced last session by Reps. Elaine Hassler, R-Abilene, and Rick Bowden, D-Goddard, that would create the Kansas Educational Savings Plan Trust to help parents save for college expenses.

The committee will decide at the November meeting whether to endorse the measures and have them prefiled ahead of the 1989 session opening Jan. 9.

It also endorsed a request of the state Board of Education for a $1.5 million appropriation by the 1989 Legislature to allow postsecondary vocational education programs to purchase equipment and make major building repairs.

It made no recommendation on a proposal by the state board that out-district tuition which counties are required to pay for their students to attend community colleges and Washburn University in other counties be phased out.

The LEPC also took no stand on the state board's proposal to raise the state financial support of community colleges over the next five years so the Legislature is providing 40 percent of the funding. Presently the state pays 28 percent of the support of the colleges.

The Board of Regents has proposed that the state award $1,500 renewable scholarships each year to 100 of the most promising minority high school graduates.

ΠΠΣ/ΛΛΔ
Used Record & Tape Sale
Wide Selection
In front of the Union Stateroom
Proceeds to Flinthills Breadbasket
Oct. 24-27
9 a.m.-3 p.m.

BATTLE OF THE GLEE CLUBS
NEBRASKA University
KANSAS University
KANSAS STATE University
Friday, October 21
All Faiths Chapel
8 p.m.
Admission $3 at door

Leather ankle boots are practical and durable; create the right look with jeans or skirts.
$29.99 to $44.99
Buy now for best selection
Standing Room Only
Aggieville—1222 Morp

ARTS AND SCIENCES
STUDENT of the SEMESTER
Applications are now available in Eisenhower 113
Due Friday, November 4
Tour the World of Arts & Sciences
KSU

LAPTOPS & TRANSPORTABLES ARE FINALLY AFFORDABLE
WE'LL BEAT ANY VERIFIED ADVERTISED PRICE!
SHARP
PC-4502 - $999
• Lightweight single unit design
• 80180 compatible - 7.16 MHz
• Dual 3 1/2" 720 K Floppy Drives
• 640 K RAM expandable to 1.6 Mb
• Illuminated Supertwist LCD Display with EL Backlight
Lowest Prices in the Industry
PC 4521 - $1599
Same as 4502 except 20 Mb Hard Drive and Single 5 1/4" Floppy Drive
PC 7221 - $2495
• 20 Mb Hard Drive
• 80286 processor - 10 MHz
• 5 1/4" 1.2 Mb Floppy Drive
• 640 K RAM
• Expansion Slot
• Serial Port & Parallel Port
• Detachable Keyboard with 102 Keys
• Built in Adapter for RGB Color or Monochrome CRT
PC 7202 - $1875
Same as 7221 except 2, 5 1/4" Floppy Drives and no Hard Drive
100% Satisfaction Guaranty - Instant Replacement Policy
Full Manufacture's Warranty Plus 30 days 100% Satisfaction Guarantee. If you are not completely satisfied with the products, simply call to return within 30 days.
Computer Products Corp.
4657 MacArthur Lane, Boulder CO 80301 • (303) 442-6767
-ORDERS ONLY-
1-800-338-4273

OCTOBER LIMITED TIME! SPECIALS!
DENIM BUYOUT!
Levi's $12.99 STONEWASHED DENIM JEANS VALUES $30 - 40
PALMETTO'S $16.99 ACID-WASHED DENIM JEANS VALUE $39
Ocean Pacific $9.99 GRAPHIC SWEATERS VALUES $36 - 38
Reebok $12.99 FLEECE & KNIT TOPS VALUE $36
$4.99-8.99 Coke KNIT RELATED SEPARATES VALUES $24 - 38
DESIGNER AND NAME BRAND FASHIONS FOR LESS!!
EAST MANHATTAN
(1/4 mile East of Mall, next to K-Mart)
OPEN HOURS:
Mon.-Sat. 10 am -9 pm
Sunday Noon - 5:30 pm
EAST MANHATTAN
Fashion Company

Editorial

Occasionally some news is good news

Commentary

CATHERINE DOUD
Collegian Columnist

It usually happens this time of year. The news starts getting monotonous. Everything seems to be the same. If it isn't the candidates doing something inane, then the government is doing something inane. And if it isn't the government doing something inane, then somebody is going to war. And if no one is going to war, then there must be terrorists, scandals or economic disasters on the horizon.

The news always seems to be bad. It becomes depressing to open a newspaper or to watch the news. And then, just when you were ready to cancel your subscription, there appears the little story. It really isn't national news at all. However, it seems to gather the hopes of the American people, rally them and inspire them.

At this time last year, the story was the toddler Jessica McClure's entrapment in a well in Texas. The child was trapped while rescuers worked tirelessly to get her out. All eyes in the nation were suddenly riveted to this tiny drama, and, for a while, regular national news was put on the backburner. Luckily, Jessica was saved, and, except for the loss of toes from the cramped space, suffers today only from a slight injury from the incident.

This year it has happened again. Just when you thought you couldn't stand to hear any more about the presidential candidates' non-positions on key issues, here come the gray whales.

Three gray whales have become stranded on the ice floes of Alaska. Local Eskimo whalers have volunteered to cut holes in the ice with chainsaws to help keep the animals alive and to maintain a vigil over them. And from this beginning, it became national news. An ice-cutting barge is on its way to help cut a path to the ocean for the whales and the President of the United States has phoned his support and has encouraged the National Guard to do all they can to assist in the effort.

Meanwhile, the story of the whales has become a rallying cry for the nation. Despite talk of putting the distressed whales out of their misery, the story has made the news. Everyone wants to see the whales escape. People are following closely the progress of the ice-cutting boat, as well as monitoring the weather in Alaska. Now really, when have you ever been concerned with the weather in Alaska?

What is it about these little incidents that makes them national news? Every day, whales are slaughtered by whalers or dolphins are captured in tuna nets and slowly suffocated, yet this rarely galvanizes the public into action. Every day, children are lost, abused, molested or killed, and very few of these incidents make the national news.

What makes one toddler or three whales more newsworthy than the plight of the thousands of children, people and animals that suffer every day?

It isn't that they are more important than the rest of the problems; it's just that they're unusual. It's an excellent chance to blow up a small story and make it a media heyday.

Why does this happen?

Well, that depends. Both stories in this case were legitimate news stories of viable interest. Therefore, they certainly deserved coverage. But once they made the national news, it seems that they were adopted by people who were capable of making them even more newsworthy. For example, the whales wouldn't even have received Reagan's notice except that they were featured in the national news, and were therefore a good chance to show how environmentally-minded his administration is. And once Reagan stepped into the picture, the story become more sensationalized than ever.

Thus, the administration took advantage of the whale story and it became more sensationalized as the TV news showed pictures of a concerned Reagan on the phone to the whale supporters while a National Guard helicopter whirred overhead. Reagan's image certainly benefitted, but the effort to help the whales also benefitted.

But is this right? Do sensationalized stories like these take away from other newsworthy problems going on? Possibly.

But, it is still nice to see people willing to help each other, or animals. In a time of dark depressing news and campaign hype, maybe this sort of human interest stories is what we need to keep us opening the newspaper in the morning.

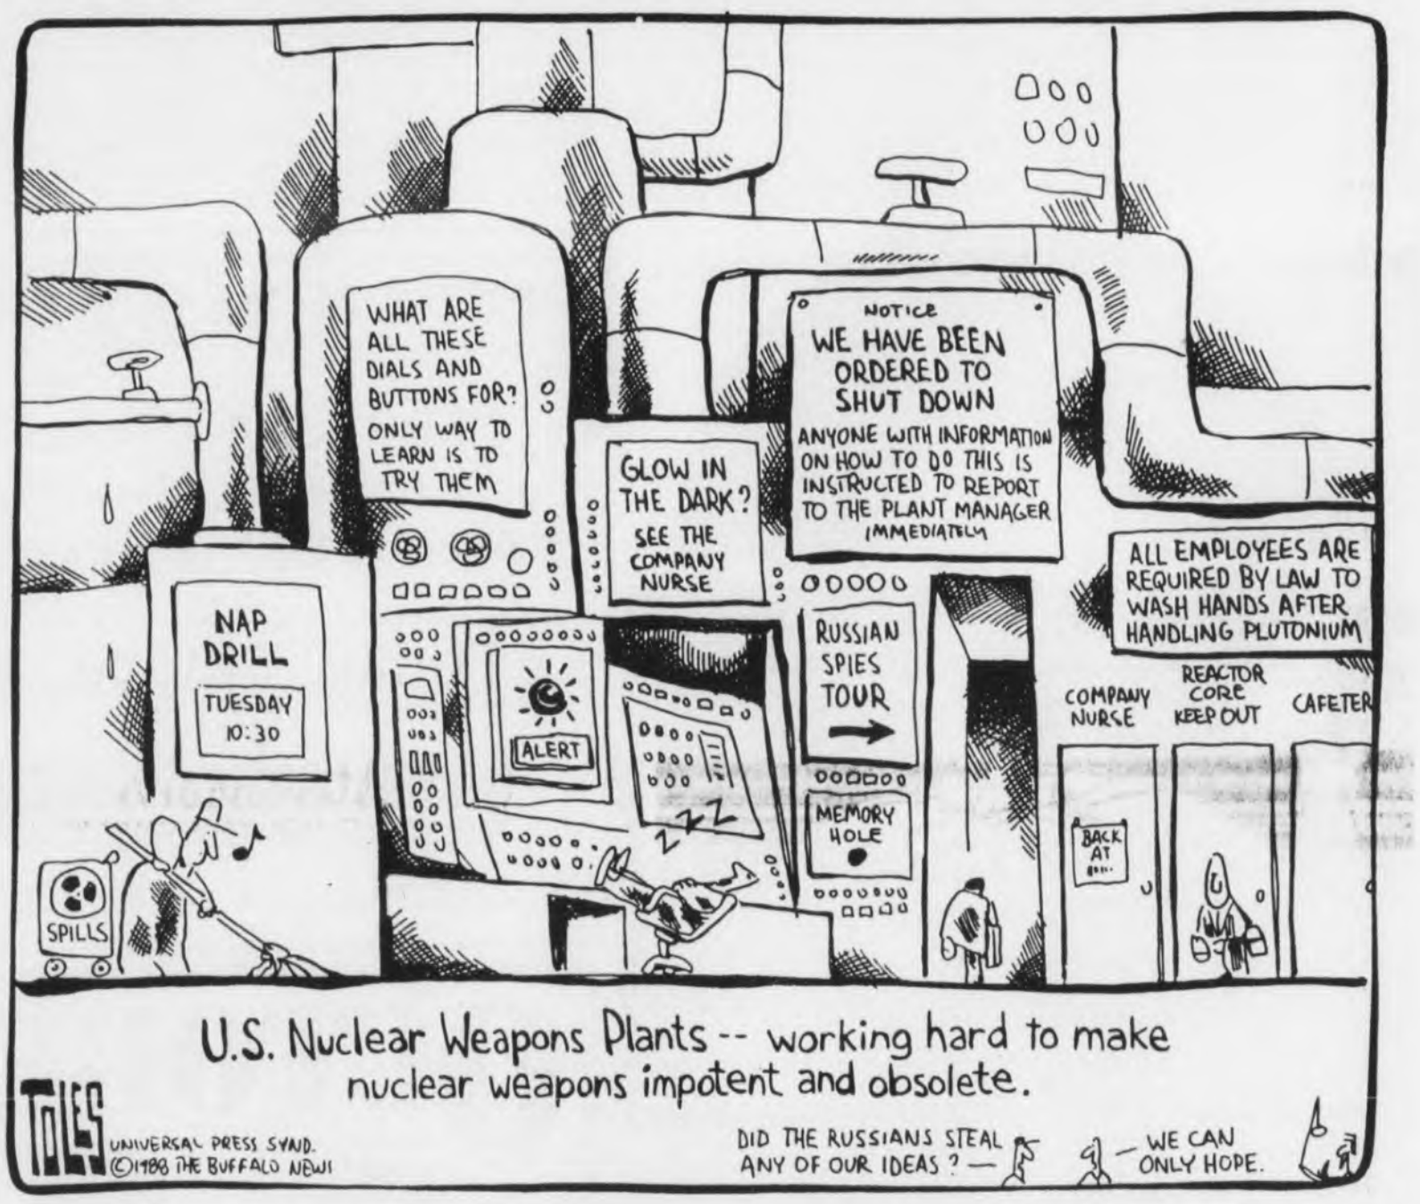
Sure, maybe there are more important things going on, but isn't it better to hear about the little things that are achieved by humans who are caring and supportive than not to hear anything positive at all?

Engineering class fee sets wrong precedent

Next semester, engineering students may have another fiscal concern besides tuition and books: a $10 fee for every hour of engineering classes they are enrolled in.

The College of Engineering says the fee is necessary. It will not be able to maintain the quality of the labs without more money. If the fee is implemented, it is expected to raise about $300,000.

All of the colleges and students can sympathize with the engineering college. The state has been less than generous with money.



The College of Veterinary Medicine has discovered in the past few years that the Legislature is hesitant to help out, even if a program is in dire need. It was worried it would lose its accreditation, so it begged for money to hire additional faculty.

The College of Engineering may need money, but implementing a user fee is a dangerous trend. It would be a sign to other colleges that students can be taxed for equipment they use in classes.

This not only would add to students' financial burden, but also would reduce the state's responsibility for funding Board of Regents schools. The Legislature would find it easy to say, "We can't help you, try your students."

Although it happens at other schools, students who pay tuition should not be expected to dole out money to individual colleges to take certain classes.

To assure that a college education is accessible in all curricula, the state should fund universities so that they are not forced to place additional fees on students for classes that their degrees require.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Letters

Sad meeting

Editor,

I recently attended a Students Against Driving Drunk membership drive meeting that actually hit me as being sad. An ad ran in the Collegian for two consecutive days announcing the meeting. With a paper that reaches more than 18,000 people, you would think that a two-day ad would reach almost everybody. When I walked into the room, I found, to my surprise, only seven people cared enough to attend.

Personally, I haven't met a single person who felt that driving drunk was all right. Coming from a high school of over 2,000 students, I have known people who have been killed and others who have been severely injured in alcohol-related accidents. Surely, the other six people at the meeting and myself aren't the only ones who are against drunk driving.

In my opinion, most people are afraid to come to a meeting because it isn't cool to partake in anything that is anti-alcohol. Believe me, I have had my share of alcohol, but either I was a responsible drinker or my friends took care of me. That is all that SADD is about; people caring for others and drinking responsibly. What is so uncool about caring about your friends? Fraternities and sororities are based on closeness among brothers and sisters, so why don't they send representatives to the meetings? There wouldn't even be anything wrong with whole fraternities and sororities becoming members. The same idea goes for residence halls, since quite a few close friendships begin there.

I would like for people to know that it doesn't just take joining SADD to show you care; it takes going to the meetings and perhaps expressing your ideas and concerns. Don't get me wrong. I'm not trying to make everybody feel guilty — just the ones who drink and are concerned about their friends and their own well-being.

For those interested, the SADD campus program contains three components:

Campus activities: providing alcohol information for students and placing advertisements in the K-State Collegian to discourage drunk driving.

University activities: taking SADD's message of responsible drinking behavior to the University community by working with local news media, concerned community organizations and local businesses.

The SADD "Contract for Life:" an agreement in which students pledge to get assistance rather than place themselves in a potential DUI incident, either as a driver or as a passenger.

If you are as concerned as I am, I would like to see a reaction. Please look for announcements of the next meeting and take advantage of the opportunity to do something productive. Who knows? Maybe you could save your own life by getting involved.

Corey Thomas
freshman in construction science

Students ignored

Editor,

Athletic Director Steve Miller should be ashamed of his first major decision in his new post. After accepting the resignation of coach Stan Parrish, he formed a search committee for a new coach using a recipe sure to leave a bad taste in the mouths of students. He decided to place five alumni, six faculty/staff members and only one student on this new committee. And it's not as if that one student doesn't have enough to do already. Of course, he's your Student Body President Troy Lubbers, whose term of office has almost expired and who is in danger of soon becoming yet another K-State alumnus.

What the issue really is about is how involved the students are to be in athletic department decisions. It seems to me that the student body is like a consumer that doesn't like the product being sold, or a stockholder that doesn't receive dividends. Over the years, students have been forced, through student fees, to pay for the various athletic department endeavors. After all, shouldn't the new basketball arena be more appropriately called the "KSU Student Coliseum?" I'm sure that many of those camping out for tickets think so.

What this all adds up to is, of course, doom for any chance for an athletic fee being approved by the students. That kind of proposal is close to being what our founding fathers called "taxation without representation." Remember, alumni may choose whether or not to support their alma mater, while the fee-paying student will be forced to support the athletic program.

So, if Athletic Director Miller really wants student support, he should approach us not through our already limited pocketbooks, but through our ideas and input. I believe he could accomplish this by having a much more representative distribution of students, alumni and faculty/staff members on his present and future committees. Four alumni, four students and four faculty/staff members would make a much better distribution and would be more palatable to the student body.

Otherwise, the KSU Athletic Department should just try to do the best it can with what is has: a below-average budget, a losing football team and low football ticket sales. So go Katie-Sue U. and beat up on the pathetically hopeless Jayhawks. It's too bad that we have to wait until November. And by the way, if Athletic Director Miller wishes for me to be on the search committee — I can't serve. I'm too busy studying.

M. Brent Stockwell
sophomore in political science

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR pertaining to matters of public interest are encouraged. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. All letters are subject to editing on the basis of space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to Kedzie 116.

Students need less help, report shows

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — The number of students enrolled in remedial education courses at Kansas universities dropped 22 percent after the schools adopted mission statements in 1986 diminishing the emphasis placed on helping students make up high school deficiencies, a report showed today.

Those taking remedial courses declined from 9,536 in the 1984-85 school year to 7,432 in 1986-87, according to a report presented to the Legislative Educational Planning Committee.

Similarly, the cost to the universities of offering remedial courses declined from $696,570 to $616,182, or 11.5 percent, between the two academic years, the study showed.

The Board of Regents' open admissions policy for graduates of Kansas high schools has contributed to the need for some students to learn things they didn't get in high school.

The regents proposed to the 1988 Legislature that the state tighten its admissions policy, adopting a "selective admissions" policy requiring students to complete a college preparatory curriculum or achieve certain scores on college entrance examinations to be admitted. However, the bill died in the House of Representatives.

While the universities did not abandon remedial education in their mission statements, they implied they were going to reduce the makeup course work to be offered.

The University of Kansas' mission statement said, for example, "Emphasis on the graduate program does not lessen the importance of the institution's undergraduate program, but has major implications for students enrolling with less than college-level preparation in reading, writing and mathematics."

Carolyn Rampey of the Legislative Research Department told the committee, "While the (KU) statement does not prohibit the offering of remedial courses, it strongly implies that students enrolling at the university will be expected to do college-level work from the beginning. Consequently, the University of Kansas offers fewer remedial courses than it did, although there are apparently no plans to eliminate remedial courses altogether."

She said some of the regents' schools are encouraging students who need remedial work to get it at a community college.

At KU, the number of students enrolled in remedial courses dropped from 1,727 in 1984-85 to 1,547 in 1986-87, or 10.4 percent.

The biggest decline was at Wichita State University, from 4,145 to 2,012, or 51.5 percent. That was the result of the university tightening its admission policy. WSU formerly admitted students even if they had not graduated from high school or earned a general education degree (GED).

Only at K-State did the headcount enrollment in remedial courses go up between 1984-85 and 1986-87. The increase at K-State was 34.8 percent.

Semester apartment leases rare

By Stephanie Morrill
Collegian Reporter

With increasing enrollment, many K-State students had difficulty finding a residence for a full academic year — but students who unexpectedly need semester leases may find themselves out in the cold.

"Most of the apartment landlords do not offer short-term leases, for a couple of reasons. First, it benefits the owners not to have any more move-ins or move-outs than necessary, and second, short-term leases require a lot of administrative time," said Tim Trubey, vice-president of McCullough Development.

"About 80 percent of the time required to rent an apartment involves showing the apartment, writing up the lease and checking the applicant's background," Trubey said.

Renting is organized this way because the landlord assumes most of the risk because a replacement who will rent for the remaining months may or may not be found, Trubey said.

"We do try to accommodate for graduating students who have rented from us in the past," Trubey said.

"If a student has rented from us during the previous year and is graduating, we will extend the lease for five months with a 10-percent additional rent increase. Any student who has rented two consecutive years with our company and is graduating may receive an extended lease without any additional fee," he said.

"The length of the lease for an apartment is decided completely on an individual basis," said Joann Krause, administrative secretary for the Housing Authority.

The Housing Authority deals strictly with 30-day leases.

Penalties for cancellation of a lease vary considerably.

"Our leases contain a specific set period of time that the apartment will be rented for and a specific amount of money," Trubey said.

"If a tenant cancels a lease, he or she is responsible for payment either until someone else rents the apartment or until the lease expires," he said.

"Finding an alternate tenant is a shared responsibility — if we find someone else to take over the lease, our company keeps $100 out of the security deposit," Trubey said. "The student must also pay for any advertising required to find a replacement, and must pay the cost for having the apartment rekeyed for security reasons."

This may seem like a hassle for students, but it may be the only solution.

"K-State does not offer semester leases for dorm rooms," said Rosanne Proite, assistant director of housing.

"Our budget is based on a year-long contract, and our personnel are hired for one year. If the rooms aren't full, we lose money because we're paying for staffing that we don't need," she said.

Prior to Aug. 15, a housing contract may be broken with a $100 cancellation fee. After this date, the Univerisity has a set of guidelines to consider before terminating the contract, Proite said.

"Because the guidelines are so strict, the number of cancellations has dropped considerably," she said.

Students who wish to cancel a housing contract must make a request which, if it meets the guidelines, will go to a committee consisting of two students and two full-time faculty members.

The committee reviews the request and discusses the situation with the student.

Most of the students who appear before the committee are granted cancellations, Proite said.

Limits sought on children's advertising

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate sent to President Reagan on Wednesday a bill reimposing time limits on advertising during children's shows and requiring stations to provide informative programming for children, but there were signs that Reagan may veto the measure.

Supporters called the bill "a victory for America's children," but the administration has labeled it "inappropriate, ill-advised and inimical to the spirit of the First Amendment," which guarantees free speech. The Justice Department has recommended that Reagan veto the bill on constitutional grounds.

The Senate approved the bill on a voice vote. The House had passed it June 8 on a vote of 328-78.

Rep. Edward J. Markey, D-Mass., a co-author of the measure, said the bill "is the most important congressional statement on children's television in a generation." He said it would "challenge broadcasters to educate children creatively rather than to exploit children commercially."

The bill would reimpose advertising limits abandoned by the Federal Communications Commission four years ago. The FCC had said commercials would be best regulated by the open marketplace.

FCC Chairman Dennis Patrick said the measure was "both unnecessary and ill-advised," particularly because the FCC has been considering taking action related to th commercialization of children's television.

Children's TV advocates who pressed for the bill said the FCC's philosophy of deregulation was harming children.

The bill would limit commercials in children's programs to 10½ minutes per hour on weekends and 12 minutes per hour on weekdays.

HOUSE 1: The Beginning
HAYMAKER HALL
Oct. 27, 1988
8 p.m.-Midnight
Movies, Dances, Casinos, Haunted Houses
Open to ALL hall residents and guests!

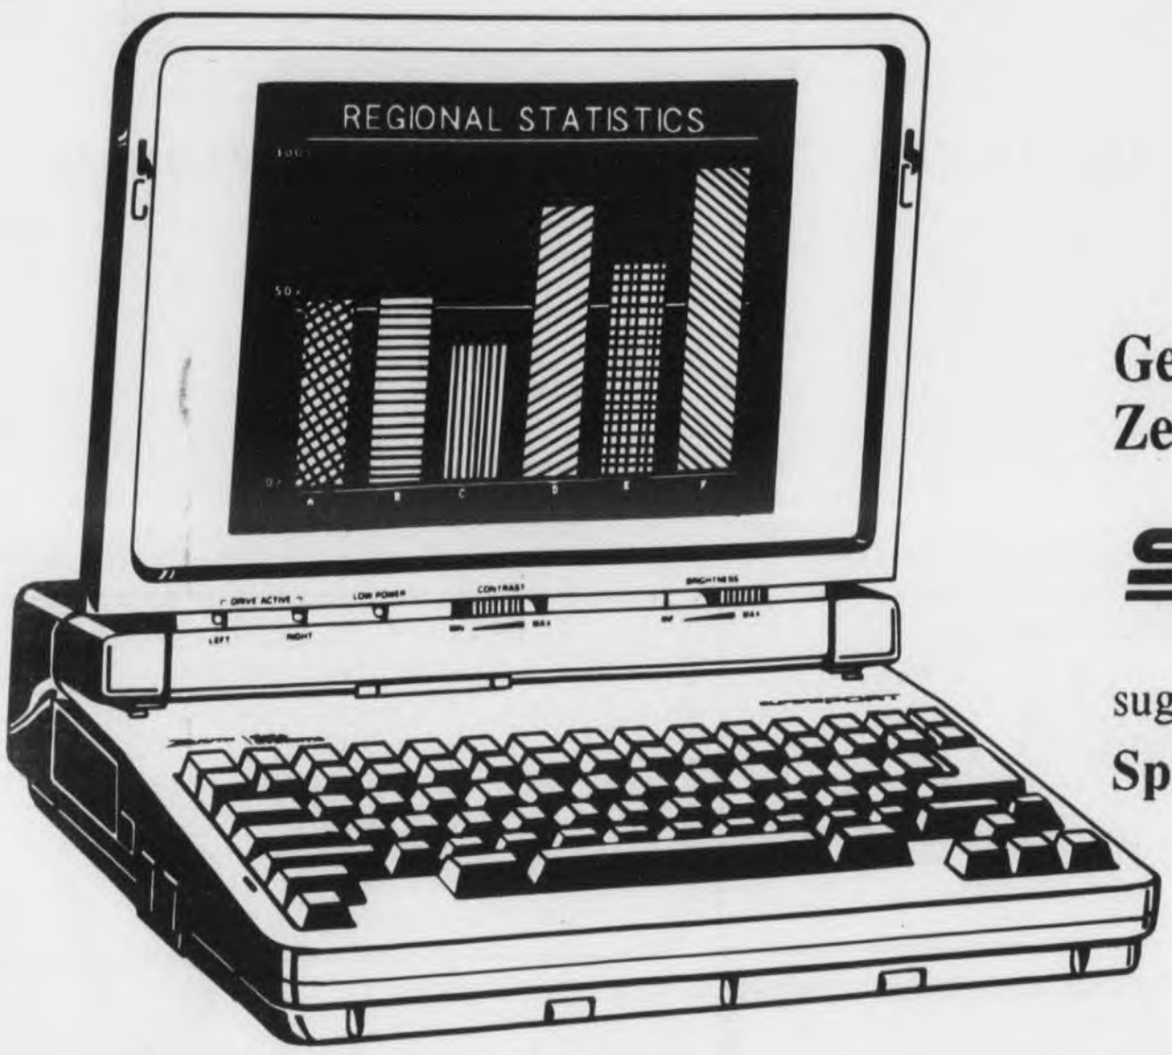
LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
Insulated Overalls & Coveralls
Coats, Jackets & Sweatshirts
Manhattan's Largest Dealer of Carhatt
E. Hwy. 24 (2¼ miles east of the Mall)
Mon.-Sat. 9-5:30 Thurs. 9-8:30 Sun. 1-5
776-6715

Discover LAUNDRY LAND
Enjoy your leisure time!
Drop off your laundry . . . we'll do it for you 7 days a week!
Bring us all your washables for same day wash-dry-fold laundry service.
Dry cleaning and self service also available.
Try our quick professional service, you'll be glad you did!
2048 N. Tuttle Creek Blvd. 776-1939

Horticulture Club
PUMPKIN SALE
Mon., Oct. 24 and Tues., Oct. 25
UNION and outside WATERS HALL (between Waters & Farrell Library)
If bad weather, sale 1st Floor Waters
8-5 p.m.
WE'RE THE CHEAPEST PLACE IN TOWN!
Perfect for dorm rooms!

ESTABLISHED 1920
THE Stevenrons CLOTHING COMPANY
FREE!
IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS, A YOUNG MAN WOULD GET A FREE NECKTIE WITH A MAJOR PURCHASE.
The Good Old Days are Back.
Buy any suit or sportcoat/slacks combination and get your choice of any necktie in the store FREE. (Choose from our large collection of ties, values up to $30.)
New fall and winter suits and sportcoats are in stock. Stop by today and check them out.
Offer expires October 29, 1988
1342 WESTLOOP PLACE • WESTLOOP SHOPPING CENTER
MANHATTAN, KANSAS (913) 539-8081

WYOMING RED'S
...the great new casual rugged look for men
• The seasons new colors: Black - Grey - Khaki
• Quilted pullover shirts
• The new "relaxed fit"
• River Drivers knit pullovers
• Cotton twill shirts
• Pleated pants
• Fully detailed pull-on pants
• Sweat Shirts
Locally Owned
BORCK Brothers
1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-8436
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.-Sat. til 8:30 Thurs.



The Kansas Senate does not have an educator . . . Lana Oleen can address the tough educational issues for our district.
•KANSAS MASTER TEACHER
•Guest lecturer for K.S.U. classes
•Communications Director for State Dept. of Human Resources
Lana Oleen KANSAS SENATE
Paid for by Lana Oleen for Kansas State Senate
Kent Glasscock, chairman

McCall's Shoes
Leather forecast.
Plunge into this Fall's fashions in our leather boots. In exotic colors, with superb detailing. And leather as soft as a pony's nose.
Dexter
McCall's Shoes
Put Yourself in our Shoes
313 POYNTZ DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

1800 Claflin
776-4111
Open 2 p.m. to 2 a.m.
CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR Established 1983
"The Aggieville Alternative"
See us for Group Discounts
Friday: Live Band ACE
Saturday: $Dollar Days$ $1 Pitchers
Thurs.—Come party with us before Def Leppard
Sun.—Now open at noon, come watch sports on the big screen TV
Tuesdays: Pool Tournament at 8 p.m.

You Want The Best PC Values on Campus?

DONE

Get Terrific Student Pricing At The Zenith Data Systems Open House

SUPERSPORT™

suggested retail price: $2399

Special Student Price: $1439

The Zenith Data Systems Supersport™

Great news! Zenith Data Systems is headed your way with a special campus extravaganza! It's your chance to enjoy unbelievable student values on Zenith Data Systems' family of personal computers and monitors. From laptops... to desktops... to super-advanced systems. All complete with PC compatibility and MS-DOS.®

As your Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact, we'll give you a full demonstration. And we'll match you up with the right software and peripherals. To give you a computer that can take you through school and into the future!

So stop by this special event from Zenith Data Systems. And get fantastic values on the PCs that can take you all the way from college to career!

Stop by the Zenith Data Systems special campus celebration at:

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCTOBER 24 & 25
9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Contact your local Student Representative
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
k-state union bookstore 532-6583

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

© 1987, Zenith Data Systems

Jason Poersch is the first graduating senior in the school's six-year history. Poersch plans on attending K-State after graduation from The Living Word Christian Church School.

An alternative

Religious school combines lifestyles with education

From a distance, Scott Heckman's U.S. Government class resembles a typical high school class. As in most high schools, the majority of students are wearing tennis shoes and blue jeans.

But a closer look reveals that Heckman's class is smaller than most high school classes. Only 12 students are in class on this day — and 12 is perfect attendance.

Looking even closer, some of Heckman's students are obviously older than others, at least by more than a year. But none of the students has been held back a year, and their grades are above average.

A definite sign that Heckman's class isn't in a public school is the religious messages on the bulletin boards and the Bibles under each student's desk.

Heckman teaches at The Living Word Christian Church School, essentially a one-room school, east of Manhattan.

When it began in 1982, the school had 29 students in kindergarten to eighth grade and was housed in a renovated roller-skating rink.

The school now has two additional buildings, 88 students and will graduate its first student in May.

First-grader Tyler Roberts gets help from teacher DeeAnn Carlson during class. Most teachers have an area of expertise to help give students a well-rounded education.

Although most of the subjects taught are traditional — English, science and math — the way in which they are taught is not. Members of The Living Word Christian Church interpret the Bible literally and the students are taught accordingly. Every student's course load includes a required Bible course which is taught every day but Mondays, when students attend chapel.

"Scripture comes through in all classes," said Monte Poersch, principal. "Even in mathematics, which is an ordered science, the students are reminded that God created an ordered world."

The school uses A Beka textbooks for most of its classes. The A Beka books are made specifically for Christian schools and allow the schools to teach courses, such as biology, with a fundamentalist approach.

In the case of biology, the A Beka textbook says that although the Bible was not meant to be a scientific journal, it does shed light on the creation of the earth and of people. It also states the case for creationism and points out fallacies in the theory of evolution.

"We let the students see both sides. We don't shelter or protect them from the other ideas," Poersch said. "We present both sides to let them see it in context, then in comparison to Scripture."

Heckman's U.S. Government class is a prime example. The freshman, sophomore and junior classes staged debates which presented liberal and conservative views on such topics as First Amendment protections, restrictions on the movie "The Last Temptation of Christ," U.S. aid to Latin America and government subsidies for childcare centers.

Most of the arguments espoused one of two absolutist positions. The debate on the movie raised the question of banning sexually-explicit movies, and intoned a distaste for films depicting "the Lord our Savior in a false light." The opposite view, based on the First Amendment, argued that people have the right to view whatever they want.

At the end of the class period, Heckman pointed out that both sides could cite Bible passages to support their cause.

Having so few students in the school often poses unique situations. The government class Heckman is teaching will not need to be taught again for four years. Such is the case with many other classes.

Most of the teachers have an area of expertise such as government, biology or Spanish, so students receive a well-rounded education, Heckman said. The school's only senior has computer and drafting classes as independent study.

Heckman, who taught for eight years in public schools and is now in his second year at The Living Word Christian School, said the atmosphere at the school is beneficial to his teaching.

"I like the smaller classes and the freedom to present my views of what I think is important, which I couldn't do in the public schools," Heckman said.

Poersch said the students take a standardized test which is also used by the Manhattan public schools. The results show that students from The Living Word Christian School score one to two grades higher than students in the public schools.

Poersch said the school does not have a band, cafeteria or athletic teams because there is not enough money for the equipment or facilities.

There is no tuition at the school, but parents are told that the cost of each child's education is $160 to $180 per month and are asked to donate half of the cost. Poersch said the donation is not mandatory.

"We have never turned anyone away. We just ask the parents to give what they can, even if it's in the form of work," Poersch said. "The school is a ministry of the church. God has a vision for the school."

In the past year, another Christian school operated in Manhattan. The Baptist Temple Academy had 15 students last year and graduated one. The school was closed this year because the building did not comply with federal asbestos laws.

The pastor of the church, Tom Albright, said the cost of removing the asbestos would have been more than the building is worth. He said the church is looking for land to build another school.

The Baptist Temple Academy used the Accelerated Christian Education method, a different method of teaching than The Living Word Christian School used. The students sit in enclosed desks in one room and raise a flag to ask questions.

Albright said that when the students reached the ninth grade, they were steered into college preparatory courses or vocational courses.

Principal Monte Poersch holds the door open for first-grader Melissa Hermesch at the end of the day. Many parents carpool because there is no bus system.

Lori Heckman is able to teach both second and third grades at the same time because of the small number of students in the school.

story by Brian Hummell

photos by Joe Freeman

Field trip offends parents

By The Associated Press

WHEATON, Ill. — A teacher who wanted to show what life could be like under despotic rule staged a 27-hour mock lockup for students, including strip-searches and a meal of fish-head soup, but the exercise was attacked by parents as too harsh.

The voluntary field trip over the Columbus Day weekend was intended to give juniors and seniors at Wheaton North High School a taste of criminal-justice systems, including — for volunteers — that of an imagined Third World country.

Many of the students and some parents praised the experience. But one parent said she hadn't realized when she gave her son written permission to participate that he would be hog-tied and left alone in a room for 2½ hours for refusing to eat fish-head soup.

"This is not anything I would have signed a consent for," said Connie Northrop at a school board meeting Monday. Her son was among the 34 students who participated in the mock, 27-hour lockup at Wheaton College.

"This is an outrage. The word 'outrage' doesn't even begin to touch how I feel," said another parent, Kay McKeen, whose teen-ager didn't participate but whose concern prompted her to address the panel.

The Board of Education has asked school administrators to re-evaluate the program, arranged by American government teacher David Oliphant, and report back by Nov. 14, board President James Carr said Wednesday.

"The intent of the program was to have the young people learn and gain an appreciation for our system of democracy and our system of laws," Carr said.

"Also to give them somewhat of an understanding of what it would be like to be in prison other than perhaps in Du Page County. Example: a Third World situation," he said.

"I believe conceptually it's a very good one (program), but we certainly can improve on our communication on some of the specifics" of what students were to be subjected to.

Among those specifics were strip-searches, handcuffs, fish-head soup and chants of "you're the scum of the earth" and "you're dirty."

The simulation was held on the fifth floor of the Billy Graham Center in connection with the Christian college's Institute for Prison Ministries.

It was supervised by Institute Director Don Smarto, who acted as "warden," and two Wheaton College students, who acted as "guards."

Students from the college have participated in simulated lockups through the sociology department since 1983. Other high school students have gone through it, and it has been the topic of feature stories in the Chicago Tribune and the Chronicle of Higher Education.

School Superintendent Richard Short said of Oliphant, whom he and Carr both described as an outstanding teacher: "The objectives that he had were all satisfied. My concern, and that of the parents, was that he went beyond experiences reasonable for high school students. Particularly when the parents were not fully aware of what was going to happen."

KAES develops new guidelines for releasing plant varieties

By Mark Rader
Collegian Reporter

The Kansas Agriculture Experiment Station has recently published new guidelines on the release of new plant varieties.

The purpose of the publication is to assure consistent policies regarding the increase and release of horticultural and agronomic plant varieties and seeds, said Kurt Feltner, KAES associate director.

The guidelines apply to varieties either developed by the KAES on its own or in cooperation with other states and organizations. The policies also assure equitable distribution of new varieties, Feltner said.

The KAES and the Kansas Crop Improvement Association are responsible for the release of new plant varieties the University helps to develop.

The new guidelines also set policy for the University in regard to accepting royalties from new plant varieties.

While K-State does not usually charge royalties on varieties it releases, other institutions K-State works with do charge royalties, said Lowell Burchett, executive vice president of the KCIA. In this case, the KCIA is responsible for the collection of these royalties.

K-State is responsible for delivering research to the public and tries to respond in the best economic interests of Kansas farmers, Burchett said.

Burchett cited two examples of this. A neighboring state university released a new soybean variety and offered it to Kansas to use. However, the economic gains of the new strain could not justify the royalties charged, so it was not released in Kansas.

In another case, a different university released a soybean variety that would be compatible to southeast Kansas. The economic benefits of having the new strain would overshadow the royalty cost, so Kansas released the variety for use.

Another change in guidelines for the KAES is in the exclusive release of new varieties. Previously, a new release was made available to the public as a whole, Feltner said.

However, problems occurred with the release of a variety that wasn't considered a major crop in the state. Seed companies were unwilling to spend money marketing a new variety if it couldn't show a profit due to its wide availability, Feltner said.

ATTENTION STUDENTS
Are you suffering from any neck or back pain?
CONSIGLI CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC
is now offering a
FREE CHIROPRACTIC EXAMINATION
(a $30 value)
for STUDENTS ONLY!
This examination includes Spinal, Orthopedic, & Neurological testing.
Call now for an appointment.
776-1850
Linda D. Consigli, D.C.
1325 Anderson Ave.

TERRIFIC THURSDAY

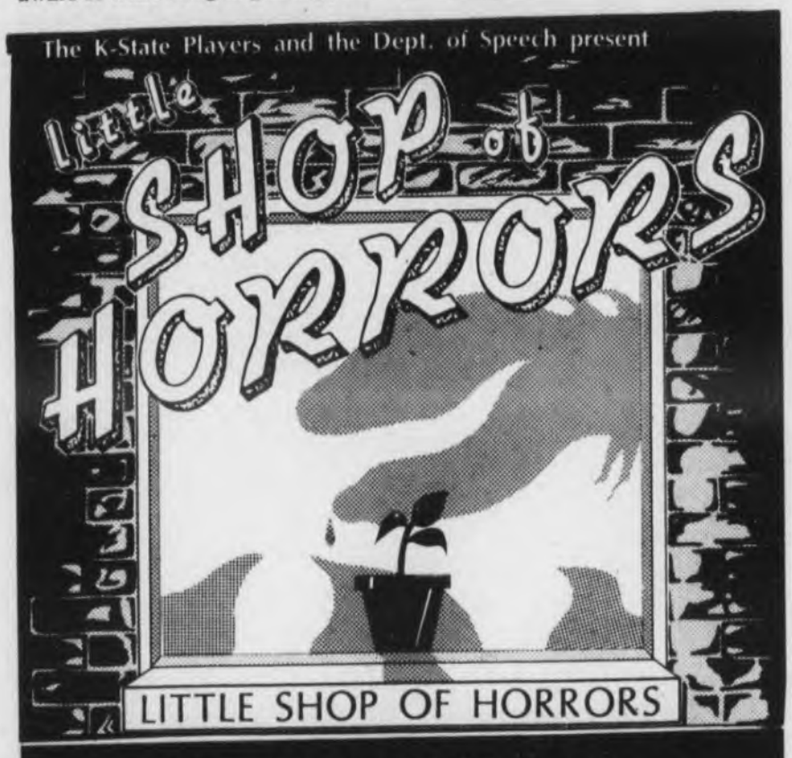
99¢ well drinks
50¢ kamikaze shots
$1.50 BBAMB
5:00-11:00, burgers, burgers & more burgers!
PLUS
Backroom Dancing
KITE'S BAR AND GRILL
18 to enter, 21 to drink
619 North 12th, Aggieville, 539-9794

McCain auditorium

Vienna Choir Boys
Sunday, October 23
4:00 p.m.

The world's most beloved choir hasn't inspired delight since 1498 simply because they wear sailor suits and are adorable. They can sing! And sing they do: sacred and secular music, Austrian and American folksongs, even an operetta. Come, hear them, and find out why they've been captivating American audiences for 36 years.

"Full rich sound, superb intonation, and impeccable ensemble.... They put on a heckuva good show."
--Louisville Times



General Public: $15, 13, 10
Senior Citizens: $12, 10, 8
Student/Child: $10, 8, 5

Charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA at (913) 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5p.m. weekdays.

Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and ManhattanArts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at (913) 537-4400.

This program is presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

The K-State Players and the Dept. of Speech present

Oct. 12-16, 18-22 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 Special Matinee 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Box Office, 532-6398, 12-5 weekdays
Admission $7 Students and Senior Citizens $6

R•O•Y•A•L

Portraits for Royal Purple will be taken
8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
1:30 p.m.-5:30 p.m.
K-State Union Room 209
Please bring fee card or student ID
539-5229
Goodnow– Oct. 17-19
Haymaker– Oct. 19-21

P•U•R•P•L•E

BROTHERS
In Aggieville

99¢ Night
TONIGHT
Pitchers • Kamis
Wells • Pizza
All for only 99¢ each!
Don't forget... ΠΚΑ Lil Sister Olympics, Friday 4-7 p.m.
•Ideal Greek Walkthrough
•Paper Airplane Relays
•Hamburger Eating Contest
1120 Moro • 18 To Enter-21 To Drink • 537-9511

ANNOUNCING:
Yearbook Organization Group Pictures
Make Your Appointment NOW!
Appointments can be made at Kedzie 103 cost is $10
Pictures will be taken:
When: Sept. 19-Nov. 4
Where: Fairchild 202
Who: You
8 X 10 color prints will be available through Photography Studio

Costume Alley
Oct. 21 & 22, Noon-6 p.m.
Oct. 24-31, Noon-8 p.m.
OVER 5,000 ACCESSORIES
Costumes starting at under $10
•Make-up
•Rubber Masks
•Pre-made Costumes or Create Your Own!
•Colored Hairspray
•Wide Variety of Costumes
Popeye & Olive Oyle, Mr. & Mrs. Santa, Mr. & Mrs. Satan, Playboy Bunny, Priest & Nun, Martha Washington, Raggedy Ann, Angel & Devil, Bumble Bees, Clowns, Doctor & Nurse, Wizard of Oz characters, Kermit, Uncle Sam, M*A*S*H Couple, Pumpkin People, Cop & Prostitute, Cowboy & Indian, Witches, Chickens, Gorillas, Bears, Geisha Girl, Gangster, Boy Scout, Belly Dancer, Carter, Conehead, E.T., Khomeni, Nixon, Reagan, Flapper Dresses, French Maid, Yoda & more.
Located in the Party Dome above Brother's
1122 Moro—Aggieville

539-5303
One number brings out the best at KSU
Now, at KSU, there's just one number to remember for fast delivery of pizza that's every bit as good as one you'd go out for.
Godfather's Pizza™ Now you don't have to settle for anything less, anymore.
1118 Laramie
Aggieville

Large Pizza for a Medium Price
Present this coupon and receive any large pizza for the price of a medium.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer. Limited delivery area.
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU

Two Large Pepperoni Pizzas only $9.99
Present this coupon and receive TWO large pepperoni pizzas for only $9.99.
WE DELIVER
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offer. Limited delivery area. Add $1 for delivery.
Godfather's Pizza
Expires: 11-11-88 KSU

Gretzky returns to Edmonton

By The Associated Press

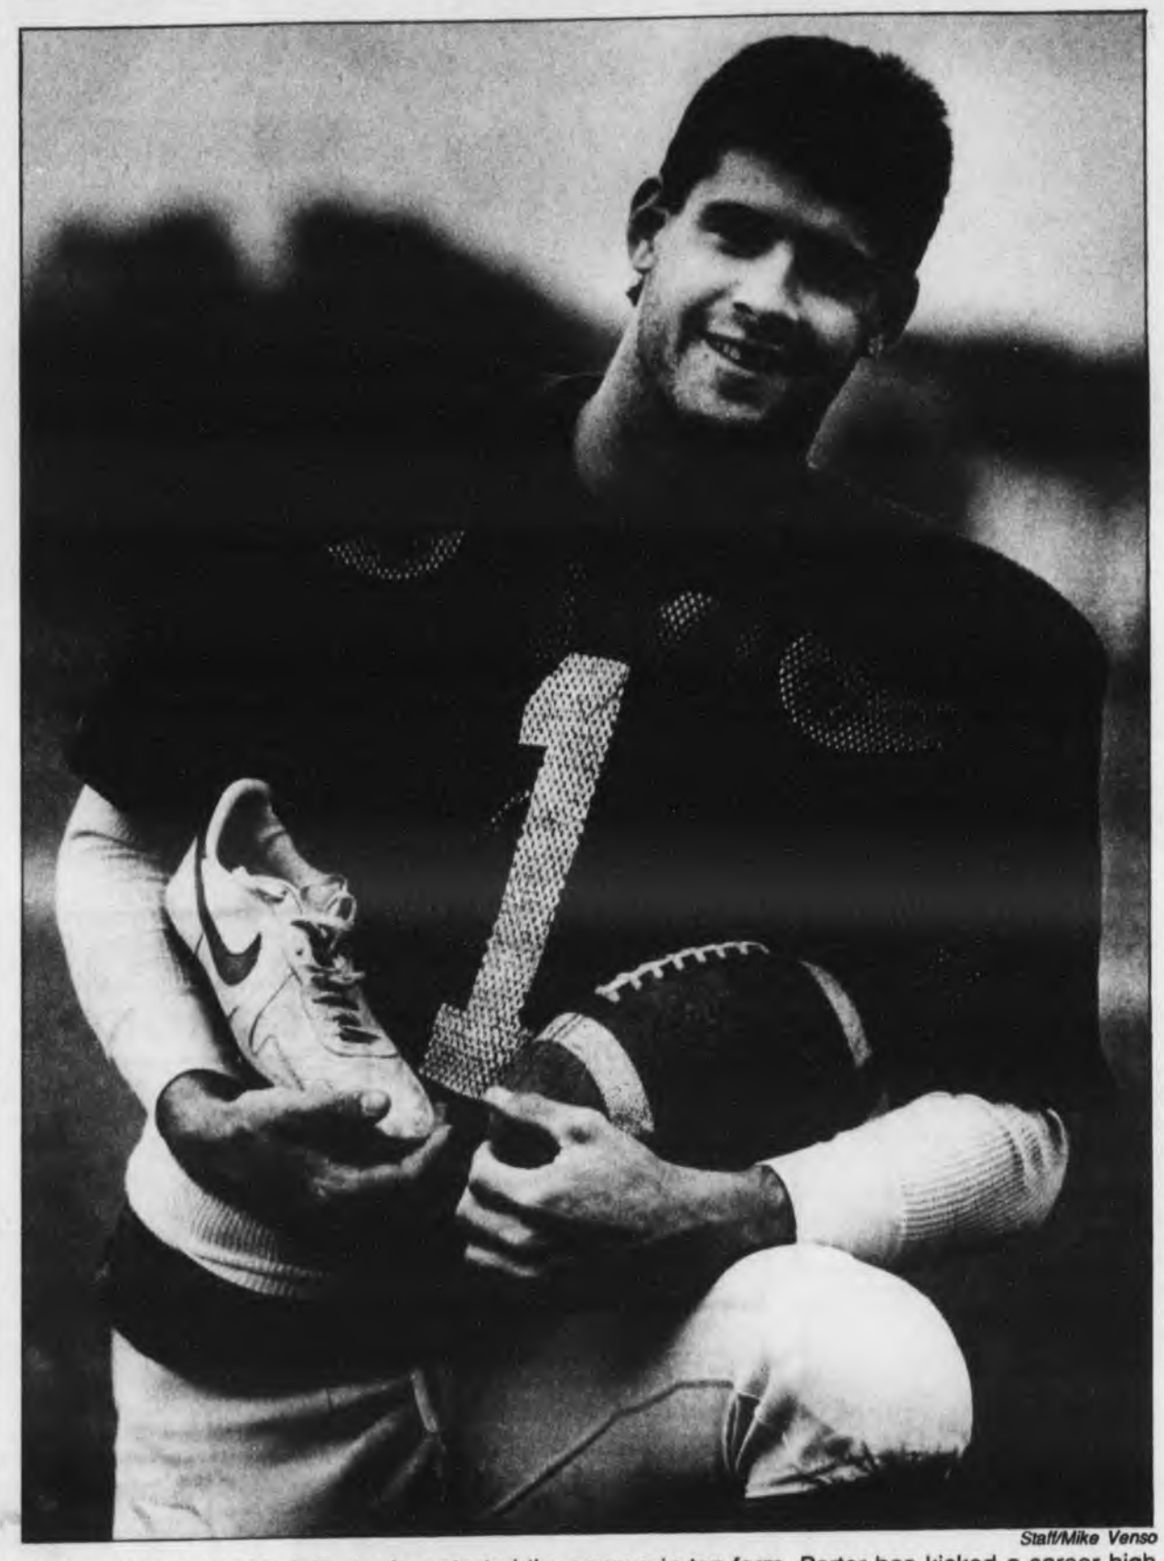
EDMONTON, Alberta — Wayne Gretzky was greeted with a thunderous four-minute standing ovation Wednesday night as he returned to Edmonton for the first time since the stunning trade that sent him to the Los Angeles Kings in August.

The sellout crowd at Northlands Coliseum, where he built his reputation as "The Great Gretzky," stood and cheered while he skated around the ice with his new teammates. Some fans waved Kings banners and the noise did not stop until the American national anthem was begun.

Gretzky did not acknowledge the cheers, although he was smiling broadly as he sat on the bench while the ovation continued.

There were pro-Gretzky banners throughout the arena, including one that said, "99, You're Still 1," and another that read "Down the Drain Without Wayne."

When he took the ice for his first shift after the Oilers drew a penalty 50 seconds into game, Gretzky received another loud ovation. He got the puck behind the Kings net and got another cheer.



About a half-hour before the game, many fans moved to ice level and leaned against the glass to watch Gretzky in his pre-game skate.

Wednesday's buildup began when the media flocked to Northlands Coliseum to watch the teams warm up. The Oilers said at least 230 people would cover the game, a figure befitting a Stanley Cup final.

Edmonton coach Glen Sather tried to keep the game in perspective, yet admitted, "all the players are excited" about facing their old teammate.

"You can't trade a player of that magnitude and not have it effect your team," Sather said. "You can't expect to replace the continuity we had with Wayne."

Porter leads 'Cat 'country club'

Staff/Mike Venso

Senior place-kicker Mark Porter has started the season in top form. Porter has kicked a career-high 53-yard field goal this season and is 7-for-8 on field goals and 12-for-12 on extra points.

By Tom Morris
Sports Editor

Most place-kickers are content with booting the ball through the uprights, but not K-State's Mark Porter. He strives for precision and practices hitting the uprights.

"If you can hit the uprights consistently from 35 to 40 yards out, you know you can be more true in a game," Porter said.

Odd as it seems, Porter's technique is working. He hit a career-high 53-yard field goal Saturday at Oklahoma and has missed only one field-goal attempt this year while going 12-for-12 on extra points.

Porter's practice regimen is simply another quirk in the life of a place-kicker.

Notre Dame's Reggie Ho waves his hands at his side before each attempt as if he were playing the piano. Former Dallas Cowboy kicker Rafael Septien used to spend hours in a sensory deprivation tank, a metal cubicle placed underwater which completely isolates the inhabitant.

But Porter, a 6-foot, 180-pound senior, doesn't consider himself different from the rest of the Wildcats.

"I'm a regular guy," he said. "In past years, I was kind of outspoken ... and was kind of like a cheerleader on the sidelines because I couldn't do anything on the field. This year, though, I've kind of sat back and thought more about my kicking."

Porter attributes his success this season to graduate assistant coach Manny Matsakis, who is in his first year at K-State. Matsakis was a three-time All-American kicker at Capital University and has had stints with the Indianapolis Colts and the Philadelphia Eagles of the NFL.

"(Matsakis) knows what you go through because he's been there himself," Porter said. "He knows all the ins and outs. He can see what I'm doing wrong, whereas before I had to correct myself."

With his new coach's assistance, Porter hopes to avoid a disastrous last half of the season, such as he experienced last year. After starting out eight-for-eight, Porter missed a field goal attempt against Oklahoma, had a last-second try blocked by Kansas and missed again the following week at Iowa State.

> "I'm a regular guy."
> —Mark Porter
> K-State kicker

To Porter, though, that's ancient history.

"I considered it kind of a fluke deal. Everyone goes through a slump ... that's the only way I can explain it," Porter said. "It wasn't like I wasn't hitting the ball well. It was just one of those things that wasn't meant to be."

Because he is kicker, Porter receives some good-natured ribbing from his teammates. They refer to the kickers and the punters as the "country club," Porter said.

"Everyone says we've got the easy life because we don't have to do all the hitting and running," he said. "But we put in a good workout just like everyone else. They just don't realize it."

Mark Porter Profile

At K-State: Listed a the No. 1 place-kicker for the fourth straight year. He has led the team in scoring the past three seasons, and has kicked three field goals in a game on three occasions.
High School: Three-year letterman at Salina Sacred Heart. Set a school record for most catches in a single game (eight) and longest field goal (40 yards).
Personal: Born Dec. 3, 1965. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Porter.
Major: Physical education.

Kenney resumes starting quarterback role for KC

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — He's back — once again.

Bill Kenney, the veteran Kansas City Chiefs quarterback, has been restored to grace as the team's No. 1 signal caller and will start Sunday against the Detroit Lions, Coach Frank Gansz announced Wednesday.

It's happened before, and before, and before, in Kenney's 10 years with the Chiefs, who've frequently made changes in an effort to add vitality to a persistently flagging offense.

Just as he did last year when he brought Kenney back as the starter following the players' strike after giving the job to Todd Blackledge in training camp, Gansz spoke Wednesday of Kenney's big-play capability.

"We've played seven games and we haven't gotten to our established, desired objective of 24 points," the coach said. "That's not lofty. We have to make big plays — and Bill Kenney has a big-play capability."

The Chiefs got rid of Blackledge, once expected to be their quarterback of the future, after last season, and this year settled on Kenney over the veteran Steve DeBerg.

But at halftime of the second game, against Seattle, DeBerg replaced Kenney and had held the starting job ever since. But he has not been able to produce, and Kenney takes over an offense that ranks last in the AFC in scoring and 23rd in the league in yardage.

DeBerg, in his five and one half games as a starter, completed 111 of 205 passes for 10 touchdowns. He was intercepted 10 times, and in his last four starts — three losses and a tie — he threw seven of the interceptions and was sacked 18 times.

DeBerg said he didn't expect the benching.

"I don't know if it's deserved or not," he said. "That's not for me to evaluate. The bottom line is that we haven't been winning. When that happens, they make changes."

Kenney, who completed 18 of 44 passes with three interceptions and no touchdowns before being benched against Seattle, will lead the struggling Chiefs (1-5-1) against Detroit (1-6) before an expected full house.

They had a sellout in Arrowhead Stadium last Sunday for the matchup with the traditional rival Los Angeles Raiders and the added attraction of Kansas City Royals baseball star Bo Jackson playing his first NFL game of the season.

And on Tuesday, Western Auto bought up a block of 32,000 tickets to assure another sellout. The auto supply company plans to distribute the tickets as a promotional attraction.

In a roster move Wednesday, the Chiefs signed cornerback Calvin Loveall, 26, who was released two weeks ago by the Houston Oilers. Loveall, 5-foot-9 and 182 pounds, formerly was with the Denver Gold of the United States Football League and spent the past two seasons with the Canadian Football League's Ottawa Rough Riders. He was an all-Big Sky Conference selection when he played for the University of Idaho.

Loveall takes the roster spot vacated Tuesday when the Chiefs waived Larry Moriarty, who had started three games at fullback.

Moriarty said he felt like an outcast with the Chiefs because the coaches seemed to lose faith in him and teammates didn't seem to share his emotion in trying to pump up the fans from the sidelines.

Last week, Moriarty angered some of his defensive teammates by going full-speed in practice, and ending up in a couple of fights with linebacker Angelo Snipes.

Moriarty figured his days were numbered after the practice-field incident, and he was convinced of it when he didn't touch the ball against the Raiders on Sunday.

The team made the change with plans to re-sign wide receiver Mike Jones.

Dodgers take commanding 3-1 lead

Los Angeles streaks to one-run victory

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Reliever Jay Howell got even by getting Mark McGwire with the bases loaded in the seventh inning Wednesday night, preserving the Los Angeles Dodgers' 4-3 victory over the Oakland Athletics and moving them within one game of the World Series championship.

The crippled Dodgers will try to win their sixth title and first since 1981 when ace Orel Hershiser faces Storm Davis in Game 5 Thursday night. Of the 35 teams that took a 3-1 lead in the Series, 30 went on to win.

Howell, victimized by McGwire's game-winning home run in the ninth inning a night earlier, got revenge this time. He relieved starter Tim Belcher with two outs in the seventh ahead 4-3, but a walk and error loaded the bases.

McGwire, just 1-for-13 in the Series, swung at a first-pitch fastball and popped it straight up to first baseman Tracy Woodson. Howell finished for a save in the same ballpark where fans constantly booed him last year when he pitched for the A's.

He ended it by striking out A's home run king Jose Canseco, who hit a grand slam in the first game, on a 3-2 pitch with the tying run on first and getting Dave Parker on a foul pop to third.

The Dodgers ended a streak of 13 consecutive victories by the home team in the World Series. They did it the hard way, with top hitters Kirk Gibson and Mike Marshall unable to start because of injuries and catcher Mike Scioscia forced to leave with a twisted right knee in the fourth inning.

Oakland's starting lineup had outhomered Los Angeles 132-36 this season, but Belcher and Howell continued the Athletics' Series-long slump.

Belcher, just the third pitcher to start in the Series on his birthday — he turned 27 — went 6 2-3 innings and allowed three runs, two of them earned, on seven hits.

Dave Stewart, the two-time 20-game winner, took the loss.

Hershisher, Davis to meet in Game 5

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Oakland Athletics get a break in Game 5 of the World Series. Orel Hershiser won't be hitting.

The fifth game on Thursday night is in the home of the American League team, so the designated hitter will be used.

The A's do have another problem though, Hershiser will be pitching. Oakland will go with Storm Davis.

Hershiser threw a three-hitter in Game 2 and went 3-for-3 with an RBI as Los Angeles beat Oakland 6-0. He was the first pitcher since Art Nehf of the 1924 New York Giants to get three hits in a World Series game.

"I don't pride myself on my hitting," Hershiser said. "But it's lots of fun."

Hershiser does pride himself on his pitching, though, and nobody has ever done it much better over a six-week span.

Hershiser made four appearances in the National League playoffs against New York and pitched a shutout in Game 7 to beat the Mets 6-0 after picking up a save in Game 4. He has pitched 19 1-3 consecutive scoreless innings in the postseason and is the only player ever to throw shutouts in the playoffs and World Series.

"Orel is just on a different level right now," Dodgers right fielder Mike Marshall said. "When we take the field with Orel on the mound we feel we can't be beat."

Hershiser finished the regular season with a record 59 consecutive scoreless innings and has pitched seven shutouts in his last 10 games.

"It's unbelievable what he has accomplished," Dodgers manager Tommy Lasorda said. "To continue that kind of pitching for so long, under so much pressure is just unreal."

Hershiser, 23-8, pitched five straight shutouts in September and then broke Don Drysdale's 20-year mark of 58 straight shutout innings with 10 scoreless frames against San Diego on Sept. 28.

Sports Briefly

Lasorda to speak at K-State

K-State baseball coach Mike Clark has announced that Tommy Lasorda, manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be in Manhattan to speak at a fundraiser for the Wildcat baseball program.

The event is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Dec. 17, at Keck's Steak House in Manhattan. Tickets are $25 and only 500 are available. For more information, or to order tickets, call K-State's baseball office at 532-5723.

Pacers win exhibition game

WICHITA — Reserve center Greg Dreiling hit one of two free throws with 40 seconds left as the Indiana Pacers held off a late rally by the New York Knicks to claim a 95-94 NBA exhibition win Wednesday.

Chuck Person scored 22 points and grabbed eight rebounds for Indiana. New York's Patrick Ewing had 27 points and nine rebounds.

Dreiling's free throw gave Indiana a 95-91 lead but Mark Jackson answered with a 3-point basket with 22 seconds left for Knicks.

The Knick's Gerald Wilkins missed a short jump shot with seven seconds remaining and Kenny Walker missed on a follow shot.

Jackson to start Sunday

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. — The Los Angeles Raiders will start a backfield of Heisman Trophy winners Bo Jackson and Marcus Allen this week when they play at New Orleans, Coach Mike Shanahan said Wednesday.

Hall's community phone system unique

Residents like economy, efficiency of central lines

By Audra Dietz
Staff Writer

Moore Hall's community phone system isn't always convenient, but residents say it is more economical and more efficient than private phones.

Moore is the only residence hall that doesn't provide private phones. Each floor has five phone booths and one pay phone, so residents share talking time.

Two receptionists sometimes handle up to 100 calls to the front desk's three phone lines in an hour, and that can be difficult, said Dorothy Hutchcraft, senior in history education.

Hutchcraft is on the Moore Hall Governing Board and has lived in Moore five years.

Two receptionists work during the peak hours, which are 6 p.m. to midnight Sunday through Thursday and 10 p.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday, Hutchcraft said. Other residence halls have one receptionist on duty at all times.

"Two people are not always enough. We are trying to get more two-receptionist shifts," she said.

During peak-calling periods, residents can't always take a call on their own floor because all the phones are being used.

"Sometimes, you have to go to a different floor to use the phones, but it's not that bad. I've only had to do it twice this semester," said Abby Keyes, freshman in dietetics and a Moore resident.

Also, when the front desk's phones are busy, it is impossible to place an emergency call because University operators can't interrupt busy lines, said Betty Bubendorf, campus operator.

"We don't have the authority to (interrupt lines). I don't now what (a caller) would do in case of an emergency," Bubendorf said. "The only thing I can do is verify that there is conversation on a busy line."

All the calls residents receive must first go through the front desk. A receptionist then transfers the call to the proper phone, Bubendorf said.

Residents in K-State's eight other halls pay an extra $40 a semester for private phones. But having a private phone has its disadvantages, Hutchcraft said.

"Our biggest advantage over the private lines in other halls is that our receptionist can take a message if the student isn't in the room," she said.

At other halls, students must have their own answering machines if they want to record messages from calls.

Without an answering machine, callers are forced to place a separate call to the receptionist to leave a message — a call most people won't make, especially when calling long distance, she said.

Although Moore's phones aren't inside the rooms, many residents consider this an advantage.

"There's more privacy, because you get calls outside your room and don't have to bother your roommate," said Kristi Brown, junior in hotel and restaurant management and a resident of Moore last year.

Brown said the front-desk message service was reliable.

"It's like your own private answering machine. Someone sits there 24 hours a day and takes your calls," she said.

Residents' inability to call each other is the biggest problem with Moore's phone system, Keyes said.

"You can't call into the other rooms in the hall, so you have to go find whoever you want to talk to," she said.

Staff/Greg Vogel

Kenny Heintzelman, junior in hotel and restaurant management, operates an intercom switchboard to inform a resident in Moore Hall of a phone call. Moore is the only hall that doesn't provide private phone lines.

However, long-distance calling is convenient, residents said. All the phones have touch-tone capability. Residents may enter a credit card number to place a long distance call or may place collect calls.

Keyes said she probably would make more long distance calls if she had a private line.

"Then my bill would go up," she said.

Overall, residents said the phone system is not bad, but private lines would be nice.

"Still, if it was my choice, I'd have my own phone," Keyes said.

Nuclear concern growing

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Twelve lawmakers worried that the nation's nuclear deterrent may be compromised by safety problems at U.S. weapons plants asked President Reagan on Wednesday to reassure Congress the facilities are being operated safely before their reactors are restarted.

"Unless we solve the current problems at U.S. defense production facilities like Savannah River, we will provide the ultimate unilateral concession — the unilateral disarming of our nuclear deterrent," said one of the 12, Rep. Bill Clinger, R-Pa.

The Energy Department shut the only active weapons reactor at the Savannah River plant near Aiken, S.C., in August after the plant operator, Du Pont Co., ignored an unexplained power surge while restarting the reactor.

The department has said it plans to start one of the three operable reactors in December or January, after completing safety reviews and improvements, with the other two following later in 1989.

TACO SALAD
$1.99
Tonight Only
10/20/88
The Chef
111 S. 4th

QUALITY NATURAL FOODS
from your local co-op store
811 Colorado
539-4811
People's Grocery Cooperative

First Visit
Welcome Special
Now $28 reg. $59 value
Dr. Eric J. Wisdom D.D.S.
Family/Dentistry
•Dental Exam
•2 x-rays
•Complete cleaning
1445 Anderson
776-1771
Call for appointment

Parkside
CONOCO & U-HAUL
Fall Special
•lube
•oil change
•oil filter
•check antifreeze
•check belts/hoses
•up to 5 qts. oil
Get your car ready for winter
for $13.95 by Appt.
537-1201
1026 Poyntz Ave.

BELIEVE IT!
CHRISTINE'S HAS GOTTEN EVEN BETTER!
Announcing the opening of a bigger and better full-service Bridal, Tuxedo, and Party-Wear store.
CHRISTINE'S THE WEDDING COMPANY
Now at a NEW LOCATION!
—1223 Moro—
776-7387
Mon.-Fri. 10-5:30
Thursday till 8 p.m.

NEW
THE PARTY BALL™
A PORTABLE, DISPOSABLE KEG ALTERNATIVE
It's the new way to party from Coors and Coors Light. It's filled with over five gallons of brewery-fresh draft beer. It's portable. It's disposable. It's the preferred alternative for any party. It even comes in a box with its own liner, so you can ice it down and take it anywhere.
So get one and have a ball!
IT'S JUST NOT A PARTY IF YOU DON'T HAVE A BALL
PARTY BALL MAIL-IN REFUND $4.00
$4.00 REFUND
COORS OR COORS LIGHT
PARTY BALL
To receive your Party Ball refund, mail in your circled original cash register receipt and UPC Symbol from the wrapper of a Coors or Coors Light Party Ball. Also include your name, address, city, state and zip code. • Refund letters must be postmarked no later than December 31, 1988. • Limit $4.00 per household or address. • Offer valid only to persons of legal drinking age. • Void where prohibited by law. Specified proof of purchase must accompany offer. • Please allow 8 weeks for delivery of refund check. Send to: Coors Party Ball, P.O. Box 4714, Monticello, MN 55365
REFUND OFFER EXPIRES 12-31-88

NON-Trivial PURSUIT
National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1988
1. How many cases of whiskey were sold in Kansas in 1987?
2. One 12 oz. can of beer, one 5 oz. glass of wine, and one 1 / oz. glass of 80 proof liquor all contain how much alcohol?
3. What is the most often committed violent crime in the U.S. today?
4. How many gallons of beer were sold in Kansas in 1987?
5. What is the conviction rate for those arrested for D.U.I. in Riley County?
Answers: (1) 486,138 (2) .6 oz. (3) drunk driving (4) 48,664,514 (5) 98%
All University Casino Night
Saturday, Oct. 22, 1988, 8 p.m.-Midnight
at Chameleons (in Aggieville)
FREE ADMISSION with KSU ID
Funded by City of Manhattan Special Alcohol Program Fund
Alcohol & Other Drug Education Service

Entertainment

Def Leppard no stranger to adversity

By Judd Annis
Collegian Reviewer

Bramlage Coliseum will be the site of a comeback of sorts tonight, a chance to see Def Leppard perform after a three-year absence from the concert trail.

The concert will be the first full-scale rock show performed in the arena and will provide ticket holders with a chance to see one of the most popular British rock groups of the 1980s.

The band, which is more popular in the United States than in its native country, is riding a wave of support greater than in any other period in the group's history.

Their current album, "Hysteria," has been to No.1 twice, with another single currently in the Top 20 on both radio and Music Television.

When the LP was released, it quickly sold two million copies in little more than a month, and had reached sales of six million by September.

Things haven't always been so rosy for this young band, however.

Def Leppard got its start in the steel town of Sheffield, England.

Singer Joe Elliott joined guitarists Rick Savage and Pete Willis to form Deaf Leopard, a name taken from a fantasy band Elliott dreamed up in school.

With a slight change in the group's title to avoid confusion on the punk scene, Def Leppard was formed.

In 1978, after guitarist Steve Clark and drummer Rick Allen joined the trio, the group released its first EP "Getcha Rocks Off." Bankrolled by Elliott's parents, the record found its way into radio stations around the Sheffield area, eventually selling 25,000 copies and breaking the British Top 100 chart.

This success earned the teen-age band an opening spot on AC/DC's 1979 English tour.

In 1980, the band released its first full-length album, "On Through the Night." The album met with mixed reviews, but increased awareness of the group.

In 1981, Def Leppard recorded its first album under noted producer Mutt Lange. The record, "High 'n' Dry," was their best effort yet, encompassing a harder, cleaner sound that established the band in the forefront of melodic metal.

Although most of the members still lived with their families while not touring, on the road they were known for their fast-lane lifestyle.

This road life finally took its toll on the band, which finally replaced Willis because his penchant for hard partying had become intolerable.

Willis' successor was guitarist Phil Collen, who was recruited from the British glam band Girl.

In 1983, the group's second collaboration with Lange produced the hugely succesful "Pyromania," an album whose sales that year were second only to Michael Jackson's "Thriller," selling more than six million copies.

With such popular support, Def Leppard was able to headline its own tour for the first time.

Just as things were soaring for the band, tragedy struck.

While en route to his parents' home on New Year's Eve in 1984, Allen was involved in a car accident. Although he survived the wreck, his left arm had to be amputated.

As Allen was recovering, Elliott contracted a case of the mumps and Lange was also injured in an accident.

Four years later, the band, again with Lange's help, emerged with a new album, and Allen succeeded in constructing his own state-of-the-art percussion style.

Playing a revolutionary drum kit by using a series of foot pedals to perform the function of his left arm, Allen is one of the premier performers on the skins today and lives as an example of courage, tenacity and triumph over a disability.

In the nine years Def Leppard has been making records, much has happened to the rock music scene.

The band's role in the splintering of heavy metal has been as originators of "pop metal."

With driving melodic metal songs featuring anthematic vocals and a thick backing sound, the band's music has a polished and distinctive quality.

Unlike many rock groups, Def Leppard claims little loyalty to the blues, although its live shows traditionally contain one or more classic oldies.

Def Leppard's current album is a thickly polished production that makes the most of modern musical technology.

The group is not embarrassed to admit to harnessing these advances in music for its own sound, although it claims to prefer to use it sparingly.

The group has worried about the momentum lost after its peak album "Pyromania," and has tried to win back popular support from its American fans.

The band has been on an extensive tour for more than a year, attempting to show its following that it's back, not only in record stores but in concert halls as well.

Def Leppard's live show is one of the most exciting on tour this year.

Extremes in noise may cause damage

By Erwin Seba
Senior Staff Writer

Lovers of heavy metal may maintain that if your ears don't bleed, the music isn't loud enough.

But if the music makes your ears ring, it's too loud, said Harry Rainbolt, associate professor of speech and an audiologist at the speech and hearing clinic.

"If you leave some place and your ears ring, you know you've exceeded the limit," Rainbolt said.

Research on the effects of loud music, and loud noise in general, on human hearing is limited, Rainbolt said. Most research to determine what level of noise causes permanent impairment has been performed on animals.

"Part of the problem with noise is, for ethical reasons, you don't use humans for research," Rainbolt said.

And people have different levels of tolerance to excessive noise, he said.

"Some ears are more resistant to noise-induced hearing loss," Rainbolt said.

Studies on human hearing tolerance have been unable to predict what determines resistance to noise-induced hearing loss. Rainbolt said new types of ear plugs allow music to be heard while reducing the volume of noise. Cotton in the ears does not make a good makeshift ear plug, Rainbolt said.

"Cotton doesn't help much," he said. "It's too porous. The sound can go right through it."

According to "Noise: the Unwanted Sounds" by David Lipscomb, other signs of dangerously high noise levels are:

- Inability to or extreme difficulty in conducting voice communication in the presence of noise.
- Pain in the ears or a tickling or piercing sensation in the ears.

After enduring high noise levels, the sensitivity threshhold of a person's hearing is usually raised. In other words, a person cannot hear lower volume sounds as well as he or she could before enduring the high noise levels.

'Little Shop of Horrors' rollicking musical

By Tom McLaughlin
Collegian Reviewer

Play Review

The K-State Players and the Department of Speech have reason for celebration with the opening of their production of "Little Shop of Horrors," a rollicking, rock-and-jazz musical by Howard Ashman and Alan Menken.

"Little Shop" is set in a skid row flower shop owned by Mrs. Mushnik, played by Jan Lee, junior in theater.

She has two employees: an overtly shy and nerdy young man named Seymour, played by Tony Espinosa, freshman in theater, and a pretty but scatterbrained young woman named Audrey, played by Maria Santucci, freshman in theater.

Seymour is secretly in love with Audrey, who is in turn in love with a sadistic dentist named Orin, played by Ben Hoffman, sophomore in theater.

This love triangle, coupled with the poor sales of Mushnik's flower shop, provides the early conflict of the play. The satire and dramatic structure both unfold as Seymour, "a botanical genius," introduces his strange new extraterrestrial plant — appropriately named the Audrey II — to Mushnik and Audrey.

Luke Kahlich, director and choreographer of the show, and Steve Rushing, musical director, provide the audience with many impressive highlights.

One of the most impressive is the opening production number, "Skid Row (Downtown)," which shows the audience how trapped the homeless and impoverished are in America.

The number also effectively collages the hidden aspirations and hopes of Audrey and Seymour, who dance while reaching out toward each other amongst the transients who are in their way.

This serious message, which is developed throughout the performance, is tactfully hidden by Kahlich within the humor that each of the characters assist in developing.

Mike Smith, junior in engineering, and James Smith, sophomore in theater, do an admirable job synthesizing and creating a plant voice and body which work as one.

Jan Lee, who plays the part of Mushnik, a part originally written for a man, erupts with her energy and talent by making a potentially overlooked role an incredibly memorable performance.

Her hooplah-style of dance in "Don't it Go to Show Ya Never Know" and her and Espinosa's ability to execute Kahlich's humorous Latino-tango interpretation of "Mushnik and Son" provided the audience with laughs and the high-energy which characterizes this production.

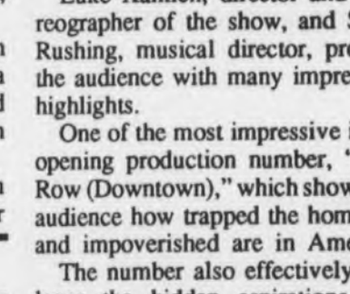
Kahlich's use of the trio also proved to be an effective one.

Lead by the stage experience and strong voice of Wendy Walburn, senior in musical theater, both Jan Remy, junior in theater, and Ayne Steinkuehler, freshman in theater, rounded out the street-wise and comedic street urchins who become a unifying thread of music and comedy.

Hoffman's interpretation of Orin provided the audience with numerous laughs as he thrusted his groin to the musical explanation of how he put his sadistic energies to professional use in becoming a "Dentist."

Maria Santucci, whose character voice was a tad too broad and lost at times, managed to fill an acoustically awkward theater, and the hearts of audience members, as she sang "Somewhere That's Green."

Although Seymour was not quite nerdy enough for me, Espinosa did bring a refreshing realism to the role and showed craftsmanship in his interpretation of Seymour.



Dana Pinkston, costume designer, enhanced the visual aspects of the show with her creatively colorful and realistic costumes.

Al Sheffield, scenic designer, and Michael Kinney, assistant scenic

■ See SHOP, Page 14

How to run your own show.

The American Express® Card can play a starring role virtually anywhere you shop, from Tulsa to Thailand. Whether you're buying a TV or a T-shirt. So during college and after, it's the perfect way to pay for just about everything you'll want.

How to get the Card now.

College is the first sign of success. And because we believe in your potential, we've made it easier to get the American Express Card right now. Whether you're a freshman, senior or grad student, look into our new automatic approval offers. For details, pick up an application on campus. Or call 1-800-THE-CARD and ask for a student application.

The American Express Card.
Don't Leave School Without It.℠

© 1988 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

TRAVEL RELATED SERVICES

ARE WE BETTER OFF?

In the last two years our state government has given us . . .

1. A state census that excludes 40,000 of our friends and neighbors and their families in the 22nd district.
2. No action on a promised windfall tax refund while $300 million sit in banks in Topeka.
3. A promise to bring Washburn into the regents system.
4. A special session costing taxpayers $250,000 that accomplished nothing.
5. A 40% increase in their own pensions.

We deserve better. I owe no political favors to any one person or party in Topeka. I have walked this district. I've heard your concerns. I will represent you in the Kansas Senate.

—Rod Olsen

VOTE

Rod Olsen

★★STATE SENATE★★

Paid for by Rod Olsen for Senate Committee, Dick Green, Riley County Treasurer

The Right Voice at the Right Time

Whale rescue mission continues in Arctic waters

By The Associated Press

BARROW, Alaska — Eskimo whalers wielding chainsaws worked Wednesday to keep alive three whales trapped by Arctic ice, while a rescue effort using an ice-breaking barge got under way from Prudhoe Bay.

Two Army National Guard Skycrane helicopters were rigged to take turns towing a 185-ton Hovercraft-type ice-breaking barge to the whales' location about 230 miles to the west.

Bitter weather hampered the journey, expected to take 25 to 40 hours over desolate Arctic Ocean ice.

The first of the powerful transport helicopters lifted off at noon (4 p.m. EDT), and the early going was "real, real slow," said Sheryl Deveau, a spokeswoman for the rescue effort.

The Skycrane was dragging the barge along "an inch at a time," she said, with 10 miles of sand bars, mud and shallow water before the barge would reach smooth ocean ice where the going would be easier.

By 4:30 p.m., the helicopter had towed the barge about four miles from the dock and it appeared things were looking up.

"It's moving about 7 miles an hour now," said Mike Haller, a National Guard spokesman. "They've picked up some speed. They'll continue on until darkness, and then they'll return here for some maintenance before picking up the mission again at first light."

Workers labored through the night to unload 70 tons of aviation fuel to lighten the VECO Inc. barge, which has no propulsion system. The start of the rescue operation was delayed Monday while the barge was repaired, then again Tuesday after the craft bogged down in mud near shore.

Bitter cold and constantly shifting ice trapped the animals in shallow water two weeks ago as they were migrating south to warmer waters. Since then, they have surfaced every few moments for air in holes about 18 miles northeast of this Inupiat Eskimo village.

North Slope whalers have cut at least one new breathing hole for the whales, but by late Tuesday the animals had shown no interest in them. The whales appeared tired but were holding their own, biologists said.

While a National Weather Service ice analysis showed no open water in the whales' vicinity, Jim Brooks, the acting director of the National Marine Fisheries Service in Alaska, said a lead, or pathway, through the ice had been spotted about five miles from the whales.

Video pirates have new system to beat

By The Collegian Staff

People attempting to copy rented video movies onto blank tapes may be hindered by fuzzy, distorted pictures with wavy lines because of a new distortion program.

The system that discourages would-be piraters and blocks them from copying copyrighted movies is called Macrovision. This program alters the synchronized pulses that are used by a television to keep the picture steady, according to reports published recently in New Scientist and Radio Electronic magazines.

"Video tape manufacturers started using Macrovision last January to replace the older, inadequate Copyguard system," said Gary Robinson, repair shop manager at Conde Music and Electric, Inc.

Current plans have all tapes to be released in 1989 guarded by the Macrovision system, he said.

Pulses are used by the automatic gain control (AGC) circuit in a video recorder to measure the video signal's strength and control level that is recorded on the copy tape, according to the articles. Macrovision then replaces some of the normal pulses with extra large ones.

These pulses are misread by the AGC circuit and it causes a false measurement. This measurement causes the recorder to put only a third of the normal signal onto the blank tape, making the pictures fuzzy and unsteady — and unwatchable.

A Macrovision altered signal copied onto a blank tape causes random distortions, bright flashes of light and fading of the picture, Robinson said.

"(Macrovision-caused distortion) can sometimes be picked up by some VCRs when the master tape is being played. It is rare when this happens; about 99 percent of the machines will not have any problems with the tapes," he said.

Court rules ex-wife not to learn of AIDS

By The Associated Press

OLATHE — A judge issued a permanent injunction Tuesday barring a man's doctors from telling his ex-wife that he had tested positive for the AIDS virus.

A lawyer for the man, identified in court documents only as John Doe, said the ruling could have nationwide implications.

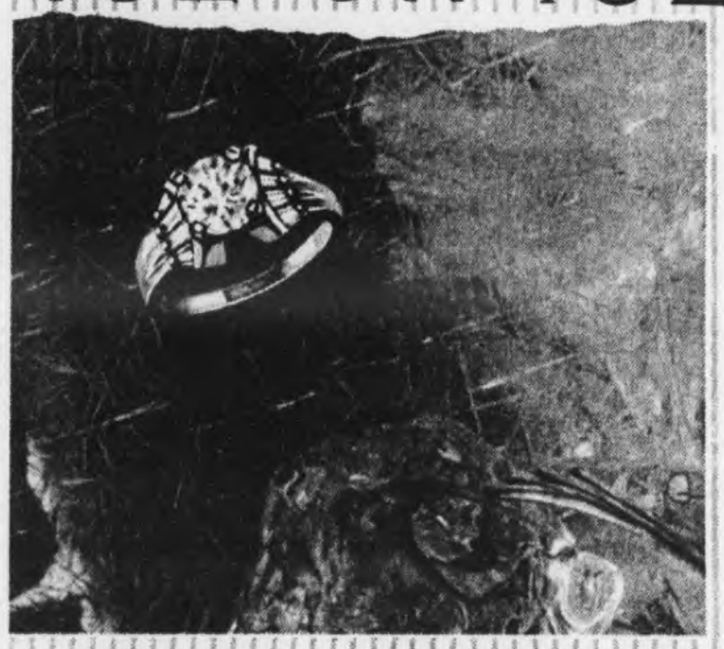
Johnson County District Judge Marion Chipman said in his order that the man "... would be substantially and irreparably injured by the release of his HIV results ... to his ex-wife" by Prime Health of Kansas City, a health maintenance organization. Court documents said the man does not have AIDS even though he tested positive for the virus.

Prime Health said it provided health care for both the man and the woman. The company had said the woman should be advised of the test results "even if she has not had sex with him recently, to alert her to the potential danger she may face."

Frank Saunders, a lawyer for Prime Health, said after the ruling that the health organization would abide by the ruling. Asked about an appeal, he said, "I doubt it. They're divorced now. ... The threat isn't there anymore."

David Waxse, an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer for the man, said the ruling could be the first nationwide where a person has had to use injunctive relief to prevent release by his health care provider of the information that he has tested positive for AIDS.

"For other court cases with similar issues, it could have nationwide implications," Waxse said. "We think his (Chipman) legal reasons may have application to a wide range of cases. There have been no other cases were a patient has had to obtain injunctive relief against his health care provider."



Chipman ruled the man's personal rights to privacy would be violated if Prime Health were allowed to reveal the results to anyone, including the man's ex-wife.

Chipman's opinion noted that the man signed an affidavit saying he has no intention of engaging in sexual relations with his ex-wife and that the woman has tested negative twice for AIDS exposure, the second time after her last sexual contact with the man two years ago.

Get-Out-the-Vote Republican Caravan
NOON on Friday, Oct. 21—Triangle Park in Aggieville
Fred Logan (Chairman of Kansas Republicans)
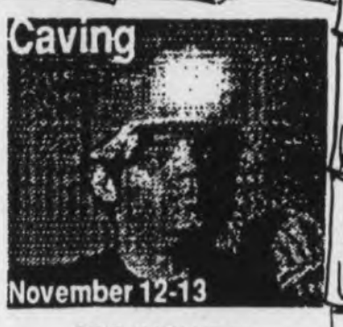
Jim Braden (Speaker of House) will be present to support the Candidates
Lana Oleen, Ivan Sand, & Joe Knopp
Pd. for by Riley Co. Republican Central Comm. (Don Roof—treas.)

CPI photo finish
one hour photo
Save 50%
on 4x6 color processing & prints
Each picture is the best it can be or we reprint it free... now!
NO LIMIT ON ROLLS!
4x6 Color Prints in One Hour
50% off
No limit on number of rolls discounted with this coupon. Print length varies with film size. C41 in lab process only, not combinable with other processing and print offers.
Coupon good through Jan. 7, 1989
CPI photo finish one hour photo
Color Enlargements in One Hour
25% off
Free Custom Cropping! 5x7, 8x10, 8x12 and 11x14 from 35mm and 126 negatives. (5x7 is only size available from 110 and disc.) Not combinable with other enlargement offers.
Coupon good through Jan. 7, 1989
CPI photo finish one hour photo
one hour services: photo finishing • enlargements • reprints • double prints
also available: wallet photos • instant color passport photos • video transfer • copies from prints • cameras and accessories • film
Manhattan Town Center
main entrance by food court

THE UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS SCHOOL OF LAW
in conjunction with the
K-STATE PRELAW CLUB
Presnts a program for students interested in pursuing a career in law.
Thursday, October 20, 7 p.m.
K-State Union, Room 206
Professor Stan Davis, KU law students and a Manhattan attorney will be available to discuss with you your law school plans and answer questions about prelaw education, the law school curriculum, the admissions process, financial aid, and job opportunities.



HOLIDAYSTYLE
ICE ON ICE

TELL HIM A LITTLE ICE IS ALL IT TAKES TO MELT YOUR HEART.
Pour on the ice. Coolly elegant diamond jewelry that's guaranteed to melt your heart. Ask the man in your life to come in and see our selection of exquisite diamonds from the Ice on Ice Collection. They're sure to have temperatures rising.
Danenberg's Holiday Jewelers
A DIAMOND IS FOREVER.
Across from the Courthouse Plaza
Downtown, Manhattan
425 POYNTZ MANHATTAN 913-776-7821

THE UPC ADVENTURE
UNION PROGRAM COUNCIL... YOUR ENTERTAINMENT ALTERNATIVE

All The King's Men
Academy award for Best Film, Best Actor, Best Supporting Actress-1949, Best Film—New York Film Critics-1949. Academy Award Nominations for Best Supporting Actor, Best Director.
WEDNESDAY October 19 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall $1.75
THURSDAY October 20 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre 7:30 p.m. Forum Hall $1.75
k-state union upc kaleidoscope

More Entertaining Than Humanly Possible!

SATURDAY October 22 2 p.m. Forum Hall $1.50
SUNDAY October 23 2 & 7 p.m. Forum Hall $1.50
G
"The Muppet Movie", starring Jim Henson's Muppets in their film debut depicts the zany adventure of how Kermit the Frog and his friends get into show business. Leaving his home in the southern swamp, Kermit heads for Hollywood in search of fame, meeting the rest of the Muppet gang along the way! Rated PG
k-state union upc kaleidoscope

CAVING NOV. 12-13
Information Meeting: October 25, Union Room 207, 7 p.m.
Sign-up: Activities Center, 3rd floor Union 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday-Friday beginning Oct. 26

TRIP INCLUDES:
*Two nights lodging Mountain View, Arkansas
*Lunch on Saturday
*Permits
k-state union upc outdoor rec.

BIG BUSINESS
PG ©1988 Touchstone Pictures TOUCHSTONE PICTURES
Bette Midler and Lily Tomlin have teamed up for a box office hit that's full of funny business. They are twice the fun as two sets of identical twins who are mismatched at birth, and end up running, and trying to close-down, a huge conglomerate. This comedy is sure to leave you doubled over with laughter. Rated PG
FRIDAY October 21 7 & 9:30 p.m. Forum Hall $1.75
SATURDAY October 22 7 & 9:30 p.m. Forum Hall $1.75
k-state union upc feature films

Coors LIGHT COMEDY COMMANDOS

McCain Auditorium
October 28, 1988, 8:00 p.m.
Tickets go on sale October 17 at K-State Union Activities Center and the McCain box office
All seats $2.00

Just for Laughs
In conjunction with the Coors Light Comedy Commandos on Oct. 28, there will be a joke contest in cooperation with Bushwacker's to promote the event. The joke contest will be held on Wednesday, 10:45 p.m.-Midnight, Oct. 26 & Thursday, 9-10 p.m., Oct. 27 at Bushwacker's. Prizes will be awarded for finalists & winner.
Pick up application at Bushwacker's in Aggieville or in the Activities Center in the Union, or call 532-6571. Deadline for submitting applications is 5 p.m. on October 25.
BUSHWACKERS
k-state union upc eclectic entertainment

Financial closings often involve fraud

By The Associated Press

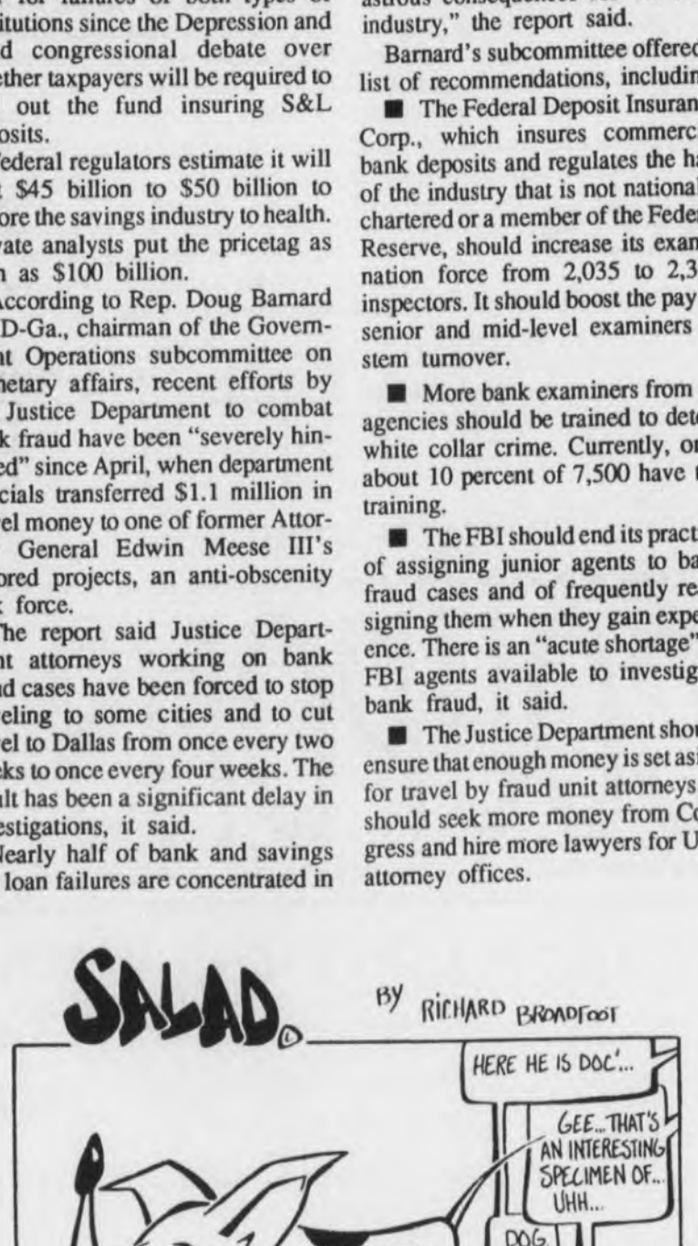
WASHINGTON — Fraud and misconduct play a part in nearly one-third of all commercial bank closings and more than three-quarters of all savings association failures, according to a congressional report released Wednesday.

The study, conducted by a panel of the House Government Operations Committee, comes during the worst year for failures of both types of institutions since the Depression and amid congressional debate over whether taxpayers will be required to bail out the fund insuring S&L deposits.

Federal regulators estimate it will cost $45 billion to $50 billion to restore the savings industry to health. Private analysts put the pricetag as high as $100 billion.

According to Rep. Doug Barnard Jr., D-Ga., chairman of the Government Operations subcommittee on monetary affairs, recent efforts by the Justice Department to combat bank fraud have been "severely hindered" since April, when department officials transferred $1.1 million in travel money to one of former Attorney General Edwin Meese III's favored projects, an anti-obscenity task force.

The report said Justice Department attorneys working on bank fraud cases have been forced to stop traveling to some cities and to cut travel to Dallas from once every two weeks to once every four weeks. The result has been a significant delay in investigations, it said.



Nearly half of bank and savings and loan failures are concentrated in Texas and other Southwestern states suffering economically from the collapse of oil prices in 1986.

But industry critics say many of the institutions have been victims of highflying owners and officers who misused their insider status, running up huge losses through recklessness and sometimes outright fraud.

"Misconduct and abuse have serious consequences for the nation's commercial banks, but they have disastrous consequences for the thrift industry," the report said.

Barnard's subcommittee offered a list of recommendations, including:

- The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which insures commercial bank deposits and regulates the half of the industry that is not nationally chartered or a member of the Federal Reserve, should increase its examination force from 2,035 to 2,300 inspectors. It should boost the pay of senior and mid-level examiners to stem turnover.
- More bank examiners from all agencies should be trained to detect white collar crime. Currently, only about 10 percent of 7,500 have the training.
- The FBI should end its practice of assigning junior agents to bank fraud cases and of frequently reassigning them when they gain experience. There is an "acute shortage" of FBI agents available to investigate bank fraud, it said.
- The Justice Department should ensure that enough money is set aside for travel by fraud unit attorneys. It should seek more money from Congress and hire more lawyers for U.S. attorney offices.

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs -skincare -glamor -nails -gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

BEST KEPT secret between Manhattan and Wamego, Wagon Wheel Antiques, six miles east, old highway 24. 1-494-2388.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

99¢ slices every Thursday

PYRAMID PIZZA

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

NAVY MANAGEMENT

Math, Engineering and Physical Science Majors with 3.3 GPA. earn $1,000 per month during junior and senior years plus $4,000 upon entry. Find out more about the Navy's Engineer Officer Candidate Program, call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

Student Trip to

RUSSIA

December 26-January 10, 1989

$1,249 for food, lodging, transportation, & Soviet visa fee.

$300 deposit due Oct. 27

For information call U Learn 532-6442

Learn to

SKYDIVE

with the KSU Parachute Club.
Train Friday,
Jump Saturday,
Tell your parents Sunday!
This is the last class of the semester, so call now!

Call 537-1787
ASK for MIKE

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

ROCK CLIMBING Club would like to invite you to an afternoon climbing experience at the west wall of the Old Stadium. Saturday, Oct. 22 at 1p.m. A short organizational meeting will precede the activity. For more information, call Mike at 776-3319.

COTTON CLUB 417 Poyntz

99¢ LOADED NACHO BUFFET 2 For 1 Drinks

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Nice, affordable apartment, own room and one-half of utilities. Call 537-4649.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE TWO-BEDROOM available in Westloop area. $315 unfurnished, $355 furnished. Balcony, beige carpet throughout. 776-9124.

NICE ONE-BEDROOM in Lee/ Hunting area. Available now. $340. 776-3804.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. $235. Free Heating. Call Tim at 539-7975.

VERY NICE, quiet, clean one-bedroom apartment for non-smoking adult. Paid heat/ air and more. Lease. $240. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1977 CHEVY Malibu, two-door, looks like new, nice wheels, Alpine speakers, must see. 539-8108, Dave.

1978 CHEVY Malibu. Very good condition. Dependable, $1,500 or best offer. 1-494-2831 after 6p.m.

1979 MERCURY Cougar, auto transmission, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, $1,000 or best offer. 776-3772.

1979 Z28, excellent condition, new performance engine. $2,800. 537-3818.

1981 MONTE Carlo, V-6, 73,000 miles, two-door, air conditioning, cruise control, AM/FM stereo, excellent condition, $2,700. 537-3721.

1981 PORSCHE 924, excellent condition, $5,800. 537-3818.

CAN YOU buy jeeps, cars, 4x4s seized in drug raids for under $100? Call for facts today (602)837-3401.

8 Computers

ZENITH

PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs

MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

COMMODORE AMIGA 1000. Great graphics computer with color monitor, extra drives, 512K RAM, and software. 776-9539 after 5p.m.

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4⅓ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

GE LINE conditioner- noise suppressor 91L series. Controls high and low voltage, $350. 776-9461 or 1-800-432-0036. Protect your computer.

HP-41CX with Math/ Stat pack, two sets rechargeable batteries with recharger, three books to supplement owner's manuals. $335 value, will sacrifice for $260. 537-2631, ask for Dave.

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

EXPERIENCED AEROBIC instructor. Call 776-6469 for appointment.

FREE SPRING Break vacation in Cancun! Become a College Tours Representative on your campus and get a free trip. Nothing to buy, we provide everything you need. It's easy. Call 1-800-727-0005.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, Juniors: Train in the summer to become a Marine Corps Officer after graduation. Aviation available. Call collect (913)841-1821.

HELP WANTED: Apply in person at Pinata. Ask for Kim. 1219 Bluemont.

LOOKING FOR a fraternity, sorority, student organization, or exceptional individuals that would like to potentially make $1,000 or more sponsoring quality ski and beach trips on campus. For further information call Mark at Great Destinations, Inc. 1-800-258-9191.

NANNIES NEEDED on East Coast, $150 to $275 per week, free room and board, good families and home. No fee. Call Nannie Network, Inc. 1-800-US-NANNY.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

THINKING OF taking some time off from school? We need Mother's Helpers. Household duties and childcare. Live in exciting New York City suburbs. Room, board and salary included. (203)622-4959 or (914)273-1626.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

1980 BELLAVISTA 14x70, three-bedroom, one and one-half bath, appliances, central air, skirted. $11,000. 776-0763.

MUST SELL- 1977 Windsor 14x75. All appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop. Really nice. 1-494-8484.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

COLOR TELEVISION, living room set, bar, bar stools, dinette, desk, chest, bed, couch, misc. 776-9705.

EXQUISITE GOLD engagement ring and interlocking wedding band. Six diamonds surround a larger one, .23 ct. $350, or best offer. 1-632-3549.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas. 1-437-2734.

HOT TUB for sale, $1,200 or best offer. 537-9137.

SPEAKERS FOR sale. Three-way satellite system. $275. Compare to $600. Also will custom build speakers/ subwoofers for home or car. Excellent quality. 539-7439, ask for Rodger.

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1985 MODEL, Univega, 23-inch, water bottle, air pump, weighs 24 pounds, 921 N. 8th. 776-1562.

1986 SUZUKI FA50, new condition- $300. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

HELMETS, REPAIR manuals, etc. Motorcycle Supply, 1221 Moro. 776-6177.

MOUNTAIN BIKE- 1988 Specialized -Rock Hopper. Evenings, 539-8306.

17 Musical Instruments

GUITARS/ AMPS for sale!! Aria Pro II- $250, Aria 3/4 scale acoustic- best offer, Kramer bass- $150, Stienburger style bass- $200, Marlboro practice amp- $70, Fender bassman 60 watt amp- $200. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

PEAVY GUITAR, 50-watt amp, Ibenez flanger, accessories. Paid over $500, sell all for $250. 532-4868.

Hayes House of Music
776-7983 327 Poyntz
Martin-Sigma
Accoustic Guitars
ON SALE

18 Personals

1:30 CALLER Tuesday night, call again -Dart. Sleepy Chris.

BAHAMAMAMA LESLIE- Arkansas was a blast, but robbin' the cradle was more fun! Nav. Neal.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

G-PHI BRENDA P.: Do you like green eggs and ham? Would you like them on the twenty-eighth? Could you, would you as my date?

"Hi, I'M Mike. I'm running for Student Body President."

LAURIE, BECKY, Bert and Virpie, we're glad you're here. Love, Dan and Dev.

MAS: WOLF Track Ranch isn't the same without you. I thank you for understanding and your love. The Clan, Peaches, Ocra, Blix and Buck miss you and I Love You. LNB.

MIKE, HAPPY Anniversary!! I Love You very much! Your Turk.

PHIL, "FINE, don't talk to me!" I'm glad you did. Your friendship means a lot to me. I hope the fun times continue. Love, Q.

"YOU MAY know me, I'm Mike. And I'm just another student."

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

AKC REGISTERED black Lab puppies. Championship bloodlines. Call 776-7547.

LOVABLE FERRET needs home! Litter trained female. Spacious cage included $40. Call 539-4651, ask for Michelle.

20 Professional Services

Cottonwood Racquet Club
for all your
Racquet Stringing Needs
(certified stringers)
3615 Claflin 776-6060

BIG MUSIC, Big Music with Brian guitar expertise. Hays House of Music will not be undersold. 776-7983.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

NEW BULB SPECIAL
5 SESSIONS
$10
Manhattan's Largest Tanning Salon
"Connect with the Best"

SUN CONNECTION
1126 Laramie 776-2426

impulse SOUND
SOUND REINFORCEMENT
DAVE ELY MANHATTAN, KS. (913) 537-9694
call for references

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

22 Resume/Typing Services

ALL TYPING needs $1/ page. Daisy wheel printer, Spell Checker. Ask for Mr. Bear. 539-7561.

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

COMPLETE TYPING/ Data Processing: papers, theses, dissertations, etc. 75¢/ page, 5¢/ copy. Call 537-8701.

FAST TURNAROUND for all your word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, theses, dissertations. All your typing requirements, reasonable rates, expert typist. Call 539-5422.

23 Roommate Wanted

WANTED: MALE or female roommate to share nice, two-bedroom apartment with two girls. Own bedroom. Immediately. $116/ month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments. 537-1878.

WANTED: TWO roommates, male or female. Own rooms, three-room apartment at 1200 Bluemont, next to Aggieville, one block from campus. $130 a month plus utilities. Call 537-3679.

28 Adoption

A CHILDLESS loving couple wishes to adopt white newborn. We will provide a warm wonderful and loving home. We are committed to being the best parents possible. Legal and confidential. Please call collect, Kelly and Ramiro, (201)376-0894.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)422-1297.

29 Concert Tickets

DEF LEPPARD ticket for sale, section 19, row 16, seat 18. Close to stage! 776-4186.

DEF LEPPARD tickets: two second row, floor tickets for sale. Call Bob 532-3927.

31 Room Without Board

LARGE, QUIET off-street parking. Utilities paid, private entrance. Call 776-6741, evenings or weekends.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

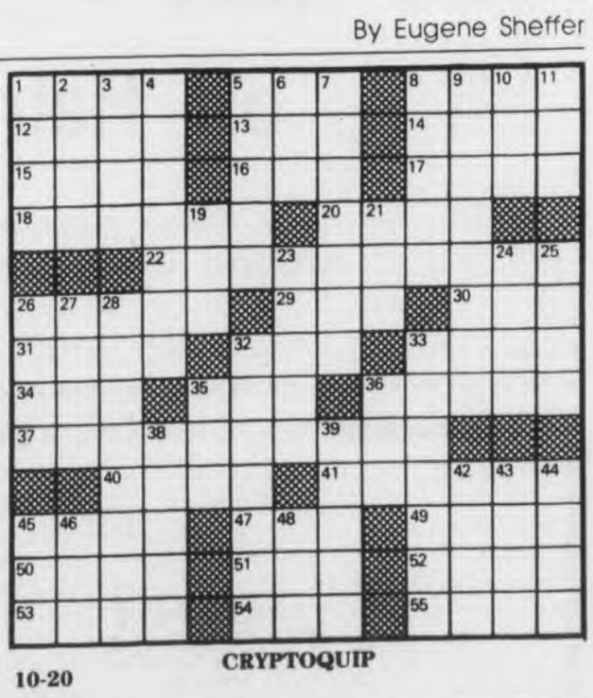
By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Drains of energy
5 Iota
8 End-of-week initials
12 Out loud
13 It might be fresh
14 "Jaws" imitator?
15 Sax type
16 Deceit
17 Require
18 Impersonate
20 Movie pooch
22 Oscar-winning '32 film
26 Bowler's bane
29 — de France
30 "Exodus" hero
31 Not too fatty
32 Ending for coin or drain
33 Espy
34 Hockey's Bobby
35 Pipe residue
36 Controversial Attorney General
37 "1984" watcher
40 Viscount's superior
41 Smithy needs
45 Bother
47 Patriotic org.
49 For two, musically
50 Cathedral part
51 "— Maria"
52 Tweety Pie's place
53 In a draw
54 "Cheers" bartender
55 Makes lace

DOWN
1 Afternoon show
2 Singer Guthrie
3 Butter servings
4 Fizz need
5 Light wood
6 Jr.'s son
7 Foot lever
8 Scout's rider
9 Early primate
10 It might be dry
11 Craze
19 Museum contents
21 "— Loves Me Not"
23 Dark time
24 Cupid
25 Low-cal, in brand names
26 Messy fellow
27 Prefix for scope or meter
28 Liberal gift
32 — the hills
33 Maid, e.g.
35 Airport schedule abbr.
36 Sorority topic?
38 Founded
39 Sheik's retreat
42 Brainstorm
43 Raquel's role in "Bedazzled"
44 Goes down
45 — chance
46 AP rival
48 Actress Gardner

Solution time: 27 mins.

FAR OTO
TANA SPIRO
ERIES TERETE
NORTHCAROLINA
STY ERGAL OAT
ARAS ESTE
PRISM ESTEE
BRED SMEE
EOS SATIN ROT
SOUTHCAROLINA
FLORIN RADAR TREND EVEN IDI SER

Yesterday's answer 10-20

CRYPTOQUIP

10-20

I M R G P C L V N G X W T C T F P Q T F T C L D X , C L V Y T Q P D L Q D G P W R V T Y M P C T I M N T P Q M W P C .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: VACATIONING VETERINARIAN'S SAGE ADVICE TO ALL: "DON'T LITTER!"

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals T

Lottery

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

management."

During the meeting, Montgomery told legislators problems cited in the report were not major or had been corrected in many cases. He also touched on its success, with ticket sales of $66.4 million as of June 30, about $5.4 million more than expected.

"The generation of the greatest return to the state — we think that's important," Montgomery said. "We've been committed to sales, and we've been committed to stewardship. We're not saying we've been perfect."

The audit, done by the the Legislative Division of Post Audit, was the first major audit of the lottery's management since the 1987 Legislature set it up. The agency was created after voters approved an amendment to the Kansas constitution to allow a state-run lottery in November 1986.

The report concludes that lottery employees do not always follow established security procedures. It also said the lottery set up hiring and spending practices that would allow it to circumvent controls established by the Legislature.

However, committee members were careful in assessing the report after the meeting. Miller described the committee's reaction as "a desire to fine tune and get the bugs out." Miller also is chairman of the House Federal and State Affairs Committee, which helped draft legislation creating the agency.

Reporters asked the committee's chairman, Sen. Gus Bogina, R-Shawnee, whether he was satisfied with the lottery's management. Bogina, who also is chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, said: "I accept what the lottery has done."

"We're going to request more details," Bogina said. "Their budget will be reviewed carefully."

The legislators spent much of the meeting questioning Montgomery about an increase in expenditures between April 1 and June 30 — spending that the report concluded cost the state money that would have been used to help pay for the cost of statewide property reappraisal.

Montgomery said the money was spent to help promote the lottery, which will help ticket sales in future years. He also noted that Kansas law did not require the agency to show a profit during the last fiscal year.

"The lottery did not have to give one penny to the gaming revenues fund," he said. "In fact, we paid $10.3 million in excess of our statutory requirement."

Teagarden responded: "That's commendable, but I for one thought we might get another $5 million."

Several legislators also questioned the agency's spending of nearly $200,000 to start the Kansas Lottery Singers, a group of college students who promoted the lottery; $106,300 for two mobile sales vans, and $56,500 for a giant, inflatable replica of a computerized game terminal.

"I was surprised to see some of the things we were spending money for that were not discussed previously," said Rep. David Miller, R-Eudora.

Montgomery defended the expenditures, saying they would help "educate" Kansans about the lottery and build enthusiasm for it. However, he couldn't say how much the lottery would have suffered if it had not spent the money.

"Ten years from now, I see a lottery that is more successful because it developed more broad-based support," Montgomery told the committee.

Teagarden responded: "I'm just concerned about whether you're being efficient in your marketing."

Kennedy defends Quayle to editors

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy told a convention of newspaper editors Wednesday that Republican vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle has been unfairly portrayed in the news media.

"It has not been a fair characterization of him," said Kennedy, during a speech before the group of national newspaper editors. "Most of his colleagues would say he does a lot better in give and take in the Senate. I've worked with him and he does a better job on the (Senate) floor."

Kennedy's remarks came at the conclusion of his address at the Associated Press Managing Editors convention in which he said the had helped make the current presidential campaign an exercise in style over substance.

Kennedy said he was impressed with Quayle when they cosponsored the Jobs Training Partnership Act. He also called Quayle a "forceful, vigorous" defender of the conservative issues he espouses.

Shop

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

designer, created a skid row and flower shop that were quite believable down to barred windows, manhole covers and eroding asphalt which oozed and dripped from the stage.

Major problems with the show were very sparse.

With the exception of the minor problem of a few tired voices creeping into some of the numbers, the biggest problem was the acoustically unresponsive Nichols Theatre.

The production could have benefited from more hanging microphones due to the fact that much of the sound was muffled or lost.

All in all, the show worked well in providing a satirical and energetically entertaining evening of theater. Kahlich's staging and direction provided much emotional punctuation for the audience.

Rushing's musical direction gave the audience numerous memorable numbers to hum as they left the theater.

The show will be playing at 8 p.m. today through Saturday. Tickets may be purchased from noon to 5 p.m. through Friday at the Nichols Theatre Box Office. Prices are $6 for students and seniors, and $7 for general admission.

AIDS

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

been met with denial by many countries," Heyward said.

But the global development of AIDS is still in the early stages, Heyward said.

Don Seedle, assistant professor of public health and chairman of the KSU Communicable Disease Committee, said the convocation increased awareness of AIDS.

"I think it is beneficial to increase the knowledge of this disease to students and faculty," Seedle said.

The audience was about an even mix of students and faculty.

"I didn't realize how much of a worldwide problem AIDS is," said Amy Moors, freshman in graphic design.

COUPONS COUPONS COUPONS

LARGE PIZZA ONLY 5.99
with one topping
dine in or free home delivery
with this coupon
offer good through Oct. 31
"premium pizza at a cardboard pizza price"
523 South 17th
537-1484

Mr. GG's
Hair styling for Men & Women
PERM SPECIAL!
$10 off regular perm with Karen
(5 years experience)
Coupon expires 10-31-88
1214½ Moro-Aggieville
539-9920

CLAFLIN Books & Copies
FirstBank Center 1814 Claflin
Quality copying & binding
We specialize in dissertation copying. When we copy your dissertation on 50% cotton, we'll spiral bind one copy for FREE (with this coupon). Exp. 12-10-88
Hours
M-F 8 a.m.-9 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m.-6 p.m.
Sun. Noon-9 p.m.
776-3771

Amigos
The BEST Is Under Our Hat
Manhattan Town Center
Aggieville
A Great Meal Idea!
Soft Taco & Mexi-Fries 99¢
Save 79¢
Expires 10/23/88

Crum's beauty college
512 Poyntz Ave.
Manhattan, Kansas
66502
⅓ off Perm & Haircoloring or highlighting —all services performed by supervised cosmetology students—
Expires 11/11/88

OPEN 'TIL 2 A.M. DAILY
Sub & Stuff Sandwich Shop
FREE MEDIUM SOFT DRINK
with the purchase of any sub
12th & Moro—Aggieville
WITH THIS COUPON ONLY
Expires 10-31-88 Void with other offers

$5.00 off any Halloween Mask
priced over $15.00
KRAZY KRIS'
NOVELTIES & GIFTS
1128 Moro; Aggieville • 539-4567
offer expires 10/31/88

Crum's beauty college
512 Poyntz Avenue
Manhattan, Kansas
66502
½ off Haircuts
—all services performed by supervised cosmetology students—
Expires 11/11/88

STOREWIDE COAT SALE
$10 OFF (All Coats under $69)
$20 OFF (All Coats between $69-$119.99)
$30 OFF (All Coats between $120-$199.99)
OPEN 10-9 Mon.-Sat. 12-5 Sunday
Ups 'N Downs
539-8501
MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

'5 OFF YOUR SNIPPY
WITH THIS AD at
HAIR EXPERTS DESIGN TEAM
1323 Anderson 776-4455
Exp. 11-3-88
WE'D LOVE TO GET SNIPPY WITH YOU
Your hairstyle makes a personal statement. And if that statement is "tired" and "boring," the cut's the thing! Come in today for a hair fashion update. You may be just snips away from an exciting glamour style, power look, or fuss-free fun. Expect the best! Your hair will be in optimal condition because we use Redken products–the very best in hair care.
REDKEN
AMBASSADOR SALON

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM EXPRESS
1116 Moro
537-0886
This coupon good for
Chicken with Almonds over rice
$1.99
not good with any other special or promo.
-- Offer expires Oct. 26, 1988 --
FREE DELIVERY • 11 A.M.-1 A.M.

JOYCE'S HAIR TAMERS
539-TAME (8263)
2026 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
Perms
Gals—$25 and up
Guys—$28
Partials—$20
*All perms include cut and style
Exp. date 10/31/88

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
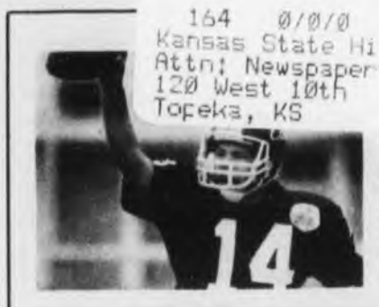
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn: Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612



Homecoming

Former 'Cat Rolando Blackman will play in an NBA exhibition game tonight in Bramlage Coliseum. See Page 8.

Weather

Sunny today with the high near 65, clear tonight with the low in the mid 40s. Sunny Saturday, high around 70.

its game this Saturday while Nebraska will look to set a NCAA record. See Page 9.

Friday
October 21, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 44

Kansas State
Collegian

Staff/Jim Dietz

Def Leppard bass player Rick Savage plays "Stagefright," the opening song, Thursday evening at Bramlage Coliseum. Def Leppard and L.A. Guns performed in-the-round to a sell-out crowd on Def Leppard's "Hysteria" tour. See related review page 5.

Concert fans applaud coliseum

By Janet Swanson
News Editor

If Bramlage Coliseum officials wanted to make it big, they did so last night with area rock fans.

More than 13,000 fans were on their feet throughout a 2½ -hour show as Def Leppard and its opening act, L.A. Guns, rocked Bramlage during its first sold-out rock concert.

"It's great. I'm surprised that Manhattan was able to attract such a group to a small town. That's impressive," said Brad Kintzle, senior in milling science and management.

The concert broke the monotony of small-town living, said Doug Rogge, Manhattan.

"This definitely takes a little of the monotony out of Manhattan. (Bramlage) is a great idea and a lot of fun," he said.

Bramlage, which is constructed in a pit configuration, does not have a bad seat in the house, according to promoters. Fans agree.

Rance Prewett, sophomore in business, said by using a center stage, such as Def Leppard did, fans were closer to the action.

"We were down closer so we could see better. People were just as noisy," he said.

Prewett said he often attends concerts at Kemper Arena in Kansas City, Mo. The two arenas do not compare in size, he said, but in fun and sound — "It's a toss up."

Some fans in attendance said before Bramlage's construction, most of the concerts they attended were at Kemper.

"This has worse acoustics than Kemper, and it's smaller, but it's still great," Rogge said.

Anita Swatzell, Manhattan, said L.A. Guns' sound seemed to be off, but the acoustics for the main act were fine.

"It was all just bouncing off the walls. The seating and building are great though," she said.

■ See DEF, Page 11

Remedial class enrollment up

By Becky Ives
Staff Writer

Enrollment in remedial courses at K-State has increased in the past two years, according to a report presented to the Legislative Educational Planning Committee.

Since 1984-85, enrollment has increased 34.8 percent, from 1,713 students in 1984-85 to 2,309 students in 1986-87. These numbers also include courses offered off campus, such as those offered at Fort Riley.

At the University of Kansas and Wichita State University remedial class enrollment has declined by 10.4 percent and 51.5 percent, respectively.

In the report, remedial courses were defined as intermediate algebra, writing lab, developmental reading and study skills lab.

"We have done a number of things (that increased remedial enrollment)," said Mike Lynch, assistant vice president of the academic assistant center. "An example is the improvements we have made in our math placement program."

Lynch said in previous years most incoming students were placed in college algebra for their first math course. However, after what he termed an unusually high failure rate of students in college algebra, it was decided something needed to be done. Students were then placed in math courses depending upon ACT scores or by a math placement test given by K-State.

"Because of that, we did increase the enrollment in intermediate algebra, but as a result, we increased the success rate (of students) in college algebra," Lynch said.

ACT scores were also used to determine if students had a potential problem in courses with a heavy reading or writing load. If so, Lynch said they would recommend that the

■ See REMEDIAL, Page 12

U.S. indictment of Marcos likely

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government plans to seek an indictment Friday of deposed Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos on racketeering and fraud charges, federal sources familiar with a criminal investigation of Marcos said Thursday.

President Reagan, meanwhile, indicated he would not intervene to stop a Marcos indictment.

The charges would stem from a probe of allegations that Marcos stole enormous sums of money from the Philippines and then engaged in a series of illegal transactions with the funds after fleeing to the United States.

Marcos' attorneys have been engaged in plea bargaining negotiations with the Justice Department and the decision to take the matter to a federal grand jury in New York to seek charges was made after the two sides failed to reach an accord by a deadline of 5 p.m. EDT Thursday, said the sources, speaking on condition of anonymity.

One source said Marcos' lawyers were balking at the government's demand that Marcos plead guilty to a charge of racketeering.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani, whose office has been investigating Marcos, declined to comment when asked by a reporter in New York about his plans.

In Honolulu, Marcos spokesman Gemmo Trinidad refused to comment on the report of impending indictment and when asked if Marcos knew, and what his reaction was, said:

"He's been talking to his lawyers, so he must know."

Of plea bargaining discussions, Trinidad said that "It's been all over the papers," adding that "I didn't know about any deadline."

Peer idea approved

By Brian Hummell
Staff Writer

Regents institutions' participation in a peer concept has been validated by a legislative committee, said Stanley Koplik, executive director of the Kansas Board of Regents.

Koplik made his comments Thursday at Pittsburg State University during the regents' monthly meeting.

"This study will help us sustain our efforts in year two of the Margin of Excellence, which is really a very good way to start in the legislative arena," Koplik said.

"Perhaps our aspirations may not be high enough in terms of our selection of peers. This may be a group of institutions that represents a good group, but in terms of our aspirations of excellence ... maybe we have to go after a better group."
—Stanley Koplik executive director, Kansas Board of Regents

"The peer studies and peer comparisons have been legitimized," he said. "It's a complex series of comparisons, and we think that data is reliable."

Koplik said it was important that a legislative committee had validated the regents data. He also said the regents institutions may want to consider choosing other peer institutions.

"Perhaps our aspirations may not be high enough in terms of our selection of peers," Koplik said. "This may be a group of institutions that represents a good group, but in terms of our aspirations of excellence ... maybe we have to go after a better group."

"Certainly we'll not change the composition of the peers in midstream during a Margin of Excellence proposal, but the question is worth considering at the conclusion of the Margin of Excellence," he said.

Koplik said Kansas is in a better economic position than it was a year ago and has the money to continue the MOE plan for a second year.

But Richard Dodderidge, board chairman, said it cannot be taken for granted that the MOE funding will be approved, and he urged for continued lobbying efforts.

President Jon Wefald said the Council of Presidents voted to table discussion on the proposed $10-per-credit-hour engineering fee.

Overall attendance at regents schools has increased by 1,714 students. Five of the seven schools experienced increases, with K-State's increase of 1,265 students being the highest. The University of Kansas had the largest decrease, losing 286 students.

The regents voted to release 75 percent of the additional funds generated by the increase to the individual universities. 75 percent is the maximum allowed.

Congress hurries drug bill

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Bipartisan congressional negotiators forged new compromises to an anti-drug bill Thursday as they hurried to complete the major measure keeping the 100th Congress in session.

Congress could be ready to vote Friday for the popular election-year bill, which is expected to authorize some $2.5 billion in new money — and give the government stern, new measures to combat illegal drugs.

Mindful that the legislation could help incumbents of both parties, leaders of both houses are treating the bill as a bipartisan effort.

The bill is an ambitious attempt to deal with all aspects of the drug problem, including law enforcement, treatment, rehabilitation, education and help for authorities in drug-producing countries.

New initiatives would include up to $10,000 in civil fines for those caught with personal use amounts of drugs; a federal death penalty for killers in drug-related crimes; and denial of some federal benefits to convicted drug offenders, including users.

But lawmakers have admitted that only $450 million might be available initially to pay for the massive bill, and they acknowledged the legislation will have little impact without more financing.

"I am still very despondent that we're going out there ... overselling something," said Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del.

"Unless we come up with a supplemental (money bill) early next year ... we're not going to pay for this bill. I think ... without at least a tacit commitment on the part of all of us that we're going to try to find the money at the beginning of next year ... its value diminishes significantly."

Biden, a key negotiator on law enforcement issues, gave reporters a flavor of the horse trading that is going on behind closed doors.

He said House negotiators prevailed over their Senate counterparts to drop Senate language designed to strengthen anti-obscenity laws. The House believed the provision gave the federal government too much power over what Americans can view or read.

But in return for dropping their anti-obscenity proposal, senators made a strong pitch for their language on denying some federal benefits to drug offenders, Biden said. The House negotiators appeared willing to make the trade, he said.

The Senate "user accountability" provision could mean ineligibility for federal grants, contracts, loans, mortgage guarantees and permits to convicted drug offenders.

Social Security, Medicare, veterans' assistance and welfare benefits would be exempted, and judges would have discretion in applying the punishment. The House version of this punishment included automatic denial of benefits.

Negotiators agreed that if someone is killed during a federal drug felony, the federal death penalty could apply if: the killer was engaged in a continuing criminal enterprise; was trafficking in major amounts of cocaine, heroin or other drugs; intentionally gave an order that resulted in a killing; or killed a police officer.

In other key decisions so far, negotiators:

■ Agreed to create a "drug czar" in the president's Cabinet, to coordinate national drug policy. The official would develop plans for every phase of the drug war, share with relevant Cabinet heads the authority to transfer personnel, and formally object when he believes drug funding is inadequate or misdirected. The agency would replace the current drug policy board headed by the attorney general.

■ Dropped a House provision that would have permitted introduction in federal court of evidence seized illegally, but in "good faith," even in warrantless searches. Current law permits the "good faith" exception only when searches are conducted with warrants, and that won't be changed.

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Soviets experience inflation

MOSCOW — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's economic reforms have begun to produce the unwelcome side-effect of inflation, a top government statistician said Thursday.

The official, Nikolai G. Belov, deputy director of the state committee on statistics, said his department hasn't yet figured out how to measure inflation and therefore doesn't know how serious it is. But he acknowledged that wages rose nearly twice as fast a real income, a clear indication of inflationary forces in the economy.

Soviet officials traditionally have contended that inflation did not exist in the Soviet Union, where wages and prices are controlled by central planners.

In other communist countries, including Yugoslavia, Poland and China, attempts to ease central controls on the economy and permit the establishment of a market pricing system have led to runaway inflation.

Fears of similar problems in the Soviet system may explain Gorbachev's hesitation in implementing price reform, which he has said is a critical element of his modernization program.

BRIEFLY ACROSS THE NATION

Millions to receive flu shots

ATLANTA — Millions of elderly Americans will receive free flu vaccinations this year under a test program that could lead to free shots for all the nation's Medicare recipients, according to published reports.

Federal health officials call the $50 million program an unprecedented preventative effort that could prolong thousands of lives, The Atlanta Constitution and The New York Times reported today. The elderly are considered most at risk for fatal flu complications, but Medicare does not now cover the shots.

Federal officials are expected to announce next week the six to 10 sites nationwide that will be the first to receive federal funding for the shots.

They hope the special program can inoculate 4 million to 8 million people annually against influenza. About 22 million Americans now regularly receive flu shots.

The program will be administered by the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control and the federal Health Care Financing Administration.

Anniversary patches seized

WASHINGTON — U.S. Customs inspectors on Thursday seized as an illegal shipment an order of 5,000 imported patches to be worn by Customs inspectors commemorating the agency's 200th anniversary, the head of their union said.

Robert Tobias, president of the National Treasury Employees Union, said the shipment was seized at a Peace Bridge warehouse in Buffalo, N.Y., after agents noticed that the packages violated federal regulations requiring a label specifying the country of origin.

"It was then that our members, the inspectors, saw that the packages contained Customs patches made outside the U.S. being shipped from Canada," Tobias said.

BRIEFLY IN THE REGION

Bear roams southeast Kansas

ARCADIA — No such thing as bears in Kansas? Tell that to a half-dozen respectable citizens who have spotted one of the shaggy creatures roaming the southeast corner of the state.

"A lot of people saw it, but they were afraid to say anything about it because they thought people would think they were nuts," said Arcadia City Clerk Nancy Sisney. "It was like they saw a U.F.O. and didn't want anyone to know."

Doug Whiteaker, a game warden for the state wildlife and parks department, said the creature is probably a 2-year-old, 300-pound-plus female black bear that was one of two bears that were bought from an exotic animal farm and that escaped from their owner last February.

Whiteaker shot and killed one of the bears when it attacked him weeks after escaping, but the other has since roamed the woods and strip mines of southeast Kansas.

"There have been numerous people around Arcadia who have seen it," Whiteaker said. "This hasn't been a figment of their imagination."

Wichitan dies in bar fight

WICHITA — Police are investigating the death of a Wichita man who was injured during the weekend while trying to break up a fight at a local private club.

Brian Carter, 22, died Wednesday of an injury he received in the Saturday fight, said police Lt. Dave Williams. Carter was struck once in the face, fell and hit his head, Williams said.

No charges have been filed.

Minister to search for MIAs

HAYS — A Hays minister who served four tours of duty in Vietnam as an Army Green Beret is going back, this time on a mission to learn all he can about the 2,400 Americans still listed as missing in action.

The Rev. Bill Bush left Hays on Wednesday, bound first for Santa Barbara, Calif., to participate in dedication of a POW-MIA flag. From there he'll fly Monday to Bangkok, Thailand, and he is due to arrive in Hanoi Oct. 28.

While in Vietnam, Bush worked with Vietnamese mountain tribesmen, training them to resist the Viet Cong and later to fight regular North Vietnamese troops.

This time, he and three other Vietnam War veterans, Roger Boisseau and Jay Younkins of Massachusetts and Bill Patty of Rhode Island, will be working with officials of the Hanoi government.

While the U.S. government is providing no funds for their trip, it was interested enough to grant the group a two-hour meeting in Washington with Charles Twining, director of Asian affairs at the State Department.

Bush is well known in Vietnam veterans' circles and has been active for several years in the movement to learn the fate of MIAs. It was through such activity, he said, that he was invited to accompany three other veterans to Vietnam. He is paying the expenses of $3,000 to $4,000 out of his own pocket.

BULLETIN FOR THE CAMPUS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Campus organizations are encouraged to use Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be in by 11 a.m. Friday. Publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-serve basis and is not ensured. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118. Forms should be left in the box on the shelf after being filled out. All submissions must be signed and are subject to verification. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's campus editors in Kedzie 116.

ARTS AND SCIENCES Student of the Semester applications are now available in Eisenhower 116. Deadline is Nov. 4.

PLEASE GIVE BLOOD to the KSU Blood Mobile. Sign up is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. all week in Union first floor.

TODAY

SAILING CLUB will meet at 10:30 a.m. at Stockdale at Tuttle Creek Lake.

BETA SIGMA PSI Little Sisters will meet at 4 p.m. at the Beta Sigma Psi house.

ROCK CLIMBING Club will meet at 1 p.m. at the West Wall of the Old Stadium.

SATURDAY

ASTRONOMY CLUB will meet at 7 p.m. in Cardwell 119.

ECKANKAR CAMPUS SOCIETY will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Union 204.

P.E.O. GROUP will meet at 4:40 p.m. in the parking lot of Call.

TAU BETA PI will meet for free pizza at 1 p.m. at Show Biz Pizza Place.

ARTS AND SCIENCES Ambassadors will meet at 9 p.m. at Kite's.

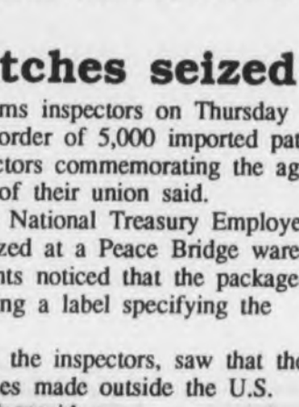
K-STATE POLICE

Wednesday

- A two-vehicle, non-injury accident occurred in the loading dock at Ackert Hall. Damage was less than $500.
- A student parking permit was reported lost or stolen.
- A wallet worth $15 was reported lost.
- A non-injury, hit-and-run accident occurred in lot D-7. Damage was more than $500.
- A blue, four-door Datsun was reported disabled south of Justin Hall.

Thursday

- One vehicle was reported damaged in an accident near Fairchild Hall.
- A wheel lock was placed on a blue and white pickup in lot A-26. Lock was later removed.
- A red Mazda RX7 was reported disabled in lot D-1E.
- A student parking permit was reported lost in an unknown location.
- A blue, two-door Datsun parked in lot A-2 was towed to Manhattan Wrecker. Owner was notified.



Collegian Classifieds
Where K-State Shops

For informative, comprehensive coverage of ELECTION '88, read the Collegian

ATTENTION STUDENTS
Are you suffering from any neck or back pain?
CONSIGLI CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC
Is now offering a
FREE CHIROPRACTIC EXAMINATION
(a $30 value)
for STUDENTS ONLY!
This examination includes Spinal, Orthopedic, & Neurological testing.
Call now for an appointment.
776-1850
Linda D. Consigli, D.C.
1325 Anderson Ave.

McCain auditorium

Vienna Choir Boys
Sunday, October 23
4:00 p.m.

The world's most beloved choir hasn't inspired delight since 1498 simply because they wear sailor suits and are adorable. They can sing! And sing they do: sacred and secular music, Austrian and American folksongs, even an operetta. Come, hear them, and find out why they've been captivating American audiences for 36 years.

"Full rich sound, superb intonation, and impeccable ensemble.... They put on a heckuva good show."
--Louisville Times

General Public: $15, 13, 10
Senior Citizens: $12, 10, 8
Student/Child: $10, 8, 5

Charge tickets to MasterCard or VISA at (913) 532-6428, or come to the box office noon to 5p.m. weekdays.

Transportation for seniors available through Kansas State Bank and ManhattanArts Council. For information, call Marie Dellen at (913) 537-4400.

This program is presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

FIJI ACTIVES

We ran, we hid, we took our sneak,
You guys knew about it the entire week.
We missed Def Leppard, to try to fool you,
So we took Sean & Rick and headed for
Yes you guessed it, yes you were right,
But you didn't know we were leaving on Thursday night.
About our sneak, just the weekend it will last,
It's gonna be fun, no . . . , it's gonna be a blast.

Spanky	Popeye
Linus	Tattoo
Cornqueer	Homeboy
Francis	Enema
Clarence	Geraldo
Piggy	Sinutab
Cream	Cockroach
Norton	Squid
Fat Toad	D.S.
Antonio	Ziggy
Douche	D.F.

BROTHERS In Aggieville
7th Annual
ΠKA Lil Sister Olympics
TODAY 4-7 p.m.
•Ideal Greek Walkthrough
•Paper Airplane Relays
•Hamburger Eating Contest
Last chance to vote for the Ideal Greek couple.
1120 Moro • 18 To Enter-21 To Drink • 537-9511

SPAGHETTI SUNDAY

ALL YOU CAN EAT SPAGHETTI AND GARLIC BREAD!! ONLY $3.25
SERVING 5-8 p.m.
Open Noon Sundays For Lunch, Too!
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT... KITE'S BAR AND GRILLE
619 N. 12TH, Aggieville

BROTHERS In Aggieville
FREE BBQ HAMBURGERS
IT'S BBQ TIME
Today 4 - 7 p.m. enjoy BBQ burgers hot off the grille while relaxing inside with your favorite tunes.
Friday & Saturday Nights
Free prizes given away at 1:30 a.m.
T-shirts • Cash • Boxers • Door Passes • Hats
Posters • And More!
•18 TO ENTER–21 TO DRINK•
1120 Moro • Aggieville 537-9511

The Station
TERRIFIC TGIF BUFFET

ALL YOU CAN EAT $1!
• Baron Of Beef
• Chicken Wings
• Hot & Cold Pasta
• Relish Tray
• Fruit Tray
• Chips & Dip
• Cheese & Crackers
You have to eat it to believe it!
1115 MORO—BAR 776-0030

The Station
NEW!
ALL YOU CAN EAT SHRIMP PEEL

EVERY FRIDAY NIGHT
$7.99
ALL YOU CAN EAT
INCLUDING POTATO, SALAD BAR & LOADS OF SHRIMP!!
1115 Moro—Restaurant 776-0030

Veterinary lawsuits few

By Heather Huntington
Collegian Reporter

Although the incidence of lawsuits is high for medical doctors, in recent years veterinarians have experienced only a slight rise in the percentage of suits brought against them.

"Since 1979, the number of trust-insured veterinarians being sued has increased by 1.5 percent," said Bruce Little, Assistant Executive Vice President of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Seventy percent of private-practice veterinarians are trust-insured, meaning they are insured through the AVMA, Little said.

In 1979, only 4.5 percent of trust-insured veterinarians had claims filed against them, compared to 5.9 percent in 1987.

"We don't believe that is a significant increase. It's certainly no explosion," he said.

Although the number of claims hasn't increased significantly, there have been some changes in the way veterinarians pay for their malpractice insurance.

Prior to 1983, all veterinarians paid the same rate. As of 1983, the rates varied slightly for those with large-animal, small-animal and mixed practices, he said.

In 1986, four categories were established.

Mixed practices dealing primarily with either large or small animals saw little change in their malpractice rates, he said.

However, because 49 percent of the lawsuits are against veterinarians who deal exclusively with horses, their insurance tripled to almost $2,000, he said.

The veterinarians who dealt almost exclusively with small animals actually saw their yearly rates decrease from $212 to $192.

The large number of suits in the horse industry has a logical explanation.

"Regardless of how much you think of your dog, I would be very surprised if there would be many lawsuits of much magnitude over small animals, simply because their value is relatively low," said Barry Clark, Manhattan lawyer.

Although lawsuits against veterinarians are on the rise, those who sue based on emotional damage due to the loss of a pet have a slim chance of winning.

In a lawsuit based solely on emotional damage, the actions of a veterinarian must be declared "extreme and outrageous," Clark said. In addition, the actions of the veterinarian must cause emotional distress to the pet owner, Clark said.

"Most people commence lawsuits to receive compensation for something they've lost," he said.

However, not all cases brought against veterinarians are on behalf of animals.

"Interestingly, some of the biggest claims are for injuries to people," said Bill Grant, National President of the Student American Veterinary Medical Association and student in veterinary medicine.

Between 1976 and 1985, 16 percent of the suits against veterinarians involved humans, according to "Law and Ethics of the Veterinary Profession."

If a visitor becomes injured by an animal while at the veterinarian's clinic, the veterinarian is responsible, Grant said.

"There seems to be an ever-increasing scope of responsibility for the veterinarian," he said.

Family meal planning easy with computerized system

By Amy Rosebrough
Collegian Reporter

An Overland Park company claims it can make meal planning as easy as running a card through a computer.

Computerized Meal Planning System Inc. has developed a method for families to plan a meal in less than five minutes, and it guarantees the menus will offer everyone in the family a variety of foods.

The system will eventually be available to grocery shoppers in health-conscious areas, including the Midwest, said Roland Morreale, designer of Computerized Meal Planning Systems Inc.

He said a small community such as Manhattan could be included because of its location if it was a health-conscious area. But he did not know when this expansion would occur.

Each member of the family completes a form with personal information like age, height, weight and activity levels. Then each member deletes 48 unliked foods and selects five liked foods.

Some foods such as pizza, pasta and foreign dishes are not included on the food lists because of their fat, cholesterol and salt contents.

The information is entered into a computer and the family is given a card with a bar code, said Jan Morreale, partner of the company.

When the family grocery shops, it receives a seven-day meal plan from the computer system by running the family's card through the computer.

The entire card-scanning and printing process is completed within two minutes, she said.

Joan Omang, of Lenexa, has used the new system. Omang said she likes the system overall and usually uses the menu lists. However, she said, it is confining.

"There is nothing Chinese, no pizza and no rice or pasta," she said. "The system often substitutes dry beans (for pasta), but we substitute pasta (back in)."

Although Computer Meal Planning Inc. is not a medical diet, the purpose of the system is to "make you very aware of how you are eating," Jan Morreale said.

The menus include caloric intake, cholesterol and sodium levels, and it denotes brand names that are low in these areas for people avoiding them.

Omang said her family uses the brand names listed because it is interested in controlling its intake of fats and sugar.

The menu standards are the same as those set by the American Cancer Society, American Heart Association and the Center for Science in the Public Interest, Morreale said.

QUALITY NATURAL FOODS
from your local co-op store
811 Colorado
539-4811
People's Grocery Cooperative

Disposable Contact Lenses
available at
Dr. Price, Young, Odle & Horsch
OPTOMETRISTS
537-1118 1119 Westloop Place

D & S Resume and Typing Service
•Reasonable Rates
•Speedy Service
539-5074

99¢ HAMBURGERS
The Chef 111 S. 4th
all you want 99¢ each

MOVIE INFORMATION 539-1291
IN JUNCTION CITY CALL 762-4094
CAMPUS
HEART OF AGGIEVILLE
DIE HARD R
TODAY AT 7 AND 9:15
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:30 & 4:45
CAMPUS SEATS $1
WESTLOOP CINEMA 6
Westloop Center
ALIEN NATION R
TODAY AT 4:35-7:05-9:30
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:05
ACCUSED R
TODAY AT 4:35-7:05-9:30
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2:05
MEMORIES OF ME PG-13
TODAY AT 4:30-7:10-9:35
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 2
PUNCHLINER
TODAY AT 4:25-7-9:35
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 1:50
GORILLAS IN THE MIST PG-13
TODAY AT 4:20-7-9:40
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 1:45
EIGHT MEN OUT PG
TODAY AT 4:20-7-9:40
MAT. SAT. & SUN. AT 1:45

New Nonfat Frozen Yogurt
Same great taste with no fat or cholesterol
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT! Frozen Yogurt Stores
Nautilus Towers-Aggieville
Phone 537-1616 Manhattan

Nixon & Vietnam
Vietnam and Electoral Politics lecture by Stephan E. Ambrose
University of New Orleans
Monday, Union Forum Hall
8 p.m.

CROSSPOINT
SUNDAY
5 p.m. to 9 p.m.
ON DB 92 KSDB 91.9

Dream Class
If you are interested in making an in-depth study of spiritual topics, the ECKANKAR Campus Society offers the Dream Study Course, which includes: "Dreams — the Bridge to Heaven", "How to Interpret Your Dreams", and more.
The first class is free & open to all.
Sun. 10/23, 4:30 p.m.
Room 204 Student Union.

UNITED ARTISTS
$2.50 PER PERSON
SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 p.m.
UA SETH CHILDS 6
SETH CHILDS AT FARM BUREAU RD. 776-8686
MESSENGER OF DEATH R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:25, 4:45
COMING TO AMERICA R
Daily 7:15, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:15, 4:35
YOUNG GUNS R
Daily 7:15, 9:40
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:20, 4:45
HALLOWEEN 4 R
Daily 7:20 & 9:40
Sat. & Sun. 2:20 & 4:30
COCKTAIL R
Daily 7:10, 9:30
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:00, 4:35
BIG PG
Daily 7:25, 9:35
Sat. & Sun. Mat. 2:10, 4:30

BUSHWACKERS
THE BUNKHOUSE
—FRI—TGIF
Free Hors d'oeuvres
—SAT—
Open at 10 a.m.
For Pre-Game
Bloody Mary's $1.50
¼ lb. Hamburgers $1.00
•Join us after the game for college football action on the Big Screen T.V.
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., Wed.
Amazing Johnathan
A Letterman Regular
531 N. Manhattan

1800 Claflin
776-4111
Open 2 p.m. to 2 a.m.
CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR Established 1983
"The Aggieville Alternative"
See us for Group Discounts
TONIGHT: Live Band
ACE
Saturday: $Dollar Days$
$1 Pitchers
Look Ahead—Big Halloween Party at Charlie's with games and giveaways
Sun.—Now open at noon, come watch sports on the big screen TV
Tues.—Pool Tournament at 8 p.m.

N.B.A. Action
Bramlage Coliseum
FRIDAY 7:30
SEE: San Antonio Spurs
vs.
Dallas Mavericks
SEE: Rolando Blackman former KSU star
WIN: Have a chance to win
NEW JEEP CHEROKEE

Jeep Cherokee Limited
during half-time of this exciting game courtesy of
Jeep Eagle
Briggs Jeep-Eagle, Inc.
776-7799
612 Pillsbury Drive
Game Sponsored by KSNT
Tickets: Present your K-State I.D. at Bramlage Coliseum Box Office for $2 off a $10.50 ticket

NON-Trivial PURSUIT
National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1988
1. What was the total number of fatal alcohol-related accidents in the U.S. in 1986?
2. How many cases of liquor were sold in Kansas in 1987?
3. Approximately what percentage of cars you pass on any given weekend evening is being driven by a drinking driver?
4. The alcohol content of Listerine is proof?
5. According to a recent survey, what was the average number of days/nights per week that KSU students consumed alcoholic beverages?
Answers: (1) 23,986, (2) 1,845,441, (3) 25%, (4) 54, (5) 1.5
All University Casino Night
Saturday, Oct. 22, 1988, 8 p.m.-Midnight
at Chameleons (in Aggieville)
FREE ADMISSION with KSU ID
Funded by City of Manhattan Special Alcohol Program Fund
ALCOHOL & OTHER DRUG EDUCATION SERVICE

School uniforms may have purpose after all

Commentary

KARLA REDELSHEIMER

Collegian Columnist

What to wear, what to wear .... The pressure of making a fashion statement every day is getting to be too much.

Recently public elementary schools have been making headlines because they are bringing back the old, strict dress codes. Some have even gone as far as requiring students to wear uniforms.

School officials say uniforms create a structured environment for children while also taking away the stress to impress through clothing. Students' achievements are emphasized, not what they wear or how they look. Urban schools especially like this idea because those students who can't afford to compete in the label wars aren't stigmatized as being poor. The uniforms cost less, and spare children needless blows to their self-esteem.

The children that go to these schools like their uniforms. They no longer have to worry about what they'll wear the next day — they know their uniform will always be waiting for them. Best of all there's no fear of wearing the "wrong" style (those dreaded double-knit, Brady Bunch trousers), because everyone is wearing the same thing.

This is all great, but what happens when students get to high school? Most would argue that high school students are more fashion conscious than elementary school children. Should public high schools start requiring their students to wear uniforms, or are they mature enough to keep their focus on academics, not trendy styles?

Nancy, a veteran uniform wearer, said she liked not having to worry about what to wear during the week. She said it was more of a challenge for students to express themselves through their hair, jewelry, shoes and yes, even their socks. One negative side effect did result, however: Nancy now hates white button-down shirts and plaid, pleated skirts.

Another former patron of plaid said it was still easy to tell who had money by the cars which were driven to school or by the designer shoes, shirts and purses.

But dressing a particular way isn't only for those who wish to impress, it's also a basic form of self expression. After junior high school, students should be able to wear what they want. If the theory of uniforms holds true, students after that time should feel secure enough about themselves to make the transition successfully.

For years students have been picked on for sloppy appearances and sporadic tastes in clothes. One year it's penny loafers and oxford shirts and the next year it's ripped jeans and tie-dyed T-shirts. But that's the best thing about being able to choose what you want to wear — you can change your style as your mood, interests or needs change.

The "typical" college student (if one really exists) has been sporting the sweatshirt, jeans and tennis shoes for years. This "style" has lived on year to year because it's practical and it conveys the easygoing mood found on most campuses.

For students who generally spend most of their day sitting, sweatshirts and jeans work well because they're comfortable and don't wrinkle. Tennis shoes, because college campuses are usually large pieces of land with a lot of walking territory.

This theory even carries into adulthood. Look at Michael Dukakis and George Bush — both men often wear the traditional navy suit, white shirt and bright tie, usually red. Their public garb is their way of expressing to Americans that they are so patriotic, they're willing to dress in the colors of our flag.

Clothes don't make the person, they simply express the person. Enforcing strict dress codes or implementing uniforms is OK if it benefits the student. When competition in the label wars is so fierce it interferes with a young person's learning and self-esteem, a dress code is needed merely for survival — up to a point.

In high school, college or just life in general, people will always be judged or stereotyped by what they choose to wear. The life-after-grammar-school years are typically when young people discover their interests and their beliefs. Dressing in one's own personal style is just one more outlet for students to show their personality and to express who they are.

Nude pictures in bars offend, not decorate

Bars in Aggieville could not survive without their female patrons and bar owners should give women the same respect they give their male customers. Unfortunately, this is not happening.

Kite's Bar and Grill in Aggieville has a nude photo "decorating" the front room of the bar. This picture is a tasteless exploitation of all women.

Women in erotic lingerie photographed in provocative positions don't make appropriate wall decorations. These pictures are insulting to women and make them feel uncomfortable in public. Nude photographs are not only offensive to women, but they offend the general public as well. All customers should have the freedom to sit down at a table and not have to compete with an 8 inch by 10 inch color portrait of the female anatomy for conversation.

The pictures prove that the bar owners have no respect for their female patrons or the money that these women spend.

Bar owners seem to have forgotten that women are paying customers. Neither the prices of drinks nor the cover charges differ between men and women. Local bars should reflect this sexual equality in their decor.

Women and men can sit at the same tables, drink from the same type of glasses and eat from the same type of plates. If there aren't any naked pictures of men hanging on the walls, there shouldn't be any pictures of naked women.

Pornographic pictures also promote sexual harassment. Alcohol alone makes the problem bad enough, and men (or women) don't need to be futher stimulated by these tasteless pictures.

No one is forcing the bar owners to hang pictures of nude women on their walls; they are doing it by choice. If the owners of Aggieville's bars and restaurants wish to keep their female patrons and the revenue women generate, these disgusting pictures must be removed from public view.

"Ending a sentence with a preposition is an abomination up with which I will not put."

— Winston Churchill

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITOR ..... Chad L. Sanborn
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Lori Siegrist
NEWS EDITOR ..... Janet Swanson
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Jeff Schrag
PHOTO/GRAPHICS EDITOR ..... John La Barge
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Tom Morris
ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Catherine Doud
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... Nancy Chartrand, Christine Doll, Catherine Doud, Susan L'Ecuyer, Scott Miller, Michael Nichols, Karla Redelsheimer, Chad L. Sanborn, Jeff Schrag, Erwin Seba, Paula Selby, Robert R. Short, Mark Schmeller, Janet Swanson

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the school year and Monday and Thursday during summer sessions. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $25
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $45
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $50

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged, and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. Those who cannot condense their opinions should consider submiting their letter in the form of a guest column. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

GUEST COLUMNS are also encouraged. The column should be no longer than two double-spaced, typed pages. If the submission is used as a column and not a letter to the editor, it will be accompanied by the author's photograph.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116.

UNSIGNED EDITORIALS represent the consensus opinion of the Collegian's editorial board. Opinion columns do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Collegian management, Student Publications, Inc. or the newspaper staff in general.

Letters

Editorial unfair

Editor,

The Collegian's editorial "Senate may continue impeachment games" closes with a potshot at the Senate for rescheduling its Oct. 20 meeting to Oct. 18 to avoid conflicts with the Def Leppard concert. Over the years, the Senate has occasionally rescheduled meetings to avoid such conflicts with campus events (e.g. basketball games). The Senate cannot control the scheduling of other events — we can't move the Def Leppard concert to Friday — but it does have some flexibility in its own schedule.

The success of events (such as Def Leppard) at Bramlage Coliseum during its first month of operation is of great importance to its future. One way of helping Bramlage is to encourage good attendance at this first month's events, including Def Leppard. Students have invested $7 million in Bramlage, so it is not a trivial matter, as the Collegian has implied, to support the Coliseum's programs and to help ensure its success.

Justin M. Sanders graduate student in physics

Airport concerns

Editor,

An open letter to Manhattan citizens and commissioners:

On Oct. 11 at approximately 6 p.m., I experienced my third close call at the Manhattan Municipal Airport in the last three months. Nothing illegal was done during this incident since Manhattan is an "uncontrolled" airport; however, recommended operating practices were not followed by the other plane.

Does Manhattan need a control tower at the airport? This flight instructor certainly thinks so. However, (1) some pilots genuinely believe that a tower is unnecessary, (2) some are influenced against it by the possible imposition of unreasonable user fees, and (3) the commercial airlines, faced with almost certain financial problems if burdened with the funding of the tower, are forced to choose between almost certain financial difficulties and a possible/probable accident.

Will an "advisory service" suffice? No! An "advisory service" was in place when the incident on Oct. 11 occurred. It will help, but it will not be sufficient.

The city commissioners have sent a clear message to the aviation community. If a control tower is implemented at the city's airport, the commercial airlines, the corporate operators, and the private pilots will have to shoulder 90 to 100 percent of the cost, even though those same users have already paid for 90 percent of the runways, taxiways, lights, and navigation systems at the airport already. Those same users are also already paying city and federal fuel taxes, landing fees, and hangar rent that help to support the airport. A survey questionnaire which only one-third returned indicates that at least 2.5 million dollars are generated at the airport in fuel, maintenance, and salaries which go directly into the area's economy.

If you ruin Capitol Air Lines and Air Midwest, and scare off the corporate and private pilots, you have killed the airport which is a major contributor to the Manhattan economy.

I feel that a control tower is necessary to maintain the fine safety record of the Manhattan airport. I also feel that the value of the airport to the city is worth the expense of a control tower to the city.

Hugh Irvin university computing activities

No campus courtesy

Editor,

There is a problem on campus that I would like to address. I am talking about common courtesy.

I have noticed inside the classroom that there seems to be an air of general rudeness, while outside the classroom K-State students seem to be, for the most part, pretty courteous to others.

What I don't understand is why that has to change once one steps into the classroom? I have noticed in all my classes that there are people talking, chewing gum and generally making it harder for people around them to hear what the teacher is saying. While I agree that one has the right to eat, drink or read the newspaper when and where one wants to, I draw the line when it becomes distracting enough to take my attention away from the knowledge that the teacher is trying to impart to me.

One of my biggest complaints is that anywhere from 10 minutes to five minutes before the end of class, I have witnessed people packing their books and then, very rudely, talking to their neighbor.

I have heard it said that people in New York are very rude, but I am hard-pressed to find anything that can compare with this rudeness that I find on the campus of K-State.

I think that the ultimate in classroom rudeness is when someone has the gall to pack his or her books and leave before the class is even over.

There is, in my mind, no good reason for this action. If someone "has" to leave before the end of class and knows this going into class, then the person shouldn't have come to class in the first place.

In conclusion, let me say that we are here to learn, people. I don't care if you are a full-time student or a part-time student, your job while you are here is to learn what the instructor is trying to teach and nothing else. If you have problems with that, you should make arrangements to overcome that problem. Above all, don't worry, be courteous.

James K. Lewis
junior, elementary education

Don't use excuses

Editor,

How many times do we sit and complain how bad our lives are, contemplating the injustices we encounter every week, and thinking of rewards we should receive for being such suffering mercenaries. After all, we're the only ones with these problems. No one else has it as bad as we do. Our problems are unique and of course, harder than anybody else's.

Think about it. It is the world's safest (and most used) excuse for failing. To live in your own little world where your problems are the only problems in the world is the safest world to live in. You have an excuse for everything and best of all, people accept your excuses.

Well, wake up. It's not like that. People look at what you do, not what you would have done. Personality is proven by performance. If you are a sweet, caring person, then people perceive you as such. If you're an insulting, obnoxious person, then you'll be thought of that way. If you're the type who hands in projects late and has a handful of lame excuses, then people won't think very highly of you.

"Oh, I may have flunked the exam that you got a "B" on, but I have a lot more problems than you'll ever have. You don't know what I've been through, and someone like you could never understand."

I can't tell you how many times I've heard and said (though I hate to admit it) things like that that reflect this same attitude. There have been times when we've all tried to use this trick. It is sad, but what is even worse is the fact that, in general, people don't stick around long enough to listen to excuses. That is the way it is in college, and it only gets worse in the real world. So get used to it.

Take a look at your problems. Are they really as significant as you believe they are? Are they something you can control with hard work and sincere dedication? I'm going to repeat that. ARE YOUR PROBLEMS SOMETHING YOU CAN CONTROL IF YOU WOULD APPLY HARD WORK AND SINCERE DEDICATION? Many people never attempt to conquer their problems because there is a chance they might succeed. And if they succeed, the next problem might even be worse.

So if you want to get through your troubles, dive in, figure out what you have to do, do it and, most importantly, move on.

Sandra Arnoldy
junior in marketing

Entertainment Friday

NOW SHOWING

K-State Union

The Muppet Movie
Saturday 2 p.m. Sunday 2 and 7 in Forum Hall

Big Business
Friday and Saturday 7 and 9:30 p.m. in Forum Hall

Campus Theater

Die Hard
Daily, 7 and 9
Matinee 2:30 and 4:45 Saturday and Sunday

Westloop Cinema 6

Memories of Me
Daily 4:30, 7:10 and 9:35 Matinee 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday

Gorillas in the Mist
Daily 4:20, 7 and 9:40
Matinee 1:50 Saturday and Sunday

Accused
Daily 4:35, 7:05 and 9:40 Matinee 2:05 Saturday and Sunday

Alien Nation
Daily 4:35, 7:05 and 9:30 Matinee 2:05 Saturday and Sunday

Punchline
Daily 4:25, 7 and 9:35 Matinee 1:50 Saturday and Sunday

Eight Men Out
Daily 4:20, 7 and 9:40 Matinee 1:45 Saturday and Sunday

Seth Childs Cinema

Young Guns
Daily 7:15 and 9:40
Matinee 2:20 and 4:45 Saturday and Sunday

Messenger of Death
Daily 7:10 and 9:30
Matinee 2:25 and 4:45 Saturday and Sunday

Coming To America
Daily 7:15 and 9:35
Matinee 2:15 and 4:35 Saturday and Sunday

Halloween 4
Daily 7:20 and 9:40
Matinee 2:20 and 4:30 Saturday and Sunday

Cocktail
Daily 7:10 and 9:30
Matinee 2 and 4:35 Saturday and Sunday

Big
Daily 7:25 and 9:35
Matinee 2:10 and 4:30 Saturday and Sunday

Theater

Little Shop of Horrors
Musical based on the 1960 horror film by Roger Corman. Tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Nichols Theatre. Tickets are available at Nichols Theatre Box Office and are $6 for students and seniors, and $7 for general admission.

Music

Vienna Boys Choir
The choir, founded by imperial decree in 1498, will perform at 4 p.m. Sunday in McCain Auditorium

Mens' Glee Club Concert
The K-State, University of Kansas and University of Nebraska Mens' Glee Clubs will be in concert this evening in All Faiths Chapel at 8. Tickets are $3 at the door.

New Video Releases

Judgement in Berlin — Oct. 19
Critters II — Oct. 19
E.T. — Oct. 27
DOA — Oct. 26

Def Leppard band members Rick Savage, bassist, and Joe Elliot, lead singer, perform the opening song Thursday evening at Bramlage Coliseum.

MANHATTAN ROCKS WITH DEF LEPPARD

Concert Review

Ear plugs were not enough to stop the hard-hitting rock of Def Leppard Thursday night as a sold-out crowd welcomed the first major rock concert to Manhattan.

Amidst smoke and flashing lights, the covers on center stage were dropped as the band plunged into what turned out to be more than 1½ hours of solid music.

The stage, which was situated in the round, was a first for the group, said lead vocalist Joe Elliott. It was also a first for Bramlage.

The new idea worked well in the pit configuration of Bramlage, allowing fans to get closer to the stage without being too close. Bramlage's size was small enough to keep the crowd under control but large enough to let the crowd have an impact on the show.

Technical difficulties were predominate during the opening act, L.A. Guns, as the sound bounced around the rafters. The music, at times, was indistinguishable from the crowd.

The group was amateurish in its attempt to prepare the crowd for Def Leppard. However, by the end of its act, the crowd was more than ready for the main band's arrival.

Despite early problems with acoustics, everything was right on target for the night's main event.

The lights flashed, the music rocked and the crowd loved it.

"Pour Some Sugar on Me" was practically a sing-along as the crowd joined in, showing that it was having fun. Fun that lasted throughout the show as the crowd danced and filled the aisles.

Def Leppard's hour-long sound check conducted earlier in the day paid huge dividends for the fans.

The group drew most of its material from its last two albums, providing fans with a recent and upbeat show.

Most of the songs, which were so loud they became overpowering, were selected from the group's "Hysteria" album, which is still ranked No. 2 on album charts.

The fans were not only treated to the group's hottest and latest releases, but to a spectacular light and laser show as well.

The lasers flashed through the crowd and across four screens, which were dropped from the ceiling. The lasers spelled out what the evening was all about — "Hysteria" and "Def Leppard."

Geometric designs were flashed on the ceiling as the group allowed the fans' attention to be sidetracked. The lasers were then flashed back to the stage to hypnotically encircle the band members.

Elliott and the other band members were able to string the 13,000 plus fans along through breaks to keep the flow of the evening at full-steam.

Phil Collen and Steve Clark combined acoustic guitar solos to prepare the crowd for "Bringing on the Heartbreak."

Elliot told the screaming fans that the fans at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, where the band played Wednesday night, were louder than the ones in Manhattan.

Chanting "bullshit," the fans set out to prove him wrong.

"What do you want?" Elliott asked. And the answer came back 100 fold — "We want to rock."

Once the group left the stage, fans remained on their feet, chanting until the group returned to play "Photograph" with lasers depicting Marilyn Monroe.

Following the encore, Elliott promised fans a return performance. And he can be sure that fans will be waiting for it.

The group only has five stops left on its 14-month tour. Five stops that are sure to be sold out.

A sell-out crowd in excess of 13,000 performs "the wave" shortly before Def Leppard took the stage. The British heavy-metal group has had recent chart success with its current album "Hysteria."

Review by Janet Swanson

Photos by Greg Vogel

Vienna choir to perform Sunday

By Nancy Prosser
Collegian Reporter

The world-renowned Vienna Boys Choir will perform at 4 p.m. Sunday in McCain Auditorium.

The choir, an ancient Austrian tradition, will celebrate its 500th anniversary this year. Sunday's performance is sponsored by the McCain Auditorium Performance Series.

"I talked to members of the community and I felt that there was a genuine interest in the Choir Boys coming to Manhattan," said Richard Martin, director of McCain Auditorium. "I then talked with the boys' booking agent, ICM Artists in New York, one of the biggest booking agencies in the country. I feel that it is important that community interests be expressed in the performance series concerts."

The choir was founded in 1498 by the Emperor Maximilian I to fulfill his wish to have choristers in the Imperial Chapel.

In 1918, the collapse of the Hapsburg dynasty and the Austro-Hungarian Empire signaled the end of the world-famous choir.

However, Joseph Schnitt retained the chaplaincy of the Imperial Chapel, and in 1924 he decided to refound the Boys Choir.

He felt the boarding school method was the only practical way of ensuring the musical training necessary for the choristers.

A boy must be 10 years old before he can be admitted to the school and sing in the group, although prospective choir boys are allowed to receive training in voice, theory and an instrument from the age of eight, as extras.

Auditions are conducted twice a year in Austria. Although 80 percent of the choir's members are Catholics, there is no religious qualification for membership.

The only requirements are that the applicant be Austrian, musically gifted and a boy.

The group that will perform Sunday is one of four Vienna Choir Boys groups that makes three-month tours to raise funds to operate their private school in Vienna.

There are four choirs that are rotated, enabling the boys to miss a limited amount of school. The time the boys lose on concert tours is compensated with intense programs of study in classrooms with no more than 10 students.

A chorister whose voice has changed is allowed to remain at the school and continue his studies, supported in a sense by those who are still singing.

Since their first United States tour in 1932, the Vienna Choir Boys have visited America 42 times, have completed numerous tours of Asia, traveling as far as Japan, and have toured Australia.

They have been received by numerous heads of state and have had audiences with Popes Pius XI, Pius XII and Paul VI.

Panel appointed to study housing

By The Collegian Staff

The Home Programs panel was appointed as an ad hoc committee by the Manhattan City Council Tuesday to gather and present information pertaining to area housing.

"By appointing the panel, it makes what we are trying to do more legitimate," said Stormy Kennedy, president of the panel.

Home Programs Inc. is a joint effort between the UFM and the City of Manhattan to recognize and find solutions to housing problems in the Manhattan area.

Prior to the city's appointment, the panel met Monday to discuss housing demographics and ethical issues, she said.

"What we are doing is almost a public service," Kennedy said, adding that with housing being a "hot topic" now, the panel will be needed.

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.

Confidential pregnancy testing • Safe, affordable abortion services • Birth control • Tubal ligation • Gyn exams • Testing and treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Providing quality health care to women since 1974. Insurance, VISA & MasterCard accepted.

Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe)
Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free (except KS) 1-800-227-1918

ΠΠΣ/ΛΛΔ
Used Record & Tape Sale
Wide Selection
In front of the Union Stateroom
Proceeds to Flinthills Breadbasket
Oct. 24-27
9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Memorial Hospital's
Wee Care
daytime care for children with minor illnesses
call 776-3300

AUDITIONS
for K- State Players
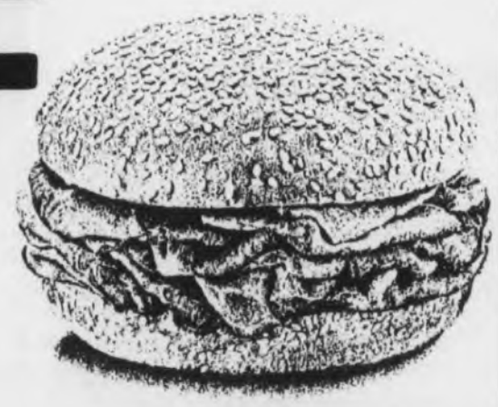
production of
CLOUD NINE
October 25, 26 at 7 p.m.
Nichols Theatre Lobby
Directed by Kate Anderson
Cloud Nine attempts to expose the absurdities of repression, hypocrisy and colonialism through a blend of outrageous comedy, satire and poignant social drama.
Scripts are available in the speech office in Nichols Hall. The show runs from Feb. 2-11
For more information, call 532-6875.

BATTLE OF THE GLEE CLUBS
NEBRASKA University
KANSAS University
KANSAS STATE University
Friday, October 21
All Faiths Chapel
8 p.m.
Admission $3 at door

The REV. NORMAN BENT
MORAVIAN PASTOR FROM NICARAGUA
Guest Speaker this Sunday, October 23, 6:30 p.m.
UCM STUDENT CENTER
1021 DENISON
"Look for the two red doors."

In 1974 he was the founder of the Moravian Church Social Action Committe. Since 1982 he has been instrumental in promoting dialogue between the Miskito Indians of the East Coast and the Nicaragua government to promote understanding and reduction of tensions. He has given many lectures at universities in the United States, Canada, and Europe on the Central American realities and the Miskito Indian — Nicaragua government conflict.
Come — Listen — Ask Questions
EVERYONE WELCOME

KAPPA



Hey Kappas!!
The Seniors are off, we wish you the best without irons, forks, or the front door combination, you'll be full of stress!
Hopping the bars and shopping the stores, we'll hit rush street in full force — while realizing the years have past, this weekend we will make the memories last!
SENIORS
Not pictured: Alterbernd, Berends, Downey, Larson, Mills, Thompson.

BELIEVE IT!
CHRISTINE'S HAS GOTTEN EVEN BETTER!
Announcing the opening of a bigger and better full-service Bridal, Tuxedo, and Party-Wear store.
CHRISTINE'S THE WEDDING COMPANY
Now at a NEW LOCATION!
—1223 Moro—
776-7387
Mon.-Fri. 10-5:30
Thursday till 8 p.m.

PUMPKINS!
All You Can Carry
Only $4.99
Bring your strongest friend to get enough for the whole gang!
Hurry out — Supplies Limited
Horticultural Services
• Garden Center •
Mon-Sat 8-6 Fri 8-7:30 Sun 10-6
776-5764
2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

BEEF IT UP!

99¢
Hardee's Regular Roast Beef Sandwich:
Juicy 100% American Beef that is sliced thin and piled high on a toasted sesame bun. So now, for a limited time only, you can "BEEF IT UP" for a very special price!
Hardee's

Weber to be dedicated after $7.7 million renovation

By Lisa Pfannenstiel
Collegian Reporter

Weber Hall dedication ceremonies will highlight the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry's newly renovated and expanded building at 10 a.m. Saturday in Weber Arena.

The two-story, 23,000-square-foot-addition will provide expanded research and laboratory space for faculty and students of the livestock and meat industry program.

Weber Hall was originally completed in 1957 with 89 undergraduates and 11 graduate students using the facilities. This semester the department advises 531 undergraduates and 101 graduates students.

Student numbers exceeded the department's available space in the 1970s. By 1977 the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry grew to the point that upgraded facilities were needed. The meat labs didn't comply with USDA inspection standards, said Jack Riley, head of the department.

After requests by the department, the 1985 state Legislature appropriated $7.2 million for building the addition and renovating the existing 30,700 square feet, Riley said.

In addition, the Livestock Meat Industry Council was required to raise $500,000 for equipment. The fund-raising project is 65 percent complete, he said.

Construction began in March 1985 with completion scheduled in 1987. However, the construction took longer than estimated, Riley said.

"Some students' course-work was delayed since the beginning of the renovation. Other students never had the opportunity to see animals slaughtered or to get involved with the hands-on procedures of meat production," he said. "What we have now parallels the most modern meat processing facilities.

"The students are getting exposure to the real-world types of capabilities."

Since classes have resumed, students are able to further process meat products. Previously, students slaughtered the animal and evaluated the retail cuts derived from the carcasses, Riley said.

"Now we will be able to make some fairly sophisticated sausage products and experiment with new-product development. It is truly a state-of-the-art facility," he said.

The students and faculty have additional classrooms as well as research and lab areas, he said.

"The best way to enhance the facility was to start over ... the interior of the slaughter floor was gutted," Riley said.

The floor allows on-the-rail processing capabilities.

Two classroom/labs have been constructed for courses on processed and fresh meats and a carcass-viewing lecture hall. The improvement allows instructors to demonstrate meat-cutting and processing procedures easily and clearly, he said.

One unique feature of the carcass viewing classroom is the ability to direct cold air into the meat area while keeping the classroom a warmer temperature, said Melvin Hunt, faculty chairman of the Weber building committee.

Meat labs, comprising most of the first floor of the addition, are equipped with a wide variety of meat processing equipment for teaching, research, general fabrication and processed meat operations, Hunt said.

The meat laboratory space on the second level of the new addition will be primarily for graduate research including cell structure, tissue development and growth of the carcasses, he said.

In the renovated area, a microcomputer laboratory was created for mostly undergraduate students. A new student commons area and library has been converted from the livestock holding pens on the southeast side of Weber Arena, Riley said.

The German-made smokehouse and a dry sausage chamber have been installed as part of the processed meat laboratory; however, the system is not yet functional, he said.

Public tours of the facility will be from 8 a.m. to noon. The tours will display a microcomputer and research labs, the student library and commons, slaughtering and meat processing facilities and the carcass viewing classroom.

K-State judging teams' reunion will coincide with the dedication. About 400 judging team alumni are expected to attend the activites.

Weekend Special
Come visit our Pet Dept.
Small Neons 50¢ reg. 65¢
Kuhli Loach 50¢ reg. $1.00
Select African Cichlid 1/2 Price
10 Gallon Aquariums $10.99
While Supplies Last.
Colorful fish give pleasure and beauty.
GREEN THUMB
PLANTS — PETS
Serving Manhattan Over 30 Years
1105 Waters—539-4751
ACROSS FROM ALCO
GARDEN CENTER

FREE RENT
(one month with approved 12 month lease)
Free Campus Shuttle
Stackable washers & dryers available
2 outdoor pools and spa
Park Place apartments
1408 Cambridge Pl. (913) 539-2951

The Wash Palace
3216 Kimball—Candlewood
For Complete Cleaning, Alteration and Repair Service
- Coin Laundry
- On the spot FREE Garment Pressing
- Laundry Drop-off Service
- Professional Dry Cleaning & Alterations
- Drive-up window and door
- Bargain Laundry Center w/large capacity washers
- Complete Shoe and Leather Cleaning and Repair
- Big Screen TV
- Pool Table
- Snacks

Coming soon: The Wash Palace Car Wash
Open 7 a.m.-10 p.m. 537-9833

ATTENTION WILDCAT FANS
Enjoy A
25% DISCOUNT
on any small, medium, or large serving of ICBIY frozen yogurt when you wear purple on game day.
Our frozen yogurt has one-fifth the fat and one-half the calories of ice cream!
We'll also have available the popular Purple & White Swirl!!
Offer applies to all home football games. Toppings, waffle cones are regular price.
Try our new non-fat frozen yogurt!
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville
Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sunday
I Can't Believe It's YOGURT!
Frozen Yogurt Stores

We're the Safest Bank in Northeast Kansas.
Only 175 banks made Money Magazine's list of Safest Banks in the U.S.
Only five of those were Kansas banks.
And only one of those was from Northeast Kansas:
Union National Bank & Trust
Following a stringent financial evaluation that took into account the asset size and service spectrum of each bank, UNB was evaluated and selected by Money Magazine* as one of the nation's safest from an original list of over 14,000 banks.
Which just serves to prove what our customers have known all along — we're the bank you can count on.
*Money Extra, October 1988
Union National Bank & Trust Co.
MAIN BANK: 8th & Poyntz • WEST BANK: Westloop Shopping Center
DRIVE-THROUGH BANK: 8th & Houston • PHONE 913-537-1234
Member FDIC
Equal Opportunity Lender

Why settle for skimpy pizza when you can get... Pizza Hut Pairs only $9.99 $1.60 per topping covers both pizzas.
When it comes to 2-for-1 deals, some pizza places can be pretty skimpy. But with Pizza Hut Pairs, we start with two medium cheese Hand-Tossed pizzas. Then we pile on your favorite toppings plus two layers of our special blend of three cheeses. All for a price that's a great deal less than you might have expected.
Pizza Hut. Makin' it great!
DINE-IN/CARRYOUT
Check your local yellow pages for the Pizza Hut® restaurant nearest you.
$9.99 TWO MEDIUM CHEESE HAND-TOSSED PIZZA
$1.60 PER ADDITIONAL TOPPING. COVERS BOTH PIZZAS
•AGGIEVILLE 1121 MORO 539-7666
•WESTLOOP SHP. CTR. 2931 CLAFLIN RD. 539-7447
•3RD & MORO ST. 231 MORO 776-4334
*FOR DELIVERY CALL 539-7666 OR THE LOCATION NEAREST YOU.
NOT VALID IN COMBINATION WITH ANY OTHER SPECIAL OFFER. EXPIRES NOV. 6, 1988

Blackman, NBA teams set for shootout

By Tom Morris
Sports Editor

It's understandable that Rolando Blackman has somewhat mixed feelings about playing in tonight's National Basketball Association exhibition game between the Dallas Mavericks and the San Antonio Spurs at 7:35 in Fred Bramlage Coliseum.

Blackman returns as a professional, and the last time he played here it was in "The Old Barn."

"I have some different feelings about coming back as a professional and playing in Bramlage Coliseum," Blackman said in a telephone interview last Friday. "Personally, I would rather it would be at Ahearn Field House, but coming back to Manhattan is always a special time for me."

Blackman was a first-round draft pick of the Mavericks (No. 9 overall) in 1981, and has gone on to become one of the NBA's most respected guards. A three-time All-Star, Blackman helped lead the Mavericks to the Western Conference finals last season before they lost in seven games to the eventual World Champion Los Angeles Lakers.

During his career at K-State from 1977-81, Blackman was a three-time unanimous All-Big Eight Conference selection and was the conference's player of the year his junior season. Following that season, he was accorded his first of two All-American honors and was a starter on the 1980 United States Olympic basketball team.

Blackman remains the second leading scorer in K-State history with 1,844 points in his four-year career as a Wildcat. Men's basketball coach Lon Kruger said Blackman was "arguably the best player to have ever played at Kansas State."

"We're awfully hopeful the people of Manhattan and the area can come out and say 'thank you' to Rolando because ... he continues to represent Kansas State in a first-class way well into his NBA career," Kruger said.

Though Blackman said "college was the most fun I've ever had," he said there aren't many similarities between the amateur and professional levels of play.

"The level of enthusiasm of college basketball is more ... a feeling of concern, which was one of the great feelings I had at Kansas State," he said. "At the professional level, there is a team feeling but it's more of an 'every man for himself' situation where you have to get out there and produce.

Photo courtesy Dallas Mavericks

Three-time All-Big Eight Conference selection Rolando Blackman returns to Manhattan when the Dallas Mavericks will meet the Spurs. Since leaving K-State, Blackman has been an All-Star three times.

"It's not a situation where everyone wants to see everyone else succeed. In the NBA, it's a lot of fun, but it's a business first," he added.

But the transition to the NBA has been a smooth one for Blackman. In addition to his All-Star status, he works for several charities in the Dallas area including Special Olympics, Big Brothers and Big Sisters, Children's Medical Center in Dallas, American Heart Association, and the Muscular Dystrophy Association. He has also interned for Dallas area radio and television stations.

The lessons Blackman learned at K-State from former coach Jack Hartman help him even today.

"The mental toughness, to keep going on when things aren't going well, and also to have great poise. Coach Hartman would always talk about us having poise and not going

■ See ROLANDO, Page 13

Dallas franchise shows great change since ABA beginning

By Ish Haley
of the Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS, Tex. — Larry Brown, the former basketball coach at the University of Kansas, returned to Moody Coliseum at Southern Methodist University here last week for his first exhibition game as new coach of the San Antonio Spurs.

Brown, a guard for five franchises in the old American Basketball Association, played in Dallas when the Spurs, who moved to San Antonio in 1973, were still the Dallas Chaparrals.

Asked how many fans were in attendance during the ABA's last days in Moody, Brown answered, "Not too many."

Dan Issel, another ABA veteran who's now an executive with the Denver Nuggets, recalled that on one visit to Moody, "We had a contest to see if we could count the crowd during the National Anthem. There weren't a whole lot of people in Dallas who came out to watch us."

Sometime in mid-February, the Dallas Mavericks of the National Basketball Association will honor their five-millionth fan in Reunion Arena. Dallas, in eight seasons, sold 4,549,374 tickets. If the Mavericks match last year's average attendance of 16,966, they will reach 5,000,000 in attendance quicker than any team in NBA history.

"Basketball is not an exact science," Dallas general manager Norm Sonju said. "You just try and develop a philosophy, stick with it and try to be patient. We've been very fortunate. I'm just so very thankful for the way our fans have stuck by us and supported us through the years."

Dallas, which made its deepest playoff run ever last year by extending the NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers to seven games in the Western Conference Finals, has been built through the draft.

Ten of the 12 players expected to fill the Mavericks' roster are former first-round draft picks. Dallas began accumulating first-rounders in 1981, picking DePaul's Mark Aguirre and K-State's Rolando Blackman. Dallas added three first-round choices — Detlef Schrempf, Bill Wennington and Uwe Blab — in 1985.

"I think Dallas had their approach and has certainly done it through the draft," New York Knicks general manager Al Bianchi said. "They were fortunate early to get all those draft picks. That was a big help to them. They've done a heckuva job.

"They've been consistent and patient and their fans have been patient. Now it's paying off. Dallas is going to be a very good team."

Dallas already is a very good team. Over the past two seasons, the Mavericks have won 108 games and the Midwest Division championship in 1986-87. Only the Lakers (127) and Boston (116) have compiled more victories in the last two years.

"The Mavericks have passed a lot of teams since coming into the NBA, but staying ahead of the competition in our conference will be tough," said Mavericks coach John MacLeod, who coached at the University of Oklahoma for six seasons before moving to the Phoenix Suns in 1973.

DALLAS MAVERICKS

"We're all on the same mission — to catch the Lakers."

Oddly enough, the Mavericks, after building their nucleus through the deft handling of draft choices, decided that remaining intact afforded them their best opportunity of breaking into the NBA final round. In order to protect its roster from expansion, Dallas traded its first-round draft choice to Miami this past season.

"We've worked pretty well together," Blackman said. "We advanced to within one game of being in the finals. It's real important to see where the whole team can go before anything is changed."

Aguirre, Blackman and center James Donaldson are past NBA All-Stars. Forward Sam Perkins is rated as one of the league's best defenders. Roy Tarpley, Dallas' first-round pick in 1986, won the NBA's "Sixth-Man Award" this past season.

"Our guys are thinking like winners," MacLeod said. "We will have to continue to mature, but there's no reason why we can't or why we won't."

Larry Brown hospitalized, to miss game

By John Lopez
of the San Antonio Light

When we last saw Larry Brown, he was leaving the University of Kansas at the top of the college basketball world.

Now, that seems so long ago.

Brown, who was supposed to have brought a young San Antonio Spurs team to Bramlage Coliseum tonight, has come across much harder times in recent days.

Brown will miss the exhibition game against the Dallas Mavericks because he has been admitted to a San Antonio hospital for neurological tests. Brown has suffered severe headaches the past two weeks and had to leave the team Thursday morning to be re-examined.

Brown missed an earlier preseason game against Milwaukee while being tested for the first time, but those tests proved negative. Brown rejoined the team for Wednesday's 120-96 loss to Detroit in Memphis, but now will undergo a more thorough examination and is expected to be hospitalized at least two days.

Still, Brown says he is hoping the groundwork that was laid during the recent Spurs training camp continues to take hold. Assistants Greg Papovich and R.C. Buford will direct the team in Brown's absence.

The challenge facing the Spurs has become a big one, but Brown believes the team will be up to it.

Brown now is only hoping for steady improvement against the Mavericks, a much more established team which finished just one game away from the NBA finals.

"We want to win every time we go out there on the court," Brown said. "But more than that, we want to become a better team out there every time we go out on the court."

It is classic Larry Brown. Teach, take your lumps if you must, but win.

"It's still very early," Brown said. "We have a long way to go and we have a lot to learn."

So tonight's 7:35 match against the Mavericks is only one of the first steps along the way to another Yellow Brick Road season. Brown certainly seems to have the young talent that could prevail.

At center, the Spurs received another big setback when David Robinson's appeal for release from his commitment to the Navy was denied Thursday. So for now, all Brown can do is hope, wait and insert 7-foot-2 Petur Gudmundsson into the lineup. Gudmundsson has proven to be a capable starter but simply lacks Robinson's range and mobility.

Elsewhere on the floor, it seems the Spurs are looking for a proven scorer, a small forward and experience everywhere.

All-Star guard Alvin Robertson, who recently signed a new contract that will pay him $1 million a year, should team with Johnny Dawkins of Duke for one of the best backcourts in the league.

"We know this is the year we have to take control, to lead this team," Dawkins said. "We've been together long enough now that we think we can be one of the best teams in the league. We're going to have to have a good year, because all of a sudden we're the experienced guys on this team."

And with the addition of Olympian Willie Anderson, depth in the backcourt certainly seems solid as well. On the front line, there could be more bright days ahead for Brown and the Spurs. Forward Shelton Jones has a been bright spot in camp. Former Milwaukee Buck Pace Mannion also has shown progress as has Greg "Cadillac" Anderson. Brown still would prefer to have a better scorer at small forward, and perhaps a deal is still in the works.

But for now, all Brown can do is teach and take it one step at a time.

File/Jim Dietz

Former University of Kansas coach Larry Brown, now with the San Antonio Spurs, was hospitalized Thursday for neurological testing and will miss tonight's exhibtion game in Fred Bramlage Coliseum.

Wildcats to visit Sooners

By Russ Ewy
Sports Writer

After ending its nine-game losing streak last weekend, the 10-9 K-State volleyball team will face one of the Big Eight Conference giants when it travels to Oklahoma this weekend.

The Wildcats will play the 12th-ranked Oklahoma Sooners Friday night and then head northeast to Tulsa for Saturday's matches with Oral Roberts and Tulsa.

"(Oklahoma) is probably the team that is playing the best in the conference right now," K-State coach Scott Nelson said. "OU has gotten to the top because of its physical play at the net. If you can dominate at the net, you can pretty well control the other team, and I think that's where Oklahoma has had its success.

"We know what their strengths are so we are going to try to limit what they like to do," he added.

"(One) of the keys to our success is tough serving to slow down their offense a little bit. Also, we are going to need to receive serves very accurately. If we don't, and also fail to pass off the net, then we are going to be very predictable offensively, allowing their

■ See 'CATS, Page 13

NU's Big Red Machine comes to town

Wildcats will play minus 4 starters

K-State Wildcats vs. Nebraska Cornhuskers

Game Time: 1:30 p.m. Saturday.
Place: KSU Stadium (42,000).
TV: None. Radio: Wildcat Radio Network (WIBW 580 AM).
Season Records: Nebraska 6-1; K-State 0-6.
Series Record: Nebraska leads 60-10-2.
Notes: The series has been played continuously since 1922 ... Nebraska's high scoring 63-42 victory over Oklahoma State produced a lot of firsts, including most points scored in Memorial Stadium and in a Nebraska game, the most points ever scored against a Tom Osborne-coached team and the most points scored against NU in a win ... K-State's 11 touchdown passes this season are only three shy of a school record.

File/John La Barge

Redshirt-freshman quarterback Paul Watson is still recovering from a shoulder injury suffered in the loss to Missouri two weeks ago. K-State will also be without the services of three other starters when it takes on Nebraska at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in KSU Stadium.

By Chris Wilhelm
Sports Writer

Nebraska will be shooting for a record while K-State will be trying to improve its game.

With one more victory, the Cornhuskers will assure themselves of a winning season. It would be their 27th consecutive winning season, which would set an NCAA record for consecutive winning seasons.

The Wildcats, 0-2 in the Big Eight and 0-6 overall, are at the other end of the spectrum.

"We are basically working on improving our game," K-State coach Stan Parrish said. "We want to come out of this game with each of our players feeling that they played better than they did the week before. We have to get ourselves ready, go out there and do our level best."

While the 'Cats are coming off a 70-24 shellacking at the hands of the Oklahoma Sooners, the 'Huskers are coming off one of their most impressive victories of the season, a 63-42 drubbing of Oklahoma State.

"They can do it all," Parrish said. "They scored 63 points on a team that was ranked in the top ten. They run the ball well and they use the throw to set up the run, using a lot of play action passes. They have a lot of size and a lot of speed. This is going to be a tough, tough game.

"They are so much bigger than we are. We are going to be rotating a lot of people in the game so they don't wear us down. We have been playing a lot of our younger players all year and this game we will probably be doing more of it."

Nebraska's defensive line averages 6-foot-2 and 276 pounds. These statistics in themselves aren't so ominous, but when you see the three-deep chart shows the two backups at each of the slots are equally as big, K-State starting quarterback Carl Straw could have a long day.

Nebraska's offensive line is even larger than their defensive counterparts. They average 6-foot-5 and 270 pounds. Nebraska's offense has been impressive in moving the ball, as it is ranked fifth in total offense and second in scoring offense nationally.

The 'Huskers are led on offense by their starting quarterback, Steve Taylor, who completed six of 11 passes with two touchdowns and rushed 11 times for 140 yards and two scores against Oklahoma State.

"Steve played a fine game (against Oklahoma State)," Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said. "He is our field leader and when he does well, the chances are our team is playing well."

"Taylor is an excellent athlete," Parrish said. "There are so many things that he does well. He can run the ball. He can throw the ball. He has great football instincts."

As far as matchups go, the 'Cats really don't compare with the 'Huskers. While K-State has averaged a little more than twice as much yardage passing as Nebraska (260-119 yards per game), the 'Huskers have rushed the ball for just more than four times as much yardage as K-State, (412-99 yards per game).

"Nebraska has a very fine defense," Parrish said. "We are going to have to protect our quarterback. If we can get this done, I feel that we can play throw-and-catch and move the ball down the field. We will really have to mix things up on them on offense."

Paul Watson's shoulder is still sore following the injury he received two weeks ago against Missouri, so Carl Straw will draw the starting nod again Saturday.

"Carl had his best half ... ever in the second half of the Oklahoma game last week," Parrish said.

K-State will also go into Saturday's game against Nebraska Cornhuskers without three additional players.

Missing will be offensive tackle Russ Stange (broken toe) and noseguard Rob Goode (pinched shoulder nerve). The 'Cats will also be missing linebacker Erick Harper, whose father died Wednesday. Harper is attending funeral services in Denison, Texas.

Restaurant Guide

Sat. Specials Only
Cheese Nachos $2
Meat Nachos $3
Potato Skins $3.25
Tacos 50¢
The Fishbowl
$1 Fishbowls $1 Fishbowls
Manhattan, Ks.
105 N. 3rd M-F 11 a.m.-2 a.m. Sat. 10 a.m.-2 a.m. 776-9879

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM Restaurant
539-8888 1304 Westloop
Sunday Buffet
11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
$5.95
Children under 5 free
crab ragoon
crispy wonton
hot n' sour soup
fried rice
sweet n' sour pork
vegtable delight
pork egg foo young
hot braised chicken
shrimp with lobster sauce
chicken chow mein
spicy tangy beef
FREE DELIVERY 11 a.m.-1 a.m.

TAKE A BREAK WITH US THIS WEEKEND
For a Real Gourmet Burger other fine foods and EeGee's Made Ice Cream
EeGee's
Restaurant & Ice Creamery
Watch for our Haunted House Halloween Weekend
1129 Laramie • 10 a.m. Midnight • 537-3999

SUNDAY STUDENT SPECIALS
CHICKEN FRIED STEAK DINNER
$4.49
Mushroom or Cream Gravy
Includes choice of Potato plus Toast, Salad, Hot Food and Dessert Bar
++++
SALAD, HOT FOOD AND DESSERT BAR
$3.79
Show your Student ID Card and request the Student Special of your choice!
Breakfast Buffet Sat./Sun. 6-10:30 a.m.
100 Bluemont
SIRLOIN STOCKADE.

Piñata
BACK THE CATS!
Then join us after the game for FROSTY MARGARITAS! & SIZZLING HOT FAJITAS!
1219 Bluemont 539-3166
Open daily at 11:00 am

E·A·T·A·T Rock-A-Belly
B·A·R & D·E·L·I
"Sub of the Week"
"6" Belly Buster" $2.25 Shaved Ham Turkey Swiss & American Served with Lettuce Tomato & Chips
"BIG GIRLS" $1.50 23 oz. draft
Join us all day for Great Food & A Great Time!
COCKTAILS
BAGELS
Serving Food from 10:00 A.M.-9:00 P.M.
Serving Cocktails 10:00 A.M. to 2:00 A.M.
Monday-Saturday
718 N. Manhattan • 539-8033 • AGGIEVILLE

Singing groups represent K-State

Glee clubs to perform, continue 25-year tradition

By The Collegian Staff

The K-State, University of Nebraska, and University of Kansas men's glee clubs will perform a concert at 8 tonight in All Faith's Chapel.

This tradition started 25 years ago with the K-State and Nebraska men's glee clubs, and has always been the night before the K-State vs. Nebraska football game, said Gerald Polich, associate professor of music and conductor of the K-State Men's Glee Club.

It was called the "Great Glee Club Battle," Polich said.

"In 1985 we incorporated the University of Kansas and Emporia State University. Emporia State will not be coming this year because it is its homecoming," he said.

Nebraska and K-State take turns hosting the concert and the singers.

"Since it's our turn, we'll house the other schools' singers in our guys' apartments, and they do the same for us when we go there," Polich said.

The concert will begin with the three schools singing the "National Anthem." Then each school will have about 30 minutes of its own time to sing.

"K-State usually sings a Big Eight medley and Nebraska usually sings two or three school songs," Polich said.

The concert will end with the schools singing together, "Brothers Sing On."

Tickets are $3 and will be sold at the door. The concert is open to everyone.

Choir plans journey

By The Collegian Staff

K-State Choir will embark on an 11-day journey this spring to Australia, marking the sixth time the group will go on tour in another part of the world.

"The choir is invited to tour these countries because of its reputation," said Rod Walker, director of the choir. "We are considered one of the top choirs in the country."

There are 52 students and 10 sponsors making the trip to Australia May 15.

The trip costs about $2,200 for each member. This includes lodging, airfare, breakfast and some of the other meals while the group is in Australia, Walker said.

"Last fall we had three different options for a trip. We look at least a year ahead of time for where (the choir) is going," said Nancy Hill, senior in journalism and mass communications and a member of the choir.

The trip is being sponsored by the Association of Australian Choral Directors. Most of the concerts are performed at or associated with schools of music, Walker said.

Choir members must pay for the trip themselves, although there are some minor fund-raisers in the works to help students pay for the trip, Walker said.

"We have a music run at the R.V. Christian Track," Walker said. "Students get sponsors for each lap they run."

Another fund-raiser is the Serenade concert in February.

While in Australia, the choir will perform at schools such as the University of Australia and the University of Queensland.

Past trips have included the Soviet Union, Poland, Germany, Austria, England and Wales.

Red Cross expects 1400 blood donors

By The Collegian Staff

K-Staters will have a chance to "give the gift of life" next week during the annual fall visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile.

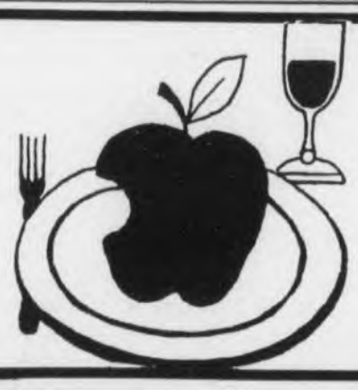
Donations will be taken Oct. 25 to Oct. 28 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Union K, S and U ballrooms.

Appointments are being taken through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the bloodmobile table in the Union concourse.

Phyliss Hammond, registered nurse at Lafene Student Health Center and primary coordinator of the bloodmobile, said donors are encouraged to make appointments for giving blood.

"Generally quite a few appointments are made in advance," she said. "Last spring there were 750 advance appointments and we had 1,050 donors all together."

Donors should plan to allow at least 45 minutes for the entire procedure, Hammond said.



Before giving blood, donors are required to fill out a questionnaire to release their medical history. Then vital signs are taken and a blood test is given to find out the donor's blood type, she said. When the screening process is completed, the donor is either accepted or rejected.

"Walk-ins are welcome, but preference is given to those with appointments," she said.

The Kiwanis student chapter, Circle K, is sponsoring the event, which will return in the spring.

"Our goal is to collect 1,400 units," said George Brandsberg, Circle K adviser.

Dine Out at Manhattan Area Restaurants

2605 Stagg Hill Rd. Gregov's 776-1234

WEEKEND SPECIAL

Family Style Pan-Fried chicken $4.50
Broiled Salmon w/ Crabmeat Stuffing $6.95
Prime Rib $7.95

All above served with choice of potatoe, vegtables, and salad.

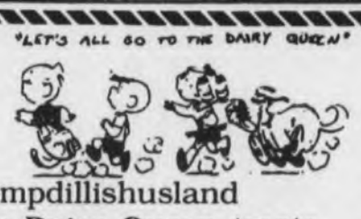
Entertainment: Country and Western duo

AL-BASHA الباشا
GREEK & MEDITERRANEAN FOOD
537-7533 1209 Laramie St.

50¢ off Gyros sandwich
offer expires 10/31/88

Buy 1 Gyro sand. & get 2nd at 1/2 price
offer expires 10/31/88

HOURS 11 a.m.-3 p.m., 4:30-9 p.m.
MOST DELICIOUS TREAT IN TOWN



AUTHENTIC TEXAS AND MEXICAN FOOD
GAME DAY SPECIAL
11 a.m.-5 p.m.
SINGLE BEEF FAJITA
with sour cream, guacamole, & pico de gallo. Served with Spanish rice & frijoles barrachos.
$3.95
☆ GREAT MARGARITAS
LONE STAR CAFE
606 N. 12th
NEXT TO HIBACHI HUT

Mrs. Powell's
Delicious Cinnamon Rolls
FREE CINNAMON ROLL
with the purchase of a roll and large drink
Manhattan Town Center
Expires October 31, 1988

9 Piece Chicken Special
$7.39
Limit 2 per visit or call ahead.
Expires Oct. 31, 1988
901 N. 3rd.
776-9031
3002 Anderson
539-9491
Kentucky Fried Chicken

STOP & SHOP
WEEKEND SPECIAL
Frito Pie — A stack of cornhusker chips smothered in Good Old Kansas State Chili topped with sour cream, if you please. — $1.49
We refill all cups!
1455 Anderson • 537-2200
Anderson Village

Welcome Football Fans!

Come to scrumpdillishusland for all your favorite Dairy Queen treats before and after the game.
We're open until midnight.
Dairy Queen brazier
Dairy Queen Brazier
1015 N. 3rd, Manhattan
776-4117

When you think Pizza, think Pyramid Pizza!
"We pile it on!"

Speedy FREE Delivery
LARGE 16 in. Pizza only $6.99
Dine in only.
Plus 99¢ Pitchers
Expires 1-1-89
1130 MORO

Speedy FREE Delivery
TWO 13 in. Pizzas only $10.50
Expires 1-1-89
Plus TWO FREE Toppings!
539-4888

Thin Crust or Original Golden Braid
Fast, Friendly, Free Delivery
CALL:
539-4888
MasterCard VISA

Falsetto's PIZZA
539-3830
Falsetto's Pizza Price Buster!
The Best For Less
Two Pizzas — $5.99
No Coupon Required
• Homemade — Made by hand
• Fresh Ingredients
• Dough made daily
• 100% Real Mozzerella Cheese
• Free Delivery — Limited territory

MENU

Italian Sausage, Pepperoni, Ground Beef, Mushrooms, Black Olives, Onions, Jalapenos, Pineapple, Green Peppers, Ham, Extra Cheese

	TWO 10"	10" & 14"	TWO 14"
Cheese	5.99	7.99	8.99
1 Item	6.94	9.24	10.39
2 Items	7.89	10.49	11.79
3 Items	8.84	11.74	13.19
4 Items	9.79	12.99	14.59
Deluxe	9.79	12.99	14.59
Vegie	9.79	12.99	14.59
Supreme	10.74	14.24	15.99
Each Additional Item	.95	1.25	1.40

1127 Moro - In Aggieville

DON'T SETTLE FOR CONVENTIONAL FAST FOOD

SUBWAY Sandwiches & Salads

$1 off of any foot long or large salad

539-9391
620 N. Manhattan
Aggieville
SUBWAY Sandwiches & Salads
The Fresh Alternative
Hours:
Mon.-Sat. 11-2
Sun. 11-11
exp. 10/30/88

Interfraternity Council bans alcohol from rush activities

By The Collegian Staff

An extension to an amendment passed by the Interfraternity Council Oct. 10 will increase the limitations concerning alcohol use at fraternity rush events.

The extension states that no alcohol will be served at any rush activity whether it is on the premises of the house or anywhere in the state, said Jerry Pritchett, senior in industrial engineering and task force chairman of the dry rush amendment.

In the past the policy defined a rush activity as involving "five or more prospective members at a rush activity," Pritchett said. However, because of the new amendment, a fraternity may not serve alcohol at a rush function regardless of the number of rushees present, he said.

"Last year's policy was a little vague and it needed to be made clearer for everyone," Pritchett said.

The new amendment is "aimed at rush parties or any situation involving a prospective member of a house," said Tom Hemmer, junior in economics and president of IFC.

In the past, there have been some complaints about alochol being present at rush events. Barb Robel, Greek Affairs advisor, declined comment on who issued the complaints.

The charges were evaluated but no judicial action was taken, Hemmer said. If any fraternity is found to have violated the new rule then fines between "$5 and $15 per man (active member of the house) will be imposed," he said.

This type of action is performed at the discretion of the IFC officers, Robel said.

"There's also a possibility of social and intramural probation in addition to notification of the national fraternity," Hemmer said.

Def

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Mary Kompus, senior in radio/television, said she didn't start out a Def Leppard fan.

"I don't even really like Def Leppard. (My boyfriend) just brought me along. He didn't even tell me what to expect. I just came and saw it. It was great," she said.

Despite the reputation of many rock fans, workers at the event said the crowd didn't present any unexpected problems.

"They're not too rowdy. In fact, they're a pretty good bunch," said Nat Davis, military-personal escort.

Davis was working, but he said he didn't mind.

"I've been in (the stage area), but decided I liked it better out here," he said of the concourse area.

Nine-year-old Sara Appino, Wamego, said she likes Def Leppard because she knows the groups songs.

"They're the best," she said.

Appino's mother, Julie, said she called Bramlage's box office 21 times before finally getting through to order tickets.

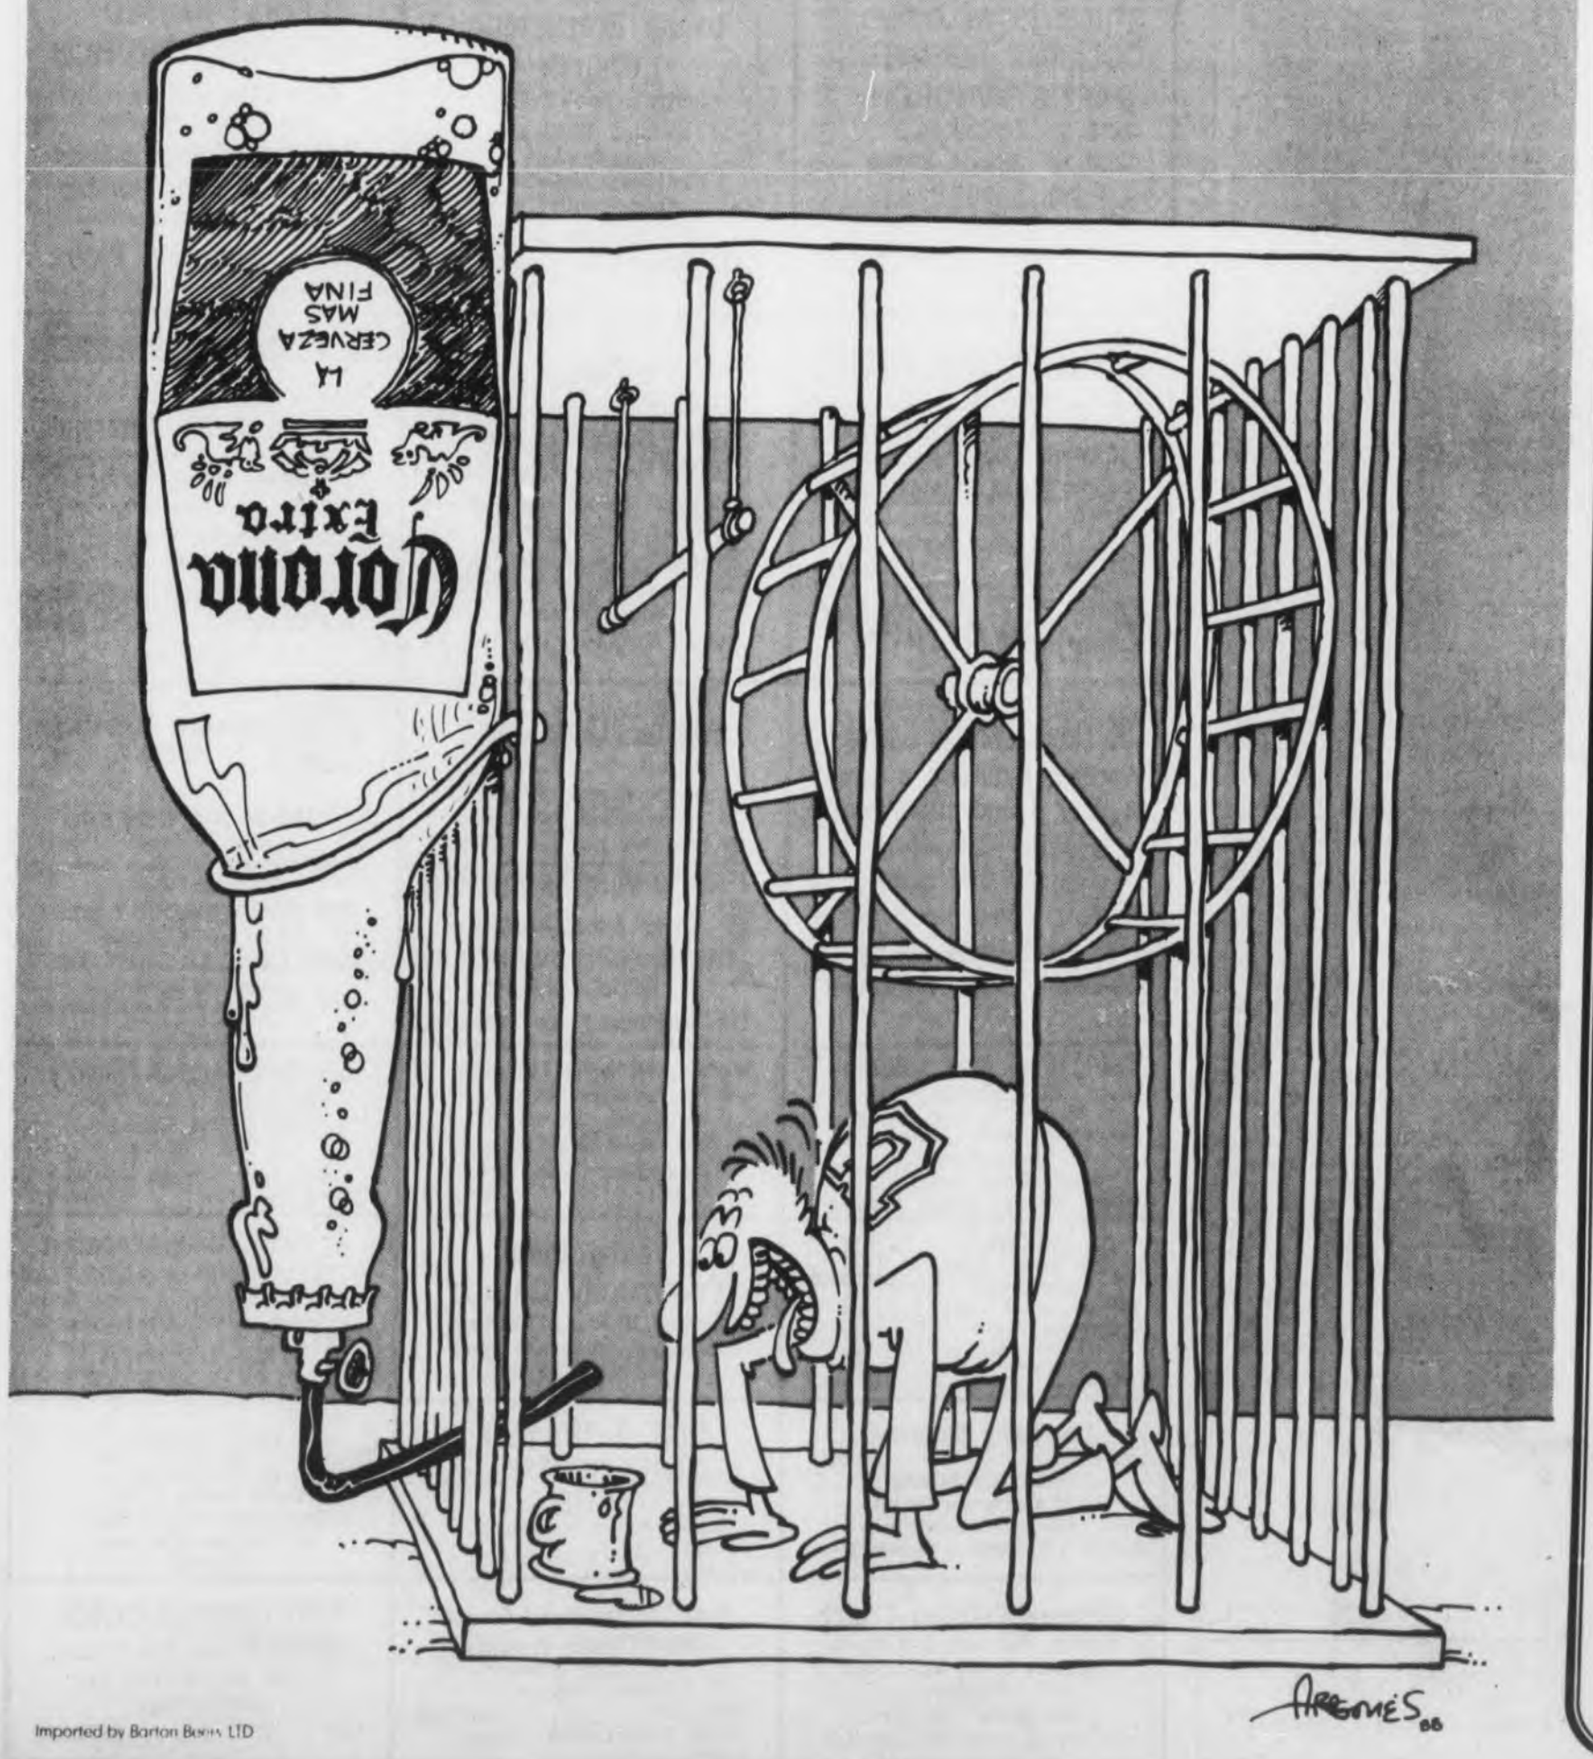
"We debated about it for awhile, but she said she wanted to go — so here we are," she said.

Concert T-shirts sold for $18, sweat shirts for $35 and designer sweat shirts for $60.

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

Putt-Putt Golf
Open Fri., Sat. & Sun.
Afternoons & Evenings
Through October

Horticulture Club
PUMPKIN SALE
Mon., Oct. 24 and Tues., Oct. 25
UNION and outside WATERS HALL
(between Waters & Farrell Library)
If bad weather, sale 1st Floor Waters
8-5 p.m.
WE'RE THE CHEAPEST PLACE IN TOWN!
Perfect for dorm rooms!



STOREWIDE COAT SALE
$10 OFF (All Coats under $69)
$20 OFF (All Coats between $69-$119.99)
$30 OFF (All Coats between $120-$199.99)
OPEN 10-9 Mon.-Sat. 12-5 Sunday
Ups N Downs 539-8501
MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

COME TO THE MOVIES TONIGHT 7:30 p.m.
FILMS
"Children of a Lesser God"
Starring William Hurt
Free Admission
UCM Student Center
1021 Denison
United Campus Ministry

776-5577 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3—10 in. Pizzas
1—Topping
4—Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2—10 in. pizzas
2—Toppings
2—Cokes
$8.00
FAST N FREE DELIVERY

LARGE PIZZA ONLY 5.99
with one topping
dine in or free home delivery
with this coupon
offer good through Oct. 31
Dougout
"premium pizza at a cardboard pizza price"
523 South 17th
537-1484

SGA ELECTIONS
Get your political message across in the Kansas State Collegian.
The Advertising Staff is available to discuss your ideas and design political advertising catered to your college.
Call 532-6560 or stop by Kedzie 101 for an appointment.
Deadline 2 days prior to publication.
Kansas State Collegian

BEHAVIOR MODIFICATION 101:

Imported by Barton Beers LTD

Early Bird Sale!

Don't let Winter catch you and your feathered friends by surprise!
20¢ Off Every Pound of Packaged Bird Feed
or 10% Off All 50 lb. Quantities
While supply lasts.
Let us help you choose the seed desired by your favorite bird species.

•Thistle
•Black Oil Sunflower
•Striped Sunflower
•Finch Mix
•Sunflower Chips
•Wild Bird Feed
•Safflower
Stock up now for that first cold blast of Winter!
Horticultural Services
• Garden Center •
Mon-Sat 8-6 Fri 8-7:30 Sun 10-6
776-5764
2 mi. east of Manhattan on U.S. 24

Slattery hoping for fourth term

By Sarah Kobs
Collegian Reporter

Editor's note: this is part six of a series on the candidates for the Kansas Legislature.

As Democrat Jim Slattery finishes his eighth year representing 2nd District constituents in the U.S House of Representatives, his campaign directors are busy working on his re-election.

The 2nd District includes 13 northeast Kansas counties which include Riley, Geary, Shawnee and Douglas counties.

Ken Murphy, press secretary for Slattery, said Slattery has been a life-long resident of northeast Kansas. He earned a law degree from Washburn Law School in 1970 and attended the Netherlands School of International Economics during 1969-70.

"Slattery began his political career in 1972 when he was elected as a representative to the Kansas Legislature. He served three terms and was the first Democrat in Kansas history to be elected as Speaker Pro-Tem," Murphy said.

In 1978, he was the chief sponsor and co-author of the first income tax reform bill to pass in the Legislature in more than 30 years. He was Speaker Pro-Tem and a member of the House Assessment and Taxation committee when the bill was passed, Murphy said.

Slattery has served three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives since 1982, and has been on several committees, including the House Budget Committee, and the Energy and Commerce Committee.

He has served on the Telecommunications and Finance, Oversight and Investigation, Transportation and Tourism, and Hazardous Materials subcommittees. Slattery is also a member of the Congressional Rural Caucus, Caucus on Women's Issues and the Congressional Arts Caucus, Murphy said.

Slattery emphasized support of federal funding for student loans and scholarships.

"I attended college also. But without the help of a friendly Kansas banker I wouldn't have been able to," he said. "I'm vigorously opposed to cuts in student loans and strongly support all government-funded programs including Pell Grants and GSL's."

Slattery said it was a little known fact that the Reagan administration tried to cut student funding by 25 percent. Slattery tried to fight the cuts when he served on the Budget Committee and supported modest increases in student funding.

"The best interest of our country lies in the future," he said. "Educating the next generation will help the United States compete in a world-class economy."

Slattery said he would support cuts in other areas, such as national defense, to increase federal funds for student loans and scholarships.

Remedial

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

student be placed in a study skills lab.

"If we see a problem due to the ACT scores, we recommend study skills (lab) or other remedial courses," Lynch said. "So while we show an increase in study skills labs, at the same time there is an increase in the percentage of students academically successful."

The study skills labs are now tied in with other courses that students are enrolled in, Lynch said. As an example, a study skills lab concerned with note-taking will use notes and the text from a social science class in which that the student is enrolled.

"Study skills lab used to be offered as a free-standing course, but what was happening was at the end of the course, students were able to tell us how to study, but they didn't change their study habits," Lynch said.

The third reason Lynch said there was an increase in the number of students taking remedial courses was because of the increased number of non-traditional students. He described non-traditional students as those who have been out of school for at least five years. The remedial courses were taken as refresher courses.

Statewide, the number of students enrolled in remedial education courses dropped 22 percent. This drop is partially due to mission statements adopted by the universities.

The mission statements are lists of classes that the schools recommend high school students take if they are interested in pursuing a college degree, and how each school defines its role in higher education.

Part-time Lab Equipment Repair Technician needed by the KSU Department of Physics, beginning January 1989.

Duties include: Diagnose and repair mechanical and electrical/electronic student lab equipment. Supervision of 2-4 student helpers. (10-15 hours per week.)

For more information and applications, contact:
Barry Anderson, (913) 532-6786.
Closing date: October 31, 1988.

Student Body President
JD Llewelyn
☒ An Effective Leader
Paid for by Students to Elect Llewelyn

LAURIAN CUFFY, candidate for student body president, invites you to
"A Weekend to Remember"

"A New Era with Laurian" Party
Hors d'oeuvres, music and beverages provided
Friday, October 21st
2301 Walnut by Sunset Zoo
8 p.m.
$3 per person
$2 with ad or invitation

"An Evening with Laurian" A Lasagna Dinner
Sunday, October 23rd
901 Yuma
The Douglass Center
6 to 8 p.m.
$3 per person

A LEADER FOR A DIVERSIFIED STUDENT BODY
LAURIAN CUFFY STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT
The only choice for Student Body President at K-State
Paid for by the committee to elect Laurian Cuffy

7th Annual
ΠΚΑ
1988 LIL SISTER OLYMPICS
4-7 p.m.—
Ideal Greek Walk-through
Free Hamburgers, Brother's
Sat. 9 a.m.-Noon—
Final Day Games in South End of Ahearn
JOIN US WITH COORS AT BROTHER'S IN AGGIEVILLE MONDAY, WEDNESDAY & FRIDAY
SPONSORED BY
Coors · Pyramid Pizza · Sunflower Graphics · KSKT 95.3 fm Radio · Brothers in Aggieville

Smile enhancement by the professionals
Ceramic Laboratory Artisans on Staff
Porcelain and Dicor® —bonding — veneers — inlays — crowns — bridges
SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Cosmetic Dentistry Department 913-537-9414

Religious Directory

GRACE BAPTIST CHURCH
Worship 10:30 a.m.
Collegian class
Sunday School 9:15 a.m.
Dr. Judd Swihart
& Gordon Hibbard, teachers
Students Welcome
776-0424 2901 Dickens Ave.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
801 Leavenworth 537-0518
Worship 8*30 & 11 am.
Church School 9:30 am.
•College Outreach
(Tuesday, K-State Union)
•Weekday Programs for Youth
•Nursery available
Senior Minister
Rev. Dr. Phillip S. Gittings III

The Assembly
Manhattan's Free Assembly of God
Sunday Praise Hours
10:15 a.m. and 6 p.m.
•Sunday School—9 a.m.
•Collegiate Bible Class
•Transportation available
Office 537-7633
Seth Childs Rd. at Gary Ave.
Mike Wall, Pastor 537-7967
MINISTRY FOR THE DEAF

UNITED PENTECOSTAL CHURCH
Sunday School 10:00 a.m.
Worship Service 11:00 a.m.
Evangelical Service Sun. 7:00 p.m.
Youth Service Tues. 7:30 p.m.
700 Vattier, 776-8717 or 537-0384

STUDENTS WELCOME!
COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Worship Service
2221 College Heights Rd.
537-7744

Trinity Presbyterian Church
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
•Nursery Provided
•Handicap Accessible
•Rides Available
Pastor James Cramer
1110 College Ave. 539-3921

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 a.m. Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services
John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
invites you . . .
WORSHIP, SUNDAY 11 a.m.
Danforth Chapel (campus)
Lutheran Student Movement 5 p.m.
Sunday - Lutheran Student Center
Don Fallon, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4451
Come share the Spirit!

Manhattan Jewish Congregation
1504 Wreath Ave. 539-8462
Shabbat Services 8 p.m. Fri.
Religious School 9:30 Sun.
Rides available
sponsor Blue Birds, Hillel K-State
Campus Adviser,
David Margolies, 532-6154

First Church of the Nazarene
"Stepping out in faith . . . Reaching out in love."
Morning Worship—10:50
Evening Praise—6:00
Sunday School—9:45
College Class—9:30
Pastor K. Ray McDowell 539-6376 (home)
1000 Fremont 539-2851 (church)
*Nursery Available

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
Worship Saturday 6 p.m.
Sunday 8 and 10:45 a.m.
—Bible Class—
Sunday 9:30 a.m.
Student fellowship 5 p.m.
in the K-State Union
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

First Baptist Church
Sunday Worship 11 a.m.
Church School 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd. 539-8691

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ
115 Courthouse Plaza 776-8790

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH
WORSHIP 8 & 10:30 a.m.
Randy Sly, Pastor
For information on College Class call church office
SUN. EVE. WORSHIP 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd and 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups) 6 p.m.
2nd and 4th Sundays
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan
S.W. corner 14th & Anderson
Steve Ratliff, Pastor
Worship 9 a.m.
Sunday School 10:15 a.m.
776-2086 Nursery Provided 776-0259

Manhattan Mennonite Fellowship
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
KSU Student Group 6:30 p.m.
Dorothy Nickel Friesen, Pastor
1021 Denison 539-4079

Christian Campus Ministry
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Bible Classes 9:30 a.m.
& Wed. 7:30 p.m.
Andy Miller—Campus Minister
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

St. Isidore's
Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses
9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday - 5 p.m.
Daily Mass 10 p.m.
(except Fridays)
711 Denison 539-7496

Valley View Community Church
Service 10:30 a.m. Sunday
University Inn lower level
A Great Commission Affiliate

UNITARIAN-UNIVERSALIST FELLOWSHIP of MANHATTAN
10:45 a.m. Service & Sunday School
Nursery provided, everyone welcome
On K-18, ½ mile east of K-177
For info: call 537-2349

University Christian
2800 Claflin 776-5440
8:30-11 a.m. Worship
9:45 a.m. Sunday School
6:30 p.m. Eve. Service
Accessible To Handicapped Students Welcome

DIAL-A-PRAYER
(913) 762-4837
762-2287
Someone there to pray with you.
24 hours

Unity Church of Manhattan
Sunday Service 11 a.m.
Study group 6:30 p.m. Sun.
1221 Thurston, UFM House
539-8416

Crestview Christian Church
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Collegiate Sunday School 9:30
776-3798
4761 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(on Hwy. 24, across from State Park)

First Congregational Church United Church of Christ
Church School 9:30 a.m.
Worship 10:45 a.m.
700 Poyntz 537-7006
Dr. Robert L. Carlson, Pastor

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Worship at 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Sunday School—9:40 a.m.
(Collegiate Class)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

Rolando

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

out there and falling apart because it didn't apply just to the basketball court. Later on in life, similar situations are going to happen," Blackman said.

Though it's a homecoming for the 6-foot-6 guard from Brooklyn, N.Y., it doesn't necessarily mean Friday night will be the "Rolando Blackman Show" in Bramlage.

"It's not going to be that way," he said. "I'm sure some of the guys are going to be aware that I'm coming back to Manhattan, and hopefully they'll want to give me the ball a little more.

"I'm going to get a few shots off, that's for sure, but I think some of the other guys are going to want to get some shots off too."

'Cats

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

blocking strength to control the tempo of the match."

Saturday's matches will a different situation for the 'Cats as they play Tulsa at 11 a.m., then cross town to take on Oral Roberts — a team K-State swept in three games at the beginning of the season — at 3:30 p.m.

"It's something we've never tried before," Nelson said. "We've played two matches in one day in a tournament, but Saturday we will play a match and then go across town to play another. We will be on the other school's home court both times."

Kedzie 103 ClassAds 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $2.50, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $3.50, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.25, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.00, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

Buy, Sell or Trade in Collegian Classifieds

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs -skincare -glamor -nails -gifts for all seasons. Floris Tavlor. 539-2070.

FLYING INTEREST you? For information on K-State Flying Club call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

LUNAR TUNES, Party DJ. Reservations 776-9140.

MARY KAY career opportunity meeting this Sunday. For more information call Jana, 539-3845.

NEW NAIL care system by Mary Kay Cosmetics. Janet Milliken, 539-9469.

ROCK CLIMBING Club would like to invite you to an afternoon climbing experience at the west wall of the Old Stadium. Saturday, Oct. 22 at 1p.m. A short organizational meeting will precede the activity. For more information, call Mike at 776-3319.

BEST KEPT secret between Manhattan and Wamego. Wagon Wheel Antiques, six miles east, old highway 24. 1-494-2388.

SPRING BREAK/ Party at Padre. For the Best Party Locations and Properties, call Now! $25 deposit per person before Oct. 28 reserves your condominium. 1-800-258-9191.

VW OWNERS, why pay $33 per hour labor for repairs? Pay only $16 per hour at J&L Auto Service, 1-494-2388. Only seven minutes east of Manhattan. Courtesy ride available.

WANTED— 100 overweight people to try herbal weight control program. No drugs, no exercise. Doctor recommended. 100% guaranteed. 776-5114, 539-3333.

Bobby J's
Restaurant and Fundriskery
Don't forget
Bobby T's
Late Night
Breakfast
Friday & Saturday
Candlewood Shopping Center
539-1571

99¢
Cotton Club hors d'oeuvre buffet
418 Poyntz 4-7 p.m.

CROSSPOINT
SUNDAY
5 p.m. to 9 p.m.
ON DB92 KSDB 91.9

2 Apartments—Furnished

AFFORDABLE FOR one to three students. Adult court, no pets, campus one mile. 537-8389, 776-8381.

BEAUTIFULLY FURNISHED clean one-bedroom apartment, adjacent campus. $175/ month, non-smoking girl. Stockwell Real Estate, 539-4073.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Nice, affordable apartment, own room and one-half of utilities. Call 537-4649.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

LARGE TWO-BEDROOM available in Westloop area. $315 unfurnished, $355 furnished. Balcony, beige carpet throughout. 776-9124.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus and Aggie. $235. Free Heating. Call Tim at 539-7975.

VERY NICE, quiet, clean one-bedroom apartment for non-smoking adult. Paid heat/ air and more. Lease. $240. 537-9686.

4 Automobiles for Sale

1977 CHEVY Malibu, two-door, looks like new, nice wheels, Alpine speakers, must see. 539-8108, Dave.

1979 MERCURY Cougar, auto transmission, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning, $1,000 or best offer. 776-3772.

1979 Z28, excellent condition, new performance engine. $2,800. 537-3818.

1981 MONTE Carlo, V-6, 73,000 miles, two-door, air conditioning, cruise control, AM/FM stereo, excellent condition, $2,700. 537-3721.

1981 PORSCHE 924, excellent condition, $5,800. 537-3818.

8 Computers

COMMODORE AMIGA 1000. Great graphics computer with color monitor, extra drives, 512K RAM, and software. 776-9539 after 5p.m.

FOR SALE: Line printer ribbons- Black multistrike no. QM MS (4½ dozen), $1.25 each. Black nylon no. QM NY (15), $2.25 each. Call 532-6555 or come by Kedzie 103 to see.

GE LINE conditioner- noise suppressor 91L series. Controls high and low voltage, $350. 776-9461 or 1-800-432-0036. Protect your computer.

HP-41CX with Math/ Stat pack, two sets rechargeable batteries with recharger, three books to supplement owner's manuals. $335 value, will sacrifice for $260. 537-2631, ask for Dave.

ZENITH
PERSONAL COMPUTERS
Authorized Warranty Service
also servicing
•PC compatibles & printers
•Televisions & VCRs
MIDWEST SERVICES
624 Little Creek Blvd.
Manhattan 913-776-6650

9 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such "employment opportunity" with reasonable caution.

FREE SPRING Break vacation in Cancun! Become a College Tours Representative on your campus and get a free trip. Nothing to buy, we provide everything you need. It's easy. Call 1-800-727-0005.

FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES, Juniors: Train in the summer to become a Marine Corps Officer after graduation. Aviation available. Call collect (913)841-1821.

HELP WANTED: Apply in person at Pinata. Ask for Kim. 1219 Bluemont.

KANSAS REGENTS Network (Telenet) announces a position opening for Program Administrator at Kansas State University. Responsibilities include program support services, clerical, and administrative duties for a statewide telecommunications network. Required qualifications: Bachelor's degree, excellent oral and written communication skills, attention to detail, superior organizational skills, ability to work as part of a team. Office management experience including microcomputer skill, scheduling, and public relations. Full-time, 12-month appointment. Salary commensurate with experience. Send letter of application, resume, and three professional references to: Telenet Search Committee, Division of Continuing Education, Umberger 312, Kansas State University, Manhattan, KS 66506. Application deadline: Oct. 25, 1988. KSU is an AA/EOE employer.

LOOKING FOR a fraternity, sorority, student organization, or exceptional individuals that would like to potentially make $1,000 or more sponsoring quality ski and beach trips on campus. For further information call Mark at Great Destinations, Inc. 1-800-258-9191.

NANNIES NEEDED on East Coast, $150 to $275 per week, free room and board, good families and home. No fee. Call Nannie Network, Inc. 1-800-US-NANNY.

OVERSEAS JOBS.. Summer, year-round. Europe, South America, Australia, Asia. All fields. $900-$2,000/ month. Sightseeing, free information. Write: IJC, P.O. Box 52-KS02, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

PEACE CORPS Campus Recruiter. Graduate assistantship available. Part-time (20 hours). Returned Peace Corps volunteer preferred. Contact Dr. Jorns, Waters 108. 532-5714.

THINKING OF taking some time off from school? We need Mother's Helpers. Household duties and childcare. Live in exciting New York City suburbs. Room, board and salary included. (203)622-4959 or (914)273-1626.

WOMEN INTERESTED in earning extra money for school or starting a new career. No experience necessary. Set your own hours, unlimited earning potential. Career Opportunity meeting Sunday at 12:30p.m. and 2:30p.m. in Union Room 203.

AVIATION CADET PROGRAM

Do you want to fly? Pilot training, ages 19-24 with 60 semester hours for our naval aviation cadet program. Must be a U.S. citizen and physically qualified with a 2.5 plus G.P.A. Call Navy Management 1-800-821-5110.

12 Houses/Mobile Homes for Rent

FOUR-BEDROOM, UNFURNISHED large living room, washer/ dryer hookups, lease, deposit. Available Nov. 1, 1110 Yuma, $340 plus utilities, 537-2099, 539-8052.

13 Houses/Mobile Homes for Sale

12x60 TWO-BEDROOM mobile home in Leisure Acres. $3,500. (913)266-7231.

1977 WINDSOR 14x75 two-bedroom, one and one-half bath, central air, all appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop, all on three-quarters of an acre. 1-494-8484.

1980 BELLAVISTA 14x70, three-bedroom, one and one-half bath, appliances, central air, skirted. $11,000. 776-0763.

MUST SELL- 1977 Windsor 14x75. All appliances, two-car garage, insulated shop. Really nice. 1-494-8484.

15 Miscellaneous Merchandise

ANTIQUE GATE leg table, fair condition, $100. 1-494-8484.

COLOR TELEVISION, living room set, bar, bar stools, dinette, desk, chest, bed, couch, misc. 776-9705.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS- Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more! Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday- Saturday 9a.m.- 5p.m., St. Marys Surplus Sales, St. Marys, Kansas, 1-437-2734.

HOT TUB for sale, $1,200 or best offer. 537-9137.

REFRIGERATOR: 27"x19¼ "x21½ ". Great for personal bar, dorm or other bedroom. 537-8892, Monday- Thursday.

SPEAKERS FOR sale. Three-way satellite system. $275. Compare to $600. Also will custom build speakers/ subwoofers for home or car. Excellent quality. 539-7439, ask for Rodger.

impulse SOUND
SOUND REINFORCEMENT
DAVE ELY MANHATTAN, KS. (913) 537-9694
call for references

NEW BULB SPECIAL
5 SESSIONS
$10
Manhattan's Largest Tanning Salon
"Connect with the Best"
SUN CONNECTION
1126 Laramie 776-2426

SIP N' DIP
HOT TUB RENTALS
537-1825
Ask about our $75 discount.

B & L THRIFT SHOP
Offering Halloween costumes, hats, & wigs.
539-1717
Old Town Mall 523 S. 17th

HOUSTON STREET BALLROOM
Wedding Receptions
Dances, Parties
539-1234

16 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

12-SPEED, TAKARA Delux Touring, excellent. Got too many bikes. $65, 532-6787, ask for Ted.

1986 SUZUKI FA50, new condition- $300. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

HELMETS, REPAIR manuals, etc. Motorcycle Supply, 1221 Moro. 776-6177.

MOUNTAIN BIKE- 1988 Specialized -Rock Hopper. Evenings, 539-8306.

17 Musical Instruments

GUITARS/ AMPS for sale!! Aria Pro II- $250, Aria 3/4 scale acoustic- best offer, Kramer bass- $150, Stienburger style bass- $200, Marlboro practice amp- $70, Fender bassman 60 watt amp- $200. 537-1690 before 8a.m., after 7p.m.

Hayes House of Music
776-7983 327 Poyntz
Martin-Sigma
Accoustic Guitars
ON SALE

18 Personals

BRIAN: GOOD Luck on your PPST. You'll do great! Debi.

GAY/LESBIAN? Write for Kansas/Missouri information. Personally, PO Box 218, Daly City, CA 94016. Discreet, confidential.

HO, HAPPY 19th! We're going to have a great time. Love, your roomie, the Sleaz.

KEN- HEY Big Brother! Happy 20th Birthday Sunday! Have a blast! Love, Kevin.

KENYON: WOULD like to talk with you. Vido Carlucci.

PIKE- TODD M.- The week's been long and Friday is finally here, we'll drink a little wine and lots of beer. Drinkin', dancin', and too much fun, more surprises are yet to come. The party dome is the place to be, Pi Phi parties are the best you'll see. Looking forward to this weekend. Vicki.

ROUNDHEAD AND Bull of the Woods: Here's a toast to Delimas, Baby Buds, Spit Plays, Breathmints, and scandals -I think we better go crazy tonight! James and Rubix.

SAE DATES Jones, Lud, Graham, Schmidty, Darren, and Ed. Tonight's the night we will be partying right, your scavenger hunt will be out of sight. Get ready to rock 'n roll at 6:30 be at Mel's Fishbowl. Don't worry get hammered.

SIGMA NU'S Brad and Greg- Kite's and Wackers were really fun, but the real excitement is still to come. "Dirty Dancing" on the deck was a blast, but the fun tonight is going to last! Love, your "T.G.I.F." Dates. Wooosh!

SUSAN S.- Oh my goodness! It's your birthday Sunday. M&Ms and Poptarts. PCs? Darn that mirror anyway! Love, Shanna, Becca and Britt.

THETA HEATH: Thank you for the D.L. ticket. Happy Anniversary. Love, Romeo.

THETA XI party dates- The party is here, the beer is stocked, you're going with G-Phis, prepare to be rocked. You'll be sent to some really fun places, where you'll be shot and soon fall on your faces. So put on your boots and bring your hat, 'cause in a barn is where it's at. Yee Haw -Bird, Stash, Wheels, Linus.

TRI DELT Christy G. and Chi Omega Lisa R.- Look out world, here they come. And you'd better stand back because they're 21!! Love, A.S.

19 Pets and Pet Supplies

AKC REGISTERED black Lab puppies! Championship bloodlines. Call 776-7547.

LOVABLE FERRET needs home! Litter trained female. Spacious cage included $40. Call 539-4651, ask for Michelle.

20 Professional Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 S. Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROMPT ABORTION and contraceptive services in Lawrence. (913)841-5716.

22 Resume/Typing Services

ALL TYPING needs $1/ page. Daisy wheel printer, Spell Checker. Ask for Mr. Bear. 539-7561.

COMPLETE DATA processing services, term papers, theses and dissertations, resumes. Laser jet printing. Call 537-4146.

FAST TURNAROUND for all your word processing needs, see us. Resumes, letters, papers, theses, dissertations. Quality work guaranteed. Ross Secretarial Service, across from Kite's, 614 N. 12th. 539-5147.

PROCRASTINATORS AND those on the ball, for expert typing give us a call. 537-3166, message.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETARY for accurate typing, editing and transcription services at reasonable rates. 539-5998 after 5p.m.

TERM PAPERS, theses, dissertations. All your typing requirements, reasonable rates, expert typist. Call 539-5422.

23 Roommate Wanted

WANTED: MALE or female roommate to share nice, two-bedroom apartment with two girls. Own bedroom. Immediately. $116/ month plus one-third utilities. Cheverly Apartments. 537-1878.

WANTED: TWO roommates, male or female. Own rooms, three-room apartment at 1200 Bluemont, next to Aggieville, one block from campus. $130 a month plus utilities. Call 537-3679.

28 Adoption

A CHILDLESS loving couple wishes to adopt white newborn. We will provide a warm wonderful and loving home. We are committed to being the best parents possible. Legal and confidential. Please call collect, Kelly and Ramiro, (201)376-0894.

LOVE-FILLED HOME needs the joy of a new baby to complete our very happy marriage. If you plan to place your baby for adoption, please consider us. Expenses paid, confidential, legal. Call collect, Claire, (303)422-1297.

31 Room Without Board

LARGE, QUIET off-street parking. Utilities paid, private entrance. Call 776-6741, evenings or weekends.

Bloom County

By Berke Breathed

Garfield

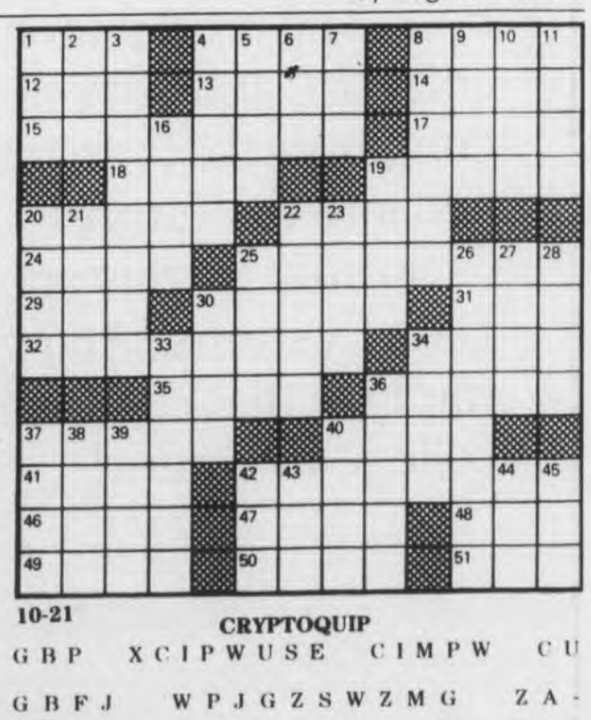
By Jim Davis

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Chum
4 Ali —
8 Gooey mass
12 In the manner of
13 Emcee Trebek
14 Roof overhang
15 Trim the tree
17 Concept
18 Fencing weapon
19 Spy, in a way
20 They eat oats
22 Tortoise's foe
24 Lendl of tennis
25 Produce
29 Illuminated
30 Franks' partner
31 "— Na Na"
32 Think too highly of 34 Tiff
35 Husking bee units
36 Agitates
37 "Done in"
40 Sharif
41 Put up, as pictures
42 Act as arbiter
46 "You said it!"
47 Diabolical
48 Play-thing
49 Gets teary
50 "I — to Be Happy"
51 She sheep

DOWN
1 Memo follower
2 Brit's brew
3 Tear
4 Uncovers
5 Wings
6 Take a risk
7 Chopping need
8 Counter of radio-activity
9 Load cargo
10 Pizzeria need
11 Throb
16 Contest for anyone
19 War god
20 Actor O'Shea
21 Tel —
22 Warms up
23 Actress Bancroft
25 Equipment
26 Breathe in
27 "...in them — hills"
28 Diner chow
30 Cereal choice
33 Occupies the throne
34 Headliner
36 Liquefy ore
37 Food fish
38 Weak, as an excuse
39 Freshly
40 Norse god
42 Kitten cry
43 Eggs
44 Pull a water skier
45 Ogle

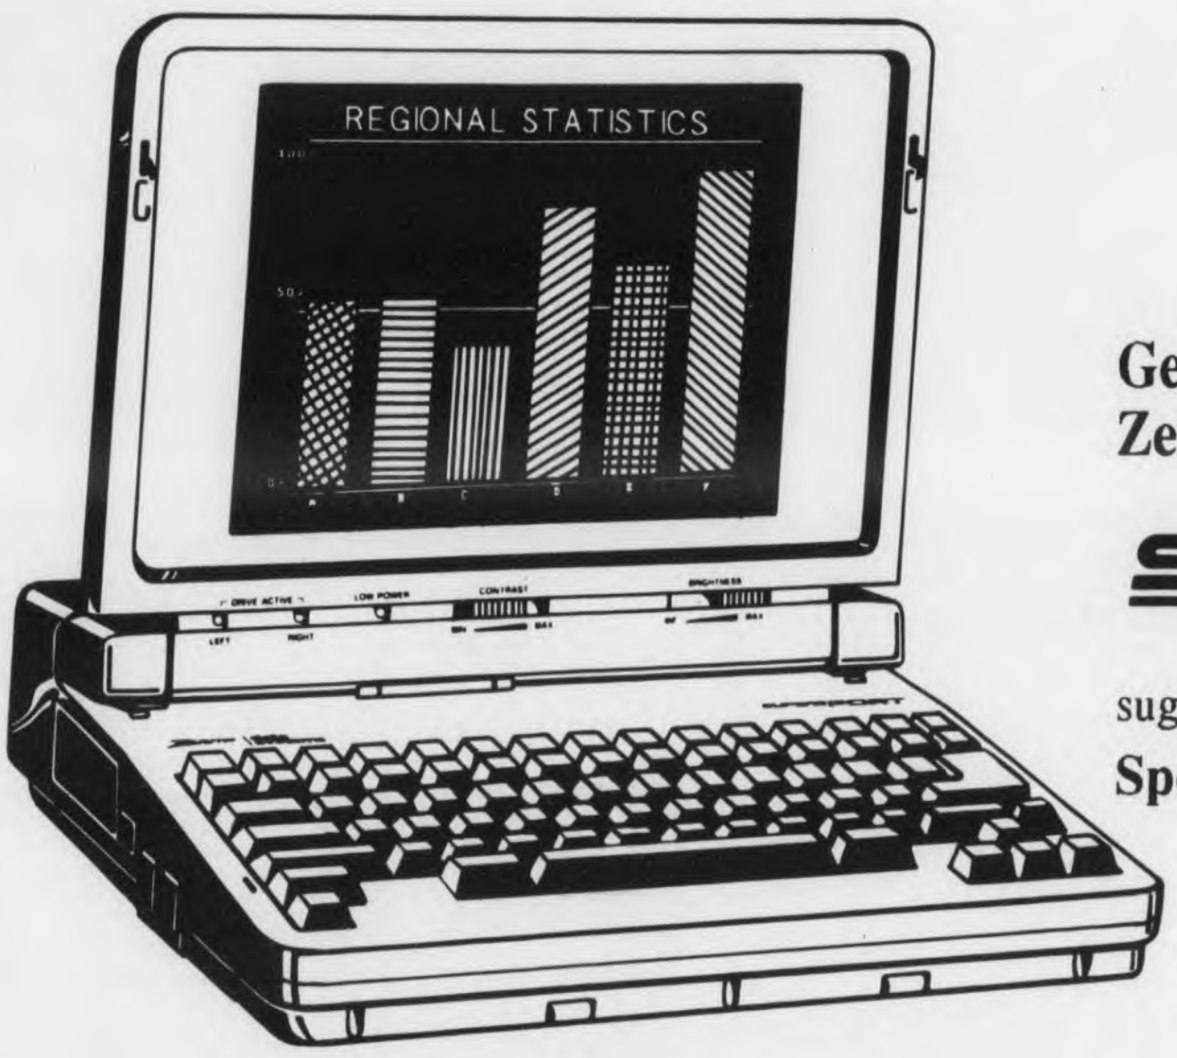
Solution time: 26 mins.

S	A	P	S		B	I	T		T	G	I	F
O	R	A	L		A	I	R		O	R	C	A
A	L	T	O		L	I	E		N	E	E	D
P	O	S	E	A	S		A	S	T	A
			G	R	A	N	D	H	O	T	E	L
S	P	L	I	T		I	L	E		A	R	I
L	E	A	N		A	G	E		S	P	O	T
O	R	R		A	S	H		M	E	E	S	E
B	I	G	B	R	O	T	H	E	R
			E	A	R	L		A	N	V	I	L	S
F	U	S	S		D	A	R		A	D	U	E	T
A	P	S	E		A	V	E		N	E	S	T
T	I	E	D		S	A	M		T	A	T	S

Yesterday's answer 10-21

10-21

CRYPTOQUIP



G B P X C I P W U S E C I M P W C U G B F J W P J G Z S W Z M G Z A - A P X G P Y Q W F Q P J S M Y P W G B P G Z Q E P

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: MANY STOCKY DIETERS WERE TOLD TO CHEW SLOWLY SINCE HASTE MAKES WAIST.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals F

You Want The Best PC Values on Campus?

Get Terrific Student Pricing At The Zenith Data Systems Open House

SUPERSPORT™

suggested retail price: $2399

Special Student Price: $1439

The Zenith Data Systems Supersport™

Great news! Zenith Data Systems is headed your way with a special campus extravaganza! It's your chance to enjoy unbelievable student values on Zenith Data Systems' family of personal computers and monitors. From laptops... to desktops... to super-advanced systems. All complete with PC compatibility and MS-DOS.®

As your Zenith Data Systems Campus Contact, we'll give you a full demonstration. And we'll match you up with the right software and peripherals. To give you a computer that can take you through school and into the future!

So stop by this special event from Zenith Data Systems. And get fantastic values on the PCs that can take you all the way from college to career!

Stop by the Zenith Data Systems special campus celebration at:

STUDENT UNION COURTYARD
OCTOBER 24 & 25
9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Contact your local Student Representative
Jan Elsasser 537-6807
or
k-state union bookstore 532-6583

ZENITH | data systems

THE QUALITY GOES IN BEFORE THE NAME GOES ON®

© 1987, Zenith Data Systems

Rape Scare

K-State isn't excluded from the crime of rape. Since January, two alleged sexual assaults have been reported. See Page 3.

Weather

Mostly sunny today with the high in the mid-60s. Mostly clear tonight with the low around 40. Sunny and clear Tuesday with the high in the mid-60s.

*5-DIGIT 66612
164 0/0/0  10
Kansas State Historical Soc
Attn; Newspaper Sect'n
120 West 10th
Topeka, KS 66612

Saturday. See Page 6.

Monday
October 24, 1988

Kansas State University
Manhattan, Kansas 66506
Volume 95, Number 45

Kansas State
Collegian

Renovation meets needs

By Lisa Pfannenstiel
Collegian Reporter

With the renovation of Weber Hall, K-State has met the tremendous challenge of the changing animal science industry, gaining the leading edge in teaching, research and extension opportunities, said Don Good, former head of the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry.

More than 600 students, faculty members, alumni and industry employers gathered Saturday morning in Weber Arena for a dedication ceremony.

"A state-of-the-art facility is especially important in the future of animal agriculture," said Walter Woods, dean of the College of Agriculture.

The institution's emphasis, the industry's needs and consumers' attitudes are changing rapidly, Good said. Eastern states have much less input in agriculture than Kansas does, he said. To provide food competitively in the world market, midwestern states will have to increase their agricultural programs.

The shift of emphasis is dynamic, Good said. K-State has the greatest opportunities for economic development on the continent, but people are going to have to dream — make it happen, he said.

Woods said K-State will meet the needs of the industry by providing graduates with knowledge of modern technology, by developing new products, and by researching the biological processes of the animals.

Kansas Sen. Ross Doyen said legislative support of $7.2 million in the renovation's funding was to ensure Kansas would lead U.S. research and production.

In 1957, K-State began building a tradition that put animal agriculture first in the Kansas' economy, Doyen said. Today, Kansas is the nation's leader in beef packing, employing more than 14,000 workers and producing more than 4.6 billion pounds of red meat a year.

"This is our generation to create, a generation to act, a generation to sacrifice and achieve," Good said. "What we do now will affect future generations throughout the world."

Weber's facilities provide a tremendous foundation for teaching and research activity, Woods said.

Research efforts include making low-fat products, said John Unruh, assistant professor of animal sciences and industry. Researchers also experiment with increasing dietary fiber in meats.

They are attempting to determine

■ See WEBER, Page 11

Staff/Mike Venso

Pvt. David Akin, Lawrence, practices proper sabre techniques with Sgt. Brad West, Lawrence. Members of the 4th Missouri Volunteer Calvary participated in Fort Riley Territorial Days this weekend. The group re-enacted a civil war calvary unit camp.

Cavalry re-enacts Civil War battles

By Chris Koger
Collegian Reporter

FORT RILEY — Upon first glance, the camp looked ordinary. Four tents were arranged near a blackened spot where a fire had provided warmth the previous night, and eight horses waited patiently to be fed.

At 7 a.m. the camp started to awaken. Lt. Dave Smith poked his head out of a tent and checked his horse, Warrior. In half an hour, reveille woke the remaining troops.

As the inhabitants emerged from the tents, it became apparent that something was strange — everyone was wearing clothing more at home in the TV mini-series "North and South," not in the 1980s.

Company C of the 4th Missouri Volunteer Cavalry spent Saturday and Sunday camped near the Fort Riley United States Cavalry Museum to participate in Civil War battle re-enactments as a part of the annual Territorial Days celebration.

While at Fort Riley, the federal cavalry took part in a battle scene, and practiced actual cavalry manuevers, including a drill called "running at the heads." This drill involves a soldier on horseback, sabre in hand, to charge at a straw-filled canvas sack that symbolizes a human head.

"They did this to practice dismembering the enemy's heads," said David Akin, who portrays a private.

Smith, who is a civilian, lives in Rolla, Mo. On certain weekends throughout the year, he joins the 17 other cavalry members in his group and travels to historic sites around the country to re-enact major Civil War battles.

"The idea is to re-enact the war — not fight it over again," he said.

Although the cavalry has not been a part of the military since the early 1940s, Smith said there is still a lot of interest in horse-riding soldiers.

"Our goal is to have about 50 members with horses within the next two years," he said.

Of the 12 men present this weekend, three were accompanied by their wives. Smith's wife, Marcia, has been attending the re-enactments for two years.

"At first, I didn't go, and it was like being a fishing or hunting 'widow.' After I tried it though, I found it was hard not to like it," she said.

While Sgt. Brad West, Lawrence, inspected the troops and their arms, Jim Krause, Lawrence, prepared sourdough flapjacks on a

■ See SOLDIER, Page 13

Staff/Mike Venso

Lt. Dave Smith, Rolla, Mo., talks to his horse as he feeds it. Smith was the commanding officer of a unit while at Fort Riley.

Campus lighting causing concern

By Susan Johannsen
Collegian Reporter

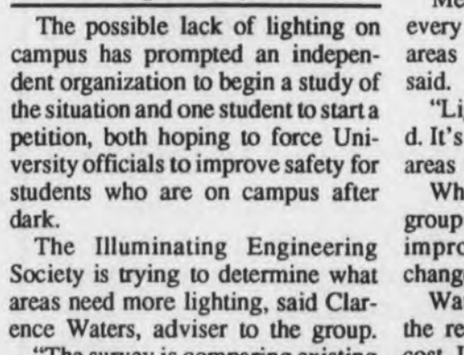
The possible lack of lighting on campus has prompted an independent organization to begin a study of the situation and one student to start a petition, both hoping to force University officials to improve safety for students who are on campus after dark.

The Illuminating Engineering Society is trying to determine what areas need more lighting, said Clarence Waters, adviser to the group.

"The survey is comparing existing conditions to the recommended standards set by the Illuminating Engineering Society," Waters said.

Measurements will be taken about every 20 feet to determine which areas need improvement, Waters said.

"Lighting can always be improved. It's going to be common for some areas to be underlit," he said.



When the survey is complete, the group will then estimate the cost of improving the lighting where changes are necessary.

Waters said: "If the lighting meets the requirements, there will be no cost. If it doesn't, then we'll have to

■ See LIGHT, Page 13

Fire hazards exist despite improvements

Campus Facilities

By Theresa Luling
Collegian Reporter

Editor's Note: This is the first of a five-part series on campus facilities.

Thirteen years ago, if a major fire occurred on campus, about the only thing that could be done was to sell tickets for ringside seats and watch the building go up in smoke.

And although there have been many improvements in the University's fire safety efforts, there are still buildings that do not comply with State Fire Marshall regulations.

In 1975, there was a verbal understanding between K-State and the Manhattan Fire Department. In the event of a major fire, the plan was to send one city pumper truck and five firefighters to the campus. The city's serial ladder truck would respond to dormitory fires with one fireman. The possibility did exist, however, that neither would be available.

"A lot has changed since then," said Larry Reese, deputy fire chief. "The Manhattan Fire Department now provides full fire suppression to K-State by means of a contract."

Under this contract, the Manhattan Fire Department would respond to University

See related story/Page 10 fires just like any other alarm, even though the campus is not within city limits, he said.

A normal response to a fire would be two engines and a ladder truck. In the event of a fire in any of the larger buildings on campus or in a commercial area of Manhattan, the department would also call in off-duty personnel for assistance, Reese said.

If backup assistance is needed, the fire department has a mutual-aid agreement with other cities. There is also a verbal agreement with Fort Riley and Junction City.

"The nature of the call and the severity will determine the amount of equipment that will be brought," Reese said.

The Manhattan Fire Department does not provide fire prevention activities such as building inspections and plan reviews, he said. This is done by the State Fire Department.

The person in charge of inspections on the K-State campus is Paul Markley, chief of the fire prevention division of the State Fire Department.

Staff/Joe Freeman

A fire exit on the second floor of West Stadium is through a 2-by-3 foot door that is 2 feet from the floor.

As far as building safety is concerned, Markley said, "few existing buildings are OK, but we (the State Fire Department) cannot expect the University to renovate every code change. I look to see if there are any life hazards that exist."

The University allocates a maximum amount of money to work on specific projects each year. But because available funds are insufficient for completing a campus-wide renovation in a year, projects are prioritized on a long-range basis, said Vince Cool, associate director of facilities planning.

"If this continues on a yearly basis, nothing will be shut down," Markley said. "But this doesn't mean there are not buildings I don't know about."

If it is life hazards the State Fire Department is looking for, then some say that K-State has its share.

"There are clearly problems that need attention, but are not receiving it," said Charles Stroh, head of the Department of Art.

Stroh is concerned with the safety of students in the Art building.

If a major blaze were to occur, the second floor does not provide an accessable escape route, he said.

There is a door on the second floor where individuals could exit, Stroh said, but it is at the back of a room which accommodates six faculty members.

There are no signs outside the room indicating it as a fire exit. And a majority of the time, the door is locked because the faculty members do not want individuals getting in the room, he said.

Stroh said if an individual makes it out the door, they have two choices — jump or perish — because there is no fire escape.

In an attempt to alleviate the problem of fire safety, the Board of Regents has developed a proposed list of long-range plans. The list addresses, as top priority, fire protection and life saftey, allocating $4 million to the project on the K-State campus through 1994.

The regents' goal is to "provide remodeling and renovation required to bring older University buildings into compliance with State Fire Marshall's recommendations," said John Lambert, director and associate professor of public safety.

Hopefully, steps will be taken during the fiscal years 1989-1994 to correct the fire code violations, he said.

"We are less concerned about the academic buildings since they are being constantly entered by the student population," Markley said. "We look for such things as proper exiting, early warning and emergency lights.

Buildings that are often used are an alarm system in themselves, he said.

He indicated that Marlatt, Edwards and Goodnow halls do not have alarm systems and that state fire codes require them.

Tuesday: A lack of classroom space has forced instructors and students either to overcrowd rooms or to go without.

BRIEFLY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRIEFLY AROUND THE WORLD

Kidnappers make demands

